"Mr. Meehan informed me at our last meeting at Youngstown that he was scheduled to appear with 'The Man on the Box' company in Lindsay on May 2nd, and I hope that the people of Victoria County will turn en masse and a worthy tribute to this young man of whom Lindsay may well be proud."

This will be the treat of the season, and the company should be greeted with a large crowd.

TRIAL OF BURK CHARGED WITH ARSON

May Have Different Ending to What He Intended.

Colborne, April 26.—The pre-Ilminary trial of Leslie Burk, who is charged with arson in connection with the fire in the Express printing office early in the morning of April 17, opened before Magistrate R. Snetsinger, Reeve of Colborne, this morning. County Crown Attorney W. W. Kerr, of Cobourg, conductwill prove a great convenience and ed the prosecution.

Provincial Detective Miller, of Toronto, was also present. Mr, F, L. Webb appeared on behalf of the prisoner, who was accompanied by his father Mr. C.W. Burk, of Wing-

A large number of witnesses were examined, and at 7.30 o'clook, as there were still several others to be heard, the Court adjourned until tomorrow morning at 10.30 o'clock. Eight of the witnesses testified that they were in close vicinity to the Express office between 11.30 and 12.36 on the night of the fire and none of them saw a light in the office or any of fire nor heard any sound of a struggle.

The evidence of Dr. Latta and Dr. Sargent went to show that if the prisoner had been struck between the eyes and knocked insensible as claimed there would in all probability have been some evidence of the blow on his face and his eyes would have been blackened. Although the prisoner claims that the alleged burglar was tampering with the safe, it was shown that the safe was not locked and the combination had apparently not been moved, nor were any of the contents disturbed.

In summing up the evidence be-fore an adjournment, Mr. Webb urged that the prisoner be acquitted as there was not sufficient evidence to commit him for trial.

County Crown Attorney W. W. Kerr designated the prisoner's tale as a cock and bull story, and urged that he be committed for trial.

The magistrate declined to give a decision without hearing the rest of the witnesses, and wished to examine the ropes with which the prisoner was bound.

'Have you looked through it?' Martin exclaimed, as he saw the foreign periodical in his visitor's hand.

'I have written a rough transla-

'Oh, how could you think of taking such trouble! These things are sent to me by the dozen might say by the cartload. My curiosity would have been amply satisfied if you had just told me the drift of the thing.'

'It seemed to me,' said Peak, modestly, 'that the paper was worth a little careful thought. I read it rapidly at first, but found myself drawn to it again. It states the point of view of the average scientific mind with such remarkable clearness, that I wished to think it over, and the best way was to do so pen in hand.'

'Well, if you really did it on your own account'-

Mr. Warricombe took the offered sheets and glanced at the first of

'My only purpose,' said Godwin, in calling again so soon was to leave these with you.'

He made as though he would take his departure.

'You want to get home again? Wait at least till this shower is over. I enjoy that pelting of spring rain against the window. In a minute or two we shall have the laurels flashing in the sunshine, as if they were hung with diamonds.'

talk returned to the German disquisition, which was directed against the class of quasi-scientific authors attacked by Peak himself in his Critical article. In the end Godwin sat down and began to read the translation he had made, Mr. Warricombe listening with a thoughtful smile. From time to time the reader paused and offered time the reader paused and offered admirers of the departmental store, and buy all their goods in Winnimment, endeavoring to show him, and always with a look of interest which betokened grave reflection.

'Here,' said Godwin at one point, the has a note citing a passage from Reusch's book on The Bible and Nature. If I am not mistaken, he misrepresents his author, though perhaps not intentionally."

'You know the book?' 'I have studied it carefully, but I don't possess it. I thought I remembered this particular passage very well."

'Is it a work of autority?' 'Yes; it is very important. Unfortunately, it hasn't yet been translated. Rather bulky, but I shouldn't mind doing it myself if I were sure of finding a publisher.'

'The Bible and Nature,' said Martin, musingly. 'What is his scheme? How does he go to work?

Godwin gave a brief but lucid description of the book, and Mr. Warricombe listened gravely.

When there had been silence for some moments, the latter spoke in a tone he had never yet used when conversing with Peak. He allowed himself, for the first time, to betray a troubled doubt on the subject under discussion.

'So he makes a stand at Darwin-ism as it affects man?'

Peak had yet no means of knowing at what point Martin himself Yards, Outhouses, Stables, 'made a stand.' Modes of reconcilement between scientific discovery and religious tradition are so very numerous, and the geologist Must be thoroughly cleaned up by was only now beginning to touch upon these topics with his young acquaintance. That his mind was not perfectly at ease amid the conflicts of the day, Godwin soon perceived, and by this time he had clear assurance that Martin would willingly thrash out the whole debate with anyone who seemed capable of supporting orthodox tenets by reasoning not unacceptable to a man of broad views. The the first that Martin, however respectable his knowledge, was far from possessing the scientific mind, and each conversation had supplied him with proofs of this defect; it was not at all in the modern spirit that the man of threescore years pursued his geological and kindred researches, but with the calm curiosity of a liberal intellect which has somehow taken this direction instead of devoting its to literary study. At bottom, Godwin had no little sympathy with Mr. Warricombe; he too, in spite of his mili tant instincts, dwelt by preference amid purely human interests. He grasped with firm intelligence the modes of thought which distinguish scientific men, but his nature did not prompt him to a consistent application of them. Personal liking enabled him to subdue the impulses of disrespect which, under other circumstances, would have made it difficult for him to act with perfection his present part. None the less, his task was one of infinite delicacy. Martin Warricombe was not the man to unbosom himself ou trivial instigation. It must be a powerful influence which would persuade him to reveal whatever selfquestionings lay beneath his genial good breeding and long-established acquiescence in a practical philosophy. Godwin guarded himself against his eager emotions; one false note, one syllable of indiscretion, and his aims might be hope-

This being the case, it is inevitable

SUBTLE VENGEANCE.

The State of the Mind Has a Direct The Gift Dumas Bestowed on a Friend Who Insulted Him.

Alexandre Dumas the elder, the great novelist, had, as is well known, some black blood in his veins and was of an unforgiving if not almost cruel nature. In his earlier days be re ceived a dire insult from one whom he called his friend. To the surprise of all who knew him Alexandre took no apparent notice of the wrong, but instead applied himself to looking carefully after the welfare of his sup-posed friend. He took him with him into society, introduced him here, presented him there and so continued for three years, at the end of which time he stood as "best man" at his friend's marriage.

The wedding feast being concluded, Alexandre Dumas was leaving the house when an acquaintance joined him and as they walked along said: "I have often wished to say how I have wondered at your great kindness to M. X., whom we have just seen married. You have the most forgiving nature that I have ever met with. He insulted you grossly some years ago, and yet ever since you have de-voted yourself to his happiness and at last assisted him to get married."

"That's it precisely," remarked Dumas slowly, with a sinister chuckle. "I flatter myself that I have given him the most furious and lynx eyed mother-in-law in France." - London Telegraph.

NATURAL MEASURES.

The Hand, the Pace and the Cubit of the Scriptures.

The first "natural measurement" to which the memory naturally recurs is the hand, four inches, employed in determining the height of horses. This measure is, of course, derived from the breadth of the palm, and it has become so well fixed in popular esteem that it is unlikely it will ever be super-the pace, and probably every countryman who has had to do with land has used it. The usual method is to stride off, taking as long steps as possible, calling each pace a yard.

A natural measure much employed by a dressmaker is the yard as determined by stretching the material to be measured between her chin and her outstretched hand, or if it be a matter of inches she will fold the bended upper joint of her thumb along the cloth. These natural measures are generally close enough to serve all practical purposes.

For many hundreds of years there was employed the measure of the forearm from point of elbow to tip of middle finger. This was the cubit of the Bible.-St. Louis Republic.

Church Theaters. Few people know that plays in England, Germany, Italy and France were fostered for religious purposes by the church centuries before they were taken up as a separate secular business. Moreover, few visitors to St. Paul's cathedral, in London, realize that that church during Elizabeth's reign and the first years of the reign of James I. set aside one of its adjacent buildings for use as a secular theater. Its little stage was famous, and the company of choir boys as actors presented many of the great plays of Shake-speare's time. They acted from about 1598 to 1608 under the management of Edward Pierce, their great master in music, who as church almoner had business control of these adjacent buildings owned by the church .- London Standard.

Showers of red rain have fallen more than once in the world's history. In the middle ages they were looked upon as awful omens of war and bloodshed, but nowadays we know the hue of the "rain of blood" to be due to the presence of a tiny red insect, a variety of water flea. Red rains are very rare, but in volcanic regions gray rain is comparatively common. Sicily has had many showers of this shade. They are caused by the upper atmosphere being full of ash colored voicanic dust from Etna. This dust is infinitesimally fine and colors the rain as it falls.

Premier Fisher Asks Popular Vote on the Questions of Increasing the Federal Power and of Nationalizing Monopolies and After a Hard Fought Campaign Gets Adverse Answers From Polls.

Melbourne, Australia, April 27-Two important constitutional questions were submitted to a referendum yesterday. The first aimed to give to the Commonwealth Parliament greatly extended powers over all matters relat-ing to trade, commerce and industry, fact, vesting in the Federal Par liament supreme power to the detri-ment of the State Legislatures, which heretofore had complete control with-in their own states. LENGTH OF A DAY

Senators Disagree on Proper Hours of Labor.

SEN. BOWELL IS OPPOSED

Senator Campbell Introduces Measure Regarding Government Buildings and Senator Beique Moves a Six Months Hoist, But Withdraws on Hearing That Bill Is to Go Before a Special Committee.

Ottawa, April 27.—The length of time a man should work a day engag-ed the aftention of the Senate and brought out most opposite opinions yesterday. The discussion rose upon yesterday. The discussion rose upon the bill, which has Government ap-proval, and which, as an experimental measure, proposes to limit to eight hours the length of day a man can be employed on a public building unde construction.

Senator Beique said he failed to see Senator Beique said he failed to see why this principle should be applied to public works and to no other labor. The matter should be given more study. If the bill was put over till next session, he would undertake to have it thoroughly studied by a commission. He therefore moved the six months' hoist.

Senator Legris declared the aight.

Senator Legris declared the eighthour day could not be justly applied to one class and not to another. He thought the time had not yet come for a general eight-hour day.

Senator Campbell hoped that the motion for a six months' hoist would not carry. When he introduced the bill he undertook to send it to a com-mittee for study and report. Employ-ers got better results and laborers more satisfaction out of an eight-hour day than from a longer day.

Senator Beique said that as Senator Campbell proposed to send this bill to committee he would withdraw his motion for the six months' hoist.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell declared that in his opinion the best relations between employers and employes would be maintained by allowing the people who sell their labor and the people who buy labor to make their own bar-gain, without too much legislative in-gain, without too much legislative in-terference. He had grave doubts as to the constitutionality of the bill. Senator Wm. Ross of Halifax said that in the postal and customs ser-vices of Canada men worked but six hours a day. On ships the working time was divided into four hour watches. The best results were ob-tained from the consentrated effort applied to work done in a short day. He thought the bill should pass. Senator Wilson did not agree that men could not work for more than eight hours a day without injury. The pioneers who had created Canada had certainly worked hard for many more hours each day, and they and their posterity were vigorous men. He could not see why the bill should be restricted to one class of Government work. He believed that the restriction involved in this measure, if gen-erally applied, would be bad for work-men and bad for the country gener-

Cleveland, O., April 27.—Ten indict-ments on a total of 107 counts, charging four iron ore carrying roads entering Cleveland with rebating, and alleging that two of them were guilty of conspiracy to violate the Elkins law, were returned by the federal grand jury late yesterday. Several secret indictments of individuals whose names are withheld, pending their ar-rest, also were returned. The rail-roads are the Penna, the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, 37 counts; Bessemer and Lake Eric, 29 counts; and the New York, Chicago and St.

The Government's next step will be the issuance of warrants for the parties named in the secret indictments. The real sensation of the case, Attorney Day said, would come with the divulging of the names of individuals

The Veto Bill.

London, April 27.—The veto bill is making easier progress through the committee stage than had been anti-cipated, and it is probable that it will not be necessary for the Government to resort to strong measures to force its passage. According to The Times' lobby correspondent it will reach the second reading stage in the House of Lords before Parliament adjourns for the coronation, and although the Unionist leaders have not yet definitely decided upon the course they shall adopt there is an increasing disposition among the Unionists that the House of Lords should pass the second reading of the bill and en-deavor to amend it in committee.

Washington, April 27.-The House bill to increase the House of Representatives to a membership of 433 and apportion the members throughout the States on the basis of the recent Federal census will be discussed in the House to-day.

The tariff debate yesterday covered broad lines. Mr. Norris of Nebraska attacked the combination controlling the Brazilian coffee output, and urged changes in the existing tariff laws, which permit the United States Government to break up the control now exercised by the Brazilian combina-tion over the wholesale price and the supply of coffee in the U. S. market. Mr. James of Kentucky delivered the most etizzing Description speech the most stirring Democratic speech in support of the free list measure, replying to the criticisms of the bill made Tuesday by minority leader Mann, and attacking the Republican policy of protection. Mr. Hobson of Atlanta also spoke in favor of the measure, pleading for greater consideration for the cotton growing industry, and the development at home of the trade in cotton fabrics now partially monopolized by foreign coun-

INDIAN RIGHTS TO LAND

Hon. Frank Oliver Brings In Two Measures to Deal With the Reserves Near Big Centres of Population-Mr. Monk Brings Up the Matter of a Canadian Address For the Coronation Ceremony.

Ottawa, April 27 .- It fell to the Nationalist leader in the Commons to call Parliament's attention to the position of Canada in connection with the forthcoming coronation of his Majesty George V. The Conservative Opposition is engaged otherwise. According to the official statement issued at the close of its caucus yes-terday morning, it is planning a "fight to the bitter end," which will prevent Canada's representation at either the Imperial Conference or the corona-

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, replying to a question by F. D. Monk, said it was not the intention of the Government to introduce legislation this session to regulate the alienation of water powers controlled by the Dominion.

Sir Alan Ayesworth, replying to Mr. Monk, said that the Government was not aware of any existing treaty or national agreement which would have application to the use by the Americans of the Georgian Bay Canal when it is completed.

Mr. Monk had still another question to ask informally. It had been stated, he said, that Sir Wilfrid Laurier would sail for Great Britain on May 12 to attend the Imperial Conference and coronation of King George. He understood that it had been the cus-tom in the past for Parliament to pass an address to the reigning sovereign on the eve of his coronation. He asked if such an address would be conveyed to His Majesty by the Ministers who would attend the coronation, and suggested that prompt ac-tion be taken, because not much time remained and the address would have to be engrossed. Mr. Monk asked if the matter had escaped the attention of the Prime Minister. Sir Wilfrid Laurier said it had not

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said it had not. It was inquiring as to precedents and would give a reply at an early date.

Hon. Sidney Fisher's new copyright act, after an explanation by the Minister and some discussion of the resolution on which the bill is based, was given a first reading. The effect of the bill, which has already been explained in a general way, is to provide for reciprocity in copyright bewide for reciprocity in copyright be-tween Canada, the Mother Country and the other dominions which make up the Empire. Mr. Fisher said the bill would follow the lines of the British bill, which has received a second reading in the Imperial House, as far as it applies to Canadian condi-tions and requirements. The period of copyright protection will be the same as provided at the international conference on copyright, which is for the life of the author and fifty years thereafter. The bill also provides that when copyright protection is secured in the Mother Country or another colony, it applies also to Canada, and that a Canadian copyright similarly holds good in any part of the Empire.

Hon. Frank Oliver had in hand two bills relating to Canada's Indian wards, the discussion of which introduced the old question of the right of the white people to interfere with the treaty rights of the Indian population. The main discussion occurred over a bill to amend the general In-dian Act. Its purpose is to provide that the Dominion Government may at any time it is deemed expedient take an Indian reserve, the Exchequer Court to decide what compensation shall be given the Indians in the way of lands or cash.

Mr. Oliver assured the House that it was the policy of the Government to keep faith with the Indians and treat them fairly, but that the interest of the public was paramount.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said it was not always in the interests of the Indians to allow them to live near large towns and cities, where they could pick up the vices of the white races. R. L. Borden protested against there being any breach of faith with the Indians in any case.

J. R. Armstrong by way of amend-ment moved that in all cases where lands are alienated they must be sold by auction after three months. Mr. Oliver accepted the amendment. The second bill dealt with the Songhees
