FATAL ACCIDENT

At Canning Factory—Mr. Wm Mercer Loses His Life By Explosion of a Retort.

Mr. William Mercer who resides just north of the G. T. R. viaduct met with an accident while at work at the Canning Factory about six o'clock last evening which proved fatal.

Mr. Mercer was engaged in the back room cooking peas in one of the retorts and it is thought he neglected to fasten the door of the retort securely. When the steam reached a certain pressure the door was blown off breaking in two pieces and striking Mr. Mercer with great force. The forty-five cans of peas which were in the retort at the time of the explosion were also strewn in every direction and it is thought that many of these struck him.

The injuries were numerous and very severe. Both bones of the right forearm were broken with a compound fracture of the left leg below the knee. There was also a compound fracture of the left knee cap, the left thigh was broken the left arm and left forearm and left collar bone were broken and also the upper six ribs of the left side. Drs. McKinley and Forest were called and did everything possible for the injured man but he passed away this morning at six o'clock. Notwithstanding his numerous injuries and the severe shock to his system the deceased remained conscious all the time and talked quite freely.

At the request of the family coroner McKinley has ordered an inquest and the chief is empanelling the jury to-day.

THE PASSING OF THE DREADNOUGHT?

London Advertiser
American papers are taking an interest in the recent announcement that Sir Philip Watts, director of construction for the British admiralty has devised a much smaller and less expensive battleship to do the work of a Dreadnought with the speed of a destroyer. Time was when the old fashioned Yankee paid no attention to European wars and rumours of wars. He lived peaceably at home skinning buffaloes and English immigrants, he let the outside world go by, and hardly thought of the game of gunning on the high seas. But now he keeps up a fleet with the best of them, and is getting ready to follow old England's lead in the new invention.

If the new battleship is to sail nearly forty miles an hour, with guns the equal of those carried by the Dreadnought, it ought to have the name of dreadnought-destroyer.

The German navy of 1912, which took away the appetites of panic-stricken jingoes a year or so ago, will soon look like Spanish galleons an easy prey for the lightning manoeuvres of the coming British fleet. The best thing about Sir Philip Watt's invention is that it will again put the emphasis on seamanship more than on mere equipment. This should suit Great Britain, which was said to be handicapped by her own creation of the Dreadnought, in the maintenance of the sovereignty of the seas.

Canada may also be pleased with the cautious policy of her government a year ago in omitting the expensive Dreadnought and starting our navy with the permanently useful cruiser, instead of expensive Dreadnoughts costing 15 millions each, that would have been useless and replaced by another style of battleship.

Where Will Timber for Hudson Bay Railway Be Obtained

Where is the timber for the construction of the Hudson Bay Railway to be obtained? and will the country through which the line passes be able to furnish it?

To answer these questions was the main object of a survey party sent out by the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior in the summer of 1910. The report of the head of the party (Mr. J. R. Dickson, B. S. A., B. S. F., Assistant Inspector of Forest Reserves) has just been published, and is of great interest to those concerned in the building of the road.

THE ROUTE OF THE PARTY.
Starting at The Pas, on the Saskatchewan River, the party traversed the country around Mitishto lake, the Mitishto river, the Grass river system, with its many lake expansions (including Wekusko lake) Pakwa (or Pakwahigan) lake, Setting and Split lake, and the Nelson river system, including Cross and Sipiwesk lake, Wintering and Landing lakes. The return journey was made by way of the Minago (or Pine) river. Some two hundred and thirty-five (235) miles of the line of the proposed route of the railway was thus covered.

HOW THE PARTY WORKED.
The party was composed of the chief forester and three field assistants and five others. The work was of the nature of a reconnaissance, the method adopted being to run lines at intervals of three to six miles, the compass being used to give the direction. The men worked singly and an average day's work was four to six miles and return. Field glasses were carried, and were often used to get an idea of country that could not be reached on foot.

THE TIMBER.

The sizable timber is confined almost entirely to the water-courses. Spruce is, generally speaking, the only timber that is found large enough for saw-timber or railway ties. The poplar, birch and jack pine are invariably too short, spindly, limby and crooked for any use save fuel or pulpwood. Very few live tamarac trees are to be had; the rest have been killed by bark-beetles.

The total number of ties available in the district covered is estimated at about 350,000, which, at 3,000 ties to the mile, would be sufficient for about half the distance covered. Of saw-timber there are about nine and a half million feet. For pile timber the dead tamarac and the largest of the close-grained black spruce could be used. There is a very large supply of fuelwood available, and there will also be a large supply of pulpwood, but much of the timber is as yet too small even for that.

TIMBER DESTRUCTION

The destruction of timber (and this, be it observed, in a district where lumbermen have never penetrated) is tremendous. Fire and insects are responsible for this, especially the former. Practically every part of the (approximately) eight thousand square miles covered by the survey party has been visited by two great general fires, one eighty years ago, the other forty. In quite a number of places the fire had evidently leaped lakes a mile, or more, in width. Often a fire lives all winter in the dry moss and breaks out again in the spring following.

Bark beetles have also done an incalculable amount of damage. They have killed practically all the tamarac and are now at work on the mature spruce.

After the trees have been killed by the beetles, a windstorm (and severe windstorms are very frequent in the region) overthrows the fallen trees and the mass of debris which forms is ignited by a lightning flash. So a severe fire starts and may burn over many miles of country.

CAN FIRES BE PREVENTED

The protection of the timber of the region from fire is a tremendous problem. Extension of the patrol is suggested, but in a country so large and practically uninhabited it would be a task of great difficulty to check a fire, if once it got started, by the ranger ever so efficient. As to starting fire Mr. Dickson considers the Indians more careful than white men, and far more so than the half-breeds.

RATE OF GROWTH.

So far as investigated, the rate of growth of trees in the region is very slow. A period of one hundred years will produce white spruce of a diameter of eight to twelve inches, poplar of eight to ten inches and black spruce of four to five inches. It is the cold wet soil of the muskegs which is largely to blame for the slow growth, the country being so level that good natural drainage cannot be secured.

Brief notes are given in regard to the character, soil, climate, plant growth and agricultural possibilities of the region, its minerals, fish, game and fur animals, and these will be found of great interest.

A TROUBLESOME MISGIVING

Had he been seated near enough he would have been tempted to the boldness of taking her hand. What more encouragement did he await? But the distance between them was enough to check his embarrassed impulses. He could not even call her 'Sidwell'; it would have been easier a few minutes ago before she had begun to speak with such calm friendliness. Now in spite of everything he felt that to dare such a familiarity must needs call upon him the reproof of astonished eyes.

'I think so. You have promised me to be cheerful until we are home again.'

'A promise to be cheerful wouldn't mean much. But it does mean much that I can think of what you have said to-day.'

Sidwell did not speak, and her silence seemed to compel him to rise. It was strange how remote he still felt from her pure, grave face, and the flowing outlines of her figure. Why should he not say to her, 'I love you; give me your hands; give me your lips?' Such words seemed impossible. Yet passion thrilled in him as he watched the grace of her movements, the light and shadow upon her features. She had risen and come a step or two forward.

'I think you look taller—in that dress.'

The words rather escaped him than were spoken. His need was to talk of common things, of trifles that so he might come to feel humanly.

Sidwell smiled with unmistakable pleasure.

'Do I? Do you like the dress?'

'Yes. It becomes you.'

'Are you critical in such things?'

'Not with understanding. But I should like to see you every day in a new and beautiful dress.'

'Oh I couldn't afford it!' was the laughing reply.

He offered his hand; the touch of her warm soft fingers fired his blood.

'Sidwell!'

It was spoken at last, involuntarily, and he stood with his eyes on hers, her hand crushed in his.

'Some day!' she whispered.

If their lips met, the contact was so slight as to seem accidental; the mere timorous promise of a future kiss. And both were glad of the something that had imposed restraint.

When Sidwell went up to her mothers' sitting room, a servant had just brought tea.

'I hear that Mr. Peak has been, said Mrs. Warricombe, who looked puffy and uncomfortable after her sleep. 'Emma was going to take to the study, but I thought it unnecessary. How could he know that we were here?'

'I met him this morning on my way into the town.'

'Surely it was rather inconsiderate of him to call.'

'He asked if he might.'

Mrs. Warricombe turned her head and examined Sidwell.

'Oh! And did he stay long?'

'Not very long,' replied Sidwell who was in a quiet good-humour.

'I think it would have been better if you had told him by the servant that I was not well enough to see callers. You didn't mention that he might be coming.'

Mrs. Warricombe's mind worked slowly at all times, and at present she was suffering from a cold.

'Why didn't you speak of it, Sidwell?'

'Really—I forgot,' replied the daughter, lightly.

'And what had he to say?'

'Nothing new, methinks. Is your head better, dear?'

There was no answer. Mrs. Warricombe had conceived a vague suspicion which was so alarming that he would not press inquiries alluding to it. The encouragement given by her husband to Godwin Peak in the latter's social progress had always annoyed her, though she could not frame solid objections. To be sure, to say of a man that he is about to be ordained meets every possible question that society can put; but Mrs. Warricombe's uneasiness was in part due to personal dislike. Ottener than not, she still thought of Peak as he appeared some eleven years ago—an evident plebeian, without manners, without a redeeming grace. She knew the story of his relative who had opened a shop in Kingsmill; thinking of that now, she shuddered.

Sidwell began to talk of indifferent matters, and Peak was not again mentioned.

Her throat being still troublesome, Mrs. Warricombe retired very soon after dinner. About nine o'clock Sidwell went to the library, and sat down at her father's writing desk, purposing a letter to Sylvia. She penned a line or two, but soon lapsed into reverie, head on her hands. Of a sudden the door was thrown open, and there stood Buckland, fresh from travel.

(To Be Continued.)

'There's a burglar in the house!' whispered Mrs. Skimbob in an agonized voice. 'Go down, James, and see.'

'Nonsense!' replied her hubby sleepily. 'You're dreaming.'

'But I can hear him, James,' she persisted. 'There! He's reached the table with the cigar box.'

'Which cigar box?' exclaimed James, sitting up. 'The one you gave me last Christmas?'

'Yes. I can hear him taking it up and putting it down again. Listen! He's struck a match! James, he must be going to smoke!'

'Then in that case, my dear,' replied James, 'let's go to sleep again. We shall find the poor wretch in the morning.'—London Answers.

The time that you were worried over what you feared might be— A needless worry, after all you found— For days and days the world was jangled fiercely off the key. And there was neither cheering sight nor sound. And all that left its wrinkle carved its story firm and deep. For worry has an art that's true and deft. You had a lot of useless loss of appetite and sleep. And—was it worth the wrinkle that it left?

The time that you were busy—you had something big to do, You plotted and you studied and you schemed; You held your place determined that you'd drive the project through, Until you'd dared and done all that you dreamed. And now a wrinkle tells it, and the heartless wrinkles trace The stories we would rather none should find, There's something sort of soulless—wrinkled down into your face Was all that worth the wrinkle left behind?

In making this statement I back it up with my promise that if my remedy does not substantiate my claim in every particular, I will without question or quibble return every cent you paid me for it. I take all the risk—you take none.

I strongly recommend Rexall Eczema Ointment, which possesses remarkable cleansing, antiseptic, germicidal, soothing and healing qualities. It is a grayish-white emolient, with a pleasant odor, and very cleanly for use. The first application produces a refreshing sense of relief, and it it quickly subsides and overcomes the inflammation, irritation and discharge when present.

It is intended to be applied with a piece of muslin or linen, or it may be applied and allowed to dry in. It affords very prompt relief for pimples, blotches, discolorations, ringworm, acne, tetter, barbers' itch, ulcers, insect bites, nettle rash, hives, sores and wounds.

Rexall Eczema Ointment relieves itching and irritation of the feet. It is ideal for the treatment of children who are tormented with itching, burning and disfiguring skin diseases. REVOLUTION IN HAYTI.

Government Troops Routed in Battle—U. S. Interests Threatened.

Port au Prince, Hayti, July 19.—The revolution progresses. The Government troops were routed at Trou and have returned in disorder to Cape Haytien. The situation is calm here, but if the Government fails it is feared there will be disorders, as all the disciplined troops are in the north.

Another U. S. Cruiser. Washington, July 19.—At the request of the U. S. Minister at Port au Prince, the United States will send another gunboat to Hayti waters to protect Americans and their interests, now seriously threatened by the revolution against President Simon. The gunboat Petrel is already at Port Liberté, on the north coast.

Germans Are Expelled. Kingston, Jamaica, July 19.—Mail advices from Hayti state that several prominent Germans have been expelled from the country on the grounds of alleged support given by them to the revolution.

Exiled Shah Returns. Teheran, Persia, July 19.—Mohammed Ali Mirza, the exiled Shah of Persia, has returned to his own land for the purpose of making another bid for the throne. The ex-Shah is now at Gumesb Tepa, a small port in the Caspian Sea, in the northern part of Persia, near the Russian border, and it is stated that a Russian vessel conveyed him to that place.

Soon after Mohammed Ali Mirza was dethroned in July, 1909, he proceeded to Russia and arrived at Odessa in October of the same year. The Russian Government undertook by protocol to keep the ex-Shah under strict surveillance and prevent all intrigues with respect to his return to Persia, and possibly to the throne. Notwithstanding this, the deposed Shah has made progress through Russia quite rapidly and without molestation from Odessa to Gumesb, a distance of about 1,000 miles. What force Mohammed has with him is not known.

Opposed the Merger. Montreal, July 19.—Lieut.-Col. F. S. Meighen was yesterday elected president of the Lake of the Woods Milling Co., succeeding his late father in that position. The new president had been a director of the company for several years and had also occupied the trusteeship. No director to fill the place left vacant on the board by the election of the new president has as yet been named.

Lieut.-Col. Meighen's appointment to the presidency means that the anti-merger policy of the company, inaugurated by his late father, will be steadfastly adhered to.

Hindered the Firemen. Cardiff, Wales, July 19.—Serious rioting occurred on the docks yesterday, arising from the strike troubles, in which a dozen policemen and a score of civilians were badly injured. During the riots a large dock warehouse caught fire. It is suspected that an incendiary applied the match. The rioters interfered with the efforts of the firemen to extinguish the flames, and looted the warehouse of hogsheads of liquor, which they consumed. The police have been ordered here from Newport, and there is great fear of renewed rioting of a more serious nature.

Suicide in Cell. Peterboro, July 19.—George Hop, aged 51, unmarried, suicided in a police cell yesterday morning by cutting his throat with a pocket-knife.

Having been arrested for the fourth time on a charge of being drunk, he had been in the cells all the previous day and late Monday night had sobered up.

Castro Still Missing. Washington, D.C., July 19.—The world search for Ciphrano Castro, "the man without a country," is still continued.

Apparently authentic reports that he was in or near Venezuela embarked upon a revolutionary movement finally have proved erroneous.

COMMITTED SUICIDE

In Peterboro Jail—Was In Prison For Being Drunk.

Peterboro Review.

Stiff and cold in death with a deep gash on the right side of his neck, and lying amid pools of blood with considerable clotted on his face and forehead, the body of George Hope, 184 London street, 51 of years of age was found in the first cell of the local police station at 5.20 this morning by Sergt. Adams. From all appearance death had been self inflicted.

USED POCKET KNIFE.

A steel pocket-knife with an inch and a quarter blade was found sticking in the door frame at the cell covered with blood. Splashes of blood and finger prints were plainly visible on the plastered walls and several large pools of blood were in the vicinity of the corpse. The body was resting in a reclining position on the floor with the back propped up against the west wall, and the head tilted over on the cell bench.

ARRESTED YESTERDAY.

The unfortunate man was arrested at 9.15 yesterday morning by P. C. Middleton, in a badly intoxicated state and was placed in the cell. Being in such a condition he was unfit to be tried at the usual 10 o'clock police court session and was left in the cell until he sobered sufficiently to allow him to appear at court this morning. The deceased was last seen alive in the cell about 11 o'clock last evening when he appeared to have sobered up. He pleaded to be allowed his liberty and also asked for a drink of water which was given him.

SPORTING SKITS

SOFT BALL LEAGUE.

Before a crowd of about fifty people in Thompson's field last evening, the Y.M.C.A. team in the soft ball league demonstrated the fact that even against tremendous odds they were able to come back, although it has been suggested that horseshoes were attached to the club boys.

The game when it started was Baptist all the way, and the mystifying slants of Clarke, their twirler, were simply impossible to the Y.M.C.A. At one stage the score was 13-3 in favor of the Baptists, but at the end of the fourth spasm it stood 16 all. After that the Baptists were in trouble and the enthusiasm was unbounded. All the fielders vied with each other in making sensational catches.

The Y.M.C.A. took advantage of every mistake that was made, and slowly came up. In the fifth innings both teams got away with a double. The last turn was exciting to the finish and with one down the Y.M.C.A. nosed out in the sixth with a score of 17-16.

With another few games the Baptists look like a sure thing.

Skip Jordan added another victory in his list last evening defeating Skip Fultord by a score of 13 to 12. Skip Jordan lead in section A. and holds the distinction of being the only skip in the club without a defeat.

A Newspaper Office More Than a School.

A prominent Methodist minister, well and favorably known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, said to the editor recently: "If I had half a dozen boys I would want every one of them to spend a few years in a good newspaper office, even if they went into other callings afterwards, for in my opinion a newspaper office is far more than a school. It is a university."

Here is the opinion of another class of minister—United States Minister to Copenhagen: "When I want a private secretary I get a newspaperman," said Dr. Egar in Chicago recently. "Always it has been my contention that newspaper work is the best training in the world for men who expect to go into business or the broader walks of life. No other profession gives a man such a broad view of life. He is able to look at things from an angle unobtainable by anyone else, and despite the wide range he has to cover, I find him at the same time a master of detail. There's a reason for it, too. A good newspaper man knows his subject before he writes about it. He has little time to spend in studying it; he must have the ability to get to the real situation without spending hours on it. Unconsciously he trains himself to grasp the details and remember them."
