MORAL PHILOSOPHY, BY REV. MR. JEFFREY.

Last Sunday evening, Rev. Mr. Jeffrey preached a sermon replete with thought. His text was: "For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." What was meant by the "world?" Some people thought it meant simply mankind. That was a mistake. It meant everything in, on, around, or connected with the world. God loved, not only mankind, but every beast and plant and stone and atom; Examine any work of nature, and you will find the evidence of divine love in the completeness of workmanship and the intention of design. Christ died to redeem the whole world, and to restore it again to the standard of ideality from which sin had displaced it. But you say

THERE IS NO GOD!

No reasoning man can say that. (Holding up a book mark), Did that make itself? No! Did you make yourself? No! Each had makers. A thing made without a maker was an absurdity, and, going back to a First Cause, he would rather believe in a mystery than an absurdity. God died to save the body as well as the soul. A great many do not believe this. What would a soul do in Heaven without a body? What good is a soul in this world without a body? Our desires, our impulses, our vitalities, require an organism through which to act. If we have a desire to pick a book up, and have no hands with which to do it, what good is the possession of the desire? The characteristic of this age, above all others, is that the pent-up genius of former ages can get beyond thought and itself. The ambition of man has now a wider field. Thought flashes across the mighty ocean, and will is executed far beyond the sphere in which the organism moves. Similarly, in Heaven the soul requires a body, but it requires a redeemed body. There must be an organism and a brain. A soul without these would be inert, powerless and without bliss. It must also be a perfect body. A soul in Heaven associated with a gouty, indigestive, or rheumatic framework would be out of place, and worse off than if it had never got there. Sin has degenerated the physical as well as the spiritual part of man, and in Heaven, without doubt, the redemptive process will enable the body to accompany the soul in its soaring through space. Contrariwise.

HIS IDEA OF HELL

was that the unsaved soul, trammeled with ebriety have become so changed in an oppoan unsaved body, would pursue its way through site direction that the contrast is striking. the darkness of eternity, unable to perform On Wolfe Island this was remarked, and in the functions for which it burned to attain the vicinity of Lindsay it was still nell nre)-a sort of idiotic existence, with out the power to become restored to the ideal. That state might not be unbearable. An idict does not suffer the pain which an intelli-gent person does in looking at him and con-templating his condition. Who would want to be an idiot? In referring to the moral condition of men at present, the rev. gentleman remarked that people were too apt to be inconsiderate in their estimate and expression of opinious concerning them. Circumstances were, to a great extent, responsible for our moral make-up. The most pious, the purest, or the most gentle and Christian-like might have, under other training, become PICKPOCKETS, DRUNKARDS, OR MURDERERS. He could sympathize with and allow for these p or unfortunates. Our nature is part brute as well as human, and it is when the brute element attains the ascendancy that the moral depravity follows as a result. We are none of us of ourselves. Human nature, as it is, is the cumulative effect of all time. We are all six thousand years old. The matter composing the organisms is not the same, but the same continuing elements exist-the same recurrently developed germ of humanity in continuously modified form follows from Adam to now. These were, perhaps, unpleasant truths, but they must be told. He had great sympathy with the drunkard on this account. It was often hard to tell how the appetite was formed, but he knew so many who, in the very struggles to resist, and having the very strongest desire to do right, took drink to satiate the cravings thus caused. People would not harshly condemn drunkards if they knew as much about them as he did. Here he would say, if you take a glass yourself and think it does you no harm, take bless his name." it. He would not say whether it was wrong or not; but, above all things, do not ask others to drink with you. He hated the treating system as the greatest incentive to carrying on the liquor traffic. He concluded The Life of Edward Hanlan, America's with an appeal to accept of the salvation Champion Oarsman, has just been republishwhich could redeem body and soul. The ed in an enlarged and revised form, by sermon was greatly admired as a thoughtful, Richard K. Fox. It is a handsome volume, earnest effort. ### A FEW FACTS.

What the Crooks Act has done for Port Hope.

The action of the Ontario Government in the Midland, and such an unusual occurtaking the regulation of liquor licenses out of the hands of municipalities and usurping it cause. It was learned that Father Stafford, to itself for political parposes, is, according, of Lindsay, was dying, and that a special to the best authority on constitutional law in train had been despatched for Bishop Jamot, | Canada, unconstitutional. It was done under who, as we announced last week, was in Cothe guise of temperance. In so many words bourg paying an official visit to the Church it meant this: "the municipalities are unfit there. Before the train arrived in Lindsay and incapable to attend to this matter. I (8:30 p.m.), Father Stafford had departed (Oliver Mowat) will take it under my own life. He had been ailing for several days, special care." We have shown in previous but no danger was apprehended until shortly articles some of the results of Mr. Mowat's before his death. For several years he had nursing, and stated that :---

1. Taking Ontario, as a whole, there has been a large increase in the commitments for tion of his ailment being angina pectoris, or drunkenness since 1875-an increase of 7,594. 2. There were last year 443 more licenses issued than in 1877.

3. The License Commissioners have no power outside of cities to enforce any regulations they may see fit to prescribe for the government of hotels, and that in Port Hope we are virtually without further superintendence than that provided for in the Act. Therefore so much worse off than under the old Act.

4. By the advice of leading Reformers in town, a councillor backed out of a resolution specially appointing the Chief Constable to assist the License Inspector in enforcing the law, for the reason that such action would be a direct slap at the Mowat Government.

5. If the License Inspector whose business first appointment after his orderies in his alma it is to enforce the law, is target of a sinecure. the professorship of classics in his alma it is to enforce the law, is target of a sinecure. mater. His connection with Regiopolis Col-to do this, his position is a sinecure. 6. It is not the duty of a town official to do the work for which an Ontario Government official is solely and exclusively paid. Two men to do the work of one, is one too many.

7. There are more hotel licenses granted in Port Hope now than there were when the Crooks Act came in force.

8. More whiskey is drunk now than in 1875 in Port Hope.9. Statistics taken from the latest returns prove that the consumption of last year over previous years show a large increase. We have been accused of falsifying and fabrication, but the above distinct statements have not been contradicted, and they cannot be successfully. But we have not stated all that can be said, in the above. A few more facts are found below, which will astonish not a few who have been used to look complacently on the alleged temperance Act of Mr. Mowat.

In 1875, the last year of the working of the old Act, there were 14 tavern and 7 shoplicenses granted, yielding a gross revenue to the town of $1525. Out of this $215 was

Coun. Stevenson said it was the intention to change the butter market from the basement to the room now occupied by Mr. Giddy, and bring all the butchers of the town to the Town Hall. It was high time they took action in this matter, and they have authority to spend $6,000 on it. They have one or two applicants already to lease the hall when it is built. Coun. Beamish asked what they would do if the Music Hall was refitted. Coun. Stevenson said it would be an easy matter to handicap that concern.

Coun. Ward was glad the Council took up the question of providing a new hall. Port Hope was far behind other towns in this respect. They should be careful before adopting the present scheme. He thought it would be a pity to run a wing west into the Market Square. This square was a good one in its way, and he should not like to see them encroach on it. The new building might be run to the east to better advantage, both for market purposes and the hall.

The Chairman fully concurred in the views expressed, and thought they should engage the services of an experienced architect. Coun. Burnham said they wanted a good hall, no matter what the cost, and an architect should be engaged who fully understood ventilation and acoustics.

Coun. Stevenson thought Mr. Kellaway or Mr. Hewson might be employed.

A discussion arose as to employing an architect and the desirability of extending the building to the west.

The Committee rose and reported.

Coun. Beamish said they had now got the thing in a nut-shell, and he was glad the Council had at last come to the opinion that the people of the town required something better for an entertainment hall, and, to have the matter pushed through, he moved, seconded by Coun. Winslow,-That a Committee, composed of the Mayor and Couns. Burnham, Budge, Ward, Stevenson and the mover, be empowered to take the necessary steps in regard to the proposed changes, and also authorizing them to employ a competent architect. Council adjourned.

THE statement that children attending the schools at Port Hope learn to use improper language was made by a Reform paper; the statement that they do not is made by respectable citizens of the town. The question is decided in the negative by a large majority. -Mail.

synopsis, giving the ideas rather than the language, being simply a memory report.

Mr. T. Wilcox, of Millbrook, returned from Winnipeg on Friday last. He and his brother, who were well-known contractors of this vicinity, have been making big wages as bricklayers, receiving $6.50 a day. Ordinary to good mechanics get from $3 to $5 per day; the best get $6.50. Workmen of all classes are very busy. The foundation of the Civic Hotel, which is being built by a joint stock company, has just been completed. It will contain 700 rooms, be lighted with electric light, and possess all the apparatus of a grand modern hotel. Next year the building will be proceeded with. Mr. McDonald is the "boss" contractor of the place, and is "Is man's nature an evolution from lower animals?" "Does death end all?" 'Cause striving to get a monopoly of the business. He employs a great number of hands, does his own brickmaking and lime burning, and has now two millions bricks on the ground ready for operations next year. Mr. Wilcox contracted a severe cold lately, and thought it better to come home than risk a spell of sickness there, especially where board is so dear. He returns again in the spring. At the time of his leaving it was not any colder than here. Hundreds, if not thousands, will come home to Ontario for the winter, and go back in the spring. Board, considering the wages, is cheap, ordinary workingmen's fare being $5.50 per week. As in Ontario, you must go higher for style and "extras."

noticeable, and especially in the township of Ops, where for the last two years not a single $1310. case of drunkenness has been brought to pub-lic notice. Father Stafford was a strong six years, showing the amounts of licenses champion of the faith he professed. As he collected, and the cost of the Crooks Act to often expressed it, he loved his religion dearly, but he was at the same time singularly unbiased and remarkably catholic in his views, respecting other religious creeds with almost extreme courtesy. In the "Marmion" discussion, in which our readers will remember he took a decided stand, several of his letters appearing in THE TIMES, he combined a facile pen with a gentlemanly regard for religious distinctions, and while, perhaps, all could not agree with him, none could help admiring. He was scholarly and cultured, and the taste displayed in the interior and exterior arrangements of his late beautiful residence fully evidence the refinement of mind possessed by him. In Lind-say, where he resided since 1863 to the time of his death, he was greatly beloved by every person, and almost idolized by his flock. Father Stafford abounded in charity and good works. His sudden death in the full possession of his mental and physical powers is an almost irreparable loss to his Church. It falls to the lot of but few men, more especially a minister of a certain creed, to have it said of them when gone: There has departed one who is mourned by all; loved by many, admired by every one. It would seem as though the following tribute by the Ottawa Citizen, a few weeks ago, to Father Stafford formed a prelude to his death: -" In Lindsay and its vicinity he has exercised a wonderful influence for good, and long after he has exchanged time for eternity thousands will

This is among a few of the things done for Port Hope by Mr. Mowat.

More than that, last year the License Commissioners granted one license more than the town By-law allowed a wine and beer license to a Reformer, Mr. J. C. McNaughton. We have nothing to say against Mr. McNaughton. He keeps a very respectable saloon, and against whom no one can say a word. Still, we imagine, if Mr. Mc. N. had been a Conservative, the License Commissioners would not have taken the responsibility of violating the town By-law and the Statutes as well, in order to accommodate him. The organ of the License Commissioners in town says last week that it "has demanded that the liquor laws shall be rigidly enforced." Its editor is a License Commissioner, and yet we have not heard anything about the illegality of granting Mr. McNaughton a beer license. This year the Council enlarged the By-law so as to make 15 the limit, and, of course, everything is straight, as far as the legality of the licenses issued is concerned. However, the Commissioners are not forced to come up to the limit of licenses laid down in the By-law; they have the power of fixing a limit within this limit, and if the system of appointing License Commissioners was established in the interests of temperance, something in the way of curtailment could be effected.

A most serious objection to the present Crooks Act is that it does away with the principle of "local option." Formerly, the regulation af licenses lay entirely in the hands of the municipalities. A strong temperance sentiment in a community could elect councillors who would legislate to suit the views of their constituents. Now the people have nothing to say in the matter. It lays entirely in the hands of the Ontario Government and their agents, who use the power in their hands, as we have shown, for political purposes, and do as they like, irrespective of the wishes of the public.

Ever the water-lily rocked Upon the rocking stream, Where the little clouds reflected, flocked And steered across her dream. And ever she sighed, "What, must I stay In the river's bend from day to day? Oh, were I free to sail away, Where the seas with wonder them!

- I know that I am fair," she said, "I watch it in the wave, At anchor here in the river bed, That holds me like a grave. What good is the sun's gold light to me-Or what good a living thing to be, When nome draws ever nigh to see The beauty that I have!"

Was she happlor when the stars were born, And the bird sat mute in the tree? When she rocked and swayed, with her cables torn. And feit that she was free? When the banks slid backward on either hand— For the rat had gnawed through her anchor strand. And the wind had kissed her away from land, And was kissing her out to sea.

The river mouth was broad and black, With currents countercrossed, Where the foam churned white in the eddy's

And the scattered stars were lost. No glimpse she saw of other bank, But a waste of weed that heaved and sank, Whoro from gulf to gulf she reeled and shrank, And from wave to wave she tossed.

"That?" said the Sea, "with the muddled face, And the cup all tattered and reft of grace? A flower they say, from some island place, That once on a time was fair?"

THE SHADOWY HAND.

I am a traveller and collector for a large house which executes many orders throughout the country. When I have an extensive district, which is often the case, I frequently have a considerable sum of money about me, and on several occasions the possession thereof has rendered me very uneasy; but no more than that of which I speak.

I had been assigned to a large territory in the West, a region rough and mountainous, and which, I had cause to believe, abounded in lawless spirits who might possibly give me some trouble .--A person of my calling is always supposed to have a large sum of money about him when he has been out for a number of days or weeks, and many is the time that I have seen people look at me with an expression on their faces that spoke louder than words how much they would like a chance of seeing what my wallet contained. But thus far away they never have had their wishes gratified in this respect, and, so long as my faithful six-shooter does not play me false, I don't mean that they shall. One day at noontime saw me in one of the little villages of the West, hemmed in on all sides by high peaks and lofty summit passes. I had transacted my business there, and now sought the landlord of the inn to learn the way to the next village that I had wished to 'visit. From him I learned that it was twenty miles by the public road, and rough and hilly into the bargain. "But is there no nearer way?" I asked. "If the road is in the state you say, it will be long after nightfall before I can reach there, and it looks much as though we might have a rainfall presthough we might have a rainfall presently

"There is a road over the mountains," he answered, after a pause, "but it has not been much used of late years, and the way is rough. Still, it can be got over; and as it is but little over half the von wil distance it is by the main road get to Silby fully an hour earlier than you could by that way."

the impression that I had seen him before; and then it flashed upon my mind when and where. It was among the rough, unshorn loafers that were hanging around the bar. The food being set out, he placed a rude seat by the table, and told me my supper was ready, making some excuse because it was not better. I answered him that it was as good as I desired; and as hunger is the best appetizer a man can have, I did the coarse provendet ampie jusace. When . was satisfied, 1 resumed my seat once more by the fire, and tried to enter into conversation with my host, but I made poor headway. He did not seem inclined to talk, and after a while I gave it up, and we sat in si-lence for some time, he ever and anon stealing a glance at me from under his steading a grance at me from under his shaggy eye-brows, which, in spite of myself, made me feel a little uneasy, when I reflected about the money upon me. At last, tired of this, I told him that I would like to go to bed, if he had a place where I could lie down. Upon this, he may and hel, the way into the this, he rose and led the way into the other small apartment of the cabin, and, setting down the candle, went out and closed the door. closed the door. There was a rude bed in the corner of the room, covered with a ragged quilt, and upon this I threw myself without taking off my clothes. My six-shooter I placed beside me, where I could lay my hand upon it at a moment's notice, and then I blew out the candle and tried to sleep. But that I soon found was impossible to do. A nameless some-thing kept me awake. I could hardly define it as fear. It was more of a nervousness that I could not shake off, try as I would. My eyes would not stay shut, but wanted to remain wide opened and fixed upon the wall where the fire-light, which shone through the cracks in the partition against which my bed stood, played with a weird sort of light.

Try as I would, I could not keep my eyes from the wall. Did I close them, the next minute they would be again wide open. Did I turn my head, I would be looking there again almost before I knew it. What I expected to see I hardly knew. Yet it came at last. Suddenly upon the wall, where the light from the fire shone the brightest, there appeared the shadowy hand of a man clasping a long and deadly-looking knife.

For a moment my gaze was so riveted upon it that I could not turn my eyes; but a sound in the adjoining room broke the spell. Starting hastily up upon my elbow, I peered through the crack that was close to my head, and the sight I beheld caused another thrill similar to that which the shadowy hand had given me. My host, with a long knife in his hand, was approaching on tiptoe the door which led to my room. It was the shadow of his uplifted hand that I had seen upon the wall.

That he had designs upon my life I could not doubt, and, thankful for the warning I had received, I prepared to meet him. Noiselessly I crept from the bed, and, with my six-shooter in my hand, stationed myself at its foot. The door was noiselessly pushed open, and the would-be murderer entered the room as silently as a phantom, and ap-proached the bedside. His arm, with the deadly knife grasped in his hand, was for a moment held above the bed. and then it descended with a force that would have sent it through the body of a man, had one been lying there.

This was all I wanted. Surely, it was

Longfellow's Last Poem.

The death of Longfellow, on the 24th of March was known at once the world over; the news could scarcely outrun the knowledge of his life and the love of his verse. In America, multitudes of children, in eity and village, had just given him the honor of their voices upon the celebration of his seventy-fifth birthday, and the memory of a poet is secure which rests in the praise of children. Time will bring repeated studies of his poetic worth, and this magazine, whose first number contained his pure tribute to Florence Nightingale, and whose present issue holds his last poem, will take an early opportunity to record his honorable career. On this page it is permitted only to name his death, to join in the common sorrow, and to look with hope upon a literature which he has ennobled at its beginning with the beauty of his art, the dignity of his aim, and the priceless virtue of his life,-The Atlantic Monthly.

MAD RIVER, IN THE WHITE MOUNTAINS.

- TRAVELER.
- Why dost thou wildly rush and roar, Mad River, O Mad River? Will thou not pause and cease to pour Thy burrying, headlong waters o'er This rocky shelf forover?

What secret trouble stirs thy breast? Why all this frat and flurry? Dost thou not know that what is best

In this too restless world is rest From over-work and worry?

THE RIVER. What would'st thou in these mountains sock, O stranger from the city? Ts it perhaps some foolish freak Of thine, to put the words I speak Into a plaintive dity? Into a plaintive ditty?

TRAVELER.

Yes: I would learn of thee thy song, With all its flowing numbers, And in a voice as fresh and strong As thine is, sing it all day long, And hear it in my slumbers.

THE RIVER.

A brooklet nameless and unknown Was I at first, resembling A little child, that all alone Comes venturing down the stairs of stone, Irresolute and trembling.

Later, by wayward fancies led, For the wide world I panted; Out of the forest dark and dread Across the open fields I fled, Like one pursued and haunted.

I tossed my arms, sang aloud, My voice exultant blending With thunder from the passing cloud, The wind, the forest bent and bowed, The rush of rain descending.

I heard the distant ocean call, Imploring and entreating: Drawn onward, o'er this rocky wall I plunged, and then loud waterfall Made answer to the greeting.

And now, beset with many ills, A toilsome life I follow; Compelled to carry from the hills These logs to the impatient mills Below there in the hollow.

Yet something ever cheers and charms The rudeness of my labors: Daily I water with these arms The cattle of a hundred farms, And have the birds for neighbors.

Men call me Mad, and well they may, When, full of rage and trouble, I burst my banks of sand and clay, And sweep their wooden bridge away, Like withored reeds or stubble.

Now go and write thy little rhyme, As of thine own creating. Thou seest the day is past its prime; I can no longer waste my time; The mills are tired of waiting.

For hours I wound along the most wretched road I ever saw. Every now and then a path would branch off, leading, apparently, into the heart of the The afternoon passed away, forest. and night came on, and still there was no change in the road, no sign of my being near to Silby. All was the same dreary wilderness as that through which I had been passing so many hours. With the coming of the darkness the rain be-gan to fall. This added to the disquiet I had already felt, for I feared that I had left the road and got into one of those paths that led I knew not whith-

Faster and faster fell the rain, and with every moment the gloom increased, until the darkness was such that it could almost be felt. Still I plodded on, feeling there was little chance of reaching my, place of destination, but with the hope that I might stumble upon some cabin that possessed human inhabitants, where I could find a fire and shelter for the night. More than an hour passed, and I had nearly given up all hopes of finding shelter, when I be-held the gleam of a light before me.-Encouraged by the sight, I urged my horse onward, and in a few minutes found myself in front of a low cabin, through the one window of which the light gleamed that had attracted my attention.

Dismounting, I approached and rapped loudly upon the door. There was the sound of shuffling feet within, then it was thrown open, and a man holding a candle in his hand appeared upon the threshold, and demanded what I wanted. As the light flashed upon his face I had the impression that I had seen it before; but it was gone in a moment .--In answer to his demand, I told him I wanted shelter for myself and horse for the night, and that if in the morning he would guide me to Silby, he would be suitably rewarded.

He made some reply, the burden of which I could not catch owing to the driving of the rain; and then, setting the candle down upon the floor, he came out, saying, as he laid his hand upon my horse's bridle, "'Tain't very good quarters that you'll get here, mister, but perhaps it's better than it is out in the rain.

"Any shelter is better than none on such a night as this," I answered, as I dismounted. And I followed him round to a rude hovel, where he did the best he could for my horse's comfort.

Then we went into the cabin, he picking up the candle he had placed upon the floor, observing, as he did so," keep bachelor's hall here, so you mustn't expect much; but you are hungry, I s'pose?"

I replied in the affirmative, as I drew up to the fire that shone upon the the heat of which was very hearth, grateful after my exposure to the storm. I watched my host as he placed some bread and meat upon the table, and his very look and motion went to confirm you, but it does not come.

I was not long in searching out the proper officers, to whom I told my story, and a little later I guided them back to the cabin, where they found all as I had stated it, and at once exonerated me from blame in causing the villian's death.

A Tale of the Sea.

One of the very funniest stories ever heard comes from the log of the ship Gladstone, says the Sydney Mail. Down in the roaring forties a seaman fell overboard, and went down into the deep green gulf without the faintest possible hope of coming on board again. It is not an easy thing to find a man, even if he does keep afloat, when deep calls unto deep, and the big sea-mountains skip like young lambs in those latitudes. But as this man rose after the first header, right alongside he beheld an albatross, and around that albatross's neck he folded an arm, and doubtless with the other hand made a sure grip of the wicked, hooked bill, and with much flapping and floundering, and doubtless strange conversation between man and bird, he held on till the boat got down and lifted him in. What tale the albatross told to his fellows that evening is to us unknown, but if any records be kept in the albatross world, little doubt there will be found set down a record of a new marine monster more marvellous than the mightiest sea-snake the most ancient maricer of the human race has beheld even in his dreams.

Telephoning His Oronp.

The Hartford Post tells the latest telephone story and vouches for its truthfulness:

A physician of N---- was called by telephone about one o'clock at night from B----, two miles away. A child was suffering from the croup. The night was dark and stormy, and the doctor found nothing pleasant in the contemplation of the trip. So he called up the house in which the little sufferer lay, and requested the parents to bring it to the telephone transmitter. This was done. The child coughed its croupy cough, and the doctor listened to every sound which came from his patient. He prescribed a remedy, and one of the members of the family prepared and administered it. The relief was immediate and the recovery rapid, and the doctor had the satisfaction of hearing the cough relieved through the telephone.

"No special information," replied the editor.

"Then you think it solvent-perfectly solvent?" demanded the little man, with intense eagerness.

"Certainly." "Might I ask what its capital is-its paid up capital?"

"Three millions, I believe," said the editor, beginning to wonder what man-ner of man had floated against him.

"And," continued the man in black, tugging in nervous excitement at his thin and straggling iron-gray beard, "what's the Nevada Bank's reserveits reserve-that's what I want to find out?"

"Four millions, I think."

"And how is it invested-how is it invested?" He fairly gulped with eagerness as he glued his eyes upon those of the editor and awaited the reply: "In United States bonds."

"Why, certainly. There is no safer bank in the world. It has unlimited backing."

The little old man chuckled and took the editor's hand, which he shook almost gleefully.

"You have done me a great favor, sir," he exclaimed, "a great favor-and I shall not forget it!"

"It bothers you to be sure that your money's safe, I suppose, sir?" said the editor with that respect in tone and man-ner which every independent citizen instinctively assumes when addressing a wealthy man.

"Well-er-no, not just yet. The fact is," he cried with a burst of confidence. "I'm about to change my manner of life. The Five Obedient Husbands.

There were five of them together, and It was late. They had been drinking. Finally, one of them looked at the clock, and said:

"What will our wives say when we come home?"

"Let them say what they want to. Mine will tell me to go to the mischief," responded No. 2. "Pll tell you what we will do. Let us meet here again in the morning, and tell our experiences. Let the one who has refused to do what his wife told him to when he got home pay for this evening's entertainment."

"That's a good idea. We will agree "That's a good idea. We will agree to that." So the party broke up, and went to their respective homes. Next morning they met at the ap-pointed place, and began to tell their experiences. Said No. 1:

"When I opened the door my wife was awake. She said: 'A pretty time of night for you to be coming home. You had better go out and sleep in the pig-pen, for that's what you will come to sooner or later, anyhow.' Rather than pay for all we had drank last night, I did what she told me to. That let's me out."

Next! No. 2 cleared his throat and said:

"When I got home I stumbled on a chair, and my wife called: 'There you are again, you old drunken brute! You had better wake up the children, and stagger about the room for a while, so they can see what a drunken brute of a father they are afflicted with.' I thought the best thing I could do under the cir-cumstances was to obey; so I woko up the children, and staggered around until my wife hinted to me to stop. She used a chair in conveying the hint. That let's me out." Next!

No. 3 spoke up and said:

"I happened to stumble over the pan of dough, and my wife said, 'Drunk again! Hadn't you better sit down in that dough?' So I sat down in it, and that lets me out."

Next! No. 4 said:

"I was humming a tune, and my wife called out, 'There you are again! Hadn't you better give us a concert?' I said, 'Certainly,' and began to sing as loud as I could, but she told me to stop, or she would throw something at me; so I stopped. That let's me out."

Next! No. 5 looked very disconsolate. He said:

"I reckon I'll have to pay. My wife told me to do something none of you would have done, if you had been in my place.

"What was it?"

"She said, 'So you thought you would come home at last! Now, hadn't you better go out to the well and drink a couple of buckets of water just to astonish your stomach?' That was more than I had bargained for; so it's my funeral"-Texas Siftings.

An Affectionate Leopard.

A correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial says: My first acquaintance with wild animals dates from the winter of 1836-37, when Van Aken's menagerie had its winter quarters in Tubingen, Germany.

A fine leopard used to enjoy his siesta in the afternoon, and slept quietly in his cage like the other carnivora. Being a daily guest, one day I ventured to stroke quietly and cautiously the back of the leopard, who was lying against the bars. This caused him to turn around at the person who had dared to interrupt his slumbers. My friendly advancement, with a few pacifying words, seemed to please him, for he lowered his head against the bars, and rubbed it and the rest of his body against them,

"Bob."

Dr. Guthrie's companion in his pastoral visits and in his pulpit ministra-tions also, was "Bob," his dog. On Sundays he occupied a place at the head of the pulpit-stairs. All the Year Round tells this anecdote, which it suggests may refer to the Doctor and Bob: The first time the Queen went to Crathie Church, a fine dog followed the elergyman up the pulpit-steps, to remain reclining against the door whilst his master preached. In consequence of the remonstrance of the minister in attendance at Balmoral, next Sunday the parson came to church unaccompanied. Dining at Balmoral a day or two af-terwards, he was surprised by his royal hostess demanding the reason of the dog's absence from church. He explained that he had been told the dog's Presence annoyed Her Majesty. "Not at all," said the Queen. "Pray let him come as usual; I wish everybody behaved as well at church as your noble dog."

The Dollar Mark. Origin of "$." There are a number of theories for the origin of the sign of the American dollar. One is that it is a combination of the sign of U. S., the initials for the United States; another, that it is a modification of the figure 8 the dollar being formerly called a "piece of eight," and designated by the charac-ter 8-8. The third theory is that it is a combination of H. S., the mark of the Roman unit, while a fourth is that it is a combination of P. and S, from the Spanish peso duro, which signifies "hard dollar." In Spanish accounts, peso is contracted by writing the S over the P and placing it after the sum. But the best origin of the sign is offered by the editor of the London Whitehall Review, who once propounded the question at a dinner party in that city, at which the American Consul was present. As no one could tell, the editor gave the following explanation: "It is taken from the Spanish dollar, and the sign is to be found, of course, in the associations of the Spanish dollar. On the reverse of the coin is a representation of the pillars of Hercules, and round each pillar is a scroll, with inscription 'Plus Ultra.' This device in course of time has degenerated into the sign which stands at present for American as well as Spanish dollars-$. The scroll around the pillars represents the two serpents sent by Juno to destroy Hercules in his cradle."

A Dog Dealer.

"What do you ask for him?" inquired a geutleman stopping in front of a box wherein a remarkable clever-looking Yorkshire terrier, weighing less than five pounds, lay dozing, and which was presided over by a man with a peculiar 'dorgy" look.

"Fifty dollars, sir." As the gentle-man examined the dog, the "dorgy" man, thinking that he had a buyer, observed, "What will you give for him?" "Oh, I might go $10 on him," was the reply. The look of disgust that came over the nam's face was simply indescribable.

"Ten dollars!" he ejaculated, patting the little fellow on the head, "and that little terrier weighin' but little more than four pounds and havin' caught three rats already! Sir, that's an insult to the dorg."-New York Hour.

leopard pushing himself forward in order that my hand could also offer the caress to the neck and back. When I reached the tail he let it glide through my hand, approaching again with his head and repeating the sport. In this way our friendship was sealed, and henceforth the leopard watched the entrance-door, becoming restless as soon as I appeared, showing his joy by hur-rying to and fro in his cage, and by friendly sniffles calling for my caresses.

However, he had been tamed for a long time, and Mr. Van Aken sometimes set him at liberty in the evening, when no visitors were present. One evening, when I entered the menagerie, the animal, being at that moment free and re-sponding to the petting of Mr. Van Aken. rushed with a few bounds towards me, and jumping up at me, rested his forepaws on my chest, his hot breath ming-ing with mine, if that had not come to a stop at the unexpected sight. Mr. Van Aken, running to my assistance, helped me to regain my composure, and I stroked the head and back of the splendid animal, which now, cat-like, wound himself between my legs, I, meanwhile, explaining to the astonished owner about our intimacy. This is a pleasing story. But the making pets of savage beasts has resulted fatally in many cases.

The Hair Tells.

It is a well ascertained fact that even when a man denies that he has been smoking, his wife can detect it by smell-ing of his hair or beard. The other night Mrs. Berdan, noticing that her sick husband's whiskers smelt of smoke as he lay in bed of typhoid malaria, she began to investigate, to find that the house was afire down stairs, having started from the furnace. She aroused her husband and shouted an alarm. He got up and walked down stairs, feeble as he was, but fell at the front door, whence he was carried into a neighbor's. The house was badly damaged, but instead of making the gentleman worse, he began to improve. Experts say that the presence of smoke in a room can be detected in hair or fabrics when it cannot be smelled in the surrounding air.

The entire French coast is about to be lighted by electricity, which as far back as 1875 was employed in the light-houses near Havre. It is now thought that the development of the new system warrants its general use on the French coast. "Ten yards of him. Ye see, I couldn't tell how big he was goin' to be, so I just pulled his head over my shoulder and streaked for home, only a mile. Then I followed along back to the hole and he wasn't all out yet!"

"How big was he?" asked the cashier, with round eyes and standing hair.

"Hold on till I tell ye. Then I takes another grip on to him and reaches for home again, but that didn't seem to fetch the whole of him. Well, sir, I traveled between the house and the hole all day long, and when I got him all out he made a coll on my farm a quarter of a mile in diameter and 400 yards high! Fact, sir! "What kind of bait do you generally use for that size of eel?" asked the cash-

'Whisky,''replied the Newtown man.
'I used three pints of whisky on that eel.
Drank it the night before you know!'
The result of which was that his marthe desth calumn riage notice went into the death column and the cashier sat around and shewed his nails all day.

They Wanted to Show Off Their French. This Winter we have had a French nobleman to entertain, and right royally have we spread ourselves. An agitation has been going on for "THE TIMES, of Port Hope, Ontario, devotes its first article of last Thursday to condemn the religious and national preferences in Canadian politics. objections to such a course. Acrimon ous personal allusions, reports of scandals and seduction cases, and the low standard of literary taste evidenced in too many papers would hardly aid in developing the moral and intellectual tastes of the scholars. DISALLOWANCE, AND CANADIAN INTEGRITY.

Matters are assuming an aspect in Manitoba which many feared from the outset of prosperity in the North-West. Phenomenal success has given rise to phenomenal hopes. A great country, full of "illimitable possibilities," like the United States at one period of its career, is full of precocity.

But to whom or to what is that prosperity owing? Without doubt, to the construction of the Canadian Pacific Rilway, and the prospects associated with its completion. Without that the Great North West would have remained undeveloped for ages, unless by short railcoads having outlets in the United States, whereby its resources would become accessory to the wealth of the republic to the south. One of the conditions of the building of the C. P. R .the greatest and most patriotic enterprise ever entered upon by Canadians-was that for twenty years no competing lines should be built within a certain distance of that railway. The Canadian Government, solely on principles of patriotism, agreed to that. They are justified on the grounds that other roads must necessarily drain the North West, and carry the trade to the United States. The Canadian Pacific Railway, recognized by both political parties as a necessity to sition, and we believe his elevation to the development of the North-West, and the Bench came to him unsolicited. town a great deal richer than he came into which, so far, is achieving that end with wonderful rapidity, is a Canadian enterprise, built by Canadian securities, and in which the whole of the Dominion is largely interested; and, therefore, to the Dominion belong the benefits to accrue from that development-not the United States. By an Order in Council, the railway charters granted by the Manitoba Legislature have been disallowed. Rightly too, because this is part of the agree. ment with the Syndicate, and if the Dominion breaks faith with that body, the Syndicate, in turn, would be justified in breaking faith with the Government, and thus disaster, the greatest that could befall a Canadian Government, must result. Norquay, Manitoba's Premier, is going to submit the matter to the people. If the people decide to re-enact say nothing on the subject at present, ling. the charters, there must come a direct save to express the hope that the matter the poor times of Port Hope now for "the observed, the beneficial effects of his bitter and undying hatred of political par- will be felt when he reaches England.

To the Editor of THE TIMES.

DEAR SIR, -I see the irrepressible E. G. Chant, like scam, has thrown himself to the surface in the columns of the Guide. He could not, like an ordinary mortal, leave the town where he has lived for many years, but where it cannot be said he has been our respected townsman, Mr. Wm. Craig, favorably known, without slinging some Sr., to the Senate would be highly grati- mud at the place that has harbored him so long. If there is any one sorry he is leav. ing, I know a good many who, to their cost, ment of a local paper, to the effect that Sir are sorry he ever entered the town. From the time he came around here selling Brummagen ware, until now, his course has been that gentleman would be appointed one of brag and bluster. Like all oreatures 'when the next vacancy occurred' is who have not the elements of success in themselves, he seeks for the causes of failure in something outside out of his own incapa-The remarks of a local contemporary city. Those who remember the glib tongue which this "gentleman" used to induce many of our citizens to part with their money in taking stock in his button factory, and the equal facility with which he, not not very long after, induced the same partics to surrender their stock to him, can certainly credit Chant with one distinguishing quality, namely, that of being a first-class humbug. And now, to cap the climax, the poor, unoffending town of Port Hope, which listened to this charming "Chant" to the tone of some thousands of dollars, is blamed for the failure of this blatherskite.

I fancy if the truth were known this Brammagen "gentleman" is leaving this

He refers to a residence -- mayhap a palatial mansion, which he cannot sell-perhaps mortals to purchase-mortals whose souls are not above buttons.

Mayhap this same gentleman may carry away with him all the button factory plant, which cost the citizens some thousands of dollars.

How very kind and considerate of him, though, to leave his family in this palatial mansion until such time as he can realize a fair price for it. Mr. Chant must then have parture causing a further depression in the price of real estate.

But it is as a politician that Mr. Chant received his greatest distinction in Port Hope. A chartist by nature and temper-ament (if not by education) he sought distinction in the Conservative ranks. As more attention is always called to a square plug in a round hole, than to a round plug n a round hole, so Mr. Chant's peculiar

We have noticed for some weeks past an old horse, emapiated in appearance and a worn out look generally, pasturing on the road sides. It seems that there are yet some men hard-hearted enough, when horses have grown old in their services, and be come good for nothing, to turn them out on the road to eke out their miserable existence as best they may. We understand that there is a law for this, which should be rig-

The receipts of barley so far this season are 150,000 bushels, and we learn there is now in the storehouse about 60,000 bushels ready to be shipped. Barley ranges here from 55 to 65 and buyers seem to be slow in paying the above prices. The farmers are convinced they should have sold earlier, when it was 70 cents.

Oar young men are going in strong for bicycles. There are now eight in our small village, and Dr. S. B. The secretary informed us to-day that he had the names of twenty-one subscribers. We have one now in our midst who took a silver medal at Oshawa, and a gold medal at Toronto, and has ridden from here to Port Hope in one hour and fifty minutes. He says he can do it in less. The livery men here are finding great fault becaus;

young men can go so much faster than their horses. Mr. Glendinning has seven young horses being trained by Mr. Powers, of Darling-ton, and we judge by Mr. Powers' skill in driving them, he must have been well trained himself.

THE CHILDREN.

FOUND IN THE DESK OF CHARLES DICKENS AFTER HIS DEATH.

When the lessons and tasks are all ended, And the school for the day is dismissed, And the little ones gather around me To bid me "good-night" and be kissed. Oh, the little white arms that encircle My fack in a torder embrace ! Oh, the smites that are hales of heaven, Shedding supplies and heaven my face ! Shedding sunshine and love on my face

And when they are gone I sit dreaming Of my childhood, too lovely to last; Of love that my heart will remember; When it wakes to the pulse of the past, Ere the world and its wiekedness made me A partner of sorrow and sin, When the glory of God was about me, And the glory of gladness within.

Oh, my heart grows weak as a woman's, And fountains of feeling will flow, When I think of the paths steep and stony Where the feet of the dear once must go, of the mountains of sin hanging o'er them, of the tempests of fate blowing wild, Oh, there's nothing on earth half so holy As the innocent heart of a child 1

They are idols of hearts and of households, They are angels of God in discuise, His sunlight still sleeps in their treeses, His glory still beams in their eyes; Ob, there truants fr m earth and from heaven, They have made me more manly and mild, And I know how Jesus could liken The kingdom of God to a child.

Seek not a life of the dear ones, All radiant, as others have done; But that life may have just as much shadow To temper the plare of the sun; I would pray God to guard them from ovil, Butany prayer would bound back to myself; Ahf a scraph may pray for a sinner, But a sinner must pray for himself.

The twig is so easily bonded, I have banished the rule and the rod; I have taught them the goodness of knowledge, They have taught me the goodness of Good. My heart is a dungeon of darkness Where I shut them from breaking a rule; My frown is sufficient correction, My love is the law of the school.

I shall leave the old house in the autumn, '---To traverse its threshold no more, . Ah! how I shall sigh for the dear ones That meet me each morn at the door. I shill miss the good nights and the kisses, And the gu-h of their innocent glee. The group on the green and the flowers That are brought every morning to me.

I shall miss them at morn and at eve, Their song in the school and the street, I shall mirs the low hum of their voices, And the tramp of their delecte feet. When the lessons and tasks are all ended, And death says the school is dismissed, May the little ones gather around me, To bid me "gord-night" and be kissed.

"Talk about stopping the drinking habits of the people," exclaimed the lec-turer; "there is but one way to do it— you must remove the cause." "True f'r you, ol' fel," shouted a demoralised hearer, "true f'r you: That's what I've been doing all my life. Bring on yer cause if yer want it removed."

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 11, 1880. Dear Bitters, -I am here trying to breathe in all the salt air of the ocean, and having been a sufferer for more than a year with a refractory liver, I was induced to mix Hop Bittors with the sea gale, and have found the tincture a glorious result. I have been greatly helped by the Bitters, and am not afraid to say so. Yours without a struggle, JOSH BILLINGS.

"What is despair, papa?" asked a bright youth who was wrestling with his first spelling book. "Despair?" echoed the father, as his mind reverted back to his boarding school days. "Despair is what a fellow feels when he thinks he has knocked his room-mate down with a pillow and finds he has floored the principal who had just sheaked into the room to see what the boys were doing."

A teacher in the suburban school was giving her class an object lesson a few days ago and drew a cat on the blackboard for in-spection. She then asked what there was on the cat, and the unanimous reply was, "Hair." "What else?" she queried. There was along pathe of consideration, but finally the hand of a bright little fellow shot up, and almost simultaneously came the trium phant answer, "Fleas?"

SNAKE! SNAKE!! SNAKE!!!

Montreal Citizen with a Reptile in his Stomach-A Terrible Case--The Doctors Baffled - The Victim's Theilling Experience with his Horrible Boarder.

Some days ago it was whispered abroad that a young and rising lawyer of the city was obliged to abstain from business and was also suffering great pain from a very uuusual occurrence, namely, a living rep-tile in his stomach. Yesterday morning a Post reporter called upon the unfortunate young gentleman and elicited the following facts:-He has been at his pre-sent boarding house for three months, and about a month ago he noticed that his appetite, which was always pretty good, inc essed to an extent which may be termed "ravenous." His landlady also noticed it and at first suggested that he should dine in the city. His appetite, however, rapidly became stronger and stronger, and about ten days ago his landlady told him that it was evident he had a snake in his stomach, and asled him as a fayor to seek for rooms else where, as she could not afford to board a ravenous eater and a snake at the same time without extra pay. The gentleman then being very convinced that he had indeed a live monster of some sort within his stomach. He then went to his family physician, who treated him for tapeworm, and several doctors have also treated him for worms, but none have been ejected, and the former symptons remain the same. The only time the patient suffers is when the stomach is empty of food, then the reptile bites him fearfully, and he feels the horrid creature distinctly moving about; it also makes a snake like hissing sound when hungry. The un-fortunate young man ea's about four pounds of meat a day and drinks between four and five quarts of milk. The victim has now made up his mind to go to

A New Treatment of Tetanus.

The foreign medical journals publish in full the views of Dr. Ria on tetanus, and his new treatment of the same. The disease, he believes, consists essentially of an exaggerated reflex irritability of the spinal cord, which may be indiffer-ently caused by traumatisms, toxic influences, or so-called rheumatic action. Since the motor tracts of the cord respond in a morbidly exaggerated manner to all sensitive impressions, the main object of treatment, he thinks, must be to lessen sensory excitation-the cord, by this means, gaining rest, and thus return to its normal condition being made possible. Dr. Ria, therefore, em-phasizes strict isolation of the patients. they are, he says, to be separated from their friends, and kept from all possibility of sensory impressions-even the physician to exercise great care in his intercourse with the patient, lest tho latter be disturbed.

Henry James, Jr.

Mr. Henry James, Jr., remains in Boston. The three "leaders of the Bos-Boston. The three "leaders of the Bos-ton school" of novel writers—Aldrich, Howells and James—did not receive a college education, James, the young-est, is 39 years old. He first contribut-ed to the Atlantic Monthly in 1865. He was then a student under the care of his father. He fives in bachelor's lodgings and uses his mornings for writing in which he is, as Poe was and Harto is, painfully slow. He has a habit of not remaining long enough in good com-pany to have it become stale, but vanishes when he is most enjoying himself. His American friends call him "Harry James." He has lived abroad mainly for the sake of his health. While stout in appearances, he is much of an invalid.

"Come in and have something warm," said Brimblecome to his friend Quizzicus on the street the other day. "Will you pay for anything that I call for?" said the invited. "Certainly," answered the jovial invite. "Very well, then, there's a nice, quiet place round the cor-ner where I always go." The unsus-pecting Brimblecome followed his friend into a tailor's shop. "I'll take a good long ulster," remarked Quizzicus, quietly. Brimblecome paid the bill with-out a word, but he had to give up that sleighing party.

8144 Mr. Brown's Little Lamb.

A gentleman who lives near Blacksburg, Va., called at our office on Monday and gave to us an interesting ac-count of a most wonderful lamb, born on his farm a few days since. The lamb, he says, has its heart on the outside of its body, where it may be seen throbbing and palpitating as normally as if it was in its proper place. The lamb apparently swooned away upon his laying his hand upon its heart, and when the hand was removed the lamb recovered again.

It is difficult to imagine a more cruel device than that which is known as the water torture in Japan, the originators of which depended upon the torments of thirst as much more powerful than mere corporal suffering. The prisoner is for thirst as much more powerful than mere corporal suffering. The prisoner is for thirst as much more powerful than mere salt diet, without rice or water. When two or three days have passed the crav-ing for water becomes incessant, and the sufferings of the tortured man approach the bounds of insanity. The harmony of a social gathering at the Yerger mansion on Austin avenue was in a manner marred by the conduct of Koscinsko Murphy. There were some choice figs on the table, and Murphy helpchoice figs on the table, and Murphy help-ed himself so liberably that Mrs. Yerger, who prides herself on her gentility, be-came exasperated. Finally, when Mur-phy reached for the fig for the fifth time, she remarked with asperity: "Mr. Mur-phy, you ought to go to Unifornia to live." "I would like to very much; but then I would miss the refined culture of then I would miss the refined culture of the Austin People." But you ought to go to California nevertheless." Why so?" he asked, reaching out for more figs. "Because I read in a newspaper that figs are so plentiful there that they feed them to the hogs." Murphy was so carried away by the magnitude of the fig crop on the Pacific slope that, without waiting to finish his supper, he started at once, pro-bably to get his ticket before the office closed.—Texas Siftings.

The Maquoketa (Iowa) Sentinel says: A few days ago a staunch old farmer, living a few miles from Maquoketa, drove to town, accompanied by his son, and reaching a certain residence in our city, where resides a family in which there is a handsome daughter not yet out of her teens, they stopped. The old man held the horse while the young man entered the yard, silently approached and rapped gently on the door, when the young lady opened it and said, "Good morning." The young man stammered out: "Is Miss — at home?" She answered, "Yes, sir." "Wall, my father wants to see'er." "Won't you come in?" she asked. "No, I'll go and The said. The father came in, and with-out ceremony began: "My boy out there's got eighty acres of good land, a team, and wants to get a whetwixt now and harvest, but he's kinder bashful, and wanted me to ask you if you and wanted me to ask you if you wouldn't marry him, and if it was all right we would come around the next Sunday and settle up the business." Imagine that young lady's surprise and bewilderment, never having seen the father or son. Regaining her compos-ure, she replied in a ladylike manner, "I don't care to get married now." This is an actual occurrence, and if you can find out who the young lady is, she will perhaps tell you more particularly about the ludicrous affair.

A $28,000 Oheok on a Shingle.

Joseph C. Palmer, a California pioneer, and at one time a banker and politician, died in Oakland at the age of 63. Mr. Palmer, in the early days of California, was a member of the firm of Palmer, Cook & Co., a bank which did an imwas felt throughout the State. To show his readiness to adopt original methods in an emergency, it is related that once a depositor called to draw a large sum of money ($28,000) from the bank. Mr. Palmer's consent was necessary, but he had been called away to attend to some duty at a lumber yard some mile or more from the bank. Thither the depositor hastened and made known his wants, and the necessity of having them attended to at once. Mr. Palmer could find neither pen, pencil, ink nor paper. But without a moment's hesitation, he picked up a shingle, borrowed a piece of red chalk, and with it wrote a check on the shingle in large and distinct let-ters for $28,000. This was good for all the money the depositor had in bank, and it proved an exceedingly good advertisement for Palmer. It gained confidence for the original genius of our first great banker, whom everybody admired and trusted .- San Francisco Bulletin.

For Severe Coughs and Hoarseness.

For Sovere Coughs and Hoarseness. Philadelphia, Jan 1, 1876. MESSES. SETH W. Fower & Sons. Gentlemen.—Miss S. Burns, of Seventeenth and Coates Streets, has long been a sufferer from a severe cough and hoarseness, which I considered chronic. She was treated by some of our most eminent physi-clans, but they were only able to afford her temporary relief. I prescribed DR. Wistar's Balsan or Wild Cmeary, the use of four bottles of which entirely cured her, as it is now four mouths since she took the last of it, during which time she has had no re-turn of the complaint. For the good of suffering humanity, Miss Burns has requested me to lay the case before the public. Yours truly. T. D. McGaaru, M. D., Druggist and Chemist, S. E. cor. Prof. Tyndall gives some interesting views in regard to what he terms the "proximate future" of Niagara. At the rate of excavation assigned to it by Sir Charles Lyell, namely, a foot a year, Prof. Tyndall says that 5,000 years or so will carry the Horseshoe Fall higher than Goat Island, and, as the gorge recedes, it will drain, as it has hitherto done, the banks right and left of it, thus leaving a nearly level terrace between Goat Island and the edge of the gorge; higher up it will totally drain the American branch of the river; the channel will become cultivable land; the American Falls will then be transformed American Fails will then be transformed into a dry precipice, forming a continuation of the cliffy boundary of the River Niagara; and, lastly, at the place at present occupied by the fall there will be a whirlpool.

An unappreciated poet in Brighton, England, makes a pathetic appeal in the col-nmus of a local newspaper. He informs the public that "he is the author of 200,000 lines of poetry and 10,000 thoughts," and would feel thankful-if "any lady or gentleman would be kind enough to look through the few works saved by the author, comprising 70,700 lines, to see if they are really any good, with a view to try and gain their address of the writer is then given, and we are informed that a portrait of him, as well as his manuscripts, may be seen at the studio of the Brighton photographer. By the last accounts no one had responded to the appeal.

A canary bird at Virginia, Nevada, five years of age, had never sung a note. About a week ago its owner requested a friend to get some chloroform and kill the bird, as bo believed it was either dumb or troubled with some impediment of the vocal organ. There is hardly a canary note in its song. It now sings daily,

A FRIEND AT COURT .- One Grant, a Sootchman, was in the service of the great Frederick of Prussia, and was observed one day fondling the King's favorite dog. "Are you fond of dogs?" asked Frederick. "No, please your Majesty," replied Grant; "but we Scotch have a saying that it is right to secure a friend at court." "You "You are a sly tollow," said the monarch. "Re-collect for the future that you have no occasion for any friend at court but myself." Grant rose afterward with great rapidity, and was entrusted with the command of the most important fortresses in the kingdom.

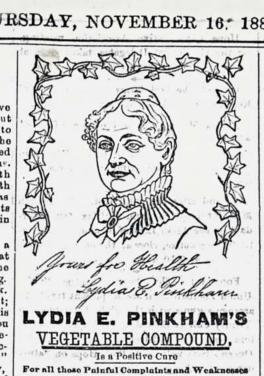

"As a matter of fact," says Lady Gregory of Arabi Pasha?-'I believe him to be exceed. ingly gentle and humane. An English official, one of the fairest of his class said to 'He has too much of the gentleness of me: the fellah, and too little of the brute in him to succeed. If he would take lessons in brutality at 100 frances a week, he would have a much better chance of getting on.' * * * I do not understand Arabic, the only language spoken by Arabi, so could not judge of his eloquence. It is said to be striking, and his words well chosen. His intimate knowledge of the Koran and all the literature of his religion, including our own Old Testameut books, will account for this, just as a lifelong study of the English Bible is said to lend force and vigor to the language of one of our own great orators. He speaks very earnestly, looking you straight in the face with honest eyes, I have an entire befief in his truthfulness; partly from his manner, partly because from every one, without exception, who had known him long or watched his careersome of then members of the viceregal family-I heard on the point the same re-port-'He is incapable of speaking untruth.' The Salvation Army in England, though apposed to perform merely military functions of a spiritual character, have been showing a disposition to use the weapons of the flesh. At a place called Yeovil, on a Sunday recently, Gen. Booth's troops fought the police, and succeeded in giving the guardians of the peace the worst of it. The newspaper report states that one Salvationist "cut open a youth's head."

Wheeler's Compound El xir of Phosphat's and Calisaya, and we must, in justice to the Doctor, state that it is quite equal, if not superior, to any compound of the kind. We have used it in the first stages of pythisis with marked benefit, as also in eases of severe dyspepsia, where everything else had failed, and in many other affections. It is a pleasant preparation, and may be taken for a long time without 'palling' on the stomach."

The doctrine is held by a few Polish Jews that a good man may sell his claim upon heavon. This belief is based on the Rab. binical proverb, "Good deeds buy the future world," which is interpreted by most Jews to mean that by doing good any one may scenre for himse f happy immorality. Harris Udoviteb, of Troy, bargained to buy Louis Cohen's heavenly claim for $150, but Cohen backed out of the agreement, and the result was a fracas which sent Udovitch to jail.

Popular belief in the wisdom of vaccination has received a severe blow in a part of Germany, where a large number of children, both those vaccinated for the first time and others re-vaccinated after an interval of twelve years, have fallen dangerously ill, the flesh about the punctured part decoving and sloughing off, and the bodies being covered with sores and boils. It is thought unlikely that a single one of the affected children will recover. Impure virus appears to have been the cause of this unfortunate result.

A discovery is reported in the Agricultural Gazette of Vienna which opens up a new career to the potato. It seems that the humble tuber can be transformed into a material for the manufacture of meerschaum pipes of the very choicest quality by the simple operation of boiling it for thirty-six hours in a certain chemical solution, and squeezing it afterward in a press till what-ever moisture it may contain has been extracted. The residnum is then declared to be "a bare block of a delicate creamy white hue, in every respect as suitable to the manufacture of ornamental and artistically exe-cuted pipe heads as the finest clay." The The potato thus treated is also found to be an excellent substitute for ivory, in the manufacture of such articles as brush and umbrella handles, fane, and chessmen,

A London daily newspaper, in a recent editorial on the death of Mr. Chahot, the expert on hand-writing, says: "Brothers frequently write singularly like each other, and any one who has paid the slightest attention to the subject cannot fail to notice the broad peculiarities which the caligraphy of certain people possesses in common. There is no mistaking the plain, expansive, clearly formed letters of those who have been taught to write in the schools of America. The admirable handwritings of the Scandinavians are so much alike that experts will be able to pick out from a hundred examples almost every one executed by a Dane, or Norwegian, or a Swede. The Italian handwriting is also so marked that it is one of the "styles" effected by writing masters, and the pretty, scratchy characters of a Frenchman, with their flourishes and sudden redundancies, inevitably suggest the gay, volatile, fickle charactes of the race to which he belongs."

It is the swell thing in Paris now to pass the hours after midnight at Gruber's German beer saloon, drinking beer and eating cheese. The fastest man in society aro to be seen nightly. This beer of Gruber's has a history. The brawery is at Strasburg, and its beer was exhibited at the Exposition of '78 as a product of France. The original Gruber was a medical student, who not being permitted by the college regulations to enter the taverns in the town, succeeded in concocting in his laboratory a palatable beverage which was highly approved by his friends. So famous did this amateur brewer become that he was persuaded to take another student, one Rieb, into partnership. These two eventually obtained the lease of an old browery in the neigh-borhood of Strasburg, and gave up medicine for malt. They were successful beyond expectation, and soon the "Chemists Beer," as their brew was at first called, became famous all over France.

To Promulgate the Truth.

The way to get a thing believed by the public at large is to first have a truth to announce without any doubt or suspici n as to its being the truth, and then to keep on telling by speech and pen, by type and figure, in every way repeating it constantly. Thus it was that when the Louisiana State Lottery was incorporated in 1868 at New Orleans, for charitible and educational pu-poses, there was a doubt that the managers would act as fairly as they announced, but the fact that Gen'ls G. T. Beauregard of La., and Jubal A. Early of Va., have the sole supervision of the drawings removes this suspicion, and it has been proven up to the 150th monthly drawing on Nov. 14th, that millions have been distributed to parties applying to M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La., in sums ranging as high as $100,000, and so on down. Tickets cost $5, but fifths are sold at $1, each, and the certainty of the event is supplemented by the knowledge that some one will get $75,000, or fractional parts thereof. Who will it be?

"Oh, no," said the other, "I protest against exchanges: for if you preach better than myself my people won't like me after you, and if you preach worse you ought never to preach again.

A gentleman going late at night through a somewhat dangerous locality was suddealy set upon by four ruffians, who not only demanded his money, but began to knock him about. Clearing himself for a moment, the gentleman quietly backed against the wall, and, with great presence of mind drew a revolver from his coatpocket. The instant the rascals heard the click of the cock the whole four of them took to their heels like lightning, descriptions of impurities, and to oure, or exclaiming as they ran, "Oh, the mean

Ax old leather pocket-book, containing a sum of money and some papers, was lost last week between Mitchell's Gardens and the Royal Hotel. The finder is asked to return it to Mr. Thos. Long, Parsons' book store.

THE "Weekly Health Bulletin" gives the following percentages of the six diseases most prevalent in this district :- Bronchitis, 10.5; influenza, 8; diarrhosa, 7; neuralgia, 6.5; consumption. 6; anæmia, 4.

The Ontario Gazette contains this week a notice of the appointment of Mr. John Galbraith, M. A., Professor of Engineering, son of Mr. Thos. Galbraith of this town, and an Port Hope "boy," as a member of the Provincial Board of Health of Ontario.

More changes in the High School regulations have been announced. Drawing is removed from the obligatory subjects, and an option is allowed candidates for examination between Goldsmith's "Traveller" and "Marmion", parents or guardians having the right to make the selection.

Edward Hanlan it is said, is about to leave Toronto and take up his abode in New York. It is also stated that, he has signified his intention of becoming a United States citizen. Thus in the history of aquatics the glory of his truly wonderful career can henceforth be claimed by Yankees, who all Mong have envied Canada on his account.

The Globe of Monday discovers to its readers a telephone line which "unbeknowns" to any one, had been constructed between Montreal and Toronto. The line exists only in the imagination of the stupid Globe editor. The connection between Toronto and Port Hope is about complete, but the extension further east than Cobourg is not proposed at present.

THE Committee on Town Property met yesterday afternoon to consider the proposed enlargement of the Town Hall. An amicable agr ement was come to, and it was decided to go on with the work at once. The Hall will be extended to the east, and improvements made in the butter market. Already several applications have been received by parties wishing to rent the Hall when completed.

A "shooting" party went out to Bethany on Thanksgiving Day in quest of squirrel, rabbit and other game. The Winkle of the party saw a rabbit and shot at it, but instead of injuring the rodent mammal killed a dog some distance away, put several grains of shot in one of his "pard's" lower limbs, and another through the left car of a third party. He was not asked to try again in order to already signified their intention of joining. succeed. Another gentleman belonging to the same set of fusileers, in his excitement while loading with both eyes on the game, put the shot in first, the paper second, and the powder last of all. Fortunately for Her Majesty's service, the charge did not go off backwards, and the entire party has been Bengough, and is generally regarded as spared to go shooting another time.

pera houses in Peterboro' and Lindsay. Mr. Bradburn has men engaged on the extension of the Town Hall in Lindsay, which he is transforming into an opera house, and the brick work on it has been commenced. He has not yet accepted the offer which he has received from Port Hope, but has the matter under consideration .- Peterboro' Review.

Hox. J. C. Dutcher, U. S. Consul here, supplies the following figures as to the principal items of exports from this Consular district which includes Port Hope and Cobourg. These are for the six months ended with September last, as under:-

THE dynamite which passed through here last week had to be drawn on wagons all the way to Fenelon Falls, as the trainmen refused to carry it. Referring to this, the Omemee Herald remarks:-" For our part, we'd just about as soon take hold of the comet's tail for a ride as be jolted on a load of this material from Port Hope to Fenelon Falls."

REGARDING the promotion of Judge Clark and the appointment in his place of Judge Benson, the Cobourg World says :- "We have no hesitation in saying that the public will regard these appointments as most excellent ones. Judge Clark is well known here, and has always given the utmost satisfaction in the discharge of his duties as junior judge, and the appointment which he has now received was his by right of succession. As to Judge Benson, we have no doubt his appointment will prove equally satisfactory, as he is, both on professional and on personal grounds, eminently well qualified for the position. We hope shortly to welcome him as a citizen of the County Town. We compliment both of these gentlemen on the distinction which has thus been conferred upon them."

SHORTHAND CLASSES .- There is a strong feeling amongst a number in town in the direction of acquainting themselves with the principles and practice of stenography. The desirability, if not the actual necessity; of acquiring this art as an aid to business is pressing itself more and more on the attention of business and professional men. An effort has been made to secure the services of Mr. Thos. Bengough, of Toronto, to give lessons in Port Hope. Mr. B. has consented to come, providing a sufficient number of pupils can be obtained to remunerate him for his trouble. His terms are $7 for the complete course, class tuition; or $8, private tuition. There is no reason why a large class could not be established here, quite a number having Those desirous of becoming members of the class, or taking private lessons, will confer a favor by leaving their names at THE TIMES office, or at the Mechanics' Institute, as early as possible. Isaac Pittman's system is the one taught by Mr. the most complete.

Japanese paper was used for the occasion, with pleasing effect. The members of the company were delighted with the atteation paid them, and testified their appreciation by singing in Mr. Mackie's private parlor several choruses, Miss Lawrence and Mr. Loudin also giving choice solos in a charming manner.

FISK JUBILEE SINGERS.

The Music Hall has not been so crowded since the memorable public meeting last spring as it was last Saturday night with those anxious to hear the famed Jubilee Singers, on their third visit to Port Hope. Mr. E. Shepherd, who "played" them here, has been very successful, so far, in securing good houses and superior talent to entertain them. It is not necessary to go into details as to the Fisk Jubilee programme. It is made up principally of "slave songs," and of a character very similar to that presented at their previous visit. The success of their singing depends on several distinctive features-the peculiar character of their songs, full of rich, wild melody; the earnestness and expression which is thrown into their rendition; perfectness of modulation, and the sympathy which their songs excite. On Saturday evening all were more than pleased -they were delighted with the singing; and the applause at times almost assumed the character of an ovation. Several songs elicited double encores. The members of the troupe are Christian ladies and gentlemen, and are doing a splendid work for their race, in striving to procure means for their education and refinement. They have already spent out of their earnings over $160,000 towards this end.

EALSIFYING ON PRINCIPLE.

The News says THE TIMES lies on principle. We are willing to trust to the verdict of the public on that score, but, grant it for argument's sake. In that case the difference between ourselves and our contemporary would be, that we lie on principle, and he lies without any regard to set rules-even where the truth would be of much greater advantage to himself. For proof of this see sworn declaration in another column. In his illustrated edition of last week he says it was talked of by those who burned his effigy, to burn with it that of Rev. Mr. McDiarmid. With the other insinuations against Coun. Winslow, this must also fall to the ground. Constable Gamble, it is said, prevented a boy from throwing a stale herring at the procession. This, according to Constable Gamble, is another-what-might-you-call-it? We have not space to enumerate all the instances where the erratic principle of lying is evidenced in last week's News, but will simply add that it is well, even in the matter of falsifying, to have some principle to work on. The number of times our contemporary has "put his foot in it" lately, makes it a question in the public mind whether the picture of an ass in the News might not have more truthfully represented some one else than the person and his workmanship is appreciated in Maniwhose name is given.

Hope do. Our report was a much more com-plete one than used by the Guide, and, more than that, did not contain anything which the lecturer did not say. If the editor of the Review feels hurt, or imagines that the honor of Peterboro' is at stake, we herewith make all due acknowledgments. Our humblest apologies, together with a dose of Wells' Health Renewer, ought to set our Peterboro' contemporary in good running order again.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Mr. McDiarmid preaches his "farevell" sermon next Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Gaudrie, of Brechin, spent last Sunday in Port Hope.

The Rev. William Mitchell, formerly of Millbrook, will occupy the pulpit of Mill Sr. church, on Sabbath next.

We have been informed that the celebrated 'Jersey Lily" is a cousin of our townsman. Capt. Robins.

Mr. Arthur O'Leary, barrister. of Lindsay, has been appointed Police Magistrate of that town in the stead of J. W. Dunsford, whose demise we noticed recently.

Mr. John Tamblyn, First Deputy-Reeve of the Township of Hope, is now almost entirely confined to his house. His many friends regret his illness.

Mr. Richard Westaway, of Port Hope, recently sent Mrs. John Kirkpatrick a beautiful tea set of china. This gift was ordered for her wedding gift, but has only recently come to hand .- Millbrook Messenger.

A contemporary announces that Mr. Jas. R. Stratton, of the Peterboro' Examiner, is favorably spoken of as the Reform candidate in West Peterboro', in opposition to Mr. Carnegie, of the Review.

Mr. H. W. Webber, for some months in the Bank of Commerce here, left last week for Lucan, where he occupies a similar position in the Bank there. Mr. Webber made many friends while here.

Mr. Thos. Galbraith, of the Toronto Globe, who has been laid up for mome time with a severe attack of typhoid fever, has been pending a few days with his friends here. We are glad to state he has entirely recovered, and is fast regaining his strength. We were pleased to receive a call from Mr. J. J. Heaslip, formerly of Bailieboro' but now of the North-West, where he has taken up a large farm, upon which he has been working all summer with satisfactory results. Mr. Heaslip left us a lump of coal, taken from the vicinity of the Souris River, Range 6, Township No. 1, 150 miles southwest of Brandon.

Mr. John Rogers, son of Mr. Wm. Rogers, of this town, is progressing well in Winnipeg. He was one of the contractors for the new residence of Lieut.-Governor Cauchon. He is now a partner of the firm of Wilson & Rogers, who were awarded the contract for building the new Baptist Church at Winnipeg. The cost of this edifice will be large, and it will have a seating capacity of 1,300. Mr. Rogers' ability as a builder is well known, toba.
