SCHOLAR DIES IN ENGLAND

E. Murray Wrong, Son Of Prof. G. M. Wrong, Had Successful Career

Word has reached Port Hope of the death of E. Murray Wrong, eldest son of G. M. Wrong, who has a summer home at Canton, near Port Hope and who is professor emeritus of the University of Toronto, of heart disease following influenza, on Feb. 15, at Oxford, England. Prof. Wrong was called from France last Friday and was with his son when he died.

The late E. Murray Wrong was senior tutor of history at Magdalen College and one of the two Proctors of Oxford University. He was born in Toronto in 1889 and attended Ridley and St. Andrew's Colleges and the University of Toronto. Following his graduation in 1911, he went to Balliol College, Oxford, where he specialized in history, taking first class honors. In 1916 he was made Vice-Principal of the School of Technology at Manchester, where he remained until 1919, when he went to Magdalen.

He had gained a reputation as a brilliant historian and a few years ago was honored with the Beit Colonial lectureship at Oxford on Colonial history. He was the author of two books, "Letters of Charles Bulwer" and "England in 18th Century." At the time of his death he was working on the life of Lord Dorchester, the first Governor-General of Canada.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Rosalind Smith; two sons, four daughters, his father and mother, two sisters, Miss Agnes of Toronto, and Miss Margaret of London, England, and one brother, H. Hume Wrong, First Secretary of the Canadian Legation at Washington.

NAPANEE HAS UNIQUE FIRM

W. Davis and Daughter Form Unusual Partnership in Eastern Town

Daughters as partners in the paternal business firms may be rare, but nevertheless England cannot claim the distinction of possessing in the poultry farm of H. Marmont and Daughter, the only store in the world over which the "and Daughter" sign hangs. There is at least one similar firm in Canada, too, at Napanee.

"W. Davis and Daughter, furriers," is the name of this firm, which conducts a prosperous business on Dundas street. The incorporation of the house is as it appears on the window sign, for the partners in the enterprise are Mr. W. Davis and his daughter, who in private life is Mrs. Zinder. Possibly the rarity of this style of firm name is due as a general rule to feminine unwillingness to merge a baptismal or married name under the modestly un-descriptive appellation of "daughter," which is in marked contrast to the filial eagerness with which many sons anticipate the time when they will become equally modest suffixes to the ancestral window legend. But if a daughter's impersonal participation in her father's business is rare, it is also successful. The Napanee firm, as a very solid commercial institution, is an example of this success.

Mr. Davis, of course, is senior partner in the firm, a factor which emphasizes the essential difference between a partnership of this kind and the more frequent business association of husband and wife. He has been engaged in the business in Napanee for a number of years, being associated until 1914 with the firm of J. A. Simmons and Company. In 1914, however, he entered business on his own account, buying the furs and manufacturing them into garments. Probably it was the later partnership which assured him his success.

SESSION IS HELD THROUGH RADIO

New Cathode Ray Tube Enables the Highest Artificial Speed Attained

American and British engineers, meeting simultaneously in New York and London, held a joint session on Thursday by the modern miracle of the trans-Atlantic radio telephone.

The meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was held in New York and the British Institute of Electrical Engineers in London, but the five hour time difference made them simultaneous.

The organizations exchanged greetings through their presidents, Bancroft Gherardi, of the American Institute and Archibald Page of the British. Words of each speaker were heard at the same time by both audiences, separated by 3,000 miles of water. Greetings were then exchanged by Dr. F. B. Jewett, of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, and Col. T. F. Purves, chief engineer of the British Post Office, their words being heard on both sides of the Atlantic.

The mid-winter meeting of the American Institute at the Engineering Societies Building in New York was marked also by the announcement of the development of a new super-power cathode ray tube, operating at 900,000 volts.

The new tube is a development of the 300,000 volt cathode ray announced by Dr. William D. Coolidge, of the General Electric Co., its developer. The tube excels electrons at the rate of 175,000 miles a second the highest speed ever attained artificially and 350,000 times the speed of a rifle bullet.

NEWSPAPER MEASURE HAS SWIFT PASSAGE

Commons Passes Bill Requiring Publication of Details of Ownership

The pliancy with which the House of Commons accepted bill number 22, an act to amend the postoffice act (newspaper ownership), and gave it third reading last night was the feature of the day's proceedings. Only one change was made in the bill. T. L. Church, its sponsor, had included the provision that the registration regulation should not apply to "religious, fraternal, temperance and scientific or other similar publications. This was struck out.

The member for Toronto northwest spent some time explaining the purpose of the bill, and recited his efforts in the past to get such a measure even into the committee stage, and he pressed for a hearing before the committee on private bills.

The postmaster-general paved the way to a ready consideration of the measure by stating, "I feel I should welcome the introduction of this bill. It is only carrying out the policy of the Liberal party in 1919."

He moved that it be considered by committee of the House immediately. This was done and the bill went through in record time.

ROBB'S BUDGET SHOWS PROGRESS

Nineteen Millions Cut From the Taxes and 39 Millions Wiped Off Debt

Taxation reductions which are estimated to effect a saving of nineteen million dollars to the Canadian public were announced by Hon. James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, in his fifth Budget, presented to the House of Commons Friday.

Personal income tax, cut ten per cent. last year, is reduced another 16 per cent. in the budget. A $500 exemption is accorded on account of mentally or physically incapacitated dependents over 21 years of age. The corporation income tax is reduced from approximately 9 to 8 per cent. The sales tax reduced last year to 4 per cent., is cut to 3 per cent.

Outstanding in a multitude of comparatively minor tariff changes, generally downward, is a reduction from 37 1-2 to 30 per cent. in the maximum rates under the general tariff applying to cottons. The woolen schedules also are revised in a manner which the Finance Minister declared will be helpful both to the Canadian public and Canadian mills weaving woolen and worsted cloths.

Further tariff changes announced by the Finance Minister affect the balance of the textile trade, reducing the rate or duty on all but the more expensive lines of woollen underwear, socks, and stockings, reducing the British preferential rates, on finer grade linens not produced in Canada, conceding to the textile industry adjustments in duty upon its machinery, reducing the duty on mining machinery with a view to helping the Canadian mining industry and reducing the duty on press blankets, certain kinds of paper needed by publishers, non-alcoholic disinfectants, parts of engines for fishing boats, and placing on the free list crude petroleum for refining. There are scores of other adjustments.

Preferential Rates Reduced

The British preferential tariff rates are reduced on many items, and the percentage of Empire labor and material necessary to enter into the manufacture of specific articles before they can claim the privileges of this preferential tariff is raised from 25 to 50 per cent.

Packed galleries and a crowded and tensely expectant House greeted the greying Finance Minister as he arose to present in his inimitably brief and concise manner the financial statement of the dominion during the past and present year, and communicate to commerce and industry and the people generally the Government's proposals as to taxation.

Waves of Liberal applause prefaced, punctuated and concluded the delivery of his speech today, which was of the most optimistic character with regard to the dominion's immediate future, and in which he declared with vigor and earnestness: "Canada is once more building solidly for the future."

National Debt Reduced.

But the Liberals thundered their approval at such junctures as when Mr. Robb announced a $41,896,000 net debt reduction in the last fiscal year, and estimated another net debt reduction of $38,815,000 for the present fiscal year; a total net debt reduction since 1924 of $144,700,000; an estimated net increase in this year's revenues, despite tax reduction; an estimated surplus this fiscal year of $54,815,000; advantageous refinancing of outside loans; and estimated net revenues of $419,480,000.

He had to wave his hand for silence when he attempted to start his speech. He had no means of stemming the Liberal applause which followed his remarks immediately upon the heels of his tax reduction announcements.

Beauty and grace command the world.—Dryden.

L.C.A. APPEAL IS DISMISSED

Charles Sandercock, of Alnwick Township, Convicted of Selling

Before Judge O'Connor in the county judge's criminal court Wednesday afternoon the appeal of Chas. Sandercock of Alnwick township, who, on October 16 last at Rosemeath, was sentenced to two months on the charge of selling liquor, contrary to the Liquor Control Act, was dismissed and the conviction of Police Magistrate Floyd sustained. A stay of fifteen days was allowed to appeal. A. R. Willmott appeared for the appellant and Archie Cochran for the crown.

HEARD ON THE STREET

Do you think Port Hoppers are the best of sports?

The small village of Haliburton has a fine sporting crowd, for last week when their team went down to Fenelon Falls they were followed by a crowded special train, 200 tickets being sold in Haliburton alone, without the many who went from other points in the county. They won. Moral: Let us enthusiastically back our ball teams and hockey teams.

"Say, Bill Tickell is the most optimistic of merchants" our corner friend thinks. Despite the fact that this has been a summy winter, Mr. Tickell gets a 25 ton car of ice cream salt, and 85 loads of ice with the hope it will be a seasonable summer. He lives by faith.

Tonight there will be skating at the rink.

The management of the New York Cafe have torn the place up and are going to make a big improvement to their dining room.

The Postal department have got out a special tough envelope for registered mail with the 10c stamp on it and sell the envelope for 1c, or 11c to include registration. This will be a great convenience to the public.

The spring jury and non-jury Assizes will open at Cobourg on April 16th, before the Honorable Mr. Justice Ross.

It has been learned that the Peoples' Church of Scotland, Charlotte-town, P.E.I., has extended a call to Rev. T. W. Goodwill of Toronto, former pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church of Cobourg, who is now in charge of the Presbyterian church at Blyth, Ont. The call invites Rev. Mr. Goodwill to fill the pulpit, which is vacated by Rev. D. H. I. Lamont, who has accepted a call to the Reformed Presbyterian church, Bloor street, Toronto, and which was formerly occupied by the Rev. J. W. S. Lowry.

The resignation of Chief of Police Richard Jarvis was presented to the Bowmanville Town Council. The resignation as set forth in the formal statement is to take place on March 1st, but for the present, the document was talked over by the council and the chief appointed to continue in office temporarily. Chief of Police Jarvis also resigned from the office of tax collector, and the appointment to fill this office was left vacant.

Thomas McGuire has been appointed to a position in the Customs and Excise Office at Lindsay and left Cobourg on Tuesday to take over his new duties.

Mr. Chas. Gnevceckow, of Lindsay, had the misfortune to fall on the roadway near the C. P. R. Station last night and sustained a severe cut over the eye. He was found by Mr. Percy Lingard and was removed to the local hospital. Dr. H. W. Benson was the attending physician.

THE GUIDE STORY

The hostess, a smiling widow, dropped a curtsy as he passed, and, with a smile, asked him if he were going to the wedding on the morrow.

He shook his head with a quiet "No" and, groaning inwardly, passed out into the road.

It was a beautiful night, the sky without a cloud, the air as soft and warm as that of a July night.

So hot did it seem that the miserable man felt stifling, and threw open his coat to breathe freely.

For a moment he stood in the road, undecided whether to return to the house or walk on; but some influence, not difficult to name, seemed to draw him toward Rubywood, and, with downcast face that was darker and graver than ever now, he walked slowly down the dusty road.

A man passed, stared at him, and touched his hat.

"Good-evening, Master Leigh!" Wynter Leigh nodded and turned out of the road into a footpath.

"Why did I come back?" he murmured. "What good will it do?"

None in the world, but help my misery. And yet I felt that I must be here, and, though I knew nothing of her marriage, I felt drawn to the spot which has embittered my whole life. And now I would give a hundred pounds to be able to return as quickly as I came. Again I ask myself why I should gather fresh pain and misery being near her when she gives herself to him for life? No, I'll not go farther. I can see the church spire from here. I'll stop. Once within sight of her window, who knows what mad thing I may do? Oh, Muriel! Muriel! If Heaven had only been kind enough to keep us apart!"

As he spoke he threw himself at the foot of an old oak, and, leaning his head upon his hand, gave himself up to his hopeless, despairing misery.

Two hours passed; darkness fell; the stars peeped out, at first timidly, and then with a twinkle and glitter of bravery that shamed all lesser lights, and still he lay, going over weary pain every delicious moment he had spent with the woman to whom he had given his heart and whom tomorrow he would lose forever.

He might have lain there the whole night but for one rousing incident, and that was a strange phenomenon which presented itself in the sky, at which he was gazing.

From a deep, blackish blue it was suddenly transformed to a brilliant, fiery scarlet.

For a moment he stared with indifferent surprise, but the next, as the crimson changed and flushed into another shade, he sprang to his feet and turned almost as red as the sky itself.

It was no phenomenon, but simply the reflection of fire.

Some house was burning, and that close to him.

His heart gave a great leap, and threatened to choke him as it flashed upon him that the light was in the direction of Rubywood, and that the farm itself might be on fire.

He buttoned his coat with trembling fingers, stuck his hat tightly on his head and sprang into the path, running as if for dear life.

Pausing, he reached the stile and leaped into the road.

A number of men, silent but with anxious faces, upon which the reflection of the fire fell with a weird effect, were running as hard as himself towards Rubywood.

He caught a man's arm without stopping him.

"Where is it?" he asked, in a hoarse whisper.

"Farmer Holt's," replied the man, in like manner, never removing his eyes from the flames, which, as they turned the bend of the road could be seen shooting above the trees.

Wynter Leigh groaned aloud: "Rubywood!" he cried, "and a three weeks' drought. Not a stick will be saved!"

Then he outran them all, gained upon fresh groups farther on, and burst at last, like a greyhound, wet with perspiration and panting, in front of Rubywood wrapped in the flames.

Has the reader ever seen a fire in the country? If not, let him imagine a long, rambling, thatched house, built of wood and surrounded by the most combustible objects—hay, straw, and corn-ricks, out-buildings so dry as to resemble touch wood. And, to complete the picture, let him remember that the only way of stopping the fearful destruction lies in the water of some shallow pond, which can only be applied by chance-buckets, that are as effective as thimbles against the devouring flames, which, amidst the fearful shrieks and screams of the poor animals, crackle and laugh with fiendish malice as they twirl round wood and straw and lick them into shapeless ashes.

In such a scene Wynter Leigh had found himself.

For a moment he was so stunned by the dreadful din and confusion as to be incapable of action, but the next he had pushed his way through the outer throng to a small group in the front of the house, from which came the most agonizing groans and exclamations.

The light of the flames, which were now completely surrounding the homestead, fell upon the faces of the farmer and Mr. Heatherbridge—the former crying and wringing his hands, the latter roaming to and fro with a helpless, painful anxiety.

LEAFS STILL SHOW HEELS TO LEAGUE

Maple Leafs and Maroons Battle In Scoreless Game Thursday Night

In an exciting game of hockey in the Port Hope junior town league in Thursday night from 7 to 8, the Maroons and Maple Leafs battled to a scoreless draw. The ice was in good condition and both teams battled throughout the entire sixty minutes.

Wade and Phillips in the nets turned in good exhibitions for their teams and time after time saved what looked like sure goals. Both teams tossed up several chances to score due to over-anxiousness.

On Tuesday night the Victorias and Maroons play in a scheduled game and if the Maroons come thru with a win they will create a three cornered tie for second position with the Leafs leading by two points.

The teams: Maple Leafs—Goal Wade, defense Giddy and Sherry; centre Clement; wings Strong and Sneyd; subs Ough, Paedon and Leuty.

Maroons—Goal Phillips, defense Munro and Devine; centre Card; wings Winfield and Bowen; subs Culpitt and Pethick.

Referee—Finnegan Hills. The standing of the league is as follows:—

Giants and Cubs Away

Two National league clubs which just missed out on the 1927 world's series will inaugurate the 1928 training season in widely separated winter resorts.

Bent on getting the jump on their rivals, the Giants and Cubs began preliminary practice at Hot Springs, Ark. and Avalon, Catalina Island, respectively.

Under the direction of Coach Roger Bresnahan, the famous Giant catcher of bygone days, the New York batterymen started taking off surplus weight and loosening up their arms so that they will be in shape when they report to Manager John McGraw at the Giants' training camp proper at Augusta, Ga., March 1.

With Joe McCarthy himself on hand to supervise the workout an even dozen Cubs, all batterymen except one began the training grind.

Taking care not to make the same mistakes which cost him a pennant a year ago, McGraw and McCarthy are making plans to have their pitchers ready for a 154 game campaign.

Faltering pitchers tripped up both clubs in their dash for the championship last year, and the two rival leaders are taking every precaution to prevent the same thing from happening this season.

Struggling through the first half of the season with a poorly conditioned pitching staff the Giants almost won the pennant by a gallant drive during the last days of the campaign.

McGraw's pitchers completely failed him early in the race, and he had to bolster his staff by trading Eddie Farrell, a hard hitting infielder, to the Braves for Larry Benton, a pitcher who was in shape. Once the Giant pitchers hit their stride McGraw's club looked like the best team in the league, but New York had lost too much ground early in the race to close the gap.

Additional emphasis will be placed on the Giants' staff the coming season, because the club must get better pitching to make up for the lack of punch caused by the absence of Rogers Hornsby, the team's leading hitter in 1927.

Burleigh Grimes was sacrificed to the Pirates in order to get Vic Aldridge, a great pitcher in the spring. Grimes won 19 games last year but he wasn't in shape early enough for McGraw. Aldridge figures prominently in McGraw's plans to get out in front early and stay there.

The case of the Cubs was just the reverse of the Giants' predicament. The Cubs got on great and were breezing along in first place when they started on their final eastern trip. Charley Root collapsed from overwork and the entire Cub staff exploded right in McCarthy's face.

The Giants have made more effort to strengthen their pitching staff than any other team in the league. They have acquired 11 promising minor league hurlers and at least five of them are expected to add strength to the team.

If two of them should come around as expected the Giants will have one of the best staffs in the league. Virgil Barnes, Larry Benton, Fred Fitzsimmons, Dutch Henry and Vic Aldridge will form the nucleus of the staff.

The Cubs will bank on practically the same pitchers they did last year. Root, Guy Bush, Sheriff Blake, Hal Carlson and Bob Osborn are the leaders. Pat Malone who won 20 and lost 18 for Minneapolis, is the outstanding newcomer. With his arm well, Percy Jones, the lefthander, is counted on as a regular.

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

DAVID MEETS AN INTERESTING AUSTRALIAN

ONE day while David was visiting his Aunt in Australia, he came upon a queer-looking bird in the woods.

The brown and red of his feathers made it almost impossible for David to keep track of him as he scooted about among the dry bushes.

"Goodness, but I'd give almost anything to know what kind of a bird that is," he said. "Now if I were back in America I could call on Squeedee and—"

A bundle of red and green flashed in front of David's eyes and out of it rolled the very elfin David had been wishing for.

"I'm sure glad you called me, son," laughed the elfin, "but it did take me by surprise and I almost had a fall. What's wrong? Why were you giving up something?"

"Oh, Squeedee, you dear!" David exclaimed shaking the wee elfin's hand. "I'm glad you did tumble down. I was just trying to follow that red and brown bird to see who he was. I don't believe we have a bird in our country like that. Who is he, Squeedee? There he comes now."

The red and brown bird in question came rambling back when he spied the elfin and shook his claws at David.

"I started to run when I saw you, David," he chuckled. "Had I known you were a friend of Squeedee's I would have introduced myself. I'm Mr. Mound-bird and—"

"Mound-bird!" exclaimed David shaking the offered claw. "What a funny name for a bird. What's that you are holding in your paw? My, what big feet for so small a bird."

I'm Mr. Mound-bird.

"Goodness, I know it," laughed Mr. Mound-bird. "Everyone who sees me says the same thing. I know my feet are big, but I guess if you had to live by scratching, your feet would be larger than they are. By the way, Squeedee, we've built a home since you were here last. Come on over and I'll introduce you to the wife. I was taking this clump of grass over to put on the house."

He led Squeedee and David out to was a huge mound of grass and dirt, a clump of palm trees, under which lay in the very top of it was a hollow place filled with soft grasses and leaves. Eight large white eggs set end up gleamed in the sunlight.

"Now I guess you can readily see why we have such large feet," laughed Mr. Mound-bird when he introduced his wife. "We made every bit of the mound ourselves. I'll tell you right now it takes a lot of patience to raise a family these days."

"You're right, there," laughed David, "for I've heard my Daddy say the same thing a hundred times. But, Mrs. Mound-bird, don't you have to sit on the eggs to hatch them?"

"Goodness no, David," said Mrs. Mound-bird laughing merrily. "The sun does the hatching for us. Once in a while Daddy Mound-bird goes up and stirs up the nest so the eggs will get a good warming."

While they were talking, the eggs began to open and out tumbled full-feathered, strong birds, one after another until eight of them ran around the mound.

By the time they were dry, it was time for David to go back to his Aunt's house and bidding his new friends good-by he ran to the house.

It's the money you spend wisely that counts.

Someone has said that a rich man has more fun keeping a budget than a man of modern means. Because the money he saves is tangible, he can see it and invest it and put it to work. Be that as it may, a budget is an invaluable help to anyone.

A budget helps you keep the right proportions between expenses, prevents you from spending more than is best for food and rent, or crimping more than you should on entertainment and luxury. But a budget is not a reason for getting cheap things, things in which you forfeit quality by attempting to save on price. A budget says to you: "Here is the amount of money you should spend for this. Spend all of it but don't spend more." And it is up to you to get the best that can be got for that amount.

The person who spends his money wisely, who likes to get the utmost for it, always finds out from advertisements how he can spend it to the best advantage.

It is surprising how much more wisely you can buy if you make it a habit to read advertising. A little more value here . . . a little more value there . . . in this thing slightly more durability . . . that product perhaps a bit finer. And every cent of money you spend for advertised merchandise will bring you greater comfort, a higher quality of goods and a standard of excellence that is nationally recognized.

IT CERTAINLY PAYS TO READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS

RACER'S CAR IS DAMAGED

Captain Campbell's Auto Strikes Rut Going 175 Miles an Hour

Hurting along at an unofficial speed of 175 miles an hour, despite a rain beaten beach Capt. Malcolm Campbell, British automobile racer, escaped possible serious injury when his giant speedster struck a rut and was catapulted 30 feet through the air.

So great was the impact when the 12 cylinder juggernaut settled back on the beach that it smashed a bracket on the rear shock absorber and ripped away the underscreen.

Captain Campbell was half thrown from the driver's seat but maintained control of the machine and completed a trial run down the beach at reduced speed.

The British pilot was putting his race through a first test at Daytona Beach, Thursday preliminary to an attempt to break the world's speed record of 203.7 miles an hour, made by a fellow-countryman, Major H. O. D. Segrave last year. He said the necessary repairs could be made within a few hours and that he probably would give his speedster another workout today.

OLYMPIC GAMES BEING DELAYED

Grads Unable To Meet Sweden Thursday Owing To Soft Ice

In the midst of the open season on protests, the chief feature so far in the Olympic winter sports program, speed skaters of America set out for home Thursday with only one official time in the duffle bags.

Hundreds of Olympic athletes but few officials bid the United States representatives an enthusiastic God-speed as the delegation pulled out for Paris, while avalanches of soft snow tumbled down from the mountains and ice skating rinks resembled pools under a warm sun and balmy breeze.

Irving Jaffee, New York flier, who scored the fastest time in the 10,000 metres event, only to have the race cancelled because of soft ice and unseasonable weather, was subjected to the special attention of one delegation of Swiss athletes, who carried a banner inscribed, "Jaffee winner of the 10,000 metres race. Long live America."

Despite the protests of Gusatvus Kirby, United States Olympic representative, the International Skating Federation stuck to its ruling that the race must be skated again. Kirby was dismayed by the decision, inasmuch as there are no skaters left in St. Moritz. Most of the Scandinavian delegates left for home yesterday.

Protests again became the order of the day as soon as Canada hopped into the centre of the hockey limelight. The dominion team, an overwhelming favorite, cast an eye at the torrid weather, another at the swimming pool labelled the 'hockey rink,' and refused point-blank to meet Sweden Thursday afternoon in the first of the semi-final matches.

"We came here to play hockey and not water polo," said P. J. Mulqueen the chairman of the Canadian Olympic committee. The match finally was set for 8 a.m. this morning, when the sun is neither high nor warm.

Although the bobsleigh races, in which John Heaton and William Fiske of the United States are the favorite entries, were postponed along with the ski-jump and figure skating championships, play continued in the hockey eliminations. Belgium defeated France 3 to 1; Switzerland beat Germany, 1 to 0; and England shut out Hungary, 1 to 0. The winter sport program is two days behind schedule.

A Young Lady Can Suit Herself With This Dress

Is smart this young lady in the wearer of a trim tailored suit while she straight lines of the back absolutely refuse to tally with this description. This frock is especially suitable for spring wear with a fox fur piece and would certainly lose none of its attractiveness when furs are discarded. The smart notched collar forms a diagonal closing line which gives the jacket a double breasted effect marked by four buttons in front. The pleats to the left side of the skirt are an added attraction. This smart suit dress made in light weight tweeds or woolen materials is very suitable for street or office wear. ## WORK PARTIALLY RESUMED IN MINE

But Men Start Only in Sections Below 800-Foot Level

Partial resumption of work took place at the Hollinger mine Thursday, but only a limited number of men are at work yet and it may be two weeks before the big mine will be in full operation again. Notices posted and signed by A. F. Brigham, general manager, intimated that operations at the property would be recommenced today, but Tom Sutherland, chief mining inspector, has stated that parts of the mine are not yet in condition to permit the men to be engaged there, and to day only sections below the eight hundred foot level are being worked and they are not at full strength.

GET THRILL CROSSING ICE

Five students of Belleville Collegiate Institute, Mary Anderson, Arthur Dempsey, Ruth Silis, Keith Ouderunk and Norah Roblin, who live in Ameliasburg Township, Prince Edward county, and who each day drive over the ice on the Bay of Quinte to and from school, received a thrill on Thursday.

When making the homeward journey the car struck a crack in the ice and slowly began to sink. There was nearly a foot of water on the ice, and there was danger of the ice breaking from under the car. The water rose around the engine, soaking the ignition system and the motor stalled. A team and sleigh came along and the driver placed all the students on the sleigh and took them to the pump-house, where he saw a fire, their clothes were dried. The car nearly sank before it could be pulled to safety.

GRADS WIN

THE NEED OF CO-OPERATION

Co-operation Generally Is Urged Amongst Merchants and Citizens

Perhaps at no time in the history of this country has the need of co-operation of citizens generally, for the furtherance of the common good of all, become apparent as at the present time; and perhaps nowhere in the whole dominion has the urgent need of whole-hearted co-operation become more evident than in Port Hope and the United Counties.

There are a hundred or more avenues, up which one might let his thoughts carry him in this subject, but for the purpose of this article we propose to journey for a short distance up but two, leaving the consideration of others, or the further-consideration of those touched upon, to any who might care to discuss them in The Guide or elsewhere at some future time.

With the large mail order houses every day making more and more inroads into the retail trade of the towns and rural districts, the co-operations of merchants in town and country with each other and the people generally has become almost imperative if the life of the retail trade of small concerns in the community is to be preserved; and surely nothing could be worse for a community than the extinction of the small retailer who provides such an accommodation for the public in so many ways.

Perhaps the best organization to lead in such a plan of campaign is the Board of Trade or the Retail Merchants' Association to meet weekly for the discussion of topics of interest; to all in the Retail Trade, and with the object by constructive criticism of each other, of helping those who need help most. Further, the encouragement of criticism from the people generally, sent to the Secretary of such organization, would be a good method of ascertaining complaints and would give the organization a chance to investigate and deal with such questions in a business-like way, as well as an opportunity to reply through the Press, giving the merchants' side of the story as well. It is impossible to give in detail the benefits to be gained by a public discussion once a week of ways and means of holding the trade in local stores, and the pointing out of errors made here and there by this store and that. There is an old saying, that two heads are better than one; and, if that be true, how much better is the opinion of a whole Association on any matter or difficulty confronting a merchant, than merely his own opinion.

That cash sales must to a large extent replace the system of long credit, is, in our opinion, a foregone conclusion if the local store is going to combat successfully the big city organizations, which work on a strictly cash basis, or on an approved credit system which in nearly every case fully protects the store.

Unless a movement of some kind is started in the very near future, the local retailer will suffer considerably and the big city organizations will take the profits, leaving the taxes and the building of the schools and the cost of other public enterprises to the local retailer, our selves and the citizens generally.

Inebriety in Polk County, Ia., has increased one hundred per cent. in last ten years, reports W. B. Baldwin, clerk of Commission for the Insane.

THE THING CALLED LUCK

You may call it luck if you wish to, but luck is a fickle jade. And never by luck does a lazy man come into the skill of a trade; and never by luck does an artist paint or a wise man wisdom learn. For the thing called luck by the foolish tongues is the thing that the brave must earn.

You may call it luck if you wish to, but luck never fashions a dream. Never sinks a well where oil runs deep or bridges a mountain stream. And luck never plays with a lazy man or a careless man or fool. 'Tis the man who fishes the most who takes the big fish from the pool.

You may call it luck if you wish to, but luck never paints a scene. Never writes a book or a song to sing, never thinks of a new machine; It may whisper a hint to a thinking man or a man who will dare to try.

But the man who won't or the man who can't, good luck goes dancing by.

You may call it luck if you wish to, but the man who wins the game By a lucky stroke or a lucky break, has been fighting just the same; And whether it's oil or gold, or art, or catching a bass or pike, If it's luck you want, you must put yourself to the place where luck can strike.—Author Not Known

There is but one method, and that is hard labor.—Smith.
