

DECORATION DAY

The annual ceremony of decorating the graves of their departed brethren will be carried out by the Oddfellows on Sunday next. It promises to be one of the largest and best parades yet held. The Canton (Patriarchs Militant) of Belleville, are expected to be here, and invitations have been sent to lodges in Peterboro, Millbrook, Cobourg, Bowmanville and Orono to be present. A good band will furnish appropriate music. There are 107 graves to be decorated in the Union and Welcome cemeteries, and every Oddfellow is asked to bring one or more bouquets of flowers. If the weatherman will furnish a day like last Sunday a most profitable service will be held. Rev. Mr. Hornsby of the Presbyterian Church, will give the address.

Auction sale of western horses, Mr. Duncan Logie will sell by public auction, at the Albion Hotel, Cobourg, on Tuesday, August 7th. A carload of western horses, ranging from two to five years, mostly Clydes, all halter broken. Terms—6 months' credit with interest at 6 per cent per annum. Sale at 1 o'clock. J. H. Wilson, Auctioneer.

Sunday afternoon, the members of Durham Lodge, No 78, I. O. O. F. will conduct the 51st annual decoration of the graves of their deceased brethren at the Union and Welcome Cemeteries and as usual a large number of the fraternity will take part in the annual beautiful event.

The Oddfellows are asked to meet at the lodge rooms on Walton street at 2.30 Sunday afternoon and the local order of the British Empire Service League will also take part in the parade. Cobourg Klitties Band under the direction of Bandmaster Goldring will lead the procession. The service at the Cemetery is at 3.15 p.m.

BARN BURNED AT GARDEN HILL

Barn Owned by Harvey Gardiner Struck by Lightning Friday Afternoon

When an electrical storm passed over the district north of Port Hope Friday afternoon, the frame barn situated on the farm of Harvey Gardiner, northwest of Garden Hill, ten miles north of Port Hope, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground.

The barn was a total loss and a quantity of hay and other goods were destroyed in the fire. Ways marked by a considerable degree of impressiveness and following the singing of the hymn "Unto the Hills" prayer will be offered and the band will play a selection.

The address of the afternoon will be given by Rev. J. G. Hornsby, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church. The graves of the departed brethren will then be decorated and after the hymn "Abide With Me," the Doxology, Prayer and Benediction will bring the service to a close. Following is the list of graves to be decorated:

SEVERE STORM VISITS DISTRICT

Torrential Downpour is Accompanied by Much Lightning and Thunder

The full fury of the storm which has been brewing over the Great Lakes for the last three days was loosed upon Port Hope and vicinity late Friday afternoon and evening. For many hours Port Hope winced beneath the lash of the elements.

Following each other with seeming renewed vigor the series of storms which circled over Port Hope and surrounding district were really all a part of a great storm which has been centred over the Great Lakes for the past three days, according to officials of the Toronto Meteorological Bureau. While they said that they did not believe that records either for rainfall or for the severity of the electrical storm had been established, the storm had been unusually long duration.

Perhaps the heaviest rainfall of the day fell at Port Hope at ten-thirty Friday evening when the rain pelted down in torrents. Streams of water poured down Walton Street and the gutters were filled to overflowing.

Vivid flashes of lightning and loud peals of thunder accompanied the rain and at times the entire sky was lighted. Everywhere motorists found their troubles. Wind, rain, and the dazzle from the flashes of lightning made motoring slow.

Late last night the power was cut off for a brief period and telegraphic service was seriously hampered. The Bell Telephone service in Port Hope was not seriously demoralized and although the long distance lines were "out" for a time, only two local phones were crippled.

Damage was done in this vicinity when two cows were killed north of Port Hope by lightning and a frame barn burned at Garden Hill. No heavy damage was wrought in Port Hope.

Damage At Oshawa

Fire late Friday afternoon totally destroyed a barn and season's crop of hay after being struck by lightning during a severe electric storm at Oshawa. There was no one at home at the time and neighbors sent in an alarm to Oshawa Fire Department, which responded, despite the fact that the blaze was outside the city limits. The building was in flames when the firemen arrived but they succeeded in saving a number of pigs and a horse. The remainder of the live stock was out in a field. The loss will amount to about $800, which, it is understood, was not protected by insurance.

The third severe electric storm in as many days visited Oshawa Friday afternoon and while practically no damage was reported, the rain, which reached almost cloudburst proportions flooded a number of cellars in the business section and on several streets the water reached a level as high as the hubs of motor cars. So heavy was the downpour that catch basins were unable to carry the water away.

Joseph Monte of Toronto was fined $10 and costs by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell in local traffic court for speeding in Hope Township. John Zarafonites of Welland; T. A. McCauley of Toronto; W. K. McKinnon Co., Toronto and Jas. Adams, Jr., of Toronto, all paid $5 and costs for speeding over intersections.

PROFIT GREATLY BY LAST SWIM

Arrangements For 1928 Marathons to be Made in Complete Way

More than a quarter of a million people are expected to attend each of the Wrigley marathon swims at the Canadian National Exhibition on August 29 and September 5. Exhibition officials, preparing for the races which will decide the world's professional swimming championship, are making arrangements for a crowd of 500,000 on the two days.

In 1927, the paid attendance to the Exhibition on the day of the swim was 222,000. This year the mass of people viewing the marathons is expected to be even larger. Changes in the rules governing the contests have been introduced with the comfort of the crowds in mind. Last year the course stretched two miles out in the lake which made the competitors invisible to the watchers on shore after they had passed out beyond the sea wall.

The distance has been shortened for this year's races to 10 miles for the first event, in which only women will compete, and 15 miles for the title event in which all men and the five best women will be entered. While the exact course has not been finally laid out it will be much smaller than the 7 mile triangle of last year with the result that the swimmers will be almost constantly in view from the mile and a half sea wall and sloping lawns behind, which provide a natural grandstand for thousands upon thousands of spectators.

Every swimmer in the race will be accompanied by a boat placarded with the entrant's number in figures two or three feet high. These can easily be read from shore and the competitor's identity known at once. In addition, a battery of loud speakers in the park will be used to give a running account of the race as it progresses and these can be heard clearly for almost a quarter of a mile. This feature, it is understood, will be handled as it was last year when an announcer on the press boat broadcasts the story of the swim through a shortwave transmitting set. This was picked up by a receiver on shore and sent out through the loud speakers and a number of radio stations. Between 600 and 1,000 officials will be required to handle the races, including policemen, medical attendants and those in direct charge. At every turn in the course a crew of scorers will be stationed to mark the time of each swimmer as he passes. With each entrant is an official observer who has power to disqualify his competitor for any infraction of the rules. In the boat, too, is an official and the swimmer's manager or coach. Observers will not be assigned to their boats until a few minutes before the races start and will be changed two or three times during the day, each one filing a written report as he comes ashore.

A few days before the races, all athletes will be examined by a squad of doctors and each competitor must present his medical certificate before he will be allowed to take his position at the starting point.

As in 1927, the swimmers will start from a line of barges anchored between the shore and the sea wall and then race the full length of Exhibition Park in direct view of the thousands in the crowds.

Last year, 299 entrants took to the water. Some, however, were more optimistic than able and two of them shouted for help before 500 yards of the 21 mile grind had been completed. It will be the endeavor of the Exhibition officials to eliminate this type of entrant as far as is compatible with fairness. A large Canadian entry list is sought but the main idea will be to cut the total number and make the battle as close as possible.

Already upwards of 200 swimmers are on the entry lists, which close on August 15. They represent 22 nationalities. There is, this year an unusually heavy representation from Quebec and from Northern Ontario as well as Australia.

A purse of $15,000 is to be distributed to competitors in the women's race, $10,000 going to the winner and the remainder being split between the next four to finish the 10 mile stretch.

These five women prize winners, along with the men, start a week later in the 15 mile grind. Here, the first place award is $25,000, with $10,000 being divided between the five finishing behind the leader.

He had hoped that night that she might one day love him. Since then her contemptuous mention of him as the "music-master" had thrown him into despair, made him quarrel with his life and all that it held of hope and promise.

"I wish I could make a fortune—a rapid, splendid fortune," he said, feverishly, as he threw himself upon the bed in his sleeping-room. "Money rules the whole world. Now, if I had half a million pounds English, I would buy a splendid estate and a Spanish title, and I would go to this English baronet and ask for his daughter's hand. They might laugh at the title without the fortune, or at the fortune without the title; but if I had both, if—"

His head, resting on the soft pillow, ceased to throb, and he dropped into an uneasy sleep. Presently a fearsome dream swooped down upon him, like an eagle upon a tired lamb, and carried his soul away into mystical land of shadows, omens, retrospects, long-forgotten times, places, persons, things.

CHAPTER XVI

Louis thought that he stood as a child by the side of the green hillock that marked his mother's grave in an English country church-yard. The moon was glimmering between the branches of a great black yew-tree that grew near the sunken porch of the small, old-world edifice which dated from the thirteenth century, and had a history connected with the wars and troublous times of the past. Louis remembered the scene and all its details; he remembered his longing desire that his sleeping mother below could hear and answer him as he began to tell them of the cruelties of his so-called guardians; and while he sobbed and related his tale, as he remembered having done in reality, there was a sudden sound in the air, such a strange sound—it must have been suggested by that sound in the streets last night—the voices, tramping feet, and awful cries of the crowd hastening toward the fire. But this noise was different; it came near, near, nearer. Presently he saw the whole church-yard swarming with dogs.

He had never seen an English fox-hunt since he was nine years old; but he well remembered what the pack of some neighboring squire had been like in those days. He had often met them scampering along the country lanes, their noses close to the earth, a pack of some forty-five dogs or so, belonging to a Sir Philip Harrowfield. Now these dogs of his dream outnumbered the hounds of his memory by several hundreds, or even thousands (so it seemed to him.) They swarmed all over the church-yard; they covered every inch of ground; they stood upon the graves and clambered over the tombstones; they even passed (those phantom dogs) as no living dogs could have done, over the railings that inclosed family vaults; they crowded about Louis, where he knelt by the side of his mother's grave, and looked at him as with beseeching, human eyes. Then they began, as with one consent, to scratch up the ground, uttering the while long, sharp cries. He watched them with a strange, dull wonderment, not at all like the intensity of waking curiosity; and then he saw before him, lying right on that humble hillock of his mother's grave, a black, oblong leathern case.

He recognized it in an instant. It was the case which had lain by the side of the dead man in ragged garb and with villainous face, whose body had fallen close to the window of the burning theater when he had entered by that packet into his pocket, thinking it might be of value to some body, and then, amid the horror and hurry of the scene that followed, he had utterly forgotten all about it.

He woke up now, with a violent start, from his unrefreshing sleep, and that dream of swarming dogs, suggested, as he thought, by the living human crowds in the streets, and the terrible heaps of dead whom he had seen lying in confusion on the staircase.

He awoke, and then he thought he would examine the black leathern case. He went to his coat, his evening-coat, into the breast-pocket of which he had thrust the leathern case in his wild haste. The coat, torn almost to shreds, stained, dirt, ruined, hung on a hook in his clothes closet. The packet was within it. He took it out. It felt hard—too hard to contain merely papers. To whom had it belonged? and why had he dreamed about it?

There it was, exactly as in his odd vision he had seen it lying upon the well-remembered hillock of his mother's grave, where he had so often knelt and wept in the days of his most miserable childhood. Could this packet or case of black leather in any way concern him? If he opened it, might he not find something? something concerning himself? something which would give him a clue to the mystery which surrounded his birth?—papers? letters? the marriage certificate of his parents—if such a document had ever existed?

FINE HOLIDAY SHOW AT ROYAL

The management of the Royal Theatre have always made it a rule to book for a holiday date a picture that will appeal to the whole family, and it looks as though they have been even more successful than usual in connection with Civic holiday, for which the feature will be "Sally in Our Alley." It is a delightful photoplay starring Shirley Mason, who made such a hit in "Sweet Rosie O'Grady" in fact theatre managers report it to be one of the most pleasing photoplays of the season.

INCREASE SHOWN IN NUMBER OF LOCAL TELEPHONES

During Last Five Years, Increase of 215 Telephones Made in Port Hope

While discussing world telephone growth with a representative of the Guide today, Mr. T. E. McDonald, Manager of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada here, pointed out the local contribution which has been made to Canada's total. During the past five years the number of telephones in service in Port Hope has increased by 215. The total

INTOXICATED DRIVER GETS 15 DAYS IN COBourg JAIL

Joseph Conroy Was Involved in Accident on Highway West of Here Friday Night—He Was Also Assessed Costs of Court and the Operator's License Suspended Two Months.

Joseph Conroy of Oshawa was sentenced to fifteen days imprisonment at the Counties jail at Cobourg when he was arraigned in court here this morning on a charge of driving a car while intoxicated. Accused figured in an accident on the Provincial Highway west of Port Hope Friday night. His operator's license was also suspended for two months as well as being assessed the costs of the court amounting to $11.

A plea of guilty was entered following the reading of the charge and the accused told of obtaining some very potent wine at a friend's house in Oshawa before leaving. He was driving another man's car, which was practically demolished.

number of instruments connected with the local exchange is 875.

Statistics of telephone development and expansion, gathered from official sources, shed an interesting light on the world's appreciation of the benefits of telephone service. This data has been carefully compiled by statisticians of the Bell Company and is completed up to Jan. 1st, 1927.

On that date the world had in service 29,378,480 telephones of which number 8,080,642 or 27 per cent., were in Europe; 17,746,168 or 60 per cent. in the United States; and the remaining 13 per cent in other countries. The total increase over last year is 1,594,467 telephones.

Canada's development of 21.6 telephones per 100 population is an increase over 1926, and is second only to the United States with a ratio of 15.3. New Zealand has 9.5 calculated up to March 31, 1927, and is closely followed by Denmark with 9.2; Sweden has 7.4; Australia 6.7; Hawaii 6.5; and Norway 6.3. Germany has only .09 telephones per 100 persons, and Great Britain and Northern Ireland only .07.

Strangled with Asthma is the only expression that seems to convey what is endured from an attack of this trouble. The relief from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there comes comfort and rest. Breathing becomes normal and the bronchial tubes completely cleared. This unequalled remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

8 MEN KILLED AT SAME LOCK

Three Years Ago Tragedy Occurred Where Eight Men Lost Their Lives Wednesday

1925, eight workmen of the firm of Peter Lyall, lost their lives when a shackle broke as a huge platform was being moved to a new location. This coincidence was commented upon by officials who recalled the tragedy of three years ago.

A large wooden platform was erected to accommodate a cement mixer and were placed on four sides to drain the material into the construction below.

completed and workmen were called to move the platform. It was decided to slide the construction into its new position and to prevent it gaining too great momentum, a tackle was securely fastened. Just after the great not work had started to move off, a snap shackle gave way and the platform toppled over.

Workmen were carried down or pinned beneath the debris and eight lives were lost. Injuries were suffered by several others.

Leafs Idle

With a five-game lead to protect them, and their nearest rivals, the Montreal Royals fading rapidly prospects are bright that the Leafs will retain this advantage and eventually win the International League pennant. For a long time supporters of the Toronto team dared not talk about a championship, but recent events have shown that the O'Haras rated as the class of the league, are just a bit too strong for the opposition.

Canada's double sculls crew, Joe Wright Jr., and Jack Guest of the Argonaut Rowing Club, Toronto, defeated Cox and Pieterse, the Holland crew in their preliminary heat at the Olympic regatta by three lengths Friday.

The time for the 2000 metre course on the Sloten Canal was 7 minutes and 45 seconds.

This was the third victory for Canada in the preliminary heats of the regatta. In the singles Thursday Wright, winner of the Diamond Sculls at the English Henley regatta, eliminated D. H. F. Gunterby of Holland and the Argonaut crew defeated Denmark in the eights.

Leaping from bridge into Ohio River, 50 feet below, Mrs. C. Mowery was rescued by two men at Cincinnati.

CAR DEMOLISHED; DRIVER UNHURT

Intoxicated Driver Lands in Ditch at Foot of Roseberry Hill Friday Night

Joseph Conroy, of 115 Barrie street, Oshawa, was lucky to escape with his life when he lost control of the touring car in which he was proceeding east and it turned over in the ditch at the foot of Roseberry Hill.

Around eight o'clock last evening it was noticed that the driver of a Star touring car stopping in Newcastle was in no fit condition to be behind the wheel and as Constable J. Garroth and others were about to prevent him from proceeding he pulled away so quickly that no one was able to stop him. He proceeded east at a high rate of speed and just east of Roseberry Hill opposite Davison's Gasoline Station he lost control of the car which plunged into the ditch on the north side of the Highway throwing him clear.

The first man to arrive, attracted by the sound of the smash held the man until further assistance arrived. Provincial Constable H. Storey who just happened along on his way to Cobourg took Conroy in charge and brought him to Port Hope where he was placed under the clock to do time for the night. He appeared in local court this morning.

The car, which was brought into Bailey Bros. Garage, is practically a total wreck having had three wheels, top, steering wheel and lights torn off, fenders bent, glass broken and various other ills too numerous to mention.

THE HIGHWAYS OF BUYING

"Follow the highway markings and you can't go wrong." . . . That's the advice the Automobile Club gives you before starting on a motor trip. You follow the well-known, well-marked roads. And you reach your destination the safest, most comfortable way.

Why not follow the same rule in your shopping? Why not stick to the "highways of buying?" They have been just as carefully plotted and are just as carefully marked as the great motor roads you've come to depend on. Marked by the trade-marks of reliable, advertised products.

The next time you go shopping follow these "highways." Before you start, look through the advertisements in these columns. Pick out the products you want. Notice the names and trade marks that identify them. And then ask for them by name.

The advertisements are the sign-posts to guide you to the best merchandise.

Of the $38,000,000 in gold mined throughout Canada in 1927, $33,000,000 came from Ontario. This is a distinct reminder of the pre-eminence which Ontario enjoys in the gold mining industry, and with new camps being opened quite frequently the yield is bound to become even greater in the years that are to come.

Our corner friend in speaking to Old Probs last night said, "Oh dry up and give 'em a chance to finish the pavement between here and Bewdley." We hope he was listening.

Did you notice the most unusual lighting effect about seven o'clock last night? Dark heavy clouds with one opening, let the sun light the landscape in a beautiful amber shade.
