LIBEL ACTION STILL CONTINUES

Corporal Surprised To Hear Of Armistice And "Sore." Too

Stinging comment from Mr. Justice Rose Wednesday followed a sarcastic reference by Frank Regan chief defence counsel in the $50,000 Currie libel action, to Lieut. Milton Fowler Gregg, V.C., M.C., the only Victoria Cross soldier yet to appear as a witness. It was the second time within half an hour the judge had seen fit to reprimand Mr. Regan, on the first occasion warning him seriously that it might be necessary to prevent him from going on with the action.

The Gregg incident came after the lieutenant had been subjected to a long cross examination by the defence counsel. He was called, as adjutant of the Royal Canadian Regiment, to tell of the movements of his regiment during the day or two preceding the armistice. In his cross examination Mr. Regan tried to get the witness to express an opinion as to whether further fighting was justified after news of the armistice had been received.

Lieut. Gregg declared that, 16 years after the event, he could not give an opinion.

"You are a pretty good man for an adjutant," remarked the lawyer sarcastically.

Judge Halts Counsel.

"I think that any witness should be entitled to immunity from such remarks," said the judge sternly. "Well, my lord, I was—" began Mr. Regan.

"I do not think that it is the function of counsel to make such remarks, but even if it is, some witnesses have certainly earned immunity."

It was only a short time before that the judge had issued his stern warning to the counsel. It came when Lieut. Gregg first took the stand and R. H. Parmenter, associate counsel, for Sir Arthur Currie, asked him to detail, on the large map in the courtroom, the movements of his unit. Mr. Regan immediately made an objection. He had throughout the day, asked almost every witness whether he had attended the "war college" at a local hotel, where Sir Arthur and his counsel are housed. He had declared on one occasion that the witnesses for the plaintiff had been taken to this college and "pumped, drilled and schooled" in their evidence.

On the request being put to Lieut. Gregg, Mr. Regan lodged a protest. "I must object," he declared. "The witnesses are taken down to the 'war college' and lectured there, and then they are put on the stand and asked to go ahead and tell their story without any questioning."

"Mr. Regan if you will persist in making irregular and unauthorized objections, I must ask, instead of scolding—I do not like to scold—that one of your other counsel conduct your case."

"But they should ask questions," persisted the lawyer.

"Yes, and as soon as they are asked you will say they are leading questions," said the judge.

"I am simply doing this to expedite the case," remarked Mr. Parmenter.

"It is quite a common practice," remarked the judge.

Continual Conflict

The day was one of continual conflict. The evidence was not startlingly original. It came mostly from members of the P.P.C.L.I. and the R.C.R., many officers and other ranks from these units telling the story of their movements just before the armistice.

It was then Albert J. Kelly, who prepared the large map being used in the court, was called back to the stand that the first reference to the "war college" was made. He was asked by Mr. Regan if he had been to the "college" and also if he had discussed the case with other witnesses.

"It has been a grand reunion for a lot of us," Mr. Kelly said. "We had not seen each other for ten years and we have talked over the old war—both about Mons and many other occurrences."

Mr. Regan then asked him to draw on the map a line showing the disposition of the 2nd and 3rd divisions, explaining that this line appeared on a map in possession of the officers from the department of records which he had been unable to have put in as an exhibit. Mr. Kelly said he could not draw the line, but this answer was disputed by Mr. Regan.

"I will be glad to draw the line, if Mr. Regan will give me the co-ordinates," said Mr. Kelly.

"I have not the slightest idea what co-ordinates are," said Mr. Regan. "You could probably get the information from some of Mr. Tilley's witnesses or from the officers from Ottawa."

"Are you suggesting that the witness take the place of the jury and draw an accepted line?" asked the judge.

"I have not put any lines on it," said Mr. Tilley. "It is just an enlargement of a map, and I do not want it made into something else. We will be able to talk about this to the jury for a long time."

The line was not drawn.

Good Story Stopped

Evidently a good story was stopped by an objection from Mr. Regan. Capt. Alfred C. White, officer commanding No. 4 company of the P.P.C.L.I. was the witness at the time and he was telling of the advance made toward Mons along the Jemappes-Mons road. He had just got to the point where he was telling of a patrol which he had sent out, sighting a body of the enemy in the road in front of a house behind which the patrol was reconnoitering. The Canadians, he said, went into the house and up to the top floor, and immediately later the Germans walked in downstairs.

At this point Mr. Regan objected that the evidence was not relevant, and Mr. Parmenter, who was examining, did not pursue the questioning.

Capt. White said he withdrew the men but the court was robbed of the story of just how the patrol escaped from their predicament.

Capt. White told of going into

DIVISION COURT SHORT SITTINGS

Local Court Last But Five Min- at Town Hall Here This Morning

The sittings of the Division Court conducted at the Town Hall here this morning before County Judge L. V. O'Connor of Cobourg, lasted but five minutes and during that time one case was settled and three actions were adjourned until the next court.

E. G. Campin was given judgment in full for claim of $35.53 against Grison, Grison and Grison, W. F. McMahon appeared for the plaintiff. The actions of Kennedy vs. Bell for $33 and Canada Metal vs. Ware for $277.18 and Hyslop vs. Moore for $338.10 were adjourned until the next sittings.

Mons in the early morning of Nov-11, behind Capt. Arthur Graffey and D Company of the 42nd battalion. He said he had asked Captain Graffey for the privilege of going in with him.

This statement drew some questioning from Mr. Regan, who wanted to know just why he had been so anxious to go into Mons, after he had been relieved. The captain said his main reason was that there were better billets in the city.

"I suppose you were very much surprised to wake up and find that the war was over?" said Mr. Regan.

"I was, very much," was the reply.

"Why do you say that the war was over?" asked the judge.

"It was for everyone but the Canadians," replied Mr. Regan.

"I understand that an armistice was simply an adjournment for the purpose of talking over terms," the judge said.

"I have a definition of the word. It means a partial peace, which often becomes a permanent peace," said Mr. Regan.

Captain White was also questioned about the number of times he had gone over his story before going into the witness box.

"I suppose counsel did not put him in without knowing what he was going to say. It is not the usual procedure," said the judge.

"I have had to do it," said the defence counsel.

No Added Incentive

Captain White, like most of the other witnesses was cross examined as to whether he had any previous knowledge of the armistice, whether he had heard of any oath on the part of the Canadians to take Mons before the war ended, and as to a reference in the report of the First British Army to an "added incentive" for the Canadians to take Mons. Like the other witnesses, he declared he knew nothing of the armistice until he heard of it the morning of the day it was signed, and that he heard of no such oath as was referred to. To him, he said, there was no "added incentive."

Mr. Regan asked him about his action in staying outside of Mons, and Captain Graffey's action of advancing on the city as soon as he had taken over the Princess Pats position. Would not Captain Graffey, he was asked, have waited also, if he had been really careful.

Captain White said he and other officers had discussed the location of enemy troops, after meeting on the Jemappes Road.

"Why did you not advise Captain Graffey not to go into the city?"

"It would have been beyond my position to advise him," retorted the witness.

"What was all this rumpus about Mons?" asked the counsel.

"There was no rumpus," was the reply.

"Was there any glory?" Another witness was Capt. Wm. J. Home, who led a company of the R.C.R. to relieve Capt. Burness, of the P.P.C.L.I. after the latter, with a small force withstood five German attacks during the night of November 9, 200 yards from the southern boundary of Mons.

He told Mr. Regan he had done his last fighting at 5 o'clock on November 10.

"About the time Livesay was making his record retreat," asked Mr. Regan.

"I don't know anything about it. I don't know Mr. Livesay," replied the witness.

SEEDING IS IN PROGRESS

Manitoba's Acreage This Year Under Crop Greater Than In 1927

The advent of warmer weather in the prairie provinces has given impetus to seeding and land operation generally, with the greatest progress to date reported from Alberta.

For the past week farmers in all three provinces have been rushing the 1928 crop into the ground, although some interruptions have been experienced in Manitoba. In several sections seeding is more than half completed, and with continuance of the present mild weather, it is anticipated that operations will be well advanced and in many instances completed within a week.

Soil conditions generally are reported to be favorable with adequate moisture to tide the crop over the germination stage.

While considerable new acreage was broken last year Provincial Departments of Agriculture have not yet been able to determine definitely the extent of additional acreage to be seeded this season. In Manitoba there will be an appreciable increase as thousands of acres had to be abandoned in 1927 as the result of floods and recurring wet weather.

Crop authorities are not concerned over the delay in seeding caused by the recent cold spell. They point out that several days of real warm weather is all that is needed to give the crops a good start.

Dancing and Cards Are Enjoyed After Programme Is Pre- sented

The "At Home" conducted by the members of Durham Lodge, No. 78, I.O.O.F., and Victoria Encampment, No. 25 at the Town Hall Wednesday evening proved a most successful social event and the large crowd that attended enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

The auditorium was entirely occupied when the program got under way shortly after eight thirty and many visiting brethren were present as well as the local members and the Rebekah Lodge.

The Hall was prettily decorated 'pus skep youg pus Junung upa' after a word of welcome from W. J. Crowhurst, Miss Venieta Hales presided at the piano for the opening number. "The King." This talented artist also contributed other numbers and Mrs. Gordon Scott delighted the audience with several readings. Mrs. G. V. Strong also rendered two appropriate readings. C. E. Stephenson contributed two well rendered solos accompanied by Miss Dorothy Warrington and Al Stagg brought the program to a close by two fitting violin numbers. Messrs W. J. Crowhurst and Fred Rosevear acted as chairmen.

The light fantastic was tripped by the dance lovers until the wee sma' hours and a number of tables of cards were played. The following orchestra supplied the music: Miss Dorothy Warrington, piano; Al Stagg, violin; Herb Winfield, saxophone; Jack Winfield, trombone; Stan Zealand, violin and P. Rowden, violin. Hugh Bird called off the square dances.

Dainty refreshments were served at midnight.

OSHAWA TO HAVE 6 STORY HOTEL

Butler and Co., Toronto, have taken out a permit for excavation and sidewalk protection for the sum of $6,000. The excavation work, which will be started immediately by the Armstrong Construction Company of Hamilton, will be a very "sizable" job, extending along King street for 96 feet 6 inches, along Mary street 131 feet and 10 inches.

According to the permit, J. W. Butler and Company are the owners and also the architects, and the Hotel Engineering Company is the contractor.

It is understood the new hotel will have 110 bedrooms and will be of structural steel on concrete foundation. Carpenters were at work Wednesday putting up the sidewalk barricade. The Borsberry residence has been completely demolished and the materials nearly all removed by the wrecking company.

AUTO RACING

Racer Meets Death

Frank Lockhart, youthful racing driver, was catapulted to his death on Wednesday when a tire blew out while his automobile was speeding 200 miles an hour in an attempt to set a new record for land travel over the sands of Daytona Beach.

The accident occurred as Lockhart approached the grand stand. His Black Hawk Special swerved back and forth, rolled out of control 350 feet and left the ground.

Two photographers and a newspaperman narrowly escaped injury as the car hurled over their heads to land again and bounce sideways 550 feet before taking another 300 foot jump and hurling Lockhart to the sands.

Daily Record of Kitchener purchased the Briethaup property in that town for new plant.

Farmer near St. Thomas was fined $10 and costs for fishing with a seine net on his own property.

In the tea room, which was under the capable supervision of Mrs. J. L. Westaway, a delicious afternoon tea was served from a large table beautifully decorated with daffodils and marigolds. Mrs. W. S. A very large sum was realized for the benefit of the Mission.

NO CHANGE IN TRUCK WEIGHTS

Highway Minister Thinks Present Eight Ton Limit Is Reasonable

Regulations governing motor trucks carrying freight on the Provincial highways similar to those at present in force which control passenger bus traffic are being designed by the Government. Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, told the members of the Ontario Motor Truck Owners' Association. The association has recently been bending its efforts toward securing the modification of the regulations fixing the maximum gross weights of motor trucks, but if they expected a forecast of some concessions along those lines from Mr. Henry last night they were disappointed.

Although he dealt at some length with the question of the weight of trucks and their loads, he stated emphatically that the government intended to keep the limit of the gross weight of trucks well within a reasonable figure and indicated that the present limits of eight tons was, in his opinion, fairly reasonable.

Sleepy Driver a Menace

In the course of his address Mr. Henry also said that it had been suggested that the number of hours which a man might drive a truck on the highway should be regulated. He pointed out that a driver who tried to stay at the wheel without sleep for too long a period was a menace, he said that if there appeared to be a pressing need for such protective legislation the government would provide it.

as its novelty and dies a natural death, or at least does well to hold its own. It must be very gratifying to Al Stagg and the Royal Theatre management that last night the nineteenth "Capitolians" revue, "Hits of Yesterday," not only broke the Wednesday record but received tumultuous applause and was generally considered the best of the series. That is an achievement of which to be proud and Fort Hoppers may well rejoice in such success for a local theatrical venture.

Following an atmospheric orchestra number, "Memories," Al Stagg opened the program with a clever comedy song, "Spring is Here," after which Susie Hopps presented a novel skipping dance which went over for an encore. The orchestra then played an old jazz favorite, "Red Hot Henry Brown," and Herbert Windfall sang, "He Had to Get Under," making one of the biggest hits of the evening. Al Stagg and Walter Fraser then offered a violin and flute duet with a novelty encore that scored heavily. Minnie Sorek, making her first appearance with the Capitolians, delighted the audience with a beautiful rendition of "Love in Lillie Time" and the orchestra followed with a comedy selection.

An unadvertised artist who turned out to be the hit of the show was little Grover Newman-Jones. Though having had only two days to learn his song in order to replace an older brother who was ill, Grover put it over perfectly with an ease that brought down the house. Al Stagg and Jimmy Thomas had a difficult proposition to follow such a "knockout," but they have never been better received, their dialogue causing uproarious laughter and their song with its clever local verses again stopping the show. An instrumental and vocal medley of old ragtime favorites concluded forty five minutes of real entertainment.

The Capitolians appear again tonight, and no doubt will attract another capacity audience.

SPORTING SKITS

BASEBALL

Leads Divide

Jersey City and Toronto inaugurated their spring series at Jersey City Wednesday with a double header, following their three days' hold up by the weather and made it an even break for the day's work the scores being 9 to 2 and 11 to 5. Bill O'Hara's team won the opening engagement through some long and bory hitting to make it four consecutive defeats for the home crew. A surprising reversal of form was shown by the Skeeters in the concluding part of the woply lineup as the result of Frank Gilhooley's shake up in his team.

CROSS COUNTRY DERBY

Granville Is Winner of Wednesday's Lap

Peter Gavuzzi of Southampton, England, Wednesday wrestled leadership in the transcontinental fast race from Andrew Payne, youthful Claremore, Okla., runner.

Gavuzzi finished second Wednesday, traversing the 42.9 miles from Rolla in 6:09.12. Payne was fourth, reaching the control point in 7:02.04. 55 for 2012.2 miles, now has a lead Gavuzzi with elapsed time of 137.06 of 32 minutes and 51 seconds over Payne whose elapsed time is 337.41.46.

Philly Granville, Hamilton, Ont. finished first Wednesday in 5:45.29. Granville covered the distance from Rolla in 5:45.29, making his elapsed time for the 2012.2 miles from Los Angeles 376.41.11.

That Granville is confident that he can overtake the lead of Peter Gavuzzi, England, was evidenced when he said: "Gavuzzi has cracked and if he tries to follow me from now on I'll run him until he drops."

Reds Win 17 Inning Game

"Red" Leves went the route to pitch the Reds to a 5 to 4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in seventeen innings at Cincinnati Wednesday—the longest National League game this season.

Reinhart, the third Cardinal pitcher to see service kept the Reds' hitters in hand from the eighth inning until a double by Drossin on second ended the game with two out when the winning run was scored. The Reds took three runs from four bunched hits off Frankhouse in the fifth and scored another on two hits in the sixth.

Bottomley drove a home run into the right-field bleachers to score him self and High, after Douthit had scored on Frisch's fly. St. Louis had scored in the third and the rally tied the score.

HORSE DEMAND IN STATES IS COMING

A continent wide shortage of horses within the next few years now looms as a farm power problem. With only enough horses being raised in the United States to maintain an average of two a farm, says H. C. M. Case, of the University of Illinois, the climax has almost been reached in the reduction which has been going on throughout the country during the past few years.

During the last twelve years the number of horses in the country has been cut one third through the introduction of various forms of mechanical power. He reported. In the main, this substitution has been economical and for the most part justifies the reduction in the number of horses. No shortage of horse power has been felt because the gradual introduction of other forms of power has kept the supply adequate up to the present time.

"It is reasonable to believe, however, that an average of two horses for each farm in the United States will not be adequate for economical power supplies in the future," continues Mr. Case. "While there are now about 20,000,000 horses and mules in the country, only enough colts are being raised to maintain the number at about 11,000,000. It is true that the present market price of horses is not encouraging, but the trend has been upward during the last year, and on the basis of present information there is an indication that prices will continue upward for the next five or ten years."

THE IDEAL CITY

What makes the city, great and strong?

Not architecture's graceful strength,
Nor factories extended length,
Nor men who see the civic wrong
And give their lives to make it right
And turn its darkness into light.

What makes the city full of power?
Not wealth's display or tilted fame,
Nor fashion's loudly boasted claim,
But woman rich in virtue's dower,
Whose homes, though humble, still are great

Because of service to the State.

What makes a city men can love?
Not things that charm the outward sense,
Not gross display of opulence,
But right, that wrong cannot remove,
And truth that faces civic fraud
And smiles in the name of God.

This is a city that shall stand,
A Light upon a nation's hill;

A Voice that evil cannot still,
A source of blessing to the land;
Its source not brick, nor stone, or wood,
But Justice, Love and Brotherhood

THE GUIDE STORY

"I never said that I was a friend, Miss Ransome. You have permitted in misconstruing my words. I knew Mrs. West when she was—"

when she was a girl. I had no idea that she was coming here to settle. When I was called in professionally to The Briars to see to a sprained wrist, I expected to see a stranger. The recognition was mutual; the surprise was mutual. Knowing her circumstances—Joan hesitated a moment, or so Otson fancied—and thinking that it would be a lonely life for her on that dull road till the cycling season started. I asked you to do a friendly, womanly action and be courteous to her. I apologise for not having yet fully realized what a difference the possession of money, especially when the money is the fruit of a fraud, can make in a character. Good by, I will not detain you longer."

"Wait a moment please," said Otson, with her eyes flashing. "I wish to speak. There is some mystery about Mrs. West. You know what it is and I mean to know, too. As you will not trust me, and have been rude about the whole affair, I shall call at The Briars and I will not rest till I have exposed it." To her surprise and annoyance, instead of looking taken aback, John smiled in an aggravating sort of a way and recovered his temper.

"Do so, Miss Ransome, if you like. Forwarped is fore armed, however."

Meanwhile Hal and Firefly were having a good time. Hal waited till the girl began to perform solitary rights by herself in a corner; then, skating up to her, crossed hands before she had time to make any objection.

"You rode man," she said. "You might have started me into falling."

"You skate too well for that," he answered. "Besides, I'd rather have liked that. I'd have held you up. No, don't get cross yet—it's far too early—and we do get over the ground quickly—together—don't we? I say, do you know I have discovered something about myself?"

"Dear me, how interesting! How very clever you are becoming!"

"Well, I've discovered that I abominate tall women. I think for skating and riding and walking and everything, a girl's head ought to reach up to a man's shoulders and no higher."

"How extraordinary! Now I think just the opposite. I hate a man to tower over me like a lamp-post. I like him to be just my own height, for skating and walking and riding and everything, and to be quite perfect he must be thin and dark and ascetic-looking."

"Another thing I discovered," said Hal imperiously, "was that I dislike short hair and greeny-brown eyes. They go badly together."

"They both broke into a merry laugh that echoed down to the farthest end of the pond."

"How foolish you are!" said Firefly severely. "At what are you laughing?"

"I'll be serious if you like that better. To begin with, Miss Fenton, why did you forget to give me my invitation?"

It was not addressed to you, Mr. Pett, but to Mrs. Pett, and I have written her the sweetest of apologies.

"But it included me!"

"I was afraid so, and I didn't want you to come so suppressed it."

"Why didn't you want me to come?"

"Because you acted badly last Tuesday. I was downright ashamed of you and after all my coaxing, too, it was disgraceful!"

"I can't help it," answered Hal ruefully. "I told you that I was poor at that sort of thing and I can't bother to remember the idiotic words when I'm longing to half murder those fellows for making love to you, and you playing off the three of us against each other. Yes, I know it's all good acting but it's a boast of a play, and what's more, no prudent girl ought to take the part of Cordelia Wincome."

"Thank you, sir," said Firefly mischievously. "If we were on solid ground I would make you a coat of a play, and what's more, no prudent girl ought to take the part of Cordelia Wincome."

"Don't tense. You know what I mean. I want to fly at the chaps' throats, especially the doctor's, he acts so well; and as for you, I wanted to pick you up last Tuesday, carry you out of the room, give you a good shaking and tell you not to be such a wicked flirt any longer. What's more, one of these days I shall do it."

"And a nice thing for me that would be!" said Firefly. "But I thank you for the compliment to my acting."

"It is all very clever," said Hal, "but it's just that. I don't like you being able to act. It so well."

"Why?" The lights of battle began to dance in the girl's eyes. "Well, for one thing, I know really you wouldn't, but a fellow can't help thinking that if you can act being a humberg so well you may be able to do it in real life."

"You wouldn't like to think that?" she whispered softly.

Hal pressed the hand he was holding so firmly that the girl winced.

CANADIANS ARE ON THE RETURN

Immigration Figures Show 39,887 Returned in 1927 and 2670 This March—More British Come

In the fiscal year ended March 31, 1928, immigration to Canada amounted to 151,537, an increase of 5 per cent over the previous year, when it totalled 133,991. These figures were made public by the Department of Immigration and Colonization Wednesday. During the last twelve months, as compared with the preceding year, there has been an increase in British immigration of 1,088. Immigration from the United States has increased by 3,982, and from the other countries the increase has been 1534.

A significant feature of the statistics is the increase in immigration from the United States, which was greater than the increase from all other sources combined. The State contributing the largest number of immigrants was Michigan, but New York, Washington, Minnesota, California, Massachusetts, North Dakota and Illinois are all near the head of the list in the order named.

During March 2,670 Canadians who had gone to the United States to reside returned to Canada declaring their intention of remaining permanently in this country. The number of such returning Canadians in the fiscal year was 39,887.
