A TROUBLESOME MISGIVING

Streams of silent eloquence rushed through her brain, and the spirit which prompted her was closely akin to that of 'The New Sophistry.' Now and then, for a few seconds, she was smitten with a consciousness of extraordinary change in her habits of thought. She looked about her with wide, fearful eyes, and endeavoured to see things in the familiar aspect. As it with physical constraint her angry imagination again overcame her, until at length from the penumbra of sleep she passed into its profoundest gloom.

To wake when dawn was pale at the window. A choking odour reminded her that she had not extinguished the lamp, which must have gone out for lack of oil. She he would be here by eleven o'clock. Sidwell had learnt that her letter was put into his hands. She asked him to come at once, and nothing but a resolve not to meet her could delay him more than an hour or two.

At half-past ten the bell sounded. She was sitting in the library with her back turned to the door. When a voice announced 'Mr. Peak,' she did not at once rise, and with a feeling akin to terror she heard the footstep slowly approaching. It stopped at some distance from her; then, overcoming a weakness Barnato (real name Barnett Isaacs) which threatened to clog her as in and young Cecil Rhodes were recoga nightmare, she stood up and looked round.

Peak wore neither overcoat nor gloves, but otherwise was dressed in the usual way. As Sidwell fixed her eyes upon him he threw his hat into a chair and came a step or two nearer. Whether he had passed the night in sleep or vigil could not be determined; but his look was one of shame, and he did not hold himself so upright as was his wont.

'Will you come and sit down?' said Sidwell, pointing to a chair not far from that on which one of her hands rested.

He moved for ward, and was to pass near her, when Sidwell involuntarily held her hand to him. He took it and gazed into her face with a melancholy smile.

'What does it mean?' she asked, in a low voice.

He relinquished her fingers, which he had scarcely pressed, and stood with his arms behind his back.

'Oh, it's all quite true, ' was his reply, wearily spoken. 'What is true?'

'All that you have heard from our brother.

'All?-But how can you know what he has said?'

They looked at each other. Peak's ips were set as if in resistance of emotion, and a frown wrinkled his brows. Sidwell's gaze was one of fear and appeal.

A light shone in her eyes, and her lips quivered.

'Then,' she murmured, 'Buckland was not right in everything.' 'l understand. He wished you to believe that my love was as much a pretence as my religion?' 'He said that.'

As the car passed the bear the animal let in Rhodesia during the Matabele war ont a vicious swipe with its paw, which just caught the side of Mr. Shields' face with one claw, missing the eye, but making a nasty wound, which bled freely. The bear stood over six feet high, but was in poor condition.

SOME RHODES STORIES

TRAITS OF THE GREAT SOUTH AFRICAN PIONEER.

Barney Barnato Was the Napoleon and Rhodes the Wellington of the Diamond Fields In 1874-How the Founder of Rhodesia Bought a Pump Under Difficulties-Had No Hesitation In Changing His Views.

In the diamond fields young Barney nized in 1874 as the two ablest speculators. Sir Lewis Mitchell, in his biography of Rhodes, calls Barnato the Napoleon and Rhodes the Wellington of that rough community. Rhodes, judging by appearances, was still a shy and awkward man addicted to classical studies, his ambitions unknown. A competent observer de-scribed him as "a tall, gaunt youth, roughly dressed, coated with dust. ait ting moodily on a bucket, deaf to the chatter and rattle about him, his blue eyes fixed intently on his work or on some fabric of his brain.

Alfred Beit, of the same age as Rhodes, went to Kimberley from Hamburg as a diamond buyer in 1875. The two joined company in a wonderful career. They were the complement to each other. Sir Lewis Mitchell says, "The far-reaching aspirations of Rhodes were translated into accomplished facts by the intellectual and financial aid of his loyal friend. Their minds acted and reacted on one another, and although Rhodes was or-dinarily one of the most self-reliant of men, his phrase in great emer-gencies was 'What will Beit say?'"

There was plenty of hard life in Kimberley in the 70's. There was no railroad. Supplies, coming in ex wagons, were two months on the road, and were sold at iabulous prices. The diggers lived in tends or in houses made of packing cases. Canned meat was the food. Fever and dysentery made their ravages. It looked as though there would be no more dia-monds before the diggers came upon a supply that transcended the best hopes of the faithful. Rhodes at one time needed a pump to get the water out of the mines. The only pump at all within reach was the property of Mr. Devenish, a farmer, who watered his fields with it. Rhodes "He said, of course, that I had deceived you." "But in what? --Was there no truth in anything you said to me?" "To you I have spoken far more went to him again and again. He peration mentioned a monstrous sum. "I'll take that pump," said Rhodes. He bought it at the price named with-out a quiver. A Boer wagoner engaged to transport it. The going was bad. The Boer said that he must wait bad. The Boer said that he must wait till the weather moderated otherwise it would be the death of his oxen. "I will buy your oxen," said Rhodes. He had no money left, but he sai down by the roadside and wrote out a check with a lead pencil. "You are a good sort of fellow," said the Boer. He accepted the check without demur and put the oxen through. The nump was got to the mines in time. pump was got to the mines in time. Rhodes often spoke in praise of this trustful Boer. He called him one of nature's gentlemen, and always after-wards was willing to admit the good points of Boers.

There are many anecdotes illustrating the character of the empire-build-er in Sir Lewis Mitchell's volume. He was "an incomparable host, a delight-ful and affectionate friend." A MODERN NIMROD.

Sir Henry Seton-Karr Has a Long Record as a Big Game Hunter.

Sir Henry Seton-Karr has sailed on a big game and business tour in Rhodesia which will last until late in the year. He has been in the world for fifty-eight years, and has managed to see a fair portion of its surface and not a little of what lies immediately under it. The wandering taint, he will tell you, has always been strong in his Scottish blood. His father found home life too irksome at an early age, and entering the Indian Civil Service, rose to be commissioner at Baroda during the Mutiny fighting. Sir Henry was an under-graduate at Oxford when he brought down his first stag in Norway. Since then he has shot an immense variety of big game in many countries. Sir Henry, it may be mentioned, is no lover of Zoos. To kill an animal "clean" is not reprehensible. But to condemn a grizzly to solitary confinement for life in a small cage is, he declares, an extreme form of refined and civilized cruelly. "The saddest sight of the kind that I know in London is to watch the grizzly, his claws worn to the quick, restlessly pacing behind ten feet of iron bars; or to see the Golden Eagle, whose natural home is space, sitting in a cage, a lump of solitary misery. The eagla should be killed and stuffed. For the grizzly half an acre of well-fenced ground, piled with rocks and some trees, might faintly justify captivity, but not a ten foot den.

Sir Henry once claimed that he had discovered the Garden of Eden. He was ilon-hunting at the time, and one day in the course of his wanderings stumbled upon a paleolithic instrument. After a careful examination of it he came to the conclusion that he was standing in the veritable Garden of Eden where Adam partook of the forbidden fruit, and he suggested that it was within the bounds of possibility that in the collection of prehistoric articles which he uncarthed was the very spade Adam used. Sir Henry is probably the only man in England who can claim to be able to write with three pens at one -two in his right and one in his left.

Hick's Funniest Experience.

The popular English actor, who sailed for South Africa recently with equally popular wife, Miss Eilahis line Terriss, was interviewed some time ago by a Welsh reporter, when the following dialogue took place: "Do you know," said the actor, "I can tell I'm in a Welsh theatre by the rain coming through the rool. See the 'Leek'!" "How long have you been on the stage?" "I have ennoved the people for twenty four you been on the stage?" "I have annoyed the people for twenty-four years." "And may I ask your age, because the girls will be interested?" "Yes; I am forty." "What is your funniest experience?" "Being inter-viewed." "Anything else?" "Yes; I took my wife's part in The Dack I took my wife's part in 'The Dash-ing Little Duke' one afternoon, and as I was coming out to my cab to go to the Coliseum I was made up as Scrooge. A coster stood on the kerb, and he said, 'Law lumme, hasn't he aged !' Another time I drove up to the theatre in Dublin, and was hum-ming a tune when I got out. An old Irishwoman, who had failed to get in, heard me, and said, 'Begorra, if that is how he sings I am glad I didn't go in.'"

Plant Defies Mosquitoes.

Sir George Birdwood is convinced that certain sub-tropical basils keep away mosquitoes, and has advanced various proofs to show that they do so. Writing recently to state his be-lief in the powers of the plant, he remarked that one of the two facts of present pertinence is "the presence of the plant, set upon, or planted into, the four-horned altar within the forecourt, or the front garden, of every Hindu house. . . where every morning 'the mother of the house' is to be seen performing pradakshina, or the worship of the plant, by circumambulating it with the right hand always next to it-the while she over over again invokes the blessing and of the Lord Vishnu on 'the father of the house' and on 'the holy family' of their sons and daughters - that is, prays for less and less 'malaria' and more and more 'buonaria.' TENSION LESSENS

Veto Bill Crisis in England Is Not So Acute.

UNIONISTS GET TOGETHER

At Dinner To-night the Lansdowne Faction Will Meet the Followers of Lord Halsbury and a Compromise Is Expected - Parliament Bill Will Not Come Up In the Commons Until August 7.

London, Aug. 1 .- The political crisis over the veto bill has undergone a slight modification, as the Cabinet yesterday decided to postpone the re-appearance of the bill before the House of Commons until August 7.

Present anticipations point to the healing of the breach in the Unionist ranks. Lord Lansdowne and his fol-lowers, who favor the bill, and the Halsburyites, who are opposed to it, will meet to-night in full force at a complimentary dinner to the Unionist party's late whip, Sir Alexander Ack-land Head, who is now known as Lord St. Audries. At this dinner Mr. Balfour, the leader of the Opposition, is expected to make a speech in an effort to pave the way for a modus vivendi between the opposing sections of the party. As a matter of fact both sides appear to be tending to this direction. Lord Willoughby de Broke, who is or-ganizing the insurgents, yesterday for the first time admitted that his party had gained no accessions in strength. Lord Lansdowne last night issued a letter discountenancing the idea of any Unionist peers voting in the Government lobby for the veto bill. This belated decision on the part of Lord Lansdowne probably means that he has secured sufficient support to make the Halsburyites powerless against the votes of the Liberal peers, and that therefore there is no longer any necessity for Viscount St. Aldwyn to come to the Government's assistance. as it was runnored he would do by taking into the Government lobby sufficient Unionist peers to out vote the Halsburyites in case they challenged a division.

That the tension has lessened is shown by the fact that King George has decided to remain at Cowes for the rest of the week. There is still a strong belief in the lobbies of Parliament, however, that Premier Asquith, in order to guard against uprises, will nominate a batch of about fifty peers before again trusting the veto bill to the House of Lords.

Fourteen Killed In Riot.

El Oro. State of Mexico, Aug. 1.-In, repelling a mob of striking miners, who yesterday freed the prisoners in the jail, troops fired into the crowd, killing fourteen and wounding others. More than 4,000 men representing the underground forces of the Mexico and La Esparanza mines, are out. If these men should be joined by those in El Oro, the number of strikers would number 7,000. They demand higher wages.

One hundred soldiers were sent from the state capital to El Oro yesterday, afternoon. It is expected that 1,000 soldiers will be here to-day from the capital.

Ex-Shah Invades Persia.

Teheran, Persia, Aug. 1.-The Ex-Shah Mohammed Ali Marzi left Astrabad Sunday with an overwhelming force, and is now marching on Teher, an. There is much apprehension here that the ex-Shah's attempt to regain the throne will succeed. The Government is without power to suppress the Anarchistic conditions which prevail throughout the country.

837 Children Died.

Blight, Blight Canker, Pear Blight, er rest. Her head ached; all and others strictly local, has been rather prevalent and correspondingly destructive throughout the Counties of Durham and Northumberland this season. The disease seems te be but little understood by the majority of fruit growers in general and this article is written with the idea of giving some practical information which will effectually put a stop to its ravages if put to the test.

This disease, known as Pear Blight among pear growers, or twig blight on apples, is one which for nearly one hundred years has inhabited the North American continent.

As the heading indicates it is bacterial in nature, and therefore both a serious end persistent pest. It may attack the bark of the twig branch or trunk and may be also found on immature fruit.

On the pear trees the disease is more often found as body blight, while on apple trees it is usually and almost invariably found as twig blight, the coarse bark of the apple trunk affording more resistance to the progress of the bacteria than does the spongy bark of the pear tree. On the latter host the disease spreads very rapidly and a good sized tree may be wholly destroyed in less than one season, while in the apple tree the spreading is much slower and consequently the tree succumbs less quickly.

In the case of the twig blight the leaves become discolored, turn red or brown' shrivel up and die and remain attached to the tree for a considerable time.

It is spread by blossom inoculation or by aphids, the latter case occurring particularly in connection with water sprouts and suckers. The discoloration occurs in the latter stages of the disease and marks the progress of the disease to other fields.

In the trunk of the apple tree the worldly thoughts were repulsive, yet she could not dismiss them. She tried to repeat the prayers she had known since childhood, [but they were meaningless, and a sense of shame attached to their utterance.

When the first gleam of sun told her that it was past eight o'clock, she made an effort and rose.

At breakfast Mrs. Warricombe talked of the departure for London. She mentioned an early train; by getting ready as soon as the meal was over, they could easily reach the station in time. Sidwell made no direct reply and seemed to assent; but when they rose from the table, she said, nervously:

'I couldn't speak before the servants I wish to stay here till the afternoon.'

'Why, Sidwell?'

'I have asked Mr. Peak to come and see me this morning.'

Her mother knew that expostulation was useless, but could not refrain from a long harangue made up of warning and reproof.

'You have very little consideration for me,' was her final remark. 'Now we shan't get home till after dark, and of course my throat will be bad again.

Glad of the anti-climax, Sidwell rephed that the day was much warmer, and that with care no harm need come of the journey.

'It's easy to say that, Sidwell. I never knew you to behave so selfishly, never!'

'Don't be angry with me, mother You don't know how grieved I am to distress you so. I can't help it, dear; indeed I can't. Won't you sacrifice a few hours to put my mind at rest?'

Mrs. Warricombe once more gave expression to her outraged feelings. Sidwell could only listen silently with bent head.

Rhodes was once accused of changing his views rather hurriedly, "Yes," he said, "as hurriedly as I could, for I found I was wrong." In the later part of his life he said—"Every day I try to become humbler, but it is hard." A jest was made upon his sentimental attachment to the Boers "They were the Voortrekkers," he re-plied, "the real ploneers. They have always led the way. The Duke of Argyll's Wit.

To the writer Mr. J. Calvin Brown, the presiding genius at Earl's Court Exhibition, related the following story the other day during the course of an interview. On the opening day of the exhibition the Duke of Argyll asked Mr. Brown, who is an American, from what part of the States he came. "From Nebraska," replied Mr. Brown. The duke thought for a moment, and then replied, with a smile, "Oh, Nebraska; it is famous for its horizons, is it not?" Nebraska, of course, is one great plain. Mr. Brown, by the way, was being chaffbrown, by the way, was being chaff-ed a short time ago about being an American. "That I was born in Am-erica," he said, "was the fault of my parents; that I live in England is my own fault."

A Silent Duke.

The Duke of Devonshire, like his iorbears, has the reputation of being a man of action and few words. The Cavendishes, indeed, have always been noted for their taciturnity, as an old anecdote testifies. Two members of the family, generations since, when traveling to their home in the north, were shown, at an inn where they stayed for the night, into a room in which were three beds. Before get-ting into bed each in turn drew aside the curtains of the odd bed, peeped in, and retired without comment. Next lay, when they had ridden far from the inn, the one asked: "Did you see what was in that bed last night?' To which the other replied, laconically, "Yes." They had both seen a corpse in the third bed!

Wages In India.

Wages are not high in India. A native switchman on a railway and the native servant in a private family re-ceive 7 rupees, or about $1.90 a month. The farm hand receives much less, about 4 rupees, or $1.08 a month.

Montreal, Aug. 1 .- For the month of July the total deaths numbered 1,175, and of these 837 deaths were those of children under five years of age, is the effect of a report presented yesterday at the City Hall. The health officials say that this showing is the worst in the history of the city.

Conservatives Avoid Reciprocity Issue in Campaign.

TO ATTACK HON. MR. OLIVER ,

Word Goes Out to the Opposition Press to Make-Election Fight One of General Attack on the Administration As In the Last Appeal to the Country - To Exploit Worn-Out Libels In the Press.

Ottawa, Aug. 1 .- Outside of the very evident and absolute confidence of the Liberals as compared with the frankly expressed doubt and hesitancy of the Conservatives in regard to the result of the coming election, the most mark-ed development of the situation so far is the very palpable attempt of the Opposition to escape making reci-procity the real issue of the campaign, to drag in extraneous issues, and to run the fight along the usual lines of insinuation and scandal-mongering. Mr. Borden's election manifesto Sunday night, with its significant lack of emphasis on the reciprocity question and its over-emphasis on the insinu-ations against Hon. Mr. Oliver, is a first indication of this. The word went out yesterday to the Opposition press to make the whole administration of the Government the object of attack, and the old scandals which failed of making any impression on the country in the campaign of 1908 are to be vigorously re-exploited in the plat-form, press and party literature propaganda.

Murphy May Be Opposed.

Ottawa, Aug. 1.-Louis Cousineau, a Hull barrister, may run in the Nationalist interests in Wright County, in opposition to C. B. Major. Hon. Charles Murphy may be opposed in the Russell Liberal convention by George McLaurin, an Ottawa barrister, who is a resident of the county. McLaurin was the Liberal nominee at the last general election. but stepped down to give the then new Secretary of State a safe seat. Hon. Robert Rogers Undecided.

Montreal, Aug. 1.-Hon. Robert Rogers of Manitoba arrived in this city last night, after having had a conversation with R. L. Borden in Ot. tawa. He intimated that he would shortly leave the provincial for the federal arena, and that if the Conservatives won the next elections he would be found on the Treasury benches. He stated that if the re-distribution bill had been passed be-fore dissolution he would have accepted a Manitoba nomination for Ottawa, but that at present he did not know exactly what position he would take. This depended largely upon the future conference with Premier Roblin. He will return to Manitoba immediately to take part in the Conservative conventions.

J. Nunan Will Oppose Paterson.

Brantford, Aug. 1 .- Brantford Conservatives will nominate a candidate on Aug. 12 for the Dominion election. In all likelihood W. F. Cockshutt will be the choice of the party. Rumor has it that Lloyd Harris, the sitting member, who strongly opposed the reciprocity pact, will receive the Liberal nomination.

In Brant constituency J. Nunan, a successful farmer, is slated to oppose Hon. William Paterson.

POKER GAME SEIZED. Police In Woodstock Drop In on a Quiet Hand of "Draw."

Woodstock, Aug. 1 .- Chief of Police Killing, accompanied by Constable Robertson of the city police force, paid an early morning visit to a Dundas street room about 1.30 yesterday morning and disturbed a quiet game of poker that had been started on Sat-urday evening, and which had extend-ed into the Sabbath. As a result the names of fourteen men who were in the room at the time, and some of where are prominent business men of the city were taken, and they in all probability will be asked to appear before the magistrate at an early date.

The raid by the police was entirely unexpected, and resulted in considerable consternation to the members of the party. The police are not talk-ing for publication for some reason or other, but it is understood that quite a little layout was confiscated, in-cluding some of the tell-tale chips. The loose change on the table was gathered in by the players.

The raid was carefully planned by Chief Killing, who had received a tip that there was a joint in operation, and the officers effected their entrance to the room by creeping up the back stairs in their stocking feet.

REBELS AT CAPITAL.

Haitian Insurgents Are Close on the President.

Port-au-Prince, Haiti, Aug. 1 .- Some excitement was caused here yesterday by an unfounded report of the embarkation of President Simon, who on the contrary has decided to resist the revolutionists to the last. The Gov-ernment has organized a defence of the capital. The public continues alarmed, and awaits with impatience the announced coming of ships of war representing the different nations. Gabried Sylvain, a cousin of the Minister of the Interior, was yester-day made prefect of police in succes-sion to Ferdinand, who after being accused of conspiring in the interests of Gen. Firmin, one of the revolutionary leaders, sought refuge in the French legation to avoid arrest. During the night several persons attempted incendiarism, but were surprised and fired upon by a military patrol, un-der command of Minister Sylvain. The "17 Decembre" arrived here yesterday. The position of the revolutionists remains unchanged, their forces being held chiefly to the north of the city. Sunday the President ap-peared in the streets for the purpose of calming and re-assuring the populace.

Husband and Child Missing.

Montreal, Aug. 1 .- Her husband gone and her 21-2-year-old son also vanished, Mrs. Charles O'Neill of 311 Cadieux street, is crushed under a double load of sorrow. A week ago Charles O'Neill, vendor of small wares, was lost to sight. On Saturday afternoon the little son beg-ged a penny to buy ice cream. He toddled off to make the purchase and has not been seen since.

Two or three days after her husband had failed to return, Mrs. O'Neill re-ceived word from Kingston that her husband was being detained in that city. She communicated with the municipal authorities, but her letter could hardly have left the city when she received another from Toronto, stating that her wandering husband was there, also under detention.

Since then the distracted woman has had no word which might give her a clue as to the whereabouts of her husband, whom she hopes will return to help her seek her baby.

Toronto Murder Laid at Door of Man Named Griccio.

HAD QUARREL WITH TARRO

Italian Who Is Wanted For Daylight Outrage Is Said to Have Been Tarro's Rival For a Woman-Another Story Is That They Had Trouble Over Money Matters - Police Are Watching Every Point.

Toronto, Aug. 1.-A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Frank Griccio on a charge of murdering Frank Tarro at the corner of Front and Church streets on Sunday afternoon. Griccio for the past two years has lived with a young French wo-man named Rosa Brunet at 175 Jarvis street, who gave evidence at the in-quest last evening to the effect that Griccio and Tarro had quarreled on more than one occasion, and that he carried a revolver of 38 calibre because he feared a man whom he did not Griccio has been in the hands of the police before on a charge of havng stolen property.

It is said that the trouble was due to money matters, and that Tarro was deeply in debt to the accused. Yet another story is to the effect that a woman is at the bottom of the case, and that Griccio and Tarro were rivals.

It appears that Tarro and Griccio set out from the restaurant on York street to meet in a duel, but changed their minds and returned to the board-ing house good friends. They started out again, and the next heard of them at the York street house was that Tarro had been murdered.

So far there is no trace of Griccio, though fifty telegrams and pamphlets have been sent broadcast by the detective department. Word has been sent to nearly every place where it is thought the criminal might take refuge.

All last night the police and detective force was keeping a strict watch of the exits from the city and a constant watch has been kept on some Italian houses where it was thought the assassin might be concealed. The disappearance of Griccio, the Sherbrooke. The St. Johns' fire brigade was the first on the scene and did good work checking the fire on Main street, near the Montcalm Hoter on one side of the street and D. B. Meigs' private residence on the other side. The burnt area covers from the postoffice down to the river on both sides of Depot street, and from the Montcalm Hotel on the south side of Main street to St. Vincent street, and from D. B. Meigs' residence on the north side of the street to the bridge. The Eastern Township Bank build-ing, which was in the burnt district, is the only building standing, and has not been damaged to any great ex-tent. On arrival of the Montreal and Sherbrooke fire engines the progress of the fire was soon stopped and it | was under control at 4 a.m.

Early Closing Figures. Montreal, Aug. 1.—Aiter a lengthy report was presented to the authorities yesterday when Chief of Police Campeau produced a document and statis-tics to show that since the laws for earlier closing of saloons went into effect, May 1, drunkenness had been far more prevalent in Montreal than ever before.

For example, figures for June. showed five times the number of cases of drunkenness calling for police inter-vention this June were double those requiring similar attention in June, 1910

The blow was somewhat softened. however, by the statement that police cases in general had somewhat increased in number, and that this was doubtless due to the increase in the population of the city.

Duties Removed From Coal.

Ottawa, Aug. 1 .- With a view to relieving the situation as it has developed in the Canadian west in consequence of the prolonged cessation of operations at the coal mines in south! ern British Columbia and Alberta, an order-in-council was passed by the Government yesterday, providing that on and after Aug. 7 next, duties should be removed on all coal imported into Canada at the ports on the southern frontier west of Sault Ste. Marie, for consumption in British Columbia (east of the 122nd meridian of longitude), and in the Provinces of Alberta, Sas-katchewan and Manitoba.

The countess sailed alone. The Earl was compelled to forego the trip in order that he may be present to help pass the veto bill through the House of Lords. The fact that he holds a political appointment as mas-ter-of-the-horse in the King's house-hold obligates him to the Government.

She called at the restaurant in York street, and the only reply given by the numerous men she enquired of was that he had not been seen. She returned to her room on Jarvis street and was not informed of the murder until a detective arrived in the afternoon and had her accompany him to Court street station.

"He (Graccio) always carried a revolver," said Rosa Brunet, at the in-quest. He told me that there was one man in Toronto that he was afraid of, and that it was better to shoot him than to be shot. He was afraid that he would be shot in the back some day.

About three weeks ago he had some words with Tarro, but nothing to fight about. After that the two were good friends. Tarro's brother was a particular friend of Griccio.

"I last saw Griccio about 11 o'clock Sunday morning," she stated. "He had been with me all night, and left me to go to an Italian restaurant at 160 York street, where he always ate. I always eat at an American restaurant. He was dressed in a blue suit, wearing a black Christie and tan shoes.
