A TROUBLESOME MISGIVING

CHAPTER 1. In the spring of 1882 Mr. Jarvis Runcorn, editor and co-proprietor of the London Weekly Post was soking about for a young man of journalistic promise whom he might associate with himself in the conduct of that long established Radical paper. The tale of his years warned him that he could not hope to support much longer a burden which necessarily increased with the growing range and complexity of public affairs. Hitherto he had been the autocrat of the office, but competing Sunday papers exacted an alertness, a versatile vigour, such as only youth can supply; for there was felt to be a danger that the Weekly Post might lose its prestige in democratic journalism. Thus on the watch, Mr. Runcorn-a wary man of business, who had gone through many trades before he reached that of weekly literaturetook counsel one day with a fellowcampaigner, Malkin by name, who owned two or three country newspapers, and had reaped from them a considerable fortune; in consequence, his attention was directed to one John Earwaker, then editing the Wattleborough Courier. Mr. Malkin's eldest son had recently stood as Liberal candidate for Wattleborough, and though defeated was loud in his praise of the Courier; with its editor he had come to be on terms of intimate friendship. Earwaker was well acquainted with journalistic life in the provinces. He sprang from a humble family living at Kingsmill, had studied at Whitelaw College, and was now but nine-and-twenty: the style of his 'leaders' seemed to mark him for a wider sphere of work. It was decided to invite him to London, and the young man readily accepted Mr. Runcorn's proposals. A few months later he exchanged temporary lodgings for chambers in Staple Inn, where he surrounded himself with plain furniture and many books.

In personal appearance he had changed a good deal since that prize-day at Whitelaw, when his success as versifier and essayist foretold a literary career. His figure was no longer ungainly; the big head seemed to fit better upon the narrow shoulders. He neither walked with extravagant paces, nor waved his arms like a wind-mill. A sufficiency of good food, and the habit of intercourse with active men had given him an everyday aspect; perhaps the sole peculiarity he re- claim. tained from student-times was his hollow chuckle of mirth, a laugh grayish white, pleasant smelling, which struggled vainly for enlarge- antiseptic, cooling, healing salve ment. He dressed with conventhat is strongly germicidal. It detional decency, even submitting to stroys the germs that penetrate the the chimney pot hat. Post it would not have been easy to as to the revolutionary view of ab- Phm. B. stract questions.

The newspaper left him time for other literary work, and it was known to a few people that he wrote with some regularity for reviews, but all the products of his pen were anonymous. A fact which remained his own secret was that he provided for the subsistence of his parents, old people domiciled in a quiet corner of their native Kingsmill. The strict sobriety of life which is indespensable to success in such a career as this cost him no effort. He smoked moderately, ate and drank as little as might be, could keep his health on six hours of sleep, and for an occasional holiday liked to walk his twenty or thirty miles. Earwaker was naturally marked for survival among the

On an evening of June in the year '84, he was interrupted whilst equiping himself for dinner abroad, by a thunderous rat-tat.tat.

'You must wait, my friend, whoever you are,' he murmured placidly as he began to struggle with the stiff button-holes of his shirt.

The knock was repeated and more violently.

'Now there's only one man of my acquaintance who knocks like that, he mused, elaborating the bow of MAN'S EARNING POWER is in Brazil; but there's no knowing. Perhaps our office is on fire. -Anon, anon!'

He made haste to don waistcoat and swallow-tail, then crossed his sitting-room and flung open the door of the chambers.

'Ha! Then it is you! I was reminded of your patient habits,

A tall man, in a light overcoat and a straw hat of spacious brim, had seized both his hands, with shouts of excited greeting.

'Confound you! Why did you keep me waiting? I thought I had missed you for the evening. How the deuce are you? And why the devil have you left me without a line for more than six months?'

Earwaker drew aside, and allowed his tumultuous friend to rush into the nearest room.

'Why haven't you written?confound you!' was again vociferated, amid bursts of boyish laughter. 'Why hasn't anybody written?'

Bryan Would Not Place Maximum Upon It.

Belleville, Ontario

William Jennings Bryan in a speech in St. Louis declared that he would not dare to place a maximum to any man's earning power. Such men as George Washinghton, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln were worth at least $500,ooo in their day and generation. Edison is worth at least a million dollars and it is gratifying to know that he has already received it. Then, Bryan added: "The fact is the men who have been earning five hundred millions in this wonderful generation have been so busy earning it that they have not had time to collect it." This is true enough. Any man with a reasonable effort can earn enough to supply his ordinary wants. Everything else is superfluous. Thoreau living on $34 a year, the young men who fight their way through college, the great teachers who, like Agassiz, have no time to make money, confer inestimable advantages upon their fellowmen, not to be measured in dollars and cents. What was Morse worth to the community when he discovered the telegraph? What is Marconi worth to this generation in developing the wireless? What delight and pleasure the moving picture shows give to the present generation. And yet, they all grow out of old Senator Leland Standford's efforts to ascertain the exact position of a horse's feet in a trotting race. What a benefit did Watts confer upon the human race when he watched the steam blow the lid off his mother's tea kettie and pondered upon the force thus exerted. The evil consists in allowing these men to be monopolized by people who render no service to humanity at all. When we can overcome this trouble, we will do something towards bettering the condition of mankind, that preference should be increased from 33 1-3 pr cent. to say, 50 per cent., I fear they will speedily, and in no unmistakable terms, hear from their manufacturing friends, some of whom, regardless of party ,but ever mindful of their own pockets, and properly so, are at present apparently extremely apprehensive as to the loyalty of their neighbors. Does Trade Follow the Flag?

The old slogan has been sounded in this debate, that "trade follows the flag." That may be true in the experimental stage, when any empire is pursuing a colonization policy; but as applied to the trade of nations generally it is a distinct economic heresy. What constitutes the trade of one country with another? An empire per se does not trade with another empire per se. The individuals of one empire or nation trade with individuals of another empire or nation-so with partnerships, so with companies, corporations; and the sum total of trade between these individuals, partnerships, companies and corporations constitutes what we call the total trade between these two empires or nations. That individual men, partnerships, companies and corporations will sell in the dearest market and buy in the cheapest goes without saying. They do this absolutely regardless of the flag; therefore to say that "the flag rules trade" is simply to give utterance to an economic heresy, that no same business man believes. Take, Sir, as a striking illustration of the disproof of this economic heresy, the trade between Great Britain and Germany. Everybody knows that for the ten years prior to the year 1909, the last year for which we have returns, that these empires looked somewhat askance at each other. The low, rumbling growl of the British Lion might be heard as he glanced across the Channel and saw the German Eagle plume her wings and sharpen her beak; but, Sir, during those very years there was a steady increase of trade between the two empires, culminating in 1909, the year of the war scare, in the largest figures ever obtained between these two empires. In 1909 German exports to Britain amounted to £58,000,000, while British exports to Germany amounted to £32,-000,000. In the same year German exports to the British colonies amounted £12,000,000, while exports of the colonies to Germany amounted to £44,000,000, the grand total being £146,000,000 or $705,000,000, the largest figure ever reached in the history of the two empires. This, Sir, is but one of many striking illustrations that might be given, showing how little the flags have to do with trade. These large figures are arrived at, not on account of the friendliness of the flags, but as a result of the people of both empires following what may be termed the natural instinct of every

Now. Sir, I desire, by way of amendment, to place our position and that of the Government, in direct contrast, and I therefore move, seconded by Mr. Clark (Northumberland):

That all the words of the motion, after the first word "That" be struck out and the following inserted: "This House regrets that the Financial Statement issued by the Honorable the Provincial Treasurer is inaccurate and misleading, inasmuch as when current receipts and expendi-tures are classified even as classified by the present Provincial Treasurer in his Financial Statement of 1905, there is a large deficit last year of $531,878.66. And this House recognizing the fact that our forests are our greatest source of revenue, strongly urges upon the Government the adoption of a proper system of conservation and reforestration, in order that this source of revenue may become perpetual and abiding. This House further regrets that neither the Honorable the Minister of Education, the Deputy Minister, nor the Superintendent of Education, has any practical knowledge whatever of the condition of our rural schools, and that the result of changes improperly made by this Government has been to increase the cost of education in the rural schools by at least fifty per cent., and to necessitate the employing as teachers in a large percentage of said schools of persons with no qualification whatever, either professional or non-professional. This House further regrets that this Government, while liberally aiding students in educational courses, that lead to the professions, has taken no practical steps whatever to establish a system of technical and industrial schools throughout the province, in which the mechanic and the artizan may receive training supplementary to his practical training in the work-

This House further deplores the fact, that this Government is apparently of the opinion that increased population is of no benefit to this province, and this House strongly recommends the adoption of a visorous and active colonization scheme for peopling Northern Ontario, and regrets extremely that its settlement has been hitherto retarded by the en. forcement of laws and regulations that are oppressive to the pioneer, whether prospector, miner or settler.

This House deplores the growing tendency on the part of members of the Government to introduce Federal issues into our debates, and regrets the organized attempt of Ministers and their supporters to discredit the agreement for better trade relations made between Canada and the United States, which, if consummated, will prove so beneficial to Canada, and especially to the agriculturists."

This amendment was defeated on a straight party vote.

F. T. Grafin, C.P.R. land commissioner at Winnipeg, states that within the last two years 20,000,000 acres of Government land have been taken up by homestead and pre-emption.

TAXING THE BAR.

The hotelmen in Hamilton have raised the price of accommodation fifty cents a day, as an answer to the five per cent tax on bar receipts imposed by the provincial treasurer. The hotelmen apparently think that they will demonstrate that the Government cannot impose any extra expenditure on them, without it being taken out of the pockets of the travelling public, and that the tax in the end is in this case the "ultimate consumer," or the poor travelling public.

Inasmuch as the tax is levied, only on bar receipts, the hotelmen should take it out of the bar receipts in the form of higher prices for wet goods, says the Peterboro Review. It is not just to the travelling public to tax them for the benefit of the boozer; because the travelling public's welfare is vastly more important that the welfare of the boozer. The two branches of the business should not be intermixed. The bar exists not as the reason for the hotel, but merely as an adjunct or convenience. It is making the tail wag the dog to make the advance in prices because of the bar tax. And we believe that it will react on the hotelmen in increased disfavor with the public.

Taft Says Reciprocity Agreement Will Pass.

HE ASKS SOUTH TO HELP

President Delivers an Enthusiastic Speech at Atlanta, Ga., In Which He Calls on North and South to Unite In Taking Advantage of the Opportunity to Make Mutually Profitable Bargain.

Atlanta, Ga., March 11.-In a lengthy address before the Southern Commercial Congress assembled here last night, President Taft spoke hopefully of the future of the south, and paid special attention to the accomplishments of the Congress just closed, dwelling specially on the reciprocity agreement with Canada.

'Of course, the greatest disappointment of the session was the failure of the Senate to follow the lead of the House in ratifying the reciprocity agreement made with Canada," said

"When we entered upon the negotiations I asked the Secretary of State and his commissioners to offer free trade in everything, but this Canada could not grant us, because she has a protective system and she was afraid of the competition of our better organized industries.

"The south is practically interested in the fact that vegetables and cottonseed oil are both put on the free list and the removal of rather heavy duties on both, but I do not ask your support on the ground of any local advantage. I ask it because I regard this treaty, if adopted, as the beginning of a new relation with our rapidly growing neighbor on the north and ourselves which will inure greatly to the benefit of both. The conditions under which agriculture and manufacturers are carried on in both countries are substantially the same and the removal of the duties provided for in this agreement or, indeed, the removal of all duties between the two countries would have violated no principle that either a reasonable protectionist or a reasonable tariff reformer upholds.

Canada is at the parting of the ways. If we now reject this opportunity to bring about closer business and trade relations and insist upon the contin-uance of an artifical wall between the two countries-which differ no more in conditions of labor and production than do Kentucky and Tennessee or . Georgia and Alabama-we shall throw away an opportunity for mutual benefit not likely to recur. It will be a course as blind as that which was followed by the colonies under the articles of Confederation, when each colony taxed the imports from every other colony, a disastrous policy, which was the main cause for the adoption of the present constitution and its interstate commerce clause.
"As I have had occasion to say in urging upon Congress the adoption of neighbor." "Against her alone, of all the power-ful nations of the world, we have felt under no necessity to establish a navy or fortify our frontiers. For nearly a hundred years, under an agreement that has attracted the admiration of all promoters of international peace, we have had no battleships and no forts between us and her. She is our natural customer; we are natural customers. Geography, and if the natural laws of trade is uninterruped by an utterly unreasonable wall. it would give us a north and south business of large extent and necessarily beneficial to both. Why then should we hesitate?

this agreement, Canada is our good

"Under my promise to use my utmost efforts to secure the ratification of this agreement by Congress, I have felt it my duty, upon the failure of the Senate to act, to call an extra session for the purpose of securing the ratification of the agreement. My opinion is that a majority of both Houses disregarding party lines, will seize a great national opportunity and promptly ratify the agreement before proceeding to other business, if it be deemed wise or necessary to proceed to other business. I feel confident that a test of six months of this agreement will so vindicate the wisdom of adopting it to remove further discussion afterwards. I do not regard it as a matter of sectional interest. It will inure in a large measure to the benefit of this whole country."

The crown explained that Vance had paid over the money to Sutherland in order to protect himself from loss and not from any intention of wrong-doing or graft. Minister of Railways and Canals Says That Government Will Construct Northern Outlet for Products of the West-It Will Probably Be Leased-Intercolonial Railway Shows a Good Surplus.

Ottawa, March 11.-In the statement regarding the railway situation in Canada, made by Hon. George P. Granam yesterday, it was made clear that the western farmers need not hope for Government operation of the Hudson Bay Railway, a supplementary estimate for the construction of which will be brought down later in the session. The Government will construct the road, but the indications are that it will be leased under a similar contract to that of the National Transcontinental.

Mr. Graham estimated that the surplus of the Intercolonial for the current year would be $700,000, which is slightly better than that of last year. In his remarks the Minister made a comparison with the earnings of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway, and said that by reason of higher freight classification the Ontario Government road was able to show better returns than the Federal

Mr. Graham stated that when the Hudson Bay road was built, a plan for its operation would be submitted to Parliament. In harmony with the previous utterances of the Minister of Railways, the scheme would involve the construction of elevators and terminal facilities at tide water on Hud-son Bay, as well as the establishment of a steamship service to Great Britain. Mr. Graham promised to go into the whole question when the supplementary estimates were brought

He reiterated his remarks that the railway would provide a cool route for the shipment of cattle to Great Britain, and thought a Government that would not be willing to make the experiment was not worthy of the confidence of the people.

The estimated cost of the railway, including terminal elevators and harber facilities on Hudson Bay, would be twenty-five or thirty millions of der the new anti-cocaine bill, which | dollars. With a margin of an addiwas adopted in the Upper House at | tional five or six millions, he thought | he money would be well expended.

> Mr. Graham in his reference to the increase in the traffic through Canadian canals said that the growth of the traffic was greater than the increase of the railway traffic. Therefore it was essential if Canada was to keep her carrying trade she must be alert in the development of waterways and harbors. He was not in a position, he said, to announce when the enlarging of the Welland Canal would be commenced. It must be enlarged to enable large boats to come through to Lake Ontario without breaking bulk.

E. M. Macdonald (Pictou) took the position that the Intercolonial should be run merely to pay expenses. The $700,000 surplus was, in his opinion, $650,000 too high. He condemned the application of the Lemieux Act to the settlement of wage disputes on the Intercolonial, as it interfered with the responsibility of the Minister. He hought the time had arrived when the resolution passed about two years ago, only allowing the British preference when goods were shipped through Canadian ports, could be made operative, and this would insure control of

C. A. Magrath (Medicine Hat) hought that applicants for railway harters should be made to deposit with the Government 5 per cent. of the contemplated expenditure as an vidence of bona fides.

On the general question of railway levelopment in Canada, he said that he cry of the west was "When are re to receive better railway facilies?" The three railways in the west were merely jockeying with each other or position, and in many instances he lines were paralleled within disances of two or three miles.

Maciure was tried and acquitted. Evidence was given by different Inresent at the sleigh lians who were ride when whiskey was alleged to have been drunk.
