TOWN COUNCIL.

Short, Quiet Meeting -Straightening Cavan Street-Court of Revision Ap-pointed.

Town HALL, MONDAY, Oct. 9th. Monday night's session of Council was a Present—The Mayor, Couns. W. G. Stevenson, A. W. Pringle, J. G. King, H. H. Burnham, F. M. Beamish, and Wm. McKee. BY-LAWS.

A By-law to raise money to meet current expenses was read three times. A By-law to appoint a Court of Revision was read three times and passed. A By-law to appoint a Harbor Commissioner was read a first time.

STRAIGHTENING CAVAN STREET. Coun. King said that, upon more mature thought, he had decided not to put the Bylaw, to straighten Cavan Street, before the Council. Mr. Walling, with whom the only difficulty lay, was willing to leave the matter to arbitration, without putting the town to the expense of advertising, etc.: accordingly he had a resolution providing for the arbitration as suggested. Mr. Walling had chosen Mr. Nathan Choate, and he would suggest the name of Mr. John Mulligan as the arbitrator, these two to decide what compensation, if any, was due Mr. Walling, and in case they could not agree to appoint a

The question as to who should bear the expense of the arbitration was brought up.
Coun. King thought the town should, as it was hardly fair to ask a man to pay for an arbitration deciding upon how much compensation he should receive for his own land. There was not a shadow of evidence to prove what are the proper limits of Cavan Street. Couns. Burnham and Stevenson and others thought the expenses should be shared

The Mayor thought the Council were pursuing a wrong course in settling the matter in this way. They were leaving themselves open. If Mr. Walling received compensation for land, all other parties who had moved back their fences on Cavan Street would have a perfect right to expect compen-sation too. All should be used alike.

Coun. Stevenson said that the present state of Cavan Street was an eye sore, and should be straightened at any cost. The resolution was left over for another meeting for further consideration.

A SPLENDID SURPLUS.

It was announced the other day by the Mail's Ottawa correspondent that the Dominion surplus for the present fiscal year will amount to within a small fraction of $8,000,000. It is needless to expatiate on the matter; it speaks a tale for itself. It will be quite in order for the Opposition to set up a howl about the money which has been ruthlessly extracted from the pockets of the people. If deficits are good for the people, why is it that they have always been linked with hard times and surpluses with prosperity? It must be a matter of exceeding gratification to those financiers who inaugurated a wise policy under most inauspicious circumstances to find that that administrative policy has produced effects far in excess of what was even hoped for. The surplus is yearly growing larger, and it will require not so many years under Conservative fule to clear the country of debt entirely.

BOUND TO GET MARRIED.

Trials of a Young Couple from Port Hope

(Cobourg Sentinel-Star.) On Tuesday morning last a young man and woman, the former apparently about twenty years of age, and his companion, who was rather prepossessing, some few years his senior, arrived in town, and attracted considerable notice from the loving attention they paid each other. They came from Port Hope, or its vicinity. After sauntering around the town a little while, the young man went into Mr. Wilson's store and procured a marriage license. No doubt the intention of himself and companion was to seek out one of our ministers, and have the knot tied which would unite two loving hearts together forever. But the course of true love never did run smooth, and this time it was interrupted by the appearance upon the scene of

of the young man, who objected to the match. The old lady immediately began to upbraid the young girl, and her language was not very choice, either. The unusual sight soon drew a crowd of the curious around them, but the sympathy was all with the two who wished to enter into a closer relationship than existed between them. While the angry mother was so industriously exercising her tongue, the young couple jumped into the buggy and started off amid the cheers of the crowd and a volley of stones thrown after the retreating vehicle by the old lady, which was returned in a truly filial manner by the young lady tossing a kiss to her future mother-in-law. This so exasperated the latter that she followed after the buggy, calling upon her liege lord to "catch them, catch them; don't you see they're running away!' The old gent did not hurry an inch, but quietly remarked to the crowd, "It is my nature to keep cool, but if my feelins are stirred then I can fight, burn or kill." And so he thought he wouldn't catch them just then, especially as the runaways were some distance in advance, and had a good horse in front of them, while he was dependent upon shank's mare, and the young couple were soon seen disappearing over Boulton's hill, with an irate female following a long distance in the rear. They got married in Grafton, and came back looking very happy. The old couple were on the look-out for them, but it was too late then to make opposition of any avail, and the young people started for home; and it is hoped their troubles have ceased forever, although another volley of stones from the mother followed them.

WHY THE UNION EXHIBITION WAS A FAILURE.

Our exhibition was not the only one in the Province which proved to be failures. In many papers we read reports similar to our own of last week. There are a few general, and a few particular reasons for this.

In the first place, the number of exhibitions and quality of the exhibits have made people, generally, tired of them.

The season of the year was unfavorable, the harvest being late a great deal of fall work was on hand, and farmers could not The Directors of the Union Exhibition did not put enough energy into the enterprise, trusting too much to people "to come any-It was not properly advertised or talked about. People knew very little about it, and seemed to care less. What is wanted, if a continuation is desired, is to appoint a spirited Board of Directors, lay down a good plan of action, and if possible, concentrate the energies of the County or Counties into one good first-class show, keeping it so constantly before the minds of the people, so that everybody in the county will be sure to be there. Either do that or give up altogether. Such as we had last week was farcical in the extreme.

The market on Saturday was a very fair one. Vegetables of the season were plentiful, and all brought good prices. In fruit, apples were the only kind in abundance, and these could be obtained cheaply, considering that apples are very scarce in all parts of the Pro. vince: 25c. to 45c. per barrel was paid. All other marketable commodities were scarce and dear, the ruling prices being given in our market report.

A good deal of complaint is made by merchants because they are prevented from buying before eleven o'clock, while others, wholesale buyers, can come in and gobble up everything. They wasider that it is neither fair to themselves, or the people of the town. Just how to readjust matters is a puzzler. If merchants were allowed to buy at any time, the town people would "kick:" if the other buyers were prevented the farmers would "kick," and as it is, both merchants and townspeople are "kicking." The farmers have the "bull by the horns" in either case. The grain market is lively, and the grain buyers are kept busy. One dealer bought over 5,000 bushels of wheat and barley yesterday. Barley is making the buyers a little sick, on account of the come down in prices: it dropped four cents yesterday, and to-day the market will stand at 70 cents. Some interesting facts concerning the Oswego market will be found elsewhere. Wheat is brisk, and remains steady at the regular quotations found in our market report.

A Fire.

Port Hope has been remarkably free of late from the ravages of fire. On Tuesday night about 12 o'clock, however, the fire bell rang out an alarm, and a fire was discovered on Protestant Hill. A vacant house belonging to Mr. Jas Moffat, on Harcourt street was burned to the ground, the fire being too far advanced before the chemical engine arrived. With the exception of a few articles of not much value which were stored in it. nothing was burned but the house. There was no insurance and the loss is estimated at between $300 and $400. No doubt exists regarding the fire being the work of incendiaries-it certainly was, and it is to be hoped the dastards will yet be found out.

PROF. WILLIAMS is now moved into his new quarters, Queen's Hotel block, and has fairly got to work again. He claims to lishment in Port Hope. 15-tf

A FEARFUL CATASTROPHE.

Four Bollers Burst, and Several men Killed, in Mr. R. C. Smith's M lis, at Longford.

ORILLIA, Oct. 7 .- This morning a dreadful explosion took place at Longford Mill, the property of Mr. R. C. Smith. Upon proceedman, has resigned his position to resume his ing to the spot the mill was found to have medical studies at the Queen's University, been blown to atoms. The heavy boilers, four in number, were thrown in all direct-Mr. James E. Harvey, of Orono, was in jons. One was heaved about 100 feet from town this week. He is anxious to secure a its site, whilst the other was thrown about comfortable country residence near Port 200 feet into the Lake. Bricks, shingles, etc., were strewn all around the yard. This mill was thoroughly repaired in the spring, Mr. D. H. Scott called on us yesterday. but the boilers were old ones. There are He is buying horses west of Toronto for the somewhere about thirty-five men employed in Manitoba market, and will return to the running it. The facts as far as can be learned are that the pump was in a very bad order and did not work well. It was repaired the previous night, but the opinion seems to be resigned his position as Bridge Inspector of that the explosion occurred by the de ect in this pump. The mill had been nicely run-ning in the morning. When the explosion occurred, first the steam guage burst. Some who have been under his charge with a hand- of the hands ran to see what was the matter, and the cause having been remedied they walked quietly away. A few moments after this a sound was heard like the boom of a cannon, which was rapidly followed by another. The boilers had exploded, the roof being blown off, little damage was done to accompanied by Mrs. White, and we trust they will have a safe journey and pleasant witnessed a scene of wo ful carnage. Two men were instantly killed and four badly wounded. The names of the former were Fred Grey and Ned Ellis (the fireman). Grey had been standing outside the mill, when, as it would appear, a splinter of iron struck him in the back of the head, severing the top of the head above the ears and completely carry-ing it away. His eye was also gouged out, and his corps altogether presented a ghastly appearance. The body of Eilis was terribly battered. His shoulder and chest was almost beaten into a jelly. When found he was lying on a portion of the roof that had been heaved into the yard. The names of those seriously injured are David Roberts, Archy McFaden, Harry Grey, brother of the deceased, and Dongal McFaden. Very little hopes is entertained for Roberts. Dougal McFaden, the watchman, was lying in bed in an almost unconscions state when visited. His wound was filled with bair all matted and bloody and with ashes from the fire boxes.

AN EXCURSION IN THE MID-LAND OFFICIAL CAR.

An excursion in the Midland Railway official car took place on Saturday, under the auspices of Mr. A. Hugel, to Midland and Penetanguishene. The party consisted of Mr. Hugel and family; Col. and Mrs. Graveley, of Cobourg; Mr. Angel, England; Miss Angel, of Mobile, Alabama; Mr. Yarker, Manager of the Bank of Montreal, Toronto; Mr. Cockburn, late Principal of the Upper Canada College; Col. Joyce, of the 19th Hussars; H. A. Ward, Esq., and others. They arrived at Midland in the evening, drove to the Georgian Bay Hotel, Penetanguishene, and remained there over night. On Sunday they visited Midland City, returning by the steamer Minnie Hall, kindly placed at their disposal by the British Canadian Timber and Lumbering Company. After inspecting the elevator at Midland, the following day a trip was taken to Lake Renee, named after one of Mr. Hugel's daughters, The party then visited Waubaushene, being conveyed thither by the steamer Marshall Murray, tendered for their use by the Georgian Bay Lumbering Co. At Waubaushene they inspected the Company's mills, the finest in the Province. While there they were entertained at the newly erected house of Mr. Arthur Dodge, of New York. This gentleman's residence is a marvel of beauty, being erected at a large expense. The interior is finished entirly in native woods. The party returned to Port Hope on Monday evening, highly delighted with their trip.

THE entire Port Hope fleet came into harbor yesterday morning. The vessels are loading lumber and grain.

A large load went down Tuesday night to Cobourg to hear Dr. Vincent on "That Boy." The compliment was returned by a very large load from Cobourg last night to hear about "That Boy's Sister."

THE election of School Trustee to filt the vacancy in the School Board took place pesterday. Mr. Wm Gibson was chosen by acclamation, and we have no doubt he will prove a valuable acquisition to that august

Some evil disposed persons, supposed to be ome over zealous advocates of the early closing movement on, Thursday night last poured a quantity of melted tar on Messrs. A. & T. Wickett's shop windows. That the Messrs. Wickest will not fall in with the other merchants on the question of early closing, is no excuse for introducing a system of boycotting to force them. Such an act is about the meanest thing on record.

Oh, let the soul its slumbers break—Arouse its senses and awake
To see how soon
Life, in its footsteps, glides away,
And the firm footsteps of decay Come stealing on.

And while we view the rolling tide
Down which our precious minutes glide
Away so fast,
Let us the present hour Employ.
And deem each future aream a joy Already past.

Let no vain hope deceive the mind, No happier let us hope to find To-morrow than to-day; Our golden dreams of yore were bright, Like them the present shall delight-Like them decay. Our lives like hastening streams must be

That into the engulfing se Are doomed to fall-The sea of dosth, whose waves roll on O'er king and ki-gdom, crown and throne, And swallows all. Alike the river's lordly tide, Alike the humble revulots glide

To that s d wave;
Death levels poverty and oride,
The rich and poor sleep side by side
Within the grave.

Our birth is but a starting place; Life is the running of the race, And death the goal; There all our glittering toys are brought— That path alone, of all unsought, Is found of all.

See, then, how poor and little worth Are all those glittering toys of earth That lure us here— Dreams of a sleep that death must break; Alas! before it bids us wake, We disappear. Long ere the damp of earth can blight,
The cheek's poor glow of red and white
Has passed away;
Youth smiled, a d all was heavenly fair—
Age came and aid his finger there—

And where are they?

Where is the strength that spurned decay. The steps that roved so light and gay, The heart's blithe tone? The strong h is gone, the step is slow,
And joy grows wearisome with woe
When age comes on.

MILLER JIM'S DAUGHTER.

"Yes, that's the old mill over there! Kind of purty and romantic-looking, aint it? But it seems awful lonesome to us folks as knew it full of life and just piling in the grists all day long. That there water-wheel hadn't to stop for repairs in them days; it just buzzed along all the time, and the teams stood around, and you'd see the boys comin' up the hill ridin' an old mare, with a great sack of grain thrown over her instead of a saddletrit-trot, trit-trot, and a half-grown, barefooted boy on her neck-folks allus sent a boy to mill in those days, if they had one. And you see that old house? There's where Miller Jim and his daughter lived. We boys used to cast sheep's eyes over at that door, I tell you, and when she'd come and look out kind of unconscious like and purtend not to see us, but shade her eyes with her hand and look away down the valley, it was just as if an angel from Heaven had lit down there. Purty? Why, there wa'n't a chap in Sugar Valley that didn't think she the handsomest gal in the world, and when she smiled on any of us with that kind of sort of sweet insinuatin' way she had, we'd just have walked on hot plowsheers for her and drawed lots for the privi-

"What are ye figurin'? a sketchin' the ruin? Well, ye don't see any ruin there, but that of the senseless wood and stone. The ruin was made by one of your painter chaps, darn his picter! If I could have held his head in the mill-race for half an hour, I'd have died happy-and that's what makes me cry now like a poor, weak critter. I interduced him to her; he was a moovin' round here gettin' sketches, as he called 'em, of the valley, and I may as well own up he was a nice, smart-looking, wellspoken chap, and paid his way liberally. They said he was only working for amusement, and so it turned out, and one day I told him he hadn't ever seen the prettiest picter in the place, and I said it was Miller Jim's daughter, and he'd ought to see her. The next Sunday I was at the church and so was the painter chap, and we happened to sit together, and when the choir sang there was one voice that kind of carried the tune along. I knew it well, and it made me tremble all over with happiness, and the stranger listened and ssys he, in a whisper, 'What a heavenly voice.'

"'Yes,' sez I, 'and its her; the one in the straw bonnet and white veil, the girl that's singin' air-that's Miller Jim's darter.'4

" After church nothing would do but I must interduce him-which I did-God forgive me, and he walked by her and carried her book just as if he allus had known her, but then her father was with them, only he wasn't of any account, kind of shiftless, believed everybody honest, till he found them out, and then he would kinder apologize for them, and he'd lend money as long as he had a penny in his pocket, if anyone made up a good story, and never locked a door, or took over toll, or made a sharp bargain; kind of witless and foolish, with a soft heart that allus kept him poor, though I don't know as he ever wanted anything much." "Well beauty is a misfortune, if the grace of God doesn't go with it. Nobody suspicioned ennything wrong when all to oncet it came over us like a thunder-blast. The miller's girl was gone; gone with the painter chap, but we never knew how or where. There was more than one of us that was goin' to ask Miller Jim about it, but when we come to look in his face we just didn't say anything. The miller was a changed man; he'd allers had a smile and a pleasant word for us boys-he wasn't ever what you would call jolly, but he had his little quite joke3—they were the same old ones over and over, but we expected em. Now, he had a look in his face as if something inside was dead; and his lips that used to be kind of smiling and foolish, they were shut like a vise, and he never mentioned her name to living mortal.

"And he got sort of absent-minded -forgot to take toll from a widow's grist-used to stop little children and kiss them or pat them on their heads, and there was allus a tear just falling from his eyes-cold, I 'spose, 'cause he didn't take any care of himself; and then he took a good bit of notice of a little child-a pretty little mit of a girl-that lived near, and one day he see her leaning out of an upstairs window and he run over and told her mother she would fall mebbe, and get hurt; the woman had an ugly temper and she says to him, says she: 'I kin take care of my own children, that's more then you could do with yours!' and he looked at her sort of still and white for a moment and turned away; the next day the mill warn't goin', nor the next, and on the third we looked, and found him in the race -but whether he slipped in or drowned himself of purpose, of course nobody can tell for sure. I've often looked into the face of handsome wimmen I'v seen, since then, and tried to find one that favored that gal of Miller Jim's, but for right down sweetness and rale beauty I've never seen her equal and how she could leave us all, as wo ld have died for her, is more than I can conceit. That's a rale good picter you've got of the mill, but you can't see the hull of it-there's two people there, when I look at it, and one of them is -I wish I had the trick of painting a picture from memory—she-why there's something in my eyes-it's the dampness I guess-this mill air allus does affect me just so."-

The Superintendent in Love.

Supt. E. J. O'Neill, of the Dominion Police Force, Ottawa, Canada, thus spoke to a representative of one of Ottawa's leading journals:-" I am actually in love with that wonderful medicine, St. Jacob's Oil. I keep it at home and likewise in my office, and though my duty should call me hence in an hour to journey a thousand miles, St. Jacob's Oil would surely be my companion. It is the most wonderful medicine in the world, without any exception, I believe. My entire family have been cured by it. We have used it for twenty different ail ments, and found it worth half a scere of doctors. My men here on the Dominion Police Force use it right along, and very justly think that there is nothing like it. I believe it is the long-sought Elixir Vite. and possesses the power of making the old young again. I know it often enlivens me, and although I am past fifty years of age I am, thanks to that wonderful agent, a live-

It was not long ago that an Irish peer, Lord Hehester, dined with a San Francisco swell. The good lady of the house had carefully drilled her darkey butler in regard to giving his L rdship his title. "You must say, Will you have this, my Lord?" or 'My Lord, can I assist you to this?' The servant got it off to perfection; but alse! when the dinner came off, and he passed behind Lord Hichester with the decanter, he said, with proud impressiveness, "My God, will you have some sherry?" This had an excellent effect; it destroyed the formality of the feast, put everyone in a good humor, and the affair passed along to a most pleasant conclusion.

There is a church in Michigan which been struck by lightning a dozen times, and now, whenever the preacher shows signs of getting long-winded and passing from his "seventhly" to an "eighthly," the organist slyly imitates the sound of approaching thunder on the pedals. The way that preacher dives into the "conclusion" and rushes through it and starts the doxology is a caution. The congregation would part with that organist for a million of dol-

There are, says the Baptist Weekly, several ways of giving a hint, and this is about as delicate a one as we have seen lately: "It is suggested that any church proposing to call Rev. — as pastor, will confer, before doing so, with brethren on his former fields of labor.'

THE FORCE OF HABIT .- Rector (recently appointed to a new parish, meeting an old man)-"Well, Thomas, this is a most healthy and beautiful spot, and people seem to live to a great age here. I should think folks hardly ever die here." Thomas-" Well, sir, it's generally the last thing they do.

A famous cheesemaker ordered pictures of his product from a Paris 1 hotographer. Ou seeing the proof, which was really very bad, he said: "This won't do, Confound you, my cheese never looked like that." "Ah, sir," said the photographer, "but you see it moved.

A chaplain of the late Duchess of Queensberry, when talking Scotch one day at table, was told by her grace that he would not say anything in Scotch that she would not understand. "Well, my lady," he re-plied, "what's twa neivefu's o' clarts?" Her grace was at a loss, and desired him to explain. He said that "twa neivefu's o' clarts are just a gowpen o' glaur."

Oscar Wilde says the people all over the South sang in his ears the old melancholy refrain: "You ought to have seen it before the war." "I was sitting on the portico of a country house," he said, "with a young lady, admiring the beauty of a limpid stream under the rays of the moon, and I said to the young lady: 'How beautiful is the moonlight falling on the water!' 'It is beautiful, indeed,' she replied; 'but ah! Mr. Wilde, you ought to have seen it before the war.'" fore the war.'

A one-legged political orator named Jones, who was pretty successful in bantering an Irishman, was asked by the latter "how he had come to lose a leg." "Well," said Jones, "on examining my pedigree, and looking up my descent, I found there was some Irish blood in me, and becoming convinced that it had all settled in the left leg, I had it cut off at once." "Be the powers," said Pat, "it 'ud have been a deuced good thing if it had only settled in yer head.

A REHARKABLE CASE.

W. A. Edgers, of Frankville, suffered from a disease of the Liver and Kidneys, that brought him so low that his life was despaired of; he lay for ten and thirteen days without an operation of the bowels; after taking one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters he was enabled to leave his bed and drive out, three bottles more completed a cure, and he says that he is now a better man than he has been for twenty years.

Squire F-County, New York State. He took into his employ at one time a newly imported Irishman, who was unacquainted with some rural modes of expression. The squire had a yoke of fine oxen, and one day told Mike, who was working them, to "bait" them and then come into dinner. Dinner was about half finished when Mike entered, his face betraying unusual exertion. squire didn't notice this, but happened to think of the oxen. "Mike," said he, " did you bait the oxen?"

"Dade," replied he, "an' I bate one of them till he lay down, he did, an' I just thought I'd be after gettin' me dinner, an' I would go out and bate the ither one!"

Warning!

We regret that it is necessary to warn the public against so-called respectable fruggists, who for a few coats additional p offt are palming off a dangerous and flesh-eating substitute for that great remedy, PUTNAN's PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR. As Putnam's is a simple, purely vegetable compound, and non-poisonous in composition, no surprise need be felt that serious results have attended the use of caust c applications substituted as above for the genuine "CORN ENTRACTOR" N. C. POLSON & CO., Pre prietors, Kingston.

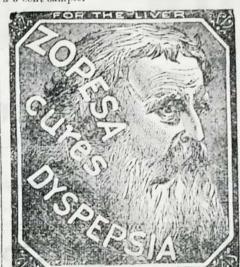

"Happy Jack" of Peterboro' got up a mock-deer hunt at Lakefield. He trailed a piece of roasted beef from a hotel away into a swamp, when hounds were let free to follow up the scent. They did so and when found again they had "Happy Jack" and his beef up a tree. Had not a hunt been made for him in all probability he would have staid up a long time.

The Franklin correspondent of the Omemee Herald says that the Midland railway authorities have taken precantions as to the bridge there where the late fatality occurred Two poles have been erected about one hundred yards from the bridge on each side, across which a wire is stretched, and several ropes are suspended from this which can just strike the unwary brakeman on the head, thus giving him warning of his danger. He understands this plan has been adopted with all other bridges of the same character on the line.

*. "" Unbidden guests are often welcomest when they are gone." Disease is an unbidden guest which Kidney-Wort almost invariably "shows the deer." Here is a case in point: "Mother has recovered." wrote an Illinois girl to her Eastern relatives. "She took bitter for a long time, but without any good. So when she heard of the virtues of Kidney-Wort she got a box, and it completely cured her, so that she can do as much work now as she could before we moved West. Since she got well every one about here is taking it." A Frenchman bought an is'and off the coast of Australia for about $350, and announced his intention of founding a New France. The projector called himself a marquis, and succeeded in obtaining subscriptions amounting to 10,000,000 francs from colonists who joined in the expedition. The emigrants sailed in vessels bought with their own money, the "marquis" not accompanying them. When the colonists reached their destination, a desert, and not the rich soil and attractive surroundings promised, greeted them. Hunger and sickness killed many of them, and the rest were brought home by kind shipmasters. The projector meanwhile was organizing new enterprises. It was reported that engineers had found precious stones in the land of New France, and that agriculture was flourishing. More subscriptions poured in. Soon, however, the imposition was discovered. The "marquis is to be tried for manslaughter, embezz!ement, and for enrolling a military command in France-a body of one hundred soldiers who were to guard New France. Two fresh vessels were being equipped at Barcelona when he was arrested.

At Fifty Years.

It seems but yesterday since we set sali From our first port, our happy childhood's strand; Since then we've weathered many a stormy

And touched awhile at many a pleasant land. e are tried saliors now, and we can feel ow steadily our hands can guide the wheel.

But we go back no more—no, never more!
Over the waste of waters all in vain
We turn to gaze on childhood's happy shore;
Upon Life's sea no ship turns back again.
Ah, well! There have been tempests in the past,
And we are in the calm deep seas at last.

Now set all sails, the wind is soft and fair,
And sky is cloudless as in days of June;
After the merning's stormy fight and care,
How pleasant is the still, warm afternoon.
Now we may calmly work and calmly rest,
And watch the sun sink gradually to the west.

Full many a year we've been tossed to and But now the tempest and the care are o'er, And bright, though far away, the home lights

Why should we weep, though we return no The port from which we sailed lay cold and The haven that we seek no storm can know.

DID HE PROPOSE.

I couldn't do it," said Martyn Ellerslie, with a shudder. It was just the seductive hour before the gas jets are lighted and window blinds are pulled down-the delicious twilight, when grate fires shine like burning masses of ruby, and people sitting beside them grow mildly confidential. It was snowing a little outside; all the better, for the click of the crystalized pearls against the glass filled up the silence, and made the cosy warmth of the room luxuriously delightful. And Martyn Ellerslie's pleasant brown eyes, fixed full on the fire, saw-no one can tell what or how much they saw!

"Suppose she should say 'no,' " he burst out, seemingly apropos to nothing "Suppose she shouldn't," observed

Guy Barnes, dryly.
"I tell you, old fellow, it's exactly like having a tooth pulled out. Your friends stand by and say, 'Be aman; it's nothing!' It isn't they who are under the doctor's forceps."

"Complimentary to Miss Clen."
"Non-case. You know what I mean.
But really and truly, I've tried and I can't do it."

"Very well," said Barnes, indifferently; "then it is an understood thing that you are to live and die as an old bache-"I didn't say that."

"Oh, I beg pardon. You expect Fanny is going to propose to you; that's

"You are a heartless miscreant," Ellerslie cried out, half laughing, half impatient, as he sprang to his feet and tossed the remnant of his eigar into the fire, "and I shall not waste any more words upon you-unless, indeed, you'll go round to the fair with me."

Where Fanny Clen has a stand? Not if I know it! The money market is rather tight with me just at present, and these fancy fairs are no better than a den of robbers, where a defenceless young man is concerned."

And Martyn Ellerslie went on his way

The hall was all a glitter with gas-lights and fragrant with flowers when he got there; the pretty feminine sparks lurked each behind her table well laden, were all smiles and dimples, while the throng of victims ebbed and flowed around them.

Mr. Ellerslie found himself greeted with acclamations. "You will take a share, Mr. Ellers-

"Do please put your name down here, Mr. Ellerslie; there are only ten blanks

"Oh, Mr. Ellerslie, you are the very for you-seven is always a lucky num-signify?

"Mr. Ellerslie! don't, pray, spend all your money until you've taken a share in this mammoth doll, with a trunk full of clothes." And thus our hero was flung hither and you on the waves of the fair, drawing nearer, however, with every subscription, to the table over which shone the blue stars of Fanny Clen's eyes. But when he got there he was smitten with a sudden silence.

Fanny looked wonderingly up.

"It's a fine evening," he hazarded.
"Is it? asked Fanny. "Why, I thought it was snowing!"

"So it is," said our hero, growing very red, and overturning with his elbow a crimson Venetian flask (for which heimmediately had to pay a sovereign.)
"I—I mean it isn't a very fine even-

"Oh!" said Fanny.
"Yes," said Martyn, feeling acutely that he had made a donkey of himself.
Then he went away, and didn't see Fanny Clen again the whole evening probably because she was the only person in the whole room that he cared a fig about seeing at all. But so unkind is fate to love and lovers. Just as he was edging his way out of the place, in a very desperate and dejected frame of mind, there was a rush and a flutter, and he heard his own name called in all the notes of the human gamut.

"What is it?" he asked, vaguely staring around him.

"You've drawn the big doll!" cried little Sibyl Percy, dancing up to him, and laying in his arms the huge waxen abomination, with its flossy yellow curls and imposing pink and white complexion; while somebody else brought the big trunk and little band-box. "It's just like traveling with a wife," said Sibyl, mischievously.

"But what the -ahem! what am I to do with it?" asked our bewildered hero. "Give it to somebody," said Sibyl, in-wardly hoping he would act promptly on the suggestion and bestow the prize on her. "Any one would be delighted to see such a present."

"Do you think he would?" asked Mr. Ellerslie, vacantly. And then he went

"Great stupid fellow!" cried Sibyl, spitefully, and she tripped back to her table. "I never saw such a goose," said Lau-ra Barrington, who had three sisters of her own at home.

"But what am I to do with it?" said Martyn to himself, as he traversed the wintry gloom of the midnight streets.
"Oh, I have it! I'll give it to Fanny Cleu and she can make a Christmas present of it to her little black-eyed cousin!" He laid the doll, rejoicing, on a sofa, and went to bed, sinking into dreamland just about the time that Fanny Clen was taking the hair-pins out of her magnificent golden hair before the dressing bureau in her own apartment. "Why, Fanny, what ails you?" cried

Dora, her eldest sister. "You're crying!"
"I'm so tired," guiltily confessed poor

Fanny. And she wept herself to sleep, thinking how foolish she had been, and that of course Martyn Ellerslie didn't care a straw about her. Why should he?

Mr. Ellerslie rose the next morning full of his momentous resolve, and made such a toilet that the very landlady's little boy, seeing him go out with a big doll, neatly eneased in her pasteboard box, under his arm, ejected, profane-

"Oh, my eye, what a swell!" The black-eyed little cousin admitted

Yes, Cousin Fanny was at home -would he walk into the parlor?
And our hero, before he had fairly made up his mind in what terms to bestow his gift, found himself bowing to a fair-headed vision in a sunny little room, surrounded by heads of cut flow-

"How do you do, Mr. Ellerslie?" said Fanny, coloring and smiling; "I am making boquets, you see, for to-night."
"Exactly so," said Martyn, and then he reflected how much more appropriate a remark he might have made and turned very red. "Pray sit down," said Fanny.

"I—I—the fact is, Miss Cien." said

Mr. Ellerslie, plunging in sheer despera-tion into the midst of his subject; "I have called—I hope you won't be vexed -you have only to say so if you don't like it."

Fanny dropped her sprig of heliotrope and looked up in surprise. "I know it isn't of much consequence," went on Martyn, turning the pasteboard box round and round in confusion, "but if you'll accept it-I've known and esteemed you so long, and-"

The damask roses deepened on Fanny's fair face. It had come at last, then, the proposal she had anticipated so long and anxiously.

"Not of much consequence! Oh, Mr. Ellerslie!" she repeated reproachfully. "Would you care for it?" he demanded, quite oblivious in the embarrassment of the moment that he hadn't even named the gift.

"Care for it!" the tears sparkled into Fanny's eyes. "When you know that I love you, Martyn."

And she ran straight into the arms of our astonished hero.

When he went down the doorsteps he was an engaged young man, how and when he scarcely knew himself. And, as fate would have it the first personage against whom he tumbled was Guy Barnes.

"Hello!" said Guy. "What's up?" "Don't speak so loud," said Ellerslie, passing his arm through that of his "She's engaged to be my wife." "Who is? The divine Fanny, the fairest of her sex?" "Of course; who else should it be?" "But I thought you couldn't serew your courage up to the proposing mark?"

"I didn't propose."

Guy Barnes stared.

"You-didn't-propose! Then how could she have accepted you?"

"That's just what I can't exactly com-prehend myself," said the puzzled lover. We are engaged—that is certain—but I can't for the life of me remember when or how I proposed." "But of course you proposed," observed Guy. 'People always do get a little flurried you know."

"Do they? Well, I suppose that was the case with me. But I don't remem-"Oh, don't be such a ninny!" said Guy Barnes, impatiently. "I wish I could remember just what I said, though," observed Martyn. And even after he was duly married he never could quite recall whether he "Oh, Mr. Ellerslie, you are the very proposed or not. But as long as dear one we are waiting for. I ve kept seven little Fanny was all his own what did it Fate of an Acrobat.

We see no more good reason for making a stage business of such exercise as may develop one's physical health and strengthen the limbs, than for making a public business of keeping one's teeth and hands clean. What mother would wish her son to be a professional ropedancer or circus-tumbler-not to mention her daughter? Aside from the unnaturalness and debasing effect of such a life, the "accidents" to which even the best-trained and most experienced performers are liable are too frequent and of too sad a kind to be generally known. It is for the showman's interest to keep them secret.

When a "great show" recently came to the city of Brooklyn, a family group of three persons sat down together in the breakfast-tent. They were acrobats of unsurpassed agility and skill. A sadfaced woman, a young man of middle size, a girl just entering her teens.

There had been four of them prior to a recent performance, but the "star," an elder girl, the most daring of them all, had "missed her motion" in a feat of uncommon peril, and had fallen upon the receiving-net.

"She was but slightly injured," all were told who cared or thought to ask, but the little group at the table knew that she was dying.

They performed their parts, that day, as skilfully as ever, though with so much more weight than usual to carry, but when the evening exhibition was over, there were indeed, but three of them. The fourth had gone forever .-St. Nicholas.

A Charmed Serpent.

At a meeting in the chapel of one of the hill towns of this State, a short time since, while the lady was playing the cabinet organ, and the congregation singing a hymn, an adder some three feet long crawled out from under the organ, lifted his head, and apparently listened to the music. The lady had presence of mind to continue her playing till the hymn was sung.

Educate the masses, and the hewers of wood and the drawers of water will better citizens and produce better children, and the nation will be ultimately blessed—but educate.

"There, there, don't cry any more," said the kind-hearted stranger to a little girl who was leaning against the railing in front of a public school-house, weeping as if her heart would break. "Tell us what's the matter." The child turned two highly-inflamed orbs up at the good Samaritan, and then stammered, be-tween her sobs, "All the girls in my class were vaccinated last week, and mine's the only one that hasn't took."

Fitting Trousers and Thin Legs.

"Isn't it odd," writes Clars Belle, "how things go concurrently, to extreme in male and female dress? Just now, while the belles are pini-ming and pressing our arms, the beaux a edong the same thing to their dear little legs. New troosers are made on astonishing by merge lines and o dones cut down. I don't know how it is in ohio, but here in new York the young men' legs run tho and irregular. This statement is based upon public and casual observation. I have of lat frequently sat in an elevated railroad car, when some of the passengers had to stand, and we indeed in my immost soul how some of them continued to do it. When the car slews around a corner, an equilibrium has to be carefully radjusted, these at it supported chaps twist the two strands of logs into a single rope, and seem cer ain to go down in a heap with it coiled bene th them. These same fellows, I have no manner of doubt, would if on the front row of a theatre on a ballet night and make fun of legs twice as these and straight as their own. The practical point of all this is a radical reduction prices. They are cut, some ten, some twenty, une thirty percent, and some, on goods pr pared socially for this sale, not at all. Compared with some thirty per cent, and some, on goods pre pared specially for the sale, not at al. Compared with April 1st the average deduction is twenty-five per, cent. From the great price list which might be made I on y quote three items to-day, namely:
2,000 pairs of men's Cas-imere Pantaloons, made annaking, siring, neat, durable, lately worth $3.50 now $2.62.
6 o men's suits, real standard Sawver's Cassimere, made ann making, late price $15.00, now $12.50.
750 men's suits, eight styles, every garment freshly made, sone of them sold freely at $12. $9.25.
These are only specimens of the reductions.
My great desire is to get the people to examine the goods and see the resity of the reductions.

A GOOD BOY WHO DIDN'T DIE WHEN HE WAS LITTLE.

It is often given as a reason for the dearth of truly good men in the world, that the very good boys we read of in Sunday School books all die young. The editor of the Fenelon Falls Gazetle seems to be an exceptional being, insemuch as from the latest accounts he is still living. This immaculate scribe has, fortunately for the world, turned his attention to the regulation of the press, and reads THE TIMES a lecture on journalistic ethics. It also, in another article, brings the Lindsay Warder inside the traces. THE TIMES and the Warder will feel better, and, no doubt, do better now. The particular article pointed at our devoted head is headed "Political Rancour," and the application is to the little affair between THE TIMES and a local paper in reference to the latter's attack on the volunteers. Actuated by the spirit of the good old Roman precedent: "Not ignorant of misfortune, I learn to succor the unfortunate," the Gazette thinks to aid its confrere by coming to its help.

As far as the article in question is concerned, and its relation to ourselves, it only demonstrates how little the writer is acquainted with the merits of the discussion. In the preliminary remarks, however, the Gazette throws out a few very significant hints. It says:-"It is a well-known and often deplored fact that 'the best men keep out of office.' Superior intelligence and honesty are generally accompanied by superior sensitiveness (the super-sensitiveness of the Gazette editor cannot be accounted for in this way), and consequertly the men who are best fit-ted by natural gifts and acquired information to serve their fellows are kept in private if by an instinctive shrinking from sharing the treatment meted out to all holders of office, from village councillors or school trustees to cabinet ministers themselves. Detraction and mis epresentation appear to be the rule, and just judgment and fair play the exception."

for the News to take advantage of the ing or disorder, no loud profanity, and good advice thus gratuitously offered, we very little betting. There was horsehope it will not be slow to act upon what ricing, and that was the worst that is eminently well calculated to do our could be said about it. Any ordinary contemporary good.

In the meantime, it is to be hoped that his early piety and present ideal life will have no injurious effects on the health of the Fenelon Falls editor, but hat, notwithstanding the general order in themselves; that is another thing. It of things, he may live long enough to see his teachings exemplified in our Queen Street neighbor. If he lives that long, and can keep on being as good as he is now, he will have the honor, some day, of being the very "oldest inhabitant," and have every reason in the world to die happy. So long, old boy!

A LITERARY FRAUD.

We have just received a pamphlet from Mr. Nicholas Flood Davin, entitled, lawful interest. His reasoning on this "The Secretary of the Royal Society of Canada, a Literary Fraud." Mr. Bourinot is the gentleman for whom the appellation is intended, and the Royal Society, as all our readers know, was instituted by the Marquis of Lorne for the purpose, as Mr. Davin expresses it, of thinks, if two men want to find out leading the van of literary progress in which can go the faster in a boat, to get Canada. This Mr. Bourinot glories in In and try. Athletic contests, similar to putting after his name a multiplicity of those held in olden times, he considers titles, such as Clerk of the Canadian were noble illustrations of manly strength House of Commons, Fellow of the Statis- and skill. Consequently, boat-racing, tical Society of London and of the Royal running, walking, cricket, base-ball and Colonial Institute, Hon. Secretary of the foot-ball matches, and the hundred and Royal Society of Canada, &c. He has one other manly games, sports and conat various times contributed a number of tests are all right and proper, and much articles on a variety of important colonial to be admired. Are not the talked-of topics to various journals. His latest is evils incident to horse-racing incident to a pamphlet called "Canada as a Home," all these? If Mr. Jeffrey will read the intended, no doubt, to be circulated to sporting notes in the Globe and Mail he serve a double purpose—one to swell the will find that in the league matches and importance of an individual who holds first-class contests of every kind the same an important office, and another to bring so-called system of gambling pervades prominently before the eyes of those not them all. The reply may be: "I would Canadians the attractions of Canada as a not sanction the scientific money-making country in which to make a home. This system; let us have them in a smaller pamphlet fell into the hands of Nicholas way." Well, why not horse-racing in Flood Davin, whose censorship has been the same way. They are equally moral made known before. With the ordinary or immoral in the same degree. reader, Mr. Bourlnot's literary efforts might pass muster (he would be a very source that there is no skill in horseordinary one, too), but to the keen gaze racing. Now, for a minister, Mr. Jeffof Mr. Davin "Canada as a Home" had rey is very badly posted in how to drive no attractions. It is shown to be as full a horse. Speeding racers requires a very of errors of logic and grammar as a sieve great amount of skill, and the fastest is full of holes. Penned by a man who horse on the track is liable to lose the holds the position of Clerk of the House race if not properly driven. of Commons and the secretary of a society to promote literary culture, these errors are stupendous in quantity as well bosh. This is a most surprising stateas degree. A fine idea a cultured gentle- ment, and demonstrates the necessity of for Canada, there are a number of Canadians better known than he. Under any other circumstances, a few errors in a book, if it contained sense and practical ideas, could be pelliated, but there is no excuse for John Ge rge Bourinot, Esq., &c., &c. Nicholas Flood Davin deserves many thanks for exposing him.

MOWAT AND TEMPERANCE.

Here is a little statement for those who have faith in the wonderful reforming powers of the Cooks Act.

They tell us that the law has reduced he number of licenses. In 1877 there vere 3,676 licenses issued, and there has been a steady increase since. Last year 4,119 licenses were issued.

Evidently the Mowat License Law has not done much in the interests of tem-

REV. MR. JEFFREY VS. "THE TIMES" ON HORSE-RACING.

We have never advocated horse-racing as particularly desirable, or in any sense moral. That was a misrepresentation on the part of a local cotem., and a misconception on the part of a local divine. We simply defended it against what we con sidered an indefensible and illogical at-horse-racing in the Park, as a means of "drawing" on any day of celebration. I was said that this was a burning evil and a disgrare to Port Hope. We replied: "We are not one of those who c usider horse-racing a great sin; in fact, we are inclined to believe that it is not without good effects in advancing the material interests of the country, if not our morals."

Whether great days, similar to the Is of July, are desirable or not, is a question we will not discuss in this connection. Such days are generally observed with great eclat attending them, and their success depends almost entirely on the number who can be drawn to town by them. How to arrange a programme to "draw" the greatest possible number is the grave subject for conside ation with every celebration committee. If you can arrange a programme without racing which will secure the crowd. satisfy them quite as well, and at the same time save them from the evils which are supposed to flow from it, then by all means respect the prejudices of ocrtain moralists, and leave out the equine contests. Can it be done? It is impossible, at least in Port Hope. But, granting that it could, what possible objection could there be to the races held on the last 1st of July in the Park more than if horse-racing had been dispensed As there is the amplest opportunity with. There was no drinking, no fightelection contest is ten times more objectionable on any one of those scores than was the Dominion Day celebration arranged as it passed off. It may be argued that such celebrations are wrong is absurd to say they are wrong because horse-racing is included. Rev. Mr. Jeffrey did not, as far as we know, allude to the question in this connection, but objects to horse-racing on very indefinite general principles; and he thinks, too, that our arguments are so much moonshine. We feel obliged for his estimate of our reasoning powers, but think the compliment can be returned as far as his arguments on horseracing are concerned, with more than particular question is not bright enough to be even moonshine.

The rev. gentleman is not consistent with himself. He thinks a good boat race between two good men is a good and pleasant thing to see. No harm in it, he ada as a Home" by the Secretary of the would wish to retain a reputation for Royal Society of Canada. Fortunately saying sensible things. He makes a more surprising statement oven than that, viz., that it deteriorates, if anything. Good travelling steeds are always in demand, and nob dy likes a fist horse better than a clergyman, and few can make better use of them when occasion requires. The race-course is the standard by which the respective values of horses can be ascertained, and it is the incentive which leads to the breeding of superior horses. There is a great deal of philosophy just in this phase of the subject, and the philosophy is all on one side. The very training which developed in Greece and R me a class of men who never had a superior and few equals as men of physique, is exactly the same training which has given England a breed of horses which are in world-wide demand. The track, 'too, is giving America a stamp of horses which are even taking the palm from England. It is no use talking, the importance of the race-course as a factor in producing fine horses is so universally recognized that Rev. Mr. Jeffrey cannot find in the whole country a half dozen of experienced stock raisers who will agree with him. Individual instances of deteriora-

general principles. As to the "cruelty to animals" argument, every day observation disproves that. Race horses live the longest, are better kept, and enjoy a more superior life than any other class of horses. It is a lamentable fact that the animals which The point of discussion centres on | receive the poorest kind of treatment are those belonging to doctors, livery-men and ministers.

tion can certainly be found, but these are the exceptions which characterize all

We are as cognizant as any person of the evils of racing when taken to that extreme-which, when reached, is always objectionable, and as much to be avoided in matters religious as in secular affairs. A good horse-race is something which will always continue to be admired, notwithstanding the periodical philipics which come thundering from the pulpit. Few even within the pale of our most evaugelical churches, no matter how spiritually inclined, would go out of their way to avoid the sight. The most sensible thing to do is to pray that that mean may be preserved wherein is always found the least danger to the greatest number. As we remarked before, there is such a thing as people getting too good, and too good people are more nauseous to the mind of common sense than those whose morality may be below the proper standard. We thoroughly believe the latter class are about the only ones who would have serious qualms of conscience at beholding "a good, square, nip-and-tuck race between two horses which have 'git up and go' in them."

LYON MACKENZIE. Monuments to the memory of public men, considering the number of heroes who have lived in the world, are scarce, It is no doubt true, too, that among the number of those who died unwept, unhonored and unsung, are many deservedly in the list. William Lyon Mackenzie does not, perhaps, strictly belong to the latter class, but it is very generally conceded now that he died with his memory greatly wronged. The Toronto World wants a monument erected in honor of his deeds. He may deserve it, but there are many others who fought the fight of responsible government with him who equally deserve that tribute of

The men who most deserve monuments are those who, like the celebrated architect, can have inscribed on their tombstone: "For my monument look around you." When a man's deeds cease to be talked about, and his life forgotten, then his cenotaph becomes a meaningless piece of stone. The best remembrance a man can have is that which is erected in history. There it is perishable or imperishable, as the influence of his life continues to affect future ages.

That some men should receive monuments seems very desirable, but that all good or great men should be thus memorialized is not; the idea is reduced to a degree of democracy, where the number of memorials would destroy their own significance. Circumstances of political sympathy, or sudden impulse on the part of a few, often leads public feeling in a direction having no solid or substantial motive to guide. Other circumstances allow most worthy men to die and be unheeded, as far as a public mark of respect is concerned.

The world will worship but a few heroes, and those whose memories will not live of themselves are not deserving of monuments. The future gives every man his proper place, and it is to history we should leave the task of honoring our heroes. Of late years the death of nearly every prominent man has been signalized by public monuments, but the difficulty with which funds are being raised shows that the idea is being overdone.

With its usual stupidness, the great Grit Mogul, in enumerating the blessings flowing from the present Ontario Govrnment, sticks in the Solon efforts of Mr. Crooks. Now, if the Globe had only sense enough to leave that poor tinkerer out of the list, it might have some chance of making a case, but people are so thoroughly disgusted with him that man of the Old Country would form of the rev. gentleman remaining within the his name is sufficient to damn all his

The Globe has entered into a continued story respecting the merits of the Mowat Administration. It tries to prove too much, attempting to make out that Mr. Mowat is a paragon of wisdom and administrative ability. As a rule, in a poor cause a multiplicity of proofs are given to make up for their individual paucity. Hine, a few years ago, gave 77 reasons to show that England was identical with the lost ten tribes of Israel; so far he has failed to satisfy but few. If the Globe could give one sufficient reason why Mr. Mowat should be sustained at the next election, it would serve its purpose better.

The Toronto World, an independent Liberal journal, which highly favored the Hon. Mr. Blake as the leader of the party, is not so enthusiastically in his favor as formerly. That Mr. Blake has not led the Liberals to victory, is no reason why the wisdom of having him as chief should be questioned. Handicapped with the Globe newspaper and the cast iron free trade principles of the Mackenzie wing of the party, it would take a stronger man than Mr. Blake to build up the Liberals and make them fit to rule this country. - Montreal Star.

A deputation from the evangelical churches will wait on Mr. Mowat next week to discuss the desirability of intreducing the Bible into schools as a text. book. We fancy we hear the Ontario Premier, arrayed in all the dignity peculiarly his, exclaiming: "Impossible, gentlemen; would like to accede to your requests, but, really, the morality of our school children must be our first care. You know there are many passages in that book which a teacher would have a delicacy in explaining to his pupils. It is really not a proper text-book to put in thir hands; we even had to throw out "Marmion" on that account. No, no, gentlemen! It is out of the question, besides-it would be offensive to Catho-

The Bobcaygeon Independent grows elequent on the beauties of Free Trade. It quotes a number of resolutions passed by the American Free Trade Association as an indication of changed feeling on this question in the United States. One of them is as follows:-" That the merchants, manufacturers and laboring ' men of the district are especially inter-'ested in a policy which would break "down the wall now closing in one side "of Detroit, and make our city what it A MONUMENT TO WILLIAM "should already be, the Michishould already be, the commercial "gan." Certainly, Detroit wants to be the commercial Centre of Western Ontario, but that is exactly what we don't want it to be. We want Canadian cities and towns to be the commercial centres for Canadian wealth and enterprise. The average Yankee is very conciliatory when, Sam Slick like, he wants to sell a clock. Give him the bulge, though, and his generosity vanishes quicker than smoke. If Americans want reciprocity now they will have to take down their walls first, and then, perhaps, we may follow.

ELIZABETHVILLE.

Ouite a number from this village availed themselves of the opportunity afforded them of attending the dinner at Garden Hill on the 3rd instant. One young man from here was there only a few minutes when he took it into his head to come back again, and he did an at a fearful rate. As he came down Queen Street the horse's mane was streaming wildly in the wind; the young man's feet were set firmly a ainst the dashboard, like one speeding a horse; he sat well for ward on the seat with a line in each hand, and be looked for all the world like a modern John Gilpin. He never paused in his onward course, sometimes casting a furtive glance out of one corner of his left eye to see if anybody was looking, until reached the summit of the majestic hill to the west, when he was soon lost to view. It was soon found out that this flurry was attributed to the fact that the young man had mistaken a married for a young lady before he left for the dinner. He has the entire sympathy of the community, for he is not the first young swain who has made little mistakes when reaching man's estate and entering on the arduous duties of lovemaking.

WORLD COMING TO AN END.

The world is surely coming to an end. Osaca has been advised time and again to built a large, substantial jail for them-selves, but they have dilly dallied with the grave question so long that they don't know what they really do want. They were told to move in the matter at once, because a jail would be a lasting benefit to them. It was suggested, however, by one of the native , the other day, that a Sunday School should be started, and that he she superintendent. A meeting was held in the school house on Thursday evening to organize, but he failed to put in an appearance, which caused many to grow exceedingly wrathy, especially the trustees of the school, who left work to attend. When Sunday came the superintendent marched up to the school house at the head of his little flok, where he found that the door was tastened from within. Failing in his trials to effect an entrance, the procession moved to the wood shed, and there, with the little ones trembling with the cold and the wind blowing through the openings in the shed, he said in a tremulous voice, with a sort of squeak to it, that he felt very cold, and that they had better hie away home.

NEWCASTLE.

Our Barley market has been fairly active. The quantity delivered daily is from five to seven thousand bushels. The prices are & trifle lower, from 50 to 75 being the raling. farmers as I mentioned in my last, are more inclined to accept the situation, and well they may. What with the inc and average yield and the price compared with othess it is found to be the best paying crops? Five cargoes have left theport since my last, and a considerable quantity is going westward by rail. This refers, more especially to the higher grades which finds its way to Cincinnati and other points south. In other grains there is little movement. The apple crop is being gathered, that is, what the wind had not previously scattered. From the spread at our show one would think that much yet remained to be disposed of.

Much chagrin is felt among on stock raisers, now that the root crops promises so well, in not holding on to their best animals and getting these up for the English market, I fear this thing is being overdone, selling the best and allowing us poor Canadains to suffer on the tough raw hide during the aummer months.

The entertainment was a complete success; notwithstanding the notice was short, the music hall was well filled and everyone was loud in praise of the affair. We hear that several such entertainments are to be given during the winter, the first in about three weeks. We are sure they will be well patronized as all are certain of spending a pleasant even-

Gen. Oclethorpe, the founder of Georgia, used to tell of a missionary who, flattering himself that he had thoroughly imbued an American Indian with the right spirit in which to take the Lord's Supper, said: "Do you not feel a mental comfort, an inward refreshment from that boly cup?" "It is very good," said his promising proselyte, "but," with a smi e, "rum's better."

In a cave in the mountains of Virginia resides a hermit of immense size, with long white hair and beard. He is over 80 years of age, and for 40 years has not spoken. When he wants anything of civilization he indicates it by siges, but for months at a time he secretes himself and communicates with no one. It is said that he has lost the power of speech by disuse.

A ball-room car is the latest novelty introduced on the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul road, and recently a merry party of St. Louis belles and beaux made an excursion over the road, and danced the racquet with the train moving at forty miles an hour. The ball-room was a large baggagecar, sixty feet long by fifteen wide. The floor was elegantly carpeted, the walls beautifully painted, hung with pictures, and decorated with bunting, evergreens, and garlands of roses. There was an orchestra of eight pieces, and refreshments were passed around every hour.

Sixteen years ago George T. Reynolds, a stock raiser at Griffin, Texas, was wounded in a skirmish with Indiane, an arrow entering the abdomen and passing through the abdominal cavity. Such a wound is almost invariably fatal, but he pulled the shalt of the arrow out, and although the head broke off and remained in the body, he astonished everybody by recovering within ten days. A few days ago he felt a pain in the back, near the spine, and a surgical operation brought to the surface the steel arrow head that had taken sixteen years to work its way through his body.

The Agony Over:

Walking, the source of so much misery to many, becomes, after using Pursan's Painless Corn Extractor, a service of pleasure. Corns are small in size, but their importance is not to be judged by their size, as any one fond of a tramp can testify.

Try Putnam's Extractor for corns. No disc mfort, no caustic application, no blood letting, and yet splendidly efficacious. Sold everywhere. R. Deyell,

The art of shorthand is, it appears, to be superseded by one of the queerest inventions on record. The revolution is to be effected by means of a machine called a " glossograph," consisting of six levers, forming a sort of cage, each communicating with a tracing pencil. The use to be made of the "glossograph" is rather curious. While the orator or lecturer is holding forth, the reporter is to repeat the words of the speaker with his tongue in the cage. Thus the quickest conversation, some London journals tell us, may be taken down with ease. The ludicrons aspect which this new invention assumes may be an obstacle to its adoption.

A writer describing Newmarket fifty years ago says: - Its staple trade is blood horses; its inhabitants, for the most part, jockeys and gamblers ; its language that of Tattersalls; its business an endless succession of matches on the race-course, in the cock pit, the tennis court, on the billiard table or the card table. About 300 horses are trained every year. From $2,500 to $10,000 is a common price. Now and again $20,000 is given. Nearly every one Now and in the town bets more or less. Even the children learn to lisp the pedigree of horses, the long odds, and the merits of jockeys." It is much the same to-day.

Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" are sugar-coated and enclosed in glass bottles, their virtues being thereby preserved unimpaired for any length of time, in any olimate, so that they are always fresh and reliable. No cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes. By druggists.

Mr. Spurgeon, though in much botter health than when he preached last spring, still bears traces of the sufferings he has undergone. His feet are gouty, and this ietracts from the promptness and agi'ity with which he as an lod to the pulpit in former times, when the fem le members of his congregation would rise and peep over each other's shoulders to watch his move-ments. Several sons of famous fathers are living on their parentage in London. All the Year Round is still " conducted by Charles Dickens." This magazine was the dead Dickens' personal property, and was left to the present Charles Dickens with the proviso that the name should be placed at the head of its pages. Donglas Jerrold was the editor of Lloyd's Weekly News, and when he died the proprietors continued the family name by putting in the line "Edited by Blanchard Jerrold." The editing is said to consist in the drawing of a salary. Fun is nominally edited by Tom Hood, a son of Thomas Hood, the famous humorist.

Prof. Jaseph Le Conte, of the University of California, has examined the footprints which have lately attracted attention at Carson, Nevada. He says that the strata exposed in a quarry consist of heavy bedded sandstones, aiternating with thin layers of shale. The stone has been removed down to an even stratum of shale, which forms the floor. The whole area thus cleared is literally covered with the tracks of many species of mammals and birds. Le Conte concludes that they were made in the early age of man's existence, but he does not believe that any of them are the imprints of human feet, though some may possibly be so. Those of gigantic elophants are unmistakable, and others are of extinct species of

THE REMARKABLE EFFICACY of AHERLER'S ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA in nervous debility and all used-up conditions of the system, whether f om work, worry, or dissination and depraved habits, is owing to its re-stories the balance of supply and waste of nervous energy by the direct nutrition of the nervous sys-tem. No matter what may be the cause of exhaustion of the vital forces, there is no specific medica-tion for it, nutrition of the waster vissues by food elements being the only royal road to recovery.

The cable announces the death of Gerald Fi zgibbon, the last survivor of the splendid batch of barristers who conducted the defence of O'Connell in the State trials. He it was to whom the then Attorney-General Smith sent a challenge to duel in court. He was over 80 at his death, and of singular habits. He never tasted medicine in his life. He would eat no bread that was not baked in his own oven, and always carried his loaves wilh him on circuit. He lept a cow in his cellar in Gloucester street, where he lived for years, and would not drink milk nor taste butter from a dairy. He had been a hedge schoolmaster in early life, an | was called to the bar when considerably advanced in years, but succeeded by his unflinching labor and perseverance. His son is a Lord Justice of Appeal.

Sold by R. Deyell. A tent was pitched near Hot Springs, Arkansas, and the announcement of a show brought a crowd. When all the money obtainable for admission had been received, a stalwart negro wrestled with a monster bear. The combat was fierce, and passed from play to work as the beast warmed up. The spectators screamed with excitement, and it seemed to be a question of life or death with the negro. Bleeding and exbausted he finally got the bear off the stage, amid overwhelming applause. The assemlested whips. Two lines were drawn eight tumult had reached its height the negro appeared, carrying a hap. After solventhal ing the kindness of the spectators he stooped down, and drawing a knife from his pocket commenced to fumble with the bag. The people, supposing this to be some new trick, preserved a breathless silence. Then he cut the bag open, and there issued from it a swarm of bees. As the insects buzzed forth there was a movement of the crowd. then a panic, and finally a wild rush for the exit. Some got out by cutting slits in the canvass of the tent with their knives.

The fruitful season of the year is prolific with many forms of Bowel Complaints, such as Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Colic, Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum, &c., as a safe-guard and positive cure for those distress-ing and often sudden and dangerous attacks nothing can surpass that old and reliable medicine, Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

As a tonic and nervine for debilitated women, nothing surpasses Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." By druggists.

Mrs. Kemble vouches for the fact that William Makepeace Thackeray, on the occasion of his first delivery of lectures on "The Four Georges," was, deepite his great reputation and undoubted genius, absolutely unmanned by fear of his audience. This accomplished lady happened to look in at Willis' Rooms just before the hour fixed for Thackeray's reading, and to her surprise she found the eminent satirist standing, "like a forlorn, disconsolate giant," in the middle of the room staring about him. "He held my hand like a scared child," writes Mrs. Fanny Kemble, "crying, 'Ob, don't leave me! I'm sick at my stomach with fright!' 'But,' said I, 'Thackeray, you musn't stand here. Your audience are beginning to come in;" and so saying, Mrs. Kemble kindly led him out into the retiring room adjoining the lecture hall. The novelist had left the manuscript of his lecture on the reading desk, and Mrs. Kemble volunteered to recover it for him, and in so doing scattered the leaves all about the floor. In the greatest confusion and distress she took the wreck of his manuscript back to Thackeray, thinking that she had done some irreparable injury. The real kindness of "Mr. Titmarsh" showed itself at once. "My dear soul," he said, "you couldn't have done better for me. I have just a quarter of an hour to wait here, and it will take me about that time to page this again, and it's the best thing in the world that could have hap-pened." "So I left him," adds the daughter of Charles Kemble, "to give the first of that brilliant course of literary historical essays with which he enchanted and instructed countless audiences in England and America.'

Gatherings in the Head.

FROM REV. NATHAN HUBBELL, Methodist preacher at Harvard, Delaware Co. N.Y.

"Although an entire stranger to you, I have received to much benefit from the Peruvian Syrupthat I cannot withhold my testimony in its favor. At different periods in my life I have been afflicted with gatherings in my head, which discharged daily, either from one or both ears. Beside the disgus ing character of the complaint, it was at times attended with exeruciating pain. I had recourse to both the Allopathic and Homeopathic treatment, but in vain. The last attack had troubled me nearly a year, when at the session of our Annual Conference, held at Newburgh in April 'ast, I saw a certificate from some one who had been cured of a similar complaint by the use of the Peruvian Stitur. To be brief, I purchased a bottle at the nearest drug s'ore, and before it was half gone my trouble had entirely ceased, and at this writing, nearly two months later, has not returned." Industrial Education in the Public Schools.

There is a growing feeling among the students of industrial problems that our whole conception of education in general, and of industrial training in particular, needs revision and enlargement. This feeling is based upon such easily observed facts as the following:-

1. Paupers are on the increse.

2. Our schools too often educate their pupils out of harmony with their environment, thus justifying the charge that education (falsely so called) unfits its possessors for useful industry.

8. The simpler and important positions in the world's workshop are as a rule greatly overcrowded, while in the upper stories there is a vast amount of unoccupied space.

4. The work done in the lower stories is often exceedingly shabby.

5. Many who aspire to the upper stories fail to enter-or, if they apparently enter, soon end in failure.

6. The chosen few who truly enter, and build up magnificent industrial fabrics, with the splendid fortunes which such fabrics imply, fail to educate their children to carry on their good work, or to do work of a similar value in some other department of useful industry.

7. A whole community of prosperous workmen may be well-nigh reduced to beggary by the incoming of some new invention, or by change in the fortunes or tastes of consumers.

S. When old industries are swept away, and new ones established on the wrecks, there is usually little power on the one part of workmen to ad apt themselves to the new conditions.

9. The relentless law of the survival of the shrewdest and most unscrupulous, instead of the Christian law of mutual consideraton and cooperation, 2too, generally pravails among individuals and all kinds of human organizations.

That all education should be industrial, and everybody should be industrially educated, we believe to be perfectly tenable propositions .- Profes-SOR H. H. STRIGHT, in Popular Science Monthly.

Who Killed Morgan?

The recent move to raise a monument in memory of Free Mason Morgun has called up anew the question: 'Who killed Morgan?" An old citizen of Detroit was on his way down town yesterday when he met an acquaintance and seized the moment to

'I suppose you know they are going toerect a monument to Morgan?' 'Oh, yes.'

'Very mysterious death!' 'So it was.'

'Generally believed that the Free Masons killed him?'

Yes, some folks believe it.'

'Then you must know?' 'Well I suppose I do.'

'Then, sir, I demand to know who killed Morgan!'

'You don't want to knowto-day, do

The Mason beckoned the old man around the corner, looked all around

'Yes, sir-right off!'

to see that no one was near, and then whispered in his ear:

'You won't give it away?'

'On your solemn oath?'

'Then I'll tell you-I killed him

'Sir! you are an infernal liar! reared the old man. 'Yes, sir, you you lie, sir, and I won't have anything more to do with you!'

It may never be known who killed Morgan. If people won't believe the murderer how are facts to come out?

A DOUBLE BABY.

A MORE REVARKABLE MONSTROSI-TY THAN THE SIAMESE TWINS.

A child with two heads, four arms and four legs was born near Bordentown, N. J., on Sunday, of Mrs. Mary Smith, the wife of Henry Smith, a well known butcher engaged in business in Bordentown. In order to save the life of the mother the operation of embryotony was performed, and the monstrosity only lived a few hours after being brought into this world. So wonderful and perfect is its formation that Dr. Dye, one of the attending physicians, has had the double baby preserved in alcohol for examination by physicians. There is the usual amount of old woman's gossip connected with the odd freak of nature, regarding the ante natel influencs associated with all such abnormal births, but the physicians reject these hypotheses, although they are unable to ascribe any cause for malformation. Mrs. Smith is a healthy woman of twentyfour or twenty-five years. She is already the mother of twins, which were born two years ago, unattended by any unusual circumstances. The birth on Sunday night took place in Groveville, about three miles from Bordentown, the house of Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Van Blunt, and was attended by Dr. Dye, of Crosswick's. There was nothing apparently in the physical condition of Mrs. Smith previous to her illness to indicate that she was about to become the mother of any other than a natural child. Dr. Dye was called in first, but certain indications pointed out the necessatiy of calling in another physician in consultation. Dr. Young was summoned, and seven hours after his arrival the monstrosity was born. An examination showed that it was even a more wondeful being than the and diseases brought on by change of famous Siamese twins. A fleshy liga. water, diet, &c., and for Cholera Morbus, famous Siamese twins. A fleshy ligament extending from below the sholder blades down the sides, covering almost one half the abdomen, made the bodies appear almost like one. There was no malformation in the individual bodies, except where the convestion was made. Each infant, to speak of them as two, was naturally proportioned and of normal size. The weight of each was seven pounds and the sex female. It was found that thee ounecting band of flesh was filled with arteries and veins, and the life of one was dependent on the other. Whether there existed two sets of ribs on the side where the bodies, joined it was impossible to determine without an autopsy; but from external appearances it seemed that there were two sets of ribs that were only partially developed. The lungs were separate, but it could not be ascertained whether there were two hearts or not. The monstrosity possessed two back bones, two stomachs and two livers and kidneys, while the pelvis seemed to be joined at anterior portions. Taken a together, there was such an intimate relation between all the parts and organs that the monstrosity can be properly called a double child whose life, if spared, would have been dependent on each of the bodies.

It was regretted by the physicians that the wonderful infant had to be destroyed, but the mother's life was at stake, and it was absolutely necessary to crush one of the skulls in order to save the mother's life. Dr. Dye contemplates keeping the specimen in its present state until it is examined by some prominent obstetricans, and then have it dissected for the benefit of science.

Heroes of the Plains.

In American history there are no more interesting figures than the Heroes of the border. Bold, dashing, adventurous and patriotic; leval to friends, to country and to the interests of society, their work was singularly effective in the advancement of western civilization. With seeming recklessness, their efforts were in the interest of law and order, and the people owe them a debt of gratitude they do not forget. Their page in history is as fascinating as it is houorable, and there is a peculiar pleasure in reading the narrative of their wonderful exploits. Among those, whose careers were singularly adventurous, are Kit Carson, Wild Bill, Buffalo Bill. Capt Payne, Texas Jack, California Joe, Capt, Jack and others whose achievements have made them justly and widely famous. They have a warm place in the hearts of the people, and a prominent one in ther admiration. It is appropriate that their achievements should be recorded, and we note with pleasure the forthcoming of a new book from the press Let's see-I think you are a Mason of N. D. Thompson & Co., New York and St. Louis, called "THE HEROES OF THE PLAINS," covering the ground of border history. It is profusely illustrated with 100 engravings and 16 colored lithograph plates. It is sold by subscription through canvessing agents, and presents an oppertunity to agents to make money especially inviting. We advertise it in another column.

Mr. Wm. Ransom, of South Norwick, says:-For sixteen years I suffered from Bil ousness, never had any medicine to do me any permanent good until recommended by our druggists (J. Wesley Fish & Co.; Otterville) to try Dr. Carson's Stomach and Constipation Bitters, which have done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken. I would, with the utmost confidence, recommend them to all suffering from biliousness, &c. Sold by all druggists at 50c a bottle.

"Well," remarked a young M.D., just from college, "I suppose the next thing will be to hunt a good location, and then wait for something to do, like 'Patienes on a monument.'" "Yes," said a bystander, "and it won't be long after you do begin before the monuments will be on the pa-

THE RECORD OF A TRIUMPH. Consolation for the Suffering.

There is no little consolation in the thought that, however the impostor may flourish for the season, he cannot long continue to delude mankind. How many men contrive to acquire a brief and flashy reputation, and then sink into disrepute and oblivion! We confess that years ago, when we first heard of the universal celebrity o' Professor Holloway, we distrusted his lofty claims, and arrogated to ourselves a superiority of discernment which would not allow him to entrap our judgment. Most heartily do we beg his pardon for the un-just imputation. A careful study of his system convinced us that we were indeed mistaken, and that the world, to do him justice, should immediately, as it undoubtedly will hereafter, rank him foremost amongst its benefactors.

The human blood is not a mere fluid. coursing through the veins and arteries, and partaking of the mere qualities of o her fluids. It is startling as the statement may appear—ALIVE. It is, in plain words, "the life of man." All physiological diseases, such as indigestion, deranged kidneys, liver, heart, lungs, stomach, all impure sedretions in the body, and a large majority of opidemic and endemic diseases have their origin, or at least their exciting cause, in the impure state of the blood. Cleanse that and keep it cleansed, and no second she was missing. An attack of nervousness had caused her to quit the the state of the sickness can prostrate or even assail the system. This splendid discovery has given a lustre to Holloway's name, transcending the renown of heroes and statesmen. We do not wonder at the great fame he has acquired in Europe, Asia, Africa, and Australia .- N. Y. Sunday Times.

> A good story is being told of the late Mr Mereweather, Q.C. Wishing to have a railway carriage on the Great Western to himself, in order to study a brief, he was a good deal annoyed by the presenceof a talkative curate. The Q C. feigned insanity, whereupon the curate thought his safety lay only in soothing his fellow traveller. Passing the large madhouse at Hanwell, the curate remarked in dulcet tones, such as a nurse would apply to a fractious child, "How well the asylum looks along the railway." Mr. Mereweather gave a bark like a dog, and replied, "Yes, but you should see how the railway looks from the asylum." The train stopped at Slough, and the curate disappearwith the utmost alacrity .- Leicester (Eng.) Post.

The Doctor's Last Happy Resort.

I recently had a very difficult case of Consumption. I treated it in the most scientific manner possible, but to no effect; patient grew gradually worse. Rather than give up, and as a last resort, I decided, much again my wish, to use a remedy that had cured one of my former patients. Greatly to my surprise, the patient began to gain, and in a much shorter time than I dared to ever expect, she was completely cured. The name of this remarkable remedy is Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. I now use it altogether in my practice.— Leading, M. D., Evansville. Trial bottles free at Mitchell's Drug Store. C. THROOP, teacher. Holloway's Pills are strongly recommended to all persons who are much reduced in power and condition, whose stomachs are weak, and whose nerves are shattered. The beneficial effects of the e Pills will be perceptible after a few days' trial, though a more extended course may be required to re-establish perfect health. Holloway's medicine acts on the organs of digestion, aad induces complete regularity in the stomach, liver, pancreas, and kidneys. This treatment is both safe and certain in result, and is thoroughly consistent with observation, experience and common sense. The purification of the blood, the removal of all noxious matter from the secretions, and the excitement of gentle action in the bowels are the sources of the curative powers of Holloway's Pills.

"You say that you were present when my son was killed," said an Arkansaw gentleman to a man who had just arrived from Colorado. "Yes, sir, I was present." "How did the fight occur?" The Change of the Seasons.

During the past summer weather wise prophets have been disturbed by the fact that in the city of New Orleans the weather has been much pooler then in the Northern cities. Why this is it is hard to determine, but requiries are daily made by the curiously disposed, who make inquiries of M. A. Dauphin, New Orleans, La., in regard to the next Monthly Grand (the 149th) distribution of The Louisiana State Lottery, which takes place ou October 10th, under the sole management of Gen'ls G. T. B-au-regard of La., and Jubal A. Early of Va., when $75,000, $25,000, $10,000, etc., will be given to some one purchasing a ticket for $5, or a fractional portion at the same rate.

Going to Ills Grave. There he goes again direct to a saloon and pours down another heavy draught of strong drink, not so much because his appetite demands it, but for the artificial buoyancy it produces-the after effects of which leave him more miserable than before; it is this dreadful practice that is daily sending thousands to their graves. A re medy for all this is found in the true friend of temperance, —The best and purest of all medicines, -Electric Bitters. Sold by G. A. Mitchell at 50c.

A Remarkable Transformation.

Mr. A. Nix, who resides on lot 2 in the 2nd concession of Seymour, laid upon our table, on Tuesday, a sample of rye which he claims grew from the roots of oats. Two seasons ago, Mr. Nix broke up a piece of sod ground, and sowed it with White Spanish Oats, intending to use the growth thereof for cattle feed. Af or the oats had grown to a considerable height, he cut them down. They grow again and he cut them down a second time. While he was cutting them the third time he remembered having read in the Canadian Farmer, many years ago, of a man who had sown the same kind of oats and had treated them the same as he had, and as a result he was astonished at finding a crop of rye. Mr. Nix tried the experiment this year. The oaten stubble put forth shoots last spring and grew up as bafore, until finally there developed a good specimen of rye. He had nine stools of rye in one of which there were 79 stalks, the highest being 5 feet 9 inches high. The production may be seen at Mr. Nix's are never imitated or counterfeited. This is especially true of a family medicine, and it is positive proof that the remedy imitated is of the highest value. As soon as it has been tested and proved by the whole world that Hop Bitters was the purest, best and most valuable family medicine on carth, many imitations spring up and began to steal the notices in which the pro-s and people of the country had expressed the merits of H. B., and in every way was trying to induce suffering invalids to use their stuff instead, expecting to make money on the credit and good name of H.B. Many others start-ed nostrums put up in similar style to H.B., with variously devised names in which the word "Hop" or "Hops" were used in a way to induce people to believe they were the same as Hop Bitters. All such pretended remedies or cures, no matter what their style of name is, and especially those with the word "Hop" or "Hops" in their name or in any way connected with them or their name, are imitations or counterfeits. Beware of them. Touch none of them. nothing but genuine Hop Bitters, with a bunch or cluster of green Hops on the white label. Trust nothing else. Druggists and dealers are warned against dealing in imitations or counterfeits.

Mr. RICHARD NEWTON, of the Cobourg Road, met with an accident recently, which disabled him for work for over a week. He was ploughing, and, meeting with an obstruction, the plough handles struck him in the breast, rendering him insensible for some time. He has now almost fully recovered.

COL. MONTEZAMBERT inspected the Port Hope Garrison Battery yesterday morning. After the inspection was over he, in a few words, complimented the members, expressing a regret, however, that there were so few out on parade. The following are the prizetakers:-Sergeant F. Hobbs, 1st; Gunner Leonard, 2nd; Gunner Summerville, 3rd.

RETURNS of traffic of the Midland Railway of Canada for the wek ending Sept. 30th, 1882, were as follows:-Passengers and mails, $9,430.38; freight, $22,303.39; total, $31,-733.77, as compared with $30,576.14 for the corresponding week of 1881, being an increase of $1,157.63; and the aggregate traffic to date is $776,534.58, being an increase of $167,756,-18 over 1881.

"IMPERFECTION," who last week undertook to criticize Mr. Jeffrey's sermon, was pretty badly sat upon by that rev. gentleman on Sunday night. Mr. Jeffrey does not like to submit to sneers at his religion, and believes in striking back and letting the force be felt as though it came direct from the shoulder. Our correspondent has evidently learned a lesson that will stand him in good stead, and he no doubt fully realizes how appropriate was the nome de plume he assumed. In our opinion, considering his present state of imperfecction, he tackled the wrong man.

PROGRESS OF METHODISM. - A local divine speaking last Sunday on the advance of Methodism, said that one hundred years ago there lived a man named John Wesley. His teachings were sneered at, and his followers derided. To-day, he stated it as a fact and challenged contradiction, the teachings of John Wesley were revolutionizing the world; to-day every Christian denomination was following in the wake of Methodism. A hundred years ago Methodists were few; now they lead. Not only was the religious world revolutionized by the teachings of Wesley, but the scientific and business world. Science in its progress and principles is based upon his teachings; business is wrought out upon precisely the same lines. The modern nothing but an imitation of the Methodist system of itinerantcy and missions. The praise was not to the Methodists; to God he be believed, that promise will be repudiated, ascribed the glory, who simply used John

DR. WILD's lecture next Thursday evening on the prophet "Jeremiah" will be one full of interest to every one, and explains a theory which, if not true, cannot but be admired for the perfection to which the details are wrought out. Go and hear him.

DANIEL SAWYER, at one time for a short period on THE TIMES' staff, and editor of The Universal Penman, has invented a system of shorthand, which he calls "Sawyerography." For symphony and general scientific "getup," that name takes the cake.

PETERBORO' is fortunate in the economy which, in the management of municipal affairs, has been adhered to. This year the ratepayers are taxed at eleven mills and fourtenths on the dollar. Happy town! We pay seventeen and a half mills.

AFTER a delay of nearly two years, the Presbyterian congregation of Garden Hill gave a call to the Rev. Mr. Grimison, whose induction took place on Tuesday last. The rev. gentleman seems to have secured the good graces of his parishioners, and may he long retain them.

REV. DR. WILD, of Toronto, the most popular lecturer of Ontario, will lecture in the Music Hall, Port Hope, on Thursday evening, the 26th inst; subject, "Jeremiah's Visit to Old Ireland." The lecture is under the auspices of the "Ladies' Aid" of the B. C. Church of this town. Tickets, 25 cts.; reserved seats, 35 cts.

NIP AND TUCK .- This splendid comedy was presented to an enthusiastic and pleased audience on Thursday evening. From the time the curtain rolled up first until the play was finished, it was one continual roar of laughter and applause. Harry Webber, the star of the company, is the right man in the right place every time, and one of the best comedians on the stage.

Ir has been stated definitely that Messrs. Mc Neally & Co., of Omemee, had secured the contract for building the breakwater to pro tect the Port Hope Harbor. We were informed yesterday that nothing definite was known in the matter. The breakwater is to be built on the west side of the west pier, and will extend out 300 feet, at an angle with the pier of about 45°.

METHODIST MISSIONS .- A meeting of the Methodist Mission, comprised of the chairman of and lay delegate from each C. M. district, will be held in Port Hope on Tuesday, the 24th inst. Sermons will be preached in the Methodist Church on the 22nd by Revs. Dr. Jeffers and Mr. Bredin. The meeting on the following Tuesday will be addressed by the above rev. gentlemen and also by Rev Dr. Sutherland and John Macdonald, of To-

AMUSEMENTS FOR THE WINTER .- An unusual activity for Port Hope is being displayed in social circles. A choral club, to consist of about six members, is being organized. An orchestra is also on the tapis. The latter, if the brass instruments can be obtained, will be a strong one, and both valuable acquisitions to musical circles. Besides these, two social clubs are arranging for assemblies, to be held by each twice a month. There is also some talk of organizing a literary, social, and elocutionary association, its meetings to be held in an informal way at private residences.

AN ELOCUTIONARY ENTERTAINMENT .-On Friday evening, the 20th inst., Messrs. Bonbright and Mercer, assisted by Miss Vickers and members of their elecution class, intend giving an entertainment in the Music Hall, when the public will have an opportunity of again enjoying a treat from the above artistes, and also of judging of the results of their teaching. There will be a splendidly varied programme, and as good elocutionary entertainments are not of frequent occurrence, we ask our citizens who wish to enjoy an evening this way to come to the Music Hall on the evening named.

SENSATIONAL PREACHING. -- In the course of his remarks on Sunday evening, Mr. Jeffrey referred to sensational presching, which, he said, was very often applied to the preaching of certain ministers. Talmage was called a sensational preacher, but Talmage did more good and had a wider field of usefulness than any other ten men in the United States. Still the term "sensational" was thrown at him by persons who, perhaps, had never read his sermons, or if they had, could not understand them-persons who envied the ability of writing a sensational article, or making a sensational political speech, and who often fired off their animus from very mean blun-"WE have to hand the Guide, a weekly paper published in Port Hope, Canada. The Guide is one of the best and most popular papers in Canada, and for editorial skill is second to none."-News, Cain City, Kansas. The Guide publishes the above (the italics are ours), with a request to spare its blushes. If the proprietor of the "Medical Journsl" did not blush when he reproduced that, especially the italicized clause, he certainly has few blushes to spare. To be consistent, the Kansas News should have noticed the inter esting locals published in the Guide, such as those headed: "Rough on Rats," "Kidneywort." "Kiss Me," "Saddest of Sad Sights," "Flies and Bugs," "Liver Pads," "Aha!" &c. We agree with the far-away paper in Kansas that the "Medical Journal" is the best and most popular paper in Canada-aye, in all this fair Dominion. How the patriarchal bosom of our contemporary must have swelled up with honest pride as he read those idea of sending out commercial travellers is lines. He should send another copy of the Guide to the Hong Kong Chifung Tchingfoo Tallmchacker, and the latter estimable journal would in all probability say that, excepting the Chifung Tshingfoo Tallywhacke; the Port Hope "Medical Journal" was the The fees for inspecting will be forty cents per finest paper in the world.

The harmonious relations of the various railway companies were indicated by the fact that the Midland system is crossed six times between Toronto and Ottawa .- Globe.

NEW MIDLAND RAILWAY DIRECTOR .- E. S. Vindin, Esq., we understand, has been appointed to fill the vacancy in the Midland Railway Board of Directors caused by the death of Lewis Ross, Esq., ex.-M.P. Mr. Vindin is an old member of the Railway Board, and has been identified so many years with railway matters that he is thoroughly conversant with them.

MR. E. A. McDowell's Star Dramatic Co. will appear in the Music Hall on Tuesday evening next, 11th in-t., when a splendid programme will be presented. Mr. Mc-Lowell's name has only to be mentioned in this section to secure a large audience, as the entertainments presented by him in the past have always been first-class. For particulars, see posters.

Our readers will notice the advertisement of the Port Hope Cash Store in another column. The stock in this establishment has been replenished in every line with the newest and best goods. Mr. Hanratty, the manager, claims to have one of the largest stocks in Port Hope, giving the best value for the lowest prices. All are invited to call and inspect the stock. Mr. H. means business from the word "go."

WE are pleased to observe from a recent issue of the Winnipeg Times that Mr. R. H. Read, formerly of this town, has commenced business as an auctioneer, real estate and gen ral commission agent in Winnipeg. Mr. Read's well-known abilities as an auctioneer is sure to bring him a large business, and the "king of auctioneers" in the Northwest will have to look to his laurels. We speak for hundreds of friends in this section when we wish Mr. Read the largest measure of success and prosperity.

VENNOR ON OCTOBER .- The second week, he says, will probably enter with severe wind storms and heavy rains east and west, marked storm period about 9th and 10th. End of week fine and calmer weather. Frosts may occur about 12th. The third week, 14th to 21st, will be very stormy. Storms on lakes. General snow falls 17th and 18th. A terrible week of storms in all sections. Snow in England. About Oct. 24th there will be generally stormy weather, with snow falls in Ontario and in Maritime Provinces. Cold, miserable, wet and sleety weather. An unusually severe October.

THE viciousness with which the Rev. Mr. Laird has been attacked by a local cotem. is well understood. It is the result of a "personal grievance," which has been nursed until the favorable opportunity for retaliation presented itself, and, now that it has arrived, our contemporary is revelling in the delight of sweet revenge. If it were not, as we remarked, that the reason of it was well understood, the journal in question might succeed in pawning off his tirade of scandal as a mighty effort in the interests of morality and religion-the religion which teaches that revenge is the prerogative of One who will fully repay.

PERHAPS the Fred Wren company here on the evenings of Friday and Saturday last can play, but they certainly did not give the slightest evidence of it while in Port Hope. Their men, their dogs and their donkey seem to have equal ability, as far as stage talent is concerned. They have a band, to the strains of which the tattooing of a "gliver on a rail" is sweet music in comparisos . As Marks the lawyer is fond of remarking, "there ought to be a law against" such noise being inflicted on an unwilling and long-suffering public. If an exhibition of shouting, shooting, and tobacco quid throwing, such as Fred Wren's company give, is playing, it is time the business of acting was obsol-te.

A GOOD deal of amusement was afforded to not a few on John Street last Saturday. Fred Wren's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troupe of negroes, trained donkeys and dogs were marching along, followed by the usual number of small boys. A strange dog happened to pass that way, and the bloodhounds(?), muzzled and led by the negroes, started after him, dragging their keepers with them. The incident caused a little excitement, and there was a general scamper on the crowded sidewalk. A woman with a basket of apples was wending her way in a direction opposite to that sought by the dogs, and it also happened that these dogs were not versed in the courtesies due to women. The woman was directly on the line of pursuit; the canines kept on the line of pursuit, and in a second there was a woman sitting down on the sidewalk and a basketful of apples rolling in all directions. Small boys grabbed up all the fruit and were gone in a twinkling, while the poor woman rose sorely in disgust. Bystand ers, not very gallantly, it is true, laughed till their sides were sore.
