THREATENING YOUTH JAILED

Trenton Youth Threatened His Uncle in Attempt to Procure Money

For writing threatening letters to his uncle, Charles Vancott, farmer in the Township of Sidney, Oscar Pierce a well known young man of Trenton, was found guilty and sentenced to six months and not more than one year in Guelph Reformatory by Magistrate O'Rourke. The investigation was carried on by Chief Bain of Trenton and Sergt. Clarke of the Provincial Police. The first letter, of which there were three, was written on Feb. 1. The letter demanded $1,000 and the denominations in which it was to be paid were set forth. For failure to comply with the request the writer intimated that all the buildings on the farm would be burned. The second and third letters were practically the same. When the young man was apprehended he wrote out a statement setting forth that he was in need of funds and that he wrote the letters only from that need, knowing his uncle had plenty of money. The Magistrate

PERFORMS FEAT AT OSHAWA

S. F. Hooper Shoes Horse in the Shop He Started Business 50 Years Ago

A new note in anniversaries was struck in sounding tones in Oshawa yesterday when an old-time blacksmith, who started his apprenticeship 50 years ago, on April 9, 1878, took up his tools again and shod a horse, smith, who started his apprenticeship in the same shop where he began as a youth a half-century back. S. F. Hooper, now living at 58 Charles st. West, Toronto, went down to the shop on Mary Street, Oshawa, just north of King Street, now occupied by Jas. Moffatt and, with ringing blows on the time-tried anvil, forged four shoes and shod a horse, encouraged with wordy advice from a circle of old friends who had gathered to meet him. Mr. Hooper performed the job almost under the shadow of the giant motor industries for which Oshawa is noted. He stated when passing sentence that employers should pay reasonable wages and so keep their employees in a contented frame of mind.

PETERBORO ROAD IN BAD SHAPE

Considerable Inconvenience Is Caused to Motorists by Bad Spots on Road

Gravel sections of the Port Hope-Peterboro Highway, are in poor condition and practically impossible for traffic despite every effort on the part of the Highway Department. Motorists are put to a considerable inconvenience although about ten teams of horses and a tractor are assisting the cars and trucks across the bad spot. They are putting straw on the road, but this does not provide a very firm bed for traction of the rear wheels. The road was passable for motorists up until about four o'clock Thursday. A man has been stationed at Ballieboro and another near Port Hope to warn the motorists of the dangers. The men and teams are giving a twenty four hour service in pulling the cars along the sunken road which at one place is about a half a mile long. The contract has been signed to pave those sections this year. Many motorists stopped to watch the operations while the teams hauled the cars through the mud. That the Peterboro Automobile Club is alert in the interests of the motorists is indicated by the large sign at the city boundary, which reads: "Roads below Bewdley are impassable." Certain sections of the Highway below Bewdley have developed their annual "springiness" and much inconvenience to motorists has been the result to long lines of motorists observing the efforts of heavily laden, clumsy trucks to "wade" thru. "We'll caution Peterboro people against attempting this trip at the present time," said James Juby, president of the club, "and immediately petition the Government to proceed with all possible despatch with the paving of at least the section in which we can look for trouble every spring."

BAD FLOODS IN NORTH COUNTRY

Otonabee Overflows At Peterboro—Railway Line Submerged

Farm lands on the banks of the Burnt River are flooded; boathouses have been washed away; railway tracks are submerged for miles on the Lindsay-Haliburton C.N.R. line. Three weeks ago the C.N.R. was blocked by the worst snow storm in years, and today the line is at a standstill because of the washout. The bursting of a dam at Pine Lake and another at Kilmount has opened the floodgates and instead of abating the swollen river has increased in ferocity as it nears the outlet into Cameron Lake. Eight feet of water cover the C.N.R. tracks at Fells Station, a small flag station between Burnt River and Fenelon Falls. Two bridges were wiped out of the way near Burnt River and owners of summer cottages at Fenelon Falls and Cameron Lake Monday removed their boats and yachts when the water started flooding over the ice on Cameron Lake. The C.N.R. Monday operated a return train between Fenelon Falls and Lindsay and hope to run between Haliburton and Kilmount soon. The balance of the line will be out of commission for days. Serious at Peterboro The Otonabee River overflowed its banks in the southern part of Peterboro Monday afternoon and many streets and buildings are flooded out. Never since 1872 have the flood conditions in that city been so serious. The water is gradually rising and preparations are being made by residents in the south end to move from their homes. The river has been rising since early Saturday morning, with the result that the dams north of the city are filled to capacity and overflowing their banks. In some cases the Trent Canal authorities feared the dams would break, so some of the logs were removed causing the sudden rising of the water in Peterboro.

MUSICAL HALF HOUR TOMORROW

Program for Concert To Be Presented by Band and Assisting Artists

Bandmaster Greenlaw has announced for the Half Hour of Music at the Royal Theatre tomorrow night the following diversified program: March—"Officer of the Day"—R. B. Hall. Valse—"September"—Felix Godin. Fox Trot—"Indian Boy"—Harold Bennett. Gavotte—"St. Malo"—W. Rimmer. Overture—"Little Wonder"—Ed. Chennett. The band has been practising diligently since its last concert and promises to show even further improvement. Port Hope owes a great deal to these musicians who give their time and talents in order that the town may have a creditable band, and a capacity crowd at the Royal tomorrow will go far towards encouraging them to keep up the good work. In addition to the band numbers there will be solos by Charlie Stephenson and Miss Frances Johnson, local singers who need no recommendation. The new photoplay program accompanying the concert will star Johnny Hines in his new feature comedy "White Pants Willie," with special short subjects, all for the regular admission prices.

ROTARY DANCE A GALA EVENT

Al King's Orchestra Supplied Snappy Music for Easter Monday Dance

The Easter Monday Dance under the auspices of the Port Hope Rotary Club at the Town Hall Monday evening proved an unqualified success from every point of view and a large number of dance lovers were in attendance. The Rotarians worked hard to make the event the classic of the season and they are indeed pleased with the returns of the dance which will be used for a useful cause—to beautify Port Hope. The hall was prettily decorated with Union Jacks, bunting and Rotary emblems and at midnight a dainty lunch was served. Throughout the evening the light fantastic was tripped to the entrancing strains of Al King's five-piece Casa Loma orchestra which was so popular at the New Year's dance here. The orchestra was very generous with their selections and besides the regular program, several extra numbers were played. The novelty dances went over big for followers of the taperschorean art. Miss Marie Taylor and Mr. Howard Hutchings and Miss Dorothy Kuhne and Mr. William Giddy were winners of the novelty dances. The former couple were presented with a silver flower vase and a cigarette lighter, while the latter received a dainty jar of perfume and a carton of cigarettes. Many out of town people attended the function and included visitors from Oshawa, Bowmanville and Cobourg.

HEARD ON THE STREET

Now they are coming out!

The lovely sunshine is warming the atmosphere so the fair ones can trot out all their lovely new duds. Ben Olver and Co. have found the spring weather so nice that they have made an open air store, but this is only temporary, while the fine new window is being built in. This will make another to the many recent improvements on our main street and with the other contemplated changes will make Walton Street very modern. At the evening service in the United Church as in the morning Mr. Fred Skitch supplied in Mr. Stanley's stead and handled the organ in a very capable manner. Besides accompanying the hymns, he played the accompaniment to a solo by Mrs. Charles Evans and another by Mr. A. E. Fulford, also a delightful anthem. For the first time in the history of the city, Oshawa has a Police Court Clerk. Robert Stockhill of Harmony, an eastern suburb of that city was appointed on Monday and immediately took over his new duties. Previously the Chief of Police took down Police Court proceedings while it was necessary to employ a public stenographer for inquests or bring in an official court reporter from Toronto. A peculiar freak of lightning took place at Warsaw during a recent electric storm. Three head of cattle, the property of Tracey Bell, which were in a shed, were struck and killed, but little damage done to the building. Mr. George Stapleton of the township of Clarke, bought the house on Mill street, owned by Mr. Jacob Greenaway.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR FLOCK OWNERS

Poultry Industry Making Rapid Strides Throughout Canada, Officials Find

The poultry industry is one of the most flourishing in the dominion at the present time. Flocks have increased in number and laying has been speeded up so that the individual hen gives a better account of herself than ever before. Early hatching of pullets and the use of artificial lights have caused the birds to lay their eggs in winter when the prices are at the peak. Yet with all this improvement the export trade in eggs has been gradually decreasing, a phenomenon that takes some explanation. This falling off in shipments to England began with the inauguration of grading to fixed standards. This policy of classifying eggs according to definite grades has brought about a wonderful increase in the domestic consumption of the product. In fact, the per capita consumption of eggs in Canada has increased from 16.8 dozen in 1920 to nearly 30.0 dozen in 1927. During these years there was a steady increase in the production of eggs, but even this great output has not kept pace with the increased rate of consumption resulting in a decline in exports. Another cause of the fall in the exports was the fact that prices in Canada were above those prevailing in world markets. Practically all egg exports from Canada are a storage product, and the system of uniform grading and government certification to which they have been subjected has enabled them to command a premium over all other eggs on the British market. During 1927, however, prices here were so much higher than in England that export in quantity was impossible. As an example of this, Irish storage eggs were selling in England in October and December for 38c to 39s per dozen, while storage extras, the grades which would ordinarily have been shipped to England, were selling in Montreal at 45c to 47c per dozen. James Appleby of New Albany, Ind., died of hydrophobia, victim of a cat bite four months ago.

5 TRAINS DAILY 54 YEARS AGO

Midland Railway Extended As Far As Orillia in 1874

The Peterboro Examiner has been shown a well preserved copy of a Midland Railway time table of 1874. In that year Adolph Hugel was president and H. G. Taylor superintendent. The railway at that date extended from Port Hope to Orillia, and from Millbrook to Lakefield only. Peterboro was only a way station as the two trains to Port Hope each day (except Sunday) arrived at and departed from Lakefield. One train left Lakefield at 4.30 a.m. (correct), leaving Peterborough at 5.25 a.m. and reaching Port Hope at 7.35 a.m. connecting with Grand Trunk trains east and west and the steamer Norseman for Rochester, N.Y. Another train left Lakefield at 2.15 p.m., Peterboro at 4.15 p.m. and reaching Port Hope at 6.15 p.m. Trains arrived at Peterboro at 12.45 p.m. and 7.25 p.m. from Port Hope. There were five trains each way between Port Hope and Millbrook, three as far as Lindsay and two to Orillia. The 86 miles between Orillia and Port Hope was made in 4 hours and 45 minutes. This was about ten years before the line from Peterboro to Omemees was built, which for many years was known as the "missing link."

SAYS THOUGHT MERELY CHEMISTRY

Stimulation of Nerve Leads To Chemical Reactions Producing Heat

Thought, as defined in the dictionary, is "mental concentration on ideas as distinguished from sense perceptions or emotions." Dr. Ralph Waldo Gerard of the University of Chicago, however, is engaged in experiments to show it to be merely a chemical process. The work of Dr. Gerard, as assistant professor of physiology has been conducted with the thermopile, an apparatus said to be so delicate it can detect one millionth part of one millionth of an ampere of electricity. His theory is that all stimulation of nerve activity results in chemical reactions which produce heat. Minute electric shocks were used to stimulate artificially the nerve fibres which brought about chemical reactions, which in turn produce heat. The heat was converted into electricity and the intensity of the current measured. Nerves extracted from live frogs were used in the experiments. Dr. Anton J. Carlson, chairman of the Department of Physiology said: "Dr. Gerard's work in the field of nerve physiology is an achievement comparable to that of Professor A. A. Michelson in physics."

APRIL 10, 1908
Presentation and Address

On April 10th, 1908, one of those enjoyable incidents which helps very materially to smooth over the rough, uneven pathway of our earthly pilgrimage, took place, when forty or fifty of the personal friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Roberts, John Street, gave this worthy couple a genuine surprise. When order had been somewhat restored an address was read and a very handsome quarter-cut oak china cabinet, together with a silver cold meat fork and butter knife were presented to the very much surprised couple. A portion of the address read as follows: "At the approach of the fourteenth anniversary of your wedded life which falls on the 25th day of this month, we would take advantage of this occasion to ask your acceptance of this china cabinet as a slight tangible expression of our friendship and esteem and with it we couple our best wishes for many happy returns of the day." After fifteen years Lancaster, Pa., woman paid nickel debt with check for $10.

TWO HEADED CALF ON EXHIBITION

Many People View Freak Calf At Zealand's Veterinary Stables

In various circuses and sideshows throughout the world, two-headed and other freak animals have appeared on exhibition but dozens of people visited the office of Dr. H. W. A. Zealand, Queen street today, to view a two-headed stuffed calf. The calf was born last year on the farm of Charles Goodman, east of Dale, and was mounted by Carus Dickinson of Hope Township. It is now in the possession of Dr. Zealand. The body of the calf is tan and white, and is perfectly normal in every way except for two perfectly formed heads, including eyes, nose, etc. The calf lived forty nine hours after birth.

WEDDING BELLS

VAN EVERDINGEN—McMAHON

A very pretty wedding took place today at the home of Mr. L. T. Sylvester Dorset St., when Miss Marguerite McMahon, daughter of the late Joshua and Margaret McMahon was united in marriage to Hendrik Van Everdingen, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Van Everdingen of Amsterdam, Holland. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. E. Meldrum of the Port Hope Baptist Church. The bride who was given away by her brother, Mr. W. F. McMahon, looked charming in a beige flat crepe dress, with hat to match and carried an armful of roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Marguerite Kennedy, was dressed in rose beige. Mr. Herbert Winfield acted as best man in place of the groom's brother who, owing to a recent accident, was unable to be present. Miss Venieta Hales played the wedding march and during the signing of the register Miss Pearl Thompson sang "Love Divine." The groom's gift to the bride was a white gold watch; to the bridesmaid, Miss Marguerite Kennedy, Miss Venieta Hales and Miss Pearl Thompson, green gold vanity cases, and to the best man, gold cuff links. The room was beautifully decorated with tulips, daffodils, and roses. The popular couple received many beautiful and costly gifts from friends and relatives both here and abroad. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. E. Van Everdingen of Amsterdam, Holland, was present for the ceremony. After a dainty wedding breakfast, the happy couple left amid showers of confetti, on the Canadian Pacific flyer for Western points. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Van Everdingen will reside on Smith Street, Port Hope.

THE GUIDE STORY

She thought this was slightly impractical.

"You must not do that, Mr. Pett. You forget that I am a companion, and though they are sometimes taken to nice gatherings, they don't have regular invites. I know all about it if you don't."

Hal flushed.

"You do think we are a lot of snobs down here! What does it matter?—what does anything matter?—when you are—you are—well, just what you are? Wait and see. My mother isn't that sort and as for the governor, he will be wild to lend you a good hunter, if Miss Ransome has not got one for you."

"What should I do with a hunter, when I can't ride?" inquired Firefly innocently.

"You can't ride!"

"Well there is nothing very wonderful in that," retorted the young lady.

"No," said Hal hurriedly, as he caught sight of the Manor chimneys and knew the walk was drawing to a close; "but, you see, there isn't a girl for miles round who can't ride. I dare say you have always lived cooped up in a town, and" he added cheerfully, "there would be no fun in town riding."

"I have always lived in a detestable smug-looking house, in a smug-looking square, in the smuggest of all London's smug suburbs," answered Firefly.

Hal winced. Already he did not like to think of poverty in connection with the girl whom he had known only for one hour.

"Well, we can soon change that. I'll speak to the heiress about it. Bother, there I am again. I mean Miss Ransome. We got into an idiotic trick of calling her that before she settled in at the Manor. We are a fearfully gossipy set round here, as you will soon find out, and a prospective heiress coming to settle was a blessing in disguise for us."

"Now she is here, what do you think of her?" asked Firefly.

The question jarred on Hal. He wished that sweet voice had not uttered it, and being a painfully outspoken young fellow, and not having wits enough to frame an evasive answer, he kept silence. Firefly repeated the question.

"I conclude the verdict was unfavorable, then?" she added.

"I don't think you ought to ask the question," blurted out Hal, wishing he were safe at home.

"Why not?"

"Because you are staying in her house, and it's caddish to talk her over with outsiders. There, I suppose I had better ride on, as you won't ever want to be civil to me again."

Firefly stared at him blankly for a moment then burst out laughing.

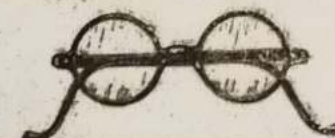

"Why—you don't really think I'd be offended at that, do you?"

"You are a good natured sort!" exclaimed Hal, brightening with wonderful celerity. "Why, I know a girl, a really jolly sort of a girl, who would have boxed my ears for far less."

"What a funny county this is," Firefly remarked. "The men live

A REVIEW OF PRESTON'S BOOK

Manitoba Free Press Comments on Port Hoper's Recent Book

For fifty years Mr. Preston has known, as friend or opponent, every Canadian public man of note—while his relations with the Liberal leaders of this half century have been very intimate. His residence in Great Britain brought him into contact with the leading public men of that country, Liberals especially—he was offered a Liberal nomination in the elections of 1905 when the Liberals swept the country. His official travels took him into many foreign countries where he had to deal with men of affairs. He thus has an interesting story to tell of it and he tells it well. He has a good range of the dramatic possibilities of a situation and has a sinewy nervous style of writing which holds the interest. This work, like his earlier life of Lord Strathcona, is a book which will find and keep a place in the political literature of Canada. It is not history but it is the kind of writing which historians find invaluable when they try to reconstruct the proceedings and atmosphere of a period that has passed. Since his book has appeared Mr. Preston has been sharply criticized for not displaying a sweeter temper and a more balanced judgment in dealing with the incidents of the past and the personalities associated with them. As an historian, Mr. Preston might be open to criticism; but he does not put out the book as a history of his times. It is a record, sincere, open and unashamed of Mr. Preston's friendships and enmities; of his convictions, beliefs, prejudices and antipathies; of his estimates of the causes and effects of political situations and crises, especially with respect to the human elements which entered into them. He paints his contemporaries, warts and all; but incidentally he limns himself with frankness as one who at least has not the poise and mentality of the judge. The book is thus a human document of great interest; and a valuable sidelight upon the times with which it deals.

Mr. Preston, a bonny fighter, does not disparage the qualities of his antagonists. His attack is never on their ability, but always on the uses to which they put their ability. He is very severe on the political methods of Sir John McDonald. But he agrees that he had his great side. "He was a fine administrator and a pastmaster in the art of combining and ruling men. He took fortune at the flood tide, never making a mistake as to the happy hour. He was bold and imaginative where others were timid and distrustful." For Sir Charles Tupper he has words of appreciation. "A most commendable characteristic and the one through which his memory is kept green by friend and foe alike, was the utter absence of personal animosity in his makeup. He refused to waste his energy on enmity." Of Sir William Meredith, who led the Ontario provincial Conservatives with distinction if not with success, he has many complimentary things to say. "There was something about Meredith that made even his opponents respect his partisanship. He was a born leader." About Meredith, Preston indulges in speculation. "If he had not retired to the Bench but had become the leader of the Tory party in the Dominion after Sir John's death, how differently might have been not only the history of his party, but the course of events in Canada." Meredith was available for three years after Sir John's death but was never thought of in connection with the federal leadership.

Lord Strathcona is placed very high and also very low by Mr. Preston, who reproduces in this book much of the matter in his earlier work, "The Life and Times of Lord Strathcona." Either Mr. Preston suffers from a Strathcona obsession or the accepted political history of Canada from 1873 onward for 40 years needs to be rewritten. He sees Strathcona everywhere as the evil genius of Canada, pulling the strings with leaders in both the political and financial world dancing to his will. In 1871 Donald A. Smith entered parliament as the representative of Selkirk, a constituency which included the little settlement of Winnipeg. "From that time dates a career," says Mr. Preston, "more interesting in all its details and more far-reaching in its results upon the commercial, social and political life of the Dominion of Canada than that of any other individual in the history of the British colonies. He had no peer as a shrewd manipulator of political leaders for his own purpose." He gives scandalous details in the elections of 1878, and in the launching of the Canadian Pacific enterprise which is not in keeping with the conventional and accepted theory. It must be said that these hints and charges are not documented; but they represent, it is apparent, a profound personal conviction.

Mr. Preston had of course, intimate relations with successive Liberal leaders; to him they are mostly heroes. Of Blake he says: "He was an intellectual giant without an equal in Canada, without fear and without reproach. His seat sacrifice, his fruitless labor and his resignation must ever rank as one of the greatest tragedies of Canadian politics." Preston had the warmest regard for Cartwright, and took greatly to heart Laurier's failure to reappoint him minister of finance in 1896; he charges the party whip at that time with a measure of responsibility for this decision. After the election of 1896 "he expected to triumph and show what he could do. Instead, came the shattering of the hopes and dreams of his whole life." To Preston was given the task of breaking the news to Cartwright. "My interview with Sir Richard was the most poignant I ever experienced. He was stunned; utterly broken." Sir Wilfrid Laurier is naturally one of Mr. Preston's idols. There is a curious story of Laurier in the last year of his life offering a seat in parliament to some unnamed Toronto lawyer, in the hope that he might qualify for the leadership in succession to him. For his department chief for some years, Sir Clifford Sifton, Mr. Preston has warm praise. "He alone saw clearly that the problem of the future of Canada was bound up in the development of the western territories. His knowledge of the possibilities of the west, backed by undaunted courage and intense driving power." And again: "To Clifford Sifton, and to no other in anything like the same degree, was due the transcendent success of Laurier's government. He solved the immigration problem with which Canada has struggled unsuccessfully for more than half a century.

Had Sifton remained in office (as minister of the interior) the Dominion would have had not less than 15,000,000 by 1915 and at least 20,000,000 by now. It was a national calamity when Laurier and Sifton drifted apart."

The closing note of the volume is personal and touching: "And now the last word said, the last thought written, a hand weary with writing lifts from the page. In these close sheets I have relived days long past, have felt again the intimacy of bygone triumphs and griefed over past failures. But the companion of long months is ended, and this book of memories slips out upon the high water-way. Not, perhaps, to a calm and easy voyage. It will be caught in the eddies of hostile criticism, thrown against the rocks of condemnation. But it may be that here and there a friendly hand will be stretched out to smooth its passage into gentler waters. More I cannot ask. And if, in the reading of it, others find that I have touched some chord of sympathy and understanding, let me rest content."

New type monoplane for which is claimed remarkable lifting capacity is nearing completion at Charles Levine's Long Island aeroplane factory. The plane is all metal and has a single wing of cantilever construction. The wing spread is fifty feet and the wing quite thick, which gives it lifting power. The plane is built low and the entire fuselage is stream lined to cut down wind resistance. A flying radius of five thousand miles and a maximum speed of 160 miles an hour is claimed for the plane by its designers.

Traveling in Europe for about ten dollars a day, putting overseas travel on a par with a normal holiday at home, is made possible for the American tourist by the happy combination of Tourist Third Cabin Class on the magnificent Atlantic fleet of the Canadian Pacific Steamships and the tours arranged in the old world by the Arts Crafts Guild of Chicago. The creation of this new class of ocean travel on Canadian Pacific vessels has made travel possible for many thousands who have been unable to consider fulfilling their hopes, and during the past few years it has become fully established in popularity. The economy effected by this class of ocean passage makes a comprehensive European tour possible for every traveller, who during the Atlantic voyage enjoys surroundings and comforts equal to those until recently associated only with first class accommodation. Staterooms are above the water line, each with hot and cold running water, and the public rooms—card rooms, drawing rooms, smoking rooms, dining saloons,—are commodious and tastefully furnished. Orchestras are carried for special entertainments and dancing. These take place on the broad promenade decks or within doors.

Itineraries ranging from thirty-two to seventy-three days in extent, including the ocean passage, are possible for the traveller under the Continental Collegiate Tours organized by the Arts Crafts Guild of Chicago. The charm of these tours is realized right from the start, for during the thousand mile journey down the mighty St. Lawrence and through the Gulf the boats pass scenery rivalling that of any river trip in the old world for beauty and picturesque-ness.

Once overseas there is nothing of importance or interest missed by the tours of the Guild. In England they include the Shakespeare country and London; in the "Low Countries," the best of Belgium and Holland; in Germany, the Rhine and her great centres; in France, Paris—of course—and the lovely Riviera with Monte Carlo in its midst; in Switzerland, the Alps; to the south the cities of sunny Italy and romantic Spain; and to the north, in the "Land of the Midnight Sun," Norway and Sweden. Everything in fact that the traveller is anxious to see may be visited on these tours.

DESIRES TO JOIN CENTRAL

Two things stood out conspicuously at the eleventh annual meeting of the Deloro Amateur Athletic Association held recently. The pleasing fact was revealed that last season starting with a deficit of eighty-one dollars and thirty-nine cents, was wound up with a surplus of one hundred and seventy-seven dollars and thirty-five cents. It was also stated that Deloro's Baseball Club would seek admission in the Central Ontario League at the League's meeting in Belleville on April 14. There was a splendid attendance at the meeting which was brimful of interest and timely suggestions.

HOCKEY

MILLER IN GOAL

Joe Miller, relief goalkeeper of the National Hockey League, will replace the injured Lorne Chabot in the nets for the New York Rangers in the third of the series of Stanley Cup games against the Montreal Maroons at the Forum tonight. Miller has arrived from his home in Ottawa and will go through a light practice with the New York team tomorrow morning to fit himself as far as possible into the system of the champions of the United States section.

Decision to use the Ottawa athlete in the Ranger net for the balance of the series was reached at a meeting Monday between leaders of the two contending clubs and President Frank Calder of the N. H. L.

GRANVILLE FOURTH

Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, Eng. led C. C. Payle's marathoners into Sayre, Okla., today, but Andrew Payne of Claremore, Okla., retained the lead in elapsed time by more than an hour over Gavuzzi. Payne finished ninth in the 32.2 mile jaunt from Texola in 5.03.30 while Gavuzzi's time for the distance was 4.35.30. Gavuzzi is second on the elapsed time list.

Philip Granville, Hamilton, Ont., was entrenched in fourth place to night after finishing the lap in 5.58.02. His elapsed time for the 1,335.6 miles from Los Angeles was 252.09.38.

John Cronick of Saskatoon held eighth place in 6.30.33—264.44.33. A. Constantinoff of Toronto, has thrilled followers of the race by his recovery from two operations for an infected hip. His times were 6.33.30—288.29.38.

Henry Swabey, York Township, Ont., 7.18.00—290.47.27. S. Steveno, Calgary, 9.05.26—307.44.01.

Harold McNutt, Alberta, 9.55.06—345.05.00. Eugene Germain, Montreal, late start, not in.

A contract for the building of a new steamer for the British Columbia Coast Steamship Service to take the place of the Princess Beatrice on the Prince Rupert, Skagway or west coast of Vancouver Island run, has been signed by E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The new steamer will be 250 feet long by 48 feet broad and will have a service speed of 15 knots with accommodation for 170 first-class passengers.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics the average production of wheat over the five years 1922-26 in Manitoba was 17.5 bushels to the acre, in Saskatchewan 17.3 bushels to the acre and in Alberta 17.2 bushels to the acre. The average values per bushel in the same period were respectively $1.00, 97c and 96c, making the respective returns per acre from wheat for the three provinces $17.50, $16.78 and $16.16.

Commenting on the use of the harvester-thresher or "combine" in Saskatchewan the International Harvester Co. states that during 1924 and 1925 representatives concluded the general use of this machine for harvesting grain crops in Western Canada was thoroughly practicable. In 1926 a number of machines were sold there and excellent testimonials were received from purchasers. In 1927 there was a greatly increased sale due to the showing, and results even under the unfavorable conditions prevailing that season were strikingly successful.

Over 600 new families arriving in Canada this year with limited capital can be looked after and settled advantageously in Alberta by the various provincial agents of the Canada Colonization Association, according to reports submitted by various representatives at the annual Alberta convention just concluded at Calgary. The objective first set was 400 families, but a survey showed that at least 200 more settlements could be made. T. O. F. Herzer, manager of the association, reported that during the past three years 486 families had been settled in Alberta on 122,826 acres of land, of which 153 were settled last year.

CLEAN POULTRY HOUSE

PROPER SANITATION IS MOST IMPORTANT.

Formula for Whitewashing the Buildings—All Utensils Should Be Carefully Cleaned.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Sanitation is doubly important with poultry, since domestication generally requires them to take their food from the same floors where their body wastes are deposited. This practice creates a real problem in sanitation, leaving the birds exposed to an auto-infection of pathogenic bacteria and parasites, both internal and external.

Method of Cleaning a Poultry House.

Remove all the loose litter and dirt. The fixtures as roosts, nest boxes, dust box, etc., should be removed, thoroughly scrubbed with hot lye water, and then exposed to the sun. With fixtures out, the ceiling and walls should be thoroughly swept. If water under pressure is at hand the scrubbing out can be greatly facilitated by turning on a powerful stream of water. Should water pressure not be available a good scrubbing can be given all woodwork of walls and floors, using hot lye water (3 pounds of lye to 25 gallons of water). Follow the scrubbing with lye water. A good formulae for whitewash is as follows:—

- Unslaked lime, 2 pecks.
- Spanish whiting, ½ pound.
- Salt, 1 peck.
- Glue, 1 pound.
- Rice flour, 3 pounds.
- Crude carbolic acid, 2 quarts.

Water enough so that it can be applied easily and thoroughly.

Keeping Yards Clean.

It is highly desirable to alternate yards in such a way that they can be used for garden crops every second year. If this can not be done frequent ploughing and applications of lime is the next best way of aiding the soil purification processes. Without proper care of the yards, it is only a matter of time until they become polluted, with parasites; cocci-diosis and pathogenic bacteria.

Disposal of Manure.

The dropping boards should be cleaned daily and the manure removed to a closed storage box. The practice of using manure on dropping boards is a good one. Failure to keep the birds safely away from manure of all kinds favors the transmission of disease and intestinal parasites. All dead birds should be destroyed by burning, burial is usually not satisfactory unless the person doing the undertaker work will bend his back enough to make a deep grave and thereby put the carcass down below harm's way.

Cleaning Utensils.

All pans, troughs and fountains that can become contaminated, should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected each week. Roosts may be sprayed weekly with a mixture of equal parts of crude carbolic acid and coal oil, such practice will aid in keeping the louse pest in check.

The establishment of conditions favorable to the health of the poultry flock may seem a lot of work, but success and profit cannot be expected if the work is not done in a thorough and practical way. The practice of letting things go from day to day or week to week will not do in the poultry business and has written the word failure across the efforts of many a would-be poultryman.—L. Stevenson, Dept. Extension, O. A. College.

FEEDING OF RAPE.

Good for Chickens, Lambs, Pigs and Steers.

This crop, now grown quite extensively in the counties where large numbers of steers and lambs are fed, requires some care in feeding. Very young cattle and lambs are frequently affected by too liberal use of this crop and results have not always been profitable. But properly handled this crop makes a valued addition to the autumn feed supplies of the farm, being green and palatable. It is relished by all farm animals from the chicken to the cow.

When cut for selling it should be fed at once, wilting spoils the flavor and it heats quickly if piled. Cutting has an advantage in that three crops may be obtained in a season giving a very large tonnage.

Rape cannot be fed to milking cows if the product is to be sold as milk, cheese, or butter. An undesirable cabbage flavor will stick to the dairy product. For dry cows and young stock on the dairy farm it is a very desirable feed.

For lambs, rape is excellent, but care must be taken to prevent bloat, which is very likely to follow. Have the lambs pretty well filled with drier feed before turning them on the rape patch, and give them a part time run on grass in an adjoining field if possible. Rape wet with rain or heavy dew is dangerous to a hungry animal, either sheep or cattle; pigs do not seem to be affected. Frozen rape has the dangers of rape as the sole feed is not always satisfactory. Use it rationally in that the animal is given other feeds each morning before being turned into the rape field that they may become used to it and not overeat of this bulky easily-fermented feed. Once the stock are used to rape they can remain on the field without danger, nevertheless it is good policy to watch them closely for evidences of bloat or rope poisoning.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. College.

Do not sell thin chickens—fatter or kill and cremate.

FACED A PYTHON FOR OVER 2 DAYS

Veldt Poacher Has Life and Death Struggle With Reptile

There is at least one bush-velde farmer who is not so keen on poaching as he used to be. One Friday afternoon he fancied a little venison, so he set off with a gun but no license—and disappeared.

It was not until the following Sunday afternoon that a search party discovered his legs protruding from an ant-bear hole, and extricated him more dead than alive.

He had wounded a stembok, and the animal had made a dive for the shelter of the antbear hole. The hunter followed, and with his head and shoulders underground, just managed to grip the animal.

A frantic jerk on the buck's part however, wedged the hunter tightly and his struggles only shifted the loose red sand, so that he was trapped beyond return. The most he could do was to twist slightly, allowing a little light to penetrate—wherein he was able to see a python coiled up within a few feet of his face.

The python attacked his strange visitor but the hunter kept it off by throwing sand in its face, while its efforts to coil itself around him were foiled by the fact that he was tightly wedged in the opening.

For two whole days and nights the hunter and the python thus faced each other until help came in the nick of time.

 That Thou didst come and suffer
 The shame of Calvary.

But Thy great love for us, Lord,
 Oh, sinless Son of God,
 To cleanse us from our sin, Lord,
 Thou didst shed Thy precious blood.

Was ever love so wondrous,
 So wide, so full and free,
 To give up all His Glory
 To die for sinful Me?

Oh, now at last, Dear Master,
 I bow at Thy torn feet,
 Oh, cleanse me now, my Saviour,
 And make me whole, complete.
