Rickard Has Colorful Life

Made Strike in Yukon, Quit in Time and Became Sport's Most Dominant Figure

New York, Jan. 7. - Before Tex Rickard ever thought of promoting a boxing match his career had stretched through a string of story-book adventures from the plains of Texas to the gold fields of Alaska and back to the gambling halls of Nevada.

He was born in Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 2, 1870, but his father moved to Sherman, Texas, when the only son, George L., was 4 years old.

After several years as a cowboy and later town Marshal of Henrietta young Rickard joined the rush to the Klondike in Alaska in 1895. He landed with another cowboy at Juneau, lugged his sleds through the Chilkoot Pass and 300 miles across lakes to the head of the Yukon...

Brock O'Connor Company Pleased Audience at Lindsay Recently - In Port Hope Tonight

That the Brock O'Connor players who present "The Merchant of Venice" at St. Mark's Parish Hall, Port Hope, tonight, have pleased their patrons in every other centre where they have performed, is evident by the following commendation chosen at random from many others:

I feel that it would be negligent on my part if I were to fail to express, on behalf of the Lindsay Kiwanis Club, our appreciation of your play, so masterfully presented in the Academy Theatre twice yesterday.

Remarks which I overheard in the lobby of the theatre, following the evening performance, by literary critics, were most complimentary to your players. We will look forward to further negotiations with you on your next tour through this section of Ontario.

New York, Jan. 7. - Rumors about the Garden indicated that Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion and, to Rickard's mind, the greatest boxer ever to draw on gloves, might be offered the post left vacant by the promoter's death. It appeared unlikely that Dempsey, with the ties of friendship that bound him to Rickard broken, would ever enter the ring again.

Training the Young Immigrant

The chronic unemployment in the fields of Great Britain still constitutes the most serious problem which the Mother Country has to face. As a means of easing the situation, attention is being more and more concentrated on immigration.

As an added occasion for training possible settlers in farm work and transferring the kind of British labour that is most needed in Canada, this scheme bears the indication of a hopeful example, the evolution of which promise, at once great opportunities for those willing to undergo the training and possible benefits ence a miner always a miner, and this class may not advantageously be transferred to new fields of different labor even in their own country. The younger generation, however, is surely of different substance and more readily adaptable to conditions overseas.

Realizing this, the authorities are multiplying plans and directing them to encourage the suitable kind of young men to qualify and prepare to emigrate from Britain to Canada or other overseas Dominions. This week there has been opened at St. Athans, in Glamorgan, a training hostel for youths in the coal mining valleys of South Wales. Boys between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years will be housed and fed at the hostel for a period of three months, and will be supplied with working clothes and weekly pocket money.

Butter can be softened in cold weather without wasting any by placing over it an inverted bowl which has been thoroughly heated.

LADY OF LIGHT

The many friends in Cobourg and Port Hope of Mrs. W. McKee-Bingham, a former resident of Cobourg, will read with interest the following lines written by her recently, which she has set to her own music. It is dedicated to Peterboro, her present home city, and was written specially for the celebration of Peterboro's Old Home Week:

"The birds across the hill are daily singing, And music murmurs gently down the stream. The bells above a welcome warm are ringing: Come back once more to rest awhile and dream. "Star-crowned she stands 'mid plains of richest splendor, Lighting the path along the coming years. And once again our love to her we render In rapture, joy, and softly falling tears.

CHORUS:

"Lady of Light, she greets you, Welcomes you home again. Once you were only children, Now you have grown to be men. Yesterday 'wakens in splendor, Lingers o'er friendships formed then; Lady of Light shining out through the night, Welcomes her children again."

for the country of their adoption. Amongst the immigrants to Canada last year was a number of young Welsh miners who had been at Government training centres, and since their settlement here letters from them received at the Ministry of Labor Divisional Headquarters at Cardiff speak most highly of the advantages they have enjoyed through the instruction they received before sailing. Their letters likewise bear testimony of the bright prospects the new life in Canada gives. Such instances more than counterbalance the failures that have been reported, failures which cannot by any means be regarded as patterns of the whole. Five hundred more of these specially trained young men will be ready to come to Canada in the early spring and it is such suitable British immigrants that the Dominion requires.

The Care And Training of Your Child

By Matthew Prior Adams

The Cure for Bickering

To cure children of bickering, there must be a good example set by the adults of the household. The children must never hear bickering. Children who have the habit of bickering should be temporarily separated,—made to stay and perhaps sleep in different rooms. If the bickering starts at the table, the aggressor should not be allowed to talk during the remainder of the meal.

It is a good idea, where bickering has become a habit, to have a bell on the table, and to ring this each time any bickering starts. This will be a reminder to stop it. Always penalize the aggressor when bickering becomes habitual, as it does between children of the same age, or between older and younger ones.

Bickering is often brought on by a child's desire to compete mentally with others. It is a sort of game to see who can win an argument, but not being done in accordance with rules, it is hard to tell who wins, so the argument is apt to be carried on indefinitely. Parents who give their children the opportunity to feel the satisfaction of winning in games or getting praise through good work, or feeling the joy of creative accomplishment, tend to reduce the amount of bickering.

It is most common in adolescents, who are usually opinionated, conceited and always testing their strength and power. Make it plain to them: that older people do not bicker unless they have childlike minds; that adults go on the assumption that if another makes a foolish, wrong statement and will not accept correction, the best thing to do is to let the ignorant one wallow in his own ignorance.

Sometimes the strained relationship which exists among children in the same family may be traced to unstrained bickering in their home life. This has degenerated into arguments involving personality, with bitterness of feeling and raw nerves. Such bickering should be shut off by the parents at the beginning and the aggressor punished.

Children in families where bickering is not allowed are always more friendly and affectionate to each other. It is impossible to establish a real family feeling that will endure through years if bickering is allowed.

It is wise, not only to stop the bickering at once, but start a substitute action, usually some game. Playing a game allows a tilt of wit as in bickering, but a game is in accordance with rules, and one's effort and success can be measured, with the result that one is winner and one loser. This satisfies the fighting or combative spirit that has been aroused at the start of bickering. If this is not satisfied it will remain as a constant irritation, ready to break loose at the first provocation. The children will continue to be irritable. Satisfy it through a game, but supervise it so there will be no quarrel over the rules.

Chickens can be plucked more easily if the bird is first put into very hot water.

If a strong solution of alum and water is brushed over paper which has stuck to any surface, and then allowed to dry, the paper will come off easily.

A PRETTY FROCK FOR MOTHER'S GIRL

5923. Printed silk, flat crepe or velveteen may be used for this design.

The Pattern is cut in 4 Sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 10 year size will require 2 yards of 36 inch material together with 5-8 yard of contrasting material for plait portions, and facings on cuffs and belt. Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 20c in silver or stamps.

A SMART ONE PIECE FROCK

6339. A low-placed plait section below diagonal lines affords pleasing fulness to the front of this model. A triangular revers outlines the unique shaping of the neck edge. The right front laps over the left front in a lengthwise side closing. The sleeve is a fitted model shaped at the wrist. The belt holds the one piece back and the front with slight blousing. Printed tweed in shadow or figured effect would be suitable for this style. It is likewise desirable for silk or wool crepe, plain or printed jersey, checked and plain material in combination is also suggested, using the checked material for the revers, belt and plait portion.

The Pattern for this model is cut in 5 Sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measured. To make the Dress for a 38 inch size as illustrated, will require 4 yards of 39 inch material together with 3-8 yard of contrasting material for facing on revers and belt. The width of the Dress at the lower edge with plait fulness extended is 15-8 yard.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 20c in silver or stamps. Send 15c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL AND WINTER 1928-29 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

What Betty Says

That neat cuffs must be deep this season.

That Lanvin is adding pastel touches to her white frocks.

That tucks are now important as trimming for afternoon frocks.

That dull and lustrous surfaced fabrics are both being favored by smart women at Aiken.

That printed taffeta, crepes and chiffon led in formal gowns displayed in Fifth Avenue windows this week.

Tips to Housewives

If you wet the pressing cloth in soapy water it will remain in place better and the task of pressing the garment will be easier. Wrought iron articles should be cleaned with a cloth damped with sweet oil, and polished with a dry flannel. A substitute for a lemon squeezer is to force a teaspoon into the fruit of the lemon, gently turn it, and it will extract every particle of juice. Limp cane chairs may be tightened by washing in hot soda water—2 oz. of soda to two quarts of water. Do not let the soda water touch the wood. Wipe dry and place in a current of air. Rust may be removed from the intricate carving of furniture with the aid of a bicycle pump.

In the past, scores of thousands of buyers seeking the greatest dollar-value, have purchased Plymouth—on the basis of simple comparison and contrast with other cars in its price range. At these new lower prices, the contrasts that Plymouth presents—in all-round economy of operation and upkeep, combined with full-size, weatherproof hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, modern engineering, impressive power and performance—are even more conclusive, even more emphatic of the Chrysler management's determination to give quality and value far in advance of anything else in the lowest-priced field. This most significant reduction in Plymouth prices is thus in keeping with Chrysler ideals, while passing on to purchasers the benefits that accrue from hugely increased production. See the Plymouth! Drive it—and try to match it in quality and value. We believe you will find these new low prices remove Plymouth further than ever from any other offering in the greatest motor car market.
