TOWN COUNCIL.

An Unusually "Short and Sweet" Session-Monday, July 10. Present—The Mayor, Couns. W. G. Stevenson, H. H. Burnham, F. M. Beamish, A.

Winslow and Wm. McKee. COMMUNICATIONS. Mr. J. F. Clarke sent in a request for the use of the Park for the 1st Presbyterian Sabbath School in order to hold their annual pionic on the 14th of July.

Mr. A. McLellan complained of gravel being taken from his lot, and asked that it should be stopped.

pleasure that he, in behalf of the Dominion Day Celebration Committee, was now able to return a cheque for $200, the amount received from the Council as a guarantee fund. It had been currently reported on the streets that this $200 would never be returned, and that the Committee were going to appropriate it for themselves, and all this kind of nonsense. Now that the amount was returned, he would simply say to those who had aided them that the Committee were very thankful, and to the others he would say nothing. He hoped in future years, when the grants were asked for, that the Council would be composed of men who would cheerfully comply, and thus aid in fittingly celebrating the anniversary of our glorious Dominion. Coun. Burnham thought that Coun. Winslow's remarks were ungentlemanly and uncalled for. One man has as good a right to an opinion as another as to how Dominion Day hould be celebrated, and Coun. Winslow's insinuations were out of place.

Coun. Winslow did not know that he had made any insinuations concerning any coun-be insinuations. The Mayor wanted to know if it was the wish of the Council to have the Cow By-lay strictly enforced. A legal gentleman had stated to him to-day that cows in charge were as liable to be put in pound as those running at large.

He wanted the opinion of the Council. Coun. Stevenson thought that if a cow was in charge, it certainly was not running at large. If the opinion of that legal gentleman was correct, how were people to get cows to and from pasture.

Mayor—That's just the question to decide. Coun. Burnham did not think that was the intention of the By-law.

Coun. Burnham called the attention of the Streets and Bridges Committee to the state of many of the sidewalks in Englishtown.

Fox, of New York. A handsome volume, containing twenty-nine fine portraits of popular players, male and female, with vivid and authentic biographical sketches by a wellknown dramatic journalist of New York, it cannot fail to achieve a place for itself not only in popular favor but among the most valuable literature of the stage. The want of authentic theatrical biography is one which is constantly felt. In presenting the first instalment of this series, author and publisher have opened a vein which will yield both fame and profit without doubt. We can predict that successive issues will be eagerly looked for, as they will deserve to be if they successive the force of the sustain the merit of the first.

It is reported that the Porte has now arranged to send a crops d'armee to Egypt, to Local Sporting Notes.

Port Hope Cricket Club has written to Peterboro' with reference to having an association match. Nothing, so far as we can learn, has been decided.

The preliminaries of a very interesting horse race will be arranged on Friday evening, if nothing intervenes, to be contested for a shake purse. It would be premature to give particulars until after the meeting referred to.

The . trotting match between "Canada Southern" and Gilmour's "Canadian Girl," which has been arranged to take place on the Toronto track on the 21st of September, is a prominent topic amongst local sporting men. Both horses will be put under the best training in the meantime, so that a very interesting race may be expected. The stakes are $500 a side.

LACROSER

Our Lacrosse Club are evidently going to have their hands full for the next month. Next week a match will be played with Lindsay. The return match with the Independents, of Millbrook, will come off shortly, while matches are expected to be arranged with the Cobourg club, and the Okas, of Belleville. The Beavers are determined to make a good record this season, and will lose no time practising for the coming contests.

An effort is being made to bring about a match between the Cobourg and Oka Lacrosse Clubs, to be played at Bochester on the 17th inst., when the great meeting of firemen will take place. It is not improbable that the arrangements will be successfully carried out .- Belleville Intelligencer.

CRICKET. On Saturday last the Lakefield and Peterboro' clubs had a match, in which, after the second innings, the score stood thus:-Lakefield, 128; Peterboro', 129, the latter having five wickets to spare. Peterboro' made 115 first innings, 50 of these runs being scored by Hallett.

A match was played on Penryn Park between All North, consisting of men picked from clubs in several towns north of Toronto, and the Port Hope club, which gave the latter their usual easy walk away. The result showed a score of 119 to 83, the latter having one innings to spare. Follow-

WEST NORTHUMBERLAND RE-COUNT.

A recount was asked for in the West Northumberland election and granted, by which Mr. Guillet's majority has been reduced from 37 to 5. In No. 4 polling division, where almost the total majority was received-the deputy returning officer, by the way, having formerly been a clerk in Mr. Kerr's office-a number of ballots were counted out because of not being properly marked by this official. Such a neglect of duty could hardly be the result of ignorance, for the duties of deputy returning officers are not so very difficult to understand. We think that the law should be amended so as to make such blunders punishable, whether ignorantly or wilfully performed. A man has no business to act in such a capacity if he has not intelligence encugh to perform a trifling, mechanical duty correctly, and certainly he should not if his mistakes are wilful. What makes the matter appear in a more peculiar light is that this illegal marking should not have been usual for ballots cast for Mr. Kerr. Judge Clark, before whom the recount was made, ruled that ballots upon the back of which numbers were written, could not be received. The Globe says of this:

"His Honor, with his well-known legal acumen and adroitness, could not perpetuate such a fraudulent abrogation of the cardinal principle of the Ballot Act; these were properly rejected."

It finds fault with him, however, for accepting other ballots, properly marked by the voters, but not bearing the initials of the deputy returning officer, and says if these had been rejected, Mr. Guillet would have been defeated. But he would not; he would still have been elected by a majority of one. Because Judge Clark failed to find any just or legal reason why Mr. Guillet should be defeated, the Globe abuses him roundly, winding up with: "What else could have been expected from a judge who did all he could to blacken Hon. Alex. Mackenzie's character, etc." It also says that if Sheriff Waddell had been appointed as returning officer these irregularities would not have occurred, and accuses the Conservatives of having him ousted. The truth is, Sheriff Waddell was offered the position as usual, but would not accept it. Remembering the above extract from the Opposition chief mouthpiece, and comparing it with what follows, one can get a tolerably fair idea of the Globe's standard of right and law. In Albert, N.B., a Grit lost votes because the County Judge ruled the same way on the same point as Judge

Clark. The Globe remarks:-"It appears to us that a judge who acts as though he thought the Dominion Election Act was a measure intended to throw difficulties, in the way of voting must be lacking in common sense. The intention of the Act is plainly that the member who obtains the greatest number of votes should get the seat; and not that the power to disfranchise a whole district should be placed in the hands of any deputy returning officer who makes a mistake or conspires to prevent the election of a candidate.

These two opinions are found in the same issue of the same paper, and as the Mail observes, "Where the judge by his decision weakened the Conservative candidate 'the ballots were properly rejected;' but where another judge by his decision weakened a Reform candidate on the same point, his honor is 'lacking in common sense.' It is seldom that we come across such an apt illustration of the 'Whose ox is gored?' fable as this."

At present, or even if Mr. Kerr had been elected by a defect in the marking of ballots, Mr. Guillet has the satisfaction of knowing he was the choice of the majority, and not of the minority. The result of the recount does not in the least discredit him.

BOMBARDMENT.

The British Lion once more Roused to Action.

He Gives Force to the Warning: Beware how you Tread on his Tail.

ALEXANDRIA SURRENDERED.

LONDON, July 11 .- Admiral Seymour telegraphs:-"The ships opened fire at seven this morning. The return fire from the forts was weak and ineffective. An explosion in Fort Mras-el-Kanat had occurred by eight. The ships engaged are the Inflexible, Temeraire, Penelope, Superb, Sultan, Invincible, Alexandra, and Monarch."

EXECUTION BY THE FLEET'S GUNS.

An Alexandria despatch dated 9.10 a. m. says:-The attack on the forts has now been kept up two hours. Smoke hangs over the town along the line of the shore batteries and among the ships, and it is difficult to see what damage has been done. It is certain, however, that the Egyptians suffer very heavily. Fort Mras-el-Kanathas been blown up by the fire from the other batteries. The forts are slackening fire. The top of the tower of Fort Pharos has been carried away, and many guns have been dismounted on that and other forts. Flags of the Geneva Red Cross are flying over the hospital in the city. The Dutch and Greek flags are hoisted over their respective consulates. At the beginning of the bombardment immense excitement was visible. Crowds were seen wending their way toward the palace. The streets are now deserted, the people having fled or taken refuge in the cellars.

THE FORTS GRADUALLY BEING SILENCED.

11.15 a.m .- The bombardment still continues. The forts are gradually being silenced. The Ras-el-Tin forts are suffering severely from the heavy and disastrous fire of the ships Alexandra, Superb, and Temeraire.

A MAGAZINE EXPLODES. The magazine at Fort Ada, which is situated close to the viceregal palace on the outside of the harbour, has been blown up.

THE DAY'S WORK DONE. 6.50 p.m.—The action is finished for the day; forty English were wounded, but no one was killed.

FOUR FORTS GONE. The fire of the fleet commands the railway to Cairo. Up to noon four forts in all, including Fort Mras-el-Kanat, were blown up. No casualties to the fleet are discernible. MAGNIFICENT MARKSMANSHIP. The canonading from the fleet, after it perfect specimen of naval warfare ever witnessed in modern times. The guns had been all shotted and trained for nearly twentyfour hours, but when the order 'open fire' was given, the crisis made the gunners noticeably nervous, but this was only for a moment. Within twenty minutes from the first shot the men aboard ship steadied to their work in such grand style that every shot did just what it was fired to do. LATEST.

London, July 12.-Alexandria has surrendered to Admiral Seymour. A flag of truce was hoisted by the Egyptians at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and a boat containing Egyptian officers put off for the Admiral's flagship to negotiate terms.

NEWCASTLE. NEWCASTLE, July 11, 1882.

The consecration of St. George's Church, in this village, took place on Friday morning, at 11 a.m. The Bishop of the Dicesse was attended by a number of his clergy. There were present the Venerable the Archdeacon of Peterboro', Rev. Dr. McNab, Revs. A. J. Fidler, J. S. Baker, John Farn-comb; his brother, W. Farncomb, and Canon Brent, the Rector. All the rev. gentlemen took part in the service, which was very impressive. The Rev. John Farncomb preached the sermon, which was a very excellent one, delivered with great earnestness and fervor. The church was most tastefully decorated with beautiful flowers throughout; the altar and font were espeoially noticeable.

In the evening a confirmation service was held, when the church was crowded to excess. Twenty-nine candidates received the rite of laying on of hands. The Bishop's address was admirable, and will be remembered for a long time by those whom he addressed. The music elicited praise from all who appreciate that part of the service. Mrs. Brent presided at the organ.
Rev. Mr. Shuttleworth, of Toronto, who is taking the place of Rev. Mr. Betts, now in England, preached in the Canada Methodist Church here, to a very large and appreciative congregation, last Sabbath evening. The text was taken from Hebrews verse 7: "By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house, by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith." The rev. gentleman was very earnest and explicit in dealing with his subject.

A WOMAN'S ARGUMENT.

BY LILLIE E. BARR

Outside it was dreary and cold and wet, Inside on the hearth, was the bright wood fire, And Larry lounged happely in its glow And talked of his farm and the men to hire; Of the seed and soil and the planting days, Of his boys and girls and their pleasant ways.

While now in her rocking chair by his side Their mother sat sewing with busy skill; There were stockings and coats and frocks to mend But her reedle worked with a right good will Till some one knocked at the door, and then Her parlor was crowded with enger men.

"They wanted Larry—he must not refuse—
"The Party on every good man had a claim,
And the club had got most important news,
Which they must discuss or be much to blame,
And indeed a stranger might well I are thought
That the country had been both sold and bought,

Then Larry stood up with an anxious look, But Lizzie ea d; What is it all about? For you see, good friends, 'tis a bitter night, And husbands are far better in than cut.'' "Well, Mistress, you can't understand the case, But we want the right man in the right place."

Then Lizzie koked up with a gracious smile—
"I agree with you, friends, and I'll tell you why;
Tis a principle full of rare good sense,
And exactly suits both Larry and I.
Only this is the way I state the case—
The right man, Misters, in the right place
Is a huebard at home in the evening!"

If all of us had such a pleasant wife,
If all of us had such a cheerful home;
And Larry would be neither happy nor right
If he left his wife and his home to-night."

And they when the house was quiet again,
Larry stoeped low to his wife's pretty face;
"Dear-little woman, so wise and so true,
You have made out a most excellent case;
There's daytime for duty of every kind;
And you may be sure you will always find
Your husband at home in the evening."

ONE WAY OF LOVE.

She was a clerk in the Treasury at Washington on a salary of nine hundred dollars a year; he was in the post office enjoying the privileges afforded by an income of twelve hundred. Once in a while there was a holiday, when he would take the boat down to Mount Vernon, if it was warm, and spread their luncheon in the shade of its historic trees and patronize nature as successfully as if they were nabobs. Sometimes they had tickets given them for a comedy or tragedy, when they laughed or cried with the discernment of millionaires and the old families. On Sunday mornings they sang in the choir and walked out to Long Bridge later in the day, or strolled in the Capitol grounds and surprised the first violet in its hiding place. Helen's landlady told every new boarder that Mr. Van Vleck "was going with Miss Hildreth," but Miss Helen always prothat they were neighbors at home, and had gone to school together when they were in their pinafores; and the, the situation. His idea was all that landlady always sniffed when she remarked, "If he's nothing but a friend I should think there'd be a secession of his love-making sooner or later."

One day when they were rambling about Mount Vernon together Helen fell into a romancing vein. "Suppose this is country seat," said she, and I have furnished it in the Queen Anne style, and I'm entertaining the creme de la creme, just as they do in novels"-

"A sort of Lady Geraldine-and I am the poor poet, eh?"

"All but the poetry," mocked

"Now suppose this is my manor house," suggested Theodore, "furnished in the renaissance, let us say, -I'm making great demands on your imagination-and I'm entertaining all the swells. I've lured you here on the pretext of looking for a with me; what should you say "I should put my lessons in gymnastics into use and jump at the chance.

"And if I should ask instead, "Come share my cottage, gentle maid?" "Don't!" cried Helen.

He looked at her a little blankly. "You don't mean that you care so little for me?"

"I don't mean anything. Don't let us talk about marrying and giving in mrrriage; we are happy enough as we are.'

"But if I don't marry you some other fellow will!"

"Nonsense; penniless girls are a drug in the market. I'v seen misery enough for marrying on a small salary; I've seen people living in two rooms, on 'water and crust,' so to speak, doing their own work, with no pleasures and no society, and no hope of amendment; people who thought love would tide them over all the quicksands-and presently the hallucination wore off, but the quicksands remained; reproaches set in; she grew bitter and unlovely, and he morose and neglectful"-

"Then you think love an hallucina-

"I think marriage is a mistake on twelve hundred a year. If I became dowdy and hadn't time to cultivate a taste for æsthetics or whatever was the fashionable craze, and grew jaded and spiritless with the uncongenial task of washing pots and kettles and stewing over a range, and if nobody turned to look after me as I passed, one day you would find yourself disenchanted. Then, supposing the new administration should push you out of office, even for a month, or should you fall ill? No, we are happy enough just as we are; let us wait, like Mr. Micawber, till something turns up."

And so Van Vlack waited. Per haps he was disappointed in Helen's views, but he refused to confess it even to himself; all women felt so, he supposed, cared more for shadow than substance, or mistook the one for the other; it was their poetic temperament which made poverty hate-ful to them and splender their natural atmosphere, and he applied himself more diligently than ever to his idea, working far into the night at times.

"You were not at the President's last evening," one of his fellow clerks said to him later.

"I? No; I should think not." "But Miss Hildreth was there; she and Mr. Sterling, M. C., were hand in glove. I heard him ask her to go and hear 'Lohengrin' to-morrow night."

"Mr. Sterling is in luck," was all Van Vleck ventured to say; he did they saw at a short distance from not choose to earry his heart on his sleeve for every clerk to peck it. If ance of three small hillocks, each Mr. Sterling was fascinated by Helen, about the size of a six-oared boat upit surely was no fault of hers; many set, which blew when coming to the a man had been bewitched by her before this elderly Congressman, only Theodore forgot that they had all been needy suitors -and as for Helen, he felt as sure of her as of seed time in harvest.

But on one occasion he left his work early and hastened to see her; a cloud of ugly rumors had assaild him, and interfered with his tasks; she should brush all the cobwebs out of his heaven. He met her coming down the staircase in a white evening dress, with flowers in her hand-costly exotics, such as a wealthy lovers send their sweethearts-such as he never dared to buy.

"Where did they come from?" he demanded.

"They grew I 'spects-like Topsy, answered Helen, laughing uneasily. "Where did you get them, Helen?"

"You are inquisitive, Mr. Van Vleck. They were sent me." "By Mr. Sterling?"

"You do credit to your nationality -you're a capital Yankee. Yes, by Mr. Sterling, of course."

"Helen," he cried, beneath his breath—"Helen, are you going to marry Mr. Sterling?" "I-I believe I. am," she said, dropping her eyes. -Theodore never knew exactly how he found his way out of the house. He was vaguely aware of brushing against a stout gentleman in a furtrimmed ulster as he shot into the street, of a stately carriage and pair standing at the door, and a darkbrowed lady leaning out to look after him.

The next day he resigned his position in the post office, drew his savings from the bank and left Washington. It were well, perhaps, if he put deserts and seas and mountain ranges between Helen and himself. tested that he was merely a friend, It seemed to him as if the earth had reeled from its orbit, and it required time for him to readjust himself to was left to him. He put into it all his earnings, he devoted heart and soul to its development, and he finally forgot himself and Hildreth in his work and its success.

> It was seven or eight years later that they met, oddly enough .on the Mount Vernon boat. Her vivacity was no longer the spontaneous effervescence of youth and hope-she was a trifle passee, perhaps. "Wealth and splendor have not proved all her fancy printed them," he thought, as their eyes met. "Mr. Van Vleck," she cried, "who would have dreamed of meeting you here!" Was the pleasure which brightened her eyes and deepened her somewhat exaggeratea dimples a reminiscence of her power or was Mrs. sterling a married flirt, he wondered. "We have heard of you often, to be sure," she purred. "The newspapers have four-leafed clover, but really to ask not been silent concerning you and if you will share my magnificence your great invention. I've always felt an ownership in that invention, do you know? I felt as if I ware behind the scenes, let into a secret before the rest of the outside world, when it was only a dream. I've resented every infringement"-"I am flattered that you remember my small affairs," said Theodore,

"Remember," she repeated with a lingering accent, "I have nothing else to do."

"I have come down here sometimes," she pursued, after a brief pause, "when we have a holiday, for the sake of auld lang syne, and try to believe I am seven years younger and the world before me were to choose. I like to come when the peach trees are in bloom, as they were that day when we built our castles in the air. Mine have crumbled into dust."

'Mrs. Sterling, I am sorry to hear you speak so."

She stared at him at instant, blushed and dropped her eyes in the old effective way. "Haven't you heard," she said, "I didn't marry Mr. Ster-

Perhaps she expected Theodore to beam with sudden happiness and rehearse the old story she had refused to hear once before.

"You left no address, you know," defending herself from the reproaches she anticipated. Mr. Sterling died before the wedding-day was set. I thought you would see it in the newspapers. I am a Treasury girl yet, Theodore. Do you know that I sometimes wish that I had never seen. Mr. Sterling?"

Vleck would have answered, but just at that moment a bit of crepe lisse floated into their neighborhood and a yoice live a summer brook cried, "Oh, my veil, Theodore!" Theodore put out a hand and it eluded him; little table, where he is offered wine and Helen made a quick movement and caught it on the wing.

"Let me introduce you to Mrs. Van Vleck, Miss Hildreth," he said. "She would like to thank you."-Mary N. Prescott, in Our Cutinent.

An honest medicine is the noblest work of man, and we can assure our readers that Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry is not only reliable, but is almost infallable to cure Cholera Morlus, Dysentery, Cauker of the Stomach and bowels, and the various Summer Complaints, whose attacks are often sudden and fatal.

A Tough Sea Yarn.

The crew of a Shetland fishingboat unite in declaring that they were attacked a fortnight ago by a monster, in comparison with which the terror of American waters is as insignificant as a shrimp. They declare that they were hauling their lines twenty-eight miles east-southeast of Feltar, when them something that had the appearsurface. It disappeared in the direcof the boat, and shortly after they saw the monster pass underneath the boat. When it came up again it started right in their direction with its mouth wide open-a mouth, they say, that to all appearance could have taken in their boat. There seemed to be whiskers of a green color, and about seven or eight feet long, hanging from its mouth; very large green eyes, and on its head were great lumps about the size of a herring bar-They threw stones at it, but it still came on toward them, and only again disappeared below water when a few yards from the boat, on a charge of swan-shot being discharged out of a flowling piece into its mouth. The lines were then cut and all appeared in the wake. This time they observed that it had two large fins, almost the size of the boat's mainsail, which were stretched up from its back, and its length they computed to be no less than 150 feet. It followed them up for a distance of nine miles and then disappeared.

THE POLICY FOR THE NEXT FIVE YEARS.

As all commercial and business men know, the Monetary Times is an able and a very fair journal, and although its sympathies have been with the Reform party, yets its opinions on trade matters are valuable and given without much fear of party. Regarding the presentpolitical situation it says:-

"The election of the new arPliment set tles the question of the general character of the commercial policy for the next five years. On this question more than any other the contest turned. The effect of bringing on the elections a year before the natural demise of Parliment is to substitute certainty for uncertainty, in the matter of the comemrcial policy. A change of Government was supposed to mean a change of tariff. It is probable that the change would even in this case, not have been great; but it was impossible to say how far it would, it was impossible to say how far it would, have gone, for no clear and comprehensive programme had been accepted by the Opposition as a whole. The leader of the party showed a disposition to temporize and give and take; but it was difficult to extract from his various utterances on the subject, any certain idea of what he would have been prepared to do, in the event of his having obtained a majority. His late utterances pointed to a much less extensive change in the tariff than would have satischange in the tariff than would have satisfied Sir Richard Cartwright and some others. These speculations are now of no practical importance; for the Opposition is not charged with the framing of a tariff; and for the next five years it can frame no commercial policy to displace that of the Government."

It Always Works Just This Result.

Mr. John Bonner, proprietor of the celebrated Yonge street Dry Goods and Genta Furnishing Store, Toronto, tells a most remarkable story of the Great German Remedy: "St Jacobs Oil cured me of a bad case of neuralgia, of five years standing, when I had given up hopes of being cured, and had tried fifty different so-called remedies. I now keep it all the time not only at home, but here in my p'ace of business; it is an excel lent thing and something nobody should be without.

A Perpetual Courtship.

The Mexicans of the wealthy or wellto-do classes have a custom in married life, says a correspondent of The Galveston News which seems to be a pretty one. Husband and wife have entirely separate apartments, and neither is expected to enter the apartments of the other except on invitation. When the husband de-eres the company of his lady in his ap-apartments he writes a note of invitation in terms of the most formal and most lofty politeness, incloses it in a perfumed envelope, seals it and sends it to her on a tray in the hands of a servant. The lady acknowledges the invitation in the same way, and if she accepts, which she is probably most likely to do, she appears at the door of his apartments at the appointed hour, in bridal costume escorted by one or more of her ladies in waiting. These then retire. The hus-band receives her at the door, leads her to a little table, where he treats her to checolate or tea cakes, fruit, etc. In the midst of his apartments he has a room, furnished in the most exquisite way he is cap ble of, which he holds sacred to his lady, and never occupies unless she is present. This room is his pride. He spares no expense to make it as unique and charming as possible. When the gentleman has received his lady in his apartments it is not proper to leave her until they have breakfasted, which does not usually occur until 9 o' clock. After the lapse of some days-I do not know how many-etiquette requires that the lady should return the husband's compliment by a similar invitation, nicely sealed in a perfumed envelope on a silver tray. He acknowledges the invitation with many thanks, and if he accepts, which is persumed he is quite sure to do, he first indulges in the bath, prigs himself Only the fates know what Van up in his best array, patronizes his per-leck would have answered, but just fame bottles and his pomades, and at the appointed hour appears promptly at the door of his lady's apartments. there to receive him dressed like a queen, wearing orange blessoms in her hair and on her bosom. She conducts him to a cake or chocolate cake and fruit. After this pleasant repast she regales him with songs and music on the guitar. She also has in the midst of her apartments a room which she holds sacred to her husband, and which she never occupies un-less he is present. It may be supposed that this sacred room is her pride above all things, and to adorn and watch over is the chief occupation and joy of her life.

They remain together in the lady's apartments until headfast. ments until breakfast, after which they both separate. Thus there is a continual interchange of courtesies and a perpetual

Molo Buksh belonged to the maha-

one January to a small shooting party in South Mirzapur, consisting of three gentlemen, two of whom had with them their wives and children.

He was without tusks, of great size, and of what amateurs call beautiful points; stanch with tiger, trained and tractable, but credited from the first known of him with an uncertain temper. On the 15th of the month he took part in an expedition into the jungle, pelted a wounded tiger in a ravine with clods until the brute charged and fastened on his ear, then got his foe between his legs and kicked him from hindfoot to forefoot until he was done for. On the 19th he carried some of the party, including two ladies, for an outing, nothing unusual being observable in his manner except a rather excited rivalry with a horse which was cantering by his side. On arriving at the camp he was fed, as usual, by female hands, and his affectation humored of having a biscuit put actually into his mouth. He had, however, about him rather a menagerie smell, for which a bath in the neighboring river was prescribed. In perfect peace of mind all retired to rest. At midnight came the cry: "Mola Buksh has killed his mahout!" This was true, but it was generally thought that the act was accidental. The paroxysms had come on him about 2 A. M. He at once tore himself loose, and went in search of his second attendant. This man was a purloiner of grain, inattentive and cruel, and greatly detested by the animal. The mahout and his deputy were sleeping side by side under a tree shrouded in their coverlets, as the manner of the country is. Mola knelt on his enemy and killed him, and, perhaps, in attempting to rise, slipped on to the mahout, who was a drunkard, and not likely to be easily awakened or to think of rolling aside, At any rate, some hours afterward, when the animal returned and saw the bodies, he only looked down at that of the mahout, but seized the other and tossed it hither and thither. Naturally, all was alarm, in the camp. Cots were slung up in the trees-one fortunately a banianand the ladies and children put in comparative safety. Morning was anxiously looked for. When it came, however, the coast was clear. Mola Buksh was passing his time in wrecking 'a village at some little distance, unroofing the houses, and plundering the sweatmeats and grain. The other elephants had been driven into the jungle; the men were armed and vigilant, the servants on the watch. As no alarm was given, a forced march was determined on, and off the whole party set for an encampment ten miles on. This was reached in safety, but the elephant was soon in pursuit. He upset camels, loads and all on the road, flung to right and left the burdens deserted by the flying coolies, caught up two unhappy lingerers and killed them both, and bound ed away over the hillstones with madness in his head and the unnatural activity of overheated excitement in his limbs. On the 27th the fit subsided, and Mola Buksh walked into his stables at Ramuggur, the fort of his master, near Benares, glad to have his wounds attended to. He had been a week on the loose-had killed twenty persons and wounded others, and had destroyed a great deal of property .- Calcutta Letter to London World.

A Facetious Justice Who Improvised a Marriage Ritual

Fred Flasher has lately got a commission from the Governer of Maine as a Justice of the Peace. Shortly after that event a rural couple called on him to marry them. He had never read a word of the ceremony.

"Sam Jinkins, do you love this women?" he asked.

"Yis, sur," responded Sam, hitching up his striped trousers. "Will you cherish and obey her?"

"Yis." "Florentina Harding, will you love and cherish this man?

"Yis," she lisped, while wiping her eyes with the corner of her apron. "Do you both want to be married?"

"Yis, Yis," said both, and Sam shifted his weight upon his right foot. Then squire Flasher moralized and finally said:

"We will close by singing Champlain McCabe's trundle bed song, 'As I tumbled in the attic,' "etc.

And as he saw that the bride was very plain, he added, "After which you will kiss each other and depart as the great men departed in the beautiful hymnwritten by King David commencing-Wives of great men all remind us, We may make our wives sublime, And departing leave behind us, Footprints on the sands of time."

And here Flasher paused, took his fee and left, and all seemed satisfactory until someone called attention to the fact that Flasher had omitted the important point of pronouncing them husband and wife. This was remedied by hunting them up and going through the ceremony again, at the close of which he said:

"I now pronounce you husband and wife, married good and solid; now see how long you can stick to it."

Address, JAMES WALLWORTH DAVIS, Wienley

"Tell me about those dear, delightful, beautiful blizzards you have in your country," said the Brooklyn girl, folding her hands and looking up to him with a bewitchingly pleading glance. "I know they must be just too sweet for anything!"

"Oh, they're sweeteners!" ejaculated the Montana man, throwing one leg over the other and warming to the subject. "You once get a b'izzard after you, and you'll wish you hadn't any skirts on to bother you." And did you ever see one?" she asked with profound interest.

"Well, I should fire a grin!" responded he politely. "I've been around when our neck o' the woods was toiling hard to save its county representation! Why, miss, I seen a blizzard tip a prairie fire right up ou end, and it blazed away a streak of fire thirty miles high! just tipped it right up!"
"G acious!" squealed the girl. "I should have thought it would have blown it clear

'That's when you ketch your heel! You see, the fire struck agin a railroad locomotive that was passing some eighteen miles up, and the engine held it perpendicular," exclaimed the Montana man. "You can't fool a prairie fire much! When it came down it kept right on blazing and the melted engine dropped on the track end run right to the round house in a liquid stream.

powerful!" murmured the girl.
"Powerful! Well, you just shout, sister! Only two months ago, a blizzard lifted the Powder River straight up in the air and carried it back seven miles in the woods! You just deal your last giblet on the power! That river's up in the trees yet, and we're building saw-mills up ide down so as to get the water privilege! You read about these tornadoes. They're only gusts!"

"My!" exclaimed the girl. "A blizzard must be semething terrible!"

"Well, I should gobble distinctly!" re-"Well, I should gobble distinctly."

it have been?" strack my town, and whooped us up eighty feet! Town and all! We didn't come down for four weeks, and wouldn't have been down yet, only a Yankee threw a lariat over that streak o' wind and started an elevator! Why, miss, you don't know no more about it than an old sock! Why, just south of us, one of 'em happened to hit a patch of country some fellows were surveying and blew the whole line of the road right through the surveyor's transit! You bet! And the company lost its franchise, because the land granted to it was just rolled over, and they had to build the road straight up and down, or give it up!
"I don't see how you manage to live in such a country," said the astonished girl. "Ob, we peg along!" was the courageous response. "It's the greatest country out doo's! I remember one blizzard, though, that bothered us some. It happened to pop tle Crow reservation plumb centre, and just blew the whole business right over on our settlement-Indians, ground, crops, everything!"

"On top of you?" ejaculate the girl. "The same," replied the Montana man.
"There we was right among 'em! The redskins didn't dare go off their reservation for fear of war, and we didn't dare climb up through for fear of violating the treaty!' "But how did you get out?" queried the

"Oh, you can't hold us fellows down long! We're wild, woolly and hard to curry, miss. Then we've got the best soil in the world. it stood! When the winter froze it into that position we gathered the crops and moved out from under it. Then the thaw dr pped!"

She sat and looked at him in amazement. "But it isu't all tragedy, miss," continued the Montana man. "Blizzards has a funny side, cometimes. I remember when a buck blizzard slammed into Bud Kipple's funeral. We mourners just laid right down and hung on with our teeth, but the defunct hadn't our energy, and he was whirled up preity near a mile! We never expected he was going that way, and it must have been something of an astonisher to Bud! Miss, he hasn't come down yet!" "And you didn't bury him!" ejaculated the horrified girl.

"Oh we plauted him! You don't find any lamenteds hunting around our parts for the benefits of religiou! A funeral is too good a chance for a fight! We just set too and build a grave right up to him, and he's sleeping his eternal rest in the doggondest place you ever saw, right on the top of that grave! He heedeth not the blizzard's howl, nor careth he a-a-a"-and the Montana man pulled up suddenly in his pious reflection and rolled his eyes.

"What a curious idea!" muttered the girl. "You bet your sweet life!" conceded the Montana man. "By the way, the blizzard that struck Small Pox Run was a teaser. The air was so black nobody could see what was going on for and hour, and when they got around again there was the prettiest little old edge you ever struck your foot in! Pretty! Yam-n-m! I reckon not. Twenty ounces to the pound and all wool!

"A mine! A bonanza! And them fellows worked it! Assayed two hundred dollars to the ounce and no limit to the game! But they lost it." "How?

"Some preachers from Minnesota came over and claimed that it had been blown from their State, and the Montana men had to give it up. The Minnesota men packel it on a wagon and took it home."

"I didn't know they could carry a mine that way. What kind of a thing was it?" "It was a church debt! Them Minnesota fellows had been living off it for years, and hadn't had to sink a shaft. The placer was as soft as your cheek, and they hadn't touched the main vein! It was a bonanza, and Small Pox Run has never been the same place since.'

"I never heard a church debt called a mine before," sighed the girl. Then the Montana man rose up and look. ed at her with mingled pity and contempt, for there are degrees of innocence that even a Montana man can't tolerate .- Detroit Free

Omens of Great Events.

Recorders of omens forgot to tabulate the terrible storm that swept over the sea at Caprera while Garibaldi was being buried. Such a storm raged in England on the day that Oliver died. Such another storm, root. ing up tall trees and hurling huge masses of rock down the valleys, desolated St. Helena while the quiet spirit of Napoleon the Great was passing away; and Tacitus relates that the insurrection of the Britons under Boadicea against the Romans was presaged by an awful tempest. "Strange noises were heard in the House of Assembly, and loud howling in the theatre. In the estuary of the Thames there was an appearance like that of a sunken town. The sea assumed the color of blood and human forms appeared to be left on the shore by the ebbing tide."
The other day, it is stated, the superstitious people of La Maddalena attributed the storm to the anger of the Eternals at the disobedience of the family of Garibaldi to his last wishes .- Illustrated London News.

A Baby Sea Lion.

A baby sea lion was born at the Zoo on Saturday. This makes the fourth animal of this species (Zalophus Californianus) brought into the world at this institution, but as yet Prof. Thompson, the superintendent, has never ucceeded in raising one. The first pair of sea lions ever brought to the garden was in 1877, they having come from southern California, and the first calf was born in 1878. The mother, however, was in the last stages of consumption, and died only a few days afterward, the calf surviving her but a week. Another cow was then ob-tained, and in the fall of 1880 the second baby seal was born. The mother dying shortly of ulceration of the ovaries, it was found impossible to raise the youngster, which shuffled off within a week after its ma, and so a third cow was procured, and another baby born Thursday, June 9, 1881. This little fellow lived some five or six months only, when he, too, turned up his toes, as it were, and died. The same cow has now given birth to another bane, and additional efforts will be made to raise it. Many sea liors have been born in captivity, both here and in other fresh water aquariums, but the one by this same mother in June, 1880, was the first specimen known to have been conceived in activity. The one now at the Zoo is, of course, the second example, which, the first now being dead, makes it very valuable. In all the other cases mentioned, the cow had been fecundated before being captured .- Cincinnati Gazette.

Young Love's Dream of Housekeeping.

They are young married people and have just gone to housekeeping, and the neigh-bors who assemble at their front windows to witness the barrowing eight of their parting for the day declare that the following is a verbatim account of their conversation:

"Good-bye, Charley; now be careful the street cars don't run off the track with you, and-kiss me, Charley-there was some-

"I'm due at the office, pet," says Charley, bracing up and looking very handsome and mauly; "was it something to eat?"

"Why, of course it was; there isn't a bit of mashed potatoes in the house, nor a mouthful of bread and butter. We want half a yard of beefsteak -see and have it cut bias, so it will be tender-and a loaf of sweetbread, Charlie, and a strawberry shortcake, dear, and-and anything else you think of, dear."

"But, my little wife," said Charley," look ing very wise, "these things must all be made before we can eat them."

"Must they? Oh, dear! and I never learned to do fancy work. I never crocheted a biscuit fit to est, and I couldn't paint a tomato to save my life. Oh Charley! go to the ready-made stores, do, there's a darling.'

He did; and they had a picturesque meal of lobster and strawberries, with baker's risk and lemonade; but Charley has written to his mother to come at once and make them a long visit; they are so delightfully situated they can make it pleasant for her now, he says.

Growing Out Of A Rock.

A novel freak of nature now exists on the New York State Library Building, on State street, Albany. A vigorous young elm, about five feet in height, and with a trunk nearly two inches We just planted a grain crop under that reservation, and in fourteen days the wheat in diameter, is growing from the carvhad hoisted it up a hundred feet and there ed brown stone pediment near the western angle on the facade of the library. The tree is several years old, came in the spring, and, miss, you'd have just busted our collar band to have seen The entire front of the building is Corner Railway Crossing and Walton them Crow Indians when their reservation brown stone, with close joints, and Street. how the tree gets substance enough to keep it alive has been a source of mystery to the many passers by. The roots seem to have taken hold and the curtain wall, and the tree stands at about an angle of sixty degrees, leaning toward the south. It weathers the heavy wind and rain storms well, and looks as green as any of the trees about it. A large elm stands almost opposite the entrance to the library, and probably the seed from which the little tree sprung was deposited from the larger member of the genus. The tree should be trans. planted, and would be quite a novelty in after years, from the fact that it took root on the front of the State Library building, which is soon to be

A young man was ridiculing the story of David and Goliath, asserting that it was impossible for a small boy to throw a stone with force enough to break the skull of a giant. He appealed to a Quaker in confirmation of his theory. "Well," said the man The biggest find ever known in them parts!" of his theory. "Well," said the man "What was it?" asked the bewildered of broad-brim prejudices, "it all depends. If the giant's head was as soft as thine appears to be, it could be done easily.

AND COUNTY OF BURHAM BRITISH CANADIAN

Port Hope, Thursday, July 13, 1882,

WAR AT LAST.

As the news in another column shows. war has at last broken out, and Alexandria is being bombarded by the English fleet. Admiral Seymour, the commander of the British naval force, on Sunday morning gave Arabi notice that if he did not come to terms within twenty-four hours after daybreak on Monday morning he would begin firing. Arabi did not surrender, and at the time appointed the Invincible belched forth her terrible fire. The hombardment is said to have been the most splendid exhibition of modern naval warfare ever witnessed. Such splendid achievements make every loyal British heart beat with pride; to know that the "hearts of cak" are stout and brave as

What will result is hard to predict. If the war should involve the rest of the nations of Europe, and England should once more face fearful odds, she has so far demonstrated that her right arm has not lost its power to strike with mighty force. In such a case Britain could bring an almost illimitable force from the dusky shades of India, composed of men who can fight battles worthy of British subjects. Canada, Australia, and the rest of the English colonies would not be slow to give their aid, so that who ever fights Britain should first sit down and count the cost.

However, we imagine that no nation s particularly anxious to court the notoriety of embroiling itself in a struggle with the old "god of the seas," and that after Egypt has learned a good substantial lesson, peace will be restored, to the mutual advantage of all nations interest-

It is the general opinion throughout England, and Europe generally, that had England taken the same decided stand at first, the war, with whatever may be the consequences, would have been averted.

TOO MANY CROOKS.

It is simply repeating an oft-repeated truism to say that every social assembly has its laughing-stock, and every flock its black sheep. We might enlarge by adding that every political as well as fishing party has its Jonah. As Sir Richard Cartwright was the Jonah of the Dominion Liberals, so Adam Crooks might justly be termed the Jonah of Mr. Mowat's little craft

That our present Minister of Education has ability and many good ideas, we and even in the midst of his wickedness are free to admit, but like many other smart men he has an unfortunate habit | become immortal, and are not rejected of making a bungle nearly every on the score that 900 concubines contrione of his undertakings. Plenty of men not half so able as Mr. Crooks could do quite as well. as he with but very little credit to themselves. In his ministerial capacity he has not many faults, it is true, but those few are sufficient to disqualify him for the position; he has a number of virtues, but his mistakes throw them into discredit. Perhaps no man ever tried harder to do well than this same Minister of Education, but good intention never, or very seldom, excuse a failure. The most egregious feature of his policy, if policy it can be called, is the instability of even its changes. The modifications and sub-modifications are so numerous that the outline of the main purpose is lost, and on the whole resembles a coat patched so frequently that it is impossible to tell what portion of it belonged to the original. "Tco many changes" is the great complaint made of the present educational system, or rather, want of system. - Every year the alterations are numerous, and teachers and school boards are constantly receiving circulars informing them of some change in the modus operandi. It is not safe for a legal gentleman to venture an opinion on school law without first consulting the morning papers. Figuratively speaking, our school system is a huge cauldron, the contents of which Mr. Crooks keeps well stirred up with a long stick. Text books are another great grievance.

Some friend of the hon, gentleman has a 'splendid educational work," and some other of Mr. Crooks' friends recommend it, and finally it is authorized. A few weeks after, Freddie and Lizzle come home from school and tell their parents they want a new 'rithmetic, jography or something else, and they are told that it is only a few months since they got such and such a book. "Well, our teacher says that kind is not allowed any more. There is a new kind out and we'll have to get it," is the answer the anxious parents are consoled with. How many poor people have felt the burden of this "buying, continually buying books." Of course, the progress of our times demands an occasional change, but it is not sufficient, we imagine, to require change as often as twelve times a year. Want of tractability is not his fault, for he has shown his willingness to accept the suggestions of every inspector and examiner in the province; in fact, from the heterogeneous composition of what is generally dubbed "our school system," we think he has accepted them. While again plunged into financial depression.

his faculties are pro! ensile, he has shown himself very arbitrary and self-willedand, like most of his class, succeeds in doing the most foolish things upon the most opportune occasions.

Again Mr. Crooks has announced his intention of introducing radical changes. the wisdom of which will depend very much upon how the details are carried out. His penchant for variation appears to be yearly growing more confirmed, and unless the verdict of the people at next local election take from him the power to tinker further, our educational scheme will have been reduced to an absolute nondescript.

"BOB INGERSOLL UNMASKED."

We do not love Bob Ingersoll, or respect very highly his opinions or his personal character. We are farthest from believing what he teaches. His scholarship is not of the highest stamp, neither is he profound. Still he is a man of mind, and possesses reasoning powers and elequence in a remarkable degree.

A pamphlet is going the rounds, entitled "Bob Ingersoll Unmasked, by Clark Braden." When we picked it up we imagined we were going to receive some light on the questions propounded by the champion atheist of America: we were prepared and anxious to see his arguments disjointed and strewed piecemeal along the paths of theological controversy. Before one reads ten sentences, however, he puts down the writer as a buffoon and a conceited ass, who tries to gain notoriety by unearthing all the dirty scandals that may or may not have marked Ingersoll's career. We, in fact, threw it up in disgust, and would not have thought it worthy of notice had not so many of our contemporaries, whose knowledge of its contents does not extend beyond the title page, bestowed upon it unstinted praise. Ingersoll's doctrines are not so potently expressed that it is impossible for orthodox learning to refute them, but we want to see a man capable of the task undertake it, and that by legitimate means. It is not his personal character, let it be bad or good, which is going to work disaster or reform; it is his teachings as backed up by argument, and it is his arguments that his opponents should attack, not his character. The badness of Ingersoll's doings or past life cannot affect the soundness of his doctrine, and while the influence of the former is comparatively circumscribed the latter is world-wide. The pamphlet in question tells how bad Ingersoll was as a boy, how many "drunks" he was on, the number of obscene stories he can tell, how often he indulged in debauches and how many times he blasphemed. All this may or may not be true, so far as we know anything concerning it, but how does it affect the validity or futility of lugersoll's position as an atheist? Some bad men have been very wise: Solomon, for a period of his life, was anything but a saint, still he was a paragon of wisdom, wrote lessons for posterity which have buted to deprive them of their moral excellence. This Clark Braden is not only a fool, logically and learnedly considered, but he is an enemy to the cause he attempts to aid. Such abortive and uncalled for help always brings any cause into disgrace, and our over-good contemporaries should first analyze, if they can, and writers do, that Ingersoll is a fool, a will not satisfy those people who read or hear his lectures. It is no use to deny it, his lectures in many respects are master-pieces of reasoning and eloquence, and have been powerfully convincing and effective. That, however, does not prove the correctness of his teachings; it only and the necessity to fight him on his own grounds. Abuse, although well-merited it may be, is invariably an evidence of weakness on the part of those who resort to it. We are not one of those who believe, notwithstanding the popular orthodox views to the contrary, that unbelief and morality are irreconcilable elements; it is infidelity, not infidels, that the christian world has to deal with. Truth, with the same advantages, will certainly trlumph over error. At the same time it is the spirit of christianity to deal fairly with its enemies, and Bob Ingersoll, the confirmed enemy of religion though he is, should have extended to him by Christian people, Christian fairness.

To the higher intelligence, it must ever appear that the doctrine of "No God" is fundamentally absurd. To serve and love that Creator must evidently be the next step to which reasoning forces us, but reasoning, not diatribe, must at this intelligent period of the world's history accomplish the good end.

"There are strong indications that within twelve months the present 'good times' will come to a close, and a period of depression will commence. A good crop, and prudence on the part of individuals, may procrastinate the 'hard times' which are looming up, until some is certain. It would be in some degree satisfactory that the Macdonaldites should be in power during a period of depression."-Gritty Exchange. The wish is, of course, father to the thought. Extreme patriotism-to the party-has concocted the theory, and now it is the daily prayer

BRIFF COMMENT.

Guiteau's body is going to be put in a museum and stuffed, we presume. The irony of fate is something to give us

Skobeleff, whose fiery speeches sot all Europe by the ear a few months agothe dashing and brilliant soldier-is dead. He died, not through the use of foul play, as at first feared, but of heart disease. His sentiments, though somewhat extreme, were shared by the majority of the Russian people, and, in case of war, he was looked to as the man for the occasion. Undoubtedly his banishment to Moscow was more for the pur pose of satisfying foreign prejudices than a sign of the Czar's displeasure.

In a sermon on Sunday evening Henry Ward Beecher expressed what may be termed the popular ideas about hell. He does not believe that either Heaven or Hell represents localities, but rather future states, in what form of existence or where is not suggested. Future punishment, he thinks, is simply remorse for sin, and that finally, after a limited period of time has been spent in suffering, all souls will be saved, or in other words, enjoy future bliss. It is a very consoling doctrine, but of course is too largely composed of the speculative to put the ordinary sinner at ease.

Poor D. I. K. Rine, who earned for himself such a reputation, both enviable and unenviable, while on a temperance lecturing tour through Canada, died the other day a raving maniac in Wayne County Asylum, Michigan. His reverses after his popularity are supposed to have launched him back into his old habits of drunkenness. In moral as in physical health, when a man once suffers a relapse, he is sure to sink at a pace ten times more rapid than before. There is not any question that he was sincere in his professions, and at one stage of his notoriety much good was done by his fervent, eloquent appeals to drunkards. It is said he was heir to over half a million dollars, which his friends, by | thoroughly consistent. If a man should memory to suffer the indignity of a burial of his body at the public expense. The present almost unprecedentelly high price of beef, and in fact meat of all kinds, contains a valuable suggestion to both farmer and consumer. Stock-raising is, and must be for years, the most remunerative business a farmer can undertake. Economy is the lesson for the consumer. It is safe to say that not more than onethird of our people know how to cook so as to make a certain quantity of provisions go the farthest possible in the economy of supply. Count Rumford said: "The number of people who may be supported in any country, upon its internal produce, depends as much upon the state of the art of cookery, as upon that of agriculture. These are arts of civilized nations; savages know neither of them. How far are people who speak the English tongue removed from the savage

The hope that a constituency can be found for Sir Richard Cartwright begins to die out. While the Conservatives are anxious he shall have a seat in the new House, Reformers are not only lukewarm but disposed to shirk the responsibility of carrying so huge a white elephant any longer. The latest rumor is that an effort is being put forth to induce Mr. James Somerville, the newly elected member for North Brant, who received a majority It is no use to say, as many ministers of 851, to yield his seat to the knight of the "gilded shield," but his constituents villain, and has no brains; that answer think it too near "fly" time to try such a risky experiment, and so well pleased are they with Mr. Somerville that they will not give ear to the melodious singer of the Globe. We would prefer Sir Richard to Mr. Somerville, for the former has been so useful to the Conservative party in the past that he could not demonstrates his strength and ingenuity | fail to continue to be a tower of strength in the future, while Mr. Somerville has too level a head to make such blunders. We would like to have Mr. Somerville resign for the satisfaction of seeing his majority of 851 turned into a minority for the "mixer and muddler." Come, James, won't you oblige us; you know Mowat will have to resign after next Local election, and you would make an excellent leader of the Opposition.

Bribery, the Globe says, has been very largely used to secure the return of the Conservative candidates, not only by promises, and by appointments, but by the lavish use of money. This it knows, actually knows, to be the case. Well, then, in the name of common sense why don't it use its information for the benefit of the public, and publish the particulars. If it is known that a candidate, or his agents, have bribed the constituents, it is the easiest thing in the world to make them pay the penalty of their crime. But the Globe adds, anticipating an excuse for not putting its knowledge to use: "Experience has shown that in nearly every instance where a candidate is unseated for bribery, he is sure to be reelected." What! Do the people admire bribery so much that they will elect fairly a candidate the second time, because in the first instance he resorted to illegal years hence. But that they are coming | means? Or does our fearfully and wonderfully made contemporary mean that it is no use to unseat a man for bribery, because bribery will elect him a second time? Or are we to believe after all, so few votes are influenced in this way that it really makes no difference. Oh Globe! thou great solar centre of the Grit and how uneccentric thy orbit.

Proctor's theory concerning the growth and decay of worlds is verified in the present condition of the Globe.

Wandering Willie has been defeated in Algoma. It was useless for him or any other politician to go into that constituency to contest it with Mr. Dawson. The latter is a gentleman who is thoroughly acquainted with the North-West. and has been intimately associated with his constituents for many years. The fact that he, a man noted for his independence of character, and representing this particular section, strongly sustaining Sir John Macdonald in his Boundary Award and North-West policy, is very significant.

Stealing examination papers is a diversion the honorable young gentlemen who expect to guide the developing instinct of the rising generation, are fond of engaging in of late years. This characteristic appears to be more pronounced in the vicinity of Barrie than elsewhere. It has got to be an annual sport in that town, some days previous to examination, to obtain by stealth the questions to be submitted to candidates for third class and intermediate examinations, and then sell them at a good round profit. What makes the fun more interesting is the fact that the inspector who has the papers in charge is a reverend gentleman, Rev. Thos. McKee. During his absence, one of his sons abstracted the papers, and together with another young hopeful, soon flooded Barrie with copies. Of course, no general reflection need be cast upon preachers' sons on this account, as their morality as a class has never been questioned. The culprits have been arrested, but have made good their escape.

The periodically recurring problem of marriage with a deceased wife's sister has once more been brought up in the English House of Lords, and voted down -this time by only four votes. Every liberal-minded man will acknowledge that this is a step in the right direction, but only a step, and even then is not some fluke, have secured, leaving his have the right to marry his deceased wife's sister, why should not a woman have a right to marry her deceased husband's brother? Or if the privilege is to be accorded to brothers and sisters of the deceased, why not to uncles and aunts and nieces and nephews? The principle involved is the same for all, and if the principle is to be recognized by Act of Parliament, why not make the application general, so as to render unnecessary piecemeal enactments to suit special Speaking of the Boundary Award, > the Monetary Times says: - The issue, on one side, was of course confined to Ontario, and it has been dealt with in a way which shows that the electors of that Province do not fear that they will lose their just rights; in other words , they believe that their just rights will be safe in the hands of the highest tribunal in the realm. Thus the question is reduced to one of procedure, and in no way affects the merits of the case. Ontario has not decided that the award of the arbitrators was right or wrong, but only that a conventional arbitration could not give us a settlement that would be binding on all parties. For a just settlement Ontario is not afraid to go to the Privy Council. She has never yet shown a want of confidence in the courts, and she is not going to begin with the highest tribunal in the Empire. This is Ontario's view of the matter, and a very sensible view it is. The only good and pious little Premier,

Mowat, has issued a circular to his faithful, marked "private and confidential."

One particular clause is worthy of being quoted in full: "I have reserved for the last my most important request: I desire to learn what were the topics on which the election turned with you; what were the main elements of strength, and of weakness, in discussion and opinion on the Reform side; what are the lessons for the future which, as you judge, are taught by the late struggle, and what suggestions occur to you as to the tactics and policy we should now pursue." We were led to believe that tactics was something beneath the politicians of the Mowat stripe; the fact that Sir John Macdonald was a tactician has been howled into our ears for years. But the sequel shows that even the Christian Premier, in his emergency, is willing to come down to the level of that most degraded statesman. Gerrymandering is strongly hinted at in this: "I wish to know the condition of our organization as ascertained by sunk. the poll; the municipalities in which our expectations were realized; those in which they failed, and the cause of such failures; with full particulars." If not for gerrymandering purposes, why should Mr. Mowat want to know in which municipalities his expectations were realized lars?" There is another interesting feaand in which they failed with "full particuture about this circular. Mr. Mowat wants to know the names of twenty five of those who worked the hardest in each constituency, not, of course, so that he may reward them, but just for his own information. Perhaps what will excite most wonder is the peculiarity of "the little Premier" taking the late Dominion elections as a basis for regulating local elections. What about the gush of keeping the politics of Province and Dominion distinct, and without mutual interference? We think that the facts are sufficient to justify us in repeating our cognomen, as of the Opposition that Canada should be celestial orbs, how bright is thy light, applied to the Premier of Ontario-the bumptious hypocrite.

The Cobourg World says that the miserable trick known as the gerrymander has saved the Government from an ignominious defeat in this Province. If we were not asking our contemporary to perform too heavy a task, we would like him to prove his assertion. But pshaw! It is always amusing to hear the defeated party in any contest accounting for the defeat.

Gladstone last week was defeated by a majority of eleven in a two-thirds House. The question was an amendment to the Repression of Crime Bill which had been introduced by the Secretary for Ireland, and which restricted the right of search to the daytime except in case of secret societies. As originally framed the Bill made no such limitation, this being introduced to satisfy his ultra-followers. Upon the result being known he did not resign, notwithstanding the fact that he had previously hinted that the vote would reflect upon his personal position, considering no doubt that it was not strictly a vote of want of confidence, owing to a number of his followers being out of the House. It, however, denotes a growing dissatisfaction in the ranks of Liberals.

It would be a disaster just at this present stage of affairs if Gladstone should be defeated. Since Beaconsfield's death Gladstone is, without doubt the ablest premier that could be selected from among the ranks of English statesmen. Had he only a more practical and united Cabinet to back him up. English affairs would be in a better position than they are to-day. At a time when England's forces should be most unitedwhen the Irish difficulty is so formidable aud the Egyptian embroglio so menacing -to precipitate upon the nation a change of government, and possibly a general election, could not but be disastrous in t'e extreme. Great Britain is in a position where enemies internal and external can best harass her, and it is to be hoped political feeling in a time of common trouble will be sunk and all unite for the common good. We know that Gladstone was not thus generous when in Opposition, but a more patriotic spirit may naturally be looked for in the ranks of the Conservatives.

After tiding over many crises in the ad-ministration of government in Ireland, Mr. Gladstone has at last suffered a defeat. Friday a number of his supporters, in fancied security, had left the House, when the division was called on the Government amendment to the Repression Bill, limiting the right of search to the daytime except in the case of secret societies. Owing to this defection, and that of a number of Liberals who voted with the Conservatives on this amendment, the vote resulted in a majority of thirteen against the Government. Mr. Gladstone, on the numbers being declared, in view of the remarkable state of Ireland did not feel called upon to ask the House to then postpone proceedings, and the Repression Bill was given its third reading. Public opinion and the press do not regard the vote as one of want of confidence, and it is probable that Mr. Gladstone will ac-

Mr. Clark, and resolved, that the petition of Robert Jamieson and others be received, and that this council grant the sum of $10, being supplementary to a similar grant made by the council of Cavan for the purpose of cutting water courses on the hill known as Kennedy's, on the boundary line of road between Cavan and Manvers; also that this council grant the sum of $10 to gravel the hill known as Soper's, on said road, provided the said council of Cavan grant a like amount, to be done under the superintendence of Councillor Barnicutt.-Car-

Moved by Mr. Baruicutt, seconded by Mr. Kennedy, and resolved, that the petition of James Holmes and others be received, and that the sum of $14 be granted to improve the road opposite lot No. 13, 5th con., to be done under the superintendence of Councillor Clark. — Carried.

Verbal petitions were then made by William Neal, to have certain obstructions removed from off the allowance for road opposite lot No. 1, in front of 8th con., Manvers, and to have more statute labor expended on said road; by A. F. Preston, stating that owing to various requisitions by Government, his duties as struggle to attain free land, free labor, and assessor had been largely increased, and requesting this council to grant him some remuneration for his extra labor.

Moved by Mr. Barnioutt, seconded by Mr. Clarke, and resolved, that the verbal application of Mr. William Neal be received, and that the clerk do notify Mr. James Neal, overseer, to remove or cause to be removed, all fences from off the allowance for road opposite lot No. 1, in front of 8th con., Manvers, and also that he be requested to expend the statute labor of his division on the allowance for road in front of said 8th con., west of the Broad road. And that when said statute labor is so expended, the reeve is the information of farmers, the collection hereby authorized to expend such an amount in improving said road as he may consider necessary.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Kennedy, seconded by of $10 for his extra services. - Carried.

On motion the deputy reeye was instructed to have a sultable culvert built on the quarter line between lots 20 and 21, 9th con., Manvers. On motion the following orders on the Treasurer were signed by the Reeve:

A. J. Preston, salary as assessor. On motion the council adjourned until Saturday, 29th July, next, at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M.

RYAN & ROBINSON'S CIRCUS AND MENAGERIE.

The Best in the World, Coming.

All attempts to mix up other kinds of tented amusements in such a manner as to ignore the claims of a legitimate circus have proven utter failures. There is no field or canvas exhibition known, that possesses the attractions of a first-class circus entertainment conducted according to the refine ment of the modern arena.

Messrs. Ryan and Robinson, with such distinguished artists as the great James Robinson, the basillionic honored and coram regic champion bare-back rider of the world, at the head of the equestrian department, have organized a circus company with a corps of star performers, such as has never before been brought together by any enterprise in this or any other age.

The press everywhere, where this new organization has exhibited, speak of it in complimentary and unqualified terms as "absolutely the best ever known." The list of salaries paid to the scores of artists, everyone of whom is a STAR PERFORMER of the first order, is twice that paid by any other company travelling. The street parade the company travelling. The street parade, the managers declare in advance, and they deserve all the more credit for their frankness, is not large nor gaudy, but solid and substantial; the real merits of the show being seen, not on the streets, but under the enormous tents.

To the Menagerie department has just been added a pair of Twin Baby Elephants only three months old, and thirty inches high. These are of the African species. Their large ears cover nearly half of their little bodies. These were recently captured in Nubia at an enormous cost. They have been brought up by hand, daily nursing Angora goats milk from a bottle. They are beautiful little creatures, the play-thing and delight of all children, for whom they display excessive fondness.

There have also been added Giant Os. triches eleven feet high, with feathers two feet long, and valued in amount at $600 for each bird. Also Gelada Apes and Monkeys as large as men, the missing link of Darwin's theory of development, the "the survival of the fittest." The management have discarded the two and three ring nuisance, and bring everything prominently before and within easy reach of everybody, giving the "best circus performance of any show in the world," in one ring. This is one reason why everybody appears to be delighted with Ryan & Robinson's show, which will exhibit in Port Hope on Monday, July 17th.

B'ew! let the blaving trumpets tell his name Who with armed hand hash grasped eternal fame, Who, with the mighty gine, with clashing strife Shocked the deat glory of his land to life. And gave the nations of the earth te see His race no more a word for tears and shame. But bade again its olden greature is be. Such as, when freemen in far Rome had birth, With awe and wonder thunderclouded earth, And made for aye his justrous Italy A marvel and an everlasting name.

Shout! let your shouts, as nations, te l his prai-e! He with the strength of r ght and justice came And swept the land, a fere-devouring flume To the foul evil of its evil days, Throning high right for rule in the world's wonder-

Rejoice, old Earth, thou hast not lost.
The Godlike of thy earlier time,
When nation-makers' mighty shalows crost.
The radiance of thy prime,
And with their grandeur made thy years s blime.
High let their names he tost. And with their grandeur made thy years s blime. High let their names be test, Tost and retest upon the thunderous voice of peoples who in their great acts rejoice,
Who in their deeds grow greater in each clime?
Feeling themselves, through them, of nobler worthYes, let the tongues of men their grandeur swell
Who gave the down-trod and the chained to dwell
Henceforward freemen upon chainless earth!
And this, our great one, he shall live through time
With Bruce and Vass, Washington and Tel;
His rame, the tongues of glory shall love well.

His rame, the tongues of glory shall love well.

Not from the throned who bear
State and dominion, majesty and rule,
Came he. Him did God bid affliction school
In rude abodes where want and labor dwell,
Glving his youth and toiling years to wear
The robes of poverty, and breathe the air
Of bracing action. Ever God does well,
Oft does the lap of luxury breed the fool.
Oft strength and greamess have been nursed by care.
Tell it, ye peoples, tell!
His glory is your own. From you he springs.
He who, God's vengeance, a sift hath hurled down
kings,
And given their crowns for juster brows to wear.
Eidding the baver flee—the pobler rule;
Therefore in poor men's homes his grandeur rings;
He, of them, for them, dared such deeds to dare.

Him did'st thou see, O Rome! in other years, Striking for thee, ere yet God willed From his loved land's eyes he should wipe the tears, And bid its children's wallings all be stilled. Flashing to smiles and hopes the soul-fet fears With which the aliens' hate their days had filled.

Him did'st thou changeless se;
Great with the greatness of adversity
Borne nobly, in unwavering purpose grand,
Losing no jot of faith that, by God's hand.
His lend's great destiny would be fulfilled;
Nor is the future dumb.
His swerveless faith, an awful prophet cry,
shall not in nothingness and silence die.
Thou once world-ruler, he again shall come
Through thy glad gates the shout of victory.
And not alone thy voice

And not alone thy voice
O Italy, shall in his name rejoice
In the proud if the strength be gives to thee.

When neath a mid wreng they, too, no more shall bow.

When 'neath a mind wrong they, too, no indee a same bow,
But robly live, freemen amongst the free.
Lo! Hungary thinks upon thy battlefi lds,
And knows her own again sha i soon be red;
But not with blood, like that untimely shed
With thine when last she knew def a with thee.
To her, too, G = a chainless future yields.
Lo! Germans, know they yet shall have one head,
Like thee. France knows her hope, too, is not dead.

Yes, his unstained remown
On all the centuries sets a priceless crown;
And man may glory in the worth it gives—
The added worth—to our envobled blood.
Through all our veins it pours a purer flood;
And every life, through it, more nobly lives.
Glory to him! his is that worthiest braise,
Not for himself bis mighty deed he wrough;
Of power and rank and wealth he took no thought,
Like lesser great ones of our stormy days.
He, with this service, but the hearts love bought,
Of the freed land he would have died to raise.
Careless, if unto him the world dealt praise,
Or scorn, he moved to his great end, to be
One from whose name new splendors shall be

The guice and glory of eternity.

Next to cigar makers, according to the London Medical Times and Gasette, printers are more numerous in New York York lunatic asylums then men of any other trade.

If mothers and nurses would cease giving opiates in the guise of Parcgoric, and Cor-dials, and for children teething and subject to bowel complaints, give instead Dr. Fow-ler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, the lives of many infants might be saved that are eacrificed to deadly drugs.

There is a Chinaman in San Francisco with red hair. His countrymen treat him with superstitious respect. At the table he has the best of everything, and at all ceremonials he takes precedence.

The increasing popularity of lager beer in England has stimulated the British brewers to undertake its make. But they do not make it yet with glucose.

I. F. The above named remedy is nature's grand cure for Cholera, Dysentery snd all summer complaints.

Noah Orr, familiar in museums for about thirty years as a giant, is prostrated by paralysis at Marysville, Ohio, and is not expected to recover. Last winter he weighed 530 pounds, being very corpulent, though his height of nearly seven feet and a half served to keep him in tolerable proportion. Since then he has lost 200 pounds. Orr has three brothers, ranging from six feet and five inches to seven feet, and a son, who at 15 sears of age measured nearly six

Among the most prevalent fatal and sudden attacks of diseas s, are those incident to the Summer and Fall, such as cholera morbus, bilious colic, diarrhæs, dysentery, etc., that often prove fatal in a few hours. That ever reliable remedy Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, should be at hand, for use in emergency.

The idea of competitive examination is borrowed from the Chinese, where it has been in vogue for many hundreds of years. "The system," says a late writer, "is as unphilosophic as regards the mind as unwholesome diet and over-exertion are unphilosophic in reference to the body. To force it as a right and usefulthing upon the young is to ignore the very first principles of mental hygiene."

A son of the late President Tyler was lately arrested in Washington for drunkenness. "Although a poor, besotted creature," says a Syracuse Journal correspondent, "he is one of the most courtly and polished men, in demeanor and conversation, to be found in Washington. 'Lynn, Mass., always was a good p'ace for health, but it has become a modern Bethesda since Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of 233 Western Avenue, made her great discovery of the Vegetable Compound or panacea for the principal ills that afflict the fair creation. This differs, however, from the ancient scene of marvellous cures in this important particular: The healing agent, with all its virtues, can be sent to order by express or mail all over the world.

Accounts from Syria represent the condition of the country as worse than ever. In the interior there is no security whatever either for life or property. The neighborhood of Aidin is infested by three different bands of brigands, who, without let or hindrance from the authorities, plunder houses, rob travellers, and take wellto do people captive and hold them to ransom. One village has been completely ravaged and its inhabit-ants despoiled of all they possessed. In consequence of these disorders, commerce languishes and agriculture

"." Magnificent promises sometimes end ""Magnificent promises sometimes end in paltry performances." A magnificent exception to this is found in Kidney-Wort which invariably performs even more cures than it promises. Here is a single instance: "Mother has recovered," wrote an Illinois girl to her Esstern relatives. "She took bitters for a long time but without any good. So when she heard of the virtues of Kidney-Wort she got a box and it has completely cured her liver complaint."

A Michigan farmer watched a three-cardmente game, as played by the camp follower of a circus, and soon saw, of course, that the card with the bent corner was never the picture one when a genuine bet was made on it. By a sample process of reasoning he concluded that by excluding the card which the dealer intended the victim should select, and choosing one of the two others instead, an even chance of winning could be obtained. He wagered $100 on this theory, and won. But he had to whip the gambler and the stool pigeon in order to get away with the money, as they fought hard against losing,

Mrs. E. H. Perkins, Creek Centre, Warren Co., N. Y., writes:—"She has been troubled with Asthma for four years, had to sit up night after night with it. She has taken two bottles of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil and is perfectly cured. She strongly recommends it, and wi hes to act as agent among her neighbors."

The North China Herald gives an account of a new political association which has been formed in Japan, its objects being as follows: (1) to uphold the dignity and prosperity of the imperial house and the welfare of the Japanese people; (2) to extend the power of the empire by the de-velopment of the national resources: (3) to encourage local government and check the inclination toward centralization; (4) to regulate the right to vote at elections in proportion to the progress of the people; (5) to restrain participation in foreign intercourse and devote as much attention as possible to domestic affairs; (6) to abolish the irradeemable paper currency.

One of the maddest freaks of cruelty on record is reported in the Austrian Reichenberger Tageblatt. A' man who was very fond of reast hare, gave his wife formal notice that unless she larded the meat more thoroughly in the future he would lard her. The next time the dish was served he found that again the meat had not been prepared as he desired; whereupon, in a furious passion, he proceeded to carry his threat into literal excution. He threw his wife on the floor, tied her hands, gagged her, tore off her dress, and drew strips of lard through her breast. Then he locked the door, left the house, and made for parts unknown. After a while the unfortunate woman was discovered and released by neighbors, but in a precarious condition.

wherever there are laws to be administered and courts in which to plead, there is probably no cummunity in the world that can show, in proportion to its population, as many representatives of this profession as the capital of Greece. A correspondent of the Cologne Gazette estimates the Athenian bar to number over a thousand members, with a total population in the city of only fifty thousand. Naturally, nine-tenths of these advocates or even more, have no clients, and they are to be found earning a subsistence in many other callings, often, indeed, in very humble ones. The Gazette's correspondent says that he found waiters in the hotels who were graduated doctors of law. This astonishing overstocking of the legal calling he explains as being due to the peculiar mercurial qualities of the modern Greeks, who are ardent politicians and great admirers of oratory and rhetoric, whether in the political arena or in the courts.

A VARIETY.

A good newspaper is like a good dinner—the locals are the soup, the news are the fish, the editorials the meat, and wit and humor the dessert.

Imilators vs. Substitutors.

Geed points are worth remembering, for the reason that they assist us in avoiding many dire inforts, and project us against the capitity of overreaching people. When you learn from friends that Pernan's Cois Extractor is safe, prompt and affectual, don't allow druggists to paim of a worthless and perhaps poisonous substitute. His object is quite patent. He wishes too make a few cents difference between a cood article and a cheap imitation or substitute. Putnam's Corn Extractor. Sold overywhere.

Edith's mamma was sick, and the little one felt, as she expressed it, "very mournful." At night she prayed: "O Lord, please to make my dear mamma well again. She must have eaten something that didn't digest. Don't let her be sick anymore, for it's no fun to her nor to me either."

A bevy of little children were telling their father what they got at school. The eldest, "Reading, spelling and definitions." "And what did you get, my little one?" said the father to a rosy-cheeked little fellow who was at the time slyly driving a tenpenny nail into the door panel. "Me? I gets readin' spellin' and spankin's."

"One word more," said a speaker, 'and I am done." And the reporter found, when it was written down, that it contained fifteen hundred syllables. The famous word of Aristophanes was outdone. The same speaker is the fellow who often says 'a single remark," and then talks for fifteen minutes.

One of Prof. Blackie's stories illustrates very well the extraordinary strictness with which "the Sabbath" is still observed in parts of Scotland. A young man going to church on Sunday with an old gentleman in Skye ventured to remark, that it "was a beautiful day." "Yes indeed, young man," answered his companion "it is a very beautiful day; but is this a day to be talking about days?"

It is customary in some localities to teach children to think of a text as they drop their money into the contribution box. A certain little girl at Sunday school, recently, saw the box approaching, and began searching in her memory for a text. She hesitated for a few moments, dropped the dime and exclaimed triumphantly, "A fool and his money are soon part-

"Oh, do look in the pantry!" pleaded Mrs. Spoopendyke. "I'm sure it's in the pantry!"

Mr. Spoopendyke charged on the pantry like a column of horse and "I don't see any," be muttered. your cloth! I s'pose I might stand around here till doomsday, while the moths corrode and thieves do break into this razor strap and steal the whole business, without finding a piece of cloth to wipe it on. Haven't ye got an old shirt or something?" And Mr. Spoopendyke drew the strap under his arm two or three times and regarded it affectionately.

"Oh, please find the ginger!" squealed Mrs. Spoopendyke, as another spasm caught her. "Never mind your old strap! Find the ginger!'

"Ain't I looking for it?" retorted Mr. Spoopendyke. "Here's a cork, and the bottle can't be far off. When I find that bottle I'll have a clue to the ginger, and I'm going to follow it to the bitter end. You ought to save these corks anyway when I go fishing. What kind of a looking bottle was it?"

Mrs. Spoopendyke, almost in despair, "I ought to find it from that description," muttered Mr. Spoopendyke. "Most bottles are perfectly round. Here's the arnica bottle up side down, and I told you to keep it filled. I might knock my elbow into the next Presbyterian General Assembly, and I'd have to wait all day before I could get a drop of arnica to soothe my anguish! What's this straw hat of mine doing in the bottle box, anyhow! What particular malady did this hat have that suggested such a disposition of it?" and Mr. Spoopensquinted with one eye while he straightened the brim. "That's a good hat, yet," and he put it on and regarded himself in the glass. . "You wanted some ginger, didn't you! Where is it? Where 'd you put it?' Mrs. Spoopendyke arose from the bed, pale but firm, and stalking across the room seized the bottle and flounced back into the bed with a bump that showed she was mad. There is nothing on earth that will so express a woman's wrath as that one dive among the sheets.

"Getting better, ain't ye?" snorted Mr. Spoopendyke. "I told ye the cholera morbus didn't last long. Where's that razor strap? What'd ye do with that strap?"

Mrs. Spoopendyke eyed him, bat made no response.

"Point out to me the present address of that strap!" howled Mr Spoopendyke. "Take this finger and lay it tenderly on the home and country of that strap!" and Mr Speopendyke whirled around like a grindstone and filled the air with bottles and boxes, and powders and pills. "Come out of the jungle and face me!" yelled Mr. SpoopendyRe apostrophizing the strap which he remembered having in his hands but a moment before. "Show me to the strap! Take that strap by the ear and lead it before Spoopendyke in proper person!' and general debility. "You will be good the enraged gentleman thrust his foot through the crown of his hat and drew the wreck up to his hip.

it, didn't ye? Another time you let things alone, will ye? Made me spoil my straw hat with your nonsense! Another time you want anything you just stand back and let me search! Y' understand?"

"Yes, dear," murmured Mrs. Spoopendyke, and as her husband left the room she took a consoling swig at the ginger bottle and reflectof cholera morbus much more than

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

Messrs_Editors : The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Masa, who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is realously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

orn purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charft and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Loucorrhoza, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures, Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debillity, Shoeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

For Kidney Complaint of either sex this compound is unsurpassed as abundant testimonials show.

RETURNS of traffic of the Midland Railway of Canada for the week ending July 1st, 1882, were as follows:-Passengers and mails, $8,001.10; freight, $20,164.64; total, $28,-165.64, as compared with $17,776.78 for the corresponding week of 1881, being an increase of $10,388.86; and the aggregate traffic to date is $479,638.98, being an increase of $129,274,-50 over 1881.

Now and then a correspondent says to us, when we ask him to send us the news: Why, there is no news in my neighborhood." Now, he is mistaken. There is news everywhere, and you will find it if you keep your eyes and ears open. Arrival and departure of friends on business, pleasure or visit; the selling or trading of farms: births, deaths accidents; or a fine field of grain; the building of a house or barn; the meeting of any society, with its officers; in fact everything should be reported, and is news.

A FEARFUL LEAP .- One of the novel sensational feats performed in Ryan & Robinson's circus, is the infra-domic dive of M'lle Ella Blondin, who plunges nearly 60 feet downward from the top of a pole 70 feet high, erected expressly for the purpose, alighting into a powerful but elastic net, performing a double somersault during the aerial transit. It is one of the most astonishing adventures ever attempted by a female, and attracts thousands of eager visitors to see the daring

THE CYNOCEPHALUS .- Novelty, as well as variety, is the characteristic of Ryan & Robinson's Circus & Menagerie. Besides a large corps of the most famous male and female riders in the world, Mr. James Robinson will introduce the Cynocephalus. It is a variety of the Simia tribe, known as Galada Apes. Old Cephe, as he is called, has been thoroughly trained by his master to ride on horseback in the circus. He is of immense size, and when riding keeps the audience in a continuous roar of laughter. He is equal to the best clown, and he never fails to drive the "gentlemen in motley" completely out of the circle, to the infinite amusement of everybody present. The circus will visit Port Hope on Monday, 17th July, and should be seen by

THE Globe of Saturday says: - "The case of the Midland Railway of Canada, charged with breaking the Sabbath by running a train from Belleville to Peterboro' on Sunday, the 25th of June, was before the Peterboro' Police Court on Tuesday. The evidence of the Superintendent was to the effect that the train was brought up on the Sunday in order to be in readiness for an excursion on Monday morning. He pleaded that it was the custom of railways to run all kinds of trains on Sundays, but that the Midland Railway only did so in case of necessity." We have been unable to find out how the case was

THERE is a remarkably thriving industry in town which perhaps few know anything of. The cooper shop in connection with Beamish's Mills employs thirteen men, who bang away from Monday morning till Saturday night, as hard as they can peg, some of them earning as high as $12 a week. A few years ago the limit was five, and not hard worked at that. The increased activity in this industry is caused by the greater demand for shipping barrels, as represented by the growth in the milling business-the business Mayor Randall said at Millbrook was being killed out by the N. P. What Mayor Randell don't know Mitchell, Bella Haddon. F. Ella Armstrong, about milling and the N. P. would make a big, big book, if carefully bound,

THE flag was floating on the Town Hall yesterday in honor of "The Twelfth."

A TRAIN, consisting of ten cars, passed through on the G.T.R. going west on Sunday evening. About seventy-five, fresh from the soil of old England, stopped off at Port Hope. A number of them go out to work on the railroad.

Tue Guide should inform its readers who is its war correspondent in the East. We notice amongst its clipped despatches, one bearing the pretentious introduction of: "Special cablegram to the Guide." The New York Herald, which enjoys this sole honor in America, we believe, will have to bow graciously to its Northern liver-pad and kidney wort contemporary.

WHEN shall the Civic Holiday be? This is a question a number of our citizens are asking. The 17th of August has been suggested on account of an excursion going to Rochester and the big doings there on that day. Cobourg, we understand, has fixed on the 17th, and those who desire the same arrangement for Port Hope should by way of petition to the Council, put the matter in a tangible form. "First come" are generally "first served."

Business on the Midland Railway is maintaining itself at a good steady rate. Although the decrease in the amount of lumber coming in has not crowded the company for cars as it did a short time ago, yet they have all they can possibly do in the way of traffic. A new locomotive was purchased several weeks ago, and another one is expected next week. Through the increase in traffic, no doubt, a greater number of "run-offs" have been occasioned lately than usual, but very little serious damage has been done. Perhaps no other railroad in Canada can boast of as few accidents as the Midland in proportion to the number of miles in operation and the busi-

A PUZZLER.-The circumstance narrated below did not happen in Port Hope, it is said to have transpired in Dublin. At a certain hotel, recently, a chambermaid is said to have got twelve commercial travellers into eleven rooms and yet to have given each a separate bedroom. Can our readers tell how it was done? Here we have eleven separate

"Now," says she, "if two of you will go into No. 1 bedroom and wait a few minutes, I'll find a spare room for you as soon as I have shown the others to their rooms." Well, now, having thus bestowed two gentlemen in No. I, she put the third in No. 2, the fourth in No. 3, the fifth in No. 4, the sixth in No. 5, the seventh in No. 6, the eighth in No. 7, the ninth in No. 8, the tenth in No. 9, the eleventh in No. 10." She then came back to No. 1, where you will remember she left the twelfth gentleman alone with the first, and said: "I have accommodated all the rest, and still have a room to spare, so if one of you will please step into No. 11 you will find it empty." Thus the twelfth man got his bedroom. Of course, there is a hole in the saucean somewhere, but we leave the reader to letermine exactly where the fallacy is, with ust a warning to think twice, before declaring as to which, if any, of the travellers was the "old man out."

KNOWLEDGE IS POWER. - THE TIMES claims credit for an article that appeared in The Weekly Guide of the 22nd of June, and has been extensively copied into other papers. We have looked over the fyles of THE TIMES and we fail to find any article under the above caption. What is the matter, Mr. TIMES? Are you sleepy or stupid, or both.—Guide.

There are a few inaccuracies in the above. THE TIMES did not claim credit for an article that appeared in the Guide of the 22nd of June: no such article from the Guide has been extensively copied into other papers; an article under the above caption did appear in THE TIMES on the 22nd of June. Furthermore, the Guide does not know what it is talking about; it is either sleepy or stupid, or both. The "Knowledge is Power" article of the Guide is not the same as the "Knowledge is Power" article of THE TIMES, and the one the Standard quoted was not from the Guide but from THE TIMES. Besides, the Guide's scissor fiend clipped his "Knowledge is Power" out of a paper where we noticed it previously. Knowledge is power, and that accounts for the feebleness of our cotem. Any further information we will furnish gratis.

One young gentleman, Cayley Max, did remarkwell, taking the prize for gen-proficiency, the bronze medal eral proficiency, the bronze medal given for good conduct, etc., and several other first prizes. Prominent among those present were: The Bishops of Tennessee, Niagara and Toronto; the Rev. Provost of Trinity College, the Chancellor of Trinity College; the Revs. Ven. Archdeacon Wilson, of Peterboro, and Jones, of Ottawa; Dr. Smithett, D. D., of Omemee, and 50 or 60 other prominent Church of England Col. Williams, T. M. Benson, clergymen. Esq., and several other laymen were also present. Singing by the chapel choir was interspersed, and at the short speeches were made by the Bishops of Tennessee, Toronto and Niagara and the Rev. Provost of Trinity College, Toronto. Three cheers were given for Bishop Ford of Tennesce, the Head Master and the Queen, when all dispersed.

On the day previous, Ordination ceremony was performed, the Rev. the Bishop of Teronto admitting to the Holy Order of Dencons Messrs. Simpson and Nichol, assistant teachers in Trinity College School.

THE GLORIOUS TWELFTH.

Departure of Port Hope Orangemen for Peterboro'.

THE CELEBRATION THERE.

From early morn the streets were gay with the bright colors of the Orangemen's regalia and that of the junior bodies. About 9 o'clock the procession was formed at the Orange Lodge rooms, at the foot of Walton street, and neaded by the Powmanville Furniture Co. Band, marched up Walton street to Brown street corner, and back again to the Midland depot. The following is the order of the procession:

Band, True Blues, Orange Young Britons. 'Prentice Boys.
And the various Orange Lodges.

Shortly after nine a special train, comprising 7 coaches and 6 flat cars, comfortably filled with living freight, steamed out from the station on their way to Peterboro'. The handsome regalia of the younger mem-bers of the Order, the cars decorated with green boughs, and the happy faces of all, formed a picturesque and animated scene. Two cars were filled with Cobourg Orangemen, and altogether between 700 and 800 people left Port Hope for the scene of the (Special by telegraph to THE TIMES.) PETERBORO', July 12 .-- The Midland train on its way from Port Hope, at the different stations, took on board a large number of the Orangemen of the rural lodges, and their friends, and on entering the station here was crowded excessively. On the ar-rival of all the lodges by the different lines of railway and steamboats, a procession of immense proportions was formed, and paraded the principal streets. There were over sixty stands of colors in the procession, five brass bands, and in-numerable fife and drum bands. The par-ade was the finest ever seen in this section. There never was a larger concourse of people in town, the number being estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000 people. The streets are completely jammed with men, women and children. The beau tiful arches built on the several corners of the main street are model ones, their construction being admirably planned. The Port Hope, Hope, and Cavan Lodges were, as usual, much admired for their neatness of uniform, and awarded the palm. After dinner the Orangemen assembled at the Agricultural Grounds, where rousing speeches were delivered by several distinguished Orangemen. Altogether the demonstration is the largest ever seen in Peterboro', and seldom surpassed elsewhere. The district lodges represented are those of Port Hope, Hope, Cavan, Manvers, Percy, Cobourg, Madoc, Otonabee, Lakefield and Norwood.

Boating, although not unusually lively, is kept up with a fair degree of activity. Conditions this season have been most favorable for the enjoyment of this favorite and healthful recreation.

A good deal of complaint is made concernng anchoring of small yachts in the centre of the stream just south of Mr. Cook's boat house. It gives a great deal of inconvenience in passing with boats and makes circumstances most favorable for frequent collisions.

Three or four vessels, owing to the present comparative slackness of the lumber trade, are unemployed. As soon as the green lumber begins to come in, they will enjoy their usual business activity.

The schooner with the load of stone necesry to sink the newly constructed portion of the west pier, came or was expected yesterday from Kingston. The rest of the stone needed will, we understand, be purchased in the vicinity of Port Hope, thus carrying out the policy all along pursued in the present work. of Port Hope for the Port Hopians.

In consequence of the stock of dry lumber in the north being, as is usual at this time of the year, about exhausted, there has been a considerable decrease in the amount exported. Still, comparatively speaking, the lumber trade is active, and will shortly be largely in-

A KISSING PARSON.

To steal a pin is a little sin, but to steal a kiss is regarded by church conferences and anxious parents as a grave offence. This kissing is a mania with some people, a sort of kleptomania or kissomania. So pronounced has it developed itself that even within the sacred precincts of our own town we have known, or rather heard of, those who would give a valuable diamond ring in exchange for a kiss from a pretty girl's lips. We have even heard of married men, who, at the risk of going around baldheaded and beardless, have stolen a kiss over the garden gate. Doubtless, however, these instances and others more flagrant still are familiar to many of our readers. A very prominent instance of this abnormal, or mayhap quite natural, desire has lately come to light in the person of the Rev. Mr. Willoughby, brother-in-law to a former highly-esteemed minister of Port Hope, Rev. W. H. Laird. We cannot see any great sin in connection with the practice ourselves, still it is alleged that the rev. gentleman has committed a very heinous sin by bestowing upon a young lady at divers times and places, "five alleged kisses." This occurred in Brampton, the young lady from whose lips the nectar was divinely sipped being then affiianced to Rev. J. E. Starr, of Peterboro', and now his wife. 'The matter was kept quiet for some time, but finally leaked out, and now a solemn investigation is going on in Brampton. The questions to be decided are: Did he kiss Julia? Why did he kiss Julia? and how often? It is reported that this same Rev. Mr. Willoughby kisses every young lady he can, no doubt considering it an innocent amusement and about the only diversion open to ministers. At one time he was proposed as successor to Mr. Laird, but whether his kissing propensities were too decided we cannot tell. In our fancy we can hear the pretty girls for whom Port Hope is noted, all crying out in chorus: The horrid creature! Why-didn't he come? For further particulars see daily papers, Ceaser, acting in his capacity as an officer of the Cruelty to Animals Association, stopped the driver of the watering cart on Walton street for driving a horse lacking a shoe on the hard pavement. The driver did not relish the idea of being so peremptorily ordered, and hesitated, whereupon the Dr. unhitched the horses from the waggon himself. It was a commendable action on the part of the Dr. who is ever mindful of the humane consideration we ewe to our faithful domestic animals. per ton, $7 to $8; potatoes, 600 to 65c.

Mr. Wrong conducted services in St. John's church last Sunday. His informal addresses to the congregation were generally admired, and bespeak talent of no ordinary degree as a minister of the Gospel. Capt. Paul Boyton, the world-renowned swimmer, who went 3,580 miles on a single voyage and has accomplished in all about 25,000 miles, is on a visit to Canada, where he will no doubt give a number of exhibitions of his prowess. He was in Port Hope on Thursday last, and had the misfortune to miss the Macdonald has retired from the city editorship of the Review. He is one of the best known newspaper men between Toronto and Belleville. His many friends regret his retirement."

Rev. T. W. Jeffrey preached his inaugural sermons last Sunday to large audiences. The reverend gentleman is strongly evangelical, and in his style somewhat resembles Spurgeon and in some respects Dr. Wild, of Toronto. His discourses are full of homely illustrations and striking aphorisms, which, with his zeal and unpretentious manner, will undoubtedly tend to make him very popular in Port Hope, as he has been in Cobourg and previous ap-
