For once, his wife was mistaken !

"DUT in your Long Distance call," said I Mrs. Blake to her husband, as she put on her hat. "I'll go ahead. You'll have to wait!"

But to their great surprise, the operator said, "Please hold the line." It didn't seem over a minute before Mr. Blake was actually talking to New Haven, 400 miles away!

There is practically no waiting for Long Distance connections nowadays, if you give the operator the distant number. She makes the connection usually while you hold the line.

If you don't know the distant number, and the Long Distance operator has to look it up for you, it naturally takes a little longer. She will tell you the number, so you can make a memo of it for use the next time. .

While I am reminiscing about my relations with Mr. Claveland, I will jump alread about ten years and speak of a visit he paid me for three days during March, 1901, He was to deliver an address at the Henry Wurd Beecher memorial meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Sunday evening, and he arrived from Princeton on Suturday. He was like a boy out of school. We were going to the theater on Sat-

THERE are many varieties and styles of coats designed for this sen-son's wear. The three that head the list, however, are the collarless coat, list, however, are the collarless coat, the scarf coat, and the cape out. The model shown above may be a combination of the last two, for a scarf may be easily attached to the turned-up collar. The cape can be detended for a chapter of the turned-up count. The cape can be detached for a change, too or in the erent of very warm weather. The coat is perfectly straight and fet' length although the seventh eights. length is very new and smart when worn with a dress of the same fabric. The collar, cuffs and pockets are in terestingly trimmed with Wall-of-Troy handing. Cashmere, novelty tweed, broadcloth and crepe satin are materials that will make the design spring and summer. WE CAN MAKE HOME HAPPY

Though we may not change the cottage

For a mansion tall and grand, Or exchange a little grass plot For a boundless stretch of land-Yet, there's something brighter, dearer. Than the wealth we'd thus command.

Though we have no means to purchase

Costly pictures, rich and rare-Though we have no silken hangings

For the walls so cold and bare-We can hang them o'er with garlands. For flowers bloom everywhere.

We can always make home cheerful If the right course we begin; We can make its inmates happy,

And their truest blessing win: It will make the small room brighter If we let the sunlight in.

SPRING Grandmother was a wonderful housekeeper in her day and generation. Every spring, up came the carpets; down came the pictures and heavy lambrequins; out went the furniture, and in came soap and water and scrubbing-brush. Soon the floors and woodwork gleamed like new; the carpets were replaced after a beating that sent every particle of dirt swirling away in a cloud of dust; the furniture was cleaned and returned to its accustomed place. Everyone was miserable including grandmother-but it simply had to be done.

Women are better housekeepers than grandmother ever was or ever could be, for they have the modern convenience to make them so. They have learned, though advertising, of better foods and how to prepare and serve them more attractively. They have bought, because of advertising, the many time and labor saving devices that we have come to regard as every day necessities.

Because of advertising, women have more time for relaxation and the social amenities. They look younger. They are younger-by years-than grandmother at the same age. Advertising has made that possible.
