Former Local Man Making Good in the Electrical World

The November 29th issue of "Electrical World" contains an interesting article about a former local man, Robert Baird Williamson. Mr. Williamson, an electrical engineer, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Williamson, Mill street. His many friends locally will be pleased to hear of his successes.

The article is reprinted below in full. The electrical industry despite its tremendous expansion and the consequent demand for power has entrusted the design of its heavy equipment to a very few engineers, these being men not only of sound technical training but keen in analysis and broad of view.

Robert B. Williamson is one of these men. As engineer in charge of alternating-current design for the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company he has been responsible for the design of its alternating-current machinery, including many outstanding installations of the past two decades. As a textbook writer his name has been familiar to engineers and electrical students for a score of years.

Essentially he is an engineer. An indefatigable worker, quiet of manner and unassuming, he has yet a personality that at once inspires confidence. Outside of his business affiliations, he is known as a lover of the arts, of literature and music. He has travelled extensively and developed a keen sense of humor, his wit and anecdotes being enjoyed by all those who are intimately acquainted with him.

Mr. Williamson has taken an active part in the affairs of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, serving on a number of important committees such as those concerned with standards, electrical machinery, etc. In 1921 he was elected as one of the managers of the Institute, which office he now holds.

Mr. Williamson was born at Smith's Falls, Ontario, Canada. On graduation from Cornell University in electrical engineering in the class of 1893 he engaged in electrical construction work for two years, which was followed by two years as chief draftsman for the Canadian General Electric Company. For three years he served as instructor in electrical engineering at Lehigh University and during this period did considerable textbook writing on alternating currents.

In 1905 he joined the electrical engineering staff of the Allis-Chalmers Company under the direction of B. A. Behrend. Since 1910 he has had charge of the design of all alternating-current rotating machinery built by that company. This work has included the design of large water-wheel and turbo-generators such as the 32,500-kva. unit installed at Niagara Falls in 1919 and the 65,000-kva. unit which was placed in operation there last fall, the 35,000-kva. units for the Pit River No. 1 plant of the Pacific Gas & Electric Company, and others.

RECEIVED $500 FOR INJURY

Interesting Action for Damages in Which Arthur Munt of Lindsay was Defendant

His Honor Judge McGillivray, of Whitby, disposed of an interesting action on Friday, the 9th of January, when the case of Bryan vs. Munt, which had stood over from the regular sittings of the County Court, was heard. The claim was for $500 damages sustained by Mrs. Bryan while driving in the motor car of the defendant, Arthur Munt, on 12th of July last. The defendant was returning from Toronto with his wife, Mrs. Bryan, her daughter and son-in-law, and three children. The defendant came out Queen street and continued east from the Woodbine about one mile. When opposite Dr. Clarke's residence, in trying to get out of the car track, the car skidded or jumped and ran into the curb with such force as to break the right rear wheel. This allowed the car to swerve and come in contact with a cement Hydro pole along the right-of-way. Mrs. Bryan, who was sitting in the rear seat on the right-hand side, had her arm broken above the wrist and suffered a severe shock. The defendant alleged that Mrs. Bryan had put her hand out and was thus liable for whatever injury she sustained.

His Honor held that the plaintiff, Mrs. Bryan, had acted in a reasonable way and had done what any ordinary person would do. Whether she put her hand out or not had no bearing on the case, and if she did it was only what any person would do under similar circumstances. His Honor found that the defendant was negligent in allowing his car to hit the curb, and that as this was the cause of the injury to the plaintiff, she was entitled to damages for the whole amount claimed, together with costs of the action.

The defendant called the doctor who attended Mrs. Bryan after the injury and also two police officers, who made the investigation shortly after the accident. It seems that no one witnessed the accident, except the occupants of the car, who, with the exception of the children, were all called on to give evidence. The police officers who examined the skid marks stated that the car had skidded from the car tracks to the curb at an angle of forty-five degrees, and that the cement Hydro pole was some six or eight feet east from where the car first hit the curb. On investigation they found no reason for laying any criminal charge against the defendant, but simply took his name, address of the occupants of the car and reported the accident to police headquarters. Mrs. Bryan, the plaintiff, had paid $12 to be taken to Toronto and back, the defendant bringing a licensed chauffeur.

The plaintiff was represented by R. I. Moore, and the defendant by L. M. Frost.

FIRST SESSION OPENS JAN. 27

Eleven New Faces Around the Board at Northumberland and Durham Council

There will at least be eleven new county councillors for Northumberland and Durham when first session of council opens in Cobourg on Jan. 27. Some of these men have also had municipal experience. Reeve Robert Snaetsinger of Colborne, is a former county councillor and ex-Warden. Another former member of the Counties Council is Thomas Blake, who is now reeve of Darlington Township. The honor of electing a warden for 1925 goes to Durham County this year. Among those who are mentioned as aspirants for the position are Reeve M. F. Elliott of Bowmanville; Reeve W. T. Wood, of Millbrook, and Reeve James McCamus of Cavan. All are well known men and the contest for the wardenship for which there may be other aspirants again promises to be a lively one.—Peterboro Examiner.

DEATH RATE IS REMARKABLY LOW

Only Four Suicides and Four Homicides in Past Five Months

According to statistical reports which involve a million and a half of the industrial population received for the month of November last, the health situation in Canada is very satisfactory, the death rate being 7.6 per thousand, which is a remarkably low rate for that period of the year. The considerable decline since October is due largely to lower mortality from intestinal diseases, tuberculosis, chronic nephritis, cerebral hemorrhage and cancer. The combined mortality from influenza, pneumonia and other respiratory diseases, is about the same as in the preceding month.

During the last five months only four cases of suicide and an equal number of homicides have been reported in Canada. These records contrast remarkably with the notoriously high rates that prevail in the United States.

A MEN'S MASS MEETING MONDAY

Re-Organization of Brotherhood of the Methodist Church

About 100 men of the Methodist congregation gathered in the church last evening to listen to two addresses by Rev. Dr. W. R. Young, of Toronto, an ex-pastor of the church and his son, Rev. W. Harold Young, of Peterboro. The latter took for his subject, Three choirs in the soul, viz: one for solitude, for retirement from the noisy, busy world, two for friendship and three for the crowd. In a very interesting manner and with many illustrations from real life, he showed the place that retirement, intimate friendship and contact with the larger group of people occupied in the development of a well rounded life and character.

The following officers were elected: Hon. President—Rev. J. W. Baird. President—Harold Fulford. 1st Vice Pres.—W. D. Stephens. 3rd Vice Pres.—F. Orchard. Sec.-Treas.—Fred Wells. Asst. Sec.—A. McDonald. Special musical numbers were furnished by Mr. A. E. Fulford and Messrs. Ed. and Jas. Thomas. At the close a very delightful social half hour was spent in the school with refreshments. The Men's Brotherhood meets in the church every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and offers a very helpful hour to all men.

GEO. WILSON & SON.

PROTEST FILED IN COBOURG

Effort Made to Unseat Mr. Geo. Thompson of the Town Council

Since Jan. 5, when six of the seven candidates for the position of Councillor of the town of Cobourg were elected by the ratepayers, the lowest man, Dr. Adam Watson has filed a protest with Clerk A. W. Young, against Mr. George Thompson, claiming the seat as next in succession. The ground for his complaint is that the town has a claim against Mr. Thompson on account of a bonus made to the shell factory when it was put in operation in Cobourg during the early years of the war.

Mr. Geo. Thompson contends that as a matter of equity he does not owe the town anything, but has written a letter to the Town Council, asking that as the matter of the bonus has never been finally settled that action be taken to do so without delay. Mr. Thompson refers to the breaking out of the war and the establishment of the shell factory there in a building owned by him, and of the expense which he had in extending the building, putting in the plant and installing a heating plant; it was then that he asked for a bonus from the town. The agreement was if the shell company should pay out in wages $75,000 the bonus should be considered paid. He states that the shell factory paid out in wages while they were in operation approximately $400,000. The agreement also was that $1,000 a year should be written off the $5,999 bonus each year. This was actually done for three years but before the fourth year came around, the war was over and the matter in a way was dropped. Mr. Thompson stated there was another $1,000 actually earned which was not written off and claims that according to the actual intention the whole amount should be written off.

Robert Stevenson, for many years teamster for Hamilton Township Council, as he operated the grader for that municipality, was found by Mr. West Minifie at his home north of Baltimore lying on a couch that had been drawn up beside the fire. He lived alone and had been seized with a stroke. Mr. Stevenson died the following morning. It is not thought that he was stricken long before he was found. His wife died many years ago, and also two children. He leaves a brother, David Stevenson, of Harwood, and several sisters. Rev. F. McCurd conducted the funeral and the interment was at Bethesda Cemetery, near Harwood.

REHEARSE FOR SOLAR ECLIPSE

Stars to Guide the Placing of Instruments—Long's Corners to be Only One of the Places Where Observations Will be Made

The real work of preparing to make scientific observations of the eclipse of the sun on January 24 will begin at Long's Corners, four miles south of Hamilton, when Prof. C. A. Chant and Dr. R. K. Young, of the department of astronomy, University of Toronto, start to set up their scientific instruments in a few days.

The main instrument for the observations will be the big forty-five foot camera which is being constructed at present. The long tube and its shelter has already been built, made of tar paper on a wooden framework. The mirror to reflect the sun's rays, the big lens for the camera and the plate-holders are still to be erected on the three cement piers that have been built.

Besides the big camera there will be a smaller camera, three feet long, with four separate lenses to take photographs of the eclipse in polarized light and through filters. This camera will point directly at the sun working from inside the building, and the whole camera will be set on a clock arrangement to rotate it to counteract the earth's rotation. A third instrument will photograph the disappearing sun and the reappearing sun for the spectrum to obtain its constituents. These three instruments will all be housed in the shelter which has been built. There will probably also be a small telescope to observe the sun during the egress of the eclipse.

It takes a great deal of time and patient, careful work to set all the scientific instruments in place to make the observations. To help in placing some of the instruments in absolutely the correct spot, observations are taken by the stars at night. In addition every movement that will be made by the scientists during the eclipse has to be rehearsed time and time again, so that they will be able to do their proper jobs rapidly and accurately during the short time the eclipse lasts.

The corps at Long's Corners will be only one branch of a great army in both Canada and United States which will collect scientific data on the eclipse. It will be an army of separate units, and for months afterwards the scientific army will be coordinating the information they have collected.

At the Toronto observatory on Bloor street F. L. Blake will try to photograph the eclipse, using a camera on the end of the big telescope.

At the Agincourt magnetic station W. E. Jackson, of the observatory staff, will make magnetic observations, away from the magnetic influence of such things as street railway lines.

At the university, two of the students from the department of astronomy are constructing a special camera to try to make photographs from the top of one of the university buildings.—Toronto Daily Star.

THIS EMBARGO BUSINESS

To the Editor:—Some timid souls oppose an embargo on pulpwood on the ground that it might provoke American resentment. They ignore the fact that the Americans themselves recognize the validity of the embargo as an economic expedient and make use of it whenever it serves their purpose without considering its effect upon other countries. This is set forth in the Boston Post of January 7th in an article entitled, "This embargo business."

"Before we put up an official protest against the British embargo on American potatoes we ought to do a little thinking," says the writer. "We are the original and persistent users of the embargo tactics." "The reason," he says, "that fine Malaga grapes were unobtainable in the American market the past holiday season was that the government had put an embargo on Malagas from Spain. Plant bulbs from France, England and Holland have likewise been excluded by the same process. Some years ago," reminds the writer, "the onion growers of Bermuda were totally ruined for a season by an embargo excluding Bermudian onions from the United States. The last time Canada had an abundant potato crop the American government imposed an embargo on their importation."

"Now," concludes the Boston Post article, "with a record, how can we consistently object when our favorite tactics are turned against us?"

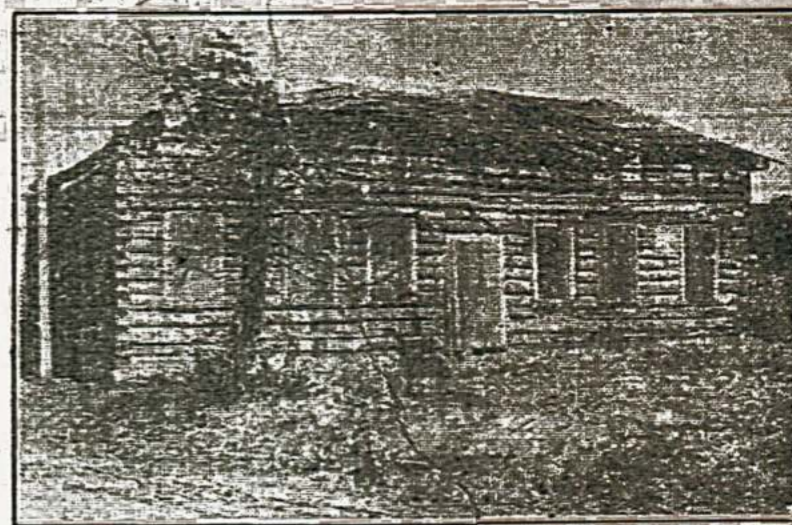

Canada, as a nation, gets nothing for the pulpwood of which this country is despoiled, although put to great expense in protecting it from fire and in other ways. The so-called "private owners" get but a pittance from its sale for export. The middlemen, jobbers and such, of course, get their rake-off. The American paper manufacturers get the rest. Why not put a stop to the whole business? If we must consume the wood instead of conserve it, as we should, why not consume it ourselves?

By the time exploitation, fungi, fire, insects, wind and the axe get in another ten years' work of devastation, the people will cry "hands off" on any more cutting in our poor dilapidated wooded areas because of the ensuing tremendous and disastrous changes in climatic conditions long before that time, regardless of whether or not our last tree has been cut or destroyed. This is why I say we have less than ten years' supply remaining under the present conditions.

In the interest of the people who are investing their hard earned savings in these large pulp and paper flotations, and in the interest of the banks who are loaning huge sums of money to these companies, if for no other reason, surely the time has arrived when the Government must either prohibit the erection of any more pulp and paper mills in Canada or else prohibit the export of the raw material that is to feed these mills. There are enough new mills and enlargements now under way to absorb more than the total quantity of wood now being exported and some of the existing mills have already exhausted the wood supply on their own watersheds. It is time to invoke the blue sky law—in the interest of the whole people.

GUELPH'S FIRST HOUSE TO BE RESTORED

At the instance of the Wellington Historical Society, the old building of Guelph, Ontario, erected nearly a century ago, Galt, the founder of that city, is to be restored. The restoration unions in Guelph have offered to contribute to the restoration energetic campaign is now being carried on among the citizens to raise the balance of the money required to rebuild, in replica, the building as it stood on completion ninety-seven years ago. The old building was removed from its original site many years ago, and some of the original logs were replaced with new ones, but there are still many of the timbers remaining that were placed in position by the Canada Company's axemen in 1827. For some years the old Priory building was utilized as a passenger station by the Canadian Pacific, but it was abandoned as a station when the town of Guelph outgrew it. Tradition has it that Galt, taking an axe from one of the axemen struck the first blow against the first tree to be felled, after which he and his party drank to the prosperity of Guelph.

PHYSICIANS HAVE QUEER CUSTOMS

Receive Pretty Good Pay by Appropriating Fee of the Spirit-Helper

On St. Lawrence Island, Alaska, Eskimos burn a small piece of a bird's widdie and drop it into the mouth of a crying baby to make the baby have a good voice. Dr. Riley D. Moore told members of the American Anthropological Society in Toronto recently. This is just one of the remedies prescribed by the angakok, the Eskimo priest-doctor or sorcerer, Dr. Moore said.

Otiyook, one of the sorcerers of the island, always sings to his patients, some of his songs coming to him in his sleep. Before treating the sick he calls his "Helper," the spirit of the North Wind, and if he gets his helper he knows he will succeed. These priest-doctors often work very hard and receive good pay, but they in turn must pay their helpers. As the helper is only a spirit a spiritwage will suffice, so the sorcerer touches the pay which he receives and pretends to throw part of it into the air. The helper is very much displeased if the angakok is not well paid, therefore the doctor is careful to see that his helper is not insulted by a small fee.

Forty million dollars was the sum that Russell T. Scott, now under sentence to hang in Chicago, and his high-pressure salesman declared would be required to erect this pipe-dream. It was to connect Windsor and Detroit. It was to be the largest and most magnificent bridge in the world. It was to be a double-decker, so big that there would never be any traffic congestion. The towers were to be 380 feet high. The span was to be 1,892 feet long and its weight 107,000 tons. Some day a Windsor-Detroit bridge may be built, but never through the exertions of a financier of the R. T. Scott type.

THE GUIDE STORY

Miss Huldah left the room. And Hester went down into the "Valley of the Shadow of Death" alone.

The first concussion over, the first shock past, and Hester's soul settled into a profound calm. She was not prayerful—her spirit did not move to seek the Infinite—her soul was deeply still—encompassed, penetrated, filled with the Infinite. In prayer, the soul is active—it moves and seeks something; in thought passive—it lies still and receives. So it was with Hester now.

The next hour, when Miss Huldah came in, she found her young friend serene and cheerful.

"Have you sent the letter, Miss Hester?" inquired Hester.

"The doctor has, my dear."

"Then her baby was brought in and lifted up on the bed. Hester, at the sight of her child, held out her hands and burst into tears.

The infant crept up to her mother's pillow, kissed her on the eyes and on the lips, and, taking up the corner of her little apron, tried to wipe the tears from her cheeks.

"Take her down, Minny," said Miss Huldah; "don't you see she worries her mother?"

But Hester pressed her own arm around the babe, and shook her head at Minny to desist.

As the days went by, Hester's life ebbed rapidly away. She grew very anxious for the arrival of Colonel Dent. Every time she awoke from sleep, her first words were:

"Has he come? Oh! has he come?"

And the answer:

"No, not yet," was reiterated a hundred times.

"How long do you think it will be, Juliette? Dr. Keenan, how long do you think it will be?"

Her answers were always ending with "soon; this evening, most times she would awake in a condition of some happy dream strong upon her that she would see him."

"Juliette, dear, ask Colonel Dent to come up; I want to see him."

"What do you say, Hester?"

"Oh! nothing; I was dreaming. Has he come yet?"

In the meantime, what delayed the coming of Colonel Dent? He had received Dr. Keenan's letter, but there was an important question coming before the Senate—a bill upon which Colonel Dent had spent much thought—for the passage of which he was extremely anxious—and upon which he had prepared an able speech. After some mental conflict, Colonel Dent had determined to remain in Washington until the fate of the bill was decided.

Feeling the approach of death at last, Mrs. Dent sent for an attorney, and when he came into her room, she said to him:

"You know, Mr. Jenkins, the object that Colonel Dent and myself have so long had in view—the emancipation of our colored people?"

"Yes, madam."

"Well, you know, also, that by a clause in my father's will we cannot do anything in it until I attain the age of twenty-one?"

"Colonel Dent has apprised me of that fact."

"Well, now to the point. I shall be twenty-one the day after tomorrow, if I live. Colonel Dent is absent; so I want you to prepare deeds of manumission for all our people. Get them quite ready for signature, and bring them to me tomorrow evening. Can you do this?"

"Yes, madam; but I should apprise you that you can do nothing legally, even after you reach your majority, without your husband's presence and co-operation."

"Oh! I know that; but, then, Colonel Dent can do nothing at all if I die without affixing my signature to these deeds, for the property would then go to our daughter, and he would have to wait until she was of age, when many of the poor creatures whom I wish to emancipate would be dead, and others would be old. Then, Colonel Dent himself might die before our daughter grows up, and Julie and her property fall into other hands, and so my poor people and their children, to remote generations, remain in slavery. Therefore, draw the deeds, Mr. Jenkins, in the names of both my husband and myself; bring them to me to-morrow evening, so that I may sign them the first thing day after to-morrow. Colonel Dent can sign them at any time thereafter. Will you do this?"

The lawyer looked very much perplexed, but at length he said:

"Yes, I will. I will do it."

"And at the same time draw up, in the same manner, that is, in the name of Colonel Dent and myself, a deed of gift of ten thousand dollars, in bank stock, to Juliette, Noz-zallina, by adoption Juliette Summers. And be punctual, will you, Mr. Jenkins?"

"I will bring you the papers to-morrow, at eight o'clock in the evening," said the attorney, leaving the room.

Hester, very much exhausted, fell into a doze, from which she awoke to ask again, in anxious tones:

"Has he come yet? Has Ernest come yet?"

"Not yet."

Hester sighed, and renounced hope for the night.

The next day dawned; Hester was sinking fast. The day and her life waned together; evening approached—came. The night taper was lighted in her room. Miss Summers sat on one side of the bed; Minny sat on the other, rocking little Juliette's crib. Hester had been lying very quiet for a long time; at last, starting up with supernatural energy, she exclaimed:

"I hear horses' feet! I hear horses' feet! It is Ernest! It is Ernest! Take the light and run, Minny! Run, Minny!"

Good Night Stories

DICKY HAS A CHAT WITH A WESTERNER

WHEN Dicky turned around the bend of the hill and spied the great big clumsy bear, he turned and ran, when a tiny voice called to him:

"What's the trouble, Dicky? Come on over. Mr. Grizzly Bear isn't going to hurt you," and Happy Giggles, the wee elfin from Makebelieve Land, hopped off Grizzly Bear's back and came running down the path to meet Dicky.

"A fellow would rather be safe than sorry!" laughed Dicky, who, on seeing the elfin, turned around and retraced his steps. "I came out hunting, but just for fun. I didn't think there were any bears around here."

"Oh, yes, we're here, plenty of us," laughed Mr. Grizzly Bear. "And I don't blame you one bit for running. We are a terrible lot of fellows, but we always know a friend when we see one. Happy Giggles' friends are always mine," and he held out his great paw with its terrible-looking claws to shake Dicky's hand.

"My, such big claws!" Dicky exclaimed. "Why, they're even larger than Brown Bear's claws. What makes them so large?"

Grizzly Bear sat on his haunches and looked at his claws.

"I don't know, unless it's because I do so much digging," he replied. "You know we love marmot and ground squirrels, and we have to dig to get them. I'm not a climber, by any means, but I can run very fast and have as much strength as any neighbor of the Far West."

"Haven't you ever seen a bear like me before?" Dicky shook his head, and Grizzly Bear, turned around and around, so he could get a good look. "Guess you've never visited the Far West before."

He was a great deal bigger than any bear Dicky had ever seen. His coat shaded from yellowish-brown to almost black. The tips of the hairs were lighter in color, which gave him a silvery appearance.

"You may not be able to climb as well as Bobby Bear," laughed Dicky, "but you have him bested on speed."

"Indeed I have," grunted Mr. Grizzly Bear. "I certainly can run."

"How about the salmon; are they running yet?"

"Come to think of it, they are," replied Happy Giggles. "You know, Mr. Grizzly Bear likes Salmon about as well as anything he eats."

"But gracious me," laughed Dicky. "How in the world do you catch fish, Mr. Grizzly Bear?"

"What! Haven't you ever seen? Stupid of me—of course you haven't if you've never visited the Far West before," grunted Mr. Grizzly Bear. "Come along, Happy Giggles, let's show friend Dicky how to catch fish," and the great clumsy bear started for the river, Dicky and the elfin close at his heels.

He selected a nice little pool and sat down beside it. Pretty soon he leaped over and with his great heavy claws pulled out a nice fresh salmon and gobbled it up before Dicky and Happy Giggles had a chance to say a word.

Just then Dicky heard the great bell on the farm house ringing, and he knew it was dinner time, so bidding his friends goodbye, he hurried back to his uncle's house.

Frank Lloyd has at last opportunity to demonstrate his thought that, as he recently told an interviewer, "the motion picture must be given a soul; spiritual improvement, rather than mechanical."

"The Silent Watcher," with Glenn Hunter and Bessie Love, Mr. Lloyd's latest First National picture, was shown for the first time at the Royal Theatre last night, and we have seen few pictures with as many delicate, impressive touches; such beautiful sentimental expression or such finesse in acting and direction. There is no tinsel or make-believe in "The Silent Watcher." It is a simple story, but a powerful one and it holds your interest intently and sends you away deeply impressed by its sincerity.

Glenn Hunter as Joe Roberts establishes himself as a real screen actor and his work is so polished and so sympathetic that it can be truly said that he lives his part. Bessie Love as Mary Roberts gives one of the best portrayals of the action and the feelings of a modern housewife that has yet graced the screen, and Hobart Bosworth as the senatorial candidate lends dignity to his difficult character. Alma Bennett as the vampish Lily Elliott wins admiration by her portrayal of an unsympathetic character, and Gertrude Astor, Lionel Belmore, Aggie Herring, George Nicholls and DeWitt Jennings leave nothing to be desired of their respective roles.

"The Silent Watcher" is the adaptation of Mary Roberts Rinehart's Saturday Evening Post story, "The Altar on the Hill."

TUXEDO FROWNED UPON BY TAILORS

Declare War-Time Solecism Must Give Way to Traditional Claw-Hammer

If you want to be set apart from the common herd, you must wear the time-honored claw-hammer dress suit, the International Association of Clothing Designers' convention has declared. The tuxedo is passed, because everybody from the bus boy to the street cleaner wears 'em, George E. Serak, spokesman for the association, told the United Press.

"The dinner coat was a makeshift which the war allowed to become permissible," Serak said. "When the army abolished its full dress uniform, we let down the bars a bit. But now all the excuse for it is over and the 'class' will be distinguished from the mass by the clothes it wears on dress occasions."

Serak also revealed that business clothes this year will be cut along the lines of the big barrel-chested he man. This will be offset by the color effects. Color includes pale opaque, giddy greys and all the delicate shades to limpid lavender, which Serak describes as being of the tone of elephant's breath.

"Powder blue is as dead as prohibition. London lavender is the new shade," he said.

Baggier trousers are decreed. The width of the trousers both at the top and bottom will resemble that of a skirt. No corset will be necessary for the 1925 model runabout, however. The waistline will be narrower and the shoulders broader.

The Prince of Wales receives the credit for both the he-man cut and the bizarre shades of the new clothes. The clothes at first pained American tailors by their bagginess. But now they're all for it.

TUBERCULOSIS DEATHS LESS

Decreased by 10 p. c. in the Year Just Ended

The year 1924 has won the honor of having had the lowest mortality rate even recorded among the wage-earning populations of Canada and the United States. Statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company announced Friday that based upon returns from fifteen million records a substantial decline in death rate as compared with 1923 is assured, although all reports are not yet in.

Heart disease, as in 1923 and 1922, will be the leading cause of death but the mortality, nevertheless, will be much lower than in 1923. Since 1911 there has been a decline of 20 points per 100,000 in the heart disease death rate.

The great health achievement of the year has been the marvelous reduction in the death rate from pulmonary tuberculosis. The rate this year will be slightly over 90 per 100,000 persons exposed. This marks a decline of 10 per cent. in one year. In 1911 the rate from this cause was more than twice the 1924 figure.

Pneumonia will be the third cause numerically. For the few diseases that show higher rates in 1924, either the increase has been small or the disease itself is of relatively minor importance numerically.

Twins Are Born in Different Years.—Although Ida and Elizabeth Shea, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shea, west Hoboken, are twins, they were born in different years. Ida was born a minute before midnight, December 31, while Elizabeth arrived early January 1, according to records filed with the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

SAYS ORE-FINDING DEVICES UNSOUND

Electrical Engineers Hear Interesting Address by Perry A. Borden of the Hydro

That most devices purporting to be of value in locating ore bodies, water and oil pockets, and buried treasure in general, were in his opinion unsound, if not actually fraudulent, was the statement of Perry A. Borden, of the Toronto Laboratories of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission in Ontario, in an address to the Toronto section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

In referring to electrical methods of measurement, as applied to the diagnosis of disease, attention was called to the amazing advances which had been made in the past decade in the study of pathological conditions by electrical means, and descriptions were given of the "Stethophone," the "Cardiograph," the "Audiometer" and the "Emotometer," four instruments whose names will suggest the purposes for which they are used. It was pleasing to note, the speaker said, that some of the leading work in the application of electrical measuring methods to investigations of the workings of the human mind was being carried out in the psychological department of the University of Toronto.

THINGS THAT COUNT

Martha Ostenso, a 24-year-old schoolmarm, has just come from the farmlands of the North-West to accept $13,000, fame and opportunity as a prize for the writing of her first novel, "The Passionate Pilgrim." Among 1,500 manuscripts hers was easily first. It is almost an offense that this girl should triumph. She has never frequented the Bohemian cellars of the cities, or found "life" as it is only to be found in cellars and garrets, or mastered the jargon of the "long-haired men and short-haired women," or quarreled about "technique" over a mug of beer with some bleary-eyed genius who is "not appreciated" because of the "crass materialism" of the age.

She has only known small towns, and sons of the soil, who would confuse Freud with some new kind of fertilizer. She has only seen the plough man treading the level fields, and known the smell of new-turned soil, and watched the harvest come and go. Society to her only meant the "social" at the country church, the sewing circle on the porch. And yet, drawing on the little she has seen and known, she has told a story and won a prize. Why know "life" at all, or "love," or Freud, if such things be?—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

De Luke Travel to California

Modern travel leaves little to be desired in comfort and luxury. The most recent innovation is the introduction of Lady's Maid Service on the California Limited, the Los Angeles Limited, and the San Francisco Overland Limited, operating daily between Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco over their various routes. It has also been announced that the California Limited has been equipped with new all-steel drawing-room compartment sleeping cars with specially designed ladies' lounge. Such improved services signify the strides being made to satisfy every conceivable desire of the long distance traveller.

These famous trains are already associated by connections with the Canadian National double track system to Chicago, and the trip from Toronto to Los Angeles or San Francisco is thus made one of unequalled pleasure and satisfaction throughout.

Full information and tickets may be obtained from Canadian National ticket offices, and personal service in arranging reservations, etc., will be rendered by any Canadian National ticket agent.

Plane Safely Landed at Croydon But Passengers Got Lost in Fog

The worst fog in many years smothered London and its suburbs Sunday, causing a number of street accidents and some deaths. There were numerous collisions between buses in which passengers were injured. One omnibus was overturned, while others and several private cars ran up on the sidewalks or collided in the streets.

Several cases of life on trains were reported through sparks engendered by sudden application of the brakes. The fog in some places was impenetrable for more than two yards and lamps or flares were of little use.

An airplane bringing passengers from Paris had a sensational landing at the Croydon airfield. The plane made the trip from France under a cloudless sky and in bright sunshine, but upon nearing London found the land invisible.

The pilot picked up the airfield by the tops of the radio masts which pierced the fog zone. He descended and landed safely but the passengers found themselves immediately lost, as the visibility was limited to five yards. It took the airfield staff some time to locate the machine.

Planes Punish Tribesmen Who Massacred Neighbor

In consequence of raids recently made by Akhwan tribesmen—followers of Ibn Saoud—on the Irak tribes 70 miles southwest of Nasiriyah, a strong force of airplanes Thursday located the raiders and attacked them with bombs and machine guns, killing fifty men and many camels. The British high commissioner at Bagdad, Irak, has informed Ibn Saoud the raids must cease and the loot be returned. In one foray the Akhwans destroyed every tent belonging to a small Iraqi tribe and killed every male over ten years' of age. They did not, however, molest the women who handed over their jewelry.

SPORTING SKITS

HOCKEY

SCOUTS 4; ROVERS 2

The Scouts, playing superior hockey in every way, defeated the fast Rovers team at the rink yesterday by a 4-2 score. The line-ups: Scouts—Goal, J. Petrick; defence, F. Ough, J. Winfield; centre, F. Lockington; wings, N. Strong, K. Kimmell; sub, G. Taylor.

Rovers—Goal, Fisher; defence, B. Welsh, J. Barley; centre, B. Rowcliffe; wings, F. Rynes, B. Taylor; sub, D. Henderson.

The Juniors had a light work-out last evening in preparation for their game in Whitby to-night. A sufficient number were present to allow two teams to be chosen, and a nice snappy game was put on. The new goalie tried out and did some fine work in the nets for a first attempt. The boys are showing considerable improvement in the accuracy of their shots and should carry off a win to-night. Here's hoping we get sweet revenge for Friday night's loss.

The Intermediates are practising hard getting into shape to give the Bowmanville Benedicts a warm reception next Friday night. The boys are still a little sore over the rough handling at Whitby's hands Friday night, and are looking forward to winning the group—just for spite.

The correct Intermediate Group 2 standing after last night's games is as follows:—

	Won.	Lost.	For.	Agst.
Trenton	6	0	22	16
Oshawa	5	1	25	11
Port Hope	4	1	31	18
Bowmanville	1	4	21	25
Whitby	3	4	15	32
Cobourg	0	10	9	23

Oshawa 9; Whitby 1

Sheriff Paxton's Whitby Intermediate puck-chasers went to Oshawa last evening to keep their return engagement in the group schedule, minus Chief of Police Charlie Lavery, their heady defence player, who is convalescing after his knock-out at Trenton, and the visitors got a sound trimming by 9 goals to 1. Rowden, Houck and Morris, with J. Smith and Stevens as subs, worked together, going through the weakened Whitby defence for nine goals, while D. Smith in Oshawa nets and Clark and Palmer in front of him, had the "Thou shalt not" sign hung up for two and a half periods when Dick Hall of Whitby shot one in from the side. The first period ended Oshawa 3, Whitby 0; the second, Oshawa 5, Whitby 0; and the final, Oshawa 9, Whitby 1.

Sammy Lowe, Oshawa's Intermediate left wing player, who was injured in the Oshawa at Trenton game at the first of the season, was out to see his teammates work last night for the first time since the accident. Under doctor's orders, Sammy will not climb aboard the steel blades for at least three weeks, and perhaps not again this season, which means a considerable handicap to the team. Whitby—Goal, O'Connor; defence, S. Hall and D. Hall; centre, Sleight-holm; wings, Bundy and Charlton; subs, Rogers and Toms.

Oshawa—Goal, D. Smith; defence, Clarke and Palmer; centre, Houck; wings, Rowden and Morris; subs, J. Smith and Stevens.

Referee—Herb Matthews, Toronto.

Trenton in Overtime Wins in Bowmanville

In the Intermediate O.H.A. game played in Bowmanville last night Trenton defeated the home team in ten minutes overtime, 10 to 9. The game was very exciting from start to finish, keeping the spectators on their toes the whole evening.

Bowmanville—Goal, Cannon; defence, Densum, A. Piper; centre, Avery; wings, L. Piper, Moyses; subs, Crossy and Bounsell.

Trenton—Goal, Bowen; defence, Anderson, Burns; centre, S. Honiker; wings, Schinzel, Wells; subs, Barre and Bulford.

Score by periods—First, Bowmanville 3, Trenton 3; second, Bowmanville 7, Trenton 6; third, Bowmanville 8, Trenton 8; overtime, Bowmanville 9, Trenton 10.

Referee—Harold Farlow.

"Bobby" Hewitson, one of hockey's cleanest referees, is slated to handle both Junior fixtures in which the locals are scheduled to appear this week. This looks like a square deal.

Manager Sutherland has ordered the initial practice of the Bankers for this evening. Some startling plays will be rehearsed, and it is rumored that the practice will be strictly private.

An Interscholastic game in which Port Hope was to meet Cobourg in the eastern village to-morrow was scheduled, but there is so much confusion as to grouping in the league that the fixture will probably be called off.

BASEBALL

A new baseball organization, with the object of giving Peterboro home-brew baseball next summer, and being practically an amalgamation of the players of last year's Central League and C.G.E. Midland League Clubs, has been launched, and will make application for a berth in the Central Ontario League. The officers of the new club, which will be known as the Peterboro Athletic and Baseball Club, are as follows:—

Hon. Presidents, Mayor J. T. Turner, and George C. MacDonald. President, Gordon Matthews. Vice-President, H. P. McFadden. Secretary, Doug. McDonald. Treasurer, Sheriff F. J. A. Hall. Executive, Robert Abbott, R. M. Glover, O. DeGraw, J. E. Sullivan and L. H. Bond.

"Shiner" Johnston has been appointed manager of the new organization, and players who have consented to throw in their lot with the club are—Ray Rose, Bob Ross, Jack McCarny, "Scotty" McPherson and Herb Wolfe of the C.G.E. team; Frank Whitehouse, pitcher of the Lakeviews, Jr. O.B.A.A. champions; and Al Heckman, Max Swanson, Hap. Harrison, Tommy Holyman, "Red" Legon, Jimmy Hall and other members of last year's Peterboro Central League Club.—Peterboro Examiner.

TAYLOR STATTON TO SPEAK TO BOYS

Methodist Ladies Aid to Banquet Boy Voters of the Church

A very attractive program has been drawn up for the banquet to be tendered on Wednesday evening to the boy electors of the Methodist Church by the Ladies' Aid.

About ninety of the voters who took part in the recent election of the member to the Boys' Parliament will partake of the delicious banquet which is being prepared. Two representatives from each of the other churches will also be present.

Taylor Statton, of Toronto, the great authority on boys' work, will be present, and will give the boys one of his interesting talks. Mr. Statton is an old favorite with the local boys, having been present at the banquet tendered to all the boys of the town in 1923. His talks are always relative to boys and boys' work, and are delivered in a humorous manner, which keeps his listeners spellbound.

The chief reason for holding the banquet is the formation of a local Boys' Work Board, an idea sponsored by the local member of Parliament, Hamilton Foster. Mr. Hamilton will be present and will speak regarding this Board. He will be aided in its actual formation by Mr. Statton.

The banquet is to begin at 6.45 sharp, and every Methodist boy whose name appears on the voters' list is urged to be present.

The program as arranged by the Committee will be as follows:—
