Boats Lost

Thirty-seven lives and 15 steamships, the greatest in a number of years, were lost on the Great Lakes during 1924, reports of underwriters revealed on Tuesday. The boats had a trip capacity of 36,300 tons.

The greatest loss of life was on the steamer Clifton, which foundered in Lake Huron the week of September 21, twenty-six members of the crew and two passengers going down with the ship. Five lives were lost on the steamer Orinoco, three on the Protection, and one on the State of Ohio, destroyed by fire at Cleveland.

Carmela Ponselle Slaved in Vaudeville to Let Sister Become Opera Star

A dream that was hidden behind a mile, ambition that gave way to sisterly sacrifice, was realized Sunday night when Carmela and Rosa Ponselle sang together at a Metropolitan concert.

The story begins years ago, in the ittle town of Meriden, Conn., where the Ponselle sisters began their carinto vaudeville, then separated pro-

TWO GREAT EVILS

Two of the greatest cvils affect ing society at the present day are lack of parental control in the home and indifference on the part of children to parental authority. Many a boy and girl can trace their downfall to either of these two evils. We see evidence of this every day, and the evils have grown to such an extent as to constitute a menace, which, if not checked, will ultimately lead to alarming conditions.

Disregard for parental authority most outstanding as well as most the story of a boy or girl's waywardness had its origin in the callous indifference of parents as well as the utter disregard of the child for obedience to parental authority. These reflections are suggested by a remarkable presentment of the Brocklyn grand jury to County Judge Vanse. The prevalence of crime and the fact that the vast majority of criminals are mere youths has been blamed on the Great War. They have told us with damneers as choir singers. Later they went able iteration what her grandfather told little Wilhelmine, "Such things carmela, the elder sister, stepped famous victory." That all such nothers. The presentment continues:

"An alarming number of children in Brooklyn are growing up with no religious training whatever. A prom inent jurist (Judge B. J. Humphrey) recently declared that in his great first night. THE GUIDE STORY

(Continued from Yesterday) Minny obeyed, and Mrs. Dent, leaning over the edge of the bed toward the door, strained her ears to eatch in 'Hester's frame. The sounds the first tones of the one loved voice. Footsteps were heard on the stairs; the door was opened, and Minny, coming in, followed by the lawyer, said: "It is Mr. Jenkins, ma'am, with the deeds."

Hester sank back upon the pillow, in the collapse of disappointment. It was not until Minny had given her a restorative that Mrs. Dent could rally strength to speak to her law-

"Have you brought them?" "Yes, madam."

"Are they quite ready for signature?"

"They only require your name and Colonel Dent's signed in the presence of witnesses

She awoke from a troubled sleep with "the one loved name" upon her "Has Ernest come, Juliette?"

"No, dear Hester; not yet." "What o'clock is it, Juliette?" "Ten."

"In two hours more, if Heaven spares me, the freedom of my people will be safe. My feet are very cold, Minny; so are my hands, cold and numb. Put some more cover on my feet, Minny; and rub my hands." Minny did as desired. After a while, she said:

"Rub harder, child; I can't feel that at all."

Minny rubbed with greater vigor. "Minny, child, raise some of this cover off my chest; it is too heavy for me; I cannot, somehow, breathe

Minny adjusted the cover and resumed her position. Hester fell off into another slumber, and in an hour awoke. She asked:

"What o'clock is it now?" "It wants a quarter to twelve."
"Juliette! Minny! Pick up the wick of the lamp; it is very dim, and help me up in the bed." They did as she requested. "Juliette, love-sit behind meand support me Minny, hand me the cordial; thank you, child. There,

THE FRET UPON THE FLOOR

Oh, listen to the music Of the childish voices sweet; And harken to the patter Of their tiny little feet;

The pitter patter, pitter patter, thro' the open door.
The patter of their little feet upon the oaken floor.

They climb upon the sofa, And make horses of the chairs; They bring the yellow mud in: And leave marks upon the stairs;

And yet there's nothing to this life that is to us more sweet Than the pitter patter, pitter patter, of those little feet.

They love to run and gallop, And make a terrible din, They love to kick poor pussy, Nor dream it is a sin.

But when at night the little eyes are closed in sleep so sweet. We miss the pitter patter of the restless little feet.

Poor grandpa says "Be quiet, And let me read a minute: No matter what the mischief is, You two are always in it."

But when he is away from home he always longs to meet elcome pitter patter of those noisy little feet.

Oh, little feet so eager, Oh, little hearts so true; Dear little hands so willing; And little eyes so blue;

God grant that when we all shall mee we'll hear the patter of your feet upon the heavenly floor.

THE INTERNAL PARASITE

Causes About Fifty Per Cent. of All Poultry Disease

How They Weaken the System-The Lye Treatment Is Best-Tapeworm Troubles Greed Feed for Poultry -The Farm Water Supply.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Internal parasites are responsible either directly or indirectly for fifty per cent. of the poultry losses. This means that millions of dollars are lost each year through the presence of these undesirable creatures. How Parasites Weaken the System-

Frequently autopsies of healthy birds reveal the presence of a considerable number of intestinal worms which have apparently, up to the time, not caused the bird any great physical harm. In many cases, however, birds become thin, emaciated and finally die. Heavily infested birds are much more susceptible to other diseases, as fowl cholera, tuberculosis, and roup. Practically all the nematodes infesting poultry have no intermediate host. Eggs passed with the droppings develop quickly if the soil of the poultry yard and the weather are favorable into the larval stage. The infective larvae are picked up by the same or other birds of the flock, and finally develop within the intestinal tract, into mature worms. The cycle goes on, more worms, more eggs, more worms, unless the poultry owner wakes up and decides to destroy the parasites that

A teaspoonful of concentrated lye mixed with each four quarts of grain, and cooked slowly for two hours and allowed to cool. The birds are given their ordinary feed one morning, and then nothing else until the next morning, when they are given as much of the lye mixture as they will eat. See that the water pan is filled. This treatment should be given twice during the summer. A four-week interval between treatments is essential. then removal of the birds to clean

How to Deal With Tapeworms.

Cestodes or tapeworm infesting fowl differ from the nematodes or round worms in that they require an intermediate host to carry on their life cycle. It has been demonstrated that the various species of snails, slugs, worms and files that may be found about poultry plants are intermediate hosts of the tapeworms that infest chickens. These white, ribbon like, segmented worms can be successfully combatted with the lye treatment as given for found worms. Sanitary precautions and rational treatment of the soil in the poultry runs is very essential in keeping tapeworm under control. Concentrated ive is cheap and effective. Why permit your poultry to continue as a convenient host to profit reducing parasites. The chickens cannot get rid of their tormentors unless you help them.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O. A. C., Guelph.

GREEN FEED FOR POULTRY.

The Best Hatches Are Generally Due to the Vitamines in Grass, Cabbage, Sprouted Oats, Etc. The old-time poultry man knew that it was necessary for the breeding birds to get outdoors during the hatching egg production season, if the results were to be really favor-able. Why the outdoor life made the difference he did not know, but we have learned since that the outdoor life had little to do with the Bachability of the eggs. The success was due to what the hen ate while free outdoors. Green grass and clover, cabbage, lettuce, hale, sprouted cats carry the fat soluble Vitamine D. which is essential for fertility and hatchability of the egg and the utilization in the body of phosphates of time, so essential in bones. The fat soluble Vitamine A is also present in all green feeds, and to a lesser extent in turnips, mangels, and rutabagas. The use of green feed in some form is absolutely essential if the hatchability of the egg and the riger of the chick is to reach a high standard. Many poor hatches in late winter and early spring are due to the breeding stock not receiving the vitamine carrying green feeds. Sprout nats and let them grow four inches high before feeding. Stock the feed storage cellar or pits with turnips, nangels and cabbage, and let the preeding stock have all such greea eed as they care to consume.-L. secvenson, Director of Extension,). A. C., Guelph.

BOY HAD A NARROW ESCAPE

Carbon Monoxide Gas ·From Truck Nearly Claimed Another Victim

Carbon monoxide gas nearly claimed another victim in Chatham on Tuesday, when a Detroit boy was partially overcome and collapsed on the sidewalk in front of a garage.

The boy, it apprars, had accom panied a Detroit man from Detroit at a garage to replenish his radiator and left the motor running. days. When he climbed back into the eab he noticed the lad sleeping, and endeavored to rouse him. He then perceived that the lad was sick and lifted him to the sidewalk, where he collapsed. Dr. Elgie was summoned and the boy quickly revived. It appears that the cab of the truck had become filled with the fumes from the exhaust pipe.

SPORTING EVENTS OF 1924 REVIEWEI

Outstanding Occurrences in the World of Sport During the Past Year

Nineteen-twenty-four was essentially an amateur year in sporting circles all over the world, for it was the year of the Olympic Games, and while the United States, with its great army of athletes, cleaned up in the final point score, other nations brought out stars that will live long Legal-Ald. There was Paavo Nurmi, of Finland, great distance runner, Abrahams and Liddell, of Great Britain, sprinting stars who caused the sensations of the games, when they rose above men like Charlie Paddock and Jackson Scholz, of the U. S., winning the 100 and 220 yard dashes; and there was Capada's outstanding hoekey team, made up mostly of the Granites, of Toronto, but taking in two or three other men from Montreal and Winnipeg, which won the world's amateur championship Chamonix, just outside Paris.

The amateurs in golf had a great year. "Bobby" Jones, youthful United street. States star, who before this year captured the U.S. open title, succeeded in 1924 for the first time in annexing amateur honors. Miss Glenna Collett, who succeeded Miss Alexa Stirling a couple of years ago as the Queen of the American links, not only retained her U. S. championship this year, but also was again crowned with Canadian laurels for the second time in succession.
