COUNCIL STAY AT PEMBROKE

Election Warrant Withdrawn Following Word From Toronto

It is a case of "Off again, on again," with the Pembroke Town Council. After a warrant had been issued calling for a new election, due to the fact that the members, with the exception of Councillor Buske, had not taken their oath of office within the time limit provided by statute, it has been learned on the authority of the Attorney-General of Ontario that an election is not necessary.

A telegram was received by W. H. Williams, K.C., Town Solicitor, from Attorney-General W. H. Price, read: "Government intends introducing legislation that will remedy your council default, making an election necessary." On receipt of this information, Clerk Treasurer D. W. Blakely immediately withdrew his warrant, and the council will continue in office.

KEATING GHOST STILL AT LARGE

Bad Roads Prevent Prof. P. C. McKenna From Investigating Spook

The ghost of the Keating household at Campbellford still exercises a weird spell. Its drawing power was sufficient to take six people in two motor cars over thirty miles of snow and ice swept roads yesterday in an effort to reach the mysterious house but its magic spell failed just about seven miles short of a finish and the party was forced to abandon the attempt and return to town without discovering the mysterious source of the knockings and odors, and strange sights, that have kept the Trentside town agog for several weeks past.

Last week, the Keatings appealed to Professor P. C. McKenna, the palmist and phrenologist, who is at present staying at the Grand Hotel at Peterboro. They wrote asking him to give them some information relative to the disturbances in their home and to settle the question as to whether natural gas and oil or an unearthly guest, was the cause of the visitations.

Professor McKenna, firmly believing that he can give a correct answer once on the premises, set out yesterday morning about ten o'clock to make the journey to Campbellford.

About seven miles from the destination the leading car was ditched in the heavy snow and an hour was spent in getting it out. After firm assurances from district residents that it would be absolutely impossible to proceed farther by motor on account of the increasingly difficult condition of the roads, the party returned to Peterboro, arriving five hours after the start had been made.

However, another attempt to reach the house, this time by train, will be made by Professor McKenna, later in the week.

FRANCHISE IS EXTENDED

Baldwin Announces Women 21 Or Over Will Vote Next Election

That there will be no general election this year and that the bill extending the franchise to women 21 years of age and more will be passed this year and more will be passed are announcements made by ministers in both houses of parliament following the state opening by the king.

It was added that the bill would provide that the new class of women voters may vote at the next general election—which must be held before November, 1929. At present women are unable to cast their ballots until they reach the age of 30.

Mr. Baldwin also indicated an intention to prorogue the present session of parliament in July and reopen it for its last session in November.

It was also announced in both Houses that Sir Austen Chamberlain foreign secretary, would make a statement on Anglo American arbitration negotiations; that in the matter of arbitration the government must carry with it the support of the dominions; and that there would be no change whatever in the future British building program which would go on as announced.

It was also stated that reform of the House of Lords would be further considered before the end of the present parliament.

CAR STOLEN BUT WAS FOUND LATER

Thieves Steal George Morris' Car and Crash Into Tree

Unknown thieves stole a McLaughlin-Buick sedan owned by George Morris of Oshawa while parked at the corner of Walton and Cavan streets shortly after ten o'clock on Thursday night. The car was later found at the foot of South street in a damaged condition, but no trace of the thieves could be found.

A few minutes after ten o'clock, Mrs. W. Trawin, who resides on South street heard a resounding crash. On investigating the matter, she saw the car at the foot of the lot opposite Chalk's Carriage Works and noticed two girls and a man fleeing from the car.

It is thought that the driver of the car attempted to turn the corner and skidded off the road. The car collided with an apple tree, smashing it off like matchwood. The sedan sustained a damaged radiator and a badly shattered fender. Night Constable Wm. Harvey investigated the affair but as yet the apprehension of the thieves has not been made.

MORE TREASURES FOUND IN TOMB

Flotilla of Little Boats in Third Chamber—Report On Tutankhamen Discoveries is Issued

A full report by Howard Carter, who has had entire charge of exploring the tomb of King Tutankhamen, of the past season's work in clearing the third and fourth chambers has been made public. Further work on the tomb has been suspended, as it is now open to the public.

Among the interesting discoveries in the third chamber was a flotilla of 18 boats, a survival of an ancient custom of providing the dead with transport to heaven in order to render them independent of Charon's services. (Charon, crochety and an obdurate ferryman of the Styx river of the dead, was a character of Roman and Greek mythology, but is believed to have been of Egyptian origin.)

Carved Human Figures
 Another discovery was a number of beautifully carved human figures to serve as substitutes for the deceased in the event that Osiris, divine king of the dead, imposed tasks of penitence upon the new arrivals, perhaps unfitting the dignity of an earthly king.

PRESENTATION TO W. S. BLETCHER

Importers of Port Hope Present Former Collector With Arm Chair

Mr. W. S. Bletcher, formerly collector of customs of this port, who has been granted six months leave of absence by the department had the surprise of his life Thursday night upon opening his door. He found Mr. J. C. Westaway and Mr. W. Haskill, who carried into the house a very handsome arm chair and a magnificent box of flowers. The chair was presented on behalf of the principal importers of Port Hope and the address read as follows:

To show our respect and esteem to one who has at all times served us well, we, the undersigned, ask you to accept this chair and sincerely hope you may be spared many years to enjoy the same."

The flowers were accompanied by a card on which was inscribed: "Best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Bletcher."

The general public will heartily endorse the address and will join in the good wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Bletcher. Everyone has ever found Mr. Bletcher consistent in the discharge of his duty, careful of the interests of the department of customs, and at the same time, kind and courteous to all having business to transact in his office.

Mr. Bletcher's feelings entirely overcame him at this evidence by his fellow citizens and he wished us to express his great appreciation of this evidence of esteem from his fellow townsmen.

GUIDE RIDES IN NEW FORD SEDAN

No Skidding Or Swaying And No Bumps Felt on Rough Ground

A Guide reporter was extended the privilege by the Stephenson Motor Sales this morning when an invitation was given for a ride in a shining, Ford sedan, Henry's latest product. To anyone who has not ridden in the new Ford, a thorough appreciation of its riding qualities of the car cannot be enjoyed. The car is a sweet job.

People down town this morning marvelled at the new car as it was driven up Walton street. They saw a shining, long hung, beautiful paint job of somewhat continental lines and many had not the faintest idea that they were gazing at the new Ford.

Starting at Stephenson's Motor Sales, the driver and three passengers were given a ride about town and each one was high in his praise for the new car.

Gracefully ascending the snow-encrusted Ward Street to a pleasing hum of the engine, the sedan took it in high at twenty miles an hour. Proceeding along Ward street, the driver drove up the College Hill without a quiver. Slowing down to twenty five miles an hour, the driver stepped on the pedal which controls the four-wheel brakes. It was as if some invisible hand had reached out and clutched the vehicle. The car was not equipped with chains, and came to a dead stop without a skid on the slippery road within fifteen feet.

DRIVES AROUND PARK

In a trice the car sped up the hill and was given its acid test when the driver put the car over the bumps in amongst the towering pines up the Town Park hill. The sedan navigated the grassy untravelled bumps with the gracefulness of a swan. Without a jolt and without a sway, the sedan was driven around through the trees at an even speed. The shock absorbers of the car worked to perfection and the passengers derived every pleasure as if motoring on the level.

A sharp turn to the left and one to the right, over little hills and valleys, the car never varied from its course. We reached for something to hold on to in order to escape damaged heads from the roof. There was nothing to clutch and then came the realization that with the motor car plunging like a broncho, the passengers were riding in air,

FISH FOR SPORT AND FOOD

The Guide's remarks on this question has opened up a wide subject for discussion and consideration.

It has never to our knowledge been claimed that the fish in the lakes and rivers of Durham, Northumberland, Peterboro and Victoria Counties could be exploited profitably to the community as a commercial enterprise.

The whole region has been rightfully considered a sportsman's paradise and the regulations should be framed to protect the fish for angling. The money left in this country by our visitors would alone pay for even the tons of fish taken through the ice or by illegal means. Besides this all Canadians would have a fair share in the sport and food secured by angling, also those who now profit by ice hole fishing or illegal taking of fish would be on the same footing and have what they could secure along with other anglers. The fish would then have a chance to increase.

It has been claimed that residents near the fishing waters should be permitted to take thru the ice what they require for their own use. This should not be allowed as an army of inspectors could not prevent sale of fish thus obtained and those who live there have no rights over the rest of Canadians.

Not only should ice hole fishing be prohibited but all fishing should cease from November first or fifteenth in the waters referred to and fishing allowed from June first (except speckled trout).

We mention June first because all game fish in these shallow waters have finished spawning weeks before even in a backward season. Indeed black bass taken in Rice Lake in June are found infested with worms. Then if the season opened earlier the tourist season would be extended with profit to Canada and pleasure for our visitors.

If the fishing season had an absolute prohibition in the fall until the defined opening in the spring, game and fishing inspectors could the more easily catch offenders for anyone found afloat with fishing tackle or with a hole in the ice would be considered an offender and punished accordingly.

We learn that fisheries inspectors spent three days recently motoring over the ice of Rice Lake visiting all the ice holes they could find and did not discover either bass or maskinonge in the big catches of pickerel which would aggregate tons in the three days—and there was the remainder of the winter when there was little if any inspection.

An army of inspectors could not prevent infringements of the present regulations governing winter fishing but the present force could concentrate their efforts to prevent the destruction of fish on the spawning beds in spring, especially of the penalties for such offences were increased.

Port Hope To Get $31,000 For Harbour Repairs in Estimates

In Forecast of Expenditures Presented by Finance Minister Robb, Port Hope Will Receive $31,000 For Harbour Repairs—Cobourg Gets $75,000 For Repairs.

In the list of estimates tabled in the House of Commons Thursday night the Town of Port Hope will receive the sum of $31,000 for harbor repairs and Cobourg is granted the sum of $75,000. There is much need of work to be done at the local harbor and the above grant will go quite a distance in effecting the repairs.

The estimates for the Province of Ontario, apart from Toronto, as tabled in the House, are found to contain many items of interest to the province. Outstanding among them is the item of $1,500,000 for the building of a lower lakes terminal, the location of which is not indicated and the provision of $13,750,000 for construction upon the Welland ship canal. Another large item is one of $600,000 for dredging purposes.

The Royal Military College at Kingston secures $375,000 from the budget of national defence. The sum of $750,000 is provided for the establishment of laboratories for the National Research Council. The province's subsidy remains unchanged at $2,642,611.88.

The other specific Ontario items are found largely under the heading of rivers and harbors. On this score Port Arthur and Port William receive $275,000; Cobourg $75,000; Port Burwell $200,000; Port Colborne $100,000; Port Dover $50,000; Owen Sound $60,000; Oakville $21,000; Kincardine $50,000; Collingwood $64,000 for dredging; Hamilton $35,000 and $31,000 for reconstruction of the south pier of the Burlington channel; Kingston $14,200 for dredging; Port Hope $31,000; Sarnia $45,000; and Rondeau, $41,700. Numerous other items ranging from $1000 to $15,000 appear under this heading.

TO MAKE FLIGHT BEFORE MARCH 4

Just 100 years from the day that Jules Verne was born in Nantes, France, Robert Condit of Ohio, Wednesday awaited conditions favorable for a rocket-light to Venus, 50,000,000 miles away.

Unlike the undersea heroes of the Verne stories, Condit sought to go farther away from the earth than any man has ever gone before. He wanted to start Wednesday and said he was ready for the attempt, but that atmospheric conditions were not right for the great test. The inventor said he didn't wish to comment on Jules Verne.

"My ideas are original," Condit said. "They did not have their inception in Verne's novels. Maybe one of his characters did use a rocket to go to the moon. I want it understood that this new machine I have invented might be called a rocket but it isn't just that."

In order to take advantage of the meteoric "stream motive power" as he describes it, Condit says his flight must be made before March 4. On this motive power he expects to float to Venus once his contraption was out of range of the earth's gravity.

While driving to Cobourg from Port Hope on Tuesday morning Joe Micks attempted to put on the brakes of an automobile when he saw the wig-wag signals working at the William street crossing of the C.N.R. The car turned around on the icy pavement, then turned over on its side in the ditch without damaging the car much. It was drawn out by a wrecking car.—Cobourg Star.

HICKMAN TRIAL IN FINAL STAGES

Crank Letters Include Threat to Blow up Jury if Slayer is Not Held Responsible

With a quick-time march of final witnesses, the sanity trial of William Edward Hickman Wednesday moved into its final stages.

Attorney for both sides predicted that the last of the evidence for and against the youth's insanity plea to the kidnapping and murder of 12-year-old Marion Parker would be placed before the jury before the end of the session. They said it was possible that the jury would hear the final arguments of attorneys and begin its deliberations by Thursday night.

With the opening of the final sessions it was disclosed that virtually none of the principals in the trial drama had escaped the attentions of writers of "crank letters." The latest target for threatening missives was the jury itself. Its members, however, were kept ignorant of the letter which had been received threatening to "blow the whole bunch up" if Hickman was not held "responsible" for the school girl's murder.

The last of the state's seven alienists, all of whom have declared Hickman sane in the sense that he was able to distinguish between right and wrong, completed their testimony Tuesday. During the cross-examination of Dr. Thomas J. Orsborn, one of the expert witnesses, the defence managed to slip into the records Hickman's "closing argument," prepared by the young slayer himself in his cell, for delivery at his trial. The admission of a copy of that oration, titled by its young author "Solution of Crime" had been barred previously on a prosecution objection that it was "tommy-rot."

Dr. Edward H. Williams, the last of the prosecution alienists to testify declared that Hickman was "obviously feigning insanity" and making "a bum exhibition of it."

"He is faking and doing it clumsily," the doctor continued.

Leaping out of the path of one automobile, William Bekker, 50, of Allentown, Wis., was killed by another car.

SHOULD FACTS BE KNOWN?

Suggestion Made That Patient Should Receive Exact Record of Work of the Surgeon

Should a patient be told exactly what has been done, when a surgical operation has been performed on him? By all means, answers a contributor to the Modern Hospital, Chicago. He has a right to know; and besides, his knowledge may be of the greatest service to a subsequent operator. Some surgeons even advocate supplying the patient with a written, technical account of the operation and its objects, to be preserved by him for future use. We read:—

"One ingenious yet impractical doctor has recently suggested that every surgeon, in closing his abdominal incision, should tattoo into the skin adjacent to the wound the nature of the operation performed. Reference has been made to this recommendation simply to stress the need for some arrangement whereby the patient who has been operated upon, perhaps years earlier, may have information in regard to the nature of the surgical procedure carried out. Ofttimes the emergency is so great that the patient's life may actually depend upon the surgeon then in charge quickly securing information as to previous surgical illnesses or operations. To telegraph the superintendent of a hospital in a far city for this information is often unsatisfactory. If time is available, to request a copy of the records from the hospital in which the patient had been previously treated is frequently productive of results; but when a serious surgical emergency arises, time is not available for securing information in this way.

Some abdominal surgeons make it a practise upon the discharge of a patient from the hospital, to supply a form certificate, setting forth briefly in medical terms the surgical procedures carried out. This practise, of course, has its objections, not the least of which is the furnishing of facts to the patient himself, which may be disturbing, or to relatives and friends who will use this information for improper purposes.

"If it is not felt best for the hospital to pursue this practise, then there should certainly be available to all times a card index to which a hospital clerk could refer in answer to telegraphic or telephonic requests for information.

"Even although the former solution to this problem may have its faults, it is felt that the patient has a right to know what surgical conditions were found and how they were remedied, because this information may not only be immediately satisfying to him, but in years to come it may be in reality life-saving."

SHAMROCKS WIN IN TOWN LEAGUE

Defeat Maroons 4 to 3 and Keep Hold on Second Place

Steve Jex's Shamrocks handed the Maroons the short end of a 4 to 3 score in a scheduled town league game at the Young Street rink on Thursday night and by virtue of their win advanced to within one point of the league leading Leafs while the Maroons still remain in the cellar.

The fixture last night was played on a sticky surface; in spite of this both teams provided a good brand of hockey. Stan Crossett trotted out Bill Phillips, a new goal guardian and although it was his first game, he made numerous clever stops and cannot be blamed for the defeat.

In the first period the Maroons scored all their three tallies with Pethick, Culpitt and Winfield being the marksmen. Cancilla scored one goal for the Shamrocks in this session while the other counter was secured in a scramble.

Scoreless hockey was played in the second stanza and both goal tenders had numerous saves to make; but the Shamrocks had the better of the play. In the last session Cameron tied the count after a rush and shoved the puck into the twine past Phillips. Greenaway and Munro were benched for scrapping and soon after Nantel was penalized for holding Bowen. The Maroons pressed hard and kept Graham busy and several chances were tossed up. Finally Nantel broke away from his own defence and cinched the game when he beat Phillips.

The Teams:—
Shamrocks—Goal Graham, defence, Cameron and Nantel; centre, Four; wings Greenaway and Gallagher; sub Cancilla.

Maroons—Goal Phillips; defence, Devine and Munro; centre Culpitt; wings, Pethick and Winfield; sub Bowen.

Referee—Howard Hutchings.
The standing of the league is as follows:—

	W	L	D	Pts
Maple Leafs	2	0	2	6
Shamrocks	2	1	1	5
Victoria	0	1	3	3
Maroons	0	2	2	2

HICKMAN IS FOUND SANE

Confessed Slayer of Marion Parker Hears Sentence On Saturday

Eight men and four women, some elderly, some middle-aged, the jury holding the fate of William Edward Hickman, confessed slayer of Marion Parker, Thursday stripped his cloak of asserted insanity from him and branded him murderer.

Two verdicts were rendered in 45 minutes in the sanity trial, one that Hickman was sane on the murder charge and the other that he was sane on the kidnapping charge.

Judge J. J. Trabacco announced that he would pass sentence on the prisoner on Saturday. Jerome Walsh, Hickman's chief attorney, said that he would give notice of appeal from the verdict at that time.

The trial was the first under the new California law on Hickman's plea that he was not guilty on both charges "by reason of insanity."

Hickman, having confessed his crimes and pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity, and been found sane by the jury, the court assumed that the next step was to pass sentence which will be done on Saturday.

The convicted man sat bolt upright looking straight ahead as the jury foreman read his findings. He seemed unperturbed. Maintaining his pose, Hickman, with his guard at his side, walked from the court room with a firm step back to his cell in the county jail.

SPORTING SKITS

BASEBALL
MACK RATES SPEAKER BETTER THAN COBB

Where baseball men foregather, the leading topic at the moment revolves around this question: What does Ty Cobb think about Connie Mack's action in choosing Tris Speaker to play with the Athletics in 1928 and permitting Cobb to pass along with an unconditional release?

The answer is that Connie Mack is an underlying conviction that Speaker can do more for the Athletics in 1928 than Cobb did in 1927.

This is a very abrupt shift from the situation previous to the opening of the 1927 season, when the Athletics nearly burst with elation at getting Cobb and the Washington Senators were the first and last on the ground to sign Speaker.

Speaker was released by Washington a few days ago because he wanted too much salary. Cobb was released by Mack because the Athletics could not afford to pay him what he wanted. And now Speaker is engaged by the Athletics, who think that with him they will have a better outfield than in 1927. They will find them up in this contention.

Speaker is to play centrefield for the Athletics. Cobb was not chosen for that position in 1927 and could not have played it up to the needs of the Athletics if he had been selected. Cobb never was an expert in the outfield such as Speaker. Tris rates with the greatest centre fielders because of the ability to go back after fly hits and to field the ground balls accurately back of second base.

Some judges of baseball will consider McAleer, Welch and Speaker to be the three greatest centre fielders in baseball. McAleer could cover more ground than either of the others, but he could not bat as well as Speaker, neither could Welch.

Speaker did not have as high a batting average as Cobb in 1927, yet Connie Mack thinks that Speaker can fill his centre field better than Cobb filled right field. In Philadelphia among the experts there is an opinion that some fly balls got away from Cobb in 1927 that lost games for the team; and there are some players on the team who think the same thing.

Speaker's legs and knees will determine whether his 1928 season will be successful. He began playing for Washington last year in fairly good trim, but like other members of the Senators he succumbed to injuries before the season was far along.

If the combination proposed by Mack—that of Speaker in centre, Simmons in left and Miller in right field—should work out with success, the Athletics will put up a stronger front in 1928 than they did last year in the outfield. If Speaker is unable to keep the pace this year, his baseball playing career will hear a very all probability unless he wishes to amuse himself by playing in one of big minor leagues. There are clubs that would take him for manager in the higher minors.

OSHAWA AND BOWMANVILLE IN 2-2 DRAW

The O.H.A. junior game played in Bowmanville last night between Oshawa and Bowmanville ended in a 2 to 2 draw. Three periods of overtime were played, which failed to change the score. The ice was heavy and the game very rough.

Oshawa—Goal, Leveque; defence, Harrington and Rowden; centre, Arundel; wings Black and Little; subs, Whiten and Burr.

Bowmanville—Goal, James; defence, Osborne and Williams, centre Candler; wings, McMillen and Ruddle; subs, Jackman and Hooper.

Referee—Ernie Collett, Toronto.

It is likely the game will be replayed in Bowmanville on Saturday.

BELLEVILLE WINS GROUP

Belleville juniors defeated Kingston in the second game of play offs for group at Belleville Thursday night by a score of 2 to 0. The score in Kingston was 4 to 2 in favor of Belleville, which gives them a margin of five goals on the round. Belleville played a close-checking game with clever passing, which tied the heavier Kingston team up. Kingston tried to play a passing game but the locals checked back and gave them no chance.

The first period was goalless, and in the second Johnny Canning, for Belleville, scored an easy goal, which put the round beyond doubt. In the last period Kingston threw the whole team on the attack and Henry Canning broke away and scored two clever goals, beating the goaltender from close in. The game was exceptionally clean.

For Belleville the Canning twins and Jeffrey, in goal, starred, while Gibson, Matheson and Lee were best for the visitors, Jeffrey, the goaltender was hit with a shot from close in and had to go off for repairs, but gamely continued.

Belleville—Goal, Jeffrey; defence, Ethier and Young; centre, H. Canning; wings, Simpson and J. Canning; subs, Darragh and Scott.

Kingston—Goal, Vanwart; defence, Gibson and Smith; centre, Lee; wings Matheson and Penneck; subs, Buck and Patterson.

Referee—Stan Burgoyne, Toronto.

Scallops And Flowers Organdy Make This A Birthday Dress

Dorrie has had such few birthdays—certainly not more than four. Consequently they are tremendous events. To her they mean such a lovely party with cake, ice cream and candy galore and most important of all—a pretty new frock. This time mother has taken particular pains with her tiny dress and oh! how careful she must be. It is made of organdy sprayed with tiny pink and blue flowers gathered on a scalloped yoke of blue that matches her eyes exactly. The hem of the same shade and material is scalloped on the bottom. A small bunch of forget-me-nots in pink and blue French knots is embroidered on one shoulder of the yoke and another on the hem. (Little one-piece French panties of the dress material complete this charming outfit. So becoming it is, that mother has decided to use this style in making play dresses for Dorrie of flowered or plain cotton crepe, dimity, radium and pin dot Swiss. (Copyright, 1928, by Butterick)

GUIDE STORY

He threw off his coat and worked like a slave. The men, cheered and encouraged by his example, toiled away in the hot sun and separated the stricken cattle from those not yet attacked.

Then, when the yard was clear save the piles of faggots which the surgeon had ordered to be burnt as disinfectants, Leigh stood with folded arms to contemplate his approaching ruin.

His eyes turned towards Rubywood, his heart sank within him, and with a groan he hid his face in his hands.

That night he passed amongst the dead and dying cattle, listening with numb ears to the gossip of his men, which ran upon the hideous disease which had just been introduced into England, and by which his master's cows had been destroyed.

In the morning as if to put the finishing stroke to his misfortune, came a second letter from the North. Terribly abrupt, it was a sentence of ruin without compromise:

"Dear Wynter,—I wrote to you a week ago informing you that in all probability I should require the payment of the three thousand pounds. Having received no reply I forward this to remind you that I hold your note agreeing to pay on demand, and to intimate that as my want of the money is urgent, my agent will call upon you tomorrow to receive payment or take necessary steps to enforce the bond. I am yours,

Arthur Leigh."

When he read the note in his hand, Leigh sat in a chair, staring straight before him like one demented.

A week ago! Yes, on referring to the first letter he saw that his precise uncle had made no mistake; the letter bore the date of a week back, and had evidently been mislaid. Tomorrow the agent—one who could not accept any compromise, and who would invariably carry out his instructions to the letter, and would enforce the bond—would be on the scene.

Where could he look for help? Nowhere—he had no friend. No one save old Will, sitting in the sun shine bowed down by the shock of his young master's misfortunes.

No friend! Ah, yes! one, and no one in his heart that, come what would, she, his beautiful, gentle-hearted Muriel, would be true to him, and that, though the years of separation might be long and bitter, she was his to all eternity.

He threw the letter aside, and, drawing paper and ink toward him, in his firm hand, which no amount of distress could rob of its steadiness wrote as his heart dictated:

"My Darling—I may call you that now, for if I have not you I have nothing, Providence having seen fit to deprive me of all my earthly possessions. Buoyed up with the hope your sweet lips gave me, I have striven and battled with fortune for the greatest prize man ever fought for.

"Man fights, but Heaven awards the victory where it wills: I have lost the battle, and as I write to you now am a ruined man. In this, which must be the darkest hour of my life but for you, I turn like a drowning man to my love, my star, my hope.

"Muriel, will you still pledge me your love? Will you still give your heart to a penniless, homeless wretch? Wretch indeed, for asking you; but, oh, my darling! I love you so that I cannot—I cannot give you up without one prayer!

"I implore you to act as you think right but, for Heaven's sweet sake, have mercy on me! Send me one word to say that I may still hope—that you will not take your love from me because Heaven has taken everything else.

"Be merciful, Muriel, and send me word to lighten the darkness which has fallen upon me. I have kept my promise; now though I am still more unworthy of your love than ever, I implore you to keep the promise which your eyes gave mine. And yet—and yet—I know, selfish wretch that I am, that I have no right to ask for your love or your pledge—nay, that it is cowardly, unmanly, to do so.

"Send me no word, Muriel, but let the messenger go without a sign from you that I may know you will be happy with some better man, and forget that one Wynter Leigh ever loved you or crossed your path. Farewell, Muriel, no longer mine; mine; Heaven's blessing rest upon you night and day. Wynter Leigh.

He did not read the cold words after he had written them, but, with lips tightly set, walked down to old Goody's and called Jaffer from the cottage.

"Jaffer," he said, "you can climb the court wall at Rubywood?"

"Ees," said Jaffer, laughing with ecstatic glee.

"You are a clever fellow, Jaffer," said Leigh, with a sad smile. "Can you take this note to Miss Muriel where she sits in the court without any one seeing you give it to her?"

"I think I can, Maester Leigh," said Jaffer, with another guffaw.

Leigh gave him the note and a shilling.

"I can trust you, Jaffer," he said, "because you are quicker than people think, and you love Miss Muriel, don't you?"

"That I do," said Jaffer, "and so do you don't you, Maester Leigh?"

And Jaffer roared with enjoyment.

C.I. BOARD ISSUE WRIT FOR $2768

Cobourg Collegiate Enters Action Against Counties Council for 1926 Accounts

At a special meeting of the Cobourg collegiate institute board it was decided to issue a writ in the supreme court of Ontario against the counties of Northumberland and Durham for $2,768.70, this extra amount being claimed by the board as the counties' share of educating county pupils in 1926. The board has had this claim before the council for two years and both years the council has turned the request for this grant down. The legislation requiring the council to pass this grant to boards of education was passed in 1925, and while it was felt that the board may have a similar claim for educating county pupils in that year only the 1926 claim will be pushed. Messrs Kerr and Cochrane were appointed as solicitors for the board in the matter.

According to the act the board is entitled to the cost of educating county pupils, based on the proportion of county pupils to the number of town pupils attending the institute, this amount also including the payments by debentures for permanent improvements.

On Feb. 3, 1928, letter was mailed in Benton, Ill., to Miss Helen Sharpe at Leansboro, Ill. Letter was delivered yesterday, having been twenty years going forty miles.

MR LOCUST TRIES TO START A NEW FASHION

WHEN the stranger landed in the meadows every one crowded around him to learn where he had come from and why he had chosen the meadows as his stopping place.

"Why, I'm from a wonderful country," replied the stranger. "I'm Billy Locust from Locust Town," said he and he spread his wings and circled around, proud to think he had at last caused some excitement. "And I've come to the meadows to start a singing school."

"A singing school," chirped Cheery Cricket who had always prided himself on his own voice, "we don't need any one to teach us singing. We all know how to sing. Don't we Johnny Grasshopper?"

"Believe me, believe me, we do," replied Johnny Grasshopper in a sing song voice. "I'd like to know what the likes of you can teach us?"

"So would I!" croaked old Hoppy Toad, he had been leading the meadow choir for a long time and knew his business. "Of course, we're always ready to learn. But you'll have to show us."

"Just what I'm here to do" said Mr. Locust, clearing his throat and trying to look wise. "I've heard that you, Cheery Cricket and all your Cricket friends have lovely voices. I've never heard you sing. Let's hear your voices."

Cheery Cricket had a lovely voice and he knew it. He called all his friends together and they began to sing with all their might. Each one had three strong veins under the left wing cover. The largest of these three veins was used as a bow and when Cheery Cricket gave the signal every cricket there began to draw the left wing across the right wing and the air was filled with lovely cricket music.

"The music is there," cried Mr. Locust when they had finished, "But I don't like the way you offer it. Stand by, Johnny Grasshopper, let's hear you and your relatives."

After the Grasshopper tribe had displayed their ability, Hoppy Toad called in her chorus.

"Mighty fine music" cried Mr. Locust, "but I don't like the way you pose while playing. Look at me. It's all the rage to stand this way when one sings. It lends dignity to the music. It may be hard at first but after you get used to it you'll enjoy it," and, raising himself on his front feet until he almost stood on his silly little head Mr. Locust began pulling his hind legs across the rough veins on his wings. Of course, Mr. Locust had been practicing a long time and had it down perfect. He could stand on his front legs, almost on his head and play for hours. He did look very genteel and dignified.

CANCER IS GREAT MODERN SCOURGE

American Society Urges Prompt Treatment As Principal Factor in Control

A concerted attack on cancer, the disease which, despite modern medical science, is the fourth most frequent cause of death in the United States, is being launched by the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Dr. C. J. O. Hastings, Toronto medical officer of health, is a member of the advisory council of the society.

"The time to cure cancer is when it is beginning," and "many cases can be cured if reported promptly," are the two slogans emphasized by the society.

Cancer is easily the greatest scourge the world has ever known, and the rate has been increasing steadily, those in charge of the campaign point out. In New York alone deaths from the disease totalled 6,557 in 1924, the total number of deaths in the registration area being 91,138. The most prevalent site of fatal cancer is the stomach.

Cancer, according to one theory, is a large group of diseases rather than a single disease. All resemble one another in the single important respect that they are characterized so Johnny Grasshopper and his friends tried to copy him. Cheery Cricket and his relatives did, too, but old Hoppy Toad saw the funny side and she sat back and nearly laughed herself sick at their funny antics.

There's no telling what might have happened if a bird hadn't seen the whole affair and, being rather hungry, swooped down and gobbed Mr. Locust up.

"Don't be silly," croaked Hoppy Toad. "What's the difference how you stand when you sing, so long as you give out the thought of happiness while you're singing. Had Mr. Locust been tending to his own business instead of raising discord here he would have been alive."

By this time the meadow folks were ashamed of themselves and away they scooted for their homes. That was the last time any of them ever tried to copy any one else.

SOUTH AMERICA KILLS OFF BIRDS

Lack of Protection South of Equator Offsets Conservation in North

In view of the additional protection recently accorded shore birds in this country by amendment to the regulations under which the migratory bird treaty act, a new bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture—"Our Migrant Shore Birds in Southern South America"—is of special significance. Many of the birds migrating between the United States and Canada and protected under the treaty make extended journeys each year and winter in southern South America.

Of the many species of North American shore birds there are only twelve that do not visit South America part of the year, and no fewer than twenty four species pass as far south as Argentina and Chile. In spite of ample protection during their breeding season many of the birds had been decreasing in numbers to such an alarming extent that the bureau of Biological Survey sent Dr. Alexander Wetmore, author of the new bulletin and now assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, to South America to investigate the conditions encountered by our shore birds in their winter homes.

Legislation for the protection of birds in the republics of southern South America, it was found, is in somewhat the same stage as in the United States thirty years ago. A number of conservation laws have been placed on the statute books, but the public generally has not as yet been educated sufficiently to their observance. This laxity, says Dr. Wetmore, is due partly to the fact that extensive settlement and development, with consequent excessive hunting, have been comparatively recent, and partly to the large proportion of colonists from the south of Europe, in parts of which killing is still a sanctioned custom and where sentiment for the protection of birds, particularly the smaller species, is notably wanting. Consequently a number of the most valuable and desirable shore birds that seek winter homes in South America are being destroyed in inordinate numbers, a condition that renders ineffective to a certain degree the protection afforded them in this country and Canada.

CANCER IS GREAT MODERN SCOURGE

American Society Urges Prompt Treatment As Principal Factor in Control

A concerted attack on cancer, the disease which, despite modern medical science, is the fourth most frequent cause of death in the United States, is being launched by the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Dr. C. J. O. Hastings, Toronto medical officer of health, is a member of the advisory council of the society.

"The time to cure cancer is when it is beginning," and "many cases can be cured if reported promptly," are the two slogans emphasized by the society.

Cancer is easily the greatest scourge the world has ever known, and the rate has been increasing steadily, those in charge of the campaign point out. In New York alone deaths from the disease totalled 6,557 in 1924, the total number of deaths in the registration area being 91,138. The most prevalent site of fatal cancer is the stomach.

Cancer, according to one theory, is a large group of diseases rather than a single disease. All resemble one another in the single important respect that they are characterized by an unrestrained and unrestrainable local lump or sore, most of them becoming larger and sending off to other parts of the body minute particles which start new growths "Cancer," the society says, "may occur anywhere on the inside or outside of the body. It is always little to begin with. As it frequently has been said, the trouble is then no more serious than a splinter."

One of the reasons for the great number of cancer deaths is that the disease usually exists for some time before it is reported. Any lump, particularly in the breast, which comes and remains for some time, any sore that does not heal, particularly about the lips or tongue, is suspicious. An ill fitting dental plate or a broken tooth which rubs until a sore appears inside the mouth may cause the disease and persistent indigestion, with loss of weight, and any irregular bleeding or abnormal discharge are both danger signals.

Cancer is not hereditary, nor a disease to which any blame can properly attach, while the finding out of science is that cancer is not contagious.

The family doctor is the key man in control of cancer, and "home remedies" and the recipes of gypsies and Indians should be avoided. Placing trust in such measures, is a frequent cause of death.

All diseases should be treated in their early stages, but in no affection is it more necessary than in cancer, is one warning that is given. The frequent theory that the trouble is trifling and will disappear if left alone is responsible for a surprising number of cases in which persons been long aware that something was the matter with them before they sought medical advice.

While attempts to connect cancer with faults of diet in efforts to evolve preventative measures have failed, the occurrence of the disease in the mouth and tongue can be prevented by keeping teeth and mouth in clean and healthy condition. Cancer of the stomach, it is said, can be caused by too much hot food, too much strong alcohol or any other abuse of that organ.

Surgery is the main weapon with which civilization is seeking to combat cancer and effective provisions are now made at all great hospitals for the most thorough diagnosis to determine whether surgical operations are required. The advisability of examination in case cancer may lurk somewhere in the system is thoroughly urged.

Warning is given against persons who claim to be cancer specialists as also against the unscrupulous use of radium and X-rays by practitioners who make exaggerated claims for these agencies. Both radium and X-ray treatment are referred to as part of the surgeon's equipment in treatment of cancer. The society reiterates the need for co-operation between the public and the medical profession in dealing with the disease and the fact that in nearly all cases the disease possesses early symptoms which should lead to its immediate treatment and cure.

Quack treatment are the subject of strong denunciation. "Cancer quackery is one of the worst forms of human cruelty," the society says. "The patient is led to suppose that a cure is possible and kept expecting improvement until all possibility by skillful, conscientious effort has been passed."

The methods employed by cancer quacks are described as various. Today the most dangerous of the quacks is the man who poses as a physician of high standing, and claims possession of a secret method of treatment.

The best way to avoid falling into the hands of the fraud is to engage a physician who stands well with his fellow professional men, and to shun the man who claims to cure by secret methods.

It's the money you spend wisely that counts.

Someone has said that a rich man has more fun keeping a budget than a man of modern means. Because the money he saves is tangible, he can see it and invest it and put it to work. Be that as it may, a budget is an invaluable help to anyone.

A budget helps you keep the right proportions between expenses, prevents you from spending more than is best for food and rent, or crimping more than you should on entertainment and luxury. But a budget is not a reason for getting cheap things, things in which you forfeit quality by attempting to save on price. A budget says to you: "Here is the amount of money you should spend for this. Spend all of it but don't spend more." And it is up to you to get the best that can be got for that amount.

The person who spends his money wisely, who likes to get the utmost for it, always finds out from advertisements how he can spend it to the best advantage.

It is surprising how much more wisely you can buy if you make it a habit to read advertising. A little more value here . . . a little more value there . . . in this thing slightly more durability . . . that product perhaps a bit finer. And every cent of money you spend for advertised merchandise will bring you greater comfort, a higher quality of goods and a standard of excellence that is nationally recognized.

One hundred dollars worth of goods, including tobacco and candy, were taken. Entrance was gained both times through a back window. Chief Bain believes the jobs have been done by minors.

A rum runner that landed at Whit by this week had a rather interesting experience. On arriving off the United States shore it was found that the trucks which were to meet it had got their dates mixed, and as a consequence, there was nothing to take the load away. Rather than run the risk of hanging off the shore and being captured by a government boat, the rum runner ran across the lake to Cobourg, where it remained for two days before returning to Rochester with its load on Tuesday.

AN EASY JOB
"Marie and I agreed that after we were married I should decide the major questions and she should decide the minor ones."
"How has it worked out?"
"We have been married three years and I am grateful to say that there have been no major questions."

OBITUARY

THE LATE MRS. WESTINGTON

On Saturday afternoon, Feb. 4th, death came to Jane Ann, beloved wife of Mr. T. P. Westington, of Camborne, with distressing suddenness, in her 61st year. Although deceased had been in failing health for some months her sudden passing was a great shock to everyone. Very early in life she became a Christian and possessed of a keen mind and stalwart faith her good influence was felt equally in the church and home. She knew that the wisdom that cometh from above is pure and peace ful. The late Mrs. Westington was a member of the Methodist church, to which she was ever devoted and in due course passed into the United church. Deceased was a gifted musician and singer. She was for a number of years organist of Welcome Methodist church and later a member of the Plainville church choir. The late Mrs. Westington was born near Bensfort, South Monaghan. After her marriage to Mr. Westington they resided at Welcome. About ten years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Westington and family moved to a farm near Bewdley, where they remained until last March. Since that time they have lived at Camborne. The late Mrs. Westington is survived by her husband, two sons, Mars and Douglas of Victoria University, Toronto, one sister, Mrs. Collins, of Monaghan, and one brother, Mr. McClelland of Bethel Grove, Hamilton township, for all of whom the greatest sympathy is felt. The funeral, which was private, took place Monday afternoon from her late residence and was conducted by her pastor, Rev. G. D. Campbell and Rev. R. Barbour of Gore's Landing, who paid a glowing tribute to her saintly life. The pall bearers were: Messrs Herb McKinlay, Frank Westington, Halcutt Benson, Orval McClelland, Robin Thorn and Everett Hoare, nephews of deceased. There were many beautiful floral tributes. Interment took place in the family plot at Welcome.
