Four able bodied Englishmen who would rather spend their time in jail than work appeared in the Police Court this morning.

The first on the list, George O'Neil, was charged with breaking into the home of Mr. Fred Ough, lot 2, Concession 3, Township of Hope, and stealing $31.65 and one razor. James Innis and George Boucher were charged with receiving part of this money, knowing the same to have been stolen, According to O'Neil's story they came here from England about five years ago. Early last winter they went to Cobourg, and being unable to secure employment asked to be sent to jail. The Magistrate granted their request, and it was only yesterday they were released. They came here and asked for work on the C. N. R., and being unable to secure it continued in their tramp northward. O'Neil's appetite bothered him, and he called at Fred Ough's for lunch. Mr. and Mrs. Ough were in Port Hope so O'Neil decided to help himself. He gained entrance by one of the front win-dows, and found the money in the drawer. His companions were waiting on the roadside, and when following to say of William Harrihe returned he told them of his find and gave them each 50c. They then returned to Port Hope, purchased some bread and meat, and went to the lockup for a night's lodging.

Innis and Boucher told the Court

Such is the Distinction of David S. K. Byrne

Toronto, March 27. - Not to many men falls the distinction of having four surnames in his life time. A woman may count on having two if she is fortunate enough, or otherwise, to marry, but most men are content to amble through life with the name they inherit from their fathers, unless, indeed an alias is desirable. David S. K. Byrne has had four minded and somber this morning. legal names in his time. He was to the He had just got out of a hospital in born David Samuel Kidd, in the later.

> A couple of years ago the erstwhile David Samuel Kidd changed his name by deed poll which he registered at Osgoode Hall. The reason he gave for the change em-bodies a romantic story of a visit by Kidd to Chicago and the rescue there from a life of inlamy of the daughter of a man of great wealth. The daughter was restored to her parents, but shortly afterwards died. The father did not long survive her and dying, left to the rescuer of his daughter, a large sum of money, said to be over a million dollars, for the erection in Toronto of a rescue home to be superintended by David Samuel Kidd. The only condition attacked was that the said Kidd should change his surname to that of the millionaire. With his name changed to David S. K. Burns, Kidd prepared to leave for Australia, where the millionaire had made his home. Before he left, however, he found that a mistake had been made, and that instead of Burns his name should have been merely Burn. His name was accordingly changed

Now there has arrived at Osgoode Hall from Sydney, N.S.W., another communication from the former Kidd to the effect that one more deed poll is necessary to straighten out the name which will entitle him to the fund. He finds that the proper spelling of the name is "Byrne." He has therefore made this change and is now known as David S. K. Byrne. The document from Australia is covered with 10. It concludes: "Now, therefore, I, the said David S. K. Burn (nee Kidd) aforesaid, do hereby declare that from grand secretary. He is survived this date I shall call myself and be Byrne, as that is my legal name. Canada, I, the said David Samuel whereas the will mentioned spelled the name Byrne."

Wellington George Byrne, of Baltimore, is the name of the millionaire in the case. He died on Sept. 14, 1908.

Friends of David S. K. Byrne, in this city, say that We will return to America before long, having dis-covered that the bulk of the property is in Maryland, and the will is to be probated there. There will probably be much litigation in connection with it. Kidd had an interview with Mrs, Byrne, and they got along amicably, it is said-

INGREASED LIGENCE REVENUE Some $150,000

The Ontario Government will, commencing May 1, receive about $150,000 additional revenue annually from the hotels of the province under the provisions of the amendments made to the Ontario liquor licence act, at the last session of the Legislature. This is the estimate made by the hotelmen after inquiries made in all parts of the province. The information required by the Government was gathered by the licence inspectors and it is estimated that of the total Toron'o will contribute $82,000. A large number of places will not be affected by the new Government law, the hotelmen in the cities and towns being the most vitally interested. The hotelmen will watch the operation of the new law between now and the next session of the Legislature, and bring forward suggestions for the fixing of a higher license fee instead of the percentage basis re- rules with respect to the payment ment from giving consideration to Judicature for the Province, and aprequests at the session closed a proved by the Government,

Oh, nothing.

In the same great Babylon are thousands upon thousands who have no home. They thank God in their hearts if not in prayer audible, and sleep in boxes, in wagons, in doorways, in the parks, anywhere, everywhere. They thank God it is summer time.

But this is nothing to us; we are not hungry; we have a bed and

In that great maelstrom of humanity some are not only hungry and homeless, but starving.

Weiare not. Yes: across in that world wide capital, that awful city of dizzy heights and unfathomable mysteries, there are the starving ones, and dogs on whom enough is spent to keep many families and attended to by maids.

One female, we will not call her a lady, keeps a French poodle in a luxuriously furnished room and has a French maid to await his imperious barking. The dog wears shoes in wet weather lest it dampen its feet. It is taken driving behind coachman and footman. And ragged children starve, hungry children wonder, but the dog is not to blame, and the Lord lets the female live on.

Plans to Take In Boundary City on West, to Take In the Napanee-Kingston Group of Cities and to Supply Power to Northern Towns Are Decided on by Hon. Mr. Beck and His Colleagues.

Toronto, March 31.-Hon. Adam Beck and the members of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission had an epoch making day at the Parliament buildings yesterday. Two great in-dustrial projects of vast provincial, if of national proportions, were adopted, and concurred in by the On-tario Government after a conference with the commission.

One of the two big projects was the extension of the Hydro-Electric power transmission line from St. Thomas to Windsor.

The other was the adoption of a plan to supply the Napanee-Kingston group of cities and towns with Hydro-

Electric power.
Provision was also made to supply
Midland, Penetang and Waubashene with electricity to the extent of 1,600 horse-power.

The transmission line from St. Thomas to Windsor as previously announced, was contemplated when the Legislature was asked to authorize a new provincial loan, but was made de-pendent on a reasonable demand for power at Windsor and on the route of the extension westward being assured. This is now regarded as available, and the commission was authorized to proceed with the undertaking, provided conditions satisfactory to the memed conditions satisfactory to bers of the board were made for the operation of the Michigan Central Railway tunnel with Hydro-Electric

And at this rate, might vapour away his holiday. Exeter was tedious, but he could not make up his mind to set forth for the seashore, where only his own thoughts awaited him. Packed away in his wallet lay geological hammer, azimuth compass, clinometer, miniature microscope, - why should he drag all that lumber about with him? What to him were the bygone millions of ages, the hoary records of unimaginable time? One touch of a girl's hand, one syllable of musical speech, -was it not that whereof his life had truly need?

As remote from him, however, as the age of the pterodactyl. How often was it necessary to repeat this? On a long voyage, such as timated before the delegations that this? But just as his hand was stretched forth, a full voice, speaking beside him, made demand for a London weekly paper. Instantly he turned. The tones had carried him back to Whitelaw; the face disturbed that illusion, but substituted a reality which threw him into a tremor.

His involuntary gaze was met with one of equal intensity. A man of his own years, but in splendid health and with bright eyes that looked enjoyment of life, suddenly addressed him.

'Godwin Peak-surely-?' 'Buckland Warricombe, no less surely.'

They shook hands with vigour, laughing in each other's faces; then after a moment's pause, Warricombe drew aside from the bookstall, for sake of privacy.

Why did we lose sight of each other?' he asked, flashing a glance at Godwin's costume. 'Why didn't you write to me at Cambridge? What have you been doing this half-century?'

'I have been in London all the time.' 'I am there most of the year.

Well, I rejoice to have met you. On a holiday?' 'Loitering towards Cornwall.'

'In that case, you can come and have lunch with me at my father's house. It's only a mile or two off. was going to walk, but we'll drive, if you like.' There was no refusing, and no possibility of reflection. Buckland's hearty manner made the invitation in itself a thoroughly pleasant one and before Peak could sufficiently command his thoughts to picture the scene towards which he was going they were walking side by side through the town. In appearance Warricombe showed nothing of the revolutionary which, in old days, he aimed at making himself, and his speech had a suavity which no doubt resulted from much intercourse with the polished world;

sturdy walker, it was no common task to keep pace with Buckland's strides; Peak soon found himself conversing rather too breathlessly for comfort

'What is your latest record for the mile?' he inquired.

Warricombe understanding once the reference to his old athletic pastime and its present application, laughed merrily, and checked his progress.

'A bad habit of mine; it gets me into trouble with everyone. By-the bye, haven't you become a stronger man than used to seem likely? am glad to see how well you look.'

The sincerity of these expressions often repeated, put Godwin far more at his ease than the first moment's sensation had promised. He too began to feel a genuine pleasure in the meeting, and soon bade defiance to all misgivings. Delicacy perhaps withheld Warricombe from further mention of Whitelaw, but on the other hand it was not impossible that he knew nothing of the circumstances which tormented Godwin's memory. On leaving the College perchance he had lost all connection with those common friends who might have informed him of subsequent jokes and rumours. Unlikely, to be sure; for doubtless some of his Whitelaw contemporaries encountered him at Cambridge; and again, was it not probable that the younger Warricombe had become a Whitelaw student? Then Professor Galeno matter! The Warricombes of course knew all about Andrew Peak and his dining-rooms, but they were liberal-minded, and could forgive a boy's weakness, as well as overlook an acquaintance's obscure origin. In the joy of finding himself exuberantly welcomed by a man of Buckland's world he overcame his ignoble self-consciousness.

'Did you know that we were in this part of 'the country?' Warricombe asked, once more speeding ahead.

'I always thought of you in connection with Kingsmill.'

Birds and Insect Life.

Men of science are generally agreed that birds are nature's great check on the excess of insects and that they maintain the balance between plant and insect life. Ten thousand caterpillars, it has been estimated, could destroy every blade of grass on an area of cultivated land. The insect population of a single cherry tree infested with aphides has been estimated by a prominent entomologist at no less than 12,000,000. The bird population of cultivated country districts-has been estimated at from 700 to 1,000 per square mile. This is small compared with the number of insects, yet as each bird consumes hundreds of insects every day the latter are prevented from becoming the scourge they would be but for their feathered enemies.-Harper's Weekly.

Minister of Finance, When Asked by Mr. Foster, Says Government Will Favorably Consider Better Trade Relations With Group of British Possessions-Lewis Wants Prorogation-No Seconder.

Ottawa, March 31.—In the House of Commons yesterday, Hon. Geo. E. Foster urged upon the Government the advantage of promoting trade with the West Indies. These islands presented a most promising field for mutual preferential trade, and he hoped that the proposed arrangement with the United States would not prejudice Canada in widening the scope of trade within the Empire.

He did not advocate a perference of twenty per cent. to such places as British Guiana, Barbados and Trinidad, as nothing was to be gained by that course. Jamaica was on a different basis. That island enjoyed a trade with the United States, and he did not want to place it in a position of suffering from reprisals by the United States. There were grounds for an inference in the report that this would not be done, but he thought it should be made clear with the United States that reprisals would not follow on any trade arrangements made be-tween colonies of the Empire or be-tween any colony and the Mother Country. The conclusion of the com-mission was that conditions were most favorable for a reciprocal trade arrangement

Hon. Mr. Fielding did not think that the trade pact with the republic would affect relations with the West Indies. Tropical fruits were already Indies. Tropical fruits were already free, and were excepted in the free schedule of the United States agreement. While Jamaica had rejected the proposal, the Government was in full sympathy with the movement suggested by Mr. Foster. Canada had done everything to improve steamship service, but the attitude of the islands in demanding a direct service prevent. in demanding a direct service prevented a subsidy, being applied.

Mr. Fielding stated that when he was in England he had spoken of an arrangement whereby the West Indian mail would come to Canada and would be forwarded from Canada to its destination by fast steamers. But the islands desired the direct mail, as had had been the custom in the past, and only a few days ago he had received word that the British Government could not enter into the contemplated arrangement on account of the desire of the islands for the direct route. This was rather a disappointment, as it took away the British assistance in th: matter of a fast steamship com-munication. What the Government would do ultimately would be an-

Mr. Lewis' motion was without a seconder. The Speaker appealed in vain to several members. Dr. Daniel declined the honor, as did others.

While the House was in committee while the House was in committee of supply last night, there was a little discussion over the proposed Welland Canal. Mr. Graham said the intention of the Government was to construct locks for a 30-feet canal, but the canal itself would be built for the present to accommodate boats with a 25 feet traft. 25-feet craft. The locks were the most expensive part of the canal, and as the cost of excavation was the same, 30-foot locks would be provided. The width of the canal would be 200 feet.

A. McCall (Norfolk) thought there was no need for a canal of more than 20-foot depth. Vessels on the great lakes did not draw more than 18 feet. The Minister told Dr. Sproule that he could not tell when the work would be commence, or what the cost would be commence, or what the cost would be. The House adjourned, after pass-ing a few other votes, at midnight.

A RIGID SYSTEM.

Camorrists Possessed Elaborate Government, Says Witness.

Viterbo, Italy, March 31 .- According to the revelations of Abbatemaggio, who is appearing as a witness against his former associates in their trial for murder, Naples is divided into four-teen Camorrist regions, each having its Camorrist hierarchy. In every one of these regions a member of the organization is daily entrusted with the maintenance of order among those affiliated with the Camorra. His powers and influence are greater than those of the police or Carabineers, as he is expected to denounce those who commit disorders, and thus compromise the existence of the association, which is destined for more important enterprises.

The entire afternoon was taken up with the evidence submitted by Abbatemaggio at the various investigations, the counsel for the defence endeavoring to trap him into contradictions, but the witness maintained his composure and gave a good account of himself, energetically refuting their Abbatemaggio said that shortly after the murder of Cuoccolo, when he was in the company of Giovanni Rapi, he met the priest, Vitozzi, who sug-gested that Erricone, so that he might not be suspected, should go frequently to the Mimi-a-Mare Cafe in order to give the police the impression that he was a frequenter of the place. It was a frequenter of the place. It was in this inn that the report of the murder of Cuoccolo is alleged to have been communicated to Erricone.

Vitozzi, on hearing this statement by the witness, raised his hands and eyes, and with horrified expression exclaimed, turning towards the prisoners' care.

ers' cage:
"If I had ever suspected that Erricone was stained with such a mon-strous crime I would have delivered him myself to justice, saying to him, 'Bear the burden of your sins'."

The tone of his voice was so melodramatic that all burst into laughter, Rapi appearing even more amused than the others. Abbatemaggio swore that Vitozzi was an active member of the Camorra, that he frequented tha meetings of the organization, dressed as a layman, and was particularly aggressive in helping to carry out the Camorrist schemes.

AND ALSO AT RECIPROCITY

Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg Says Anglo-American Arbitration Treaty Is a Utopian Dream and Will Not Solve the Problem of the Increase of Armaments-Looking For Reciprocity.

Berlin, March 31.-In the course of the debate in the Reichstag on the questions of universal disarmament and universal arbitration, Count Von Kanitiz, Conservative, devoted the greater part of his speech to the American affairs, contrasting the speech of Commander W. S. Simms of the American navy at the Guildhall, London, which called forth a reprimand from President Taft, with the utterances of Congressman Champ Clark concerning the annexation of Canada, saying: "While an American naval officer is assuring England of the friendship of the United States, a future President of that nation is talk-ing of the absorption of Canada."

"Canadian reciprocity," he said,
"raised the point of what compensa-tory favors were to be had by Germany.".

Of the proposed Anglo-American complete arbitration treaty, the speaker said that the plan promised little if questions like that of the Monroe destrips were expluded.

doctrine were excluded.

Discussing the proposed extension of international arbitration in the Reichstag yesterday, Chancellor Von Bethman-Hollweg classed universal arbitration and universal disarmament as ideals impossible of realization.

The imperial chancellor saw the chief difficulty in a disarmament agreement in the impossibility of supervision of individual states. "Contrel over these," he said, "I regard as absolutely impracticable. The mer: attempt to control would have no other result than continual distrust and universal turmoil. General dis-armament is an unsoluable problem so long as men are men.

so long as men are men.
"It will remain through," continued the chancellor, "that the weak will be the prey of the strong. If any nation feels that it is unable longer to spend certain sums for defensive purposes it will inevitably drop to the second rank. There will always be a stronger one ready to take its place. We Germans, in our exposed situations, cannot shut our eyes to this dire reality, only so for as we can maintain page.

only so far as we can maintain peace,
"The nations, including Germany," said the chancellor, "have been talking disarmament since the first Hague conference, but neither in Germany nor elsewhere has a practical plan been proposed. Great Britain wishes the limitation of armaments, but sim-ultaneously wants a superior or equal flect. Any conference on this subject is bound to be fruitless. No standard for a limitation can be found, and any conceivable proposal will be shattered on the question of control."

Von Bethmann-Hollweg instanced Napoleon's limitation of the Prussian army, when Prussia, adhering to the letter of her treaty, trained a fourfold army by shortening the period of training. Germany was willing, he said, to accept the English proposal for an exchange of information regarding navy building programs. He accepted the idea of arbitration in principle, but universal arbitration was as impossible of accomplishment as universal disarmament. By this as universal disarmament. By this principle, two nations, like the United States and Great Britain, could seal the de facto status, but if new questions arose arbitration might prove inadequate.

St. Petersburg, March 31.—The Nov , Vremya and Retch yesterday editorially call attention to the provocative attitude of the German press,
