'I don't think I shall. They are too respectable.' PORT HOPE, JUNE 7, 1911

'Nonsense! They seem very open-minded; you really can't ex-pect absolute unconventionality. Is it desirable? Really is it, now? -Suppose I were to marry some day Marcella, do you think my household would be unconventionfrom their point of view. And there really must be such restrict-ions, you know. How very few people are capable of what you call sincere heterodoxy, in morals or re-ligion! your position is unphilo-sophical; indeed it is. Take the world as you find it, and make friends with kind, worthy people. you have suffered from a needless isolation. Do accept this opportunity of adding to your acquaint-ances!-Do Marcella! I shall take it as a great kindness, dear girl. His sister let her head lie back against the chair, her face averted. A stranger seated in Christian's place, regarding Marcella whilst her features were thus hidden, would have thought it probable that she was a woman of no little beauty. Her masses of tawny hair, her arms and hands, the pose and outline of her figure, certainly suggested a countenance of corres-ponding charm, and the ornate richness of her attire aided such an impression. This thought came to Christian as he gazed at her; his eyes always so gentle, softened to a tender compassion. As the silence continued, he looked uneasily about him; when at length he spoke, it was as though a matter of trifling moment had occurred to him.

'Bye-the-bye, I am told that Malkin (Earwaker's friend, you know) saw Peak not long ago-in America.'

Marcella did not change her position, but at the sound of Peak's name she stirred, as if with an intention, at once checked, of bending eagerly torward. In America?, she asked incredulously.

U. S. Senate Committee Refuses to Pass It Intact

DEMOCRATS WILL OPPOSE

They Say Boldly That They Will Fight Strenuously Any Attempt to Amend Reciprocity Bill - Root's Amendment Leaves Paper and Pulp In the Hands of the President-Friends Are Still Confident.

Washington, June 7 .- Hopes of the administration here that the finance committee of the Senate would report the Canadian reciprocity bill un-amended were dashed yesterday, when, after a brief executive session of the committee, it was learned that the Root amendment to the paper and wood pulp section probably would be adopted in modified form. It was said that, in addition to seven Republican members of the com-rittee, Senators Bailey, Simmons and Johnson, Democrats, would vote for the amendment, while Senators Pen-rose and Cullom are declared to be with the three Democrats in opposi-tion the amendment is adoption of tion, thus presaging the adoption of the amendment by a vote of ten to five Final consideration of the measure will be begun by the committee te-day.

The amendment offered by Senator Root provides that the paper and wood pulp section of the bill spall not be pulp section of the bill shall not be in force until the President shall have satisfactory evidence and shall make proclamation that such wood pulp, paper and board, being the products of the United States, are admitted into all the provinces of Canada free of duty."

It is contended by its opponents that the amendment, raising the ques-tion of the Dominion Government's jurisdiction over the provinces, will endanger the measure, a contention that is refuted by those who believe in the provision. The modification of mendment may have an importthe ant bearing on the situation. Secretary of State Knox was expected to appear before the committee yesterday to explain the agreement between the two Governments, but was prevented, he sent word, by import-ant engagements. The Secretary said he had forwarded to the committee a communication setting forth his views. A decided majority of the Demoerats are favorable to reciprocity, but ecmparatively recently many of the disposed toward political advantage, made the condition that the Canadian made the condition that the Canadian bill should receive no consideration except in connection with the pet Democratic measure. They have abandoned that attitude, and now an-nounce boldly that they will oppose all amendments of whatever nature. They have gone to the extent of re-jecting overtures from the progres-sives, which a prosives, which are coupled with a pro-mise on the part of the latter to tack the free list on to the reciprocity bill. "We want a vote on the free list," they say, "and shall insist on having it, but it must be separate from reciprocity."

Advocates of the bill are confident success, but the vote will be preceded for several weeks with intense struggle and strong resistance in the meantime. No one predicts a vote earlier than July 15, and some extend the time by a month. "And with reciprocity disposed of," declared. Senator Stone yesterday, "I should say that we ought to stay here until we merge this session into the pext regular session, and that session into the second regular, if we don't get a vote on the free list."

small. Asked as to the law under which a Picton farmer was fined $25 for refusing to answer questions put by the enumerator, Mr. Blue pointed to sections 46 to 51 of the Census Act, which provides that as the maximum penalty for each refusal to give the required information. The only other case of this kind which has been brought to the notice of the Department is that of a Grey County farmer, who gave what the enumerator believed to be an inaccurate statement, afterwards saying to his wife, "Well, he didn't get much out of me." The enumerator is being instructed to question this man again, and if the answers are still improper, to proceed against him.

TWO TINY HEROES

French Lighthouseman's Children Keep Light Revolving.

THEIR FATHER LAY DYING

Case Has Been Brought to the Notice of French Government, Where Children on Coast of Brittany, After Their Father Dropped Down With a Sudden Illness, Kept

Lamp Turning All Night.

Paris, June 7.-Straining with their tiny arms past the point of weariness where strong men cease from strug-gling, the two little children of Jean Matelot, keeper of Kerdonis light-house, on the southeast point of Belle nouse, on the southeast point of belle Ile-En-Mer, a windswept spot on the Brittany coasts, kept the great light revolving through a long night of storm and held the signal true for ships making the perilous passage through the storm.

These tiny tots, aged respectively ? and 10 years, whose heroism has been brought to the notice of the French Government, took up their task only after death had stilled the laboring hands of their father and their mother had dropped from exhaustion in an effort to care for the stricken father and to repair the broken mechanism of the light.

While cleaning the revolving light, Matelot was stricken with a sudden illness. He stuck to his task and the mechanism was almost in order when dropped dying beside his work. Noting the strange stillness in the light tower, the wife clambered up the winding stair through a driving gale and, after assisting her dying hus-band to their tiny house at the foot of the light, she again ascended to the light to carry on the task which for many years has yielded them their scanty living. As dusk drew on, the gale increas ed and the skies became overcast. The woman struggled desperately with the machinery which revolves the heavy light. At last her willing arms would respond to her will no longer. The wife fell where the husband had dropped. When she recovered from her swoon the need for action was borne in on her weary brain, and she forced her tottering limbs to carry her to the cot below. There she ar-rived just in time to hear her husband's last words, gasped out in a broken voice: "The light-you must fix the light!"

The woman made another effort to The woman made another effort to mount the tower, but her weary limbs could not drag her through the buf-feting wind. She gave up this effort, but sent her two little ones to carry on their father's lifelong task. She knew that the mechanism was out of order, but she knew that the light muct be best employed if it was not must be kept revolving if it was not to be mistaken for other fixed lights on the channel, when disaster was al-most certain to follow. She told the children that the light must be kept turning, and they mounted to their task.

There, through the long night, they their little muscles to the undrove drove their little muscles to the un-equal labor. With panting breath and aching arms they kept the great light revolving until daylight came when they dropped at their posts from sheer weariness. When the heroism of the little ones became known among the sailor folk 'ashore, one old woman piously remarked: "And a little child shall lead them."

It is for the prospective claimants and the widows and orphans of our dear bre-thren who died in full confidence that the precious trust left in charge of the conference would be safely and sacredly guarded that I feel deep concern," he said. It was 11.30 o'clock before the question was finally put to a vote. Rev. A. I. Terryberry's amendment advocating federal union as a prelude to inevitable organic union was submit-ted to a standing vote and was lost 17 to 143.
