

STATEMENT GIVEN BY HEADMASTER

McMaster University At Woodstock Will Provide Excellent Accommodation

The following official statement has been issued to the Guide by Rev. Dr. F. Graham Orchard, headmaster of Trinity College School: "The senior boys of Trinity College School, comprising the whole of the upper and middle schools, will very shortly be housed in Woodstock College, Ontario, where the fullest equipment is all ready for 150 boys and masters. The classrooms and science laboratories are ready for class work. There is a chapel, dining hall, library, reading room, writing room, a fine gymnasium and a swimming tank and hospital quarters. The building was erected in 1904 and has steam heating throughout and is in a very satisfactory state of repair. The governing body of McMaster University have generously placed this building and equipment at the disposal of Trinity College School, who will take up their residence there within a fortnight. There are thirty acres of playing fields suitable for football, cricket and tennis."

PRISON DOORS CLOSE ON RAYNOR

R. H. Raynor Is Nervous But Anxious to Pay Debt for Alleged Misdeed

It was a beautiful day to everyone but R. H. Raynor of Picton, who Thursday afternoon entered the gloomy portals of the penitentiary. He drove down from Picton to the Kingston penitentiary in one of Welbanks' motors. He was in the charge of Constable James Lovelace of Bloomfield, who arrested Raynor months ago for alleged fraudulent transactions in motor cars. "Have you anything to say before you enter the prison," he was asked but before he could reply Constable Lovelace pulled him away and marched him to the door which quickly opened. Constable Lovelace said Raynor was a good fellow. He had been a dutiful prisoner and in all his relations with him he found him always square. During the drive to Kingston he had little to say about his troubles.

PORT HOPE IN THROES OF STORM

Peterboro Highway Is Clear but Side Roads Are Impassable

King Winter revelled Friday in all its hiemal glory, but although damage and inconvenience was wrought in other districts in Ontario, Port Hope and neighborhood did not fare too badly. Old Man Winter got tired of his politeness and swept down on Ontario in a blustering rage, tying up traffic at several points and hampering train and bus service. The Department of Highways issued warnings to keep automobiles off the roads. "Better take a train," they said. The Motor League's early today issued similar warnings. The Port Hope-Peterboro highway which has been giving trouble since earlier in the week, was the only main road in this section to become blocked as a result of the blizzard. Every available snow plow was engaged to keep the highway open and this morning it is reported that the road is practically clear. Considerable difficulty was experienced at Scott's Corners where drifts piled up to the extent of several feet. Although practically a foot of snow fell, the provincial highway through the town is open to the east and west, but motorists have considerable difficulty in getting through owing to the snow. The side roads in the rural districts are impassable. The Belleville-Toronto and Cobourg-Toronto transportation lines were practically on schedule as well as the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific trains. Telegraphic and telephone communication is at normal and no effects by these lines are felt here. The storm subsided early Friday evening.

Swirling snow, heavy gales and a lower temperature visited Belleville. The result has been the complete tie up of all traffic as well as much inconvenience to the citizens. The blizzard started early Friday, with a heavy snowstorm, the wind increasing in intensity until it was a gale and the snow was piled high on the walks and against the buildings. Toward night the mercury went down, sending citizens shivering to their homes. The high wind caused trouble at both the Hydro and Bell Telephone plants and a large gang of men were sent out to repair the damage. The morning trains in and out of the city were held close to the schedule, but the night trains were from one to two hours late. Snow plows of the railways were out for the first time this winter.

Fruit Growers Pleased

The biggest snowstorm of the winter struck St. Catharines Friday afternoon and great quantities of the snow fell. The farmers and fruit-growers look on the heavy snowfall as a good thing, however, as it has covered the fall wheat and lower parts of the trunks of the fruit trees giving protection from frost, besides providing fertilizer. A heavy fall of snow has stopped all traffic in Orangeville for the present. Roads are blocked and the train service is poor. The heaviest snowfall of the winter has fallen in Woodstock during the last twenty four hours, and as a result many of the roads running north and south are badly blocked by snow drifts. The snow started to come down Thursday night and, blown before an east wind, has continued steadily all day today. The blizzard which has waged during the course of the last two days has interfered with railway traffic for a distance in all directions from North Bay. The Canadian National lines experienced great difficulty in combating the fury of the storm on its lines between Capreol and Alandale, and it was only with the use of all plows and the services of the maintenance-of-way men that traffic was permitted to proceed.

WANTS TO LIVE ANOTHER 100 YRS.

Pre-Automobile Picton Patriarch Would Like to See Speed Progress

One hundred years ago Thursday George Daniels Printer of Picton was born in Birmingham, Norfolk, England. He crossed the Atlantic by sailing ship and arrived in Picton in September, 1880. Mr. Printer went to Trenton where he resided continuously until 1916, when he returned to Picton. His wife died at the age of 81 in November, 1923, and two sons died in infancy. One son, Edward Printer, with whom he resides, is living at Picton.

The old gentleman despite his century of years retains all faculties to a remarkable degree. He wears glasses when reading and has used tobacco continuously from which he claims no ill effects. For sixty years he has been a familiar figure around the countryside of Hastings and Prince Edward counties. Mr. Printer relates many interesting incidents of the pre Confederation days and of the pioneer times when automobiles, radios and airships were unknown. He says that he would like to live another hundred years just to see what advancements in invention and world speed would occur.

DOUBTS THEORY OF PIRATE CREW

Constable Lovelace Who Found Wrecked Sea Hawk Scouts Piracy Story

"I don't believe for a minute the story that the Sea Hawk which put out from Charlotte on a wintry mission to Canada, was attacked by a pirate crew on Lake Ontario, robbed of many thousands of dollars and then wrecked on the shore of Prince Edward county." This opinion expressed by Constable James Lovelace of Bloomfield, who found the Sea Hawk, weeks after her disappearance, covered with snow on the coast line near Pleasant Bay. "I dug the Sea Hawk out of thirty feet of snow and found the boat had been cut in two. Another half of the boat was found thirty feet away embedded in ice. The keel and rudder were gone, also the wheel and shaft, and my impression is that the engine was pulled out at the time the keel and rudder were torn off." Constable Lovelace stated.

"If there was any money aboard I did not find any trace of it. I know the shore is strewn with the contents of the cabin and spring will reveal a good deal of the equipment. It is my opinion that the bodies of the crew will be found not far away from the wrecked boat. It would appear as if the craft had struck a reef and with the heavy seas, had been driven over it, high up on the shore, and the ripping and rending caused by going over the rocky surface had torn the craft into two pieces. There will be developments in the spring that may prove to be extremely interesting.

"I found out that it was the Sea Hawk because a few days after the discovery of the wreck I took an axe and a pick and cleared away the ice clinging to the stern. The name appeared there."

GAVE DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL NIGHT

Inclement Weather Heavy Draw back to Attendance At Choir Concert

It was extremely unfortunate two such great things should come on the same night, for the winter's biggest storm rather detracted from the attendance at the United Church Choir Concert last evening, but the music lovers who travelled through the snow to enjoy the concert had nothing to regret as the choir put on a very fine program which was as follows:

PROGRAM

Chorus—Love's Benediction—Old Melody.
Piano Duet—Raymond Overture—Thomas—Mr. F. Skitch, T. W. Stanley.
Solo—Come Into the Garden—G. Darling.
Ladies' Sextette—Nymphs and Shepherds.—Purcell. Mrs. Hawkins, Mrs. Holden, Mrs. Reeve, Mrs. Hawkins, Miss Garnett, Mrs. C. E. Evans.
Solo—Mr. Stevenson
Quartette—The Violet and the Bee—Misses H. Harcourt, R. Wickett, M. Pomfret, M. Sorrell; Messrs. F. Skitch, J. Douglas, H. Hancock, G. Garnett.
Clarinet solo—G. Ward
Solo—Sing, Sweet Bird—Ganz, Mrs. C. E. Evans.
Chorus—John Peel—West
Chorus—Song of the Pedlar—Williams.
Duet—The Maiden in Grey—Mr. Darling, Mrs. Manson.
Song—Angus McDonald—Miss Sorrell
Male Chorus—Sailors Chorus—Parry
Reading—Miss Brownlee
Male Quartette—Lassie O' Mine—Wall—Messrs Darling, G. Ward, A. Fulford, J. Thomas.
Solo—Old Black Mare—Squire—Mr. C. M. Thompson
Piano Solo—Prelude in C minor, Rachmaninoff and Nocturne Chopin—Mr. F. Skitch.
Chorus—O Hush Thee, My Baby—Sullivan
The above program was carried out as per schedule and without encores as arranged until Mr. C. E. Stephen sang his solo and then the audience insisted that he favor them with another number. After that others were asked to return and the evening passed very delightfully. It was indeed too bad that there was not a greater crowd to reward the choir and those who had solo parts for the hard work of preparation necessary to produce such an excellent evening's entertainment.

FALLING TREE INJURES MEN

One Killed and Two Were Hurt in Accident At Picton

James H. Golden, caretaker of Glenwood Cemetery, Picton, died in the Prince Edward county hospital Friday morning from a fracture of the skull and R. Sayers is a patient in the same institution, suffering from two broken legs and three broken ribs. The men received their injuries on Tuesday last when they were cutting down trees in the cemetery. Another worker R. Manlow, was considerably bruised and scratched but his injuries are not serious. The men were engaged in trimming and cutting trees in the cemetery. The particular tree which caused the fatality stood on a hillside. The workers were standing near the tree, down the hill. The tree fell, and catching the men, it carried them to the bottom of the hill. Golden was buried, the base of the tree striking him on the head. The trunk of the tree, when it came to rest, was lying over Sayers, while Manlow was buried in the branches. A team of horses was pressed into service to drag the tree from the top of the men, and they were then rushed to the hospital.

The Toronto Conservatory of Music held their examinations at Bowmanville on February 28th. Mr. Peter Kennedy being the examiner. The following candidates were successful: Primary piano, Eula Ames; Elementary piano, Jean Brooks (First class honors); Introductory piano, Olive McBride; Honors, Ruby Cole. Congratulations to these young ladies, pupils of Mrs. Kenneth Grieve, Cold Springs.

T.C.S. DECISION PLEASES WOODSTOCK

Preparations Started To Renovate Baptist College Buildings

With heating and plumbing engineers from Toronto taking charge of the work, preparations were started Friday morning for putting Woodstock College buildings into readiness for over 150 boys and masters of the Trinity College School, which is to make its home there pending the rebuilding of the new school at Port Hope. Information was received that the school would be re-opened on or about March 21, by which time everything will be in readiness for the arrival of the boys.

The people of Woodstock are elated over the acceptance by the Port Hope authorities of the offer of the Woodstock buildings by the Governors of McMaster University and the Trinity College School principal staff and boys are assured of a hearty welcome. The Rotary Club is already making plans to welcome the Principal, Rev. Dr. F. G. Orchard, and masters at a luncheon to be held on their arrival here. The college buildings are in excellent condition and very little work will be required to place everything in readiness for the new occupants.

THE HEAD MASTER EXTENDS THANKS

T.C.S. Is Grateful for Hospitality Shown Them in Time of Distress

The following self-explanatory was given the Guide at Noon today by Headmaster Rev. Dr. F. Graham Orchard of Trinity College School. It reads as follows: "The Headmaster of Trinity College School wishes to thank all the kind friends who have so nobly helped us during the time of our great trouble. We are deeply grateful for all the kind hospitality given to the boys and masters, and for the many offers of buildings and help by the Mayor and citizens of Port Hope, whose warm hearts and willing hands not only cheered us, but rescued so much personal property. Oh, sad reminder! The income tax notices have been posted up in the Post Office and Banks to remind those who accumulate more than $1500 a year the Government must have its share.

On top of the income tax notice we are reminded that the balance of our municipal taxes must be met by March 13th. There will be a lot of rushing about to obtain the wherewithal to settle up.

The Guide's extra dailies with pictures and description of the T.C.S. fire rapidly sold so an extra run of the Weekly edition was made. It includes all the pictures and account in the dailies. They are going rapidly. If you want some copies to send to friends, you had better get them right away before the edition is sold out.

As soon as the weather permits the Bowmanville United Church Choir is coming here with a treat for Port Hope music lovers and the local United Church choir will give a concert there at the same time.

A business meeting of the Retail Merchants Association will be held on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Council chamber and it is up to every merchant to be present as considerable business will be transacted.

The Port Hope Band will be in attendance at the rink this evening. The ice is in fine shape and there should be a large turnout of skaters.

Two dwellings are being made out of the store formerly occupied by J. H. Stephens at the corner of Ridout and Bramley streets.

Alan Sprague, student at Belleville High School who is taking a prominent part in the school play this week, was seriously injured Friday while at his studies. The desk which he was going to occupy collapsed as he was taking his seat and a jagged piece of iron cut a long gash in his back near the spine. A physician was secured and eight stitches were required to close the wound. The patient refused to take an anaesthetic, fearing it would incapacitate him for the performance at night.

Acting for the corporation of Cobourg, the town clerk and treasurer has informed the Cobourg public school board that the amount to be expended by the town upon the new ward school which it is intended to construct there out of the Field residence must not exceed $16,200. This amount must cover the purchase price of the property and the improvements that are to be made.

AN OLD LAKE CHANTY "THE CRUISE OF THE BIGLER"

Some time ago the Telegram of Toronto asked for the "Cruise of the Bigler," an old chanty which used to be known on every schooner's fore-castle on the five lakes. Many readers attempted to supply it, but all found that their versions were incomplete.

A Toronto lady, now in England, Mrs. Piers, has kindly copied it out from a book she had kept from the time her brother, Commodore Amelius Jarvis went a-sailing forty years ago.

The chanty is attributed to Mike Fineran of Milwaukee. Its metre is not more finished than that of most chanties, but it has a fine long-drawn air to it that does the heart good, and the picture it paints of a schooner-passage down the lakes in the seventies and eighties of last century is true.

The date may explain the recedite references in stanzas 11 and 12 and the chorus.

A "saloon" was a place where sailors went in those days for mutual consultation and spiritual nourishment when ashore.

The "stamps" the sailors received were their emoluments.

The "spree" was not the river in Germany but a swift-running stream nearer home.

The "bottles" referred to did not contain toilet water, nor was the "glass" mentioned, generally used for personal adornment, although both articles frequently produced a pronounced deepening of color in the nose and eyes.

No man knoweth what the "Bigler's Juba-ju" was, is or will be.

The "Eau" is Rondeau Harbor. To get the right "atmosphere" for the chanty you should be in a fore-castle in the fall of the year; wet socks slapping the bulkhead with every roll; the tin coal oil lamp burning dim in the thick blue haze of cut plug; the little pot-bellied stove blazing red hot with coal cribbed from the cargo; and Panfaed Harry squatted on the chain locker with his fiddle. Now let her go!

Now, my boys, if you will listen, I'll sing you a little song, So sit you down a while here, I'll not detain you long. At Milwaukee in October I chanced to get a "sit" On the timber drover "Bigler," Belonging to Detroit.

CHORUS

Oh! Watch her! Catch her! Jump up on her Juba Ju! Oh, give her sheet and let her boil. The boys'll put her through! You ought to have seen her howling, as The wind was blowing free On our passage down to Buffalo From Milwaukee—ee—ee.

It was on a Sunday morning, About the hour of ten, The "Robert Emmett" towed us Into Lake Michigan. We set sail where she left us in The middle of the Fleet. The wind was from the southward, so We had to give her sheet.

But by the night the wind came down And blew both stiff and strong, And swiftly through Lake Michigan The "Bigler" ploughed along; And far behind her bows, boys The foaming waves did fling, (With every stitch of canvas set And her courses wing and wing.

But the wind it came ahead, before

We reached the Manitous, And two-and-a-half a day, Sirs, Just suited the "Bigler's" crew. From these into the Beavers We steered her full and by, We kept her to the wind, my boys, As close as she could lie.

At Skillagalee and Waubashene, The entrance to the strait, We might have passed the whole fleet If they'd hove to to wait. But we drove thro' all before us, The prettiest sight ever you saw, Right out into Lake Huron Through the Straits of Mackinaw.

In Huron Lake we passed Presqu' Isle And then we bore away, The wind being fair, we soon flew by The Isle of Thunder Bay; But the wind made us close haul her Upon her starboard tack, And with a good look out, we made For the light of Point aux Barques.

We made the light and kept inside By Michigan's east shore, Abooming for the river, As we'd oft done before; Abreast Port Huron light my boys, Both anchors we let go, And the "Sweepstakes" came along and took The "Bigler" in tow. The "Sweepstakes" took us eight in tow.

All of us fore and aft, She towed us down Lake St. Clair And stuck us on the flats, The "Hunter" eased her tow line To give us some relief, And the "Bigler" went astern and smashed Right into the "Maple Leaf."

And then the "Sweepstakes" left us, Outside the river light, To roam the broad Lake Erie and The blustering winds to fight. The wind being fresh and free, my boys, We paddled our own canoe, And pointed her nose for the Dummy on Her way to Buffalo.

We made the Eau; flew by Long Point, The wind being fresh and free, And down the Canada shore we humped, Port Colborne on our lee. What's that looms in the distance? We knew, as we drew near, For like a blazing star shone out, The light on Buffalo pier.

Ah! now, my boys, so we are safe In Buffalo Creek at last, And under Reed's big storehouse The "Bigler" she's made fast; And in Tom Guest's saloon, boys, We'll let the bottle pass, For we are jolly shipmates, and We'll take a social glass.

We soon received our stamps, boys, From our skipper, Call McKee, And with our dunnage jumped ashore To go off on a spree. For Garson's then we started And got there when we chose, And the boys they rigged us out again In a splendid suit of clothes.

Oh! now my song is ended And I hope it pleases you, Let's drink to the old "Bigler," Her officers and crew. I hope she'll sail till Kingdom Come, in Command of Call McKee, Between the Port of Buffalo And Milwaukee—ee—ee.

HOCKEY

Marlboros proved too clever for the Northern Ontario Association title holders, Sault Ste. Marie, when these junior aggregations met in the first of the Memorial Cup series at Arena Gardens last night. The boys from the north were willing and game and, all that, but they did not measure up to the class of the O.H.A. champions, who handed them a 5 to 0 defeat.

Another big crowd greeted the juniors, but the fans were disappointed in the showing of the boys from the St. Mary's River town. It was remembered what a fine little team Iroquois Falls sent down last season and how it stepped out and beat Owen Sound in the first game of the series. But the Sault lads did not emulate the Falls. For a few minutes in the opening frame they appeared to good advantage, but after Marlboros scored the first goal it was plainly evident that the Dukies were not going to take a lick ing.

TRENTON GETS CANN TROPHY

The Canadian International hockey team walked away with the Cann trophy in the Bay of Quinte League last night by trimming Napanee by 6 to 1. No time in the game was Napanee in the lead, though Bownes clever work in the goal was partly responsible for this. Napanee brought a big crowd along and a brass band, but the players were not up to their usual class. The first period ended 1 to 0 for the home team and in the second period Trenton outskated the visitors and scored three more. In the final period a good combination on the part of Bentley and Johnston for Napanee resulted in their only goal, while Trenton got two more.

N. Johnston, Trenton's 16 year old flash, started throughout and scored three goals. Allere, G. Bownes and Spensil accounted for Trenton's other goals. Blakely for Trenton was in great form and worked hard as usual, while Anderson and Shoniker were always effective in checking. For the visitors Bentley played great hockey and Napain was next best player. Claire Devlin of Kingston was in charge and kept the game well in hand.

Caveat emptor

A few years ago "Let the buyer beware" was not so far of being the motto of Canadian business. If a man set out to buy a razor he might get a very excellent one—and, again, he might not. There were some very fine products. And some very poor. And there was no way of choosing the good from the bad, except by test.

Today that condition hardly exists. In every line of merchandise there are trademarked, standardized products. Products that are unvarying in quality and performance—that can be depended upon year in and year out. When you buy them you know what they are, what they'll do and what they'll cost. They're advertised products!

To take full advantage of this—to protect yourself—to save money—watch the advertisements! When you need anything turn to the advertising columns of this paper. Read about the things listed there. When you find the article you need, buy it—not haphazardly, but by name!

THE GUIDE STORY

I cautioned the servants on no account to mention this circumstance to my mistress, and then went upstairs myself to knock at her door, and ask if I might count on her approval if I wrote, in her name, to her relation, the lawyer in London, and if I afterward went and gave information of what had occurred to the nearest justice of the peace. I might have sent to make this inquiry through one of the female servants; but by this time, though not naturally suspicious, I had got to distrust everybody in the house, whether they deserved it or not.

So I asked the question myself, standing outside the door. My mistress thanked me in a faint voice, and begged me to do what I proposed immediately.

I went into my own bedroom and wrote to the lawyer, merely telling him that Mr. James Smith had appeared unexpectedly at the Hall, and that events had occurred which required his immediate presence. I made the letter up like a parcel, and sent the coachman with it to catch the mail on its way to London.

The next thing was to go to the justice of the peace. The nearest lived about five miles off and was well acquainted with my mistress. He was an old bachelor and he kept house with his brother, who was a widower. The two were much respected in the county, being kind, unaffected gentlemen, who did a great deal of good among the poor. The justice was Mr. Robert Nicholson, and his brother, the widower, was Mr. Philip.

I had got my hat on, and was asking the groom which horse I had better take, when an open carriage drove up to the house. It contained Mr. Philip Nicholson and two persons in plain clothes, not exactly servants and not exactly gentlemen, as far as I could judge.

Mr. Philip looked at me, when I touched my hat to him, in a very grave, downcast way, and asked for my mistress. I told him she was ill in bed. He shook his head at hearing that, and said he wished to speak to me in private. I showed him into the library. One of the men in plain clothes followed us, and sat in the hall. The other waited with the carriage.

"I was just going out, sir," I said, as I got a chair for him, "to speak to Mr. Robert Nicholson about a very extraordinary circumstance—"

"I know what you refer to," said Mr. Philip, cutting me short rather abruptly, "and I must beg, for reasons which will presently appear, that you will make no statement of any sort to me until you have first heard what I have to say. I am here on a very serious and a very shocking errand which deeply concerns your mistress and you."

His face suggested something worse than his words expressed. My heart began to beat fast, and I felt that I was turning pale.

"Your master, Mr. James Smith, came here unexpectedly yesterday evening," he went on, "and slept in this house last night. Before he retired to rest, he and your mistress had high words together, which ended, I am sorry to hear, in a threat of a serious nature addressed by Mrs. Smith to her husband. They slept in separate rooms. This morning you went to your master's room and saw no sign of him there. You only found his night-gown on the bed, spotted with blood.

"Yes, sir," I said, in as steady a voice as I could command. "Quite true."

"I am not examining you," said Mr. Philip. "I am only making a certain statement, the truth of which you can admit or deny before my brother."

"Before your brother, sir!" I repeated. "Am I suspected of anything wrong?"

"There is suspicion that Mr. James Smith has been murdered," was the answer I received to that question. My flesh began to creep all over from head to foot. I tried to speak again, but words would not come.

"I am shocked, I am horrified to say," Mr. Philip went on, "that the suspicion affects your mistress, in the first place, and you, in the second."

I shall not attempt to describe what I felt when he said this. No words of mine, no words of anybody's could give any idea of it. What other men would have done in my situation, I don't know. I stood before Mr. Philip, staring straight at him, without speaking, without moving, almost without breathing. If he, or any other man had struck me at that moment, I do not believe I should have felt the blow.

"Both my brother and myself," said Mr. Philip "have such unfeigned respect for your mistress, such sympathy for her under these frightful conditions, and such an implicit belief in her capability of proving her innocence, that we are desirous of sparing her in this dreadful trial as much as possible. For these reasons I have undertaken to come here with the persons appointed to execute my brother's warrant—"

"Warrant, sir!" I said, getting command of my voice, as he pronounced that word. "A warrant against my mistress?"

GREAT ENGLISH PANTOMIME SOON

Novelty to Local Theatregoers
But Tremendously Popular
Elsewhere

No kind of theatrical production has the universal appeal of the English pantomime—when deftly produced and staged.

No producer in the history of Canadian theatrical affairs has been able to produce and stage these spectacles with the cleverness of F. Stuart-Whyte, and his absence from Canadian theatres for the past few years has been regretted from one end of the Dominion to the other.

Now, at last, he has consented to return, forsaking the directors' megaphone of the movie studio to give the Canadian theatre goer another of those remarkable music-dance-comedy-and-color presentations which made him internationally famous.

The new hit, Dick Whittington and His Cat comes to the Royal Theatre next Friday for one performance only.

KATHLEEN JEWELL in "Dick Whittington and His Cat."

It is a hit with any and every type of audience. Staged with a galaxy of costume and scenic effects which even Stuart-Whyte himself has never before equaled and with book, music and lyrics, well punctuated both with thrills and laughs, these features alone would insure it a whole-hearted reception from the theatre-going public.

Added to this, however, Mr. Whyte is bringing a remarkably talented cast headed by stars from such productions as the Ziegfeld offerings and from Daly's in London. Worth particular note, too, is the dance ensemble featuring the Six Palace Girls.

When you stole out to woo me when labor was done, And the day that was closing on us seem'd just begun, Did we care if the sunset was bright on the flowers; Or if we crept out amid darkness and showers? No, Patrick, we talked while we braved the wild weather, Of all we could bear if we bore it together.

Soon, soon will these dark, dreary days be gone by, And our hearts be lit up with a beam from the sky; Oh! let not our spirits, embittered with pain, Be dead to the sunshine that come to us then, Heart in heart, hand in hand, let us welcome the weather, And sunshine or storm, we will bear it together.
