OSHAWA JUNIORS LOSE AT HOME

Shamrocks Forced to Concede 2 to 1 Victory to Newmarket

Playing exceptionally fine hockey, considering the condition of the ice, Newmarket juniors defeated the Oshawa Shamrocks 2-1 in the third round of the O.H.A. playdowns at Oshawa last night.

In the first period both teams were evenly matched and it remained goalless to within five minutes of time, when Perrault put in a lone counter of the period from a scrimmage in front of the net. Both teams worked hard during the second period, and the result was that the score remained the same when the gong rang. During the first part of the third, Murray, in one of the finest pieces of stickhandling seen in Oshawa this season, came through the Oshawa defense and brought the score up to 2-0. Both teams put everything they had into the game at this time, and in a scrimmage behind the net Black put in Oshawa's lone tally. The ice was extremely soft in the third period, rendering puck-carrying very difficult.

Newmarket—Goal, Ames; defence, Perrault and Pringle; centre, Thoms; wings, Murray and Collings; subs, Trivett, Walsen and Peters.
Oshawa—Goal, Leveque; defence, Rowden and Harrington; centre, Arundie; wings, Black and Little; subs, Whitten and D. Rowden.
Referee—Parkes, Toronto

BELLEVILLE JUNIORS LOSE

St. Michael's Juniors White-wash Eastern Ontario Representatives

Showing excellent teamplay and proving much steadier than their opponents, St. Michael's College juniors last night met and defeated Belleville at Arena Gardens, Toronto, in the first of home and home games in the O.H.A. junior playoff round. The score was 8 to 3, and the collegians collected a five goal lead to take to Belleville for the return game Monday evening.

Belleville showed a well balanced team of puck chasers but the boys from the Bay of Quinte town lacked speed and experience. They had little teamplay, and they were kept so much on the defensive by the fast rushing and clever stickhandling of the prep school champions that they had little opportunity to combine with any effectiveness. But they were a willing lot and they never lost heart. They made a more determined stand against the students in the final period, and looked their best in this session.

Jeffrey, in the Belleville net, played a sensational game at times, otherwise St. Michael's would have won by a large margin. Ethier and Young on the visiting defense, also provided a formidable barrier in the path of the Irish lads, but they were not very strong on the attack, and did not assist their front line by the fast breaks that featured the work of Sullivan and Regan of St. Michael's whenever they halted a Belleville thrust. Scott and the two Cannings were the pick of the visiting forwards, and the two brothers accounted for all of Belleville's counters, H. Canning scoring twice and J. Canning the other time.

TOWN LEAGUE RACE IS CLOSE

Victorians and Maroons to Play Scheduled Game On Tuesday

The Victorians and Maroons clash in a scheduled town league game at the rink next Tuesday night and the latter team must cinch a win to remain in the running as the league ends the schedule on Thursday night. On this date the Leafs, who are assured a place in the play offs will play the Shamrocks.

The standing of the league is as follows:—

	W	L	D	Pts
Maple Leafs	2	0	3	7
Victorians	1	1	3	5
Shamrocks	2	2	1	5
Maroons	0	2	3	3

In a juvenile game at the Young street rink last night, the Rangers defeated the Falcons 5-1 and are now in second place. Hutchison in goal for the winners played a nice game and did one of the nicest things ever heard of in hockey. The same act was recently committed by James of Bowmanville juniors, who stated the puck went into the net when no other person saw the play. The same incident occurred last night. A shot from a Falcon stick went through the twine and the play was blocked from the referee's sight. Although some denied that the goal was scored, Hutchison pointing out a hole in the net, remarked to the referee, "Say, mister, the puck went through here." This was the only goal scored on him.

The standing of the Juvenile League is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Alerts	2	0
Rangers	2	1
Falcons	1	2
Midgets	0	2

BRIGADE MAKES AN EARLY RUN

The Port Hope Fire Brigade received a run at two o'clock this morning in an answer to false alarm sent in regarding an alleged fire at John Hume and Son's warehouse. A passerby noticed the reflection of flames from an open furnace door and turned in the alarm. The brigade made a record run, but upon investigation found everything to be in good order.

"He's a Jolly Good Fellow"

A jolly crowd of young people on pleasure bent and chaperoned by Mrs. (Dr.) Forrest drove out about six miles in the country last evening to Mr. Albert Robinson's near Quay's and thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Mr. Robinson's kindness and hospitality will not soon be forgotten by the merry party who, as they drove away at an early hour this morning amid the light of a perfect moon made the country side ring with "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

It was announced Friday that the House of Bishops will sit on March 5 to consider the Prayer Book measure in the revision stage.

It will be submitted to the Houses of Bishops, Clergy and Laity at a convocation on March 28, 29, 30 and a special session of the Church Assembly will be held on April 26 to consider the measure in its final stage.

DEPARTMENT TO MAKE SURVEY

Hollinger Investigation Will Spread To Other Mines—Inspectors Present

Believing that other mines besides the Hollinger have been using inflammable rubbish for filling empty stopes holes, the department of mines of the province is to make a survey of them with a view to reducing the mine fire hazards.

"After all, we are all in the same boat in that respect," a well known mine owner is reported to have declared when the magnitude of the Hollinger disaster, amounting to 39 dead, became certain on Sunday.

The acknowledgment of this course of action was made by the chief inspector, T. P. Sutherland, who has been on the scene of the tragedy since Saturday. It is learned that the investigation started Thursday at Timmins and will spread gradually to the other mines. D. G. Sinclair of Sudbury, the fourth inspector is to join T. F. Sutherland, G. E. Cole, the local inspector and J. G. MacMillan of Cobalt in a conference. Already inspector MacMillan has examined some of the neighboring mines.

"The trouble in Ontario gold mines," a mining authority said, "has been that they have all felt too safe."

A great fire burning in the edge of one of the company's cyanide lakes was graphic evidence all day yesterday and today of the amount of inflammable rubbish discovered by the coroner's jury when they visited the mine on Wednesday evening. Sleighs kept on hauling fresh supplies of this refuse, consisting of glycerine paper, sawdust, boards, broken powder boxes, carbide and other inflammable substances, from the ore cars which have been bringing the material from the eighth level of the mine. How long it will take to empty this stope is not yet known. Two days at least and probably more will be needed to clean out this firetrap. A high official stated that "operations on the levels would not start again until the house cleaning was complete."

On the third and last floor is the Assembly Hall, which also goes duty as a girls' gymnasium. At one end of the hall is a piano which indicates that dancing is one of the past-times of the pupils. The walls are plastered white, and reflect the light which passes in through the many windows thus making it a very brilliant room.

We begin now to descend by way of the boys' stairs. Finally, we arrive at the bottom of the stairs and see for the first time the wonderful gymnasium of which the boys are so proud. Along one side is a very strong screen, behind which one may stand to watch the games. The floor is marked out for basketball and badminton, and everything that any boy or girl might desire, is in readiness for use. Fit up the side of the wall is a window opening from the first floor, from which you may watch the games. I leave this wonderful place with reluctance and go upstairs to commence my inspection of the classes, as the bell has just rung. As I walk up the stairs, many laughing boys and girls hurry past me to their classrooms. The sight of their bright faces makes me think of my own High School days when I labored along under a huge pile of books, and wondered if I could ever be ready to quit school. But I am sure that going to school is a joy to the pupils of Port Hope, and I can tell them one thing—their High School is going to head my report.

BRITISH DRIVER IN RACE TEST

Capt. Campbell Drive British Car 18 M.P.H. At Daytona Beach

Captain Malcolm Campbell, English automobile racing driver, having tested his racer at an unofficially estimated speed of 198.02949 miles an hour, Friday was prepared for his first attempt to set a new world's record at Daytona Beach, Fla.

His mount, propelled by a secret motor of the British Air Ministry, used by Great Britain in winning the Schneider Cup race, was declared to have behaved beautifully. His official trial today, he indicated, would depend on the weather and condition of the beach. No time for the test was announced.

The beach was greatly improved over its condition of Thursday when the rain-beaten ocean speedway caused him to strike a rut and slightly damaged his machine.

During the trial the British machine apparently skimmed over the sands under perfect control. Once, near the end of the course, the machine ran just inside the edge of the water, but its pilot straightened his course and continued down the beach. It required four and a half miles for Captain Campbell to bring his machine to a halt after he attained his maximum speed.

Meanwhile Frank Lockhart, American driver, who also is out to beat Major H. O. D. Seagrave's record mark of 203.7 miles an hour, failed to finish work on his Black Hawk in time for a test but will probably make a trial run today.

Ray Keech, veteran driver, bought the triplex machine of J. M. White, Philadelphia manufacturer, out for a trial during the day and reached a unofficial speed of 125 miles an hour.

The triplex is not eligible to compete for the new record under American Automobile Association rules, because it is not equipped with a reverse gear.

Married 40 years, Mrs. Ida Sallor has brought suit for divorce, charging cruelty.

DESCRIPTION OF HIGH SCHOOL

Miss Muriel Cole Writes Interesting Article Re Local School

The following narrative was written by Miss Muriel Cole, a third form student at the Port Hope high school. Two previous compositions by students have appeared in the Guide.

PORT HOPE HIGH SCHOOL
As I walked up the stone steps outside the High School for the first time, because I am the new inspector, the beauty of the building impressed me greatly. It is red brick and trimmed with grey sandstone. There are many beautiful windows and the front entrances are very up-to-date.

Once inside, I am cordially welcomed by the staff, and shown round the school. The first floor consists of three classrooms, well equipped and ventilated, teachers' rooms and a large corridor. Fine pictures, given by the I.O.D.E., are hung on the walls. There is also a fine, large tablet commemorating the death of those old students who died in the Great War.

On the next floor there are six classrooms, two of which are Commercial Forms. In addition there are two splendid laboratories, one for Chemistry and one for Physics. The walls of this second corridor are again hung with beautiful pictures. The large board giving the deeds and records of all the athletes in the school is of great interest, as is also the girls' basketball chart. The library is well filled with the very best of books, that it deserves special mention. What a delight and help it must be to the students!

On the third and last floor is the Assembly Hall, which also goes duty as a girls' gymnasium. At one end of the hall is a piano which indicates that dancing is one of the past-times of the pupils. The walls are plastered white, and reflect the light which passes in through the many windows thus making it a very brilliant room.

TWO GOOD PLAYS AT ST. JOHN'S

A. Y. P. A. To Present Two Plays on Monday And Tuesday

In recent months, the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church have been noted for their production of amateur plays, and the public of Port Hope will be pleased to learn that the organization will present two plays on Monday and Tuesday evenings.

The plays will be conducted in St. John's Parish Hall on Pine Street and the names of the productions are "Who Kissed Barbara" and "The Dress Rehearsal." The cast has been practicing faithfully for the past few weeks and those who miss these plays will miss a real amateur treat.

Throughout the evening, popular selections will be rendered by Al Stagg's orchestra.

With three fractures in his neck, caused by a fall, Roy Dunn of Kewanee, Ill., is expected to recover after physicians operate.

MINERS DEMAND INVESTIGATION

Old Customs Observed—Finnish Dig Grave For Victims

Hundreds of miners packed in the Empire Theatre at a meeting called for 5 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon at Timmins vociferously applauded a resolution read aloud by chairman J. Kennedy demanding that the government institute an investigation into the Hollinger disaster and punish culpable parties. Unorganized labor greatly predominated. There was a sprinkling of representatives of the five locals of O.B.U. of Northern districts, a few I.W.W.'s and a fair representation of the Mine Workers' Union of Canada.

Short addresses denouncing the Hollinger Company's "negligence" were delivered by Fred Letellier, Alex. Kangas, Dave Helan, N. D. Thachuk and Sam Marich, respectively, in French, Finnish, Lithuanian and Russian tongues.

Charles Lester, in a scathing attack on Hollinger officials, attacked statements of Noah Timmins that mine officials were not responsible for the catastrophe. "Either the officials knew of the conditions in the mine or the Mine Inspector did not do his duty," Lester shouted. "Our comrades were crucified between the two."

In two languages one of the labor leaders, Fred Letellier discussed conditions under which Hollinger miners have been working. He charged that regulations and laws had been disregarded and that the mine management was guilty of the murder of 39 men. He urged the people to insist that these "malefactors" be punished.

During the meeting a messenger arrived at the theatre with the information that a group of mine bosses and lesser officials had been given instructions at the United States Bureau of Mines train in regard to the use of life-saving equipment carried on the car. This brought a shout from one of the miners in a foreign tongue as to why this had not been done long ago.

The resolution which was brought before the meeting was as follows: "We, the miners of the Porcupine district, in mass meeting assembled, present the following resolution, copies of which to be sent to Premier Ferguson, Hon. Charles McCrea and A. F. Kenning, also to the Timmins press and all labor papers:

"Whereas, on Feb. 10, in the Hollinger Mine, a terrible disaster took place, in which thirty nine miners lost their lives through the negligence of the officials of the Hollinger Mine and of the Mining Inspector;

"Be it resolved that we, the miners of Porcupine district, demand that the Government institute a public investigation, and that we, the miners of Porcupine district, have representation at the same, the said representation to consist of a committee of three appointed from the O.B.A., I.W.W. and Mine Workers' Union of Canada; the investigation to take place in the City of Timmins, and the doors to be open to the public; and we further resolve:

"That the parties responsible for the dumping of inflammable material in the mine shall be punished and removed from their present positions."

OLD TRADITIONS OBSERVED

In the traditional manner of their fathers, hallowed by generations of observance in the homeland, the "Cousin Jacks" of the Porcupine bade farewell to their fellows dead in the Hollinger disaster. Under the low skies of a grey day, their heads bared to the keen northeast winds, these Cornishmen, singing as they went, familiar hymns known wherever English is spoken, carried through the streets of their adopted town two comrades, Charles E. Richards and Harold Barrett, victims of the greatest mining tragedy in Northern Ontario.

At First avenue and Pine street, their burdens were laid down for the last time. Then, grouped about the open sleigh which was to convey the coffins for the balance of the journey to the cemetery out in the township, they lifted up their voices in final tribute. The words were those of Cardinal Newman, and in rolling tones of wonderful harmony and richness the gathering sang, "Lead, Kindly Light," as all stood with bowed heads. Rev. J. D. Parks, pastor of the United church, pronounced the benediction and as touching a scene as ever was witnessed in the North was brought to a close.

The jury summoned to inquire into the disaster convened Tuesday morning at the town hall.

The jury was sworn in, and arrangements were made to view the underground workings of the Hollinger Mine, after which it will deliberate at the town hall. It is extremely unlikely that the first sitting of the jury for the purpose of taking evidence will be before next week.

As evidence of the widespread interest in the rescue work and the willingness of experienced men to assist in every way, it is significant that up till Tuesday at noon offers of help were still coming in from many who had just heard that the services of experts were required. Men are on rescue gangs from as far away as Kirkland Lake, and a splendid spirit of co-operation has been shown by everybody.

TIMMINS BURIES DEAD

Timmins, a city of mourning, is now burying her dead. All day funerals have been held almost hourly, and the principal streets lined with mourners and onlookers.

From S. T. Walker's parlors the funeral of E. Towler took place Tuesday forenoon to St. Matthew's Anglican Church, thence to the Timmins Protestant cemetery. Towler was one of the popular footballers in the district. Later on in the day the Cornish Social Club carried out a most impressive funeral of two of their members, Charles E. Richards and Harold Barrett. The service was held in the United church and was largely musical. As the cortege passed through the streets the coffins were carried by friends of the deceased. 36 members of the society taking turns at relieving one another. Twenty four others preceded the caskets, singing hymns, while the sidewalks were crammed with spectators.

Today there was a service at the Finlanders' Hall for eight Finnish miners who lost their lives in the great catastrophe: Oscar Ahvenkoski, Armas Valo, P. Hede, Charlie Maki, John Kangas, A. Kumpula, W. Y. Altanen and A. Aho. Over 70 Finlanders formed a shovel party, who went out to the cemetery and dug one large grave in which the eight men will be interred side by side. One could easily have spent all day in churches at funeral services or watching funerals in the streets.

THE GUIDE STORY

As Leigh ran up, the farmer turned his face, which was contracted with anguish and cried:

"My child! Oh, save my lass! Let the house go, but save my lass!"

Muriel in there.

"Where is she?" he thundered in the old man's ear.

"There! Save her—save her!"

cried the distracted father, pointing to Muriel's window and sinking on his knees.

Leigh slipped off his coat and sprang toward the flames.

A shout of warning and terror rose from the throng.

"Come back! It's madness! You'll be burnt and suffocated, man! Come back!"

He laughed with fiery scorn and plunged into the scorching, hissing mass of flames.

They saw him, with every button and fold of his shirt lit up hideously, then, as he sank in the blaze and smoke, a cry of horror, echoed by a dull shriek from the father, mingled with the crackling of the flames.

Mr. Heatherbridge sank upon a bench and hid his face in his hands, miserably helpless.

Suddenly a shout, half of terror, half of encouragement, brought him to his feet, and he saw two figures—those of Muriel and the man who had gone to her rescue—in the middle of the doorway.

The next moment he ran up, in time to see the father clasp his rescued daughter to his breast, sobbing like a child.

"Where is he—where is he?" he gasped. "Let me see the man who has given me my lass's life!"

A dozen hands pushed a blackened, fire-singed figure before him.

The farmer held out his hand, but suddenly fell back, white and breathless.

"Wynter Leigh!" he exclaimed.

"Wynter Leigh!" gasped Mr. Heatherbridge, while the crowd caught the name and sent it round.

"Aye," said the scorched, blackened lips. "I am Wynter Leigh, Mr. Heatherbridge, and I am back in time to give you your wife."

The farmer clasped Muriel with a hand of steel, but remained speechless for a moment, then groaned.

"Miserable man!" he cried. "My poor lass, I've got thee, Heaven be praised, but I've lost thy dowry!"

He had forgotten in the stupor of the moment that such a being as Wynter Leigh existed. And, in the pangs of avarice which seized him when he remembered that he had lost the ten thousand pounds, forgot even to be grateful for his daughter's rescued life.

"A hundred pounds to the man who will bring me the tin box out of my room! Two hundred pounds! A thousand pounds! It's my lass's dowry!"

"Her dowry!" said Leigh, with a short, hoarse laugh; "come, Mr. Heatherbridge, that's worth saving. Will you try a venture for that, or shall I? Suppose I complete the gift, and make you a present of wife, dowry and all!"

And laughing scornfully in the weak man's face, he ran towards the house again.

A cry, full of intense, overflowing agony from Muriel did not stop him, but brought his face round to her with a look which none who saw it, can ever forget, and the next moment he had plunged into the dense smoke for the second time.

The excitement now was intense. All was forgotten save that within that furnace was a brave, true-hearted man, who had risked his life for a second time and for no other reason than to save the money intended for the benefit of the man who had stolen the woman he loved.

Not a man spoke, but all waited—one—two—three minutes.

Ah! there is something.

Crash! crash!

The huge rafters have split, and are falling!

Merciful Heavens! he must be crushed between them even though the flame spared him.

No! With a deafening shout they hail the daring figure as it stands, upon the charred framework of the window-ledge.

Then half a dozen of the bravest dart forward with a tarpaulin, and stretch it beneath him, shouting to him to jump for his life.

He jumps, is caught and borne by men, cheering madly, to the two white, motionless figures—father and daughter.

He rises, throws something heavy that rattles like money at their feet, then, without a moan, falls exhausted and writhing with pain beside it.

The day broke as beautiful as an August morn'g, and the sun, peering through the closely drawn blind, fell upon the scorched face of the hero of last night.

He was lying motionless, but wide awake, his hands, blackened and blistered, stretched upon the coverlet, his breast bandaged, and his thick hair singed and charred.

So great was the pain that he dared not open his lips for fear of uttering the groans which he stifled between his clenched teeth.

YOU WON'T BE SORRY. COME IN!

It's the money you spend wisely that counts.

Someone has said that a rich man has more fun keeping a budget than a man of modern means. Because the money he saves is tangible, he can see it and invest it and put it to work. Be that as it may, a budget is an invaluable help to anyone.

A budget helps you keep the right proportions between expenses, prevents you from spending more than is best for food and rent, or crimping more than you should on entertainment and luxury. But a budget is not a reason for getting cheap things, things in which you forfeit quality by attempting to save on price. A budget says to you: "Here is the amount of money you should spend for this. Spend all of it but don't spend more." And it is up to you to get the best that can be got for that amount.

The person who spends his money wisely, who likes to get the utmost for it, always finds out from advertisements how he can spend it to the best advantage.

It is surprising how much more wisely you can buy if you make it a habit to read advertising. A little more value here . . . a little more value there . . . in this thing slightly more durability . . . that product perhaps a bit finer. And every cent of money you spend for advertised merchandise will bring you greater comfort, a higher quality of goods and a standard of excellence that is nationally recognized.

IT CERTAINLY PAYS TO READ THE ADVERTISEMENTS

EARL ASQUITH TO BE BURIED MONDAY

Memorial Services for Statesman in Westminster Abbey On Tuesday

Messages of condolence over the death of the Earl of Oxford and Asquith continued to pour into Lord Oxford's home at Sutton-Courtney Friday.

World political leaders joined the British nation in expressing regret to members of the family at the death of the eminent statesman on Wednesday.

Funeral services will be private, at the chapel in Sutton-Courtney Monday, and burial will be in the cemetery adjoining that afternoon. This is a deference to wishes expressed by the late Lord Oxford before his death.

The nation however, will have opportunity to honor him at a memorial service at Westminster Abbey Tuesday.

Thursday both Houses of Parliament paid tribute to the former premier. Political leaders who had served with Lord Oxford while he was prime minister joined in the tribute. In Commons, tributes were paid by Lloyd George, who succeeded Lord Oxford as prime minister; Ramsay MacDonald, former prime minister, and Stanley Baldwin, present prime minister.

BE A FRIEND

Be a friend. You don't need money; Just a disposition sunny, Get along some way or other; Just a kindly hand extended Out to one who's unbenefited; Just the will to give or lend, This will make you someone's friend.

Be a friend. You don't need glory, Friendship is a simple story, Pass by trifling errors blindly, Gaze on honest efforts kindly, Cheer the youth who's bravely trying, Pity him who's sadly sighing; Just a little labor spend On the duties of a friend.

Be a friend. The pay is bigger (Though not written by a figure) Than is earned by people clever In what's merely self-endavor, You'll have friends instead of neighbors

For the profits of your labors; You'll be richer in the end Than a prince, if you're a friend. Edgar Guest.

DESCRIPTION OF RADIO STATION

Studios Range From The Modest To Ornate In Decoration

It is quite a simple manner to pull a switch and turn a dial in order to bring in one of several fine broadcast ing entertainments each night.

But it's a far different proposition to make such entertainment possible.

How great and complex a problem this is may be ascertained from a visit to perhaps the most extensive and most interesting broadcasting studios in the world—those of the National Broadcasting Company in New York.

High up above the noise and rush of Fifth Avenue are the rooms from which emanate many of the programs we hear through our loud speakers. There are six such rooms or studios of various sizes from the small personal kind of drawing room to one large enough to be classed as an auditorium.

It is from these studios that we get several nationally famous programs. It is here that the red and blue networks of the NBC—which stands for National Broadcasting Company—originate and extend over the country through more than 30 of the largest broadcasting stations.

Here also is the central distributing point for the vast "hookups" of broadcasters whenever a great event is broadcast.

Rooms Designed Scientifically

But the studios themselves are, for local purposes, the studios of station WEAJ or WJZ, or the New York studios of the individual broadcasters that happen to be hooked in.

These studios range from the modest to the ornate in decoration. There may be only a piano, a few chairs and music racks in each, so far as furniture goes. But no closer study and care could be given to the decoration of a millionaire's drawing room than was devoted to the design of these rooms.

For these rooms must convey as perfectly as is humanly possible the purpose for which they are built—the clear and faithful transmissions of the entertainments originating in them.

So they are made what engineers might term acoustically perfect, or as near this as possible. The walls and ceilings are lined with a fibrous material that absorbs the harsh, vibrating sounds that would jar our ears. The floors are of cork for the same reason. The doors are lined with felt. Even the bolts are sound proof. Heavy, echo-proof drapes hang down the sides.

Whatever windows there are in the rooms are doubled and even tripled to keep no useful sound from escaping and no disturbing noise from entering.

Players Have Set Places

As important as the acoustics of these rooms may be, however, it is all put to naught if two other qualifications for a perfect program aren't carefully guarded. One is the proper placement of entertainers, from individual singer or player to an entire orchestra, before the microphone. The other is faithful monitoring or control of the sounds sent through the microphone.

When concert singers or musicians appear on the concert stage, and before a visible audience, they are seated in far different arrangement than that required for their appearance in the broadcasting studio. Here they are not seen, just heard, so no matter how they may care to dress they must conform to a standard of position carefully worked out by radio and acoustic engineers.

Some members of an orchestra may come in their evening clothes prepared to rush forth after the radio entertainment for a more formal concert before an audience. Most, however, come in business suits and on a hot summer night discard their coats, vests and collars to make themselves comfortable.

But their seats are set out for them by strict rule. The violins are nearest the microphone, the wood winds just behind and the pectorals close by. But the brasses must be as far off as possible or they'd shriek through the mike and the drums and percussion instruments can't be any closer.

It is all a conglomerate mass as we look at an orchestra in the studio—the violins and other string instruments bunched together, a wide open space behind and the trombones and other brasses bunched far back against the wall. But the combined sound as grasped by the mike is just the kind our radio directors want the fans to hear.

Monitor on the Job

Even further to assure perfect transmission of sound from a studio, the converted electric impulses from the microphone are directed through an instrument called a volume control panel. The process is called monitoring. An operator, his eyes glued to a sensitive meter in front, guides those impulses through the panel in just such shape as not to create any harsh or distortionate sound when they are tuned in properly.

This instrument is in a small room close by each studio, well insulated from it and able to communicate with the studio only by sight through a narrow double panel window. The operator, seated before the panel, continually switches two knobs back and forth in his effort to keep the dial on the meter from vibrating too far over to one side. A sudden high note, a crash of the cymbals or other unusual sounds in the music causes the microphone to jump well over to the right.

If the operator didn't at the same moment adjust the two knobs so as to keep the needle below the 30 point, and so control the volume of those unusual notes, our receivers would blast them into our ears.

Thus, an acoustically perfect room is peculiar arrangement of instruments and the monitoring panel account for the mellow tones we get when we tune in a station on the red or blue network of the NBC.

BIG PHOTOPLAY COMING MONDAY

Fine Picturization of The Widely Read Novel "Sorrell And Son"

The best loved photoplay of the season will be seen at the Royal theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday when "Sorrell and Son" produced by the director of "Peter Pan" and "Beau Geste," will be the attraction. The book film from which the picture was made is one of the current best-sellers, its English story making it especially popular in Canada, while the picture—largely photographed in England—is making a tremendous hit everywhere.

H.B. WARNER and MIKEY MCBAN IN "SORRELL AND SON"

As Captain Stephen Sorrell, M.C., who fought his hardest battles after the war was over, H. B. Warner gives an unforgettable performance, while little Mickey McBan as his beloved young son win all hearts. The other important characters are portrayed by one of the finest casts ever seen in a photoplay, including Anna Q. Nilsson, Carmel Myers, Nor man Trevor and Alice Joyce, of whom the last two will be remembered for their wonderful acting in "Beau Geste."

"Sorrell and Son" is easily one of the greatest pictures of all time and is expected to be the talk of the town.

CANADIAN NOVELS.

Ontario Library Review Names Three Outstanding Books.

Since readers of books often seek advice, it is worth pointing out here, says the Toronto Globe, that the survey of Canadian books of 1923 published by the Ontario Library Review names three outstanding Canadian novels. The survey and selection was prepared by a committee of the Toronto Public Library, and the introduction by Miss Marjorie Jarvis of that staff.

"We have," she says, "at least three Canadian novels that show style and psychological insight, tell a good story and, at the same time, are in some individual way typical of the country." Here are the three and something about them:

"Possession," by Mazo de la Roche, a picture of an Ontario fruit farm, with a queer mix-up involving the young owner and a squaw who belongs to his berry-picking gang. "Keen insight, deep feeling, ample and certain powers of description, carry the story to its tragic and uncertain end," says the London Times of it.

"Another Way of Love," by Marjorie Grant Cook, is an intense novel and a sympathetic sketch of life in a French-Canadian village. "There is a compelling interest in the character drawing, and the local color of the little French-Canadian village, Trois Pistoles, has been well caught."

"The Viking Heart," by Laura Goodman Salverson, gives "a terse, strong and unforgettable picture of the West of our grandfathers' days." It deals with the migration of an Icelandic colony to Northwestern Manitoba. "It has a beauty distinctively its own," said the Literary Review; "its style is that of one who gives some thought to the rhythmic and colorful effect of words."

Marketing the Potato Crop.

The potato grower should cater to the wishes of the most particular and exacting customers. He should furnish a choice product in a most attractive form and should carefully study the demands of the market he wishes to serve. For the best prices the potatoes should be uniform, sound, smooth and of good table quality, whether selected by the pound, the basket, the bushel, the bag, the barrel or the car load. The commercial potato grower should not be confined to the local market, but should be in a position to put his potatoes on the best market available, either through his own efforts or through the medium of a co-operative association. It sometimes occurs that of the price paid by the consumer for a bushel of potatoes about two-thirds are required to defray the cost of transportation and of distribution, and one-third is left for the grower. This is not as it should be. Undoubtedly one of the best remedies for such a condition is co-operation on the part of the growers themselves.—Dept. of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

The Licensed Falshood.

Every man, if he catches his son in a falsehood, will at least reprimand him. But the greater the falsehood the man's favorite statesman tells, the more apt he is to vote for him, and bothers others to vote for him.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

To Drive a Nail Into Plaster.

Before trying to drive a nail into a plastered wall, first put the nail in boiling hot water until it is thoroughly heated. You can then drive it in clean without breaking or chipping any of the surrounding plaster.

The King's Drunk.

A story that caused a lot of laughter was told recently by Mr. J. H. Thomas at a London dinner party.

It concerned a similar function attended by working men at which he was present some time back.

At the close of the dinner, noticing that some of those present were fidgeting their pipes nervously, Mr. Thomas told the chairman to get on with the toast of the royal family, so that the guests could smoke.

The chairman, taking Mr. Thomas literally, proposed a toast "to the Royal Family." Then, amid roars of laughter, he cried:

"Gentlemen, the King's drunk. You may smoke now."

NERVES FOUND IN CANCER GROWTHS

McGill Professor Makes Important Find in Field of Cancer Research

Announcement of an important contribution to cancer research, by the McGill Pathological Institute and the Royal Victoria hospital was made at McGill University.

In connection with the researches the following statement was issued at the Pathological Institute:

"The current February number of the Canadian Medical Association Journal contains an illustrated article by Dr. Horst Oertel, Stratheona professor of pathology and director of the McGill Pathological Institute, which establishes the fact of the presence of nerves in human cancers and other malignant tumors. This has so far not been recognized and even denied by high authorities on cancer.

"The recognition that human cancers are supplied with and carry nerves is an important forward step in the knowledge of cancer and will throw a new light on the problems of its nature and growth. For one thing it establishes that the cancer is not as independent and self contained a growth of cells as has so far been assumed, and it points the way to a possible connection of the cancerous growth with the nervous system.

"While this finding is of greatest scientific interest, it remains to be seen how it may influence future attempts to treat and control cancer. New possibilities for advance in the knowledge of tumors and their treatment are opened by it."

At the end of the article Professor Oertel pays a high tribute to the work of two technicians of the pathological institute, Mr. John Partridge and Mr. Brian Thompson, whose zeal and devotion to the technical demonstration of nerves in tumors he highly commends.

There is quite an epidemic of measles in Norwich.

In an O.H.A. play off game at Whitby last night, Oshawa intermediates won, 4 to 2.

HEARD ON THE STREET

Did you have a good time last night?

With a private dance in the Vets' Hall, another dance in the town hall and numerous other parties about town we should judge the young people of Port Hope had a very pleasant evening.

Bob Cummings G.M.C. eight piece orchestra provided splendid music for the dance in the town hall which would have had a large local crowd had it not been for the numerous other attractions but visitors from Oshawa, Bowmanville, Cobourg and intervening points assisted in giving them a fair crowd.

The band will make the rink a very popular place this evening and we expect to see a goodly number there. Make the best of winter while it is here—it may not last indefinitely.

The crooked has again been made straight and we will soon see the stop sign on the top of the post at the corner of Queen and Walton.

Speaking of stop signs it reminds us of a saying of the chief of police, "Stop, means STOP—not slow." Think safety.

Statistics show that American tourists leave many thousands of dollars in Canada. Is Port Hope planning to have a big share left in "The Prettiest Town in Canada?" Why not get together and devise ways and means of attracting a portion of the wealth to our town?

There have been some new men come to our factories here who cannot bring their families because of the lack of homes. Last year was a better building year than we have seen in some time, how about making 1928 bigger and better?

Mr. James E. Austen, well known trapper of Hindon township sent the Minden Echo the following: "While looking over some timber in my back lots today (Feb. 12), I came across a poor deer that had been killed by wolves only last night. It had a very hard run but was finally torn down by these great cruel creatures. Its hindquarters were badly torn and smashed and it was plain that it had died a cruel death. They did not eat much of it, but seemed to have killed for fun only. I think with Jack Miner that it is time something was done to kill off these beasts. This is not the only story of this kind I could tell you. I am a trapper so I know."

Congratulations to Mr. Roy McBride, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. McBride of Coldsprings, who has been appointed manager of the Bank of Toronto, Bethany. Roy was a junior on the staff of the Colborne branch a few years ago, and was also a member of the baseball team the years Colborne won the county championship.

Patrons of the Royal Theatre last night were enthusiastic in their comments on "The Country Doctor." A genuine rural melodrama, it furnishes a complete change from the usual run of photoplays, and its "naturalness" seemed to appeal to all. Rudolph Schildkraut makes the doctor a lovable character, while the rest of the cast are excellent, too. The next to last episode of "Melting Millions," is an added attraction of special interest.

The charge of theft against Stanley Kincaid laid by Charles Floody was dismissed in Oshawa court when the counsel for the complainant failed to offer any evidence. Kincaid was charged with stealing a horse's bit.

The Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers' Convention will be held at Brighton on March 9th.

WARNED OFF

"Do you think, sweetheart," queried the young man with the evenly divided hair, as he shifted the fair maid from one knee to the other, "that your father will consent to our marriage?"

"Well," replied the fair one, "of course papa will be sorry to lose me, but—"

"but," interrupted the youth, "I will remind him that, instead of losing a daughter, he will gain a son." "Dearest," rejoined the wise maid, "If you really want me, you mustn't say anything of the kind. Papa has three such sons boarding with him now, and he is a little touchy on the subject."

OVER THE HILLS

Over the hills and far away, A little boy steals from his morning play

And under the blossoming apple tree He lies, and he dreams of things to be;

Of battles fought and of victories won,

Of wrongs o'er thrown and of great deeds done—

Of the valour that he shall prove some day,

Over the hills and far away— Over the hills and far away!

Over the hills and far away, It's oh, for the toil the livelong day; But it mattered not to the soul aflame

With a love for riches and power and fame!

On, O man! while the sun is high— On to the certain joys that lie Yonder, where blazeth the noon of today;

Over the hills and far away— Over the hills and far away!

Over the hills and far away, An old man lingers at close of day; Now that his journey is almost done

His battles fought and his victories won.

The old-time honesty and truth, The trustfulness and the friends of youth,

Home and mother—where are they? Over the hills and far away— Over the hills and far away!

SPORTING SKITS

HAMS SIGN JOE DWYER

The Hamilton club has strengthened for the stretch by securing Joe Dwyer, veteran goaler, from the Kansas City club of the American Association. The Hamilton management bought Dwyer outright, and while he may not be used in the nets as a regular, it is thought that he will be of considerable value as a coach. Dwyer played for the Peterboro Senior O.H.A. team for years before turning to the professional ranks with others of the Lift Lock City team.
