CONVICTION IN DR. DICKINSON'S CASE; $50 AND COSTS; CHARGE 3 WITHDRAWN

Crown Build up Strong Case Surrounding Second Charge; Defence and Prosecution Evidence in Sections is Directly Contradictory

The second charge against Dr. G. A. Dickinson, was reviewed in Police Court this morning before Magistrate Campbell. D. H. Chisholm appeared as before, for the defendant, while Mr. A. Cochrane of Cobourg represented the Crown.

Chief License Inspector Sarvis of Toronto, Inspectors Gooderich and Armstrong of the Counties, and two special officers from Toronto were present.

The charge against Dr. Dickinson was to the effect, that on March 21, he did unlawfully give to one, Archibald Gillies, a prescription for six ounces of liquor.

Examined by the Crown
Archibald Gillies, the special officer to whom, it is alleged Dr. Dickinson issued the prescription was the first witness to be examined. Questioned by Crown Attorney Cochrane, Gillies related that on March 21st, he had visited the Doctor in his office and asked him for a script. He was asked if he was ill and he replied that he was not, and the Doctor seemed reluctant to issue him the order. After some chatting he arose with the intention of leaving, and the Doctor called him back saying "Give me fifty cents and I'll give you the script."

He was only in Dr. Dickinson's office about ten minutes and during this time, the latter made no special examination. He asked if Gillies was ill, and received a negative reply.

Called Him a "Spotter"
Mr. Chisholm opened his cross-examination with a rapid fire of questions regarding Gillies' employment.

"You are what is called a spotter, are you not?" asked the defence counsel.

Magistrate Campbell objected to this method of questioning.

Gillies went on to relate that at no time, while he was in the Doctor's office, did he state that he was cold after his long trip from Belleville. He denied further that he said that he was ill.

As he was leaving the office, he said that he would not press the Doctor to give him the script—"if he didn't want to give him an order it was alright." The Doctor then called him back, and asking for fifty cents, gave him the script. Before this, however, the Doctor had asked him to turn back his coat lapel to see if he had any kind of an inspector's badge. He said that he was afraid Gillies was an officer of some type.

He admitted that the day was cold and frosty, but denied that he and Bennett had had any plan of procedure concocted on their trip up from Belleville before visiting the Doctor's.

Upon this occasion he had given the Doctor an address, "72, St. Alban street, Toronto," he thought. He did not lie about this street number. He did not remember giving this as "238 Ellen street."

Filled Seventy Scripts
Mr. H. W. Mitchell, druggist was the next witness, and he produced in court, a complete record of his sales of liquor. By reference to his books, he found that during the period which elapsed between January 1st and April 18th, he had filled about seventy scripts on Dr. Dickinson. All of these were for liquor. The total number of scripts filled by him was 169, and as seventy of these were Dr. Dickinson's, ninety-nine were divided among the other six medical men.

Second "Spotter" Called
Alvin Bennett, the second spotter, was called, and examined by Mr. Cochrane. He stated that on March 21st, he was at Dr. Dickinson's office, and got a script, without any trouble. For this order, he paid the Doctor fifty cents.

As he was leaving the office, he passed Gillies in the doorway, and proceeding to the car, sat there waiting for him.

Check up on Evidence
Mr. Chisholm checked up on Bennett's testimony, by asking him if the evidence which he gave on April 21st, in the case relating to the first charge was correct. Bennett replied that it was.

The Doctor Himself

Mr. Chisholm opened his defence by calling upon the defendant himself, Dr. G. A. Dickinson. He stated that on March 21st, Gillies had called upon him, and said that he lived at 238 Ellen street, Belleville.

By repeated questions, he had learned that Gillies after a long, cold drive from Belleville was chilled through. As Gillies seemed to be taking the Grippe, he paid careful attention to symptoms. Crankiness, which is usually a first sign of this disease, was noticeable in Gillies.

He did not give Gillies a script, and did not receive any money, but told him that he would see. He asked him to send Bennett in. The latter told him that his chum was ill and cold, and this strengthened the Doctor's convictions as to Gillies' illness.

After writing Bennett's script, he wrote an order for Gillies, and Bennett paid for both. After Gillies' abrupt departure, he did not see him again. The numbers on the prescriptions, verified the Doctor's statement that he had given Bennett his script first.

Gillies had never given him the address "St. Alban's street, Toronto," but had led him to believe that he was an auto salesman, residing on Ellen street, Belleville. Further, he was positive that he had not asked Gillies to turn down his collar to show that he was not an officer.

Explains Numerous Prescriptions
The Doctor explained that as he was in his office, practically all the time, he issued many more prescriptions than the other Doctors, and that he had several patients who required two or three orders a week. Nevertheless, he had issued no more than his legitimate allowance.

The Cross-Examination

Mr. Cochrane conducted the cross-examination. Dr. Dickinson stated that although the two prescriptions for Bennett and Gillies were written out at practically the same time, that he had not given Gillies his order.

He had given Bennett this second prescription March 21st, because he believed that he was still ill from the 11th. On March 11th, he had not conducted a physical examination, but considered the oral examination sufficient.

The Doctor emphatically denied that Gillies had followed Bennett into his office on March 21st. Gillies had been first, and he had carried no script of any kind out of his office. Although he was not suspicious of these two, he was careful because they were strangers.

Believed the Doctor Justified
After hearing the evidence in

FOUNTAIN WILL BE ERECTED SOON

Contractors to Begin Work at Central Park as Soon as Material is Available

The large stone fountain to be erected in Central Park will be built in the near future, according to a report presented at a meeting of the Park Commission on Monday evening. Thomas Garnett & Sons, who have the contract for the work, will proceed as soon as certain material arrives.

The fountain when erected will be very decorative, and following the designs submitted to the Commission some time ago, will be pyramidal in shape and of considerable height.

Gillies case, Doctor R. F. Forrest, called, stated that he believed Dr. Dickinson justified in prescribing the liquor for him. He also thought it quite probable that Dr. Dickinson, with a large office practice would issue more scripts, than the other medical men. Besides some doctors believed in the use of other drugs in place of liquor, and thus their scripts would be less numerous.

Dr. Beamish was also called, and corroborated Dr. Forrest's statements. He did not care to answer the question of the Crown regarding the Doctor's practice.

Gillies Recalled

The Crown re-called Gillies. He was asked if Dr. Dickinson's statements regarding the order of the issuance of the scripts, and that he had not given Gillies a script at all, were correct. Mr. Chisholm's objections to the repetition of evidence in chief was overruled.

Gillies declared that Dr. Dickinson had given him a script and received payment for the same.

Magistrate Recalls Bennett

Upon the request of the Magistrate, Alvin Bennett was recalled and questioned as to the Doctor's statements as to the visits on the 21. He stated that Gillies had been in first, and he had passed him in the door. He did not tell the Doctor anything about Gillies being ill, and did not receive the script or pay for two orders as the Doctor had declared.

The Defence Counsel

Mr. Chisholm gave his defense in a concise manner. He followed the method which he adopted in the first case, asking that the evidence of self confessed perjurers such as the "spotters" should be discredited. He pointed out that many of the statements of both of these men were contradictory to the truth.

Mr. Cochrane for the prosecution, demonstrated how sections of the defense evidence, as to the order of the issuance of the scripts, bore out certain points in Gillies and Bennett's testimony. In summing up the case, he asked for a conviction on the charge.

The Judgment

In this case, said the Magistrate, the evidence puts the matter on a different basis. In the last case, it was a matter of oath against oath, but in this charge, the testimony is much stronger. Gillies' evidence, to a great extent, is given in a straight forward manner, and "spotters" though he may be, his evidence, he believed, was uncontradicted. With very little trouble, he had got his script, and Dr. Dickinson's explanation regarding it, was he thought, insufficient.

The Doctor made no examination and the Doctor's treatment was merely based on the assumption that Gillies was ill. The suspicion shown by the Doctor in searching for an official badge, was indicative perhaps, of a guilty conscience. If the Doctor did not feel his personal examination of Gillies sufficient, why did he act upon Gillies' chum's statements.

He had come to the conclusion, that in the face of the numerous scripts issued by the Doctor, although some explanation had been made, was a certain indication that Dr. Dickinson had been issuing scripts too easily.

Thus he felt himself justified in registering a conviction and imposing a fine of $50 and costs. The third charge against the Doctor was withdrawn.

Conviction to be Appealed

Mr. Chisholm paid the fine under protest and announced that it was Doctor Dickinson's intention to file an appeal immediately.

IT'S GOING OVER WITH A SWING

Two Rehearsals Held Last Night and All Showed Enthusiasm

There is no doubt that the musical comedy "Kathleen" will delight all who attend the Royal Theatre to-night or tomorrow night. Those who saw the rehearsal last night can vouch for that.

All who are taking part have worked very hard for the past two weeks learning their lines, songs and dances so that the show will certainly go over with a swing. The players devoted practically all their spare time working faithfully for the I. O. D. E. under Mrs. Rawlings' very capable instruction.

Before everyone dispersed for the evening, Mrs. Rawlings, in her charming manner, thanked all those who are working for the success of the entertainment for their hearty co-operation.

A glance at the plan at Strong's store shows that a capacity first night is assured and we know that when the first nighters begin telling their friends there will be no trouble in filling the theatre on Thursday night also.

MANY DOGS STRUCK BY CARS

Numerous complaints have been heard locally of the large number of dogs which infest our streets—mongrels of every description. Yesterday the motorists in certain sections of the town must have begun an annihilation campaign, as four dogs required the attention of a local veterinary after being struck by autos. Another dog was reported to have been killed outright under the wheels of an auto.

C. P. CHESHER LAID AT REST

Funeral of Popular Young Man Was Very Largely Attended

Tuesday afternoon one of Port Hope's best young men in the person of the late Clifford Peart Chesher was laid to rest in the Port Hope Union Cemetery.

The funeral service, conducted by Rev. J. W. Baird and assisted by Rev. J. F. Mears, was held at half-past two at the family residence in the Town Hall. His closest friends and relatives were within the home, and the sidewalks outside were lined with mourners.

Mr. Baird spoke briefly on the subject, "The Eternal in Man." He instanced three signs of man's immortality to be seen in human nature—

(1) Man needs eternity in which to bring his God-given powers to a complete development.

(2) Man has in his nature eternal capacities, such as the powers of thought, memory, imagination and the moral sense.

(3) A desire in man for another life is the voice of an eternal nature.

Then the gospel in Christ Jesus furnishes positive proof of a future life. Jesus lived and died and rose again and has declared, "He that liveth and believeth in Me shall never die." In his application the speaker claimed that the unending future offers to such a choice young man as the one whose memory we now recall an even larger sphere of growth and development and usefulness.

The casket was surrounded with banks of beautiful flowers from friends and relatives. The deceased was connected with several organizations, and many of these will be found in the following list of those bodies sending floral tributes:

Young People's League, Sunday school class, Sunday school and orchestra, and Gleaners' Society, all of the United Church; Tri Mu Bible Class of the Baptist Church; A. Y. R. A. Church of Epiphany, Toronto; Corporation of Port Hope; Port Hope Band; Postmaster Baird and staff; mail carriers; Customs Dept. and Mr. W. S. Bletcher; Mess & Stocks Electric Co., Toronto; Girl Guides. Messrs. S. Hayden, Lester Randall, Fletcher Rawlinson, E. H. Brown, E. Harcourt and Donald H. Wilson acted as pall-bearers.

Mr. Chesher's Sunday school class, who attended in a body, were: Arthur Bradley, Jack Phillips, Gordon Isaac, Leslie Pomeroy, Stewart Snellgrove, Russell Broadbent, Jim Rutter, Gordon Payden, James May, Cecil Spicer, Melville Johnston and Stanley Morrison.

The following relatives and friends from out of town attended the funeral:

Mr. and Mrs. W. Chesher, Claremont; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Beattie, Mrs. S. Chesher, Mrs. J. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Hathaway and son Edwin, Mrs. C. Mitchell, Mrs. T. Mundy, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. White and son Morley, Mr. and Mrs. G. Rawlinson and son Fletcher, Miss M. Gilbert, Mr. Roy Chesher, Mr. and Mrs. W. Smart, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Moore, Peterboro.

ON PARLIAMENT HILL

By A Member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery

Ottawa, April 25th, 1925.—Talk records continue to be broken. That is, the length of the talk and the number of talkers on the Budget proposals submitted to the House some twenty days ago by Hon. James A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, are in process of breaking the records for a Budget debate. Loquacious members are getting on record in Hansard, the parliamentary phonograph, which records they believe will be useful when the next general election occurs. Were Hansard to fail to record those Budget speeches they would not be made. It is probable that when the present vocal wrestling match is concluded on April 30 at least 130 members of the House will have contributed to the debate, and some arithmetically-inclined people around Parliament Hill have already computed the number of millions of words spoken, the miles of Hansard paper occupied and the vast sum of public money expended in talk. With few exceptions the attendance in the House has been slim, and the chamber, as compared with livelier days, seems to resemble a theatre with only the actors present, the audience having departed for other entertainments.

Some Worth-While Speeches

It must be remembered, however, that there have been two or three worth-while hours in the House this week. Every week manages to produce at least one little thrill. This week's developed on Monday and had a fiery aftermath on Tuesday. Joseph Archambault (Chamby-Vercheres), a sharp debater from Quebec, crossed swords on Monday with Mr. Meighen, leader of the Opposition, on the charges made last fall by Sir Arthur Currie, now Principal of McGill University, Montreal, and Commander in Chief of the Canadian forces in the war. Sir Arthur had made some startling charges of extravagance and waste in connection with the raising and maintenance of the Canadian troops, and Mr. Archambault urged that these should be brought to the attention of those of the present Conservative membership of the House who were then associated with the Government. Mr. Meighen, who was impatient of Sir Arthur's criticisms and of Mr. Archambault's repetition of them, challenged or demanded an enquiry into those charges and suggested that Sir Arthur was not so ready for an enquiry as the present Opposition.

During his speech on Monday Mr. Archambault had some pertinent things to say, too, about the tariff and the Robb Budget. "The best reason for concluding that this Budget is a sound and reasonable one," for the first game of the series on Monday evening.

is that it has failed to please the extreme wings of this House," said Mr. Archambault. "It does not please the high protectionist and it also does not please the free trader. The Budget reminds me of the attitude of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on racial and religious questions. The Tories of Ontario used to say that Sir Wilfrid wanted French and Catholic domination, and at the same time the Tories of Quebec were stating that Sir Wilfrid was betraying his race and religion. The principle that Sir Wilfrid Laurier did follow should apply to the fiscal policy, and I can see in this Budget the embodiment of that principle. Our geographical situation is such that it is impossible to please everybody, and unless we make a firm determination to adopt a policy of give and take, a policy of conciliation, it will mean the disruption of Confederation."

The Middle Course Is Best

An interruption by D. M. Kennedy (West Edmonton) evoked from Mr. Archambault a piece of wit, an epigram that should be preserved. Mr. Archambault had said that he supported reciprocity in 1911 with respect to farm products and that he was still in favour of that policy. Then Mr. Kennedy asked, "Would you also be in favour of reducing the duties on products coming into Canada where the United States duty is lower than ours, as in the case of boots and shoes?" To this Mr. Archambault replied, "Not on boots and shoes, but on agricultural products, absolutely. In my opinion, free trade and high protection are not real policies. Free trade is a pious dream; high protection is a fit of hunger."

Future of the Progressives

A prediction that the Progressive party in Ontario would come back strong after the next Federal election was made during the week by John W. King (North Huron). "The Progressive party," he said, "is a modest, retiring party, and we have been subjected to political thrusts, some of them not very clean, from all sides of the House—even from our own side; but I desire to affirm right here, that not only will the Progressive party come back after the next election, but will come back more than a mere remnant—more than a sad remnant. The Progressive party is here to do business and will do business in this House after all the other members, I was going to say, had passed into oblivion; but I do not say that, because I know there are a great many hon. members of this House whose names will go down in the annals of Canadian history. The Progressive party has its roots in the soil and they will not be very easily eradicated."

The Prime Minister and National Unity

A high tribute to the contributions the Prime Minister has made from time to time in cementing together more closely the diverse economic parts of this country was paid by W. G. Raymond (Brantford), who in urging the need of conciliation, of compromise and of co-operation if the unity of this Dominion was to be preserved and enhanced, said: "If that spirit is to be carried out, if these rifts which some day exist in Confederation, are to be closed, if there is any hope of keeping together the provinces and having them united in a happy and progressive country, I certainly believe that the Prime Minister is the man, who in the spirit he has displayed throughout his life is most likely to be effective in bringing about that great national ideal."

In urging that the doors of Canada be thrown wide open to the immigrants from Europe and populate this country as rapidly as possible without restriction, S. W. Jacobs (Montreal) propounded some novel ideas in the House on Thursday and uttered some characteristic witticisms. A fair sample is contained in his concluding sentences. "My theory is to allow the people to go wherever they want to go. If they find they are not fitted for farming

EXPORTS OF MEATS AND CATTLE

In the pre-war year of 1913 our exports of meats reached a total in value of $5,405,755, in 1924 they were $24,434,270. Our exports of bacon in 1913 amounted in value to $4,274,824 and of pork to $100,484. In 1924 the exports of bacon in value were $19,991,636 and of pork $2,169,756. Of live cattle in 1913 we exported 193,714 head valued at $7,236,535 and in 1924, 183,242 head valued at $12,622,863. It will be noticed that while the number of cattle exported in 1913 was over 10,000 less than in 1924 the value in the last year was $5,386,328 more, showing that in the pre-war year the cattle commanded only a trifle over $37.36 per head while in 1924 they were worth nearly $68.89 per head. In 1913 the exports of cattle to Britain were 9,878 valued at $703,807; in 1924 they were 79,435 valued at $8,402,378.

CONFESSES CRIME AFTER 3 YEARS

Provincial Police of Manitoba Find Remains of Murdered Man

John Kooten, of Shoal Lake, Man., has confessed to the slaying of Dymtro Czayka on or about November 5, 1921, Serg. L. Batch of the Manitoba Provincial Police announced on Sunday.

Czayka boarded at Kooten's house and was last seen on November 5, 1921. Kooten was arrested at the time, but contended that the missing man had returned to Austria. No body having been discovered, Kooten was allowed liberty on his own recognizance. On Sunday last constables visited Kooten, who is ill, and obtained a confession to the effect that he killed Czayka with an axe, then burned the body in a small outhouse. The police found the remains of Czayka. The skull had apparently been split with a sharp instrument.

ESKIMOS STARVE IN NORTH OF CAN.

Dr. Knut Rasmussen, famous Arctic explorer, arrived in Ottawa Monday night to interview the Canadian Government regarding horrible conditions said to exist in the Canadian Arctic. Dr. Rasmussen recently made a long expedition into the far north to investigate rumors that the Eskimos were killing their girl babies on account of there being an insufficiency of food to feed them. He would say very little regarding this, however, but said he would be glad to make his findings public after a conference with the Government. "The distances are too great," explained Dr. Rasmussen, "and the various bands of Eskimos are so isolated that there is no general condition existing throughout the Arctic. In one place there may be plenty of hunting and the Eskimos will be well fed and happy, while in another section of the great barren lands there may be a scarcity of wild game and as a result whole bands are starving slowly. There is great need of some suitable reservation being made for the Eskimos, and I believe the Canadian Government is quite ready to do this."

they will go elsewhere. We have a continent to fill up. Surely it offers possibilities to every person who comes in. The man who is not a success as farmer may become a member of Parliament."

Angus McDonald (Temiskaming) suggested that the party with that doctrine should be called the Jacobs party, to which Mr. Jacobs retorted: "The original Jacobs had only twelve sons and he went to Egypt and was a success there."

OTTAWA WILL TAX BEER IN ADDITION

Federal Authorities Deem it Comes Under Excise Act of Canada

The beer which is to be sold in Ontario will be subject to a Federal excise tax of 12 1-2 cents a gallon. The department has ruled that 4.4 beer comes within the definition of beer in the Excise Act of Canada. According to the act, beer "means and includes ale, porter, lager, beer and all other fermented liquor made in whole or in part from malt grain or any saccharine matter."

In its ruling the Department of Customs and Excise makes no mention as to whether or not the beer is intoxicating. Breweries of Ottawa are receiving notice that the tax will be placed upon 4.4 beer, as on any other beer of higher alcoholic content. The two per cent. beer has never been taxed by the Department of Customs.

The new 4.4 beer which Premier Ferguson intimates will go on sale in Ontario around May 15, in the opinion of Ottawa brewers, will cost as much, if not more, than beer of a greater alcoholic strength now being sold in the Province of Quebec, provided the rumored Provincial tax of 10 cents a gallon is imposed, in addition to the Federal Government tax of 12 1-2 cents a gallon announced yesterday.

"The cost to the public will likely be from 15 to 20 cents a pint, by the present look of things," said one brewer.

In all probability, the decision of the Ottawa Government that the new Ontario 4.4 beer must bear the usual 12 1-2 cents per gallon excise tax will render impossible the sale of that beverage at five cents per glass, which was the intention of the Ferguson Government.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK

The wonder trip of the coming summer will be conducted by Dean Laird of Macdonald College, to Victoria, B. C., and back.

Inspired by the success of the trip to Victoria last year on the occasion of the Teachers Federation meeting at that point, and filled with patriotic motives for everyone to see their own Country, the Dean has arranged for a special train of standard sleeping cars to leave Toronto on July 20, visiting Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver thence steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be via the Okanagan Valley, Nelson, the Kootenay Lakes, Windermere Bungalow Camp, from which place the party will be motored to Banff, 104 miles over the newly completed Banff-Windermere Highway, the most charming, and awe inspiring trip it is possible to conceive, with stops at Radium Hot Springs, Vermillion River, and Storm Mountain Bungalow Camps—another day at Banff, then Edmonton, Saskatoon, Devil's Gap Bungalow Camp, near Kenora on the Lake of the Woods, steamer from Fort William to Port McNicoll, thence rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate on August 10.

Everything is included at the price of $325.00 from Toronto; transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels and on steamers, sightseeing tours at points visited, and all gratuities.

While appealing primarily to teachers, the tour is open to everyone desiring to go.

All will be welcome. Fares from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrated booklet sent on application to Dean Laird, Macdonald College, P. O., Que.

THE GUIDE STORY

She liked to hear it, and she liked the sound of Roger's voice when he repeated it. He was having a soothing influence over her, and she grew very quiet, while he went on to speak of her mother, and the time when he found himself with a helpless child upon his hands.

"I adopted you then as my own—my little baby," he said. "You had nothing to do with it; the bargain was of my own making, and you cannot break it. I have never given up my guardianship, never mean to give it up until someone claims you who has a better right than I to my little girl. And this I am saying in answer to your proposition of going away from Millbank, because you have no right here—no claim on me. I am sorry that you should feel so— you have a claim on me—I cannot let you go—Millbank would be very lonely without you, Magda."

He paused a moment, and, looking off upon the hills across the river, seemed to be thinking intently. But it was not of the interpretation which many young girls of eighteen might put upon his words and manner.

Nothing could be further from his mind than making love to Magda.

He really felt as if he stood to her in the relation of a father, and that she had the same claim upon him which a child has upon a parent.

Her proposition to leave Millbank disturbed him and led him to a careful examination of his conduct toward her since his return. Perhaps he was in some way at fault for her wishing to go away. He had not been very attentive to her—he had been so much absorbed in his business as to forget that any attentions were due from him to Magda as master of the house. He had left all these things to Frank, who knew so much better how to entertain young ladies than he did. And the young people, as he termed them in contradistinction to himself, had seemed very happy in each other's society—so happy, in fact, that he had more than once thought what the result might have been had there been no Alice Grey across the sea. He had never seen Alice, but when he first heard of her his heart had given one great throb of pain, for the name of Grey had a power to stir his soul to its utmost depths, and to himself he had said:

"If it is that Grey, it shall never be if I can help it. The Irvings and Greys must never meet as friends at Millbank. The ghosts of the dead would come back if they did." Every inquiry it was possible for him to make in Europe concerning the Greys he had made, and had decided that between poor Jessie's evil genius and sweet Alice Grey, there was no relationship, and so he sent to Alice a beautiful pearl cross, with a pleasant note, which, with childish confidence, Alice had shown her father, whose face flushed, and into whose eyes there crept a look of softness and regret as he examined the handwriting and lingered over the signature—"Roger Irving."

Since that time Roger had seen Magda as a young lady, and, without a thought of appropriating her to himself, had half wished Frank's choice had fallen upon her. He was thinking something of this kind as he sat by Magda, looking off across the river.

"Frank is not just the man I should choose for her," he thought. "He has not enough of energy and stability, and is quite too averse to exertion of any kind. But I could keep them both with me, here at Millbank, which would be nothing without Magda. I dare say I have neglected her, but I mean to do better; and I am so glad about the piano; that, at least, will show her that I have not been unmindful of her, even if I have not talked with her as much as Frank."

Meanwhile Magda was sitting in perfect silence, her heart thrilling to the sound of Roger's last words:

"Millbank would be very lonely without you, Magda."

He did want her at Millbank; he would be lonely without her, she was sure, or he would not have said so; and she would rather stay than go away among strangers. Millbank had a new charm for her now, though she could not have told how or whence it came. It certainly had something to do with the man at her feet, whose brown curls the summer wind was gently lifting, and whose eyes came back at last from the hills across the river, and rested so kindly on her as Roger said:

"I have been thinking that I have not done my whole duty to you, Magda. I have seemed to neglect you, taking it for granted that you could find enough to interest you in Frank's society, and the various little matters which young ladies know more about than I do. I am not a lady's man, in the common acceptance of the term; but I have never meant to neglect you; and when I have seemed the most forgetful you have been, perhaps, the most in my mind. And the close of the day, when I would be free from all those agents, and that business which nearly drives me crazy, has looked very pleasant to me, because I knew that you were there at home—our home I will call it, for it is as much yours as mine, and I want you to consider it so. It is hardly now probable that I shall ever marry. I have lived to be thirty-two without finding a woman whom I would care to make my wife; and after thirty one's chances of matrimony lessen. But whether I marry or not, I shall provide for you, as well as Frank. His mother once believed there was another will—a later one—which gave him Millbank and disinherited me; but that is all past now."

DICKY'S PEEK INTO THE PLAY-
PACK OF HIS ESKIMO COUSIN

"O H, dear!" Dicky exclaimed as he looked out and saw the rain coming down in torrents. "I hate these old shut-in days. Nothing to do but sit around wishing it would hurry and clear up. I wish—"

"Be careful, be careful," laughed a merry voice, and Dicky glanced up just in time to see a bundle tumble out of the fireplace. When it unrolled, out jumped a wee little elfin.

"Hello, there, Gomeback!" Dicky called, shaking the travel elfin's hand. "I'm mighty glad to see you. Hum, isn't this a dreadfully weary day? Raining too hard to play out of doors. Nothing to do inside and—"

"My goodness," laughed the elfin, a merry twinkle in his black eyes, "how can you complain with all those lovely toys of yours. I should think you'd have enough toys to play with, to make you forget the rain."

"I have a great many toys, I know," grumbled Dicky. "But I'm tired of them."

"Too bad, too bad," sighed Gomeback. Then quick as a wink, Dicky was whisked through the air, and when his feet again touched the ground, he found himself standing on the icy snow in front of a great tall mound. "I think after you peek into this Eskimo Lad's play-pack, you'll be ashamed that you complained," Gomeback continued. He rapped on the snow bricks of the snow house. A funny little yellow-faced boy stuck his head out, and seeing who it was, invited them into the warm snow house.

"Welcome to Eskimo land!" he cried, shaking hands with Dicky and Gomeback. "I'm glad to see you. But sorry you came along at this season of the year. There's not much to do around here to amuse American folks," he laughed. "Would you like to see my toys?"

Dicky and Gomeback both laughed and told the Eskimo Lad that was the main reason why they had come to Eskimo land.

"Oh, I have such lovely things!" cried the Eskimo Lad eagerly. He brought out a few toys all carved out of bone, which he told Dicky he had made himself. "Look at this one," he said, as he showed Dicky a small piece of bone with several holes in its side and ends. To it was fastened a long string and on the other end of the string was tied an ivory pin. "You swing the stick up into the air and catch it on the pin in one of the holes when it comes down." He handed it to Dicky, but try as hard as he could, Dicky couldn't catch the stick on the pin. The Eskimo Lad took it and could catch it almost every time. "Haven't I nice toys?" he asked as he put them away.

Dicky nodded his head. Then like a flash, Eskimo land with its queer little toys vanished, and Dicky found himself back in his own house in America. He thanked Gomeback for his trip. Then he got out his knife and fashioned a toy from wood just like his Eskimo cousin's.

Before long the clouds had rolled away; the sun was shining, and Dicky was hunting his cap to go out doors to play.

CANADA BENEFIT BY NEW TARIFF

Britain Again Goes on Gold
Basis and McKenna Duties on Imported Luxuries Are
Re-imposed

Winston Churchill, in his maiden budget, laid before the House of Commons, London, Tuesday, placed the British Empire on a gold basis and announced the re-imposition of the McKenna duties on imported luxuries.

After finding additional sources of revenue through increased death duties, a tax on silk and a few other articles the Chancellor of the Exchequer went to the relief of the general British public by a straight cut of six pence in the pound on income taxes.

In announcing Great Britain's return to the gold standard, Mr. Churchill declared there would be complete Imperial unity in this policy.

Canada already was on a gold basis, he said; South Africa had notified him of the intention to revert to the gold standard from July 1st, while Australia would from today abolish existing restrictions on free gold export, and New Zealand would follow a similar course.

Mr. Churchill declared that Holland and the Dutch East Indies, which are very important factors in the world's commerce, would act simultaneously with Great Britain to-day in restoring the gold standard.

Canadian sugar, tobacco and automobiles will be the chief beneficiaries under the preference proposals in Mr. Churchill's budget. To a certain extent, Canadian wines also may benefit.

Benefit to Canada

Sugar, tobacco and wines came under the first part of the offer of increased preferences made by the Baldwin Government at the last Imperial Conference. To this part of the offer, it is apparently the intention of the British Government to give effect. Under its terms increased or stabilized preferences were to be granted on certain articles which were already dutiable on entering Great Britain. Sugar, tobacco and wines were in this list.

Another Offer

There was another offer under which new duties were to be imposed on certain foodstuffs when coming from countries outside the Empire while the Empire product was to be free. This offer has been dropped as a result of the defeat of the Baldwin Government at the polls.

Canadian automobiles should benefit as a result of restoration of the McKenna duties. These duties gave a preference to Empire automobiles, among other things. They expired a year ago and were not renewed by the late Labor Government.

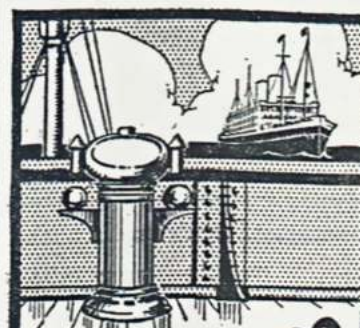

KEEPING TURKEYS

(Experimental Farm Notes.) Turkey raising is not the difficult matter that many believe it to be, writes Mr. A. G. Taylor of the Poultry Division, Dominion Experimental Farms, who itemizes the essentials to success in this line of poultry keeping as follows:—Well-drained soil; free range, well-developed, healthy, unrelated breeding stock; and palatable foods properly and regularly fed.

The birds are not confined to hotes and for winter nights require only the shelter of a straw-barn or closed-in shed. Nor is the feeding an expensive matter. Turkeys, especially the Bronze which is our largest and most popular breed, are great foragers and gather much of their food from the fields. Altogether there is little labour required in keeping a flock; a small initial investment will provide a suitable start; and the market for dressed turkeys is good both at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

A bulletin written by Mr. Taylor entitled "Turkeys—Their Care and Management," (No. 46, New Series) is now in the press. In it are to be found a discussion of breeds; practical directions for successfully managing a flock; and notes on the prevention and cure of disease. Copies will be sent free on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

VOTING ON THE RINK QUESTION

Editor of the Guide, Port Hope.

Dear Mr. Editor:—There is an old saying that "the public's memory is short lived," so I would like to refresh the minds of the taxpayers of Port Hope and ask them to recall the vote which was taken not so very long ago as to whether or not a new school should be built at a cost of $35,000.00. By a majority of over 3 to 1 the ratepayers said "NO." Shortly afterwards the powers that be totally disregarded the mandate and not only built the school but spent several thousands of dollars more than the first figure mentioned.

Now, it seems, another similar farce is about to be staged. If the majority should vote against the spending of $5000.00 for a new rink, it is only natural to assume, (judging from the last experience) that not only will the rink be built but likely at a cost considerably in excess of the $5000.00 figure. So why put the Town to the expense of an election? What's the use of voting, anyway?

It would be a joke were it not so serious, because just as sure as darkness follows light there is going to be an end some day to the steadily increasing expenditures of municipalities and governments with its resultant continually soaring taxation, and the jolt is likely to come much sooner than some people expect.

Why not leave the rink where it is? It is serving the purpose. Granted it isn't an ornament by any means, but financial conditions these days cannot afford ornaments.

Surely a suitable location can be found for the Memorial. What about the Band Stand site? Then there is the Fountain and Basin ground. Many think the erection of these foolish and extravagant waste. No matter where the Memorial is placed around there, the old Drill Shed still remains, and we can also say it is no ornament. But it also serves its purpose.

Conditions have reached a point where economy and retrenchment should be the watchwords.

COMMON SENSE.

NOTICE

The Council of the Town of Port Hope intend putting in an 18-inch sewer on Walton street, for storm water purposes. If the property owners on Walton street from Ontario street to the bridge wish to have this sewer put down at a lower depth so that they can get cellar drainage, it will be necessary for them to petition for same before the sixth day of May. By order, 284td Mayor T. B. Chalk.

Recommended Sewers

A communication was received from Mr. B. Meyers, who requested that the Board recommend to the Town Council that a sewer be laid in that section of the town between Dorset street on John to Augusta street on John, by way of Pine street. At the present time, a small four-inch tile serves four houses, and is constantly blocking and causing trouble.

The petition from the residents of Charles street, requesting proper sewer accommodation was also considered, and finally the Board decided to recommend that both of these sewers be built.

Force Ratepayers to Have Sewers
Dr. Dickinson believed that before the paving was done on Mill, Walton and Ridout streets, that all ratepayers should be compelled by a by-law to make sewer connections where such service was available. A special section of the Municipal Act provides for this action. Mayor Chalk stated that such a resolution would be brought in at this evening's Council meeting.

To Provide a Dump
Mr. Fielding arrived just as the Board began their discussion on the refuse disposal situation. He informed the members that certain swamp lands on the south side of Mill street, where the old curling rink used to stand, were being considered as dumping grounds.

Mayor Chalk suggested that the old quarry on Ontario street to the rear of Rosevear's coal yards be used, providing that the permission of the C.N.R. could be obtained. He is in communication at the present time with the line superintendent regarding the matter.

Mr. Fielding thought the place was too public, and piles of rubbish dumped there would certainly not add to the beauty of the "Prettiest Town in Canada."

Mr. Zealand arrived just as the Board were adjourning with another solution to the problem, and although nothing definite was done, dumping grounds of some sort are assured in the near future.

In the meantime signs will be placed at the foot of Hope street, strictly prohibiting the dumping of garbage there, or on the beach. This practice has entirely ruined the attractiveness of this place as a pleasure resort.

An account of $8 for printing was ordered to be paid.
