TO INVESTIGATE AIR INTERFERENCE

Local Fans Are Reporting on Peculiar Local Disturbances

Last evening's article regarding the unbearable interference in the atmosphere, which is rendering radio impossible for many fans, brought many good results.

This noise resembles the roar of a Liberty airplane engine and has been prolonged without interruption since Monday. It is of such a nature and so loud that enthusiasts in certain portions of the town are unable to hear anything at all.

Mr. H. B. Rosevear, who resides on Walton street, opposite the Guide office, and Mr. L. B. Randall, at Randall's book store, report the most serious interference, and upon investigation it was found that outfits in use in the central section of the town are most affected.

Fans in the eastern section of the town report the same noise, but of less intensity. Residents in the Brown street section say they are absolutely free from the nuisance. The south-western section of the town, however, is just as bad as the eastern half. Thus, it would appear the trouble lies in the vicinity of the Bell Telephone Company.

Interested amateurs who are instituting an investigation for the source of the trouble will attempt to make arrangements with the local Hydro and B.T.C. to locate the source of the trouble, while a letter has been already sent to the Department of Marine and Fisheries requesting the services of a radio inspector.

All developments in the investigation will be given in the Guide, and meanwhile fans in all sections of the town are requested to report on any interference or disturbance in their immediate neighborhood to this office. Send in your report at once and help us clear the air of this annoying condition.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The members of Ontario Lodge, A. F. & A. M., threw their beautiful rooms open to their friends this evening and a most successful social time was spent. About one hundred were in attendance. Progressive euchre was the principal game, and from the enthusiasm shown the games were very interesting and exciting. At the close of the contest four gentlemen were tied for first place and in the draw, William Trenouth was declared the lucky man and presented with a beautiful pipe. Mr. H. Sculthorpe had the honor of capturing the "booby" prize and carried off a bouncing doll in fine linen.

William Bell, legless burglar, convicted of breaking into a Vancouver drug store six weeks ago, was sentenced to six months in prison Tuesday. His alleged companion, E. Saunders, who has but one leg, and is ill, was remanded. It was brought out that Bell is a "ticket-of-leave" man from the Manitoba Penitentiary.

MANY VETERANS OUT OF WORK

These Men Stood by Country, Why Should We Not Stand by Them

"There is no need to exaggerate. It is impossible to exaggerate the need in Toronto just now. There are at least 20,000 unemployed here."

So said Mr. Frank Fleming, a veteran, who spoke for his unemployed fellows at a recent meeting, called by the Council of Women at Rosary Hall, Toronto, to consider how Toronto's women could help.

Mr. Fleming believed that the figure of 40,000 unemployed given to the Ottawa Government by Mr. Shields was not excessive since 20,000 unemployed were known and there was an equal number who did not join in but were being helped by relatives, etc. Low wages last summer had prevented even men who had employment from saving enough for this winter's stress, and men brought over here by false promises of work had swelled the sufferer's ranks.

Degradation and demoralization faced thousands of men to-day.

"They do not want charity," said Mr. Fleming, who drew a pitiful picture of men who were being made beggars by the present dole system in missions and the House of Industry.

"What they want is some sort of work with even small pay," urged Mr. Fleming, who pictured the conditions in Toronto recently. Many a single man can now find no place to sleep but the police stations—as many as seventy-two could be counted in one station some nights. At six in the morning they are let out in the cold—many have no food—life is just a hunt for it and work—all day and nowhere again at night but the police station!

"Two of our men are now in hospital from sleeping on the cold floors in police stations," said Mr. Fleming. "Seventy-five per cent. of these men are veterans. Why not open a big institution of some kind or erect huts as you did in wartime. If we returned, you'd house these men, you'd clothe them, you'd feed them. They've fought for you once; they would again. What they need is shelter and a little food and money if they are not to degenerate utterly. You know a man can get used to begging. If the Government would only provide some shelter and work by which they could get a little money."

Mr. Fleming told a most pitiful story of a little eighteen-year-old Barnardo boy employed as a waiter last summer, but who now could find nothing but shelter in a police station at night, and was steadily going down hill.

Mr. George Hamilton, from the Government Employment Bureau, stirred his audience by his official figures. From 1,500 to 2,500 men visit the bureau daily for work. There are 100 men to every job. Even when some work is obtained, some men faint on their jobs from want of food. Mr. Hamilton told of 100 men who are now given two weeks' work in turns in Queen's Park tearing down old Government buildings. He appealed to the Council to carry on the work of giving these men a hot meal at noon. In a small shed at the rear of 17 Queen's Park an unemployed man acts as cook, and when food supplies are available soup or hot stew is made for the men.

On the appeal of the chairman, Mrs. Wesley Bundy, the representatives of the sixteen federated societies of the Council present agreed to donate the supplies to carry on the work.

After hearing the speakers the meeting was of the opinion that further public shelter of some kind should be furnished the unemployed men. "What about the Evangelia Settlement?" was heard from several corners of the room. "These men are in our midst. Why let them deteriorate physically and morally while they are waiting for work?" asked one woman.—Toronto Telegram.

It would be well for anyone with even a poor job to keep away from Toronto, and those who have nothing to do in the country are better off by staying away.

But could there not be some way of helping these, our brothers, who so nobly fought that we might have home and comforts? Is it not their due? We should give towards their

ANTI-UNIONISTS AT ST. PAUL'S CARRY VOTE WITH 127 MAJORITY

Local Presbyterian Congregation Show a Strong Opposition to Movement for Church Union.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

A large number of members of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church gathered in the Sunday school hall last evening, after the seven to eight voting period, to hear the final result of the vote on the Church Union question.

When the count was announced, loud clapping and applause showed the general approval to be with the "anti's." Rev. Dr. Daley presided at this session.

Port Hope Presbyterians cast a decisive vote against Union, 237 of the 351 ballots used being anti. Only four spoiled ballots were found among the large number cast.

The summary of voting on this question was as follows:—

OBITUARY

WILLIAM EDWARD MEDLAND

There passed away at Canworthy-water, near Launceston, Cornwall, England, in his eighty-third year, one of Toronto's former much respected citizens in the person of William Edward Medland, father of Thomas J., John, and Richard Y., members of Medland Bros., Limited, of Toronto, Oshawa, and Lindsay, wholesale grocers.

He was born at Widemouth, near Bude, Cornwall, England, and came to Canada forty-four years ago, residing for nine years at Port Hope, moving to Toronto in 1889. He conducted a grocery store at 744 Queen street west, Toronto, for several years. For the past three years he had resided in his native county, Cornwall, England. He was a Methodist, having been a member of Euclid Avenue, Danforth Avenue, Metropolitan and Howard Park Methodist Churches. He was a life-long Conservative and a member of the Sons of England. His only surviving daughter, Mrs. Frank H. Secretan, is a resident of London, England.

Scene No. 2 was cast in the living-room of the Wesley home. To the left is the Rev. Samuel Wesley writing; to the right Susanna engaged in teaching little John; while seated about the room are the various other members of the family. After the evening Psalm the children are sent off to bed, four of the little tots returning shortly after in night attire, carrying candles to kiss their mother good-night. The curtain is drawn upon the mother, (Continued on Page 2.)

No More Games in Local Series

Ike Walters' local team won the first of the local series last evening 4-2. The game was fast, considering the soft ice, but trouble between the players created hard feeling which made the game rough and unpleasant. It has been decided to cancel the remaining games on this account, but a supper will be served to the teams next week.

The Midnight-Bankers game last night was postponed on account of soft ice.

W. Hudson will referee the Whitby at Port Perry intermediate game in the consolation series tonight.

Peterboro Bouspiel Nearing its Close

The Peterboro open bouspiel entered on its final stages Thursday evening with three of the series nearing a close, and the fourth completed. F. J. Carew of Lindsay won the Peterboro cup by beating D. Coyle of Cobourg by 11 to 10. R. H. Edmunds, of Millbrook and Ross L. Dobbin of Peterboro are left to play off for the Matthews-Blackwell Trophy. A. C. Kay and G. W. Morrow, both of Peterboro, will decide the Morrow Trophy competition between them. The Waddell Trophy event, which the visitors had all to themselves after eliminating the Peterboro aggregation in the preliminary skirmish, had progressed to the semi-finals.

While harvesting ice in Barrie's Lake, near Campbellford, ice-cutters got a bad scare when a huge spurt of water, resembling a fountain, shot up in the air a distance of 15 feet, continuing nearly half an hour. The lake is a small one, covering only about 10 acres. Air pressure is given as the cause.

The annual convention of the Blacksmiths' Association is being held in Lindsay to-day and to-morrow. Our local blacksmiths are in attendance.

Who says The Guide's advertisements are not read? Last night under Coming Events the G.W.V.A. announced "a Demisit Euchre," and even after the office closed for the night we were kept busy explaining by telephone that "Demisit" was not a new word, but it was simply a typographical error. Some of our enquirers said they had searched the dictionary and could not find demisit. Even the cross-word people were puzzled with it. But the word should be Demisit, and the party will be held to-night at Mathewson's Assembly Room, we trust to the benefit of the G.W.V.A.

Mrs. M. Milcott entertained forty of her friends last night at her home on Walton street. The evening opened with a progressive euchre game in which the prizes were won by Mrs. E. B. Lingard, Mrs. Fred Little, and Messrs. J. L. Sheehan and Arthur Keefer. The booby prizes were awarded to Mrs. Stanley Zealand and Sherman Gifford. A delightful evening was brought to a close with an old time dance.

Tail-lights for cows are a possibility in Nebraska. A bill has been introduced in the State House of Representatives providing that all live stock, whether driven in herds or singly at night on public roads be required to wear warning lights, to be displayed both in front and rear. Local motorists believe it would be a great help if everything on our roads carried lights, and that a law should be passed requiring the same.

Last night about twenty friends of Miss Ada Smith, who had been an operator at the Bell Telephone Exchange for some time, gathered at the home of Miss Gertrude Chisholm to give her a miscellaneous shower. Miss Smith, we understand, is to become the bride of Mr. Edward Bridges in the latter part of this month.

The result of the voting on the question of Church Union at Centreville Presbyterian Church was announced on Tuesday, following the final balloting. Out of a possible vote of 219, 52 voted to go with the Presbyterian Church into the United Church of Canada, and 117 voted against union. The minister, Rev. A. H. McConnachie, announced his resignation to take effect before the 10th of June next.

John Burton, of Goulais Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, bagged a big timber wolf with a rifle at a range of 500 yards Thursday. Burton had set out a number of traps for fox, and in making his rounds saw three wolves standing near one of his sets. Taking careful aim, he fired into the bunch and broke the back of one, later finding that it had its foot caught in a trap.

Did you pass along Walton street near the corner of John street last night and hear the roars of laughter coming from the Royal Theatre? Harold Lloyd is now appearing in "Hot Water," and certainly appeals to the humor of the people of Port Hope. There is no doubt but that the theatre will be filled again to-night and to-morrow.

Didn't Want Him Back
A lady called on a stonemason to order a stone for her late husband. "Wouldn't you like a motto on it, madam?" he asked. "Certainly," said the widow. "What would you suggest?" "How would 'Resurgam' do? It means, 'He shall rise again.'"
"Oh, no, no, no!" she exclaimed. "don't put that on."

THE REMARKABLE PRESENTATION

The Holy Club was the caption of the third scene, which depicted a meeting of John Wesley with some colleagues at Oxford. Scene four was one of the quaintest sections of the pageant. The action was set in the churchyard where Samuel Wesley was buried. A group of folk had gathered for the purpose of hearing John Wesley, and a very impressive service ensued with the young preacher conducting worship from his father's tombstone. The conversion of John Taylor was touching in the extreme.

The expansion of Methodism to America was portrayed in a three-part scene, part one taking place in a New York boarding house. Four hundred up pointed arms were seen as suddenly the famous Barbara Heck entered and interrupted the game. Upon the entrance of Philip Embury, a young student, Barbara appeals to him to preach the gospel to the folk of the town. A congregation gather and listen to the teachings of Philip Embury, unanimously agreeing to ask aid of John Wesley in England. One of Wesley's disciples, Mr. Boardman, arrived from England to take charge of the Methodist Church in America, the scene closing with the hymn, "Soldiers of Christ, Arise."

A more picturesque and colorful scene it would be impossible to imagine than the sixth act of the pageant, entitled, "Early Days in Canadian Methodism." A group of Christian Indians, undertaking, with Egerton Ryerson, the formation of the original Canadian Church, made one of the best parts of the whole tableaux.

A group of little children, forming the original Methodist Sunday school, was most touching and interesting. About thirty children assembled under their teacher, Miss Ball, to hear John Wesley, his kindly words bringing cheer and happiness to their love-hungry hearts. The singing of "Jesus Loves Me," and the reciting of the 23rd Psalm concluded the scene.

The final presentation began with the singing of "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations," by eighteen children dressed in white, and bearing large letters spelling the Biblical verse, "The World Is My Parish." The entire cast then gathered on the stage, and characters representing the six groups—parents and children; missionary, evangelist, doctor, printer, nurses; ministers and deaconess; teachers; young people's workers; Christian steward, business man, mechanic, musician, farmer, artist and Christian women—spoke of the work of their departments.

John Wesley as the central figure summed up the romance of Methodism, after which the pageant closed with the singing of "Christ The Lord is Risen To-day."

The chief characters in the play were as follows:—

John Wesley (5)—Douglas Chesher; John Wesley (25 and 62)—Rev. J. W. Baird; Rev. Samuel and Susanna Wesley—Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Chesher; Mr. Taylor—W. D. Stephens; Barbara Heck—Lulu Beatty; Philip Embury—Arthur Crowhurst; Captain Webb—Frank Philip; Mr. Boardman—A. E. Totten; Egerton Ryerson—W. A. Meadows; Chief Sawyer—F. W. Galbraith; Miss Ball—Gladys Westaway. It would be impossible to enumerate the many characters who assisted, but every player acted his or her role to perfection.

Much credit is due Rev. and Mrs. Baird, who organized and directed the presentation of this wonderful pageant, and spent so much time and labor in making it the great success it was.

It is rumored that the pageant will be repeated, upon the earnest requests of many who were unable to see it last night, in the very near future.

DORIS MEETS THE WANDERER

"Oh, you funny little Butterfly!" Doris cried as the copper-hued butterfly settled on an alder twig right near her nose.

"What makes you call me funny?" asked the copper-colored butterfly. "What have I done to deserve that?" "Wasting your time around these old twigs instead of visiting the beautiful flowers out in my garden," replied Doris. "Why, our whole front yard is full of beautiful butterflies! You can't find any honey on these old twigs, can you?"

"That's all you know about it," laughed the copper-hued butterfly. "Look here," and Mr. Copper Butterfly motioned to Doris with his feeler. Doris went over nearer the limb and stood on her tiptoes. "See that drop of liquid right there on the twig?" Mr. Butterfly uncured his tongue and sipped up the sap. "That's far better than all the honey from the flowers."

"So that's why you hover around the bushes here," Doris laughed. "You'd rather eat that than honey from the tree or bush?"

"It's something we Wanderer Butterflies like most," said the copper butterfly. "And wherever you find woolly aphids on a twig you'll find some Wanderers hanging around. They leave this honey dew after them and, to my notion, it's far nicer than any flower honey. Flies, wasps and a few other insects like it, too. But they don't have much chance if I'm near. There! Look over on that leaf yonder. Hello, there, Mother Wanderer," and Mr. Wanderer Butterfly waved his feelers at a second butterfly on a leaf nearby. "That's Mother Wanderer Butterfly. She's laying her eggs on the underside of that leaf."

"Won't They Eat Them?"

"Goodness! Right there with all those woolly aphids," Doris mused. "Won't they eat them all up?"

"No, indeed," laughed Mr. Wanderer Butterfly. "Mother Wanderer always picks out just such a spot for her eggs, so when they are hatched, the youngsters will have plenty to eat. Another thing about our young caterpillars is that they have silk spinnerets connected with their mouths, so that they are able to spin a web from the very first. In this webby house it reaches out and grabs the nearest aphid. After they have finished with the unlucky aphid they cast the skin over their web so that as they go down the twig or leaf the skins of their victims help to form an added shelter for the Wanderer caterpillar." Then the little fellow exclaimed, "Goodness me, but I must hurry or I'll never get my work finished." Spreading his copper-colored wings, Mr. Wanderer Butterfly sailed away.

Doris watched him out of sight and when she turned around Mother Wanderer Butterfly had disappeared also.

Asking to Have Fine Reduced
A petition is being circulated around town asking that the $100 fine recently imposed on W. H. We understand that the members of the council are favorably disposed to a reduction, and a grant will have to be made by the council to Mr. Sabins to do this.

Found Friend Dead at Foot of Cellar Steps
Mrs. Wm. Moore, of Keene, met a very tragic death Tuesday evening. Mrs. Levi Fife, a neighbor of Mrs. Moore, not noticing the usual light in the house at the usual time, went in to investigate. Mrs. Fife was unable to locate Mrs. Moore and lighted the lamp and started to search the house. She noticed the door open leading to the cellar and going down the stairs, found Mrs. Moore dead at the bottom of the stairs. Whether Mrs. Moore suffered a heart attack or whether she slipped down the stairs and met death due to a cut on her head is not known yet. Mrs. Moore had been living alone for quite a number of years, her husband having predeceased her some years ago.

Mail Bag Sent From Post Office Missing
About two weeks ago a mail bag sent out from Cobourg post office consigned to Toronto was reported missing, and letters that were in the bag have so far failed to reach their destination. Included in the mail was a cheque to a party in Toronto, who failed to secure it, but the cheque has been received by a bank here, having been cashed by a party other than it was intended for. Post Office officials are working on the case from the Toronto end, but so far there are no developments in the case. It was some time after the bag was lost that the theft was reported, the loss not becoming known until the parties for whom mail was intended reported that they had not received it.

exercise a degree of self-control, but as soon as the least break in the dike of silence is made the tide of passion and of words comes rushing in, sweeping all before it.

Her whole expression had changed. Her face was now flushed to crimson, the veins on her forehead distended, her eyes dilated, blazing! General Dent sat there, contemplating her with something more of composure than he would have gazed upon a tragic actress in the part of Medea. She had conjured away the demon Ennui from his soul, and anything that would do that, even pain, was welcome. He was interested, excited. She went on, lashing herself to fury:

"To be loved thus for a day, and then cast off! I could not, cannot change. Had you grown old, ugly and decrepit; had you been steeped in poverty, crime and shame to the lips; had all the power of heaven and the malice of hell conspired to heap disaster upon your devoted head—I should have clung to you still and ever, while a pulse of vitality beat in the wreck—so you had been guileless toward me! For me, there was but one way in which you could have sinned—and I—I might have expected it. You have so sinned; and now, may I perish eternally the day that I forgive you! May I die the day I suffer you to lay your hand upon my person again!"

He did not love her or believe her enough to be very much disturbed at this declaration. Placing his hands upon his knees, he leaned forward and said:

"Variety is the spice of life, and this is one of the spices, without a doubt. Juliette, will it please you now to specify the nature of my offense; for I pledge you my word that I have not the slightest clew to your meaning."

WEDDING BELLS

JOHNS—TROLLEY

At St. Peter's Rectory, Cobourg, on Wednesday morning a pretty wedding took place when Miss Vera Irene Trolley, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Trolley, became the bride of Mr. Stanley F. Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johns, Port Hope. Rev. Canon Savers performed the ceremony. The bride, who was given away by her father, was attired in brown brocade silk. She was attended by her sister, Miss Gladys Trolley, wearing brown crepe de chene. Mr. George Campbell assisted the groom. Immediately after the ceremony a dinner was served at the residence of the bride's parents, after which the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip to Rochester and Albion, N.Y. They will reside in Cobourg—Cobourg Post.

HIGHER TEA PRICES EXPECTED ANY DAY

The estimated increase in the consumption of tea in 1924 over 1923 has amounted to over 39 million pounds. An increase in production of only seventeen million pounds during the same period has resulted in tea prices advancing in primary markets from ten to fourteen cents per pound since last summer. The price to the consumer today is on the basis of much lower primary costs, so a general increase to tea drinkers is inevitable in the near future.

THE GUIDE STORY

"No accusation to make! Juliette, I insist upon knowing what is all this," said he, still following her. "My dearest love, tell me."

She sprang away from him with a sudden bound and held up her hand and exclaimed:

"Don't touch me!"
"Don't touch you!" Are you mad, Juliette? I really do believe you are. What do you mean? I am astounded at this conduct! Now, I see that you are not ill in body, at least. But what is the matter? I absolutely insist upon knowing."

Again he approached her. Again she sprang out of his reach, and, gaining possession of a pistol that always lay loaded on his dressing table, she exclaimed:

"Don't touch me! As God in heaven hears me, if you do, I'll kill you!"

And now he thought her mad, without a doubt. He threw himself into a chair, leaned back, and contemplated her for a moment—the beautiful fury! There she stood, her form drawn up to its proudest height, her head thrown back, her face blanched, her brow corrugated, her large eyes contracted and glittering, and her blue lips drawn over her set teeth. Athwart this stormy face, her wild hair, all out of curl, was blown by the breeze from the open window.

"Put down that pistol!" She smiled derisively.
"Put down that pistol, I say!" She laughed scornfully.

"Will you put that weapon down, Juliette?"
"Are you afraid of it?" sneered she.

"Pshaw! Give it me."
"I will not."
He approached her to take it. She stepped back. Again the devil flew into her face, blazed into her eyes, and moved her heart and hand. She raised the weapon.

"Stand off, and hear me, I say! I told you that I had no accusation to make. I have none!"

She lowered the weapon as he sank into a chair. She went on, with rapid vehemence:

"Ernest Dent, I have loved you better than God—more than heaven, more than my own soul. It is faint to say that I would have died for you, although I would—the cruellest death. More! I would have lost heaven! lived in hell! sold my Saviour! imbed my hands in kindred blood, and thought the deed a merit, if it gave you pleasure! I knew no law, human or divine, about this law of love. That was the way I have loved you, Ernest Dent. And every day we have lived together, I have loved you more and more—since we were married, oh, how much more than before! Since! oh, Ernest, you know —"

Here her voice faltered and sank. "God! this is maddening!" she groaned. Then, recovering herself, she dashed the wild hair back from her brow, and said:

"This is not the language of exaggeration! The words are pressed as the life-blood from my heart! are struck as sparks of fire from my brain! I shall go mad! I shall die! I know now what it is that fills the asylums with maniacs and the graves with suicides!"

"Why, of course; just such unbridled passions as yours."
"My unbridled passions! It is well for you—oh! is it not—first to drive me mad by falsehood, and then to upbraid me with unbridled passions!"

"By falsehood!" She had broken her stern resolution of silence upon the subject of her supposed wrongs. Passion had borne down and over-swept pride, as an advancing sea throws down and thunders over an embankment, and words and reproaches came—fierce, furious and impetuous—as the rushing of many waters. It is often thus with proud, passionate natures like hers. As long as they keep silence, they can

OLD RESIDENT PASSED AWAY

Mrs. Archibald Wood Came to District in 1844

The late Mrs. Archibald Wood, who passed away following a lingering illness on Wednesday, January 28, in her 82nd year, was born at Keswick, England, on December 10, 1843, her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor, coming to Canada when she was scarcely one year old.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were among the pioneer settlers of Millbrook, choosing this as their place of residence upon arrival from the old country and were always regarded as highly respected citizens. Mr. Taylor, who in his late years gave up his business to take the position of local G. T. R. agent, was an elder in the Presbyterian church, and for several years occupied the office of preacher. The frame church in the cemetery at the top of Dawson's Hill and afterward the red brick church on Tupper street, since destroyed by fire, were in use during his time.

The late Mrs. Wood, whose maiden name was Susannah Taylor, was the last surviving member of her family, two brothers, William and John, and one sister, Mrs. Montgomery, having predeceased her.

Previous to her marriage, which took place in 1866, Mrs. Wood was the teacher at Whitfield's school north of the village, her husband, the late Archibald Wood, having also taught school at Fairmount. Later he removed to Millbrook where he was prominent first in the business firm of Wood & Kells, and afterward in the private banking business under the same firm name.

The immediate surviving relatives are one son, Reeve W. T. Wood, Millbrook, and four daughters, Mrs. A. B. Lefroy, Toronto; Mrs. (Dr.) B. C. Whyte, Battle Creek, Mich.; Mrs. (Rev.) Alexander Allen, Oaklands, Cal., and Miss Margaret, at home. One daughter died in infancy, and two sons, Harry M. and Walter predeceased their mother. There are seven grandchildren.

BELLEVILLE MAN DIES IN HIS 102nd YEAR

One of the oldest residents of the Province in the person of Sylvester Thrashes is dead at his home on Sidney street, Belleville, at the remarkable age of 102 years, being born on April 1, 1823. Until the last few days of his illness he was in full possession of all his faculties, and before he took to his bed could remember and tell of many of the stirring happenings that have taken place in this part of Canada. He was born in Quebec, but at a very early age came to this section, and has resided in Belleville ever since. His wife predeceased him 20 years ago. In religion he was a Methodist, and leaves to mourn his loss one son, John G. Thrasher, of Belleville, and three daughters, Mrs. S. W. Latta and Mrs. Robert Greatrix of Belleville, and Mrs. Frank Mire of Los Angeles, California.

DIED GORDON—At Elizabethtown, Ont., on Thursday, February 5th., 1925, Samuel Gordon, in his 77th year.

The funeral service will be held at the family residence, lot 24, con. 8, Hope Township, on Saturday afternoon, February 7th., 1925, at 2 o'clock.

Interment at Perrytown Presbyterian Cemetery.

MEDLAND—On Wednesday, Feb. 4, 1925, at Canworthywater, Cornwall, England, William Edward Medland, formerly of Toronto, in his 83rd year. Born at Widemouth, near Bude, Cornwall, England. Burial Saturday, Feb. 7th., in the family plot at Bude.

JUST LIKED TO SEE THEM DIE

Seven-year-old Girl Testified That She Treated Food With Acid Poison and That It Made Children Ill

Seven-year-old Alsa Thompson, of Los Angeles, still has authorities puzzled over her confession that she killed her baby twin sisters two years ago and later an adult who took care of her. Her father, Russell Thompson, characterized the story as absurd and impossible, but members of the family with whom she has been boarding, insisted she told the truth, and cited alleged instances of poisoning lately attempted by the girl.

A fireman told the police he was sure it was preserved peaches that made him sick. He had been treated with an acid by little Alsa, and even the fact that one member of the family temporarily lost his voice was attributed to the child's skill as a poisoner.

Dr. Edwin H. Williams characterized her as an abnormal child of a highly intellectual type, but "born with too much intellect and not enough judgment." He said he would not attempt to pass judgment on the truth of Alsa's "confession," but was sure she actually believed she had killed her sisters and the adult and that she had mixed deadly poisons for various other children and adults.

Teachers who had had Alsa under their instruction are inclined to doubt her confession, on the ground that she is bright, obedient and industrious in school. They said they were puzzled, however, when Alsa stuck to her story, and added: "I just liked to see them die, that's all."

ELMAN'S HEART IS OPENED FOR RIVAL TO HIS VIOLIN

Mischa Elman, virtuoso of world-wide repute, has at last decided to alter the pattern of his life, devoted solely and completely to the violin since the day when his fingers were first able to press the strings. Wednesday he announced that Miss Helen Katten, of San Francisco, would shortly become his wife.

It had always been thought by his friends that this master of sobbing string was a confirmed bachelor, wedded for all time only to his muse. But, according to the violinist, he gains a new love without losing the old. To all intents neither his fiancée nor his Stradavarius will play "second fiddle."

The engagement is the result of a shipboard romance, Mr. Elman said. For four years a friendship that stretched across the continent has been ripening into something more than friendship. Two days ago the violinist returned from California. He said:

"Miss Katten is not a professional woman. She is just a nice sweet lovable girl, charmingly trained in domesticity. She is very intelligent and has a true appreciation of the arts—especially music—I suppose you expected me to say that.

"A photograph? I'm afraid I haven't one. That surprises you? Well, I have a wonderful picture of her in my mind. It is far better than any photograph could possibly be. It is an engraving.

"We met in the summertime, four years ago, on board a large steamship bound for Europe. Some say that ship-board romances are fragile things, that start to wither as the gang-plank is lowered. Ours wasn't."

THREE YEAR TERM FOR MOORETOWN POSTAL THEFT

Russell Maitland, 22, Sarnia, was sentenced to three years' imprisonment by Magistrate C. S. Woodrow in police court there Wednesday after he had pleaded guilty to two charges of theft from the post office at Mooretown on September 16. The first charge cited the theft of letters and the second count theft of a mail bag key. Maitland declined to make any statement in response to an inquiry by the court. He was arrested at Detroit and brought back for trial last Saturday.

HAROLD LLOYD IN "HOT WATER" UPROARIOUS FUN

It is doubtful if louder laughter has ever been heard at the Royal Theatre than the repeated roars and screams that were caused by Harold Lloyd's latest feature comedy, "Hot Water," last night. From the title to the fade-out there was hardly a moment's let-up in the fun, and certainly every person in the big audience must have been glad to be there.

"Hot Water" shows the trials and tribulations of a married man whose home is invaded by his wife's family—a situation which gives rise to some of the funniest incidents imaginable; but even before their arrival the scenes of Lloyd taking home a live turkey on the street car had many people almost in hysterics. The subsequent episodes, showing the family out for their first ride in the new car, with mother-in-law making life miserable for hubby; the narrow escapes and the incidents they get into, the return home and the "brazer" that Harold takes, the supposed death of his mother-in-law, and the screamingly funny ghost sequence that follows kept the crowd in an uproar.

The short subjects, including a "Felix" cartoon, a Canadian scenic picture, a "Fighting Blood" story and a short western drama, complete a perfectly balanced program of wide variety that makes a splendid evening's entertainment. Despite the heavy expense of "Hot Water," there is no advance in prices, the management depending on increased attendance to cover the added cost, and no doubt they will be rewarded with capacity audiences to-night and twice to-morrow.

He surely is in want of another's patience who has none of his own.

He that never changed any of his opinions never corrected any of his mistakes.

There are three classes of men—the retrograde, the stationary, and the progressive.
