After the march back to the park a program of addresses was then carried out, with Major John McCaughey as chairman. A hearty address of welcome was given by Mayor Gummöw, to which Lieut. Col. John Huges Clark made apt and appropriate reply. L. B. Collins, Past Master of Eastern Ontario; James Worrell, Deputy Grand Master of the True Blues; E. A. Maclean, P.M.; Col. Hughes, Rev. Wm. Beattie, Rev. A. F. Pollock, Cobourg; Rev. A. Ben Oliel, Lakefield; Rev. J. S. La Flair of this town and others gave brief addresses. It was one of the largest demonstrations ever witnessed in Eastern Ontario, and was entered into enthusiastically by old and young, there being a number of veterans in the parade.

Upon returning to town the local lodges and Canton lodge paraded through the Main street and a large crowd gave them a hearty welcome.

Canadian Northern Railway FREIGHT SHEDS BEING CON-STRUCTED.

Foundations for the Canadian Northern freight sheds have been laid east of the Ontario street over-head bridge and a gang of men are busy erecting the building. More grading is being done to make the approaches to the freight sheds

On account of the heavy embank-ments near the viaduct having been placed while there was frost in the earth, there was a lot of settling in the clay. This has occasioned the sarth, there was a lot of settling in the clay. This has occasioned the use of a large amount of gravelling to bring the rails up to grade, but a good roadbed will be the result.

The viadust is about complete. The guard rails are nearly all in position, and the sidewalk and hand rail is about completed.

The station building is very tasteful and convenient for its purposes. The main waiting room is floored with maple, the walls finished in panels of green burlap and the ceil-

BAD ACCIDENT

Orangeman Fell From Moving Train and Had His Head Badly Cut

A young man by the name o Dean from Fraserville, who was attending the Orange Celebration at Cobourg, met with a very painful accident, yesterday alternoon. He was standing on the steps of the excursion train, which was about to leave Cobourg, and as it started he was thrown off. He fell to the ground with great force, striking his head against one of the rails and inflicting a terrible gash. He was picked up in an unconscious condition and taken to the hospital. He spent a very restless night, but we are unable to learn anything about his condition to-day.

THE GAS SHORTAGE

Yesterday about noon the gas supply ran short. The reduction in price, coupled with the hot weather, the increased consumption at the Canning Factory, owing to overtime work is responsible for this condition. The gas company officials inform the Gurne that an extra bench of retorts is being hurried into commission so that there will be an abundant supply of gas and little chance of another shortage. Dare the Gas Co. make another reduction in rates? or would the increased demand for gas swamp the facilities if they did.

In the night fell a sprinkling of snow, and when the sun rose it gleamed from a sky of pale, frosty blue. A ten o'clock Godwin sat out for his usual walk, choosing the direction of the Old Tiverton Road. It was a fortnight since he had passed the Warricombes' house. At present he was disposed to indulge the thoughts which a sight of it would make active.

He had begun the ascent of the hill when the sound of an approaching vehicle caused him to raise his eyes—they were generally fixed on the ground when he walked alone. It was only a hired fly. But, as it passed him, he recognised the face he had least expected to see,—Sidwell Warricombe sat in the carriage, and unaccompanied. She noticed him—smiled—and bent forward. He clutched at his hat, but it happened that the driver had turned to look at him, and, instead of the salute he had intended, his hand waved to the man to stop. The gesture was scarcely voluntary when he saw the carriage pull up, his heart sank; he felt guilty of monstrous impudence. But Sidwell's face appeared at the window, and its expression was anything but resential; she offered her hand, too. Without preface of formal phrase he exclaimed:

"How delightful to see you so unexpectedly! Are you all here?

"Only mother and I. We have come for a day or two."

Will you allow me to call? If only for a day or two."

He stepped back and signed to the driver. Sidwell bent her head and was out of sight.

But the carriage was visible for some distance, and even when he could no longer see it he heard the horse's hoofs on the hard road. Long after the last sound had died away his heart continued to beat painfully, and, he breathed as if recovering from a hard run.

How beautiful were these lanes and hills, even in midwinter!

Once more he sang aloud in his joyous solitude. The hope he had The Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior has compiled statistics dealing with the poles purchased in Canada during 1910. The sheriff of a certain county in Engiand, being of a jocular turn of mind, quietly picked a Jury of the twelve fattest men eligible for the purpose—men so fat that when they appeared in court and the time came for them to take up their position in the Jury box it was found that but nine of them could be accommodated. However, by rearrangement and aqueening and amid the bolsterous laughter of the court they finally succeeded in crowding lato their altotted quarters—a packed fury in the most literal sense. Enderse Laurier's Idea.

London, July 11.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—
Referring to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's statement that he had stood at each conference for the right of each nation to govern itself. The Westminster Gazette says that is the true basis of Empire, though it may lead to difflientites, none of them insuperable.
We have to start on this basis and will be able to rear a satisfactory and enduring structure by loyal, affectionate co-operation between the mother and the dominions.
