

SHOWER FOR BRIDE TO BE

Miss Winnifred Elliott Was Honored by Miscellaneous Shower

On Tuesday evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman McCullough, King Street, was the scene of a very pleasant event, when a miscellaneous shower was held in honor of Miss Winnifred Elliott. Many useful and beautiful gifts were received. The evening was spent in various games and music, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Many thanks were tendered Mr. and Mrs. McCullough for their hospitality.

CAPACITY CROWD SECOND NIGHT

"My Irish Rose" Enthusiastically Received by Packed Hall of Citizens

The annual St. Patrick's Tea and play put on by St. Mary's Church in the Town Hall, Monday and Tuesday was a wonderful success whatever way you look at it. The financial returns are not all in but with the good crowds attending the play, it is certain that the returns will be very gratifying.

Bazaar and Tea

The ladies of the Altar Society are very much delighted with the success of the bazaar and tea. The various tables were appropriately decorated in green and white, with shamrock designs and the hall presented a very attractive appearance in its gay colors.

Mrs. T. J. O'Neill, president of the society, was in charge of the Apron Table; Mrs. Harry Sherry, was convener of the Tea Table; Mrs. Agnes Cowan had the Talent Table; Miss Carrie Gordon the Fancy Table; and Mrs. P. Benbow was Candy Table convener. The above ladies were assisted by the young ladies and thru the untiring efforts of all the affair was a success.

"My Irish Rose"

The second evening's performance attracted a capacity house, the big room in the Town Hall had every available seat occupied and many were forced to stand but they did not weary as the play made them forget the physical discomfort.

Supplementary to the acts of the play, Miss Elise Sinditico sang three very delightful numbers: "The Kerry Dance," "Kathleen Mavourneen" and concluding with a number very appropriate to the play "The Last Rose of Summer." Her songs were well received and much enjoyed. Frank and Paul O'Sullivan, of Campbellcroft, nephews of Dean F. J. O'Sullivan assisted materially in the entertainment. The younger, Paul, gave three very nice and well played violin solos, with his brother's piano accompaniment. Their selections included "St. Patrick's Day," "Scotch Melodies" and "Prince Charming," all very appropriate for the occasion.

The play was a delightful Irish comedy which was enjoyed by young and old alike. The cast had their work well prepared and showed by their presentation that they had worked faithfully under able direction. Near the conclusion of the second evening's performance the cast presented to Miss Emily Foy a beautiful bunch of roses, as a token of appreciation for her able tuition and direction.

"The Cast"

Miss Gertrude O'Neill in the title role scored another triumph. This young lady, who played so well the part of Portia in the Merchant of Venice, found an even more adequate scope for her histrionic talents as the simple maiden of Kildare and later as the charming mistress of a Dublin mansion. Murray McMahon, as her artistic lover, though a novice to the amateur stage looked his part and played it very acceptably. As to F. Guy, the Irish farmer and Miss Agnes O'Neill, his sister, "Aunt Mary" and Mrs. Sheehan, the inquisitive Widow Hannigan; it is sufficient to say that they were so natural as to leave the impression on the audience that it was witnessing real life in an Irish village. Miss Marie Cancilla, as the maid and Wm. Sherry as the sound sleeping farm boy supplied the comedy in a manner that caused bursts of laughter. Mr. Benbow as the English tourist was well equipped for the part and was very funny, "don't you know." Mr. C. W. Connop, as the Dublin barrister, carried himself with dignity and spoke his lines in a manner becoming a lawyer. Miss Eleanor Armstrong succeeded well in assuming a haughty and supercilious air which was rather difficult for the gentle Eleanor. Miss Marjorie McMahon, as Lady Eileen and Edmund Gallagher as Terry Creigan, the banished exile, performed well their less exacting tasks.

PORT HOPE MAN BURNED

Frank Harvie Suffers Severe Burns and Is Taken To Oshawa Hospital

Mr. Frank Harvie of this town, who recently has been in the electrical department of the General Motors, received severe electrical burns on the face and hands about one o'clock on Saturday.

At the time of the accident, we understand, he was working in the stamping room and after the shock fell ten feet into a barrel of scrap iron. He was immediately removed to the Oshawa General Hospital where his wounds were dressed and he was made as comfortable as possible.

Mrs. Harvie, who was called to Oshawa, at the time of the accident, returned home Monday, and reports that he is recovering very nicely. His many friends hope that he will make a rapid and complete recovery from this accident.

INDIGENT COST IS INCREASED

Municipalities Must Put up $1.75 Each Day Under New Act

The Ontario Government's warning of last fall that municipalities sooner or later, would have to shoulder a greater share of financial responsibility for the keep of indigent patients in hospitals and charitable institutions has taken concrete form. Under terms of legislation which Hon. Lincoln Goldie, Provincial Secretary, brought down to the House Tuesday night, the municipalities' rate of payment will, after April 1, be increased from $1.50 to $1.75 per day.

The Government, however, is also saddling itself with extra cost. Its present per diem grant of 50 cents will be increased to 60 cents, on the understanding, in not only the case of the public hospitals, but homes for incurables as well, that the total amount of such grant is to be based upon the number of days' actual treatment and stay of each patient admitted to or being within such hospital during the fiscal year next preceding the year for which such aid is given.

Mr. Goldie's legislation is in the form of an amendment to the present act administering public hospitals and charitable institutions. Following its introduction Tuesday night, Premier Ferguson told the House that it had been the Ministry's intention to bring down an entirely new "hospitals" bill, but certain of the contentious clauses had held up its completion and rather than delay the sitting of the House it had been decided to amend the present act instead.

The ten cent increase in its per diem rate will mean to the government, it is learned, an increased expenditure annually of between $90,000 and $100,000.

MANY DIE OF HEART DISEASE

Heart Disease Responsible For Payment of More Death Claims by Metropolitan

Some diseases more than others, are responsible for the larger payments in death claims by life insurance companies. Thus, during 1927 organic heart diseases were responsible for the payment of more death claims in Canada and in the United States by the Metropolitan Life, than any other disease. Of a total of one hundred millions of dollars paid by the company during 1927, no less than fourteen millions of dollars were paid for deaths caused by organic diseases of the heart.

Next in importance comes deaths due to external causes—accidents, suicides and homicides. In death claims attributed to accidents, the company paid out in 1927 no less than ten million dollars; in the case of suicides, two million dollars; in the case of homicides, over one million dollars.

Tuberculosis comes next in importance with payments in death claims amounting to approximately ten million dollars. Cancer took fourth place with nearly ten million dollars.

T. C. S. GOVERNING BODY MET LOCAL TOWN COUNCIL

Town Council is Ready to Act in Co-Operation With Governing Body of Trinity College in Connection With Building on New School.

A joint meeting of representatives of the Governing Body of the Trinity College School, conferral with the members of the Town Council at a meeting held in the Council Chamber at eleven o'clock this morning. Those present included, Mayor R. J. Edmunds, Reeve L. H. Gaddy, and Councillors H. W. Mitchell, H. Merrifield, J. A. R. Elliott, W. J. B. Davison, A. E. Andrews, A. H. C. Long, Town Engineer M. U. Ferguson, F. L. Curtis. Those representing the Governing Body included L. H. Baldwin, Percy Henderson, Judge H. A. Ward, Canon Oswald Rigby and Headmaster Rev. Dr. F. G. Orchard.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the following questions: Before any reconstruction work can be undertaken on the Trinity College School buildings it is very necessary to obtain an expression of opinion from the Municipal Council, Port Hope, as to how far they are willing to assist and aid the School in meeting the three very important requirements detailed below:

1. Efficient Fire Protection

A statement is asked as to how the Port Hope Council propose to increase the water pressure so as to ensure sufficient fire protection for the school buildings.

There is but little doubt that the losses due to the recent fire was greatly increased owing to the lack of water pressure, and the Building Committee appointed by the Board of Governors, T.C.S., would hesitate to recommend the large expenditure required for the reconstruction of the school unless they can be assured that an efficient water pressure to ensure a good supply in case of fire can be guaranteed, more particularly as this is the second time the school has been destroyed by a fire.

2. Drainage

In the event of rebuilding the school, it will be of the greatest importance that facilities shall be given to allow the drains from the new buildings to be connected to the town drainage system. The Building Committee therefore desire to know how far the Town of Port Hope can assist in this matter.

3. Diversion of Road

It is generally agreed that, if possible, the road leading from the school to the town should be diverted to connect with McCall Street.

BANQUET AT ST. PAUL'S

The Fathers and Sons Gather Around Festive Board and Enjoy A Splendid Treat

Fathers and Sons of the Presbyterian Church as well as those from other denominations gathered around the festive board in the basement of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Tuesday evening, and the banquet, under the auspices of the Older Boys of St. Paul's church proved an unqualified success in every way. Rev. Dr. K. H. Palmer of Hamilton, acted as Toastmaster of the evening. The feature of the proceedings was the inspiring and instructive address by Charles Plewman, secretary of the Boy's Work in Ontario.

Shortly after six-thirty, nearly two hundred fathers and sons sat down to a sumptuous repast and needless to say everyone did hearty justice to the innumerable good things to eat. The long tables fairly groaned under the weight of delicious pies and appetizing cakes. The tables were prettily decorated with lighted candles and daffodils, which added a characteristic air to the occasion.

Throughout the supper hour, the high school orchestra rendered fitting selections which added an atmosphere of merriment to the affair. Those playing in the orchestra included: Miss Margaret Strong, piano; Miss Helen Lingard, banjo; Chas. Doney, mandolin; Carl Rutter, saxophone; Norman Strong, drummer; Jack Douglas, violin; and Foster Hamilton, mandolin. Music was also provided by a Rogers Batteryless radio installed through the courtesy of sible, in the event of rebuilding the Senior School, in order to allow of elasticity in the design of these buildings, the diversion of the road running to the south of the old building is very desirable, and this suggestion presents several advantages, viz:—

1. The new school buildings could be sited to the best advantage on a commanding position and so greatly add to the picturesque surroundings of the town.
2. The road would be distinctly improved as the new suggested route would be along the foot of the hill, and the present steep gradients over the hill would be thus avoided.

The assistance of the Port Hope Council is asked on this matter, both as regards approaching the County authorities and to facilitate this proposal in any way they can.

The matter of low pressure during the time of the fire was discussed at the meeting. It was explained by F. L. Curtis, Chairman of the Waterworks Commission that the pressure was considerably diminished owing to the fact that numerous four inch mains were left running in the school, which sapped the strength of the six inch main. It was assured that Trinity College would be given ample water protection in the future.

Town Engineer Ferguson was instructed to obtain details regarding the best possible sewerage connection and submit them to the governing body in order to facilitate matters.

Judge H. A. Ward referred to the co-operation extended the T.C.S. authorities when the last disastrous fire visited the institution. In his mind, Trinity College was worth more than two or three factories to the town.

Mayor Edmunds said that the Council were only too anxious to co-operate with the authorities and assist the college in every way possible in the erection of their new buildings.

The members of the governing body thanked the council for their attention in the matter.

Discussion followed regarding the construction of a new road leading from the school and it is thought that a conference will be held with the Hamilton Township authorities to talk over the formation of a new road around the park hill to connect with McCall Street.

Messrs. Jex & Smith. After everyone had satisfied the wants of the inner man, Charles Plewman conducted a series of "spine stretchers" and everyone present took an active part. Chas. Doney led in a merry sing song which everyone greatly enjoyed.

Following the opening remarks by the toastmaster, Rev. K. H. Palmer, the toast to Our King and Country was proposed. The toast to the Church was proposed by Sherwood Hayden who referred to the great work that the church was doing in the moulding of human character.

The response was tendered by Mr. Donald McMillan who referred to the church as the militant army of the Lord and the various regiments were engaged in the work of the Lord on earth. The speaker believed that the boys of the present age are better than the boys of former years as they were not afraid to come out and take their stand with the church.

The toast to Our School was proposed by Mr. Allan McCarthy who was glad to see such a large number of dads and sons present from St. Paul's Church as well as those from other congregations. He stressed the important work that the school is doing.

The able response to this important toast was presented by Mr. Arthur Mark, superintendent of the Sunday school. He pointed out that the Sunday school was engaged in shaping the lives of the boys and girls.

"In my mind," declared the speaker, "Sunday School work is the greatest work of the church. We are proud of all our boys and girls and our Tuxis Boys and Trail Rangers." (applause.)

The speaker told that at a father and son banquet the elderly people derive an inspiration which is not obtainable otherwise. In the Sunday School character is formed to build up great men and women to make our country great in the future.

The toast to Our Dads was sponsored by Keith Mark and he told of the important significance of 'Dad'. In prehistoric times, the speaker said, Dad was ruler, priest and judge, but now was a counsellor, friend and all round pal. At an early age the boy's best friend was his mother but as the lad became older masculine rather than feminine experience is required and the boy profits by the experience of his Dad to enable him to reach the goal that Christ had attained.

The response to the toast to Our Dads was to have been given by Mr. W. G. Gibson, but owing to a sudden illness, was called to his home. As a result, the toast was responded to by Mr. W. J. B. Davison. Today, he said, Dad has to assume the role of an all round pal and to keep close and be a comrade of the boy. Don't be too critical but make a confidante of your son. Sons make a confidante of your Dad and take your troubles to him.

The toast to the Older Boys Parliament was proposed by ex-member Gordon Garnett. He told of the importance of the Boys Parliament as it taught the members the methods of parliamentary procedure. The members are together and get the rough edges knocked off. The members derive certain incentives from the parliament and when they return to their constituencies, they are put into use.

John Leuty, the present member of the Boys Parliament ably responded to this toast. He traced the developments of the parliament since its founding to consider proposed alterations in C.S.E.T. groups and problems confronting teen age boys.

Norman Moore proposed the toast to Our Ladies and fittingly thanked the ladies for the preparation of the banquet.

The response was ably given by Mrs. W. J. B. Davison. The ladies were delighted to tender the banquet and the object was to arouse a keener and deeper interest in the male members of the congregation. Although the fathers were keenly and vitally interested in the welfare of their sons, the boy's best friend is his mother, the speaker announced.

The feature of the evening was the educational and interesting address by Mr. Charles Plewman of Toronto. He paid tribute to the fine work that was being carried on by the local member.

"The Father and Son banquet," said the speaker, "indicated the age and generation in which we live and the interest that is invoked of the incoming lives of the streams of boys. The period of boyhood is the greatest and strategic point in the life of the boy and it is then that ideals are formed. To arrive at the underground principles of life, we have to rationalize our experiences to arrive at these principles."

Mr. Plewman spoke with great enthusiasm on the subject and no doubt much good will be derived from his address.

At the close a cordial vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Plewman for his address and to Toastmaster Rev. Palmer for the masterful way in which he conducted the proceedings. The resolution was moved by Malcolm Bennett and seconded by Charles "Barney" Fourn. A hearty handclap and three cheers were given.

The proceedings were brought to a close by the benediction.

FRUIT INDUSTRY GROWS IN ITALY

Large Increase in Value of the Land—Canning Factories Employ Many Hands

The canning and preserving of vegetables and fruits was first introduced into Italy some 50 years ago, when a small factory was opened in Turin. Since then it has spread throughout the country, dealing with an ever growing number of products.

The government, appreciating the economic value of this industry, has taken measures to insure an output of high quality, protecting the canners against unfair competition and the consumer against adulterated or inferior foods.

At the end of 1926 nearly 600 factories were engaged in the preparation of canned and preserved foods. A capital of over 1,000,000,000 lire is invested in this industry. No fewer than 60,000 persons are employed in the food preserving industries, which pay a wage bill amounting to over 50,000,000 lire a year.

The output of the factories is valued at some 600,000,000 lire, of which approximately two-thirds is exported. The expansion of the canning industry has greatly increased the value of farm lands and in many cases has brought about a real and beneficial agricultural revolution.

For instance, the selling price of a hectare (2.471) acres of land in the heart of the tomato growing district has risen from 3000 lire in 1900 to 80,000 and 100,000 lire in 1926. The area under tomatoes is estimated at 42,000 hectares, from which over 6,000,000 quintals of tomatoes are obtained each year. The canning industry ranks sixth in the list of Italian export trades.—Christian Science Monitor.

AIR MINISTER OPPOSES CONTROL

But Would Discourage Fliers Until Better Machines Available

A stand against government supervision of transatlantic flying was taken in the House of Commons on Tuesday by the Air Minister, Sir Samuel Hoare. The Minister told the Commons that, in his opinion, it would be unwise for a department of the government to obtain legislative powers of that kind.

He added that, while he agreed in the advisability of not attempting such flights until better qualified machines are available, he thought formidable difficulties would be found to stand in the way of any attempt at control by the government.

His statements came in reply to suggestions that the government impose some sort of control on people desiring to fly across the Atlantic, to be sure that they possessed adequate knowledge of the air and navigation, and properly equipped machines.

BASEBALL

Leafs Hard at Work

If physique counts for anything the Toronto baseball team should get somewhere in the International League this season. Bill O'Hara's team looks like a company of grenadiers or lifeguardsmen of the ball field. And a fine body of troopers they are.

Billy Webb is one of the smallest men on the roster and the veteran third baseman is not a midget by any means. Incidentally the former manager of the Bisons never looked better and he is figuring on having the best season he has had since he was unfortunate enough to stop a wild pitch by Jess Doyle with his cranium. It will have to be an exceptionally performer to drive Webb off the difficult corner. There is none in sight capable of taking Bill's job away from him.

At this stage "Big Boy" Alexander, Burke, Cote and Webb appear to have the infield berths at their mercy. Bedore, the Chicago recruit, seems to have plenty of promise, but that he will dislodge any of the regulars is too much to expect of a youngster making his first start in exalted company. Both O'Hara and Burchell are smitten with the ability of the youth from the Windy City, and it is the intention to keep a string on him if he is not carried after the training season closes. At present his prospects of retention are much brighter than that of any of the other recruits.

The crop outside of the pitching department is not overly promising. Harry David, the first base candidate sponsored by John Prudhomme, has all the earmarks of a comer, but his chances of getting permanent employment are slight, despite the fact that the 18 year old has shown more than average skill in the field and fair form at the bat. He is a ringer for "Mickey" Heath in action.

Peterson, a semi-pro prospect from New York, is a little too light for Class AA ball and it is a certainty that he will never see Toronto, for all that he is fast and shifty.

Burdine, outfielder sent to the club by President Frank Navin of Detroit with the recommendation that he would surely be a sensation in the International League, has already shown the form expected of him and is more than likely to be shipped back to Detroit. He is a Boston College boy.

Shortstop Warren Cote and Stan Keyes are standouts in the newcomers class. Cote in the opinion of Fred Burchell, has the best pair of hands of any fielder he ever saw, and he predicts that he will burn up the league. Why the Giants passed him up and kept Cohen he cannot understand. He is a hustler and Les Burke and Webb in the few practices that the Toronto club have had seem to have acquired much of his spirit.

Keyes is a mighty clouter and there is little doubt but that he will be around when the first pay cheques are handed out. He is credited with being as hard a hitter as Alexander. He has the shoulder of a Hackenschmidt.

APPROACH OF SPRING

This is the time of year when we are all in a state of expectation. The winter is drawing to its close and the unmistakable signs of spring appear. The sap runs in the trees and the press records the cheerful presence of the robins. Soon will come the warm, bright days; the evenings are already lengthening, and one's thoughts turn wistfully to the great out-of-doors. Spring is a glorious time; as it approaches, chasing before it the rigors of winter, and bringing along with it the birds, the budding leaves, the freshness and stirring life, one feels that this season is perhaps, the best of all. Yet each season has its own special attractions and pleasures. What we wish to impress upon our young readers is how very fortunate they are to be living in a land like Canada, with its variations of climate and continual change of scene. What makes the people of Canada robust, enterprising and filled with the joy of living, is the fact that this climate of ours is so stimulating. We often hear complaints about the extreme cold of winter, its long duration, etc. But the Canadian winter is not a season to regret or apologize for, especially in these temperate parts. The keen air, the abundant opportunity for vigorous outdoor exercise, the healthy recreations of all kinds which young people are so fortunate to be able to indulge in—who would willingly give up these? Springtime is welcome, yes; but it is the more welcome because it comes as a change. If it were spring all the year round, we should not appreciate it as we do. Neither can the person living in a climate where it is always warm as in summer, get the same amount of delight out of existence as one who lives in a country like ours, with its alternate seasons.

There is no more agreeable time to get out into the fresh air than in these early spring weeks, and there is no better exercise than walking. True, the ground is not always fit for walks yet, but when it is, advantage should be taken of the opportunity. We are all too negligent of this wonderful, natural health measure; even the young people in these days, are prone to ride when they should walk. This habit of sitting around all the time is injurious; it is quite unnatural for healthy boys and girls, and should not be given in to. So now that weather conditions are becoming so ideal for the hike, let us bestir ourselves, make use of our legs and gain health and happiness in the process.—Hamilton Spectator.

INVENTOR STILL STAYS AT WORK

Aged French Inventor of Radio Conductor Still Labors at Bench

In a dusty, cobwebby laboratory, with wobbly chairs and dingy tables, moth eaten curtains on the windows, a newspaper man found Edouard Branly, the 87 year old scientist, whose invention of the radio conductor brought wireless out of the stage of dreams into practical use.

On the tables were rusty knives, mysterious clock like wheels and springs. Dying moths hummed in corners. Flies buzzed on the window panes. Sitting near an ancient stove, bending over a schoolboy's notebook, in which he was writing with a two-cent pen, was the man whose labors have brought untold millions to many exploiters of his discoveries. His workshop looked like a bicycle repair shop.

"Why, right here," said Mr. Branly in reply to a question about his discovery of the radio conductor. "It was on this very table that I placed the galvanometer and the metal filings. The 'spark' was in the courtyard down below. That was in 1890. I had been working on the idea for years. Here it came to full fruition."

M. Branly has never had the advantages of state or private subsidies for his work. He makes all his tools with his own hands. He is his own electrician, carpenter, locksmith, designer, chemist and mechanic.

It was a professor of science in the lycées of Paris that Edouard Branly started his career. He became head of the research bureau of the Sorbonne in 1872 and left the university three years later to become professor at the newly founded Catholic university. He did not earn enough there to make both ends meet and, as he had received a degree in medicine, he began to practice as a consulting physician. This meant about 18 hours' work a day. "But," he explained, with a gentle smile, "when you have to earn your living you have to make a little sacrifice."

Write our thoughts on pleasant weather, the silk frock looms as a big favorite especially when it has such graceful fullness as the one pictured. The shirring in front of the skirt combined with the flattering jabots make this otherwise simple design ideal for informal or afternoon wear. The lace vester set in between the flaring jabots is extremely becoming and smart. Made in plain satin or georgette with paste buckle and necklace as the only ornaments, one couldn't help but feel dressed for the occasion. (Copyright, 1928, by Butterick)

THE GUIDE STORY

It was a relief to hear that, and it was almost as great a comfort to find, from what Mr. Dark said next, that my mistress need fear nothing that the French woman could do for the future. The threat that had fallen from her on her reappearance before the justice, he assured me, had not at all surprised him. He had suspected from the first that she must have known of the second marriage, because he believed it to be impossible that she would risk bringing her infamous charge against my mistress and myself without being acquainted with the nature of the circumstances that made it Mr. James Smith's interest to keep out of the way. This information, he said, she might well have gained by listening at the door; but he felt convinced at the same time that it did not include a knowledge of the means by which evidence of the second marriage might be procured. If she had possessed this dangerous information, she would long since have turned it to good account, for the threat of making the evidence public would have given her exactly that hold over her mistress which it would interest her to gain. As matters had turned out, however, there was no reason to fear her, let her do as much as she might. The charge of theft, on which she was about to be tried, did not afford the shadow of an excuse in law any more than in logic for alluding to the crime which her master had committed. If she meant to talk about it she might do so at Botany Bay; but she would not have the slightest chance of being listened to previously in a court of law.

"In short," said Mr. Dark, rising to take his leave, "as I have told you already, it's checkmate for the wazmelle. She did not manage the business of the robbery half as sharply as I should have expected her to. She certainly began well enough by staying modestly at a lodging in the village to give her attendance at the examinations, as it might be required. Nothing could look more innocent and respectable so far. But her hiding the property between the mattresses of her bed—the very first place that any experienced man would think of looking in—was such an amazingly stupid thing to do, that I really can't account for it, unless her mind had more weighing on it than it was able to bear, which, considering the heavy stake she played for, is likely enough. Anyhow, her hands are tied now, and her tongue too, for the matter of that. Give my respects to your mistress, and tell her that her runaway husband and her lying maid will never either of them harm her again as long as they live. She has nothing to do now but to pluck up her spirits and live happy. Here's long life to her and to you, William, in the last glass of ale, and here's the same toast to myself in the bottom of the jug." With those words Mr. Dark pocketed his large snuff box, gave a last wink with his bright eye, and walked away whistling, to meet the London coach.

I, who knew my mistress far better than he did—I, who had noticed, that very day, that the sad, dull, vacant look in her face never brightened when the justice spoke the few welcome words which told her that her innocence was made clear and that she was a free woman again—I, in short, who looked at her and at her future prospects with very different eyes from the eyes of a stranger, felt mournful misgivings at my heart when I thought over Mr. Dark's parting words after he had left me. Other people—her relation, the lawyer among them—thought she would get over the shock that had been inflicted on her, with time and care. I alone felt doubts about her recovery from the first. As soon as possible after the occurrence of the events that I have just been relating, she was removed to London for change of scene and for the best medical advice. From London she was sent to the seaside; and her next removal was to the country house on the estate in Yorkshire. I attended her wherever she went, and saw but too plainly the utter uselessness of all the efforts that were made to preserve her life. She drooped and faded slowly, without a look of impatience or a word of complaint, considerate and kind, and thankful for small services to the last. Long years have passed since those melancholy days, but the sorrowful remembrance of them is still so strong in my memory that I cannot be sure of preserving my composure, even now if I dwell too long on the details of my mistress's last illness. It will be better on all accounts, to pass over them, and to come quickly to the sad end. In little more than a year from the time of that last examination before the justice, I made one of the mourners who followed her to the grave. The day before she departed I was called to her bedside. All through her illness she had never spoken of the trouble and terror of the past time. But when she took leave of me forever in this world, she reverted for a moment to the old days of sorrow.

ETIQUETTE OF ROYAL NAVY

Pitfalls For the Unwary Lurk in Rigid Code Observed by British Seadogs

In ordinary naval experience Royalty does not board a man-of-war from a boat at night. But during H.M.S. Renown's cruise the Duke and Duchess sometimes have occasion to do so. In such a case the proper reply from the boat to the ship's hail is "Standard!"

Every boat approaching a warship at night is challenged by the hail "Boat ahoy!" sung out sharply from the bridge forward or the quarter deck aft, and boats that come alongside without answering the challenge promptly do so at their peril and are liable to fired at. The answer to the hail depends on who is in the boat.

For officers of lieutenant's rank and above, the reply is "Aye, aye!" and for anyone below that rank, "No, no!" If the captain of the ship is in the boat, the reply given is the ship's name; for an admiral the answer is "Flag." A boat not coming alongside simply answers "Passing!"

Besides these old sea hails, the detested salutes by boats have been handed down by generations of seamen—except those for steam and motor boats which are usually more modern. The larger boats—double-banked boats they are called—pull two oars from each thwart, and their salute of tossing all oars vertically in the air together is an impressive one.

Another salute lower in the scale for double-banked boats, and the only one for single banked gigs and small dinghies, is to "lay on the oars"—that is, to rest the oars in a horizontal position in line with the gunwale.

Boats under sail salute by letting fly the sheets and the sudden flapping of the sails makes the act quite distinctive. A steam or motor boat's salute, however, is quite a poor affair. She either stops or eases her engines and her bow wave gradually disappears—not very impressive, but all she can do.

Boat salutes are full of pitfalls for the unwary. For instance, a steamboat does not salute when towing, and if the officer or coxswain in charge stops his engines to show respect to some senior officer, not only will the tow come bumping into him, but he will probably be hauled over the coals for it afterwards.

But the most annoying mistakes may be made in saluting the admiral's barge. When the admiral is on duty with his flag flying in the bows there is no doubt what to do, but if there is no flag flying, it is not always so simple. The distinguished looking figure sitting in the stern sheets may not be the admiral at all—quite possibly it may be his steward going on shore for eggs and fresh milk—and a cutter's crew that tosses oars to him will have their legs badly pulled when they return on board.

It is etiquette for juniors to get into their boats before their seniors, but to get out after them. Thus, if a boat is ordered alongside for a certain time, it should be ready to shove off immediately the senior officer steps into it. When going ashore with the admiral, even a captain often has to make a run for the accommodation ladder so as to get into the barge before the admiral and not keep him waiting.

It is considered a breach of etiquette for anyone in a man-of-war's boat to lean his arm on the gunwale or to start smoking without the permission of the senior officer present. But the greatest breach of boat etiquette that can be committed is to cut across an admiral's bows.

SMILES

A pleasant smile to light the eye,
And fill the heart with gladness,
To chase away the tears of grief,
And hush the sigh of sadness;
To lend the face a fairer charm,
A soul of love expressing,
That must to earth divinely bring
A comfort and a blessing.

Bewitching smiles! when hand in hand,
And heart in heart together,
We roam abroad and deeply feel
The joy of wind and weather;
Bewitching smiles; when purple shades
Of twilight gather round us—
And "home, sweet home," with loving looks
And tender words have bound us.

Who would not brave the tear today
And feel the touch of sorrow,
If sunny smiles of joy could gleam,
And change the scene tomorrow?
Who would not go where feebly beats
The cause of earthly being,
If one fond smile could faintly cheer
The weary spirit fleeing?

Oh! smiles have power a world of good
To fling around us ever;
Then let us wear their golden beams
And quench their ardor never!
For while a smile illumines the eye
And wreathes the lip of beauty,
The task of life must ever be
A pure and pleasant duty.

TIMBER SHORTAGE WILL HIT ONTARIO

H. Boulbee Predicts Bad Winter Logging Will Cut the Softwood Supply

A shortage of soft wood in Ontario this summer is predicted by H. Boulbee of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association in a statement on Tuesday.

"In some sections winter logging conditions are the worst in thirty years," Mr. Boulbee said, referring to the heavy and continuous snow falls which came before the frost and made road building almost impossible, with the result that many logs have been left in the woods. "Many of the smaller operators did not go into the bush this year on account of three years of unprofitable logging. Added to this at least three of the largest mills on Georgian Bay are finished, as their limits are cut out.

"At the Canadian lumbermen's meeting at Quebec it was stated that the province of Quebec would produce between 40 and 50 per cent. of their usual winter output of spruce. The shingle manufacturers of British Columbia have taken a leaf from the book of the rubber planters and they have organized to control the output of shingles so that the price may be maintained."

Mr. Boulbee, further stated that Toronto and Hamilton dealers are already bringing ordinary rough boards and dimension lumber from the United States to cope with the shortage.

"There is too much lumber being produced," an official of the R. Laidlaw Lumber Company said, referring to the shortage of soft woods. "We have continental competition from such states as Washington, Idaho and Oregon. The price of spruce may go up, but it can't go far because of this strong competition."

"The increased cost of production in the Canadian woods will be considerable," he added. "Horses and trucks will have to be used to get the logs to the stramps in the spring because of the impossibility of building roads due to heavy snowfalls. The price will go up between three and five dollars a thousand. The wholesale price has already advanced, but from now on the retail price will be higher."

GOOD NIGHT STORIES

By Blanche Silver

BETTY MAKES A DISCOVERY

"GOODNESS me," cried Betty when she saw the tiny little black caterpillars on the nettle bush at the side of the road. "They must be having a party."

"Having a party nothing," laughed a merry voice and Squeedee, the merry little elf from Joyland hopped down beside Betty. "There's enough in the crowd to make a fellow think that they were having a party all right."

"Oh, Squeedee, I'm sure glad to see you," said Betty shaking the wee elf's hand. "Isn't that really a party of some kind?"

"No, indeed," laughed another voice and Squeedee and Betty looked up to see a lovely butterfly hovering over the nettle bush. Her brown wings were banded with a lovely bright orange. "Hello, there, Squeedee! Please don't let your friend harm my babies."

"Your babies!" cried Betty. "My what ugly children to have such a beautiful mother."

"Of course they are her babies," chuckled Squeedee. "Mrs. Tortoise Shell, meet Miss Betty. She wouldn't harm one of your baby caterpillars for the world. How is it you have so many babies, Mrs. Tortoise Shell butterfly?"

"Why not?" laughed the proud butterfly. "Some of my relatives think I'm 'silly to lay so many eggs at a time. But why not have a large family while you're doing it? Do you know, Betty, less than a week ago I laid 600 eggs on the leaves of this nettle bush and they have hatched already!"

"But what in the world are they doing now?" asked Betty, who had been watching the little black caterpillars very closely. As they worked their way over the leaves they left a silken thread like a spider's web behind them. So many of them passing back and forth soon had the leaves completely covered with the silken threads. "What are they doing that for?"

"Building themselves a great big tent," laughed Mrs. Tortoise Shell Butterfly. "That's the way they always do. My children like to stay together. So instead of each going away by himself and building a home they all pitch in and weave a great big tent so they can all live together."

"And will they always live in a crowd like that until they turn into butterflies?" questioned Betty.

"Oh, no, Betty," spoke Squeedee, "when they are almost grown, they separate, say, about five together, and build a shelter. Then when they are full-grown caterpillars, they all strike out for themselves, and then each one spins his last shelter for himself. From then on they live and travel alone."

"I'll be glad when that time comes," laughed Mrs. Tortoise Shell Butterfly. "For when they are old enough to travel alone, they soon hatch into butterflies. I guess the way to make time pass quickly is to keep busy myself," and spreading her lovely wings, Mrs. Tortoise Shell Butterfly sailed away across the meadows.

Betty and Squeedee watched the black caterpillars for a while then they ran on thru the meadows in search of new adventures.

HOWLERS IN ENGLISH SCHOOLS

Prize Winner States "Minister of War is Clergyman Who Preaches in Barracks"

"The minister of war is the clergyman who always preaches to the soldiers in barracks." This reply to an examination question received the prize for schoolboy "howlers" in a competition promoted by the university correspondent. Another boy wrote "Alfred the Great started a chronicle, and this still exists in a morning newspaper."

"The masculine of vixen is vicar," another boy stated and still another declared that "Polonius was a mythical sausage."

In the miscellaneous section one boy stated that "a trade union is a place to which a workman goes when he gets the sack," and that "the chief duties of an M.P. are to go to sleep when another man is speaking, and force his party into power." Ambiguity means "telling the truth when you don't want to," according to another boy. One boy said "a soviet is a cloth used by waiters in hotels," and another stated that to be "called to the bar" is to be treated to a drink.

In the mathematical and scientific section schoolboys stated that "average means something that hens lay their eggs on," and that "a phlegmatic person is one who has chronic bronchitis." Phlebitis is alleged to be a disease frequently taken by people in charge of menageries; while "gravity tells us why an apple does not go to heaven."

READY FOR ALBERTA COAL

$12.75 Ton for Stove Size Is Expected—Storage Sheds To Be Erected in Ontario

Prospects for a supply of Alberta coal for Ontario of a grade equal in results to consumers to United States anthracite and $2 a ton cheaper, are bright, say Toronto coal dealers.

With a studied knowledge of the Alberta product, the Dominion Coal Company, W. G. Watson & Co., Western Canada Colliers, Limited, and others already have taken steps to obtain supplies when the $6.75 a ton freight rate becomes effective in May, without awaiting a report promised by the Alberta government to the Ontario fuel controller relative to grades.

Only two out of the seven dealers doubted the quality of Alberta mountain coal as ranking in results with American anthracite. All dealers, however, expect to handle the Alberta product and anticipate a good trade in it at least until it is thoroughly tested.

The price to Ontario consumers under the new freight rate is expected to be $12.75 a ton for stove and $13.75 for lump, and work out at $4 lump and $3 stove at mine; freight $6.75, dealers' margin $3. Later on, say dealers, under mass production and central storage sheds accommodation, the price should be reduced 50 to 75 cents a ton. At the present time U.S. anthracite in Toronto is retailing at $15.75 to $16.75 a ton.

As a promise of relief on its merits, dealers point to the Winnipeg situation, where U.S. anthracite coal consumption has been reduced to but five per cent. of the total, Alberta supply 95 per cent.

Coalspar and Saunders districts are producing, from seven mines, from 200 to 500 tons of mountain coal daily. Mountain coal is free-burning, hard texture bituminous, spoken of commonly as domestic coal. It has been officially reported as low in sulphur, ash and moisture, enabling summer storage handling with a minimum shrinkage that has brought it success in competition with U.S. anthracite in Winnipeg, increased production of mountain coal will follow trade requirements.

Lethbridge, Drumheller and Edmonton coal is ready for immediate shipment in large supply, it is understood, but as these coals are mostly of the lignite grades they are not regarded as storing so well through the summer on account of containing a higher percentage of moisture, the shrinkage being correspondingly high.

Large central storage sheds will be erected, undoubtedly, as soon as the public learn the economic advantage of Alberta coal, say WesCan Colliers people, and distribution from these centres, probably Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and London will be arranged for winter needs.

HEARD ON THE STREET

It's Spring!

Officially, this is the first day of spring and the opening day is a just grand start.

Who said this is a dead town? Last night there were "umpteenth" things on and look at what's planned for tonight, the play "The Kentucky Belle," the Horticultural Society meeting, Shay's Fashion revue at the Royal Theatre and goodness knows what all else.

The ice on the main street is slowly melting under the coat of accumulated winter's dirt and the dust blows from the dry spots. Our corner friend suggests that a bath may do the main street a great deal of good. The appearance would be improved; it would be more healthily clean and then if the ice was not insulated from the sun's rays by dirt and debris, it would melt much faster.

Now you're likely to strike a soft job if you go off the highways into the byways, for it is said some of the side roads aren't so good, just at present.

The school children all went to the Royal Theatre this afternoon to hear a lecture by a man from the Safety First League, and see educational pictures.

The fishermen celebrated the spring opening by going out to reap the "harvest of the sea." Sounds silly to be bringing in the harvest in the spring, yet, nevertheless, the fishermen's harvest is always ripe.

WELCOME NOTES

There were 32 at our League meeting last week to listen to a splendid missionary topic given under the direction of Miss Elva Pearce. An especially enjoyable item on the program was a piano selection by Miss Ruth Fanning. Our League decided to accept an invitation from the Port Hope Y.P.L. to visit them on the night of March 28.

Miss Vivian Bunner of Bowmanville and friend, Miss Ballantyne, spent the week end with Mrs. R. C. Symons.

Mr. E. H. Martyn is in Toronto attending the convention of the Mutual Fire Underwriters' Association. Dr. J. B. Reynolds of the O.A.C., Guelph, spent the week end here with his sons, James and Walter. On Sunday afternoon he gave the young people of the Sunday School an address on Temperance, which was much appreciated.

Mr. Austin Chestnut of Toronto, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Chestnut.

Mrs. Rorke and Mrs. Cross of Port Hope, spent Sunday with Mrs. E. H. Martyn.

We are glad that Miss Kathleen Herve, who has been confined to the house for some weeks with an injured ankle, is able to be about again.

There is a good deal of sickness in our community. Among those who have been under the doctor's care are Miss Jean Bosnell, Miss Hope Symons and Miss Irene Martyn. We hope for all a speedy recovery.
