OSHAWA DRUG STORE ROBBED

Manager Held Up, Tied to Chair and Register Rifled

Two thugs bound A. R. Belfry, manager of the West End Drug Store at Oshawa, Saturday afternoon about one o'clock after holding him up with a gun and then rifled the cash register, obtaining about $70. Mr. Belfry's shouts attracted attention and he was soon released.

The two men walked into the store earlier in the day and purchased a post card, evidently to ascertain the layout of the store. They returned about 1 o'clock, when they asked for some boracic acid, and when Mr. Belfry entered the room at the back they followed and bound him tightly in a chair.

As soon as Mr. Belfry was released he notified the police, but so far no trace of the thugs has been found.

The wall will extend 115 feet in a northerly direction from Walton street to the extended end of Brogden's Lane.

The wall will be completed very shortly but the contract for the removal of the Jordan block has not been let yet.

CAMBRIDGE WINS SCULLING CLASSIC

Over Ten Lengths Separated Varsity Shells At the Finish

Superior power and steadier rhythm of the stroke swept the Light Blue of Cambridge to a decisive triumph over Oxford Saturday in the eightieth annual boat race between the two universities.

Although a Cambridge victory had been predicted, the ten lengths' lead the Light Blue held at the finish was more decisive than had been expected either by the experts or the vast throng that lined the historic course from Putney to Mortlake.

In both individual strength and machine efficiency the Cambridge eight proved unmistakably better than the crew which pulled valiantly for the Dark Blue. The victors finished the four-and-one-half mile grind with out sign of distress while far behind the Oxford crew labored in broken fashion.

Cambridge's easy success stretched the Light Blue string of victories through five consecutive years, and pulled the university up within one of tying the total of 40 races Oxford has won.

Always in Front

Leaping to the fore at the start, the Cambridge shell never was headed throughout the long pull. The first mile was a strenuous sprint, with Oxford struggling gamely to regain the few feet the Light Blue seized with the first few sweeps of their oars through the Thames river.

The fleet of launches buzzing about the laboring oarsmen could see that Oxford was straining, giving every ounce of power in the boat, while Cambridge rowed with easy, effortless rhythm. At the Hammer-smith bridge, Cambridge cleared the Dark Blue shell, and from that point on the open water between the speeding craft widened rapidly until the race became a procession.

At the finish line kindly judges in the stake boat estimated the broad stretch of water between the shells at ten lengths, but none so mean to insist on the humiliating truth. Half of the defeated eight dropped helplessly over the oars, exhausted while the happy Cantabs sat erect and smiling.

It was agreed that the time of 20 minutes 25 seconds, that failed to threaten the record of 18.20 Oxford made in 1911, could have been bettered if Cambridge had been passed.

Dense Crowds See Race

The early hour of the start brought wretched weather conditions, but failed to drive to cover any part of the crowds that flocked to England's most popular intercollegiate event. Braving a heavy rain tens of thousands thronged the tow path, embankments, bridges and Thameside buildings, and were rewarded when the sun broke through the clouds at race time to sparkle on the brimming river as the graceful shells swept up to the tide, the showers ceased and the water lay smooth and calm.

The color and picturesqueness of the scene increased as the crews drove on to the finish line amid the screams of the crowd and throb of the following motor craft, joined by the roar from a flock of aeroplanes planes that provided aerial grand stands for scores of Varsity race fans. Near the finish line, Aman-ulah, swarthy King of Afghanistan, who recently was made a Doctor of Civil Laws by Oxford University, witnessed the defeat of his "dear old Alma Mater."

The annual meeting of the Oshawa District Amateur Baseball Association was held at Oshawa on Saturday afternoon when the following officers and delegates were present: President, Jas. Lovell, Oshawa; First Vice-President, F. Dobney, Oshawa; Second Vice-President, E. W. Goddard, Bowmanville; Third Vice-President, R. R. Burnham, Port Hope; Secretary-Treasurer, Dr. L. E. Cobourg intermediate club, Whitby junior club and Oshawa St. George's juvenile club delegates failed to answer the roll call.

The secretary-treasurer's report on the activities of the 1927 season showed Port Hope Ontarios champions of the intermediate league; Oshawa St. Andrew's the junior title and Oshawa St. George's the juvenile winners, and that the association finished the season with a small balance on hand.

As for this year's annual meeting the secretary reported that only one nomination had been received for each of the different officers and as a result the election of officers for 1928 was thrown open to the delegates present with the result that the following were chosen:

Honorary President, J. G. Nott, Oshawa; President, J. Lovell, Oshawa; First Vice-President, F. Dobney, Oshawa; Second Vice-President, E. W. Goddard, Bowmanville; Third Vice-President, R. R. Burnham, Port Hope; Fourth Vice-President, G. Vivian, Cobourg; Secretary Treasurer, Dr. L. E. Hubbell, Oshawa; Executive committee, J. Gunn, Bowmanville; O. A. Gamsby, Orono; A. J. Delegates to attend the annual meeting of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association to be held in Toronto on Saturday, April 7th, are, O. A. Gamsby, Orono; F. Dobney, Oshawa and Dr. L. E. Hubbell, of Oshawa.

The delegates decided that all future annual meetings of the association shall be held on the third Saturday in March of each year with all nominations for officers and all amendments or alterations to the constitution or by-laws to be in the hands of the secretary one week previous to the annual meeting or on the second Saturday in March of each year.

Tuesday, March 1, was the date set when all entries and fees for the three series must be in the secretary's hands at Oshawa. The fees to each series being $5 for intermediates; $3 for juniors and $1 for juveniles or bantams. The association will collect ten per cent. in all association playoff games.

An amendment to the constitution of the association presented to the meeting by the Oshawa Christian Church delegate to prohibit players on the different teams in the association from participating in both softball and hard ball games during the championship season was passed up by the delegates as being beyond their power to enforce.

The first meeting of the new executive will be held in Port Hope on Friday evening, April 13 at eight o'clock.

GAMBLER USED HYMN NUMBER

Nobleman Backs That of First Given Out and Wins $5,000

A hymn has made No. 32 on the Monte Carlo roulette wheels highly popular this season. It seems to be particularly lucky and Camille Castiglioni, a young Viennese banker, is only one of many persons who have made a fortune by backing it.

The reason for this popularity is very curious. A sporting nobleman attended the English chapel at Monte Carlo one Sunday morning a few weeks ago, and being bored by the service, slipped out as the first hymn was being sung. He strolled into the Casino with the tune still running through his head and as he entered the rooms suddenly picked up his ears.

"Thirty two," someone shouted out from one roulette table, adding a certain combination.

"It's the number of the hymn," the noble lord remarked to himself. "That's an odd coincidence. Dashed if I won't stake it. If I win it will be a good joke to tell the parson."

Starting with the equivalent of $5 he won almost every other spin of the wheel and kept pyramiding his stake until he had $5,000, when he decided that he had tempted the goddess of chance long enough.

The story went the rounds of Monte Carlo, and next Sunday, to the chaplain's perplexity, half his congregation left the chapel during the singing and rushed off to the Casino to back the number of the hymn.

As a consequence, the chaplain has been forced to stop choosing hymns under thirty seven, roulette numbers only running up to that number.

WORKERS SIGN UNION CARDS

Oshawa Group Will Be Largest Organized in Canada

Practically every trimmer of the General Motors plant at Oshawa was back at work Saturday following the settlement of the strike on Friday afternoon, Monday morning the remainder of the strikers, most of whom were only in sympathy with the strikers, and others who were obliged to remain out through lack of work were back in their old places.

Saturday saw quietness prevailing except for a meeting of the men in the Armories during the afternoon at which further plans were made for the formation of a union. Up to the present time nearly three thousand have signed union cards, constituting the largest group of organized industrial workers in the Dominion of Canada.

It is expected that little time will be lost in appointing a Board of Conciliation to bring both parties together in definite settlement.

John Tozer Commenced Water Port Hope Streets in 1898

Thirty years ago on Saturday, March 31st, John Tozer, Walton st., commenced to water the streets of Port Hope and since then has rendered efficient public service. In 1898 Mayor Quinlan was in office and N. B. Gould was chairman of the Fire and Light Committee. The committeemen were Messrs. T. B. Chalk and J. McMullen.

In the early days, Mr. Tozer obtained the water at H. Helm's dam on Queen street, and the old square box watering cart was used for the downtown streets.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the residence of her brother, Mr. James McEllenborough, Cobourg, of Mrs. Robert Drope, John

THE GUIDE STORY

"You evidently have not much belief in a doctor's time being precious. Firstly," he said, more cordially than he had yet spoken. "There, be a good child, and I'll try and believe that you are going to settle down into the right sort of companion. By the way have you written home?"

"Not yet; they know I am here, and that you are round the corner, so that it is bound to be all right. I tell mother she is foolish to have so much belief in a mere man, but all the same, she persists in it. I say doc, dear!"

"Well?"

They were now on the front door step and there was a mischievous light in Firefly's eyes.

"You didn't speak the truth yesterday and I am quite shocked at you."

"When?"

"Well, you said the heiress was not plain. I never saw so plain a girl in my life, and I have really seen a good many. Do you put on rose colored glasses to look at her?"

"Pish!"

John turned his back on her, and, disdainful further reply, walked to the stables after his cob.

Firefly ran indoors, well satisfied that she had at least paid off one item of the long score she had against the doctor and utterly unconscious that Olwen, passing through the hall, had heard the last words, and been deeply stung by them.

People found it very difficult to describe Olwen Ransome. It was impossible to call her ugly, yet equally impossible to call her good looking. The upper portion of her face had beauty, the lower part destroyed the impression. For a woman's face it was too square, too determined. The mouth was large, its curves were uncompromising, they held none of the grace of youth. In a man's physiognomy the chin as well as the mouth, would not have been out of place. The eyes, with their strange mingled hue of green and brown, relieved the face somewhat, but they were strange eyes, with the power of veiling all expression, and appearing meaningless.

Olwen's one undeniable glory was her hair. When loose it reached far below her waist, in a thick, dark, curling mass. Yet, with her usual perverseness, she strained it back from her forehead, she brushed it uncompromisingly flat, she rolled it away in a series of tight plaits that were certainly tidy yet woefully unbecoming.

With her hair differently arranged, and allowed its own way of waving naturally over her forehead. Olwen might have been called interesting by those capable of seeing more in a face than mere beauty of feature. With soft ruffling round her neck and a different style of costume altogether, she might, on her best days, even have been described as "out of the common," a description not to be despised in this present age.

However, by aid of the fatal gift she seemed to possess of concealing her good points and bringing forward her bad ones, Olwen chose to array herself in a stiff white collar and scarf-tie, which made her already sallow complexion look several degrees worse than it was. She further afflicted her personal appearance by adopting for perpetual wear tailor made suits eminently suitable for walking, and unsuitable for indoor wear by a tall, big-boned girl, who was further handicapped by a walk resembling a sea captain's. There was a reason, however, beneath all this seeming want of taste.

Olwen had grown up in the friendly happy-go-lucky atmosphere of a middle class family. Doubtless Mr. Ransome had done his best in thus confiding his only daughter to the care of the Wisemans until she became of age. He had completely lost sight of his own relations; in fact, save for an unmarried brother, he judged himself devoid of relatives altogether, for Olwen's great aunt, Miss Granby, never entered into his memory at all.

The Wisemans were honest and kind hearted folk. They used as little of the girl's money as they could, and hoarded it carefully for her use later in life. Yet all the same the life had its disadvantages. Young as she was, only ten, Olwen had the strongly developed instincts the likes and dislikes, of a lady. Those instincts made her, in spite of her very true affection for the three Misses Wiseman, loathe and detest their unnaturally beautiful complexions, their wonderful and gorgeous picture hats, their silks and ribbons.

As soon as she had attained the dignity of choosing her own frocks, she bewildered good Mrs. Wiseman by tossing her red dress to one end of the room, her black velvet hat, adorned with poppies, to the other, and declaring her intention of being attired in tailor made coats and skirts for the rest of her life.

Up to that moment of emancipation her hair had been tortured to the Wiseman idea of beauty. From the time that Olwen discarded all frills she gazed at her reflection in the glass with a satisfaction in no wise diminished by the unanimous verdict of the Wiseman family, that she had made herself a perfect fright

DICTIONARY HAS BEEN COMPLETED

Seventy Years' Task Finished And Result To Be Published

The last section of the new English dictionary, a great work which has cost about 300,000 pounds and upon which a start was made 70 years ago, will be published by the Oxford University Press on April 19. The first part of the work was published in 1884.

So long has the work been in progress that both "aeroplane" and "appendicitis" were unknown when the volume on "A" was being prepared and already a supplement is on its way.

On completion, the "N.E.D." as it is now generally known, will contain 15,488 pages, 178 miles of type, about 58 million words, nearly two million quotations and 414,225 words that will be defined.

The words "of" and "to" were the most difficult to define. In desperation, the late Sir James Murray, the editor, wrote: "For 'to' I received not a single suggestion, except an impracticable one."

When editing the word "do" Sir James was discovered walking about amid the numerous meanings, which were written on slips of paper and spread over his drawing room carpet.

The whole work could not have been carried out without much assistance, and contributions were received from all over the country. By 1888, one energetic Scotsman had sent in 165,000 suggestions. One of the most valued and learned contributors was found to be a homicidal maniac confined in a home for the criminal insane.

Sir James Murray, when in his 76th year, was working on the dictionary from 6 a.m. to 11 p.m., with only a fortnight's holiday in the year. He had previously spent all his savings to keep his mammoth book alive. He died in 1915.

The reward for his efforts is a dictionary of hitherto unknown thoroughness.

The last word it contains is typical of the whole. Most dictionaries are content to end with "zythum—a malt liquor." "The N.E.D." closes with "zyxt." It is an old form of "thou seest" and like the "N.E.D." itself, it looks destined to be the last word in dictionaries for many years to come.

TIE GAME

Canadiens and Maroons, Montreal entries in the National Hockey League Saturday night battled to a two goal draw in the first contest of the two game playoff series between the two teams to decide which club will represent the Canadian section of the league in the Stanley Cup series against the winners of the U.S. division. It was a grueling but brilliantly fought struggle in which penalties played an important part. Twenty two infractions were called by the officials, including two majors, one each for Leduc and Philip for attempting to start a minor brawl in the third period. One fine was also imposed during the contest, Oatman incurring the wrath of one of the officials when he used abusive language to Mantha after the two had come to grips in the second period. Both Oatman and Mantha drew minors for the affair but Oatman also had the fine tacked to his sentence.

There were no serious outbreaks, however, and despite much close checking the fans, numbering close to 14,000, witnessed a fast and thrilling hockey spectacle. Canadiens at one time held a two goal margin, largely by taking advantage of penalties to Maroon players. The Maroons, however, did not quit, and were not slow to take advantage of a series of penalties left Canadiens shorthanded, and needed only ten seconds of play; six men against three, for Maroons to tie the score on goal rushes by Ward and Smith.

STRATFORD WINS HONORS

Roy Brothers' Stratford team buried Kitchener under a 5 to 0 score before a capacity crowd of nearly 14,000 people at Detroit on Sunday night to capture the Canadian Professional League title with a margin of 12 goals to 2 on the round.

Kitchener was outclassed by a hard hitting club that was superior in every department from goal out. Never after the first ten minutes of play did Kitchener have a chance with their rivals from the Classic City, who gave everything they had even when the game and title were safely tucked away going into the final period with a four to 0 lead. Harry Lot, former star centre player of Oshawa, played on the Stratford team.

Ed Gardner, Seattle negro, led the transcontinental marathoners into the 29th control station at New Kirk, N.M., Sunday, covering the 32.2 miles from Santa Rosa in 4.36.20 His elapsed time for the 1,036 miles from Los Angeles was 197.58.01.

Ollie Wantinen, New York, was second in 4.48.55, with elapsed time of 217.12.12. Andrew Payne of Claremore, Okla., came in third in 4.53.25. His elapsed time of 177.21.02 enabled him to go in over Peter Gavuzzi, Southampton, Eng., for second place in the grind.

Arne Souminen, Detroit, leader in the race was fourth; in Sunday's lap in .57.10. His elapsed time is 172.52.15.

John Cronick took things easy in the 32.2 mile lap from Santa Rosa to Newkirk, finishing in 6.45 flat but retaining fourth place in the Bunion Derby with 1864.50.55 as his elapsed time for 1,036.3 miles. Other Canadians:

At a meeting held in the Queen's Hotel, Port Hope, Saturday afternoon, the executive of the Central Ontario Senior Baseball League and representatives of the various clubs with the exception of Peterboro, decided to open the schedule with a double header, Peterboro playing in Oshawa, and Kingston playing in Belleville. On May, 25 Oshawa will play in Kingston and on Saturday, May 26, Belleville will play in the Lift Lock City. The remainder of the schedule is to be drawn up tentatively by the secretary of the league, a copy of which will be submitted to each team for their approval.

Among those present were: H. T. McFadden, league president, Peterboro; J. C. Ponsford, S. C. Hall, J. Daly and W. J. Kennedy, Kingston; Walter Gerow and Stan Hagerman, Belleville and Harold O. Luke and F. G. Chester, of Oshawa. Peterboro did not have a representative present, but Mr. McFadden assured the meeting that he was quite sure that Peterboro would enter.

President McFadden and F. G. Chester of Oshawa, were appointed delegates to the meeting of the O. B.A.A. in Toronto, and were instructed to favor a residence rule requiring players to be a resident of the place in which they play on March 1 instead of January 1, as the constitution now reads. The next meeting of the league is to be held in Belleville at 3 p.m. on April 14.

MY LIFE

I have a life I can't escape,
 A life that's mine to mold and shape,
 Some things I lack of strength and skill
 I blunder much and fumble; still
 I can in my own way design
 What is to be this life of mine.

It is not mine to say how much
 Of gold and silver I shall clutch;
 What heights of glory I shall climb
 What splendid deeds I achieve in time;
 Lacking the genius of the great
 The lesser tasks may be my fate.

But I can say what I shall be,
 What in my life the world shall see;
 Can mold my thoughts and actions
 here
 To what is fine or what is drear,
 Though weak my skill, I can elect
 To keep or lose myself-respect.

No man kinder be than I,
 'No man can more detest a lie,
 I can be just as clean and true
 As any gifted genius, who
 Rises to earthy heights of fame
 And wins at last the world's acclaim.

I can be friendly, blithe of heart,
 Can build or tear my life apart,
 Can happy natured smile along
 And shrug my shoulders at a wrong,
 I only choose what is to be
 This life which symbolizes me.

COMMITTEE TO CONTROL COAL

Steps Being Taken to See That Ontario Gets a Fine Grade

An official committee with authority to name the Alberta mines producing domestic coal suitable for the Ontario market will be set up in all probability before any fuel is shipped to Ontario under the new freight rate which the federal government is putting into effect. This was forecast yesterday by W. W. McBain, chairman of Alberta branch of the Canadian coal committee, who has arrived in Toronto.

"It is proposed to have a representative of the Ontario government on the committee together with technical and practical fuel experts," Mr. McBain said. "As suggested it would be an independent board but with official powers."

"Every effort will be put forth on the part of the Alberta government in co-operation with the operators to see that nothing but suitable grades of fuel are sent east."

Alberta, of course, has a great many different kinds of domestic coal, some of which are unsuited to Ontario use, and the function of the committee would be to safeguard the Ontario consumer. Westerners as a whole heartily appreciate the action of the dominion government and the assistance given by Premier Ferguson.

'TIS COMING

'Tis coming up the steep of time, And this old world is growing brighter!

We may not see it dawn sublime, Yet high hopes make the heart throb lighter! Our dust may slumber underground When it awakes the world in wonder.

But we have felt it gathering round— Have heard its voice of distant thunder!

'Tis coming! yes; 'tis coming!

'Tis coming now, that glorious time Foretold by seers and sung in story, For which when thinking was a crime, Souls leaped to Heaven from scathed gory! They passed. But lo! the work they wrought!

Now the crowned hopes of centuries blossom, The lightning of their living thought Is flashing through us, brain and bosom.

'Tis coming! yes; 'tis coming!

Creeds, empires, systems, rot with age, But the great people's ever youthful!

And it shall write the future's page, To our humanity truthful. There's divinity within,

That makes men great if they but will it, God works with all who dare to win, And the time cometh to reveal it, 'Tis coming! yes; 'tis coming!

Fraternity! Love's other name! Dear, Heaven connecting link of bang!

Then shall we grasp thy golden dream, As souls, full statured, grow far-seeing.

Then shall unfold our better part And in our life cup yield more honey; Light up with joy the poor man's heart

And love's own world with smiles more sunny 'Tis coming! yes; 'tis coming!

MOTORIST PAYS TWO FINES AND LICENSE LIFTED

Simon Frankel of Toronto Faced Charges in Police Court Here Saturday

As a result of an accident on the Provincial Highway west of here on Friday afternoon, Simon Frankel of Toronto was arraigned before Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell in Police Court here Saturday afternoon. He was fined $20 and costs for reckless driving, and $2 and costs for not carrying his operator's license. As well, his license was confiscated for two months.

Simon was driving along the Provincial Highway in a westerly direction about a mile and a half east of Newcastle on Friday afternoon when he rammed a car driven by Bert Samis of Newcastle, which was travelling westward. Both cars capsized into the ditch and the Samis car was badly damaged. It was turned completely around and overturned facing east while the Frankel car jumped across the highway and overturned.

CRAZE TO BE THIN IMPAIRS HEALTH

Following the present feminine craze to become thin, many New York shop girls have been losing too much weight, and which has decreased their efficiency and made them liabilities to their departments. The situation has become so serious that one large department store has undertaken a course of education in health for its employees, Dr. V. V. Anderson said in the course of a lecture on Vocational Guidance and Mental Hygiene of Industry.

"There are not enough good workers to go around," he pointed out, "and there will not be until the homes and schools realize that people need more intelligence to get on at a job. Failure in business and commercial life, he believes, are not due to lack of ability, but to faulty attitudes which point back to early character development. Schools prepare people in intelligence but not in most necessary habits of application."

At present 20 per cent. of all employees are potential liabilities to their employers and eventually drifters and unemployed. Yet half of these can be made assets to themselves and their neighbors by psychiatrists, as is being done by the store in New York.

Who Wouldn't Like To Dance In This Frock

IN EVELYN'S opinion music lessons are a terrible bore and practicing is ten times worse. But mother never has to remind her twice about dressing for dancing class. The weekly occasion requires great preparation. Every little thing counts at such a time for she is confident that some day she will become a great ballet dancer and wear a beautiful silver dress with a tight bodice and short tulle skirt that stands out all around. In the meantime, this frock will do very nicely. It is made of printed batiste with hemline, cuffs and wide satin sash of blue to match the flowers in the material. The short skirt is very full to allow for all manner of kicking or bending. The applied trimming on the blouse is repeated on the sleeves. This style is also attractive for summer wear made with short sleeves in printed or plain silks or cotton crepes. (Copyright, 1928, by Butterick)

FAMOUS DYKED LANDS.

Crops Raised on Land Reclaimed From the Sea.

The dyke lands, or bay marshes as they are called locally, are one of the most interesting sights of the Maritime Provinces. They extend around the head of the Bay of Fundy, in Cumberland, Colchester, Hants, Kings and Annapolis counties of Nova Scotia, and in Westmorland and Albert counties of New Brunswick. While the term "marsh lands" is applied to these low lying areas, they are far from being what the name implies. Looking at them from an eminence they bear the appearance of great flat stretches of prairie lands or meadows, covered with rich grass, while almost as far as the eye can reach innumerable hay-barns and hay-stacks dot the landscape.

The marshes have been brought into existence by the extraordinary power of the tide of the Bay of Fundy, where there is sometimes a difference of sixty feet between the level of the water at high and low tide. Large areas were therefore subjected to inundation at periods of high tide. The early French settlers built dykes to keep out the tide from these lands, and the areas thus reclaimed form a vast natural meadow of approximately 50,000 acres in extent. This marshland retains its fertility in a marvelous way, producing hay crops averaging from two to three tons per acre. When the soil appears to be deteriorating it is only necessary to open the dykes, allow the tide to flood the land again, close the dykes and resume cropping the land. The periods when it is necessary to open the dykes for renewal purposes are widely separated, some of those familiar with conditions giving fifty years as the interval between floodings.

The grasses which grow upon the better parts of the dyked lands are the English hay grasses, of a superior quality. But one crop of hay per year is taken off the land, but farmers find in the marshes after having excellent forage for their cattle. No fertilizer of any kind are used upon the marsh land, and the only cultivation consists in an occasional ploughing on an average once in ten or fifteen years, when a single crop of oats is sown; followed at once by grass.

An extensive market exists for the hay grown on the Bay of Fundy marshes, and at good prices. Large quantities are shipped to the West Indies, Newfoundland, Boston and other New England cities. During the war enormous quantities were supplied to Great Britain and France.

To the inland Canadian, unused to the ocean tides, these dyked lands or hay marshes present a fascinating appearance. Accustomed as they are to but slight variations in the shoreline of lakes and rivers, it is hard to realize that but for the dykes these large areas would at high tide be covered with water. The value of the land, however, was readily appreciated by the original settlers, many of whom in their native lands had been compelled to battle against the encroachments of the sea. How well these early settlers did their work may be judged from the fact that at various points the original dykes are still in existence, after a period of close to two hundred years.

These famous dyked lands are today, as in the past, a great asset to the provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and as they continue, decade after decade, to produce their hay crops for home and export consumption, they bear testimony to the energy of the people who in the early part of the eighteenth century fought and won the battle with the sea for their possession.

Where the Sea Is Not Salt.

It may not be generally known that off Embury Cove, Chatham Parry, England, a spring of fresh water wells up through the sea at all seasons of the year. The best time to locate this spring is on a clear summer day, when the circular patch varying in color from the azure blue of the surrounding water, is plainly to be seen from the surrounding rocks at all states of the tide. The water is absolutely fresh, and there is no brackish taste if the draught is taken from the precise centre of the welling water. It is surmised that the water from the rainfall on the catchment area in the vicinity of Embury and the Northern Hills eventually finds a course in the same valley and then forces itself up through the sea at a distance of from 80 to 100 yards off the beach. During the war it was reported to the naval authorities by one who knew nothing of the existence of the "Sea Spring" that water was seen welling up in a continuous flow and the suggestion was made that an enemy submarine might be resting there. During the dark hours of the night a thorough search was made, but needless to say no submarine was found.

The Tower Bridge.

The tower bridge over the River Thames is a wonderful piece of mechanism, but few realize that every time the bascules are raised to allow a vessel to pass through it costs $15. The bridge is operated by means of hydraulic power, and has been working for nearly thirty years, during which period there has never been a serious mishap. If one set of engines is not working smoothly, a second set is resorted to. Occasionally there are humorous incidents, as the bascules are about to be raised. Dogs sometimes make a dash to cross the bascules after the ropes barring traffic have been fixed in place. As the bridge rises the dogs make desperate efforts to reach the top, and continue till finally they roll down into the roadway. Only once did a dog succeed in racing up the incline and reach the top. There the animal clung till the bascules were lowered, when it took a flying leap over the intervening space and continued its way over the bridge.

URGES YOUNG MEN TO SAVE MONEY LOCAL TIME TABLE

St. Thomas Magistrate Delivers Stern Lecture to Young Man

That the foregoing of young men to spend all the money they make in entertaining young ladies and not providing for marriage is one of the curses of the present day was the opinion expressed by Magistrate Maxwell of St. Thomas, in the city police court, when a youth appeared and pleaded guilty to a charge of using grossly insulting language to a young lady with whom he had been keeping company, against the wishes of the young lady's father. In suspending sentence on the youth, his worship gave his views on the modern tendencies of young couples. He said that when he was a young man, a youth gave consideration to the time he would be marrying and starting a home, but nowadays the whole thought of young people seemed to be to have just as much fun as possible while their money lasted and let the future look after itself. He said he believed this was the cause of many unhappy marriages and much of the present trouble in the world. A young man and woman get married without anything saved up to start them off in life and soon they were faced with serious problems.

He advised the youth before him to get a job and start saving his money, and then to begin thinking about matrimony, not before. The youth agreed to remain away from the young lady's home, as requested by her father, but would not promise to give up keeping company with the young lady, away from her home if she desired to go with him. He insisted that the most offensive thing he had said to the young lady was that "she was ignorant" and had told her "to go in the house." He denied having used profanity in her presence.

A great change has come over Long Distance telephoning. Now it is almost as rapid as local telephoning. You give Long Distance the distant number and, in a great majority of cases she is able to make connection while you hold the line. When Cæsar Was a Boy

The Forum was the common market-place for all of ancient Rome. Today a few crumbling columns stand as mute reminders of its former grandeur.

In our present-day complex civilization, market-places have become scattered. It is no longer possible to visit them all in the morning—or even in a day.

Advertising, instead, has become the convenient Forum of modern buyers and sellers. If you are considering the purchase of a new car, you scrutinize the auto advertising. Or if it's a razor or a talking machine that you want, you turn again to the advertising. Here is the national market-place for merchandise.

Furthermore, as you leaf over those same pages of products, your mind is storing away for tomorrow a compact and valuable fund of information. Instinctively, you will remember those facts when you make your future purchases. Increase your store of knowledge by reading the advertisements regularly.

Advertising has become the common market-place of this 20th century.

Some folks could say all they think and still keep quiet.

Sometime ago a man was charged with shooting a number of pigeons, the property of a farmer. In giving his evidence, the farmer was exceedingly careful, even nervous and the attorney for the defense endeavored to frighten him.

"Now," said the lawyer, "are you prepared to swear that this man shot your pigeons?"

"I didn't say he shot 'em," was the reply. "I said I suspected him of doing it."

"Ah, now we're coming to it. What made you suspect this man?"

"Well, firstly, I caught him on my land with a gun. Secondly, I heard a gun go off and saw some pigeons fall. Thirdly, I found four of my pigeons in his pockets—and I don't think them birds flew there and committed suicide."
