

WIFE DIED FROM NATURAL CAUSES

Coroner's Jury Probes Death of Mrs. George Kidd Here on Tuesday Night

The jury empanelled to conduct the inquest of the late Mrs. Geo. Kidd, returned a verdict at the resumed hearing at the Town Hall here Tuesday evening after fifteen minutes deliberation. The verdict finding is as follows:

"We, the jury, empanelled to ascertain by what means Mrs. Geo. Kidd came to her death, after hearing the various witnesses are agreed that she died at her home in Bewdley on March 15th from natural causes and that her husband did what was in his power to provide medical attention."

The hearing Tuesday night was before Coroner W. F. Beamish, with Assistant Crown Attorney Archie Cosgrave of Cobourg acting for the Crown. County Constable J. N. Greenaway was in attendance as well as Provincial Officer Story.

The members of the jury included W. D. Stephens, Geo. T. Hancock, Wm. Yeomans, Wm. Greenaway, Wm. Williams, J. Thompson, Chas. Roberts, Sam Ray, Wm. Moon, Fred Little, Roy Dayman and A. J. Christie.

The first regular hearing was held a week ago Monday evening and was made necessary because unusual circumstances were considered surrounding the death.

Mrs. Kidd had been up and round the house as usual the day of her death, and some time during the night was taken ill. The family consisted of father, mother and 8 children the latter ranging in ages from 21 to 3 years, all but one of whom slept upstairs in one room. At the inquest it was shown that Mrs. Kidd was a Christian scientist, and did not believe in doctors, thinking that they were, as her husband put it, "artificial." Evidence given by the husband showed that he had made every possible effort to obtain medical assistance but she had died before the arrival of the doctor. Medical evidence showed that death was due to internal hemorrhage, and that the woman might have died even had she had medical attention.

Medical Testimony

Dr. Alfred Russell of Bailieboro testified and stated that he was called to the Kidd home on March 15, at 5.30 and arrived about 6.15. When he arrived, Mrs. Kidd had not been dead very long.

Crown Attorney—Are you in a position to say the cause of death? Dr. Russell—I am now, after the post mortem has been conducted. It was concealed accidental hemorrhage.

"What were the general living conditions?" "It all depends on the man's circumstances."

"If you had been called earlier, would it have been possible to save her life?"

"That is hard to say. I could say if she had had medical attention, she would have been better off, but would not go so far as to say the life would have been saved."

Living Conditions

Dr. Jas. T. Daley, Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, testified and stated that he was called the family and reported on the matter. He stated that the house was satisfactory considering the man's circumstances. The house is not a full two story one. It has concrete foundation and is well built. The floor is made of white oak and is a good comfortable, warm house. There are no partitions upstairs or down and before the Superintendent's visit the place had evidently been cleaned up.

The bedding is home made and there was an ample supply. Six bags of flour were counted upstairs and it was thought there was an abundance of potatoes and meat in the cellar. "And," concluded the witness, "there are a great many worse places in the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham."

Husband on Stand

George Kidd, wife of the deceased woman, was on the stand for a few minutes and readily answered all questions put to him by Assistant Crown Attorney Cochrane.

"Do you know if your wife belonged to any Christian Science Church?"

"I don't think she did." "Did she ever attend church service?"

"I don't think she did." "Was there any Christian Science literature found in the house?"

"There were two pamphlets and a little book, from some place in the States, I think."

"Do you know if she was ever attended by a Christian Science practitioner?"

"No."

Assistant Crown Attorney Cochrane explained that owing to the unusual circumstances an inquest was thought necessary, if for nothing else than to clear the atmosphere. The evidence showed no neglect and that her husband had done as much as was expected of him to have his wife properly attended to.

GIFT SHOP GIRLS SUCCESSFUL TEA

Pleasing Spring Function at Veteran's Hall Proves A Drawing Card

The afternoon tea conducted in the Veteran's Hall Tuesday afternoon from 3.30 to 6.30 under the auspices of the Gift Shop Girls of the Gleaners Society of the Port Hope United Church proved a most delightful affair. The function was most successful in every way and the workers are to be congratulated on its success.

The hall was very prettily bedecked with daffodils and spring flowers and added much to its attractiveness.

The talent table proved an excellent drawing card and those in charge were Miss Dorothy Greenaway, Mrs. Brodie Thompson, Mrs. W. F. Beamish, Mrs. O. Culver and Mrs. C. Evans.

The tea room conveners were Mrs. A. E. Darch and Miss Gertrude Oliver, while those pouring tea were Mrs. A. G. Aldrich, Mrs. F. W. Anderson and Miss M. Henwood.

The ladies assisting in the tea room were:

Mrs. T. Bennett, Miss Evelyn Sainsbury, Mrs. J. Y. Kellough, Miss Muriel Oke, Mrs. C. M. Thompson, Miss Mildred Massie, Mrs. J. Nichols, Miss Pearl Hutchings, Mrs. M. Hancock, Miss Kathleen Oke, Mrs. F. W. Wells, Miss Gladys Myers, Mrs. F. R. O'Neill, Miss Greta Greenaway, Miss C. Evans, Miss T. Caldwell, Mrs. W. F. Beamish and Mrs. A. Trenouth.

MASSEY TELLS OF CANADA'S WEALTH

Dominion Minister Describes Growth of Country During 50 Years

Speaking eloquently of the marvellous growth of the youthful Northern neighbor of the United States, Hon. Vincent Massey, first Canadian Minister to that country, addressed the joint gathering of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and the Advertising Club at a luncheon at Los Angeles on Tuesday.

Within the short space of fifty years, Mr. Massey said, the pioneering spirit inherent in Canadians had resulted in the development of resources until now Canada ranked second in the world in her per capita wealth in value of mines, wheat growing, factories, production of paper and extent of railways.

The prosperity of Canada is, he continued, shown by the fact that 82 per cent of the country's national debt is held within Canada, yet since the Great War, Canadians have invested $1,250,000,000 in the other countries. At the same time there has been an increase of $600,000,000 in bank deposits, and the same amount spent on automobiles.

The northern sections of Canada, he said, far from being the wilderness commonly pictured by the American people, produce from mines, forests and fields unlimited wealth. The Canadian Government paid the Hudson Bay Company 300,000 pounds for Western Canada fifty years ago and one province of that territory last year produced $3,000,000 worth of poultry products alone.

The progress of the country was steady and without boom features, even bankers being optimistic regarding future growth, Mr. Massey said.

Wheat can now be grown within 4004 miles of the Arctic Circle, an eighteen hour day during the summer compensating for the shortness of the season itself. All the mines now developed in Canada might be encompassed in an area of one hundred square miles, although the known mineral-bearing area of the country exceeds 200,000 square miles.

The friendship of Canada and the United States was spoken of by the Minister, who spoke of Benjamin Franklin's advice to Great Britain to take Canada from the French rather than the Island of Guadalupe. Franklin's fellow countrymen, he said, visited the land he recommended last summer to the number of millions, three hundred thousand American automobiles being registered in Ontario alone.

Mrs. Massey, Godfrey Fisher, the British Consul and Mrs. Fisher were introduced to the gathering.

CANTATA GIVEN IN ST. JOHN'S

Mr. Edmund Cohu Congratulated for Delightful Musical Treat

The music lovers of Port Hope enjoyed a rare treat on Tuesday night when an augmented choir, under the leadership of Mr. Edmund Cohu, gave Stainer's sacred cantata, "The Daughter of Jairus," in St. John's church. This choir set a high standard for themselves last year in their rendition of the simpler, and perhaps more popular, music of the cantata, "Penitence, Pardon and Peace." Last night, however, they proved themselves fully capable of the more ambitious work by Stainer.

The cantata was preceded by the unaccompanied rendering of the well known anthem, "God So Loved the World," in which almost all the exceptional qualities of the choir were given free play—excellent balance, swelling cadences, strong swelling strain of melody. In the last chorus particularly, a magnificent climax was reached, where the three soloists sang each in high key their rippling Hallelujahs to the accompaniment of a full choir on a lower pitch. It was thrilling and it was a spiritual inspiration.

Too much credit would be impossible to give to the soloists, Mrs. N. G. Johnson and Messrs J. T. George and Reid. We are of the opinion that few town choirs (or city ones for that matter) could boast of three such artists as these revealed themselves to be last night. The heavy end of the work fell on the lady, who handled recitative passages which were her task with fine effect and almost faultless diction, restraint and admirable vocalization. In the opening chorus of the cantata scored for eight part singing, the soprano and contralto voices swung into the rhythmic chorus of prophecy, "In that Day Shall the Lord of Hosts be for a Crown of Glory," with splendid attack and fine assurance, the men's prayerful response, "O Lord, Be Gracious Unto Us," sung with excellent intonation, forming a striking contrast.

In the two heavy, full choir choruses, "Awake, Thou That Sleepest," and "To Him Who Left His Throne on High," the same qualities of confidence, precision, tonal effect and balance was most noticeable, and could only have resulted from long, painstaking and skillful preparation. Indeed, he must have been sleepy of soul who could fail to be thrilled and uplifted by this.

Perhaps the two gems of the work were the exquisite tenor solo by Mr. Reid, "My Hope is Everlasting," and the equally beautiful duet, "Love Divine," rendered by Mrs. Johnson and Mr. George. Mr. Reid's beautiful, soft, round and sympathetic voice was heard to full effect in the former, while the other two soloists did full justice to the lovely, pleasing melody of the duet. Rarely, if ever, has that always popular singer, Mr. George, been heard with greater satisfaction than he was in his work of last night.

In conclusion a word must be said of Mr. Cohu's work. To have obtained such results alike from choir and soloists, he must have given of himself unsparingly in time, patience and effort. He concluded by backing up his own work of preparation with truly brilliant accompaniment and organ solo work.

Altogether the whole service was inspirational and beautiful, and the very large congregation must have gone away feeling that "it had been good for them to have been there," for there has been opened for them vistas of that higher and better world of which Christ offers to make us citizens.

After the service the Service Club of St. John's Church entertained the choir and their friends in the Parish Hall with coffee and other refreshments, when an enjoyable social half hour was spent.

NEVER DESPAIR OF HOPE

Providence, nature, or at least force, has taken another fling at the flimsy bridges of Hope Township.

While the poor (by comparison with Hope) but enterprising townships elsewhere, have been borrowing money to build permanent bridges, the wealthy township of Hope has been cobbling up their old wooden structures to last a trifle longer, or until someone is killed or injured, and Hope has cheerfully or otherwise to defend a suit for damages. The price of several bridges have been squandered in this way.

But give the township its due, some substantial bridges have been built in Hope of concrete and they not having been built upon the sand, when the "rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew" and even reinforced by ice cakes and timber, these bridges stood. This and past experience really should teach Hope Township that it pays to build for keeps, it is really cheaper to build something that will last and be of use to the present generation as well as a "thing of beauty and a joy forever." Also a benefit to generations following.

Hope certainly has some job this year—a half dozen bridges to build—but we trust the present wise and enterprising council will meet the situation by building all from this time forward substantially of concrete to make the roads of Hope safe for the present day traffic.

We wonder if the Counties road authorities will again tempt providence by attempting to prop the rural log structure on the west gravel road near Canton corners? There has been only one fatal accident at this point since the erection of this wonderful bridge. The timber of the trusses is rotten on one side only and the under supports are so far gone as to have prompted some one to thoroughly bar the approaches to traffic on both sides—but a few fence rails on end from the creek bottom might be safe until someone goes through it. Meantime "and now the bridge hangs tottering above the boiling tide."

We wonder why the Ontario Safety League does not do something useful in cases like this.

The road at this point should be straightened and an extra wide safe concrete bridge erected.

HEARD ON THE STREET

Is that all?

Many of those interested are wondering if the Ganeraska will keep within bounds from now on. It isn't so nice going to all the trouble of pumping out and cleaning up and then have mud and ice put back after all the work of clearing away the mess.

The railway has got the gravel in between the tracks on Ontario street again to replace that washed out by the current.

Is it true that some of our dryest of drygoods merchants are handling wet goods now?

Port Hope's pavements saved the town thousands of dollars in repairs for washed out roads. No matter how hard the gravel road, it won't stand up in a flood as we have every reason to know from former experience.

This morning the Nicholson File Company received a truck load of eight stop logs to replace those of the fourteen swept away which were broken or not found.

Mr J. Lajoie, Ward street, brought in two old coins to the Guide. One is English, dated 1813, while the other apparently Irish, has no inscription save the date of 1820. When we find out more about them, we will tell you all.

The Federal Radio Commission on Tuesday extended the licenses of all broadcasting stations until May 1. Broadcasting licenses were to expire April 1, but because of new radio legislation now awaiting the signature of President Coolidge, a month longer was granted.

Teachers of the collegiate institute and the public schools of Lindsay were guests of the Board of Education at a banquet. The special speaker of the evening was M. D. Tudhope of Orillia. B. L. McLean, chairman of the board, occupied the chair.

Mr. L. Bosheff, proprietor of the Ontario Hotel, is again ready for business after Tuesday's disastrous flood. This was the second time the hotel has been flooded within three days. Everything has been cleaned up and is in first class condition again.

Three prominent Canadian Nation al Railways men have passed away during the last few days at Lindsay in the persons of two engineers, Philip Elmhurst and Alfred Venters, and Conductor Arthur Grills. All three had been long in the service. The late Conductor Grills, who worked on the Sutton line, died at Toronto Monday. He was a son of Thomas Grills, for years station agent at Argyle, and one of the pioneer railwaymen in Ontario.

The funeral of Gordon F. Cochran, who lost his life Saturday when nearly a ton of earth fell on him at Brown's gravel pit, north of Oshawa, was held Monday afternoon. A service was held at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Isaac Sisson, 128 Albert street, Oshawa. Interment was made in the Union Cemetery.

"I'm a very busy man, sir. What is your proposition?"

"I want to make you rich." "Well, leave your recipe with me and I'll look it over later. Just now I'm engaged in closing up a deal by which I expect to make $7 in real money."

THE GUIDE STORY

"You have known me in frills and ribbons, doc," said the girl, "but that acquaintance gives you no right to lecture me, now that I am grown up: I have come to stay at the Manor House, and what's more, I won't have you calling me Firefly. From this moment I am Miss Jane Fenton, if you please. Now be a dear, good man, and coach me a bit. What's the hearse-like-beautiful?"

"No-o!" was the reluctant answer. "Ugly?"

"Certainly not; but look here, Firefly—" "H'm! Are you in love with her?" John waited a moment to control his temper.

"So you have not outgrown your habit of asking impertinent questions, Miss Fenton?" he said. "No," was the quick reply. "But evasion of an answer can tell so much! Don't be cross, doc, dear." A hand touched Doctor Forrester's sleeve, and he was ungallant enough to edge away nearer his side of the carriage, while the teasing voice continued: "I will ask you an easier question: Is she clever?"

A short pause ensued, then the doctor said sternly: "Look here, Firefly, I simply can't call you Miss Fenton, it is too ridiculous, when you had your hair down your back only the other day—I refuse to be 'hadgered' like this. Being kind-hearted people, they won't turn you away tonight, so you can answer your questions for yourself. Now, tell me about the home folk. Is Gwendal really ill?"

"Temperature one hundred and four. Delirious. Pains everywhere," was the prompt answer. "The house is in confusion, Mother glued to Gwen's room. Medicine and fuss everywhere. She will be all right in a day or so, I expect. Our new doc is great! He's in love with Gwen. We know—she doesn't!"

Firefly longed for just one gleam of light to see how John took this bit of information, having, in bygone days, had certain suspicions of her own on the matter.

"Is that so?" he said. His voice gave her no information. "Now, Miss Madcap, to business, please, for we are turning in at the lodge gates. I have a professional visit to pay to Miss Granby tonight. That is one reason why I met you at the station. Am I to make the apology, or are you equal to the task?"

"Leave it to me, doc, for goodness sake! Don't make me bungle the whole thing by interrupting at the wrong moment! I want to stay here, honest true, and I do love the pump and grandeur. Don't try to send me back to bum-drum, dingy, hateful Vernon Terrace."

John laughed rather harshly, but said nothing. When the carriage drew up with a dash to the front door, which opened to let out a blaze of light, he helped her out, and followed her into the house.

CHAPTER III

The Tables Turned.

"She came, she saw, she conquered." So thought Doctor Forrester, rather scornfully, as he trudged on homeward half an hour later. Firefly, in making her peace with the inmates of the Manor House, had need of no help from him. In fact, the tables had been turned, for in less than twenty minutes after their arrival, Miss Granby managed to convey the impression to her hitherto invaluable medical adviser that, far from requiring his skillful aid in quieting her feeble old heart, she merely wished to be free to admire and pet the gorgeous young butterfly that had flown into her niece's quiet drawing room, undisturbed by a critical man's eyes.

Had Miss Charity realized this, she would doubtless have been heart broken. She would as soon have committed a murder as run the chance of hurting any one's feelings, but John's instincts were quick. He realized that not only Miss Granby, but Olwen too, wished to be left in peace with their unexpected visitor; therefore, he bade them a rather curt "Good night."

"Arrant little humbug!" he thought angrily, as he strode away in the darkness, head bent low, and shoulders squared to meet the wind. "Dressing herself up like a popinjay under the mackintosh, with a view to first impressions! Taking off her hat in the nick of time to show her short curls! Bah! Child though she is, those two foolish women are no match for her. I detest humbugs."

So he did; yet, all the same, in the past, when face to face with the humbug in question, he had not been wont to deal out very hard measure to pretty, story-telling, irritating Firefly Fenton.

It is not without significance that at the mature age of two, by unanimous consent of the family, her name had been changed from Jane to "Firefly." From that point onward, through sixteen laughing years, Firefly had danced through life, as merry, as thoughtless, as evading, as mysterious as her name sake, flitting through the orange groves of Southern climes.

She was a puzzle to most people, even to her mother. She was a puzzle to John Forrester, though he had known her from babyhood, and rather prided himself on his insight into human nature. Sometimes he had thought that beneath the surface there was a very different girl and sometimes he came to the conclusion that Firefly was, in truth, as she appeared, thoughtless, untruthful, even heartless.

The New York Rangers virtually qualified to meet Boston in the final of the American group of the National Hockey League at New York last night when they routed Pittsburgh 4 to 0. The second game of the series, which will be decided by total goals, will be played Thursday night, but on last night's play the Pittsburghers are not conceded much chance of overcoming the Rangers' lead.

MAROONS TAKE FIRST

Joey Lamb, Montreal Maroon right winger, who graduated to major league ranks only this season niched his name in hockey's hall of fame by scoring the solitary tally that 60 minutes of gruelling play between his team and Ottawa produced at Ottawa last night. By the stroke that sent the puck hurtling into the cage in the middle period of the fray, Lamb gave the Maroons the slim margin to carry into the second game of the semi-final round for the international section title of the National Hockey League.

On the play it was a characteristic Maroon and Ottawa battle, with heavy checking holding the two forward lines within close bounds most of the time. The first period saw the Red, White and Black squad holding a slight edge on the attack. The middle period was about nip and tuck, while in the third stanza the Maroons were easily the more aggressive. Their supply of first-class substitutes were injected into the contest at strategic moments and the hard body-checking which marked the game had left the losers a trifle leg weary at the final bell.

C.P.R. ASSETS SHOW INCREASE

Slightly Lower Than in 1926.— Total Assets Show Big Increase

Net earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the year ended December 31, 1927, available for dividends on the common stock at $31,407,320 were equal to $12.07 a share, compared with $14.12 in 1926. The report shows gross earnings amounting to $201,145,751.85, and working expenses (including taxes) of $161,630,180.45, leaving net of $39,515,571.40. After addition of $11,976,559.78 from special income and deduction of various charges, including dividends, the net surplus for the year was shown as $5,407,320.22.

The balance sheet supplied in the pamphlet report now being forwarded to shareholders shows few extraordinary changes. Total assets are shown increased to $1,169,297,953 from $1,137,909,100. This is largely accounted for by the increase in property investments to $762,978,970 from $726,225,369. In the liabilities the outstanding difference is the item represented by payments on new stock issued, amounting to $34,002,549.

Working capital is steady at $59,684,202.

The results for the year give further evidence of the need for increases in transportation revenues if gross earnings are to keep pace with operating costs the statement sets forth.

Baseball COLLINS, SHEEDY REPORT

They say that lightning never strikes twice in the same place, but it did that little thing both literally and figuratively at the Leafs training camp Saturday. For example, Clayton Sheedy not only reported but Rip Collins as well, and the shock almost stunned Manager O'Hara, as he had about given up all hope of getting the man who led the Tiger twirlers last year in effectiveness and who for years has been a picturesque figure in the American League.

Collins no sooner arrived than a storm of a truly terrific nature to Northern eyes broke. One house on the outskirts was the target for two electric bolts, thus disproving the verity of the old adage, while hail as big as junior baseballs bounced on the pavements. Warren Cote, the dapper little shortstop, turned in the best card, getting a couple of forty threes, although Jess Doyle won the "money hole", much to his joy. Cote was also the star in the abbreviated game of Saturday, making a liner over the field fence for the circuit and also coming through with a triple in a timely spot.

The session was marked by the fine display of pitching effectiveness given by Clarence Fisher. The rangy right hander had his submarine shoots well under control and his marksmanship was so accurate that in one stretch he fanned five in a row and seven out of eight batsmen who faced him.

Sheedy will be used altogether in the outfield, as Anderson is a fixture at first base. But if anything happens to Big Boy, he will be prepared to jump into the job. The first thing that Manager O'Hara asked him was if he had seen anything of Jacobson, but his answer was in the negative.

Sheedy, however, disseminated the information that Jack Dunn is trying to purchase the release of Eddie Onslow, the veteran first-baseman, from Birmingham. The former Leaf, who was sold to the Southern Association club during the winter, has refused to report.

It was told by Sheedy that Arch-deacon may not be able to play this year because of a head injury received in an exhibition game, when he was struck by a wild pitch and his skull fractured. Judging from all reports, Dunn hasn't much of a team at present.

At a late hour Saturday night, Rip Collins was still outside the fold. There are several clauses in a contract submitted to him that he objects to, and there are some he would like to have added. Collins, it is understood, is holding out for transportation for his wife and child, both to and from his home in the Lone Star State. This is one of the conditions that he is imposing.

Manager Scheepner of Albany has turned back Jess Spring, the Toronto boy, who was listed for an outfield position, because of his refusal to report when ordered. He is after several of the recruits with the Leafs, but Manager O'Hara is not disposed to do any business with him as yet.

CANADA MAKES RECORD EXPORT

Has Made More Progress Than Any Other Country in World

The statement is made by certain Canadian statesmen that Canada, during the past few years, has made little progress in the development of manufacturing. It is asserted that we are only hewers of wood and drawers of water for the United States. The claim is made that we send out raw materials and bring back finished products and by inference the youth of the land is led to believe that to the south lies hope, while in Canada there is nothing but despair—at least until a change of policy takes place.

Canada, since 1922, has made more progress than any other country in the world. Our total exports of finished manufactured goods during this period shows greater growth than ever recorded in a country of equal population. Our exports of manufactured goods per unit of population is more than double that of our southern neighbor. The percentage increase of exports of manufactured goods between 1922 and 1927 is much greater than that of the United States. These facts are matched against the political croakers.

Let the facts speak. The figures on which the pessimistic notes are based are as follows:

JERSEY BLACK GIANTS

America's Heaviest Fowls

Secure your next Christmas dinner by raising a flock of Giants. Hatching Eggs 2.50 per 15 eggs J. H. BENSON, Bewdley

Percentage of Manufactured to Total Exports

	Canada	United States
1900	40.8%	48.6%
1914	26.7%	44.0%
1922	41.0%	49.8%
1927	39.2%	51.3%

These percentages are given as proof that we are moving backward industrially. As a comparison between Canada and the United States they are worse than useless. If half our Canadian wheat crop were destroyed next year then our total exports would decline. If, however, our export of manufactured goods remained stationary the percentage which that figure bears to total exports would be much higher than it now is because the total sum of which it forms a part would be less owing to the reduction in the amount of wheat. Since 1922 American exports of agricultural products have fallen off—ours have increased heavily. Hence, our percentage figures of exported manufactured goods show a decline. The per capita exports of Canadian manufactured products has advanced more rapidly than the exports from the other side of the line. The figures follow:

Exports Manufactured Goods

1900	$ 68,950,000	$ 665,820,000
1914	115,344,000	1,024,760,000
1922	303,400,000	1,874,970,000
1927	490,784,000	2,440,854,000

Taking the American population as 105,000,000 in 1922 and ours at 8,800,000, it will be found that American per capita export of manufactured goods amounted to $17.80 in 1922—Canadian $34.40. In 1927 we reached $49.07 per capita—the United States had crawled up to $20.30. The increase of exports per capita between 1922 and 1927 is not far from the total of the American per capita exports in 1927. Putting the facts another way we have this amazing statement. With 10,000,000 people, Canada in five years 1922-1927, increased total exports of manufactured goods by $187,000,000—the United States with 120,000,000, twelve times the population—increased its exports of manufactured goods only a little more than three times as much or a total increase in this period of $566,000,000. If our exports of manufactured goods were on the same basis as American, in proportion to population, then we would have exported in 1927 $203,000,000, whereas exports were nearly $491,000,000. To put it in still another form, if we care to apply the percentage basis and apply it where it can be applied correctly, we have in 1927 an increase over 1922 in our exports of manufactured goods from Canada of 62 per cent—the increase in exports of manufactured goods from the U.S. during the same period was 30 per cent.

The facts given above are taken from reliable sources—American figures from the Commerce Year Book—Canadian from the Annual Reports of the Trade of Canada. The figures carry their own message. No man should read more into them than they contain. They are written to put facts worth knowing before the people. We can never deal fairly with Canadian problems unless we know the facts.

THE BIG FRESH WATER GAME FISH

The conserving of the game fish of the province is beginning to receive much attention, and in this connection complaints are still heard from the Kawartha Lakes region to the effect that there is a good deal of lunge spearing in the spring. This is a hard thing to believe.

It is hard to believe that a summer resort region, enjoying a large and hoping for an enormous tourist traffic, largely based on the desire to fish for lunge, would tolerate the lawless destruction of the very source of its summer prosperity.

It would be supposed that even the most lawless persons would know on which side their bread is buttered. But if such persons do not know it the Boards of Trade, the organized merchants, the owners of holiday resorts should know it. It is hard to estimate the value of a lunge to the Kawarthas or any other district to which tourists come in search of it. Some say it is worth $50—but it is worth nothing on the end of a poacher's spear. The lunge is the big game fish of fresh water.

Last spring the Ontario Government had special watchers employed to patrol the spawning regions of the lunge, but this, the Peterboro and Lindsay people say, was not sufficient. But why leave it all to the Government? The local game protection and anglers' associations might very well do some volunteer work for they better than any outside agency can create a local public opinion that will defend the lunge and recognize its high local value. They say people down there do not want to antagonize the poachers or they might get their barns burned. But the summer tourist trade is worth annually to the Kawarthas region a good many barns. In a case of this kind education and persuasion can accomplish a great deal, and where it fails, the law can be invoked. Parties of volunteer protectors of the lunge could do a great deal during the spawning season to aid the watchers placed on the job by the Government. Hired men can't get the best results unless a robust public opinion backs them up.—Toronto Star.

OSHAWA STRIKE STILL CONTINUES

General Motors Strikers Are Told By Representatives to Stick Together

With no indications of a settlement, the strike at General Motors Oshawa plants started on its third day today. Approximately 1,500 men are idle and should the strike continue other departments of the factories will be held up and consequently this number will be considerably swelled. After two mass meetings of the strikers and a conference between representatives of the strikers and a committee representing General Motors, the situation remains unchanged. The chief development occurred late Tuesday afternoon when a telegram was forwarded to Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, Ottawa, asking for assistance in bringing about an adjustment. This was the first official step in calling the attention of the department to the incident in Oshawa.

While there are possibly 1,500 men idle, the number of actual strikers is estimated to be under 1,000. There are 300 trimmers who walked out Monday morning, while between 300 and 400 employees of the assembly lines of the various divisions joined the ranks in a sympathy strike Tuesday evening.

The mass meeting of trimmers Tuesday morning resulted in an arrangement whereby the strikers' committee could meet the company's committee and arrange for a Labor representative from Toronto to address them.

A report was received late in the afternoon to the effect that the company adhered to the decision contained in the statement issued by H. A. Brown, General Manager.

The strikers' committee was instructed to ask for reinstatement at either their former wage or accept a "fifty-fifty" split on the cut, which was from 30 to 40 per cent. They also demand that the men who have been engaged in their places be released. The men claim that they have only been averaging from 44 cents to 52 cents an hour for some time, and under the new scale they would not receive a living wage.

H. A. Brown, General Manager, in a statement Tuesday said that the reduction was merely bringing the scale into line with American plants, and that it was commonly known that the cost of living was generally higher in the United States than in Oshawa. The men had been averaging $1.12 an hour and under the new scale they would average 82 cents an hour. The previous scale was 40 per cent above the Buffalo and St. Louis plants, and also higher than the Flint plant. "Our position remains the same as announced in my statement of yesterday," Mr. Brown declared. "We are unable to see where our decision is at fault."

A note from the company which was sent to every trimmer, was read at Tuesday morning's meeting as follows:

"It is regretted that a number of employees of the trim department severed their connection with the company today. Undoubtedly the majority did this without mature thought, and on further consideration will regret their action. "There is no desire to create a hardship for employees and their families who have their homes in Oshawa. Many of the employees concerned have enjoyed remarkable prosperity as a result of their employment with this company.

"It is the intention to bring in new men to replace those who do not desire to continue employment. Before this, however, a final opportunity is given you to talk this over with your family, and make a decision for yourself.

"Employees involved who report at the Employment Department at once will be reinstated. (Signed.) General Motors of Canada, Limited. Men have been taken on in the trimming department and Tuesday morning more were engaged.

Representatives of the various divisions addressed the men and the meeting and advised them that they must "stick together." Men from the Chevrolet and Pontiac assembly lines, who are said to be strongest in their sympathy to the trimmers who first walked out, claimed that they now only average about fifteen dollars a week.

WESTMINSTER GLEE SINGERS

With the Westminster Glee Singers, who will appear here at the Royal Theatre on Tuesday next, will be heard six boy sopranos, who for beauty of voice, artlessness and purity of expression could not be excelled anywhere in the world. They are reminiscent of a beautiful phase of English musical culture and have always proved one of the greatest sources of attraction where ever the Glee Singers have sung. It is one of the crowning glories of British singing that its boy sopranos have for centuries been unequalled in the world. The training which the old cathedral choirs have carried on all these years has resulted in establishing a note worthy tradition, which has set a very high standard for so many ordinary churches. Most cathedral choirs in Great Britain have no less than 14 services per week, and often with daily rehearsals, so it is no wonder that such an extraordinary pitch of excellence is reached in these young choristers.

The programs are made up of all sorts of secular and sacred music that cathedral singing can illustrate and will include madrigals, glees, part-songs, solos with vocal accompaniments, numbers for boys' voices only and male quartettes.

Whether in the boys' singing, or in the men's work, or in the combined performance of the complete choir, those who know something of the beauties of English cathedral song will renew old and precious memories when they hear this body of singers. The details of the programs to be rendered will be published at a later date.

Changing the Subject.

The dance was in full progress, and the young couples circling gaily on the polished floor under the delicately-shaded lights made an attractive picture. A certain popular song has told us recently that "dancing-time is just the time for loving," and one couple at least were putting this theory well to the test.

They sat in one secluded corner holding hands and—well, you know. After a moment the girl turned to her lover and said softly:

"John, are you sure your love is true?"

"Yes," he replied fervently; "yes—as true as the roses on your cheeks."

"Oh—er—yes," answered the girl stammeringly. "Isn't the—er—doesn't the band play nicely?"
