

TRIAL MUST BE SPEEDED

Former Soldiers Tell of Experience in Last Hours Of War

There must be a decided speeding up in the conduct of the Currie trial. This was the warning issued late Thursday afternoon by Mr. Justice Rose, who declared that he was becoming bored with long and aggravating examination. He first mentioned "waste of time," but decided to withdraw that remark.

The judge did considerable to hasten proceedings by ruling out a large amount of the examination for discovery, including the second examination of Gen. Currie, at which questions were asked regarding the famous "dugout story."

"I ruled," he said, "against question on that score formerly during the time a certain witness was on the stand."

There were broad smiles about the counsel table at this remark. The certain witness referred to was Col. John A. Currie, M.P.P., who was ejected from the courtroom when he tried to make a statement on his own behalf.

Mr. Exchanges

Some hot exchanges took place when Frank Regan chief counsel of the defense, returned to his attack on governmental army records, again making the bald charge that they were false. He did not repeat, however, the charge he made Tuesday to the effect that they had been deliberately falsified. This remark drew down the censure of the bench on his head.

Mr. Regan's statement came when Col. Reginald Orde, Judge Advocate General was on the stand, and the defense counsel was examining him hotly on war diaries, many of which have been produced in court since the action started.

"Are we going to try this case on war diaries?" asked the judge.

"Absolutely, my lord," retorted Mr. Regan. "These records are all mired up. The war diaries show that casualties of November 9, 10 and 11 are all lumped together."

The first document that Colonel Orde was asked to produce was the letter from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, to the Governor-General, containing details of the armistice terms. Mr. Regan accepted a copy which contained all the relevant matter from this document. In addition, he got Colonel Orde to read the clause regarding cessation of naval hostilities. The clause stated that these were to cease "immediately" while the armies were given six hours of grace before the armistice became effective.

Open Barouches For Merry Widow Hats

Seeks Interpretation

"I want an interpretation of that clause," said Mr. Regan.

"I cannot give an interpretation other than as it is given in the letter," replied Col. Orde. "It depends entirely upon the meaning of certain words there. The distinction between the navies and the armies is made for obvious reasons, because of the different state of circumstances."

"It is not obvious to me," declared Mr. Regan.

"Perhaps," suggested W. N. Tilley, K.C., chief counsel for the plain tiff, "Mr. Regan and the witness might get together privately and settle it. It is not a matter to be discussed in court."

Asked for a copy of the telegram sent to Sir Edward Kemp asking for an investigation into Canadian casualties, Col. Orde said it had been impossible to locate it at Ottawa.

It was then that Mr. Regan turned to the war diaries, Col. Orde producing those of the fourth artillery brigade. The lawyer tried to find in the diary of the division, notice of a message that was supposed to have been sent on October 10, but there was no mention of it. The diary entry for that date covered the whole period from November 8 to November 15, and the only order noted was the one received on November 11, containing news of the armistice.

Mr. Regan questioned the witness closely as to why no other orders appeared in the diary. Was it not the duty, he asked, of those making up the diary to make notes of all orders. Col. Orde said that this was left to the judgment of the officers making the record.

"But they are supposed to be a history of the war," declared the counsel.

"Every happening," responded the Colonel "has been reported officially probably hours before this diary was made up. The diaries are a history of the war only in so far as the officers made them so."

Then Mr. Regan went on a hunt for copies of the orders, and was told by the colonel that they could not be located.

"But where did they go?" demanded Mr. Regan.

Used as Kindling

"They were probably used as kindling," was the reply. "when the reason for keeping them ceased. They did not carry crates full of orders back to London. There was no logical reason for keeping them."

"That is for the jury to decide," retorted the lawyer.

Still he kept up his insistence that the orders should be noted in the diaries, until Mr. Tilley cut in.

"Will it satisfy my friend," he asked, "if we admit the orders should be in the diaries?"

"Quite," replied Mr. Regan. "It takes a civilian after all, to tell the army what to do."

"And," continued Mr. Tilley, "the fact that the orders are not in the diary would indicate that they were never received."

"Yes," said Mr. Regan.

"I hope," said Mr. Tilley, "that you realize the full weight of what my admission means."

Mr. Regan also failed to get records on the number of Germans killed in Mons on November 10 and 11.

WORK STARTS IN THE WEST

Cold Wave Abates, Letting the Farmers Work Their Land

The cold wave which has enveloped the Prairie Provinces for the past two weeks showed signs of abating today, as temperature became more reasonable in Alberta.

During the night dips of three and four degrees below zero were experienced respectively at Regina, Sask., and Minnedosa, Man.

Light snowfalls also were reported over a scattered area. The recurring snowfalls and cold water during April have not caused any apprehension among the farmers of the West. With the advent of higher temperatures, plowing and seeding will be in full swing and general belief is expressed that there will be no serious delay in getting the 1928 crop in the ground.

The only report that Col. Orde could give was one from the third division on the number of German prisoners taken from November 7 to November 11. This showed that seven German prisoners were taken by the division which was operating in the Mons area on the last day of the war.

"What became of all the dead Germans?" demanded Mr. Regan. He quoted from a report of the first army telling of its capture of two machine gun posts in Mons early in the morning of November 11, and stating that the crews were all killed or taken prisoner.

"I am trying to get through my head," said the judge, "why we are trying to prove the records to be false."

Believes Records Wrong

"Because I believe they are wrong," said Mr. Regan heatedly. "Sir Arthur Currie brought them here as evidence for himself, and says they are right. What became of those dead Germans?"

"What does it matter about them?" asked the Bench.

"I consider it very important," replied the defense counsel, "and I am sorry your Lordship disagrees with me."

Replied to Sir Sam

Much of the examination read on Thursday bore directly on the speech delivered by Sir Arthur Currie in Massey Hall, Toronto, on August 30, 1919. At that time, he answered the charges which were made by the late Sir Sam Hughes, who characterized him as a "bull headed" fighter who always plowed ahead regardless of the lives of his men.

Questions and answers relating to former battles, at Arras, Amiens, Cambrai and Passchendaele were ruled out as irrelevant.

Important facts as to the time when Sir Arthur knew of the armistice were brought out. Mr. Regan, during the examination, evidently tried to bring out the fact that the Canadian commander should have known that an armistice was coming long before he received official word of it on the morning of November 11. One salient fact quoted from one of Sir Arthur's answers was that the President of France, on November 10, expressed some doubt as to the outcome of the negotiations.

Actual orders for the attack on Mons, Sir Arthur said, were given the morning of November 10, but it then decided, owing to heavy machine gun fire from the town to hold it off until night, and then attempt to "sneak in." These orders were given verbally at the headquarters of Major General Sir Frederick Loomis, commanding the first division, at a time when, Sir Arthur said, the Canadians were "practically in Mons."

Not to Press Attack

General Loomis was told not to press the attack if resistance was sufficiently severe to make too many casualties probable. This order, the general said, he gave of his own responsibility, as the order from either Foch or Haig did not mention any such reservation. There was a definite order from the high command, however, to take the high ground east of Mons.

Mr. Regan, the document showed, pressed Sir Arthur for an answer as to whether it would not have

EXECUTIVE TO MEET FRIDAY

Important Meeting of Softball League and Representatives Tonight

The executive of the Port Hope Softball League, together with the representatives of the various teams desirous of entering are asked to attend a meeting to be held in the Department of Agriculture on Friday evening, April 20th at 7.30 sharp. Important business will be discussed and a large attendance is requested.

The entries for the league close tonight and must be entered at this meeting together with the necessary $2.00 entry fee. Certificates for the various teams will be issued and a draw made for the opening games of the league.

been better to take these hills before capturing the town. He pointed out that Moun Huoy had been taken and the town of Valenciennes immediately surrendered without a shot being fired. Sir Arthur's reply was that there was not a German left in Mons when the hills to the east had been taken.

Sir Arthur said that, after the German envoys had been refused a forty eight hour cessation of hostilities while they considered the armistice terms he received definite orders to go on with the fighting. He could not recall the date when the German envoys first came thru the lines to discuss an armistice.

The examination also showed a close questioning of the General as to the importance of taking Mons, from a military viewpoint. Sir Arthur refused to say that the capture shortened the war, declaring it was unjust to pick out Mons from a general offensive along a 100 mile front. Mons, he said, was "just an incident in the general advance."

Although he admitted that there had been useless loss of life in other parts of the war, the General refused to point out any definite instance. He said he would not discuss the actions of other officers, or give his opinion as to whether they were responsible for wasting lives.

Mr. Regan battled hard to have the references to other battles admitted as court records. He wanted to show he said, that, if the same system had been followed at Mons as in other engagements, there would have been no loss of life.

"I can show," he said, "that the troops at Passchendaele were wrongly disposed."

One of the features of the session Thursday was the evidence of Robert N. Hill, who was in the Second Canadian Machine Gun Corps. He took part in the circling movement of Mons early in the morning of November 11.

Mr. Regan examined him as to the statement made by Sir Arthur Currie during his examination for discovery, to the effect that many of the men wanted to go on fighting.

"What were your feelings when you heard of the armistice?" asked Mr. Regan.

"A feeling of joy," replied the witness. "You can imagine my feelings."

"Did you want to go on fighting?"

"No," said the witness loudly. "No one did. You wouldn't yourself."

"What were your exact feelings," repeated Mr. Regan.

"A fellow that has been in a war for two years hasn't any feelings," was the reply.

Despite efforts being made to hasten the course of the trial, there is little doubt that the case will go over into next week.

Following must come the arguments of counsel and the judge's charge to the jury, all of which are expected to be lengthy.

There will be a session Saturday, which will continue into the afternoon, if there is a chance of finishing. If not, the sitting will adjourn until Monday.

LET US HAVE YOUR COPY EARLY.

FORMER MAYOR DIED THURSDAY

Stanley B. Burnham Had Long Civic and Business Career

Finis was written to a long civic and business career here Thursday at noon when the Grim Reaper called Stanley B. Burnham to his eternal home. The late Mr. Burnham contracted pleurisy in February and, coupled with advanced age, failed to rally from the effects and death came quietly on Thursday.

Deceased was in his 80th year, and was the son of the late William Burnham and grandson of the late John Burnham, who was a United Empire Loyalist, and a pioneer settler of this district who materially helped in the founding of the Anglican Church here. His was an old established business in Port Hope for a great number of years; the deceased conducted a musical supply house. He was an accomplished performer on the piano and for many years taught piano lessons.

He was regarded as an authority on municipal matters and for eight years served as councillor. They were, 1898, 1901, 1902, 1904, 1905, 1907, 1916 and 1917, while in 1908 and 1913 he held the Reeveship. Perhaps the crowning feature of the late Mr. Burnham's career came in the years 1918, 1919 and 1920 when he occupied the Mayoralty and capably directed the affairs of the town.

In politics the deceased was a very staunch Liberal, always true and loyal to the party while in religion, he was a devout Anglican.

Left to mourn his passing are his widow, whose maiden name was Annie McCammon, two daughters, Ethel at home and Mrs. W. F. Ireland of Maywood, Ill. Three sons survive. They include William at home, Stanley of East End, Sask., and Mark of British Columbia.

The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon from his late residence on Queen street at four o'clock with interment at St. John's Cemetery.

WILL ADDRESS CANADIAN CLUB

Dr. E. J. Pratt to Lecture Here Tonight—Is Noted Speaker

Dr. E. J. Pratt, who comes to Port Hope tonight to address the Canadian Club on the subject "Poetry of the Sea," has received more serious and favorable criticism by reviews of Great Britain, Canada and the United States than almost any other Canadian poet.

Mr. Pratt is a man's man as well as a poet and in his readings in Ontario he has had a most favorable welcome. A Newfoundlander by birth, he is a Canadian by education and association, a graduate of the University of Toronto and now a lecturer in English at Victoria College, University of Toronto. His first poems reflecting the sea-faring environment where he passed his youth. "Newfoundland Verse" is a collection of lyrics and narratives of a seafaring and fishing life. "The Witches' Brew" is an imaginative and Bacchanalian fantasia. The latest volume, "The Titans" contains two poems of epic struggles, and was received by the critics of the London Times and the Manchester Guardian with such praise as "sublime and a remarkable feat." His poem "The Vision of an Iron Door" introduces a new and deeper note into Canadian poetry. It is philosophic in tone and will doubtless exert a strong influence upon the development of poetry in Canada.

Last fall Mr. Pratt made an extensive tour throughout Western Canada under the auspices of the Association of Canadian Clubs in accordance with its policy of encouraging the arts and literature of the Dominion. The people of Port Hope would be well advised not to fail to come to the Library Hall tonight at 8 o'clock to see and hear one of the foremost poets of the present day.

THE GUIDE STORY

"Fenton, Jane Fenton!" answered Hal, lingering over the name as it pleased him, "and—well, she's not exactly a visitor there; she's a sort of companion to old Miss Granby."

"Whew!" whistled the squire. "Your mother won't like that, Hal. We're friends enough for you to know that I am not a snob, and I care that for mere money," he added, snapping his fingers, "but you must marry a lady, boy. You must uphold the old name."

Hal laughed.

"Wait and see," he said, with a ring of confidence in his voice that would have done any woman good to hear. "I am not afraid of your verdict this evening. The bother, is, she'll never look at me, and no wonder."

"Tut, tut!" grumbled the squire, but the subject was dropped by mutual consent and the task of marking the trees began in earnest.

CHAPTER XII.

Luncheon at the Squire's

Had Firefly known the meaning of shyness she might have experienced its discomforts that day at Greylands, for not only was the lady of the house a somewhat awe-inspiring individual but the rest of the company gathered in the old dining room for lunch were the pick of the neighboring families. As it was, however, she enjoyed herself; and when it was learned that she had actually witnessed a presentation of the play under discussion, she emerged rapidly from the obscurity of a pretty stranger and became a person of sufficient importance to be consulted.

If there was one thing more than another upon which Firefly prided herself, it was knowledge of amateur theatricals and all things appertaining thereto. Before half an hour had passed after lunch the stage manager, Mr. Clayton, turned to her instinctively for support and advice, recognizing that she was about the only one of the proposed cast that knew anything more than hearsay about acting at all.

It was not by any means a theatrical neighborhood, and Mr. Clayton mentally called himself names for having promised to coach these novices. True, they were all very willing to be instructed, very glad to have everything arranged for them, very prone to relapse into exaggerated wonder over their stage manager's cleverness in knowing so much but at the end of two hours' discussion he confided to Firefly that but for her and the doctor he would have abandoned the whole affair.

As soon as he discovered that his help was really needed, Doctor Forrester came out nobly, and exerted himself to such good effect that by four o'clock the cast was filled the date of the first rehearsal fixed, the parts distributed, and—two people made jealous and miserable.

Olwen had held firmly to her decision not to take part, and she was not altogether pleased at her attitude being accepted without demur. Mr. Clayton had determined, after studying stiff, awkward Olwen with a view to business, to keep her out of the piece if possible. He was, therefore, gratefully grateful when she relieved him of this difficult task. John Forrester was unused to the practice of saying one thing and meaning another, and once Olwen said that she did not like acting, he had taken her at her word, and had thought no more about it.

As was generally the way with the doctor, he could not become lightly interested in anything. Once committed to personate the character of Guy Larkspur, he threw all his energies into the success of the play, and he grew so friendly over it with Firefly that the latter from time to time threw glances at Olwen, hoping that it was making a due impression.

Hal sat opposite to Firefly at lunch, and devoured her with eyes of such honest admiration that his mother frowned from her seat at the head of the table and grew uneasy, and a certain Molly Renfrew began to study Firefly to see whether she was worthy of her old play fellow's favor.

Before long, however, his content had changed to uneasiness, then to depression, then to despair. Jealousy never entered his head. It was only natural to his way of thinking, that a bright, pretty girl like Firefly should prefer the society of clever men like John Forrester and Cyril Clayton.

What did he know about acting, or costumes, or footlights, or stage scenery or make up? He did grudge the doctor the happiness of being consulted, smiled at, and contradicted by the sweetest lips he had ever seen, but it made him more dismal than angry and he merely longed after awhile to get away from the chattering throng to the companion ship of his horses, the only society for which he was evidently fit.

When this stage was reached Hal began to edge his way to the door, and was promptly detected in the act by Firefly, who, after a hasty whisper with Mr. Clayton, went after him and informed him that he must stay and look pleasant, because he had been chosen for the part of Thomas Jones.

Have You Made Your Income Tax Return for 1927?

The law provides penalties for those liable to taxation if a return is not made by April 30.

GET copies of the official form applicable to your case without delay. They may be secured at any Post Office in Canada, or by writing the Inspector of Income Tax for your district.

Fill in all the details requested. Make up the amount of your tax. Mail two copies to the Inspector in your district, together with an accepted bank cheque or money order as mentioned below. Keep a third copy for your own reference.

"SALADA" TEA

ORANGE PEKOE BLEND

No one dreamed 50 years ago that such a fragrant beverage as "SALADA" Orange Pekoe could be produced—pure as science can make it—fresh, superb in flavour—43c per half-pound—and all black tea. A treat indeed for tea lovers.

VALUE OF FOREST PRODUCTS

The value of the annual harvest of Canada's forests is not far short of $500,000,000 even with the present somewhat wasteful methods of exploitation. It has been estimated that by proper protection and management that accessible forest land of Canada can be made to produce at least three times the present annual cut in perpetuity.

PAYNE AND GRANVILLE FINISH IN DEAD HEAT

Jogging steadily ahead in a down-pour of rain, Andrew Payne of Claremore, Okla., Thursday traversed the corners of Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri in the cross country marathon, and substantially increased his elapsed time lead over Peter Gavuzzi of Southampton, England.

Payne finished sixth in a dead heat with Phillip Granville of Hamilton, in 6.33.56, bringing his elapsed time to 294.16.18. Gavuzzi was 21st into the night control point in 8.00.02 for an elapsed time of 295.55.40, which places him 99 minutes behind the Oklahoman. Thursday night at Miami, Oklahoma, he trailed by only 13 minutes.

Out to show his native Missourians and make good his boast of being the first to enter his native state, John Guber, Moberly, Mo., finished first yesterday in 5.35.51, having traversed the 41 mile stretch at an average speed of eight miles an hour. His elapsed time is 445.48.01.

Samuel Richman of New York, dark horse entrant, was second in 6.00.04, elapsed time being 510.08.24. Harry Rea of Long Beach, Cal., finished third in 6.08.28, elapsed time 340.45.19. Carl Wilberg, New York, was 4th in 6.15 flat, elapsed time 482.16.14.

John Salo, Passaic, N.J., finished fifth yesterday in 6.22.07 but his elapsed time of 326.39.39 kept him in third place behind Payne and Gavuzzi.

The race is 1761.6 miles out of Los Angeles, the starting point Mar. 4.

4TH SET OF TWINS IN ONE FAMILY

Italian Couple At Peterboro See Rapid Increase of Off-spring

Four sets of twins, all under 16 and three under 4 years old, is the contribution to the population of Peterboro made by an Italian couple, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Decarlo. The fourth set, a boy and a girl, was born this week and brought the total number of children up to sixteen, ten of whom are living. Mother and children are doing well.

Mr. and Mrs. Decarlo came to this country from Italy about fifteen years ago. Their eldest child is a son aged about 16, who is working. The second, also a boy, is 13. One set of twins was born some time ago, and the second set was born three years ago. The third set came last year and the fourth has just arrived on the scene. The last two sets have consisted of a boy and a girl each.

Believers in the influence of heredity in this connection will be disappointed to know that there have been no sets of twins on either side of the family for at least two generations back.

Discipline of Pupils During Fire At Trinity College Proves of Worth

The following letter appears in the Toronto Telegram regarding the discipline of the pupils at Trinity College School at time of the disastrous fire on March 3rd:

Sir:—If Agnes MacPhail, M.P., had been in Port Hope during the recent fire at Trinity College School, she might have discovered some use for military training in schools. The boys obeyed orders promptly, there was no loss of life, nor even an accident among over two hundred pupils, although there was a terrific blizzard raging at the time of the fire. It is strange this woman member presumes to try and teach the world at large what it should do, though she has such an inferiority complex her-

PREMIER KING TO TOUR WEST

Special Attention Will Be Given To Young Liberal Association Meetings

Premier Mackenzie King will spend the month of August in Western Canada, it was learned definitely on Thursday. The Prime Minister will leave about the first of the month and his tour will carry him through to the Pacific Coast. A week will be spent in Mr. King's own constituency of Prince Albert, Sask., where a summer fair is being held. It is possible, too, that there may be ceremonies in connection with the opening of the newly created National Park north of the City of Prince Albert. Several picnics have been arranged for the week which Mr. King will spend in the constituency.

The Prime Minister will give special attention during his trip to meetings which are being arranged by the Young Liberal Associations of the West.

St. Paul's Group Entertain The United Church Boys On Thursday

What proved to be, in the opinion of all present, one of the most enjoyable get-together affairs among the boys, was held Thursday evening when St. Paul's entertained the groups from the United Church in the Forrester's Hall, Queen Street. After partaking of a sumptuous repast graciously prepared by the ladies, the boys gave speeches on almost every subject imaginable enlivened with jokes to the intense delight of all present as the applause and laughter showed.

Cheers for the leaders were given and a hearty vote of thanks to St. Paul's group and the ladies by the guests.

Some wag has apparently written the Globe asking that Donald Wilson be made a member of the "Just Kids" Safety Club, for he today received a card from the Globe informing him that he was enrolled as a member of the above club and enclosing a pin for the club. Now Don is one of "The Kids" of the Safety Club, he'll have to be even more careful.

A regular way freight train, travelling from Belleville to Peterboro, was derailed near Foxboro at an early hour on Thursday morning. The cause of the derailment is attributed to a broken rail, which put five cars in the ditch. One of the cars was stove in at both ends, but the merchandise was not damaged.

Drastic action is promised by Sheriff J. F. Paxton of Whitby unless the officials of the United Church and the Continuing Presbyterian church at Beaverton carry out amicably the terms of a writ issued by Judge Thompson, upon request of a settlement made before him by representatives of both churches.

The Oshawa Music Study Club held one of its most enjoyable musical treats Wednesday evening and accepted an invitation to be the guests of the Port Hope Club on May 2nd.

In the centre of Bowmanville a spectacular fire broke out Wednesday night which threatened to assume serious proportions. Before being extinguished it destroyed a large barn owned by James Brown of Brown's Dairy, a late model sedan motor car and a quantity of harness. By strenuous efforts a number of chickens were rescued by George Crombie, and fire fighters managed to save a second large barn adjacent to that destroyed and owned by William Cowle.

Although Herbert Vickers, caretaker of the Felt Block on King st., Oshawa, fell two stories yesterday, X-ray examinations showed that a fractured ankle was the only serious injury received. Vickers had been cleaning windows in the home of Major H. E. Smith, 462 Simcoe st., when he lost his balance, falling to the ground. He was also lacerated on the face and throat. He was taken to the Oshawa General Hospital.
