DISCHARGED ON BURGLARY CHARGE

Charles Jackson's Case Proceeding at Time of Going to Press

The case of the four boys, taken into custody on December 31st, on a charge of breaking into "Bluestone," the Withers' residence on Dorset street, on the night of November 28th, came up finally before Magistrate Campbell to-day.

Crown Attorney Kerr, of Cobourg, conducted the prosecution, F. W. McMahon acting for Jackson, F. P. Hall for Chesterton, and G. M. Gordon for Micks and Henderson.

Chief Murphy was called as the first witness. He testified that he had arrested Henderson on a minor charge, and had questioned him regarding the Bluestone burglary. Henderson at first hesitated, and then told his story later, at Chief Murphy's request, making a written statement. The Chief denied using any terms such as "It would be better for Henderson to tell what he knew. The statement made by Henderson was produced in court and read in full. In part, it was an admission made by Henderson that he had driven his four confederates in his car to the starting point of the exhibition on the corner of Peter and Hope streets. They then proceeded to the Bluestone, where they made an entrance by breaking a rear window and leaving by the back door. Jackson was the leader, and it was he who suggested entering the Passey residence.

Cross-examined by Mr. Gordon, Chief Murphy told of Jackson's frequent visits to him in his office, but at the time he did not know him to be implicated in the case. He denied that he made any statement to Henderson that it would be better for him to tell what he knew.

Crown Attorney Kerr agreed to throw out the evidence contained in the statement on the grounds that it was taken under pretension of leniency. Magistrate Campbell protested and after a hot controversy between Mr. Gordon and His Honor, the evidence was admitted.

Frederick Charles Jackson, 21 years of age, a resident of Hope Township, was next called. He recounted the manner in which he met his associates in the burglary and the procedure of the party to the Withers' residence. His story was that after placing Henderson and Coughlin on guard, Chesterton and Micks made an entrance into the cellar through a rear window, and called to him to follow. The three thoroughly explored the place, but finding no whiskey, left without disturbing anything. He denied having told the other boys that he had been to the Bluestone before on the 15th and that he had made the suggestion of the foray. He admitted that he had a criminal record with one conviction for theft and two for minor offences. Murphy had told him that it would be better for him to tell all he knew. The statement he had written was given to Constable Cousans, who was not present when Chief Murphy told him that his statement might help his case. This concluded the case for the Crown.

Gerald Henderson, aged 20, told his story of the affair, how he met the others, where they went, and what he knew about the burglary itself. Jackson made the suggestion as to going after the liquor at the Bluestone, and he and Micks led the way to the Withers' residence. Here Jackson told them that he was a private detective in charge of the place, and leaving the others on the sidewalk went into the grounds. Five minutes later he returned empty-handed, saying that someone had rattled the rear door. Jackson then asked the boys to go with him to Mrs. Passey's, but Henderson and his associates refused to go, on the grounds that they did not desire to steal.

Soon after he saw Chief Murphy and was asked regarding the burglary. The Chief said: "I know you were there and you'd better say so. I have the names of your associates and the number of your car. If you make a statement it will be better for you." He swore that Chief Murphy had told him to put down 2.00 a.m. as the hour of the burglary and his statement as to the party gaining entrance by a rear window. The section relating to Mrs. Passy's residence was also inserted at Chief Murphy's dictation.

In the statement he made to Chief Murphy in reference to who broke into the place, he had mean Jackson alone.

Cross-examined by the Crown Attorney, he denied that in lying to Murphy as to being implicated in the burglary, he was attempting to shield anyone. He was not trying to mislead the Chief, but to keep the whole bunch out of trouble. He swore that Chesterton was seated with him in the front seat of the car.

The Court adjourned until 1.15 at the conclusion of Henderson's testimony.

The Afternoon Session

Chief Murphy recalled and cross examined by Mr. Kerr denied that he had influenced Henderson's statements in any way, as Henderson had sworn in his evidence. He also denied Jackson's declaration to the effect that he might expect leniency if he confessd. He stated that Jackson when arrested volunteered to make a statement but this, he refused to talk.

Percy Chesterton, 24 years old and a resident of Port Hope for sixteen years was the next witness. Cross examination by Mr. Gordon settled the fact that Chesterton was in the front seat of the car with Henderson, contrary to Jackson's evidence. Chesterton testified that Jackson entered the grounds, leaving the others on the sidwalk. They acted as a sort of guard.

Questioned by Mr. Kerr he stated that Murphy gave him the usual warning that anything he said might be used as evidence against him.

Constable Cousans testified that he had conversed with Micks upon his arrest on December 30th, and after issuing the customary warning had cross-examined him about the burglary. This revealed that Jackson had actually broken in. At the same time he had faced Chesterton and Jackson, who accused each other of the act of burglary.

Chief Murphy, who was present at the cross-examination, corroborated the evidence given by Cousans.

Jackson, recalled, was cross-examined by Mr. Hall and admitted one criminal charge of theft and two minor charges.

Micks and Chesterton elected to be tried summarily and pleaded guilty.

G. N. Gordon made a very stirring defence speech for his clients. He advanced the argument that any four persons might wait upon the sidewalk while an associate went after liquor. This, although if the liquor had been obtained might have resulted as an inditable offence, was not in itself an offence. "The Crown," he said, infers that these three were posted on the sidewalk as a guard, but this is not neessarily so." Thus the case of the Crown against his clients was very weak.

Crown Attorney Kerr's reply was concise and convincing. The actions of the boys in going, as they did, in Henderson's car on an expedition at the late hour they did, were very suspicious, and on considering the evidence asked for convictions.

Mr. T. F. Hall made a fine appeal for his client, Chesterton, and especially advanced the man's fine character. He produced a petition signed by a large number of citizens appealing for leniency.

Magistrate Campbell dealt with the case with tact and deliberation, but because of insufficiency of evidence against three of the boys, he dismissed the charges against them. He however, felt the boys would draw a lesson from their three weeks' sojourn in jail and thought it a very deserving reward for their foolishness.

Jackson's case is proceeding at the time of going to press.

ILLUSTRATED TALK AND MUSIC

Methodist Choir Concert Drew Good Attendance

The Methodist Choir concert held in the Sunday School room last evening was well attended by the music lovers of the town.

Mrs. Chas. Massie sang the "Holy City" which is much liked by most music lovers; Mr. A. B. Skitch rendered "The Palms" in his usual attractive way; a quartette composed of Mrs. H. Wakelin, Mrs. J. Holden, Messrs. Geo. Ward and Leslie Unitt sang "Lead Kindly Light" and the whole choir gave "Abide With Me" and "O, Worship the King" in an able and delightful way; all these pieces were beautifully illustrated.

Then the pastor, Rev. J. W. Baird, gave an address on "Pigrim's Progress" which was also well illustrated with beautiful hand colored slides.

The whoe program was much enjoyed and the choir did very well financially with the entertainment.

FIRE IN CANNERY

Volunteers Fought Blaze For Four Hours at Brighton

At 11 o'clock Wednesday night fire broke out in the premises of the Spring Valley Canners, Brighton, doing a considerable amount of damage and requiring the efforts of a corps of volunteeer fire fighters, who labored until nearly three o'clock before the flames were finally extinguished.

The fire was noticed first by Mrs. George Frederick, who lives nearby. She enlisted the services of Mrs. Fred Round's telephone, and the alarm was sent out, bringing a large crowd of fire fighters to the scene.

The fire is supposed to have originated in a small stove in the labelling room of the factory, where the employees have been engaged for some time past labelling goods. The blaze ignited the sawdust, and was difficult to extinguish.

The chief damage was from smoke and water, and the loss is covered by insurance.

Frugality may be termed the daughter of prudence, the sister of temperance, and the parent of liberty.

NEW SCHOOL A COLOSSAL BLUNDER

The Guide advised delay in school building operations. The Ratepayers by their votes a year ago refused to sanction the building of a new school in ward one.

By hook or crook the building of the school was forced upon Port Hope, despite adverse criticism and heavy opposing vote. Plans were drawn and the building rushed and is now declared to be no more modern than the building it is to replace.

If those who found the question of a new school so essential to their well being, why did they not avail themselves of the plans of the Port Hope Central School, which is a modern and a safe building?

The unfortunate part is that the ratepayers of Port Hope are compelled to pay for a defective building which they did not require, while those most insistent are out of town and pay not one cent towards the cost of the work or the expense of the blunders.

It was insisted that the school department ordered a school to be built. If that is so then it is up to the same authorities to send a properly qualified engineer to rectify the blunders.

These school erection scandals are becoming altogether too common in Ontario these days, Oshawa, Port Hope and other places,—but in all cases the overburdened ratepayer has to pay, pay, pay.

The new school should not be used or accepted until the blunders are rectified.

STURGEON FALLS O. T. A. RESOLUTION RESCINDED

The resolution adopted by the town council of Sturgeon Falls, Ont., last November advising the Chief of Police not to enforce the Ontario Temperance Act has been rescinded by this year's council. The resolution now adopted sets forth that the November resolution did not represent public sentiment in Sturgeon Falls. A change in representatives caused the expression of "dry" humor no doubt. What can now be said about the municipal situation in Port Hope, where a great change took place, too?

All Beaten Clubs Eligible O. H. A. Consolation Series

All beaten clubs are eligible and are invited to compete, but must have their entries in to the O. H. A. not later than Wednesday, January 28th. Groups will be arranged and schedules drawn on Friday, January 30th, at a meeting to be held by the clubs interested who will be notified by wire.

Counting on the Petes Reaching Senior Play-off

To muster together 2,000 fans, gather up a band or two and charter a special to invade Toronto when Peterboro seniors enter the play-offs, as it is fairly certain they will, is the plan of a fan who yesterday asked the Peterboro City Council, Rotary Club, Kiwanis and others to push the plan through.

Many Peterboro people, constitutionally conservative, are still pinching themselves to test the reality of their present sensations of pride and elation as the team piles up victory on victory, and it is time, the four bit fan says, for the city to show Toronto that the fans are behind the team.

A parade from Union Station to the Arena, where a solid block of seats would be occupied by Peterboro fans, a rooters' chorus led by a male choir, and a between period concert are among the proposals. "Shake yourself out of the daze and exploit with a splash the team's achievement," urges the fan.

BASEBALL

TO HAVE JUNIOR SERIES IN D. AND O. LEAGUE

I. G. Knott is President and G. L. Hogan Secretary

Thursday the annual meeting of the Durham and Ontario Intermediate Baseball League was held in Welsh's parlors, Oshawa, and officers and executive for the coming season elected. The meeting decided to organize a junior league and the name of the organization was changed to read, Durham and Ontario Baseball Association, and will comprise Oshawa G. M. C., Orono or Bowmanville, Port Hope and Cobourg, the latter making its debut into this league. All of the towns will supply a junior and intermediate team with a view of encouraging youngsters and fostering the sport.

A fine trophy was presented the league by Spalding and Co., and is put up for annual competition. When a team wins it three times it becomes their property. It is mounted on a heavy base with ample room for shield and crouched on top of a ball is a model of a catcher in action. Representatives at the meeting were J. Taber and H. S. Dell, Oshawa; George Strong, Port Hope; E. E. White, Cobourg and Orme Gamsby, Orono.

Officers Elected

The officers elected were: Past Presidents, Mayor T. Holgate, Bowmanville; Reeve M. J. Holman, Orono; Mayor H. P. Schell, Oshawa; Mayor T. B. Chalk, Port Hope; and Mayor Fred J. McArthur, Cobourg; President, John G. Nott, Oshawa; Vice-President, Orme Gamsby, Orono; 2nd Vice-President, George Strong, Port Hope; 3rd Vice-President, E. E. White, Cobourg; Secretary-Treasurer, Gerald L. Hogan, Oshawa; Executive, J. L. Taber, G. M. C., Oshawa; Wm. Lowe, Port Hope; O. W. Rolph, Orono and Cobourg has not yet named their representative; Trophy Trustees are John G. Nott, E. E. White, O. A. Gamsby and George V. Strong.

The need of a junior entry from the various towns was stressed by the meeting, all being in favor of the organization of such a league and promised their best efforts to make it function and it is incumbent upon the intermediate teams to give all possible assistance and upon the association officers to forward the project. The D. and O. is the first league in this district to have given attention to junior players who, they realize, are the intermediate players of next year and the seniors of a few years later when they have been well seasoned. In order to help the juniors along, the entry fee has been set at the nominal sum of $5, while the intermediate teams are taxed fees of $15 annually, and must be paid on or before April 1, and with the fees must accompany the names of the umpires suggested.

Play Double Schedule

In the intermediate groups a double split schedule was agreed upon with the winners of each group playing off in the final, the first games to be Oshawa v. Orono and Cobourg v. Port Hope on May 25. In the junior series the single schedule will be used and will open after school closes for the summer hoidays in order that baseball will not interfere with the closing examinations. The president, J.G. Nott, and the secretary, G. L. Hogan, are the schedule committee and will submit a draft to the various teams for consideration.

Jack Nott and Orme Gamsby are the delegates to the O. B. A. A. convention, which is to be held in Toronto on the first Saturday in April.

BUSINESS FAILURES LESS IN CANADA

Number of Commercial Insolvencies off Nearly 24 per cent. —Falling off in Indebtedness 2 per cent.

Unlike the statistics for the United States, the Canadian returns for last year show reductions in both number and liabilities of commercial failures, according to the records of R. G. Dun & Co. The numerical decrease reached nearly 24 per cent., but the falling off in the indebtedness was only 2 per cent., numbering 2,474 and involving $64,530,975. The Canadian defaults compare with 3,247 for $65,810,382 in 1923, and with 3,695 failures for $78,068,959 in 1922. There were fewer defaults last year than in 1923 in manufacturing, trading and other commercial occupations, but only among traders was the indebtedness less than that of the earlier period.

Geographical analysis of the Canadian statement shows that a smaller number of failures occurred in all of the ten Provinces included in the record, although there was a decrease of only one default in New Brunswick. Only 5 failures were reported for Prince Edward Island, against 20 in 1923, while the reductions everywhere ranged from 21 in Newfoundland to 285 in Quebec. In point of indebtedness, Ontario and New Brunswick had larger totals, but the increase of more than $16,000,000 in Ontario practically offset the decreases elsewhere, the largest of which was $9,000,000 in Quebec. The liabilities in Ontario in 1924 of $30,403,976 compare with $14,174,683 the year previous. In 1924 there were $22,302,112 of manufacturing concerns. In 1923 the liabilities for Quebec amounted to $30,969,756, and of this amount $17,481,324 was of manufacturing defaults. Last year Quebec reported $21,551,846 of indebtedness.

Province	Number. 1924.	1923.	Liabilities. 1924.
Ontario	817	844	$30,403,976
Quebec	886	1,171	21,551,846
B. C.	114	162	2,422,121
Nova Scotia	70	146	840,560
Newf'dland	29	50	1,205,000
Manitoba	262	382	4,627,328
N. Brunswick	54	55	757,927

Alberta	92	165	1,335,200
Saskatchewan	145	252	1,154,582

The greatest music in the world is the laughter of a child.

Language is but a poor bull's-eye lantern wherewith to show off the vast cathedral of the world.

Low Birth Rate.—Coal miners rear the largest families, and architects, dentists, physicians and surgeons the smallest, according to statistics. For the miner's family the number of children average as high as 8.1, while for the architect's it drops as low as 2.8. Actors also fall into the low percentages as parents. The figures corroborate the drift complained of all over the world. That is to say, the professional and leisure classes show an actual decline in the birthrate, while the hardier classes in the ranks of the toilers are making the sole contribution to population increase. — Philadelphia Ledger.

DO'S AND DON'S GIVEN ECLIPSE OBSERVERS

There do's and don'ts for eclipse observers were given yesterday by George Kronenberger, Professor of Astronomy at Manhattan College:

For a good general view: Choose a place from which you can see the sun and much of the sky around it. A little before totality rest the eyes for a while by shutting out all light. During totality remain quiet with eyes unstrained, taking into view as large a part of sky as possible.

To avoid disappointments: Don't miss the few seconds of totality, because totality is the one feature that will make this eclipse different from the usual eclipses. Don't use a badly smoked glass, because it may admit too much light, and a card with a pine-hole through its centre serves just as well, is safer and easier to handle.

Portia's father was old-fashioned

In the days of Shakespeare's famous heroine, buying and selling were contests of wits. In Venice, haggling and dickering were the vogue. Along the Rialto, sharp practice was the rule. Every purchase of silk or spices was made at the buyer's risk. One had to be a shrewd judge of values and one's fellows to escape trickery.

Portia's father—a merchant—was used to the ideas of guess, luck and accident. So much so, indeed, that it seemed natural to him to entrust the choice of his daughter's husband to three closed caskets and a lucky guess!

Nowadays, we do not transact business blindly—nor leave important decisions to chance. It is not necessary for us to gamble when we buy. Commodities are identified for us by trade-marks. Manufacturers go to the advertising columns to tell us about their products. Merchants describe their merchandise—price, quality and service.

By reading advertisements, we get a knowledge of goods and stores that we can depend on. Advertising reduces chance, in buying, to a minimum.

Do you read the advertisements in the Guide?

BILLY FINDS A NEW GAME TO AMUSE HIS FRIENDS

BILLY and his four playmates sat on the top step of the porch, fussing with each other. One wanted to do one thing, another wanted to do something else and no one wanted to play any of the games that were suggested.

Billy's Mama stood their fussing until she couldn't bear it any longer, and sent them all home.

"That's always the way," Billy grumbled under his breath. "Can't have any fun at all any more. I wish I knew something new to play. Some new game or ——"

"Goodness, if that's the cause of the wrangle, come along and we'll try to find some new games!" laughed a merry voice, and Gocomeback, the wee travel elfin, hopped down on the porch beside Billy.

"I'd like to know where you're going to find a new game," Billy said. "Do you know of any?"

"I don't think of any just at this second," replied Goomeback. "But come along," and before Billy could even ask where they were going, they stood on strange ground, just outside a ring of happy little boys.

"Where are we, Gocomeback?" Billy asked. He knew he had never seen these boys before.

"In South America," replied Gocomeback, and he led Billy up to the crowd of boys and introduced him.

"Goody, we're glad you came,"

"You'd Call It Prop and Money."

cried one of the largest boys. "Ever play 'Tangamble Chito,' Billy?"

"Gracious, no!" laughed Billy, rather confused. "What kind of a game is that?"

"Just what we're going to play," replied the South American boy. "You would call it prop and money. But you can play it with stones or buttons as well as with pennies. If you like it after you see us play, you may join us."

In the center of the crowd of boys, he made a circle on the ground about a yard in diameter. In this circle he placed a stick on top of which was placed a penny. The players all had to stand off a certain distance and throw their pennies at the one on top of the stick. If the pennies fell within the circle, they lost, but if it bounced outside the ring, they won.

Billy watched the game quite a long time, thinking of his little North American friends, and instead of staying and playing with the South American boys, he thanked them and hurried back home as fast as he could go.

When he told his Mama about the new game, she let him call the boys back, and they spent a lovely afternoon trying to knock pebbles off the top of a broomstick. And to the one who got the most pebbles, Billy's mama gave a great big cookie.

It is difficult to love a man who is zealous but nothing.

It is success that colors all things in life.

THE GUIDE STORY

The old lady received the news very quietly. "It was sudden," she said, "very sudden and unexpected, and, under ordinary circumstances, quite too early for Colonel Dent to think of such a thing"—but then, as he was going away, why, it made a difference. Afterward, she remarked to Fanny that Colonel Dent had really shown a regard for Hester's memory by selecting her cherished friend as his companion. She had no doubt, she said, that was the very reason of his thinking of Miss Summers, since it was plain that this was a marriage of convenience on both sides; "for it could not be love so soon, you know, Fanny." Marcus received the news of the contemplated marriage with indignation.

In the meantime, Miss Summers was making preparations for her wedding and her voyage. Colonel Dent had been lavish of costly presents—but we have no sympathy with their joy, dear reader, and we will go and visit poor little Julie—our Hester's forgotten child—whom we have not seen for so long.

A few days after his first interview with Miss Summers, Colonel Dent rode over to the Vale. His business was to procure a casket of jewels, to have them sent to New York to be reset. Having procured the keys of Hester's apartment, he went upstairs, accompanied by Mrs. Wimsat. Holding on to the balustrades, and climbing up the stairs after them, came a little pale child. No one observed her. Arrived at the chamber door, Colonel Dent turned the key in the lock, and went in. It was the same room, and there stood the same bed upon which Hester had died. He had never entered this room since he left it, the night of her death. He shuddered slightly—perhaps it was with the cold. Whatever might have been his emotions, he did not pause, but walked up quickly to the bureau and unlocked it. Finding the casket, he opened it, and began to examine, select, and assort the jewelry. In the meantime, Mrs. Wimsat sat down in Hester's large easy chair.

The little child, with its faltering steps, had now reached the chamber door, and was standing in it, looking—she had never seen the room since her mother's death—looking first with eager curiosity, and next with awakened recollection, at the scene. Suddenly her eyes lighted on a pair of small slippers that were peeping out from under the valance of the bed. Running toward them, with gleeful face and extended arms, the infant seized the little shoes, and, hugging them up tightly to her bosom, exclaimed, in glad tones:

"Mamma! Etty! Mamma!"

And then she toddled around the room, renewing her acquaintance with every long-lost familiar object in it. She found her mother's sunbonnet, and, exclaiming "Mamma," hugged it up with the shoes—and so with her sewing apron, and so with her gloves—until she had got her arms full—then, running gleefully up to Mrs. Wimsat, she put them all in the old lady's lap.

And then the little one, with a shade of anxiety on her face, commenced an earnest search. She toddled up to the bed, and, pulling the curtains open, with an arch smile, exclaimed:

"Peep!"

Then a shade of disappointment stole over her face. It was quickly dispelled, however, when her glance fell upon the door, opened back against the corner. Her whole countenance lighted up—as at the sight of a well-remembered object—suggesting a well-remembered game. Running, with extended arms and joyous smile, she pulled the door back from the corner, exclaiming archly:

"Peep, mamma!"

Suddenly her little face sank, fell into a look of deep grief. Bursting into tears, she ran up to Mrs. Wimsat, and burying her face in the old lady's lap, gasped, in one heart-bursting sob:

"All gone!"

The child of two years old had few words. Poor little one! Memory and association had invoked the past, and almost brought the dead to life for her; but whatever eager hope and expectation, or sorrowful disappointment, had troubled her infant bosom, it was unknown; the child of two years old had few words.

"What is the matter with her, Mrs. Wimsat?" said Colonel Dent, approaching, and throwing over the infant's neck a necklace of coral, for the purpose of amusing her.

"Indeed, I do not know, sir; unless she is fretting after Minny."

"By the way, Mrs. Wimsat, I am glad you remind me of Minny," taking out his pocketbook and placing it in the old lady's hands. "I wish you to take Minny to the village to-day or to-morrow, and fit her out with everything proper for a lady's maid, for a long sea voyage. I wish her to be in readiness to enter upon the lady's service upon the first of next month."

"Dear me, Colonel Dent! It is no affair of mine, sir; but, indeed, indeed, I do hope you are not thinking of selling Minny!"

"Selling Minny! Why, what suggested that idea, my good woman? Of course not. She has been accustomed to attend upon Miss Summers, and I shall take her with us to France."

"Miss Summers! Oh! Yes—I—beg pardon—I did not understand," exclaimed the old lady, as the truth for the first time flashed on her mind. Then she said: "Excuse me, Colonel Dent, but is it your purpose to take little Julie, also?"

(To be continued)

THE KIND WE NEED

Many definitions of the kind of immigrant Canada desires have been given. It remains for Sir Henry Thornton to sum up the qualities desirable for immigrants seeking to come to these shores. Sir Henry says:—

1. Must be sound in mind and body.
2. Must come to our country under such conditions as will preclude his becoming a public charge. In other words, he must come to us under such conditions as will enable him to earn his own living.
3. Must be an individual who is willing to live under our social constitutions and obey our laws and acept our traditions. We want no communists or bolshevists.
4. Must be of Caucasian race, because it would be fateful to start a color or racial problem within our borders.

With immigrants of such a type coming to Canada the future of the dominion would be assured.—Niagara Falls Review.

THE STILL, SMALL VOICE

It is not strange that conscience should claim authority over us. The strange thing is that its claim is so universally acknowledged. We do not mean, of course, that the commanding voice is always obeyed, but that when we refuse to do so, we realize at once that we have made a fatal mistake. We have had our own way and we wish that we had not. Remorse gathers up the irretrievable action, and, like rust, gnaws the human life away. A troubled conscience makes many strange and devious steps. Many actions that are mysterious to the world would thus be explained if the secrets of all hearts could be laid bare.—Montreal Star.

NEED OF THE DAY

The great need of to-day is practicality. So very few persons understand first of all how to acquire knowledge which is essential to their success in life and then to apply it after they have acquired it.

Knowledge that is not useful is in the way. It encumbers your mental storehouse. It interferes with your reasoning capacity.

A man with an open mind that, spongelike, absorbs knowledge from year to year increases his mental capacity and becomes more capable with advancing years. A man or woman with such a mind is always up to date. They progress with the times and are always young in heart and in mind.

Opportunities can be recognized and an advancement into a life of achievement is a certainty.—New York Graphic.

There is no duty we so much underrate as the duty of being happy.

Society exists for the benefit of its member; not the members for the benefit of society.

VERY VIVID IMAGINATIONS

During the past week a wild boar crashed into a private house in a French village and made its way into a bedroom where an invalid had been lying for months. The sick man shrieked for help, then rose and jumped out of the window. He has since returned to work!

While it is impossible to introduce a wild boar into the average sickroom, there are doubtless many cases similar to that of the bedridden Frenchman. Imaginary diseases form a very large part of human ailments. Men and women become obsessed with the idea of their own ill-health and yield themselves—rather luxuriously at times!—to the power of physical disabilities that exist in their imagination only.

A young woman who lived not a hundred miles from Kitchener was regarded by herself and her family as a hopeless invalid. For weeks she had lain in bed, waited on and cared for by anxious relatives. One day when she was alone a hot-water bottle became convinced that it had suddenly become a geyser and deluged the sick lady with its contents. With wonderful vitality the invalid sprang from her watery couch and never went back! From recent accounts she is still going strong.

The power of mind over matter is only equalled by the power of matter over mind. If the mind is allowed to dwell upon every little derangement of the physical mechanism one very soon becomes convinced that one is victim of all the ills that flesh is heir to. The quack almanac fails to enumerate all the disabilities that inhabit the innards of the hypochondriac. Too close cocnentration upon one's physical condition is a poor policy.

With ordinary care and regard for the rules of health the average body will take care of itself and leave the mind free to devote its attention to other interests. Wild boars and hot water bottles are not always available. Common sense is.—Kitchener Recorder.

WHAT WE INHERIT

Scientists have reduced heredity to a mathematical formula. By this formula, talent is usually, and genius almost never, inherited.

Genius is scarce for the same reason that a royal flush is. It is a unique combination, which is no more likely to turn up a second time in a deck where it has been dealt once than in any other deck.

But talent is any combination of mostly high cards. Stack two decks, one with nearly all high cards and few low ones, and the other with many low and few high ones, and you have a fair picture of good and bad inheritance.

Nearly all the hands you can deal out of the one deck will be high-card ones, with an occasional exception, like the black sheep in a good family, while most of the hands out of the other deck will be the exact reverse.

But a royal flush will scarcely come twice out of a deck before the cards are worn out—and it may come once out of any deck with the necessary cards in it, no matter what the other cards are.

This, reduced from chromosomes to aces and deuces, is the exact scientific reason why both talent and stupidity are usually, but not always, inherited, while genius almost never is. —Kitchener Record.

CEMETERY OPENED IN 1850

Little Lake Cemetery Company Held First Canadian Charter

The seventy-third annual meeting of Little Lake Cemetery Company, Peterboro, held Tuesday afternoon in the board room of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, recalls the fact that this was the first cemetery company in Canada getting a charter. When in 1850 a number of gentlemen of Peterboro purchased the big and now ornately beautiful site of Peterboro's Protestant city of the dead from the Government of Upper Canada for forty-eight pounds sterling, they got the Government to pass a bill authorizing the formation of cemetery companies throughout Canada west, now Ontario. Last year there were two hundred and seventy-eight interments in this cemetery.

French Deputy Renews Cry of "Hang the Kaiser"

The old cry of hang the Kaiser, which gained popularity after the Armistice and has been forgotten for several years, was repeated Tuesday in the Chamber of Deputies by Deputy Bonnt, of Paris.

He declared the German Crown Prince is preparing to reassume power and insisted France renew charges against the "War Criminals," starting with hanging the Kaiser and continuing "with all the aristocracy of Gotha."

LIFE

A crust of bread and a corner to sleep in,
A minute to smile and an hour to weep in,
A pint of joy to a peck of trouble,
And never a laugh but the moans come double;
And that is life!

A crust and a corner that love makes precious.
With the smile to warm and the tears to refresh us;
And joy seems sweeter when cares come after,
And a moan is the finest of foils for laughter;
And that is life!

Paul Laurence Dunbar.

TURBINE LOCOMOTIVES PROMISE GOOD SERVICE

The neck-and-neck race between steam and electricity as a motive power for railway trains has grown considerably hotter as the result of recent extensive tests in Sweden. These show that the Swedish turbine locomotive consumes 45 to 50 per cent. less coal than a modern locomotive with reciprocating engines, while requiring only one-twentieth as much water; can make a run of 600 miles without stop, and can maintain the same regular schedule which at present requires three locomotives of the ordinary type.

Runs totalling more than 10,000 miles in regular passenger and freight service have been made between Stockholm and Gothenburg. No stops to take on water have been necessary, and the consumption of coal has been only about half as much as that of the ordinary engine. The turbine locomotive, which is the invention of the Swedish engineer, F. Ljungstrom, is a radical departure from the reciprocating engine. Instead of the familiar piston and sylinder mechanism, together with the crank drive wheels with their counter-weights, Ljungstrom uses turbine whels which are rotated by a current of steam playing over the blades, the turbine shafts being connected by gears to the shafts of the drive wheels.

Among the advantages of the turbine, as summarized by the inventor, are the saving in fuel and water,, smaller engine crews, higher efficiency of the boiler, owing to preheating of the combustion air, reduction of fire risk because sparks from the furnace are extinguished in the pre-heater, more efficient starting power, smoother running and less wear on rails and couplings, smaller space required in the roundhouses, and more comfort for the passengers due to the absence of steam clouds.

Under The Clock With Lucy

The English comic artist, Mr. Harry Furniss, used to tell this amusing story of a puzzled and flustered member of Parliament, who was not yet familiar with his new surroundings. The story is about a man of substantially the artist's own name—Lord Furness.

When Mr. Furness was first returned to Parliament, being then neither a baron nor a millionaire, he asked to see me alone in one of the lobbies of the House of Commons. He held a note in his hand, strangly and nervously, so I knew at once it was not a bank note.

"I—ah—am very sorry—you are a stranger to me; I—a—stranger to the House. This note from a stranger was handed to me by a strange official. I read it before I noticed the mistake. It is addressed to you."

"Oh, that is of no consequence, I assure you," I said.

"Oh, but it is—it must be of consequence. It is—of—such a private nature, and so brief. I feel extremely awkward in having to acknowledge I read it—a pure accident, I assure you.

He handed me the note and was running away when I called him back. It read:

"Meet me under the clock at 8.—Lucy."

"I must introduce you to Lucy."

"No, no; Not for worlds."

But I did. "She" was Sir Henry Lucy, better known as Toby, M. P., the Parliamentary reporter for Punch.

CERTAINLY WORTH $2

Henry Candler walked into police headquarters in St. Catherines yesterday and asked for a license for his dog.

"I can pay that $2 with real pleasure," he said. "A fellow brought me that dog a little while ago and asked me to take him out and shoot him. I said I would. We left him on the front porch that night. Next day I intended to take him out into the country and shoot him. In the early morning I heard a commotion on the front lawn, and looking out of the window I saw the dog with his teeth fastened into the clothes of a boy of about 14 years. The dog held on until I got down. You see, we had been missing money from our milk bottle every morning for some time.

"Well, we have named him Prince, and it would take quite a lot of money to buy him."

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. James Robinson and sisters' desire to thank their many friends and neighbours for the kindness and sympathy extended to them during the illness and death of their sister, Mary Ann.

Every trait of beauty may be traced to some virtue, as to innocence, candor, generosity, modesty and heroism.

Mr. W. E. R. Sutherland, of the Bank of Montreal, left Thursday night for Weston, where he has been transferred. Mr. Murray of Lindsay comes here to take his place.

A Square Deal.—There seems to be no good reason why France should pay off her debt to Uncle Sam before she starts to pay what she owes John Bull. Britain needs the money more than America does.—Hamilton Herald.

A Reminder.—Parliament at Ottawa is to meet soon, when the government policy will be to tell the Conservatives every day of the season that there was a by-election in West Hastings.—Manitoba Free Press.

Mr. C. A. Smith Ill.—Mr. C. A. Smith, the former head of the Oshawa Canning Company and now living retired for two years is seriously ill. Mr. Smith is one of the best known and most highly respected of Oshawa's older business men and his many friends hope that he will shortly be restored to health.—Oshawa Reformer.

Just Talk.—According to the London, England, Morning Post, there is talk in Canada of the Dominion separating from the British Empire. That is literally true. It would also be literally true to say that there is talk in Canada about annexation to the United States. There is also talk about the coming end of the world, and a good deal of talk about the weather.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

BURGLARS AT LOOSE END

Cracksmen Who Entered Office of C. L. Maltby & Company Have Trouble for Nothing

Safecrackers on Tuesday night broke into the offices of C. L. Maltby & Co., coal and builders' supplies, 1912 St. Clair avenue, Toronto, and after drilling holes in the safe, opened it with a crowbar and received nothing for their pains, as no cash or negotiable securities were to be found in the safe.

A rear window was the means of entrance into the office. The safe, which is four feet high, was drilled through from the top, the handle and dial of the door removed with bars. Rags and other material lay heaped up nearby ready for use had "soup" been found necessary.

Charles J. Maltby, on opening the office next morning, made the discovery and immediately notified the police. Acting detectives from the Keele street station are making investigation.

GREAT INCREASE IN TEA CONSUMPTION

The consumption of tea, it is estimated, increased in 1924 thirty-nine million pounds. The price, as a result, may go to $1.00 per pound, but even then, tea is the cheapest beverage in the world—aside from water.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Tyson and little daughter Margar, of Young, Saskatchewan, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Walter Curtis, Brown street. Mrs. Tyson is an old Port Hoper, granddaughter of the late Wm. Henning.
