DURHAM LODGE CELEBRATES THE SIXTY-THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF ODDFELLOWSHIP.

The History of the Society of "Three Links" in Canada.

"E'en times are in perpetual flux and run, Like rivers from their fountains rolling on; For time, no more than streams, is at a stay; The flying hour is ever on her way. And as the fountain still supplies her store, The wave behind impels the wave before; Thus in successive course, the minutes run, And urge their predecessor minutes on. Still moving, ever new; for former things Are laid aside, like abdicated kings; And ev'ry moment alters what is done, And innovates some act, till then unknown." -Dryden.

The celebration of anniversaries are always events of interest, and serve as valuable landmarks in the history of any institution. Oddfellowship begins with the real history of Canada, and its progrees has kept pace with that of the country it so early and vigorously associated itself with. As the entertainment in the Oddfellows' Hall on Wednesday evening of last week celebrated the 63rd anniversary of the founding of the Order, we have, from reliable documents at hand, compiled a brief history of its workings, particularly in Canada, and with special reference to Port Hope.

To all, or nearly all, the object of Oddfellowship is familiar. Synopsized, it

And wipe away the helpless orphan's tear. To form of men one wide-spread brother-

Linked only in the bonds of doing good. The early history is shrouded in a good deal of indefiniteness, no accurate details being on record up to about 1844. However, April 26, A.D. 1819, is put down as the date of the organization of Washington Lodge, No. 1, in Baltimore by Father Weildy. Manchester Unity, the parent Order, or one allied to Oddfellowship, had been started in England three years before, and a Halifax paper of 1847 speaks of a lodge which had existed in that city in 1815, thus giving us a Canadian one antedating the American three years. The continuous history dated from 1819, and up till 1842 the world knew but one sect, banded under the At that period the Americans broke away from the parent stem, a fact which has often been regarded as unfortunate for the brotherhood, but still not without its advantages. Becoming independent, the G. L. U. S. spread very rapidly. In Canada the soil was favorable, the banner once flung to the breeze of our free northern air, has never since been furled.

John Hardie and Geo. Matthews may be called the pioneer Oddfellows of Canada. Belonging to the order in the U.S. and coming to Montreal, in 1843, they established Prince of Wales, No. 1, the first, excepting the somewhat traditionary one of 1815 in Halifax, known in Canada. The venture seemed most prosperous from its inception, and the very next year, 1844, saw three lodges with a membership of 350. This year the first

Grand Lodge was instituted. Montreal at this time was the social. commercial and political capital of Canada, and of course was frequented by the most aristocratic of the land. Oddfellowship was fortunate enough to be introduced into good society, and thus secured a standing as respectable and for the respectable. Members of Parliament and others from the West found it fashionable to join, and thus the neuclus of a much larger growth found soil in Ontario. Lodge meetings were attended in full evening dress, and altogether the meetings of today are characterized by much less of impressement. Mr. E. Murney, then a prominent western man and the pioneer in Ontario, was the means of starting a lodge in Belleville in 1845, Ontario No. 6. In this year, also, the first Oddfellows' magazine was published, with the but lived only two years. In 1846 active steps were taken to extend the order in Western Ontario. Bros. Chas. Brodie, E. Murney and P. Dickson were appointed a deputation for this purpose and lodges were established all along the present line of the G. T. R., but there being no railroads then they had to coach it for 800 miles. Sir J. hn A. Macdonald was N. G. of the first lodge in Kingston. In March 1846, Ontario

No. 12 was formed at Cobourg, Messrs. Boulton, Clarke and Jackson, being the only Oddfellows there. The deputation went from there to Peterboro', then considered to be away in the backwoods, where Otonabee lodge was organized. The following extract from a report explains their success in Port Hope "After riding all day, and working nearly all night, it was not surprising that the missionaries should miss the stage and be compelled to hire a conveyance to Port Hope. There were no Odd Fellows in Port Hope then, but there seemed to be no difficulty in finding citizens willing to join the new society, the fame of which had gone on before. Four gentlemen chosen and initiated in short order were receiving the degrees and the Lodge instituted in the law office of Marcus F. Whitehead, Esq., Hope No. 14 stated APHER, Hickman, N. G.; M. F. Whitehead, V. G.; Geo. Ward, Sec.; H. H. Meredith, Treas., and Wm. Frazer, P. Sec." This cellent playing of tree accompanists, Mrs. for the amounts lost in previous years; was took place on Friday the 14th of March the next year Hope No. 14 had 62 active, contributing members.

In 1846 and 1847 this Order experienced a good deal of opposition from some portions of the press. The Montreal Witness, the Toronto Examiner and the London Times dealt some very heavy blows at Odd Fellowship. About the same time separation from the American order was agitated, and obtained, the G.L.U.S. granting their Canadian Brethren a charter of sovereignty.

The era of prosperity however did not last long as the novelty began to wear off the attendance on Port Hope lodge began to get thin. In April a prominent abscencion had an injurious effect, and on the 29th of May the lodge for the first time had to adjourn for want of a quorum. On the 19th of April 1849, the lodge disbanded entirely, after a good deal of effort on the part of a few to keep it afloat. The Noble Grands of Hope lodge in order, were: Dr. E. Hickman, M. F. Whitehead, Geo. C. Ward, Rev. J. Shortt, C. Hughes, Wm. Garnett, D. Smart, J. Smart, Wm. Frazer, and J. Hatton.

What was true of Hope lodge was true of almost every other lodge in Canada. About this time a wave of financial depression spread over the country and nearly every lodge in what was known then as Canada East, was disbanded. With the winding up of Montreal lodges ended the career of the Grand Lodge of British North America, and the few remaining in the country threw themselves again under the jurisdiction of the G. L. U.S. For a few years these struggled on, and while the Order seemed to have died out in the East it sprang up in the West living and thriving. In 1855 twelve lodges of Ontario formed themselves into the Grand Lodge of Canada West.

From that time onwards Odd Fellowship has grown and prospered, and to-day every town and city in Ontario and Canada has one or more lodges in a prosperous condition. A statement published in our issue of March the 21st gives a good idea of the affairs of the Order, as set forth by Mr. J. B. King, Grand Secretary of the Order in Ontario. In 1871 Durham Lodge, No. 78, I. O. O. F., was instituted in Port Hope. It, as all our readers are aware, still lives and at present is in a very flourishing state. It numbers 114 in membership and has assets to the extent of about $5,000. Since last year there has been an increase of 20 members, a very creditable showing. The Grand Encampment, a branch or higher order of Odd Fellowship, is also thoroughly established in connection. The growth of this in Port Hope is something remarkable. Last December there were 24 members, at the last meetting there were 64 members. Mr. D. B.

Deering occupies the position of Chief Patriarch of this branch of Odd Fellowship in town. The hall is one of the finest, i. c. in its furnishings and style, in Ontario, and the entertainment held there on Wednesday evening, to celebrate the anniversary of the Order was a fitting sequel to the history up to the present time. All available sitting room was taken advantage of, and still a large number were obliged to stand up, and in the ante-rooms. After the Opening Ode had been sung and prayer offered up by the chaplain, the cere-monies, by Mr. Hugh Walker N. G. and Mr. B. D. Deering acting V. G. was proceeded with. The programme opened with an intert mental duett, which was exceedingly well rendered by Mrs. Shepherd and Miss Chant, and throughout was a source of enjoyment to the audience. Miss Warner, whose abilities as a vocalist. are generally recognized in Port Hope sang two pieces, and in the last was loudly encored.

-No wintry skies can harm, Who only need'st to sing To make even January charm, And every season Spring.'

Mr. J. H. Rowland put the audience into fits of laughter over his "Irish Panorama," an originally compiled series of farces. In the role of Irishman he is complete, and certainly possesses the elements for a first-class comedian. The local hits were well pointed, and the reputation he has obtained for "being always good" was well sustained on this occasion.

The Misses Scrimgeur and Johnston sang two duetts which were received with rapturous applause and vociferous cries of 'encore!'

"Of linked sweetness long drawn out; The melting voice, through mazes running, Untwisting all the chains that tie The hidden soul of harmony.'

Mrs. Bowman, an old favorite as vocalist, charmed the audience with three or four selections being encored at each appearance.

'If sweetest sounds can win thine ear,

These sounds I'il strive to catch, Thy voice I'll steal to woo thyself, That voice that none can match.' -Graham of Claverhouse. The singing by Master Charlie and Miss Mabel Monaghan was very sweetly rendered. Although very young they sing with ease to the accompaniment of an instrument. "Fair flowers of nature

With sweet delight they warble Forth the songs of infancy.

Other enjoyable features of the programme was a reading, "Trouble in the choir," by Mr. H. White; a song by Mr. H. Hall; a recitation by Mr. H. Magill, and a song by Mr. E. Shepherd. Mr. H. V. Sanders whose name was on the programme was unable to attend on account of sickness.

The grand finale was a duett by Mrs. Bowman and E. Shepherd. It was certainly fine, the best evidence of its excellency being the hearty plaudits of the audience, and the vigorous encore, which latter was generously responded to. Mrs. Bowman possesses a voice of rare compass, and very sweet. We cannot omit a reference to the ex-

E. Shepherd, Mr. T. Singleton and Mr. J. Warner. Their skill is so well known in Port Hope, that further mention is unnecessary.

Taken altogether the occasion was one of the events of the season; a better pleased audience could hardly be found during the social season just closed, and the committee who had the arrangements in hand deserve all praise.

We hope that Durham Lodge may see many such pleasant anniversaries, and with Cowper, express the wish:

So may the rosy fingured hours Lead on the various year, And every joy, which now is yours, Extend a larger sphere.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, May 2, 1882. Present—The Mayor; Couns. W. G. Steven-son, H. A. Ward, H. H. Burnham, F. Beamish,

A. Winslow, W. McKee, J. G. King and E. Budge. A communication was received from Mrs. N. J. O'Meara, stating that about the mid-dle of March a letter had been sent to the Council asking for an appropriation to the Home, and that no notice had been paid to it. It was hoped the matter would be taken into consideration.

Coun. Stevenson would like to have something more explicit from the ladies of the Home. He did not think we should suppert people from Hope and other town-ships, besides if we once make a subsidy, it will be made a regular thing, and become a matter for all time to come.

Coun. King said he had made enquiries and found that no one was kept by the Home that was not a resident of the town. If the Home should be broken up several of its inmates would be thrown back on the town.

Coun. Burnham thought we should give the amount asked for. The ladies of the Home went to a great amount of inconvenience and self-sacrifice, and the least the Council could do would be to recognize their services.

Coun. Budge agreed with Coun. Burnham.

Coun. McKee said that he had been in the Home several times, and that he did not believe there was any one there who did not belong to Port Hope. It was only right to aid the ladies of the Home; he was sure it was necessary. The motion was carried.

Coun King introduced a By-law to amend certain clauses in By-law No, 293, to provide for the prevention of nuisances on streets, etc. The rules being suspended for the evening, the By-law received its first and second reading, and the Council, with Coun. Ward in the chair, went into committee of the whole to consider it.

The amended clauses of the By-law are as follows:-Whereas it is expedient to amend By-law No 293, of th By-law of the town of Port Hope, relating to the streets and sidewalks, and to repeal section nine of said By-law,

Therefore the Municipal Council, etc., enacts as follows:

1. That section nine of the said By-law be and the same is hereby repealed, and that the following sections be added to and shall form part of said By-law,

No. 293.

2. No person shall ride, drive, lead or back any horse, carriage, cart, wagon, sled, sleigh or other vehicle over or along any gravel, paved or planked sidewalk in the sait town, unless it be in crossing the same, where there is a proper crossing provided the same, where there is a proper crossing provided for that purpose.

3. No person shall distribute any hand-bills, dodgers or other such paper advertisements, by scattering, throwing or dropping the same upon or in any lane, street or sidewaik in the town of Port Hope.

4. No person shall sweep, throw or deposit any paper, shavings, sahes (unless properly spread on the street) or other dirt or waste, material or rubbish of any kind, or any garbage upon or in any lane, street or sidewalk in the town of Port Hope. Coun King said that the first clause was made necessary by the practice of people driving over sidewalks with loads where no crossings were provided, and thus destroying the plank and necessitating considerable expense in repairs. The Mayor thought the amendment very desirable. Coun. Burnham thought it was a little arbitrary. If a man wanted to cross a sidewalk, he would have to wait until a crossing was built.

The By-law passed in Committee, and received its final reading.

It was moved by Coun. Burnham, and seconded by Coun. Budge,-That the Treasurer be instructed to furnish the assessors with a list of all lots or parts of lots over which there had been any difficulty in previous years, in order that there might be no improper or indefinite assessment, so that no dispute as to taxes should arise. Coun, Burnham thought this resolution was necessary.

Coun. Stevenson said he could see no good in the motion. Mr. Burnham wanted to change the system of assessment for the town. The Treasurer's books show all that is necessary, and since he had started a new book no further difficulty would arise. He had every faith in the ability of the assessors.

Coun. Furnham-What was the reason | bride it not through the assessors?

Coun. Stevenson-No; it was through the Treasurer's books.
Coun. Ward had no doubt that amounts lost in past years had been through improper assessment. He would vote for the resolution. It was necessary, he thought, that the assessors should fully understand everything in connection with the assess-

Coun. Budge agreed with Coun. Ward.

No censure was intended.
Coun. King contended that the resolution did imply censure. Every night or so a resolution was brought up to further in-struct the assessors, which looked as though the assessors did not know their own busi-

Coun. Burnham did not think any censure was implied; it was simply asking that a list of those lots which had been in previous dispute, should be supplied them for their guidance. Instead of censuring the assessors, it was strengthening their hands. The Mayor said the only objection he had to the resolution, it gave more labor to the Treasurer than he was paid for. He does a great deal too much now for his salary. After some further discussion, the resolution was put, and the yeas and nays being called for the vote stood thus-Yeas-Ward, Burnham, Budge and Wins-

Nays-Stevenson, King, Beamish and McKee. The Mayor gave his casting vote in favor of the resolution, and it was carried. RICE LAKE ROAD. Coun. Beamish introduced the following Mored by Coun. Beamish, seconded by Coun. Winslow.—That in view of the wretched condition of the Rice Lake road, and the fact that it is highly detrimental to the business interests of this town to allow it to remain in its present state, it is absolutely necessary that steps should be taken at once to protect the interests of the town by having the road placed in a proper state of repair, and that with a view of having that done during the present summer, Couns. Pringle, Budge, King and the mover be a committee to make necessary enquiries as to what legal steps should be taken to enforce the proprietors to repair the road, or to make any other suggestions which they may think proper in order to remove the difficulties under which Port Hope now labors in regard to the condition of sa'd road, and report to the Council at its earliest possible convenience, and that sail committee wait on the township of Hope Council in regard to putting the boundary line in proper repair north of the limits of the gravel road.

He said the road was in such a wretched resolution:-

He said the road was in such a wretched It was moved by Coun. Ward, seconded by Coun. King,—That in lieu of the amount paid by the Council to the Home for the town that we would get if the road was town that we would get if the road was good. He knew one farmer that would have brought 1200 bushels of wheat here only for the impassable state of the roads.

Coun. Burnham said he could not see much use in the resolution. (Coun. Stevenson smiled audibly at this.) The law points out the remedy. Any ratepayers could lay a complaint. A deputation to Hope Council might do some good by urg-ing upon them the necessity of fixing the boundary line between Hope and Hamilton. The gravel road was not so bad as the road beyond for three or four miles.

The Mayor said that he had travelled over these roads a number of times, and he knew just how bad they were. His opinion was that none of the gravel roads were in a fit condition to charge toll on.

Resolution carried. Coun. Ward referred to a petition from Capt. McLean, of East Durham Field Battery. It was the intention to send a Canadian team to Shrewburyness this year, and as East Durham Field Battery had the honor of possessing the crack shot of the Dominion, they wanted to send him. Capt.
McLean asked for the sum of $3 for this purpose. Newcastle and other municipalities were helping, and he thought it was very desirable, we should do our share.

The amount was voted without any dis-

Coun. Budge drew the attention of the Council to street watering in the west end. Coun. King explained the route decided on for the watering cart. He said if they were to water the streets everywhere as asked for, they would have to employ another cart, and charge frontage tax, as it was not fair to have the whole town pay to have certain streets only, watered. Couns. McKee, Burnham and Budge somewhat deprecated the present system, and thought that the watering was not as well done as last year. Council then adjourned.

A STRANGE CHARACTER.

BY CARL RAYMOND.

One evening, during the progress of the war of the Revolution in America, an old woman, living in the suburbs of Portsmouth, England, was summoned to her door by a knock, and, on opening it, found herself confronted with an old man, poorly dressed, with a bundle in his hand, such as travelers of his class frequently carried on their pedestrian tours. "Madam," he said, respectfully,

I get to lodge here to night?" "It aren't my business to take lodgers," replied the mistress of the house, scanning the applicant closely by the light

she held in her hand. "I s'pose not, madam-but I'm a poor man, and want shelter somewhere. "Well, why don't you go to an inn?

there's plenty of them in town.' "Just because I'm poor, and can't afford to pay as much as they'd ask. I've got a little money, only a little, and I want to make it go as far as I can. I'm willing to pay you what's reasonable; and then I'd save something, I'm thinking."

"Who are you? where do you belong? and what's your business?"
"I'm called John the Painter, and that explains my business, and I belong anywhere where I happen to be. If you're as if discussing some remarkable eventnot satisfied with this answer, why, good and mounted men, both military and night to you, and I'll trudge on to try my chance somewhere else. The old woman, who was poor herself, and lived alone, in a small, crazy, old house, thought she might as well gather in a few pennies, by keeping the traveler, as to let some of her neighbors do it; and so, after a little reflection, she rejoin-

"I s'pose I can keep you, if, as you say, you'll pay me what's reasonable-for, like you, I'm poor, too, and can't afford to do it for nothing. Come in and sit down—you look tired. I s'pose you want supper?"

carelessly threw his hat and bundle down beside him.

For the half hour that the mistress of the house was busied in preparing his supper, the traveler seeemed deeply absorbed in matters of his own, and scarcely once took his eyes from the fire, or changed his position. At first the old woman glanced at him furtively, with an air of ordinary curiosity, and occasionally ventured some common-place remark; but finding he made no reply took no notice of her presence, and even seemed not to hear her, she became bolder in her manner, and two or three times stopped near him, staring directly into his face,

He appeared to be between sixty and seventy years of age, had gray hair, a stern, pinched face, a large nose, thin, compressed lips, and cold, staring eyes, the expression of which was far from pleasing, and which was not redeemed by anything else in his countenance. In fact, he seemed like a man not at peace with himself or the world, and who was either then brooding over some committed crime or some contemplated revenge.

"There, sir, your supper's ready, if you want it," at length spoke the mistress, in a half querulous tone, as if offended that none of her previous remarks had been noticed.

The strange traveler took no heed, but still sat staring at the fire.

"I say your supper's ready, if you want it hot, you'd better eat it before it gets cold ; for I'll not warm it again, this blessed night, for you nor nobody else!" cried the hostess, in an angry tone. Still no movement-no response-no indication that her unmusican voice was even heard. "I say!" she half-screamed in his ear. at the same time taking hold of his arm rather rudely.

Like a bol he sprung from his seat and confronted her, his eyes looking wild and wicked.

"Good Lord, man, don't scare a body so!" exclaimed the woman, taking two or said, they concluded to arrest him and three quick, backward steps, and turning pale with fright. "I'm only trying to so, and there he was confronted with the make you understand your supper's

The stranger glared at her for a moment, then glanced at the table, and then seemed to comprehend the true facts. "Oh! ha! yes!" he replied, with a grim smile. "I beg your pardon!-it's likely you've spoke to me before!" "It's like I have, a hafc-a-dozen times. just as I might have talked to a post!" "Yes, madam, I see-I thank you-I beg your pardon! I was busy thinking, nd forgot where I was." He then took his seat at the table, and, while eating his supper, tried to make amends for his former impolite abstraction, by making himself as agreeable as possible. He succeeded to well in his efforts to please, that the mistress of the house became quite charmed with his conversation, and began to think he might possibly be an angel in disguise-or, in other words, a rich and eccentric old gentleman, whom good fortune had thrown in her way for a future husband or possible legacy.

But the bright hopes did not leave a long duration-for scarcely had the stranger finished his meal, than he suddenly grew cold, tacitorn and abstracted, and presently asked to be shown to his bed. If he slept soundly, the mistress of the house did not for after the dispelling of the bright fancy of future wealth, she London, where he underwent a close ex-

began to fear that the stranger might take a notion to shorten her life before morning, and so lay awake and listened, and trem'led at every unusual sound. The night, however, passed off without any disturbance; and at daylight the old man rose and went out, leaving his bundle behind. Scarcely was he out of sight before the curiosity of his hostess set her to work to see if she could gather any new facts.

If he had left a trunk, instead of a bundle, she would probably have found a way to open and rummage it; but as it was, she had only to untie an old, dirty handkerchief; and there, before her eyes lay a shirt, a pair of stockings, and a tin box—s curious-looking tin box—for which, unfortunately for her case of mind, she could not imagine any use. She held it up, turned it over, shook it, and tried her best to see in it, and conjecture for what purpose it was made; but not being able to do this, she at length resigned it with a sigh, rolled it up as she had found it, tied up the, bundle, and went about her own business.

John the Painter came back to a late breakfast, and then settled with the curious widow for all he had had of her, at the same time remarking that he might possibly remain in town another night, in which case he hoped he would be permitted to return and pass another night under her hospitable roof.

To this she now readily gave consent, again thinking him a man of some conse-

He then inquired where he could find a tinman; and receiving the proper direction to one, he bade her good-bye and started off, this time taking his bundle with him.

Toward evening, however, he came back, and said he had concluded to stay another night in town, and wanted supper, which the widow again prepared for

He ate this meal in silence, and soon after made some excuse to go out.

He was absent some two or three hours; and when he returned he reported that there was quite a large fire, which he understood to be in some government buildings that he feared would be consumed.

"But blessed are the poor!" he added, with a strange kind of a laugh, which his hostess afterwards recalled; "for they have nothing to lose."

He then went to bed, and appeared to rest well through the night, but rose at the first streak of did his reckoning, and took his departure saying he should not return.

On going out, an hour or two latter, the widow was surprise to see the usually quiet town of Portsmouth in great commotion-groups collected here and there, civil, dashing hither and yon, all seeming hurried and anxious. On every blank wall, too, there was a flaming placard, announcing the startling fact that a hundred thousand pounds worth of naval stores had been destroyed by incendiar-ism, that secret emissaries of the enemy were suposed to be in their midst, offering large rewards for the arrest and conviction of the guilty, and ordering all citizens to repport to the nearest magistrate the names of all strangers who had lodged in townduring the last three days, and more especially the last night.

As soon as the widow fairly understood "Yes, if you please," said John the this matter, she hastened to give in the Painter, as he walked in and took a seat name of John the Painter, with a descripnear the fire, upon which he fixed his tion of his person, manner, conversation, eyes somewhat abstractedly, while he and, withal, his curious tin box and visit to the tinman. The latter was immediately sent for, and deposed that he had made a top for the box, which seemed to be a curious affair, the use of which he did not know.

All this fully fixed suspicion upon the eccentric old man; and as it was supposed he had been despatched from town to some distant point by relays of horses, horsemen were sent off in every direction in hot pursuit, with orders to arrest every mounted person they might find.

Somewhere about mid-day John the Painter was overtaken, on the regular London road, by one of these mounted parties, who stopped and inquired if any one had passed him on horseback that morning. "Not a soul," replied the old man. "How long have you been on this road?"

"Since daylight. Why?" "There was a great destruction of naval stores in Portsmouth last night, the work of some infernal incendiary, and we want to catch the villain."

"Well, do you s'pose he fled on horseback?" said the old man, with a peculiar twinkle of his eyes. "Undoubtedly."
"Well, he didn't—he went on foot."

"Ha! how do you know?"

"Because I know the man who did it." "Who is he? where is he?" demanded the leader, excitedly. "He's called John the Painter, and he's here. I'm the man." "Take care how you jest, old fellow!" returned the other, warningly; "it might get you into trouble."

"If you can't understand plain English, you're as big a fool as your royal master is knave!" said the old man, with an angry sneer. "I tell you I'm the man that did it-and I'm the man that glories in it-and if you don't believe me, ride on and hunt till you get sense!" The horsemen now thought the old man was crazy; but, after what he had take him back to Portsmouth. They did old woman and the tinman, both of whom identified him as the mysterious stranger they had described.

He was then asked to make a confession and name his accomplices.

"I never had any accomplices," said the old man, indignantly. "What I did, I did alone, and I glory in it. Lonce lived peaceably and happily in the quiet little town of Amboy, State of New Jersey, far away over the great waters: and I'd been living peaceably there today, if the minious of King George had let me alone; but they came there, and insulted and abased me, and burned down my dwelling, and cast me adrift to shift for myself-and then I took a solemn oath I'd be revenged. It was my first intention to kill your vile king; and I'd have done it, only for Mr. Dean, our secret minister at Paris, who convinced me it was wrong to slay the Lord's Anointed; and so, as the next best thing, I determined to burn as much of the king's property as I could. I came direct from Paris here, and you know what I've done since I got here, and that's enough. I know you'll hang me for it-but I don't care for that. I'm a poor, friendless, old man, made nick of life by your accursed deads; and note, that I've got my revenge,

I don't care how soon I dia.' They sent the old man, under guard, to no new facts were elicited. He strictly adhered to his first statement; and, mainly on his own evidence, or confession, he was tried, convicted, sentenced, and hanged.

We have only to add, that the foregoing may be relied on as strictly authentic.

The Aryan Invasion of Europe. BY JOHN PISKE.

In very recent times-probably not more then twenty centuries before Christ-Europe was invaded by a new race of men, coming from central Asia. These were the Aryans, a race tall and massive in stature (the men averaging at least 5 feet 8 inches, and the women 5 feet 3 inches), with "Brachycephalic" or round and broad skulls, with powerful jaws and prominent eyebrows; with faces rather equare or angular than oval: with fair, ruddy complexions and blue eyes, and red or flaxen hair. Of these, the earliest that came may perhaps have been the Latin tribes, with the Dorians and Ionians; but the first that made their way through western Europe to the shores of the Atlantic were the Gael, or true Kelts. After these came the Kymry; then the Teutons; and finally—in very recent times, near the beginning of the Christian era—the Slavs. These Aryan invaders were further advanced in civilization then the Iberians, who had so long inhabited Europe. They understood the arts which the latter understood, and, besides all this, they had learned how to work metals; and their invasion of Europe marks the beginning of what archaeologists called the Bronze Age, when tools and weapons were no longer made of polished stones, but were wrought from an alloy of copper and tin. The great blonde Aryans everywhere overcame the small brunette Iberians, but, instead of one race exterminating or expelling the other, the two races everywhere became commingled in various proportions. In Greece, southern Italy, Spain, and southern France, where the Iberians were most numerous as compared with the Aryan invaders, the people are still mainly small in stature and dark in complexion. In Russia and Scandinavia, where there were very few Iberians, the people show the purity of their Aryan descent in their fair complexion and large While in northern Italy and nothern France, in Germany and the British Islands, the Iberian and Aryan statures and complexions are intermingled in endless variety. - May Atlantic.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.) WASHINGTON, D. C., April 22, 1882. The Academy of Sciences is again holding

ts annual session in Washington. The Academy consists of a number of college professors and specialists in particular branches of learning. Some of them are distinguished in their way, but not more learned or distinguished than hundreds of others who stay at home, and are independent of gratuitous advertising. Tennyson says: "The man of science himself is fonder of glory and vain; an eye well practiced in Nature, a spirit bounded and poor." Few men are content to know and be unknown. Talmage and Ingersoll neutrally advertise each other. Barnum gets an elephant for a cheap advertisement, and the press of the United States tumble to his racket. Now I am not disapproving advertising. I know it to be a good thing. But I like to see honest advertising paid for at so much a square. And I dislike dead-beat advertising, such as the Academy of Sciences and Barnum get. What is the use of these scientists coming here with their heavy papers and esoteric knowledges, making speeches to a score or two of people, half of whom don't know what they are talking about They say they come for an exchange of views. Exchange of humbug! Give them leave to print. Everything that is worth knowing is in print, and can be reached in much better formulated shape than when Professor Palalozoic speaks it through his nose. The truth is that "the art preservative of all arts" has abolished the lecturer's chair, the hustings, the pulpit. These still lag, but they are superflous, cumbersome, expensive antiquities with no raison d'etre. Why should a man stand in an uncomfortab'e hall and listen to a political speech when he can have the pleasure of reading the same to his wife and her mother at an expense of from one to five cents. But it may be said that if there were no audience at the hustings, there would be no speeches to print, or to read to one's wife and motherin-law. Now, this is precisely the millerinm that your corr spondent is trying to bring about. Instead of the frantic speeches of agitators, we would have the well-studied. carefully-written articles of thinkers, sifted and written all the more carefully from a knowledge that, unlike the evenescent folly that comes from the mere orator, they must go down in black and white, and stand for criticism and judgment. I would not be understood to assert that, as a rule, printed matter is sounder than spoken matter, and that the thinking which is compulsory in writing restrains a riot of words and imagination. Moreover, written matter that is not editorial is usually subjected to wholesome censorahip before it gets into print; for example, the editor after reading this article, may say: "This is no Washington letter, there is nothing in it about Washington; for all the information it furnishes about national affairs and legislation, it might as well have been written in Alaska." But he may reflect that the last has been a dull week at the National Capital; that Congress has done nothing but make speeches: that the President has confined his energy to a reception, a visit to the Naval Academy, and audiences to members and senators seeking offices for their friends; that the Departments have not departed from the grooves of routine; and that it is impossible to write a Washington news letter when there is no news.

A Wonderful Substance.

The Chicago Western Catholic says: "It is indorsed by Bishop Gilmour, of Cloveland, Ohio, and by some of our most honored and respected priests throughout the country who have used it for rheumatics with success where all other remedies failed. We refer here to St. Jacobs Oil. We know of several persons in our own circle who are suffering with that dreadful disease, rheumstism, who tried everything and spent hundred of dollars for medicine which proved of no benefit. We advised them to try St. Jacobs Oil. Some of their laughed at us for faith in the 'patent stuff," they chose to call it. Howver, we induced them to give it a trial, and it accomplished its work with such a magiclike rapidity that the same people are now its strongest advocates, and will not be without i in their houses on any account. Mr. Joel D. Harvey, U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue, of this city, has spent over two thousand dollars on medicine for his wife, who was suffering dreadfully from rheumatism, and without deriving any benelit whatever; yet two bottles of St. Jacobs Olf accomplished what the most skillful lical men failed in doing. We could give the names of hundreds who have been cured by this wenderful remedy, did space permit The latest man who has been made happy through the use of this valuable liniment is Mr. James A. An Old, Old Story.

C-o-m-e in! Well I declare, stranger, you gave me quite a turn! I-I-was kind of expectin' somebody, and for half a minute I thought mebbe as 'twas her, but she'd never stop to knock; want a bite and a sup and a night's lodgin'? Why, of course; sit down, do. I-a-most forgot to ask you, I was that flustrated. Poor soul! how tired and worn-out you look! I can make you comfortable for the night and give you a good meal of victuals and a shake-down on the floor, but I would h-a-r-d-l-y like to put you in Lizzie's room-she was that particular, and your clothes are so wet and drabbled. Why, woman, what makes you shake so-ague? Never heard tell of any in these parts. Guess you must have brought it with you. Well, a good night's rest will set you up wenderfully, and you can lie right here by the stove, and the fire a smolderin' will keep you warm, and the light will be a burnin' till its broad day—broad

What do I keep the light a-burnin' for? Well, now, when folks asks me that, some-times I tells them one thing and sometimes I tell them another. I don't know as I mind tellin' you, because you're such a poor, misfortunit creetur, and a stranger, and my heart kind of goes out to such. You see I have a daughter. She's been away those ten years, has Lizzie, and they do say as she's livin' in grandeur in some furrin' place, and she's had her head turned with it all, for she never lets her poor old mother hear from her, and the fine people she's with coaxed her off unbeknownst to me, and I don't mind telling you as it was a great shock to me, and I ain't the same woman since Lizzie went out one night, and when fhe kissed me said, "Leave a light in the window, mother, till I come back;" and that was ten years ago, and I've never seen her since, but I've burned a light in the window every night these ten years, and shall till she comes home. Yes, it's hard to be a mother and be disappointed so. I allowed she was dead till folks, as seen her well and splendid, told me different, and I was sick a long time-that's what made my har so white-but I hope she never heard of it, 'twould have made her as miserable as was, and her fine things wouldn't have been much comfort to her! Folks blame her terribly, but I'm her mother, and it just seems as if I could see her; so pretty, with her long brown curls, and the smile she had, and her gentle ways, and I loving her better than Heaven above me! This is my punishment-to sit alone all day and never to sleep at night, but I hear her crying "Mother mother! where are you?" and if I go once, I go a dozen times to the door, and look up and down the lonesome road and call, "L-i-z-z-i-e! L-i-z-z-i-e!" and there's never any answer but the night wind mosning in the trees!

Well, I didn't mean to make you feel bad don't cry, poor soul! You've had enough trouble of your own, guess, by your looks. You're hands are like ice-and your temple and your face is white and-and-why, what is this? You are not old and your hair hangs in brown curls-and your eyes-Merciful God! it's Lizzie come back to her mother-it's my child that was lost and is found-put out the light-put out the light, for the night is over and it's the clear, broad day at last!

Russian Christianity versus Modern Judaism.

Miss Emma Lazarus replies, in the May Century, to Madame Ragozin's paper in the April number on "Russian Jews and Geniles," and says in part:

Let us first disabuse our readers of the sophistical distinction made by Mme. Ragozin, in common with many other writers, between the "two kinds of Jews," and the idea that "a vast dualism essentially characterizes this extraordinary race." Behind this subtle error lurk all the dangers that have threatened the existence of the people. for whatever calumnies be refuted by a Jewish spokesman, the answer is ever ready: These changes do not apply to you, and such as you. But how can you be sure that such outrages are not committed by some barbarous sect of your tribe?" Now, we can be sure of the Jews—more so, perhaps, than of any other people in the world, their history being the oldest among civilized nations, their social and moral code having remained unaltered through all time, and the viciesitudes of their fate having exposed them to almost every test which can affect individual or national character. The dualism of the Jews is the dualism of humanity; they are made up of the good and the bad. May not Christendom be divided into those Christians who denounce such outrages as we are considering, and those who commit or apologize for them? Immortal genius and moral purity, as exemplified by Moses and Spinoza, constitute a minority among the Jews, as they do among the Gentiles, but here ends the truth of the matter, Facts disprove even the plausible theory that, where Judaphobia has longest prevailed. there has been a corresponding fundamental degeneracy in the race, for their suppleness and elasticity seem almost without bounds. From the identical conditions which Mme. Ragozin describes in Russia as fatal to the moral and intellectual development of the Jews (the internal restrictions of the kahal and the cramping tyranny of external laws) sprang in G-rmany, as soon as a breathing-place was opened, the generation of Moses Mendelssohn and his gifted family, including Felix, Fanny, Hensel and Dorothea Schlegel, Heine the poet, Edward Ganz, Ludwig Borne, Doctor Zunz, Rahel von Ense, Henrietta Herz, and others. And today, after little more than fifty years of enfranchisement, the German Christians are usurping the intellectual, political and financial control of the state.

"It is not the Jews of the Bible, but the Jews of the Talmud, to whom we object,' assert the Russians, and the unitiated Gentile is willing to believe that the Talmud is but a compendium of barbarous laws and puerile catch-words; consequently that its votaries must be a peculiarly degraded, narrow and obnoxious set. The truth is that all (orthodox) Jews with whom Americans and Europeans are acquainted are Talmudists. The Talmud is, in great part, a modification of the barbarous injunctions contained in the Bible, which continues to be also one of the text-books of Christendem Many of the most ridiculous, hair splitting subtleties of the Talmud are simply hitroduced for the purpose of rendering impos sible the fulfilment of harsh Scriptural commandments. .

As every one knows, the bulls favor higher prices, the bears lower prices.

The former go long of the market, that is they buy stocks with the expectation that they will advance, but the bears go short of the market, expecting prices will go lower, so that they can make money by delivering stocks at a cheaper rate than at which they sold them. On the 1st of January, 79, to the 2nd of July, '81, when President Garfield was shot, the bulls had the markets of the country pretty much to themselves. Property of all kinds advanced in price, and the bulls made vast fortunes. But the whole aspect of things has changed since last summer. A shorter crop not only gave the the bull movement a pause, but began to send down prices, and the difference in 1881, and March, 1882 is something enormous. The sum total represents hundreds of millions of dollars. The bulls are now praying for a great grain and cotton crop during the coming barvest season. ALWAYS AT A PREMIUM. To this "fifth quarter of the globe," as an Irish writer has called, the mother country sends many things its people do not want, and the consequences too frequently are an overstocked market and a depressed trade. From this category we beg leave, however, to exclude two articles—the two celebrated remedies of Professor Holloway. Throughout Australasia they are at a premium. The Pills and Ointment are considered the most proand Ointment are considered the most profitable commodities that can be taken to the diggings, as their efficacy in the diseases common in the gold region is well known to every nugget-hunter, and there are therefore eagerly bought up at any price by those toilers of the "mammon of unrighteousness." For bilious fevers and all disorders of the liver and bowels which prevail on the auriferious soils of the interior, the Pills appear to be a positive, immediate and invariable cure. We have seen returned gold hunters from the "diggings," and their reports on this head are uniform. Nor is the testimony less conclusive in relation to the Ointment as a means of reflecting rhoumatism and necessary and distribute the month of the file time of the file of the month of the to be a positive, immediate and invariable cure. We have seen returned gold hunters as a means of relieving rheumatism and neuralgus, and healing the wouds, abrasions, contusions, &c., incident to a hard life in the wilderness. In short, every one in "the bush" looks upon Holloway's two preparations as a sufficient medicine chest for all the disorders of his outer and inner man, He knows, for he has wintered them and summered with them beyond the settlements and they are his surest reliance in sickness at all seasons and under all circumstances. Almost every digger has some anecdote to relate of the cures they have performed. Limbs saved from mortification, ulcers preserved from gangrene, contracted joints relaxed, liver disease arrested, dysentery and diarrhea cured-these are their trophies. In fact they are among the good things of which we cannot have too much, and although the imports at present are so large as almost to be incredible, still the demand keeps in advance of the supply. Furnished with these remedies the digger and the settler have little need of medical advice, for it seems beyond question that their curative effec's cover the whole circle of diseases and a large portion of the chapter of accidents. Of what use is success to the digger if, when fortune is achieved, he die beside his hoard? and how many lives that were sacrificed in the early days of the gold discoveries might have been saved by these inestimable preparations.—The Digger.

Address, JAMES WALLWORTH DAVIS,

DARWIN.

In 1859 when Darwin published his famous treatise. The Origin of species by means of natural selection in which he propounded the then improbable theory in his bold and philosophic way, that all the numerous forms of vegetable and animal life, past or present, have been produced by a series of gradual changes from parent to offspring, a whirlwind of criticism from scientist and theologian circled about his ears. The carica urist was busy for many a year after depicting the man with the tail in embryo; stage burleaque writers introduced satires on the new theory; humorists sought applause by twitting their follows anent their imputed ancestry; not more than one lecture out of a hundred was free from some illusion to Darwinism; and there is scarcely a man living who has not been, at some time or other, facetious-Jy referred to as "the missing link," even yet the joke has not become too stale to be of service. Notwithstanding all this the theory at that time promulgated, is now, under the more inviting name of "evolution" the, theory most confirmed by meen of science. The doctrine did not originate with Darwin entirely, but flitting around as a visionary idea was taken hold of by this scientist, and all but demonstrated in its minutiae. Prof. Huxley has been one of his most noted disciples, while Herbert Spencer, one of the clearest minded men of the age, has adapted the theory of evolution to all departments of life, not only physical, but moral and psychological, and made himself the mest famous of modern philosophers, Darwin not excepted. Stripped of the many prejudices which surround it, and relieved of the vulgarities which narrow minded critics associated it wish, the doctrine of Natural Selection is not the intrinsic herery many would lead us to believe. Still, it is only in justice to its opponents to say that the evidence in its favor can never amount to absolute proof, and can but become, at most, a plausible theory. Prof. Robert Owen and Prof. Dawson are scientists who ably maintain opinions opposed to Darwinism.

It is on the score of antagonism to the Bible that the greatest objection has been taken to Darwin's writings, but, he himself was able to reconcile his belief with religious teachings, as he was known to be a member of his parish church. O her eminent men, such as Tyndall and Huxley have also been able to recognize supernatural agency in the origin of species. Apart from the teachings which have made him famous as a philosopher, Darwin was one of the closest students of nature, observing every phenomenon continuous activity, research, and productiveness. At his death which occurred last Thursday, he left to the world a shining name and inestimable treasures theory, Darwinism, which will stand out | ried. prominently as the production of the greatest mind of a great age—great, not commissioner to purchase for use on the account of its moral significance, but bec-use of the sublime ingenuity involved, and the sweep of its orbit.

Darwin was born in 1809. His grandfather was the celebrated naturalist, Erasmus Darwin. He graduated as B. A. in 1832, and at twenty-two accompanied around the world the exploring expedition. of Capt. Fitzroy, so familiar to many of our readers. His works with respective dates are as follows: "Journal of Researc es into the Geology and Natural History" of the countries visited in the voyage referred to; "The Structure and D stribution of Coral Reefs," 1842; "Origin of Species by means of Natural Selection," 1859; "Fertilization of Orchids," 1862; "Descent of Man and Selection in relation to Sex," 1871; "The Expression of Emotions in Man and Animals," 1872; "Movements and Habits of Climbing Plants, and Insectivorous Plants," 1875; "Cross and Self Fertilization in the Vegetable Kingdom," 1876; "Different forms of Flowers in Plants of the same Species," 1877; this year his work on "Worms" their habits, etc. His last, referred to before, although more particular than general in its scope, promulgates a theory not less novel than his famous work of 1859, and requiring not less observation and research to establish

His teachings have almost revolutionized science, and gave scientists a keynote whereby new principles have been dis covered, and the philosophy of the origin of matter entirely changed.

Mr. Darwin intended visiting America this year, and had he lived he would have been the most interesting figure in the meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, in 1883. Death took him before he had completed his plans, but not until he had made contributions to knowledge not surpassed in importance since the days of Aris-

ST. NICHOLAS FOR MAY is a phenomenal issue in regard to both the quality and the number of its illustrations. There are, in all, sixty-eight pictures, eleven of them fullpage engravings. One of its twenty pictures is a full-page engraving of a New York bootblack, from the painting by W. M. Chase. The electric light forms the subject of a timely descriptive paper, with many pictures, showing the appearance of the lamps by day and night, and under various circumstances of weather.

THE MAY CENTURY presents the third of the five covers designed by Mr. Vedder, the chief items of which are the figure of a young girl (Spring) with sunlight, flying bird, and a frame of blossoms, the three appropriate signs of the zodiac being combined as before in a medallion at the left, and the blossoms are carried up into the borders of the title. "Car-American publishers, Messers. Estes & lyle in Ireland," from the recently discovered MS., is interesting and valuable for the light it sheds upon Carlyle in 1849, as well as upon the Ireland of last year. The first part records the passage from London to Dublin, and thence via Kildare the Kilkenny. The original text is given, and it abounds with Carlyleism of characterization, opinion, and style. Miss Emma Lazaru's reply to Mme. Ragozin's attack upon the Jews in the last number has special significance as coming from a Jewess, and throws another kind of light on the anti-Semetic movement in Rus-

To the Electors of the East Riding of Durham. GENTLEMEN,

Some of my friends in different parts of the Riding having informed me that it has been rumored that it is not my intention to offer myself as a Candidate for the House of Commons at the next General Election, I beg to announce that with the approval of those who did me the honor of selecting me as their Representative at the last election, I will again have the honor of placing my services at their disposal whenever an appeal to the people shall be made.

ARTHUR T. H. WILLIAMS,

AND COUNTY OF BURHAM BRITISH CAHADIAN.

Port Hope, Thursday, May 4, 1882,

COL. WILLIAM'S CANDIDATURE.

Col. Williams is passing through an ordeal at the present time which forms one of the worst features of our political system. He is being belittled and villified with the same venom which has characterized his the past, so it will in the present instance. A few have relentlessly pursued him with a devilish persistency, with false accusations and half-told truths, in order if possible to make the electors of this Riding change their good opinion of him. Thus far the effort has signally failed, and we believe will fail, for the electors of East Durham have known Colonel Williams personally from childhood-they know he has at all times been willing to do his best to aid his fellow citizens in anything likely to benefit them individually and collectively, and they will not believe infamous falsehoods, actively circulated by a few who would sacrifice their right arm could they but inflict a crushing blow to his good name. The fruitlessness of their efforts but whets the ferocious hatred of these cormorants, and they knash their teeth in impotent rage. Let them keep on:-Col. Williams has been used to this vile treatment for years, and every occasion he comes before the people he has the satisfaction of learning by the large majority by which he is elected that the fair and honorable portion of the community do not believe the calumnies of his enemies, and choose him as their representative in preference to any one his opponents can bring against him. It is little wonder they feel it is hopeless to oppose Col. Williams. They know as long as he is a candidate no person in the constituency or outside of it can defeat him, and their efforts to destroy him can the more readily be understood and appreciated. No slander is too vile for them-no misrepresentation too contemptible, but the people of East Durham are too obtuse to give credence to them. The widely-circulated falsehood that Col. Williams would not be a candidate again has brought a direct denial in the publication of his card, and those who were industriously circulating the story are unmasked. They have shown their hand too soon, and will not have much success with the next lie their ingenuity concocts. Beyond a doubt. Col. Williams will be the successful candidate in the approaching contest, and that,

POLICE COURT .- Thos. Garner, of Oshawa, was up yesterday morning before the Police Magistrate on a charge of stealing a calker's 14 Skilled Musicians 14 hammer from Capt. Wm. Manson. Garner 20 Selected Specialists 20 is a sailor belonging to the Ida Walker, and is highly spoken of by Captain Allen. The charge was clearly proven against him, but His Worship, considering that he was under the influence of liquor at the time, let him off with 24 hours imprisonment in the lockup. The Cameron case, in which the little girl referred to before is accused of pecket-Watch for the Great Street Parade picking, also came up, but was granted a still further extension.

A SELFISH TOWN.

All through the history of the Midland Railway, the people of the town of Peterboro' have been the one element of discord the management have never been able to please. Some cause for grumbling has always been found, -either the rates were too high, the interest on the amount due by the railway to the town was in arrears, passenger fares were not low enough, some nabob citizen could not have the trains run quite to suit his couvenience, the station-buildings were not gorgeous enough, the head offices of the road were in Port Hope instead of Peterboro', &c., &c., and the Peterboro' press overflowed with indignation and denunciation of the officials from the President down. Since Mr. Cox has been at the head of the Railway, though many concessions have been made, for which it might be surmised the people of Peterboro' would evince at least some gratitude, the same selfish complaint is going on. Not contented with having the best station on the line, and the head offices and officials in their midst, there is a continual grasping for something more. The work-shops are still in Port Hope, and this is very galling to the average citizen of our sister town. They keep crying out-"we must have the work-shops"and we are only surprised they have not ere this come out in their might and carried them bodily away. The interests of the Midland Railway are not of the slightest consequence to these people, who can only see and heed their own selfish desires, but fortunately Mr. Cox and his colleagues can neither be bullied ner driven into compliance with their unreasonable demands. The debt due by the railway to Peterboro' is ever kept threateningly over Mr. Cox's head, though, if the town's extravagant demands were complied with, the grumbling would not cease. Give them the work-shops and they would ask for something else. Port Hope's many sacrifices for the railway are naught in the estimation of these people, and it is a pity they cannot tow our harbor out and auchor it in the Otonabee. Selfishness in a people is as paltry as it is in an individual, and we would recommend the citizens of Peterboro' to be satisfied with the large slice of the patronage of the Midland Railway they at present possess, and be above begrudging the small advantage Port Hope still retains in the work shops here, which cannot be removed by the Company without a great sacrifice of money and convenience. The press of Peterboro' admit the outlay of the Midland Railway has increased, since the removal of the head offices there, at least $10,000 per month, and that through the cheap Saturday fares many people go opponents ever since his entry into public | there to make their purchases. Surely life, but as their mud has failed to stick in they ought to be contented with this, when they consider how little they have contributed to bring about the present prosperous condition of the road. We give below a lengthy extract from the Examiner of last week, on the subject of Peterboro's prosperity, in which the selfishness alluded to above can be seen in every line:-"These hopeful signs of the times are largely due to the prosperity and progress of the Midiand Railway, and the removal of the head offices here. The increased outlay, consequent on the offices being here, is not less then $10,000 a month, which must assuredly be of some importance to the merchants of the town. The Omemee branch is being pushed forward with as much energy as the season and the number of laborers available will admit. It will be in running order by early winter. In the meantime, considerable sum spent in connection with its construction must be spent in Peter-borough to the advantage of town business men, no doubt. The road to Toronto, via Lindsay, is being straightened between Manilla and Wick, and very soon we will have a short route to the capital of the Province, while easy access from Peterborough to Ot tawa, the capital of the Dominion, is anticipated at an early date. This state of things has been largely brought about by the President, who has such an active interest in the affairs of the town, and who will continue to manifest it, as all increase of our population, trade, manufactures, etc., must necessar ly increase the business of the railway and benefit the company, as well as benefit Peterborough. The company's arrangement to allow parties visiting the town on market days, to do so at half-fare, is also calculated to benefit us. It is true, they must come to Peterborough to find a profitable market, but their being able to come on the railroad, at less labour to teams, and less consequent cost, will induce larger numbers to avail themselves of the opportunity and liberality offered by the railway company, and this will tend to increase the volume of our trade yearly. One thing yet remains undone, namely, the establishment of the Company's workshops here. We have before referred to this, and advised some action to secure this desirable result, and we do so again, hoping that some of our public men will take immediate action in the matter. If Car Works would be of value in working out the problem of progression, then surely the establishment of the work shops would be a factor to that end also. The management of the Company is almost all that can be desiredwhere conflicting interests exist. Mr. Cox is one of ourselves-his interests, we all understand; it is a part of our duty to make Peterboro' a pleasant and progressive place as a home for the very excellent and respectable staff of officers of the Company, every new enterprise will increase the desirable object. An increase of population and progressive ideas of comforts and pleasures, and we do think that we should be doing something more to help forward the much wished for advancement, than appears to be done. The adage "heaven helps those who help themselves," ought never to be lost sight of. The history of other places should be lessons to our citizens, for carelessness or indifference may retard the ends we desire to advance. Hoping that the railway may do for us what we are unwilling to do, or to aid in doing for ourselves."

In the same issue of the Examiner we find in the report of the proceedings of the Town Council the following resolu-

"Moved by Mr. Denne, seconded by Mr. Menzies,-Whereas by the Auditors' report of the town of Peterborough for the year 1880, the opinion is therein expressed that that the town still holds 3,000 shares of the Canada, therefore, in order to ascertain the true position of the town in reference to the same, the whole matter be referred to E. Pearse and the Clerk, and inquire into and report to this Council the facts as regards the present position of the town in the matter, with power to consult Counsel.—

Peterboro's programme seems to be, Shylock like, to exact their pound of flesh,-and yet make extravagant demands on the railway to sacrifice every interest to promote the development of that town, which certainly owes much of its prosperity to the present management. But such a selfish policy cannot fail to recoil, and we are mistaken if Peterboro' does not eventually lose much of the advantage it at present possesses.

We hope we do not flatter Mr. Blake too much when we say that he resembles the English statesman, Mr. Gladstone, in some respects. They both speak much better when the subject is foreign to their native countries. Hon E. Blake, all admit, made a fine speech in behalf of the Irish last week in the House of Commons, and we have a parallel instance of wonderful eloquence in the case of Gladstone, when pleading for the oppressed of other lands. It is wonderful how the sympathies of these men, who would like to be classed as great, contract when they turn their attention homeward.

MR. EDWARD FARRAR, an able journalist, is going on the staff of the Winnipeg Times, at a salary of $80 per week. The salary is rather small, considering the work. He will have to defend Tupper.-London Advertiser. At all events, the editor of the Advertiser has a much harder and more disagreeable work at much smaller pay.

Arctic exploration is little talked about at present. The one lesson which the disastrous failure of the Jeannette expedition has impressed upon the world is that the progress of science has made no easier the task of penetrating ice fields.

AFTER the 1st of May a person using profane language in the State of New York may be arrested, taken directly before a magistrate, and if convicted, sent to jail for ten days. It is a summary process, and the law will doubtless have a restraining influence on corner loafers. A little of the same kind of law judiciously administered would have a soothing effect on our home corner loafers.

THE Guide does not seem to take any more stock in the Globe's predictions than we do, for in its issue of Thursday last, referring to "the general elections," it

"It seems almost a certainty that the general elections will be held immedi ately at the close of the present session of Parliament. As straws indicate which way the wind blows, one of the strongest evidences we have yet seen is the card of our representative, Col. A. T. H. Wilams, to the electors, which appears in this week's Times. Mr. David Marshall is also out wit his card to the electors. which appears in the Times and also in to-day's Guide. Mr. Marshall's candidature is conditional. We shall see what we shall see. It seems very probable there is a nice family quarrel brewing; how it will terminate is problematical. For the present we are mum."

Our contemporary's last sentence is full of wisdom. It would not do to give the whole thing away by telling its readers all it knows on this very important subject. As to the "nice family quarrel," we hasten to assuage the anxiety of our contemporary. There is no very immediste danger of strife, and he will likely be called in to patch up the difficulty as soon as there is the slightest indications of the quarrel assuming a serious turn. Meantime, we would advise the Guide to steer clear of the skeleton in the Reform cupboard, lest it fall to pieces at the first touch.

THE Spectator puts it thus:-The character of the campaign literature which is being prepared at Ottawa, under Mr. Blake's supervision, may be judged by the statement in one of the documents that part of the bonus given to the Pacific Railway Syndicate consists of 25,000,000 acres of land valued at "$3 per acre-$75,000,000." Very well, we will accept that valuation. Then the Government of which Mr. Blake was a member offered a bonus of

Cash-$10,000 per mile.........$ 27,000,000 54,000,000 acres of land, worth $3 an acre. 162,000,000 Interest guaranty, estimated at.......... 20,000,000

Total.....$209,600,000 Mr. Blake's document estimates the bonus given to the present Syndicate to amount to a total of $149,415,975. That includes the money paid for the Fort Frances locks, the Neebing Hotel, the steel rails, etc. "But let that pass." Allowing all these items to be valuable assets, and taking Mr. Blake's figures, we find that the bonus now paid is $60,000, 000 less than the bonus offered by the Government of which Mr. Blake was a member. Reformers, can you refuse to vote for a Government which saves you sixty millions of dollars on a single item?

WESLEYVILLE.

The funeral of Mrs. Brown took place from the residence of her father, Mr. Thomas Brice, on Monday, May 1st at 2 p.m. The funeral was large, the family connection being extensive and much respected. It was the more affecting, as her aged father is confined to the house in a low state, owing to an attack of paralysis. The services at the house were solemn, though brief, as a further service was held at the Methodist Church, where the Rev. Edward Cragg preached an appropriate and excellent sermon. It was out of the common line of funeral sermons, and was characteristically striking and original. Mrs. Brown was interred in the cemetery adjoining—a lovely spot, it having been enlarged by an additional piece of land purchased from Mr. John Barrowclough, at very reasonable terms. capital stock of the Midland Railway of The bereaved family have the sympathy of the community at large.

MR. BLAKE AND INDEPEN-

The leader of the Opposition made the mistake of his life when he introduced his now famous resolutions in favor of Canada making her own treaties, acknowledged by the Reform press to be the first step towards Independence, which is only another name for annexation to the United States. The Ottawa correspondent of the Mail last Monday thus deals vigorous blows at Mr. Blake's folly:-" The soundness of Sir John's judgment that the country would regard the treaty independence demanded by Mr. Blake as veiled treason to British connection is day

by day being proved, as communications from the country generally arrive. The Op-position themselves, while trying to keep up brave look, are wilting under the disaproval of their course so many of their po

itical friends are uttering. It is becoming plain that Mr. Blake's scheme is utterly im practicable; that it breaks down because of another of his false assumptions. He assumes that Great Britain would continue to give Canada the benefit of her diplomatic and consular service. The consular agents of Great Britain are posted over the whole world for the purpose of looking after Great Britain's commercial relations. Sever the union of these interests now existing, and it must follow that Canada will have to provide for herself the necessary machinery to secure for her marine the attention and respect that marine now has owing to the British protection thrown around it. The British consular service consists of about 400 agents of various ranks distributed throughout the world. Wherever our ships go they cla'm as a right the assistance of Brit sh consular agents; and as Canada is tho fourth maritime power in the world, and as her ships push out into the great streams of the frieght-carrying trade in every quarter of the globe, it becomes a matter of very grave import to owners of sca-going ship-ping, and to our own mariners, what the upshot of Mr. Blake's resolutions would be. Are we to pay for a consular service in whole or in part, for it is impossible to escape the conclusion that we could not go on as we have been doing? The practical business men of the East ask, what do the Opposition propose to give us in place of the present splendid consular service? To exchange our present position for that of the United States ships in foreign ports would be to give up a service with over 400 wellposted agents, and take a service with only bout 200 agents. To establish a system of the marine of the country even less advantages than the United States foreign-going ships possess. Yet the United States conservice costs a million and a quarter a year directly, and fifteen millions a year indirectly. Calhoun years ago pointed out that if the United States would extend their foreign markets they must be prepared to establish a navy. The one thing follows necessarily from the other. If we have treaty-making powers we must have consular agencies, and if we have consular agencies we must have a navy of our own. The statistics of the United States navy show 70 vessels in the navy in efficient service. These require a stock of 1,125 cannon, ten naval yards, and a navy department with a bureau of yards and docks, and a bureau of equipment and recruiting, a bureau of navigation, a bureau of ordnance, of construction and repair of steam engineering, of provision and clothing, and of medicine and surgery. The navy requires 7,500 men, with a pay roll of $7,359,000 a year. The prime cost of the ironclads, naval steam vessels, torpedo vessels, etc., with the cost of the naval yards and naval academies and other equipment charged to capital, runs up to many millions of dollars. Does Mr. Blake know what he is talking about when he asks for the privilege of making treaties on the ground that Canada cannot now get treaties to suit her particular wants? His play is not worth the candle. The agitation itself is injurious, because by calling attention to the position of Canada's marine with respect to British consular service, the result may be that Great Britain will revise her system, and expect Canada to do as she expects British India to do in the case, for iastance, of Jeddah, that great focus for Eastern nations, half the cost of the consulate established there, amounting to £600 per annum, being paid by the East Indian Gov-

PROMOTION EXAMINATIONS.

In another column will be found the results of the recent promotion examination of the senior 3rd and 4th classes in the schools of this county, and we commend them to the careful consideration of trustees, teachers and parents.

The papers in the different subjects were prepared by the inspector and forwarded in sealed packages to a trustee of each school who in conjunction with the teacher of the adjoining school conducted the examination which was wholly in writing. The answers were then returned to the inspector to be read and marked. There was also an examination for second and junior 3rd classes, conducted by each teacher with questions prepared by the inspector.

Of 650 pupils in the higher classes who presented themselves, over 400 passed and in the junior classes as far as heard from, the per centage is still higher. The first uniform promotion examination is thus a marked success. Another will be conducted in the Autumn, and at the close of the year the inspector will publish in pamphlet form a detailed statement of these examinations and a report of each school as to teaching, premises, school requisites, grounds, etc. This must increase Mr. Tilley's labors considerably, but we are sure that the interest already shown by trustees and parents, and the hearty co-operation of the teachers will more than repay him for the extra work.

That these uniform examinations will be of great service to the public schools, no one can doubt who knows what a marked impetus was given to the High Schools, and the teaching profession by their introduction. A better classification will be produced. The parent will no longer be able to charge the teacher with favoritism in promotion. A new motive will be supplied to both teacher and pupil. Trustees will be able not only to judge pretty accurately respecting the work done in their own school but also to compare the results of teaching in the various schools. The inspector will be enabled better to direct and mind the teaching and to bring about that uniformity in the aims and methods of the schools so essential to success, and the pupils will be stimulated to healthful activity and attain to accurate scholar-

THE REFORM CANDIDATE.

Since the appearance of THE TIMES last week, with Col. Williams' card, and also Mr. David Marshall's, to the electors, a good deal of speculation has been indulged in as to who would be the Reform candidate, the prevailing opinion being that the great Reform Party of East Durham is in such a disorganized state that it will be impossible to find any one willing to make the sacrifice. Still the names of several of our townsmen have been frequently mentioned. The crushng defeat sustained in the recent election for the Ontario Legislature has at last convinced Reformers they have no chance in a straight party contest, and they are to be commended for even at this late day being able to see and acknowledge their weakness. It is as well for them to admit they cannot put any one in the field against Col. Williams, as they well know he is the strongest man in the

IF the fatality of the past few years goes on, we will have a dearth of great men. One after another of those we are used to regard as the shining lights of the age, are dropping off in quick succession. Whether "great men" are a necessity or a great loss when gone is a question some have decided for themselves in the negative, but until civilization becomes more universal they must as a rule of nature continue to exist. Last week Darwin, without exception the greatest naturalist of the times, passed away, this week Ralph Waldo Emerson, almost equally celebrated in his sphere, has dropped out of the horizon of fame. He was particularly noted for speaking and writing good, pure English. His memory will crystalize itself in his many brilliant aphorisms. He loved to write and talk in broad, striking contrasts, which, if he ever aspired, injured his reputation as a philosopher. In style and thought he was a refined Carlyle. His gems of thought are among our own would be for years at least to give, the most precious to be found in this century literature, and like those of Shakespeare will become ingrained in our language, as the familiar and beautiful phrases of delightful conversation.

> THE long-talked of, greatly debated and much opposed fusion between the G.T.R. and G. W. R. has at last been accomplished. As far as Port Hope is concerned or towns along the Grand Trunk east of Toronto, it cannot affect much one way or other, but Toronto and the Province west of it cannot help but be injured by the monopoly thus created. It is evident that the object of the Grand Trunk is to swallow up all the lesser lines of the Dominion, and become the rival of the C.P.R. Where the business of small roads can be bettered by the amalgamation with larger ones, whereby their back-bone can be strengthened, so to speak, as in the case of the Midland, it is all right, and to be desired, but where towns and cities which subsidize local railways to improve their trade, are thus cut off from local competition, legislation should step in to protect them. Especially in Ontario, is the new move regarded . with distrust and the results of an injurious monopoly are feared. What the effect of the fusion will really be, can only be known in time.

Account of the County Promotion Examinations.

Below we give the results of the Promotion Examinations held throughout the County of Durham on the 31st of March, for the senior 3rd and 4th classes. In the first column is given the number of school section and name of teacher; in the second, the number of successful pupils in the 3rd class; in the third, those who passed in the 4th clase; and in fourth the total number passed by the school. The schools which are not given either had no pupils ready for promotion or failed to pass any. We also give a few interesting facts showing the schools and pupils that head the list. School Sec ion 1, Cavan, and 18, Hope, were not opened in time to take part in the examination, and No. 9, Cartwright, was closed on

MR. EDITOR,—It there is no core vigor in Mr. Weir's arm than in his style, then verily the whipping dministered to be boy could not have been or nuch account. Strely a more wordy, feeble and muddy production was never forthcoming a nay occasion. Respeaks of Mr. Beattie's ant of charity, and so on, and so on. Such rant nonsense, as though charity had anyting to do with administering rebuke to a midevoid of sense, and devoid of humanity. ad Mr. Beattie used his muscle instead of pen, it might have been just as belitting, would have received absolution from the mmunity at large, though it might have een a little unclerical.

A NEW PROCESS.

W. F. CRAIG,

Formerly Manager of the Ottawa Branch of Messrs. Notman & Sandham, Photographers to the Queen, has the pleasure of announcing to the citizens of Port Hope and vicinity that he has bought out the Photographic Gallery at the Railway Crossing, Walton Street, where he would respectfully solicit a share of public patronage. The new system of taking photographs of all sizes on Dry Plate Negatives does away with the chief difficulty in taking good pictures—the tedious sitting, which tires the sitter out, and the Phetograph is taken INSTANTANEOUSLY.

Over Mr. G. A. Mitchell's Drug Store,

A better Negative is procured by this system, and the Photograph, when finished, is brighter, clearer, and more natural than it can be made by any other system. I guarantee my work to be of the best quality, and believe I can please all who favor me with their patronage.

Four years ago, this week, one of the residents of Cambbellford had potatoes whose tops were six inches high, growing in the garden. There is quite a contrast between the weather of the two seasons.

During the past week a number of new subscribers has been added to the list in town. The convenience of the telephone is so great to business men that before long it will be looked upon as a necessity in every We understand connection has been made between Port Hope and Cobourg, and that, Mr. Smith, the agent here, is making every exertion to establish connection between Peterborough and the neighboring towns of Lindsay, Port Hope and Cobourg .- Peterboro Examiner.

An item in the Toronto World says that a line of steamers is to be put on between Peterbero' and Harwood on the back lakes. At Harwood connection would be made with the Cobourg railway, and from Cobourg by boat to Toronto. By this combination a considerable portion of the Midland railway country would be open to competition. W learn that Mr. Cox shed tears when he heard this; and that Mr. White, the Gen. Pass. Agent, ordered his beard to be shorn off as a sign of his depression; while Mr. Ferguson, the superintendent, advocated the establishment of a line of fast steam barges on the Trent Valley canal to head off the Cobourg line .- Lindsay Post. But our facetious contempory does'nt seem to understand that his little village is barr-ed out of the benifits of this formidable new route.

And now Belleville is agitated for the construction of carworks in that city. The Intellia gencer says that a scheme for the establishment of carworks in the city is now being matured. Already $60,000 worth of stock has been promised, and several of the best men in the city are identified with it. A contract for the construction of 400 cars has been promised. The arrangements are being quietly but energetically made, and there is every ing the especially as it is in good hands. Surely there must be something in a carworks factory when so many places are agitating for their erection.

After completing the assessment the assessor, Jas. M. LeVesconte Esq., finds that the population of Campbellford is sixteen hundred. This is an increase over last year, according to the Dominion census, of last spring, of about 172, the population at that time having been given at 1,418.

Messrs. J. Douglas, of Percy, and D. Johnston, of Seymour, have purchased a thoroughbred imported Clydesdale Stallion, from Mr. Beith, of Bowmanville. The price paid was about $2,000. The animal is a dark brown, and weighs over 1,800 pounds.

Work on the Toronto and Ottawa division of the Midland, between Madoc and Bridgewater, goes on as usual. The grading is nearly completed, and it is expected to have the rails laid in July. A large force is now at the bridge over Deer Creek in Madoc. Some difficulty is being experienced in getting a solid foundation for the stone piers on the western side of the creek, but it is understood this has been overcome. The bridge will be of stone and iron, as will also the one over Black Creek near Bridgewater.

The Review says that on Thurday night about 6 o'clock as the mail train was going east, the postal car ran off the metals about half a mile west of Campbellford station, running for some distance on the sleepers, and kept that position till the train was stopped, resulting in damaging the wheels to such an extent that the car had to be abandoned. Beyond a few unpleasant bumps, nothing of a serious nature occurred. Remarkable to state, after the mails being transferred, the train reached Belleville only an hour and thirty minutes late. The mail conductor, Mr. Hoyland, had rather an unpleasant trip on Friday, having to receive and distribute the mails in a box car, the only available means at hand for him touse, a rather primitive and uncomfortable post office, but he informs us that he got through all right, and the public have been put to little, if any inconvenience by the mishap. We understand new running gear was added during Friday, and on Saturday the car was doing its usual duty once more to the comfort of all concerned.

The Lindsay Post says that there called at that office on Wednesday Caroline Johnston, a near relative of Sir Walter Scott, her mother having been a direct cousin of the author. Her father, Thos. Johnston, was for many years butler to the Duke of Buccleuch. Miss Johnston came to this country in 1850 with her parents, but the latter shortly died after their arrival. Miss Johnston received a paralytic stroke in her fourth year, by which her left hand and side was rendered useless, and she bad to depend on the charity of her friends and the public for a living. She has a small house on the boundary of Eldon and Thorah, where she lives in the winter, and in the summer she goes from place to place through the country. She has done this for years, and the contributions thus received go to her maintenance. She is now in her fifty-third year. She bears a strong resemblance to her distinguished relative.

The French Cabinet Council has approved De Lesseps' scheme of a canal to connect the Gulf of Gabes with the low-lying parts of the Desert of Sahara. Should the scheme be carried to completion, it is expected that the sea will again roll over the mighty waste of Sahara.

The result of the Great National Steeplechase, at Liverpool, which was won by Lord Manners, ridding himself his own horse, has created a stir in aristocratic London. The steeplechase was over a course of four and a half miles, an I Lord Manners, after a severe competition brought his horse, Seaman, in first by a short head, winning an amount equal to a whole year's income of the Archbishop of Canterbury. The enormous odds of $75,000 to $2,500 had been taken.

The Emperor of Germany on Saturday sent the first message over the new cable connecting Germany with the Angle-American Cable at Valentia. The message was o e of congratulation to the President of the United Sta'es on the completion of the work. The President reciprocated.

The indications in the present condition of the labor toubles in Toronto are that a satisfactory settlement all round is not far off. That a compromise between the employers and the shoemakers and corpentors will by speedily made seems tolerably certain. The female employees, and some of the men having already returned to their work.

A party of moonlighters were surprised by a detachment of Police at Ballybunnion, near the house of a farmer who was recently shot. A volley was fired, and fourteen of the moonlighters who were wounded, were captured. A member of the Ladies' Land Langue has been arrested. The London Times publishes an article pointing towards a "crushing out" process as an effective remedy.

The trial of Vankoughnet for the murder of Richardson at Buck Lake was commenced at Kingston Friday A great deal of difficulty was encountered in getting a jury, the panel having to be drawn a second time before twelve men were accepted. A number of witnesses were examined, and after a long argument upon the admissibility of secondary evidence of the prisoner's confession, the constable to whom it was made having since died, the Court adjourned. On Saturday the jury returned a verdict of guilty against Vaukoughnet with a recommendation to mercy. His Honor ruled that the evidence of prisoner's confession to the constable was inadmissible, but accepted the evidence of a neighbour to whom prisoner admitted the shooting, claiming that it was entirely accidental.

The hotel-keepers of Halton County have unanimously resolved to close their houses and refuse accommodation to the public after the lat of May, when the Scott Act goes into operation in the country. The temperance people are united and determined to do their utmost to successfully enforce the Act, and in order that no incon venience may be suffered by the travelling public, intend establishing temperance hotels, with sufficient stabling, wherever it is found necessary to do so.

A Methodist itinerant preacher once breakfasted at a house where johnny cakes were served. Observing a feather protruding from his cake he remarked, 'Sister, your johnny cake seems to be feathering out. "Yes," responded the lady unabashed; "I told John no longer ago than yesterday that he must either get a cover for the meal barrel or move the hen-roost.'

M. Dujardin Beaumetz is making certain experiments with alcohol which it is expected will have great scientific value. He is to read the result of his researches at a convention to be held at the Hague next autumn. Most of the experiments have been made upon pigs, for the reason that those animals have a digestive apparatus which closely resembles that of man, and then of the other beasts they are the ones that take most kindly to regulated doses of a cohol. His resemblance to the pig is not flattering to the man who is in the habit of guzzling spirituous or malt liquors, but it is expected that these experiments will settle many important questions connected with the action of alcohol upon the animal system.

THE following is the common sense treat ment for a horse out of condition (in fact all horses require like treatment this time of year,) a good Purging Ball followed by a course of strong tonic powder. These are both to be had in Zock's Tonic Compound and Blood Mixture, as each package contains a thoroughly good purging ball and over a pound of strong Tonic Powder. Ask your druggist about it. R. THAY HAD A FEW WORDS,-" I am not bringing all my family along with me," said one of the Ontario immigrants to a stranger on the cars. "My wife and I had a few words," he added, "and we parted." "Dear bless me," said the tranger, "isn't that a sad state of things? What a parting for man and wife!" "Well," said the Ontario man, with a knowing smile, "what would you do, if you were going thousands of miles away from your wife-if you had one? Wouldn't you have had 'a few words' with her before you parted?" The stranger collapsed -Winnipeg Times.

An Irishman one day came running into a farm-yard, and hurriedly cried for a spade. The farmer, coming out, demanded what he wanted with it, when Pat replied that his friend had stuck in a bog and he wanted to dig him out. "How far is he in?" inquired the farmer. "Up to the ankles," said Pat. "Is that all?" said the farmer. "Then he can pull himtelf out again. You'll get no spade here." Pat, scratching his head, while his face bere evident signs of grief, blurted out: "Och, but be jabers, he's in head

In the month of April almost everyone requires a good and reliable Blood Purifier. We know of none so safe and effectual as Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters. They act directly on all the secretions, their purgative action carrying off all impurities from the system, they invigorate the Liver and Kidneys, purify the Stomach, cleanse the Bowels, and give strength and tone to the whole system. Bob Ingers Il owes Talmage an apolgy. In his reply to the Brooklyn preacher on last Sunday evening the infidel ridiculed the preacher's theory that the world might have got along without sunlight, and used in its stead some such contrivance as phosphorescent rocks or the borealis. That very night the surors blazed out with such splendor as to take away a good deal of the sting of Mr. Ingersoll's ridicule, and lately, at the meeting of the San Francisco Microscopical Society, the State Mineralogist read an account of the discovery of a species of rock which, on being struck, flashed out so brilliantly as to frighten the miners. They call it Hell Fire rock. Another blow at Ingersoll. Is there a special Providence watching over Talmage, or is he simply in luck?

An English Colonel, say London Truth was so indignant at his wife being called a "woman" by a policeman that he took his number and reported him to the Chief Commissioner. But what nature of being has this irascible warrior married if his wife is not a womau? "Wait, woman," were the words of the policeman. What ought they to have been? "Wait, lady?" Let us have done with this miserable nonsense. I have no sympathy with the fashionable preacher, who in his sermon said, "Who were last at the Cross? Ladies. Who were first at the Sepulchre? Ladies." In Ireland they are more sensible. A sentry was on duty, when a lady wished to pass him. He told her that no one might go by. "You do not know who I am," she said; "I am the Colonel's lady." "Very sorry, ma'am," replied the sentry, "but I could not allow you to go by if you were the Col-

On Thursday there died at Uxbridge a man named Angus McDonald, who passed the usually alloted span by over years. On the 12th of February last ne celebrated his 105th birthday. Mr. Mo-Donald was born in the island of Islay, Scotland, in February, 1777, and in 1803 enlisted as a driver in the Royal Artillery, and afterwards served in the Penin sula under Sir John Moore and the Duke of Wellington. He participated in the disastrous Walcheron expedition in 1809, and was one of the remnant left of the one hundred thousand who coped with the French batteries in the Scheldt. He fought in the battles of St. Sebastian, and was engaged in the rout of the remains of Marshal Soult's army at Toulouse. But his most vivid recollections of the past were in connection with the decisive battle of Waterloo. His reminiscences of the Iron Duke and his wivid delineations of the Titanic struggle were always interesting episodes of a visit to the brave Highland veteran. He belonged to a race who have almost passed away, but not before adding lustre to the history of the land that now prides itself on

Mr. McDonald emigrated to Canada in 1832, having been discharged from the army sixteen years before. He settled on a farm near the village of Acton, where he has lived ever since, except when at rare intervals he visited some of his numerous decendants. He had seven children, the majority of whom are still living, and leaves a large progeny extending through four generations.

Johnny wanted to go to the circus, and his father said: "Johnny, I'd rather you'd go to school and study, and maybe you'll be President some day." Said Johnny: "Father, there's about 1,000,000 boys in the United States, inn't there?' "Yes.' "And every one of them stands a chance of being President?" "Yes." "Well, dad, I'll sell out my chances for a circus ticket.'

Lanza, the late Italian statesman, was told one day that one of the Roman Theatres was giving a piece containing scenes insulting to some of the Cardinals. Lanza sent for the manager, and said to him: "I cannot permit these attacks directed at the Cardinals; but, after you've made amends, I authorize you to insert a scene in which you can abuse me as much as you please!" And with this he dismissed the manager.

Stratford has a real, live crank of its own, who delights in the euphonious name of George Washington. He lives on Nile street and the boys living in that locality have evidently been bothering him, for George has posted up in the front window of his dwelling, the following curious notice: "the lord from heaven will set a fine of $25 on any one throwing anything at my door so you had better be ware for Christ is watching you.'

Six robbers, armed to the teeth, made their appearance recently at the castle of a nobleman near Barcs, in Hungary, and by threats obtained a carriage and horses, with which they at once drove to the barracks of the Pandours, or Croat Regiment. Here they overpowered the Quartermaster, bound him, and placing him in the carriage, hurried him off to a neighboring wood. Arrived here they suspended him to a tree, and, pulling out their long knives, proceeded to cut the skin from the body. They then sent back the carriage to its owner, telling the the driver to make known that they had flayed the Pandour officer because, some time before, he had caused a member of their band to be shot.

The old Good Friday custom of flogging an effigy of Julas Iscariot was, after a lapse of two years, duly celebrated in the London docks on April 7, by the crews of three Portuguese and Maltese vessels. The effigy of the traitor, hewn out of a block of timber, was carried by chosen members of the crews round the quarterdeck and hanged from the yardarm, and each man chanted his vituperation as he lashed the figure with knotted ropes. The scourging over, Judas was cut down, thrown upon the deck, spat upon, cursed, and kicked to the galley fire, where he was burned into a charred mass, and then hurled into the water, after, which the the sailors went in procession to church.

"A recent painful case of death caused by a hypodermic injection of morphia," says the London Lancet, "directs attent on afresh to the dangers of resorting to this most perilous mode of administering drugs designed to relieve pain. The public should be warned against the practice of employing remedies hypodermically. So formidable a 'remedy' should on no account be used except under medical advice, and when deemed necessary it ought to be given by practitioners. repeatedly urged the profession to discountenance the recourse to injections under the skin, which is becoming general. It is a practice of extreme hazard, and we are of opinion that surgical instrument makers should refuse to sell the requisite apparatus to lay persons, and that medical men should forbid their use.'

Railroad building has begun in the far East. The next quarter of a century will see Nineveh, Babylon, Damascus, and the cities familiar to us through the most ancient of ancient history, within easy communication the rest of the modern world by a complete system of railways. A road, 500 miles long, is now under way from the Black to the Caspian sea. It runs along the valley of the river of Cyrus, south of the Caucasus, and from a portion of it Mount Ararat is in sight. It seems incredible that there should be business to justify railroads in these graves of old nations, but wherever human beings live they must travel, and food and clothing must be transported from one point to another. The steel rails will soon girdle Mesopotamia, Central Asia and Arabia, and will help to bring about the poet's dream of the parliament of men the federation of all the nations.

A young, rich, and pretty widow in London, with plenty of animal spirits, and in want of some innocent amusement. hit on the original plan of inscribing her name in the books of a matrimonial agency as a wealthy but blind candidate for matrimony. The number of suitors was legion, and the charming widow amused herself to her heart's content. Some came in shabby clothes, some stretched themselves at full length on the sofa and made themselves quite at home, but spoke in tones of the deepest affection. The charming widow was, however, soon obliged to cut the joke short, for one of her suitors, after an exing a pair of candlesticks, introduced a bunch of long fingers into her pocket and abstracted her purse. A remarkable work has just been published by a Leipsic tirm, in the shape of an anonymous pamphlet, entitled 'Loose

Leaves from the secret Archives of the Russian Government." The figures quoted have an appearance of genuineness, and are intended to unvail the vast system of peculation prevailing in most branches of the Russian administration. Two chapters profess to give the reports of what are called the Imperial Comptrollers to the Czar on various branches of the civil and military service and on the care of the army in the Turkish campaign. Under the latter head statistics are given to show that the Government was swindled to the extent of about $100,000 in connection with a couple of provision magazines at Kischeneff. For ten years no accounts were rendered by the Admirallty Department, till at last, forced by the Czar to supply them, its chiefs sent in to the Comptrollers for inspection a wholly choatic collection of 7,434 volumes and more than 200,000 accounts and other documents. It is further shown that within the last ten years the Russian Admirality under the Grand Duke Constantine, bad expended $75,000,000 on the construction of various new vessels; whereas the British Government in the same period has similarly expended about two-thirds more, but with ten times greater results. The chapter on railways likewise relate a shocking tale of theft and corruption.

The End of the World.

Richard W. Proctor, the astronomer, has created quite a scare recently. He ventured to suggest that perhaps the world would come to an end about the year 1897. The comet of 1668, one of the greatest upon record, returned in 1843, and some astronomers believe it will reappear in 1897, so near the sun that it may fall into it. If its substance is solid or if accompanied by meteorites composed of substantial matter, the effect of its fall upon the sun would be to de velop a vast amount of heat throughout the solar system, and so destroy all animal and vegetable life upon this globe. That such accidents do happen throughout the universe is very probable, for it is known that stars suddenly blaze out and then disappear forever. A star in the Northern Crown in 1866 for a few days shone out with a wonderfully increased light, clearly due to an addition to its temperature, and such an accident may happen to our sun. It is known that the best portions of our globe were at one time subject to glacial action, that is, icebergs and a frozen sea covered the greater part of the northern hemisphere. The sun at that time must have withlrawn some of its heat and a catastrophe of an entirely different character may also occur. However, 1897 is some time off yet. It is not settled th atthe comet of 43 is due at that time, and furthermore there are serious doubts as to whether the fall of a comet into the sun would have any appreciable effect. Astronomers have reason to believe that the earth has been several times touched by the tail of a comet, without its inhabitants being sware of it. It is hardly worth while keeping awake at night, thinking over the possible effect of a comet striking the sun in 1897.

Behind The Scenes.

I will tell you an incident that occurred In New Orleans many years ago. It possesses to me now, as I think of it, all the vivid interest it had then. It was among the first cases intrusted to Mr. I --- and myself, and we devoted to it an unwearying patience and assiduity that fitted us for their exercise many a time afterward. It was in midwinter that the circumstance I allude to occurred. The theatrical season was at its height. The St. Charles was nightly thronged with the beauty and fashion of the city. A new star had appeared on its boards, exciting an interest prevalent and absorbing. Her beauty, grace and accomplishments were the topic of every club room—the one subject that engaged the attention of all the youths in the city. Her hame was Adele Larondu. Very young-scarcely twentyand very beautiful was this young girl, around whom a web of 'mystery was woven that seemed to defy human ingenuity to un-

I say she was beautiful; but that word does not convey an adequate idea of her exceeding grace of mind and person. Petite in form, the slender figure was exquisite in symmetry. A wealth of bright, golden hair shaded a face rosy with health and brilliant with genius. The clear, hazel eyes flashed with intelligence, and the delicate curve of the exquisitely chireled lips expressed hatred, or scorn, or intensified emotion.

Night after night the theatre was filled with her admirers. Passion in every phase -the very well springs and impulses of our nature-seemed to find in her an interpreter that never erred. Her analysis of character were perfect; it was true to nature, and therefore perfect.

The night of which I speak had witnessed her greatest triumph. She seemed inspired, and the feelings and emotions of her audience appeared absolutely under her control, as if she wielded the waut of an enchaptress. The curtain fell on the last act of the tragedy, and the audience dispersed. Some mesmeric power held me to the spot, and I lingered around the entrance of the the-

An hour must have passed by and the last of the company crept out of the narrow isle leading to the stage, and sought their homes. Still the actress lingered; her carriage at the door-the driver impatient. Suddenly from behind the scenes-echoing along that narrow isle-came a scream so piercing that it cut to the heart like a dagger. It chilled my blood. I stood rooted to the spot; anguish, horror, grief, were in its tone.

In a moment more I dashed open the door and rushed into the theater. Close at my back came Mr. I—, the driver, and the porter of the establishment. The light in the green room was still burning. The large mirror that hung from the wall reflected from the opposite sofa the tinsel and mock jewelry of a queen. I noticed this as I dashed open the narrow door that led to the dressing-room assigned to the actress. It was empty. I called her by name. I shouted until the walls of the vast building echoed back my voice. We searched every-where, underneath and above the stage, even among the rolled curtains in the loft, and the narrow apertures beneath the scenes—in vain. The actress had disappeared. The screams that had so startled us were not repeated. There was no avenue of escape; still she was gone.

Mr. I—— visited her apartments at the hotel. She was not there. The gas was relit in the theater and our search resumed. She was not to be found. Her friends were visited; the most transient acquaintances called on, with a like result.

Each hour, instead of revealing the mystery, only deepened it. In the light of the morning we continued the search. A single object was discovered, which could possibly afford a clue to the missing girl. On the floor of the dressing room was a diamond ear-ring. It looked as if it had been torn from its place. It was not such a one as son in her room, and that person a female. This was all. The mysterious interview and its termination was shrouded in a vale of darkness our ingenuity could not penetrate If the earth had opened and swallowed her, her disappearance could not have been more utterly unaccountable.

What was to be done? We knew she was a native of France, brought here in childhood. Her relatives had died; her friends knew nothing, save that she was an orphan. Genius had aided her rise; industry had secured her fame. The architect of her own fortune, she had climbed alone the steep whose ascent is devious and hard to sur-

One day I stood leaning negligently on the counter of a fashionable jeweler. I loved to gaze upon the brilliant gems that strewed the case, and filled it with a weird, flashing light. My attention absorbed in viewing them, I did not notice the entrance of a lady -her foreign accent in addressing the jeweler caused me to turn around. She held an ear-ring in her hand, and was inquiring the cost of one, if made to match it. The first glance I had of it made the blood leap like fire in my veins. It was the counterpart of the one found in the theater. You may imagine I do not lose sight of that woman. I knew I had struck on the right clue. I traced her home. The panther never stole on his victim more silently than I in the footsteps of the dark-brown stranger. I scarcely knew how I got back to the office. I seemed to have triumphed over space and time. More like a maniac than a detective, I rushed up to Mr I—— and imparted my intelligence. He was not less excited than I. We both felt an interest in the beautiful girl as strong as if she had been a sister. But we knew that our steps must be wary, and our movements secret as the We had no common criminal to deal with. If not the arch-fiend himself we knew she was almost as cunning. The mysterious abduction of the actress disclosed a quickness and sagacity at once ingenious and profound. The same subtle spirit we did not doubt we should have to encounter again. It was not, therefore, with a feeling of assured success that we prepared to enter the residence to which I had traced the foreign

It was not as officers of the law usually go that we went on that occasion. We employed rather the subtle cunning and perfect skill of a man brought up in the business. For once his nefarious art helped him to do a noble deed. A life of crime was whitened by a single virtue. Before the skill of this man the door sprung back upon its hinges, and we stood within the portals where the issues of this strange mystery were to be decided. Silently we ascended the stairs. A gas flame, burning from the ceiling, flung a mellow light along the stately corridor. At the further end of the hall a door opened into a large apartment. We moved toward this, and as we approached it sounds of weeping struct on our ears, and then we heard a voice of supplication. Sorrowful and sad the strange, and voice floated out on the air. It was like the mail of a broken heart, that cry of one in distrem

"Oh, God! is there to help, no help?"
Is thrilled to my heart. Even in that pitiful cadence I know tose well-remembered topes. Bardened with anguished, I knew them well. In another instant the dor flew open be fore our impetuous weight, nd there, in the gloom of a luxurious room, ar young limbs fettered and a single garmen brouding the wasted form, was the young cotress. We were not a minute too soon, fothe next install, furious as a demon, the 'rk-browed woman entered the room.

It took but a moment to securiber, and then the mystery was solved. She was the aunt of the actri- Her take your scalp.

niece was heirers to a fortune in France; she removed, her own child would inherit the wealth. It must be done, however, secretly and silently, so that no clew could be found. She had secreted herself in the passage-way of the theater, and taking advantage of a momentary delay, had secured her victim. In the struggle an ear-ring was torn off. A powerful narcotic, suddenly applied, drowned her senses and stopped re-sistance. She was behind the drop-curtain as we rushed in. Leaving while we were yet in the green room, she made her escape along the aisle that led to the street.

This was the end. It made a sonsation at the time, but it was an unwritten history of crime in New Orleans thirty yeary ago.

A Lion That Taught Singing School.

[We reprint the following quaint and charming little story from the "Letter-box" of St. Nicholas for May. It is by a little girl five years old, and just as she told it to her mamma, who wrote it down for her.]: A Lion wanted to teach singing-school.

They asked him what could he sing? And he said, "Roo-oo-oo." They asked him what else could he sing?

And he said, "Roo-oo oo." They said they didn't want a singing-teacher who couldn't sing nothing, but 'cept just one song.

Then the Lion went to a horse-race. All the other animals were there; the nouse that squeaked, the kitten that mewed, the puppy that bew-wow-ed, the lamb that baa ed, the pig that yi-yi-ed, the colt that ha-ha-ed, the wolf that boo-ed, and the bear that ur-ur-ed. The prize of the horse-race was a russet

The mouse thought he'd exprise the other animals, so he ate the apple up. Then all the other animals hollered out, "No fair! No fair!" And the mouse was scared and ran round the track, and the kitten that mewed ran after and ate the mouse up, and the puppy that bow-wow-ed ate the kitten up, and the lamb that bas-ed ate the puppy up, and the pig that yi-yi-ed ate the lamb up, and the colt that ha ha ed ate the pig up, and the wolf that boo-ed ate the colt up, and the bear that ur-ur-ed ate the wolf up and the Lion ate the bear up.

Then the Lion came around again and wanted to teach singing school.

They asked him what could he sing? And he sang: "Squeak squeak, mew mew, oow wow, baa baa, yi yi, ha ha, boo boo, ur ar, and roo oo oo!" Then they said, 'Your voice has re-proved. And they all let him be their teacher. MARIA M. C.

Our farmers are in the midst of their spring work. A large quantity of seed has already been sown. Barley is again the leading crop; next comes black-eye small peas, for which remunerative prices were obtained last season. Spring wheat has been sown to a considerable extent; the varieties are numerous, or rather a few with very different names. Cattle raising is being made more of an object Prices and the demand for butter and cheese are largely in-A goodly number of our wealthier residents who have been out viewing the North-West have returned, and speak in glowing terms of that land of Gosohen. The disputed territory between is said, by eye-witnesses, to be valuable for its minerals and timbers, and also for its agricultural country. This old "banner riding," as the Grits term it, is likely to have lively times at the next election. Would you be surprised to see the high priest of the Grit party defeated by a local man? I am not at liberty to give the name, but can safely say that he stands high with his party, and will take a large number of votes from the other side. He is now in the field, and actively engaged was worn by the actress. It established be in feeling the pulse of the electors of the riding.

Our worthy Chief Constable has had an easy time for the past week; not even a drunk for our Queen's boarding house.

We are glad to learn that some of our villagers are agitating a joint stock company of the business men and property holders of this place to manufacture agricultural implements. We wish them every success, and hope before long to see this place again one of the liveliest villages on the line of the G.T.R. There is no reason why it should not be, situated as it is in one of the best farming localities in Canada.

Relation of Brain-Work to Blood-Supply.

But, even if it is true that the larger and healthier physique affords more blood for the brain-use, it does not follow that the larger the supply the greater the the amount of brain-work possible. The argument assumes that the brain has no limit to its activity except in the quantity of blood that can be prepared for it. But it needs no scientific education to know that there are other influences which limit the thinker's activity, and that these limitations are somewhere in the mysterious recesses of the brain, or in the forces of which the brain is the organ. The physical health of the brain-worker may be perfect, his digestion unimpaired, his power to assimilate food the same, and yet he may not be able to concentrate his thoughts or carry on a complicated train of reasoning. The defect is not in his body-that is as healthy as ever; nor is it in any of the processes of blood-making-those go on as before. The trouble lies in the brain itself, whose capacity for work is measured by some hidden standard of its own, and which gives warning when a cessation of brainwork is imperative. The body is a furnace whose power of consuming fuel is greater than the capability of its boilerthe brain-to generate power. To keep the latter in good working condition, something more is necessary than building and feeding the fires. A supplementary but important consideration is, whether the steam beyond a certain point will not be productive of impleasant consequences in the form of an explosion-Nina Morris, in Popular Science Monthly for May. Liver Complaint and Indigestion, an engraver and carver in wood. Owing to confinement to ill-ventilated rooms my health gradually declined, when I was unable any longer to prosecute my business. At this time I was suffering from great prostration of strength, extreme indigestion and dis ordered liver. My usual weight was 135 pounds, but I had become so much omaciated that I weighed but 109 pounds. In the early part of May last I commenced taking the PERUVIAN SYRUP, and almost immedi ately felt its tonic and invigorating influence. In the course of four months I used four bottles. My weight this day is 149 pounds. I have neither liver complaint or indigestion, but consider myself in a perfect state of health, and in good spirits. About Talking.

Language gives fullness under the yes. It is very large in the head of Charles Dickens. Language gives the power of conversation-of communicating our ideas to others. This faculty does not give us the ability to learn other languages - only to talk our own. Tho ability to acquire other languages than our own depends upon other faculties, combined with this. A child brought up with Germans will talk German; with French, French; with English, English; with the Italians, Italian. We all learn to talk, and the child will learn to talk the language it hears, whatever that may be. And if the child hears low, vulgar, coarse, inelegant language, it will learn to use that language, and will use it. And if chaste, pure elegant, elevated conversation, the child will imbibe the same taste. It behooves parents to take care of the manner and substance of what they say before their children, and it is always very clear that the silly, nonsensical stuff talked to children is not only very silly, but equally injurious. Children will talk as they hear others talk. Parents and others are constantly educating this faculty in children by their conversation. To be able to speak easily, elegantly and correctly, is a valuable power. If there are young men who wish to acquire this power, they must speak; they must form debating societies and go at it, no matter how many blunders they make. They will soon come to excel those who laugh at them. Express your ideas on as great a variety of subjects as possible. Learn to give utterance to all your ideas. Language should be cultivated in connection with memory, so that we can at any time tell anything we know. How many men there are who know a great deal which would be of great service to the community, if they had only cultivated the power to communicate it. Much is thus lost to mankind. The treasure is there, but to all the rest of mankind it is a sealed book. They derive no advantage from the experience and the acquirements, and the reasoning of such men. Children and youths should be encouraged to talk. The old idea was that "children should have eyes and ears, and no torgue.' The faculty cannot be cultivated in that way. Children must talk, and must be guided in their talk and conversation, if they are to become expert in the use of language. Women have the faculty in a higher degree than men. They are greater talkers than men. They have strongsocial feeling, which leads to the exercise of this faculty; they are in society more; they talk more to children. Women are more eloquent than men. Men are engaged in buisness, in thought, and depress the faculty by want of exercise; while women, by exercising the faculty, are constantly strengthening it.

Sure but not Slow .- People who have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil to get rid of pain find that it is sure but not slow. A cough even, of long standing, is speedily control-led and cured by it. Rheumatism, neuralgia, corns, lame back, and awelled neck rapidly disappear when it is use.

For Every Person.

Everyone suffering from painful corns will be glad to learn that there is a new and pain'ess remedy discovered by which the very worst class of corns may be removed entirely in a short time and without pain. PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN FATRACTOR has already been used by thousands, and each person who has given it a trial becomes anxious to recommend it to others. It is the only sure, prompt and painless cure for corns known. Patnam's Painless Cor Extractoris sold everywhere.

"When I was once in danger from a tiger," said an old East India veteran, "I tried sitting down and staring at him, as I had no weapon." "How did it work?" asked the bystander. "Perfectly. The tiger didn't even offer to touch me." "Strange! very strange! How did you account for it?" Well, sometimes I have thought that it was because I sat down on a high-branch of a very tall tree."

Holloway's Ointment and Pills are the best, the cheapest, and the most popular remedies. At all seasons and under all circumstances they may be used with safety and with the certainty of doing good. Eruptions, rashes, and all descriptions of skin diseases, sores, ulcerations, and burns are presently benefited and ultimately cured by these healing, soothing, and purifying medi-caments. The Ointment rubbed upon the abdomen, checks all tendency to irritation of the bowels, and adverts dysentery and other disorders of the inestines. Pimples, blotches, inflammation of the skin, muscular pains, neuralgic affections, and enlarged glands can be effectively overcome by using Holloway's remedies according to the "in structions" accompanying each packet.

"After the Sunday dinner, what?" asks a religious weekly. Well, it depends upon whether a man owns one of these doublejointed, back-action, telescope canes which, we've been told, can be elongated twelve feet, as if by magic, and are used by men when walking along the river to protect themselves against ferocious fish which dart out of the water and attempt to bite them. A man armed with one of these weapons is brave enough to venture near the river on Sunday afternoons for the benefit of his health and to admire the beauties of nature. It is a rash and impudent man who wanders by the river side on a Sabbath afternoon without carrying one of these canes to beat off savage fish.

FOOT BALL.-The members of Kingston Military College foot boll club paid our town a visit last week. They arrived here on Thursday, and on Friday went to Peterboro' to have a match there, returning the same evening they stopped at the St. Lawrence Hall all night. On Saturday an endeavor was made to get up a team in town to play with them at Penryn Park, but this was unsuccessful, and the cadets then proceeded to Trinity College School, where a sufficient number not being obtained to match them, a "scratch" game was played. It would make no difference anyhow-he would get badly left.

WE are pleased to be able to announce that the Midland Land Co. paid yesterday a dividend on a capital of $150,000 of $5 per share of $100. This is a creditable showing, and cannot fail to be satisfactory to the shareholders. Midland is bound to progress, and the Land Co. with it, thanks to the foresight and able management of the President, Mr. A. Hugel.

NEWSPAPER THIEVES BEWARE .- A new the publishers of newspapers to arrest any phonically, Port Hope and Cobourg. It is man as a thief who takes their papers and refuses to pay for them. This is a fair and judicious law, and should have been enacted years ago, as a means of protection to publishers, for there are lots of persons who will take a paper for a time, and when asked to pay for it will laugh at the publisher, and taunting. ly defy him to get it if he can. In this manner publishers lose hundreds of dollars. The law is intended to meet just such rascals, and publishers generally should unite in having it enforced. A little of the same kind of law in Canada would not be out of place, and would prove a boon to publishers who lose a large sum annually rather than sue delinquent subscribers by the present Division Court process which is slow, doubtful and expensive, for it is an easy matter to get a judgment, but quite another to enforce collection of it.

An Exchange sagely remarks:-"Altogether too many branches encumber the school-boy and girl who fritter away their only available school days in the foolish pursuit of ten or twelve different branches of learning. A liberal education is, theoretically at least, very nice, but to all a liberal education is denied, even though it does as at present chiefly consists of fragments hastily gathered out of many studies: If boys and girls were kept at school long enough, as they should be, the several branches which constitute a liberal education might be taken up with profit. But everybody knows that almost all pupils leave school entirely without a fixed knowledge of any particular branch, and a pretty confused idea of all art. Boys and girls leave school at or rather before sixteen, just when they begin to think consecutively. This being so, educators should be less hypocritical and be honest enough to refuse to teach more then four or five branches. Fully one half the books now found in our schools ought to be consigned to the tender mercies of the bad

THE McCarty mentioned below is said to have been a native of Port Hope, and to have relatives still residing here, but we are under the impression this is a mistake:-

RICHBURG N. Y., March 24 -About four months ago a man named Jack McCarty came to this place from Braddock or thereabouts. He hailed originally from Pittsburg. About the middle of November he made murderous assault in the street here upon Patrick Markey, with whom he had some difference, stabbing him terribly, from which wound Markey died the same night. The trial for murder has just closed, the jury convicting McCarty of murder in the first degree, after deliberating a few minutes. The mother and sister of the prisoner, who lived in Allegheny, were present during the trial, and seemed deeply moved at the result, while the prisoner appeared perfectly indifferent. The evidence was overwhelming and showed brutal ferociousness on the part of the murderer. One witness who saw the killing said he called to McCarty after he drew the knife, "Don't cut him;" but it made no difference. Markey said: "Oh! God I am killed!" I heard McCarty say: "I came here to kill the s- of a -, and guess I've done it." Wheh the witness emerged from Knapp's place he saw McCarty wiping off his knife. The prisoner said: guess I've killed him, and now I haven't sense enough to get away." The defence was very feeble and wholly of a trumped-up charBOATING is now in order.

Mr. Lewis Ross' stock has been purchased by Messrs. Pierce & Gould, of Norwood.

MR. W. B. FERGUSON, Superintendent of the Midland Railway has removed to Peterbero', much to the regret of his many friends

THE Presbyterian Synod of Toronto and Kingston is in session at Peterboro'. Revs. Jas. Cleland and R. J. Beattie, of Port Hope, are in attendance.

THE St. Mark's tea and sale of fancy articles in the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Tuesday afternoon and evening, was quite success-

WE would direct the attention of our readers in Port Hope to the changes made in the Street and Sidewalk By-law at last meeting of Council. The amendments to the By-law will be found in full in our Council report.

MEN are busily engaged, and have been for some time, in cleaning the streets. Walton street, for a short distance west of Queen street, has been macadamized, and the sidewalks are also undergoing repairs.

THE steamer Norseman took over on Wednesday morning to the other side a small load of horses, several stallions and four brood mares. Mr. Henry Sling shipped his "Young Silver Dust," and Mr. Dyer, of Garden Hill, shippd two others, which will be used for season purposes in York State.

Some four or five have returned from Manitoba during the past week, and their opinions of that country are various, Several are completely disgusted, while the others speak in the highest terms of it, and intend going back shortly. One gentleman remarked enthusiastically, 'It's the finest country in the world."

I. W. BAIRD's celebrated New Orleans Minstrel Company will appear in the Music Hall on Tuesday evening next, 9th inst. As the press speak highly of their performance they will doutless draw a large house. Reserved seats may be secured at Mr. Barrowclough's bookstore.

TASTY .- The new signboards and blinds made for Messrs. Powell & Fraser, dealers in boots and shoes, are attracting a good deal of attention. Judging from their surroundings, this new firm must be building up a good business. Their advertisement will be found in another column. The paintings referred to above were executed by Mr. R. Fogarty.

PRIVATE PERRITT, who distinguished himself last fall as the crack marksman of the Dominion, has been chosen to go with the Canadian team to shoet at Shrewburyness next summer. Five dellars was granted by the Port Hope Council to aid in defraying expenses. East Durham Field Battery are proud of their man, and hope to see him win honors when competing with the Wimbledon

THE Bell Telephone Company are to have postal law or decision in the U. It is now time for the above gentlemen to petition against this invasion on their rights, or else throw up the sponge. Professional dead beats con take advantage of the new discovery, for if not quite so convenient, it is certainly a very CHANGE OF PULPITS .- This desirable and Christian-like custom of exchanging pulpits is coming more in vogue. In some towns and cities the ministers change all around once or twice a year. Last Sunday, Revs. Mr. Beattie and Mr. Laird exchanged pulpits in the morning. The discourses by both of those gentlemen on this occasion, were highly appreciated by the respective congregations.

RUNAWAY .- Last Thursday afternoon about 4 o'clock, a horse belonging to Mr. H. Covert, attached to a cart full of rubbish, ran down Walton street, turned at Mill street, and went down to the harbor. At every jolt, the straw and rubbish in the cart flew high into the air, and when the docks were reached the cart came in contact with one of the spiles, completely detaching cart and harness from the horse, the latter going on to the light house, while the wreck tumbled into the harbor.

COUN. BEAMISH brought up the matter of the Rice Lake Gravel Road, in a resolution, Monday night last, in Council. The resolution, which will be found in our report of the proceedings, provides for the appointment of a committee to make enquiries as to what steps are necessary in enforcing a better condition of this road, and also to wait as a delegation upon Hope Council, for the purpose of having the boundary line, beyond the gravel, put in a proper state of repair. Now, since our suggestion has been so far carried out, we hope no time will be lost in bringing matters to a focus. Farmers and Port Hope citizens have been leng enough victims of a toll-road monopoly, whose proprietors have pecketed their hard earnings, without giving any benefit in return-besides being instrumental in diverting a large amount of trade which properly belongs to us. Coun. Beamish deserves praise for his efforts to have the evil remedied.

WE WISH THEM MUCH JOY .- Port Hope on Tuesday was enlivened by two marriages-Miss Mary McKee, Part Hope, and daughter of Mr. William McKee, to Mr. John Richardson, of Buffalo, and formerly of Port Hope; and Miss Mary Richardson, sister of the last named gentlemen, to Mr. J. Kirkpatrick, of Millbrook, and formerly of Port Hope. The nuptials in each case were celebrated at the residence of the bride's father. On Tuesday evening the happy couples went east on their bridal tour, carrying with them the best wishes of a host of friends. The gentlemen are both of estimable character and highly respected, the in the young ladies Pert Hope loses two of its fairest and best. There is consolation in the fact, however, that what is our loss is others' gain. Our best wishes are that their joys may be many, and their troubles little ones.

By a new arrangement money can now be placed in any city or town in the United States or Canada by telegraph. Mr. Stanley Paterson, agent of the Telegraph Co. here, will furnish all the necessary information. This will be a great advantage to business men who desire to order goods and pay cash for them with the order, and is a convenience that will be greatly appreciated.

By an error of the compositor the word 'desiring'' appeared last week in one of our articles instead of "deserving"-quite an ugly error, but not any worse than the one in the paper which devotes a quarter of a column to directing attention to it, and which has carried a C for a T in its editorial heading ever since its first number. Discussing the typographical errors which escape the proof-reader, or which the compositor fails to correct, is rather a small business, rarely resorted to-except by amateurs.

THE LANGUAGE OF STAMPS.—A young lady—and we infer a pretty young lady—writes: In your next issue will you kindly publish the following: "The Language of stamps."—When a postage stamp is placed upside down on the left corner it means "I love you;" in the same crosswise, "My heart is another's;" straight up and down, "Goodbye:" upaide down, in the right corner, "Write no more;" in the centre, at the top, "Yes;" opposite at the bottom, "No;" at the right hand corner at a right angle, "Do you love me;" in the left hand corner, "I hate you;" top corner on the right, "I wish your friendship;" bottom corner on the left, "I seek your acquaintance;" on the line with the surname, "Accept my love;" the same upside 'down, "I am engaged;" at a right angle in the same place, "I long to see you;" in the middle at the right hand edge, "Write immediately." immediately."

AFTER THE FRESHET. By Edward A. Rand. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. Price $1.25. This is the second volume in the V I F series which was stamped with success by the first issue It is unnecessary to say of any books of Mr. Rand's that they are bright, interesting and helpful; that may be taken for granted. His stories have always been characterized by those qualities and in the one before us they are particularly prominent. There is always a purpose in his books, an influence which remains after the mere incidents of the story are forgotten. He has painted a variety of characters, good and bad, in After the Freshet, all of which have a specia mission to perform. The main character of the story is Arthur Manley, a young man of fine talents and noble character, who has been brought up in a rough farmer's family in ignorance of his parentage. From the fact that he has become a great favorite with a wealthy family in town, he has incurred the dislike of an unprincipled lawyer, who has designs upon that family, and who resorts to a series of persecutions in order to get him out of the way. The story of how he evades the plots of his enemy and how he ultimately discovers the secret of his birth and achieves the other and higher ambitions of his life, is vividly and affectingly told.

THE MARKET FEE PUZZLE .- Little Premier Mowat deserves a leather medal for his skill in evolving such a puzzle for the market clerks. It is certainly a wonderful production, not only on account of its seeming self-contradictory provisions, but on account of its profundity. So profound is it that not one market clerk in the Province, backed up by any amount of legal wisdom, can unravel its hidden mysteries. After a prolonged puzzling over it, our Council, market committee and several legal gentlemen have given it up in despair, and refuse all attempts at an epinion, for fear of damaging their reputation as municipal sages. Consequently our market clerk, Mr. John Gamble, is left alone to face the dilemma, and in vain he seeks advice from our Town Fathers, who shun him when he talks about market fees as though he were a ratepayer seeking remission of taxes. He has a quarrel every Saturday with some farmer over what is or what is not liable to pay market fees, and although he has been for a great many years market clerk, and stood it well, he thinks thewear and tear of the present Act will bring him to a premature grave. The Act defines what certain articles of produce shall not pay, but not what unexempted ones shall pay. Again it provides that a certain fee shall be charged for weighing articles, providing they stand on the market for sale, but if not the question is, what will be the rate? In such instances the clerk must be guided by common sense and the old By-law; which latter it is a question whether it is in force or not, and the former is not always sufficient to meet emergencies where questions of law are involved. "Law me," the grangers say, "Mowat is a great man." A Philadelphia lawyer is no where with him; in fact, his ingenuity has taken him beyond the limits of law-he should engage himself as an expert in Japanese
