The New Suits for Spring J. F. CLARK & SON

There are just three things about them to which we would especially draw your attention :-

1. The superior look of the garments. 2. The perfect fit easily obtainable.

3. The value for money.

The finest cloth is but flat material, devoid of shape or form To mould, round out and shape it to fit and properly drape the lines and curves of the body of the man who is to wear the garment, requires better tailors-a different kind of talent than Fur is used to make ordinary clothing.

The clothes we sell are made by expert tailors with the "Know How," from the most celebrated Wool Tweeds and Fine Worsteds, and have the characteristic styles demanded by the very best dressed men.

A TROUBLESOME MISGIVING

They, to be sure, would soon guess the reason of his disappearance. Would they join in the laughter certain to be excited by Peak's Dining and Refreshment Rooms'? Probably; how could they help it? Earwaker might be superior to a prejudice of that kind; his own connections were of humble standing. But Warricombe must wince and shrug his shoulders. Perhaps even some of the Professors would have their attention directed to the ludicrous mishap: they were gentlemen and, even though they smiled, must certainly sympathize with him.

Wait a little. Whitelaw College should yet remember the student who seemed to have vanished amid the world's obscure tumult.

Resolved that he was about to turn his back on Twybridge forever, he found the conditions of life there quite supportable through this last month or two; the family reaped benefit from his improved temper. Even to Mr. Cusse he behaved with modified contempt. Oliver was judicious enough to suppress his nigger minstrelsy and kindred demonstrations of spirit in his brother's presence, and Charlotte, though steadily resentful, did her best to avoid conflict.

Through the Misses Lumb, Godwin's change of purpose had of course become known to his aunt, who for a time took it ill that these debates had been concealed from her. When Mrs. Peak, in confidence, apprised her of the disturbing cause, Miss Cadman's indignation knew no bounds. What! That low fellow had been allowed to interfere with the progress of Godwin Peak's education, and not a protest uttered! He should have been forbidden to establish himself in Kingsmill! Why had they not taken her into council? She would have faced the man, and have overawed him; he should have been made to understand the gross selfishness of his behaviour. Never had she heard of such a monstrous case-

Godwin spent much time in quiet examination of the cabinets bequeathed to him by Mr. Gunnery. He used a pound or two of Lady Whitelaw's money for the purchase of scientific books, and set to work upon them with freshened zeal. The early morning and late evening were given to country walks, from which he always returned with brain excited by the forecast of great achievements.

When the time of his departure approached, he decided to pay a farewell visit to Mr. Moxey. He chose an hour when the family would probably be taking their ease in the garden. Three of the ladies were, in fact, amusing themselves with croquet, while their father, pipe in mouth, bent over a bed of calceolarias.

'What's this that I hear?' exclaimed Mr. Moxey, as he shook hands. 'You are not going back to Whitelaw?' The story had of course spread among all Twybridge people who knew anything of the Peaks, and it was generally felt that some mystery was involved. Godwin had reasonably feared that his obligations to Sir Job Whitelaw must become known; impossible for such a matter to be kept secret; all who took any interest in the young man had long been privately acquainted with the facts of his position. Now that discussion was rife, it would have been prudent in the Misses Lumb to divulge as much of the truth as they knew, but (in accordance with the law of natural perversity) they maintained a provoking silence. Hence whispers and suspicious questions, all wide of the mark. No one had as yet heard of Andrew Peak, and it seemed but too likely that Lady Wnitelaw, for some good reason, had declined to discharge the expenses of Godwin's last year at the College.

Mr. Moxey himself felt that an explanation was desirable, but he listened with his usual friendly air to Godwin's account of the matterwhich of course included no mention of Lady Whitelaw.

'Have you friends in London?' he inquired—like everyone else.

Who "Made Good" and Has Gone To His Reward

Drumbo Express

After an illness of several weeks Rev. William John Waddell underwent an operation in the Woodstock Hospital, from which he never recovered, but passed away on Feb.

Deceased was born in Garden Hill, in the Township of Hope, County of Durham, July 31st, 1861. Here he spent his early days on the farm. He then entered Woodstock College, and after graduating from this Institution, took a course in Theology at the McMaster University, Toronto. Having completed his course in Theclogy, he was ordained into the Baptist ministry, and preached for this denomination from 1888 to 1891. Severing his connection with this church in 1891, he was received into full connection with the Methodist Church, and preached diligently and successfully on the following circuits :- Guelph Conference at Kimberley and Ethel; London Conference, at Kippen, Elimville. St. John's, Shedden and Harwich; Hamilton Conference, at Dobbinton and Drumbo.

Deceased, who came to Drumbo in June of last year, won the hearts of all with whom he had come in contact, and succeeded in placing the churches of this Circuit upon a higher spiritual plane. Even throughout his illness, his genial spirit asserted itself. He was an ever-welcome visitor, and especially so to the sick 'room, and his words of encouragement and up-lift will long be remembered by the adherents of his late charges.

He leaves to mourn his departure a widow and four children, the eldest of whom is a young man, at present in the west, also two brothers, Jacob, at the old home at Garden Hill, and Samuel, of Janesville, Wis.

The funeral services, which took place from his late residence, Drumbo, to the Methodist Church, Monday aftersoon, was the most pathetic which had been attended by the people of this district for many a day. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity by friends eager to show their last respects to the departed. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Snider, President of the Conference, assisted by Rev. Mr. Mac-Irvine, Chairman of the District, and a number of other fellow

A Remarkable Flight.

Paris, March 8.-Eugene Renaux resterday flew in a biplane, with M. Senoukue as a passenger, from St. Cloud, a Paris suburb, to the highest peak of the Puy de Dome Mountains, 250 miles distant. He made the flight with only one stop in 5 hours and 30 minutes, thereby winning the Michalin prize of $20,000-the terms of which required the flight to be made in six hours.

The peak on which Renaux landed is 4,860 feet high. The landing place was only a few yards square and execedingly rough. The machine alighted, however, without injury. Even a broken wire would have barred Renaux from claiming the prize.

Fell Through Hatchway. Sarnia, March 8.-William King, chief engineer of the steamer Ionia of the Northern Navigation Co., who has been working fitting out his boat for the coming season, had to cross the steamers Laronic and Huronic to reach her, when he fell through the hatchway of the Huronic, all but about two feet square of which was covered up, 18 or 20 feet to the steel floor of the hold.

He was last seen on Monday morning about II o'clock, and when he failed to turn up, searchers found his body about 3 p.m. yesterday. King, who was 50 years of age, eaves a wife and three children.

Four Died In One Family.

Toronto, March 8 .- With she death of James Monkhouse, 29 Olive street, on Monday, occurred the fourth death in the famil yof Samuel Monkhouse. Ever since May 20 last, when William Monkhouse, a son of 25 years of age, passed away, the grim spectre seems to have dogged the family. On July 17 his young sister, 6 years of age, was burned to death while playing with matches; in September another daughter, Mrs. Harry Wilson. passed away, after a brief nine months of wedded life. Shortly after her death, another son, Norman, was stricken with pneumonia, and since that time has been hovering between life and death. After Norman was taken down, James became indisposed and gradually got worse, until his death occurred on Monday. Norman is still in a precarious condition.

Most of the eager observers were women and the comments made upon the new arriwal were anything but complimentary, and it is probable the appearance of the Harem skirt yesterday was the first and last as far as Torente is concerned.

C.P.R. Magnate Attacks Reciprocity

Montreal, March 8.—Considerable interest has been aroused in this city by the publication of a letter from Sir William Van Horne to Mr. Chas. Chaput, secretary of the Anti-Reci-procity League. Sir William says in WILL NOT WAIT FOR U. S.

"Sir, I regret that, having to leave for England on Thursday, I shall not be able to attend the meeting of the Anti-Reciprocity League next week, and to give my views in person on the question of reciprocity.

"What I have to say on the subject has no reference to party politics (for I have nothing to do with politics), nor to any particular interests. I speak only as an individual who for the past thirty years has been working heart and soul for the upbuilding of this country and one to whom the great development of the past two decades has been a source of immense pride and satisfaction.

To my amazement and distress and shame I now see the magnificent work of a generation traded away for a vague idea or a childish sentimentthe splendid commercial and industrial position we have reached and our proud independence bartered for a few wormy plums, and I feel it my duty to join in the protest which is heard from every section of the coun-

To-day we are in an enviable position, with a commerce three times as great per capita as that of the United States, and without a cloud in our sky save the one which has just now been raised. Does not common sense tell us to stay where we are and to let well enough alone?

Was there ever such an exhibition of crawling and cringing as Canada's representatives have just now given us at Washingtin? We have heard much of the dignified attitude of our Government on the subject of reciprocity-a dignified attitude which was assumed after repeated snubs. We have been told that if there was anything more to be said about reciprocity it must be said at Ottawa; but at the very first signal from Washington we have seen Canada's representatives hurrying there, and, without consultation with one of our business interests and apparently with-out consultation with their colleagues, hastily assenting to terms vitally affecting our vast and complicated trade and commerce, and perhaps involving our political future. I refuse to be-lieve that our honored Premier was a willing party to what has been done; but whether he was or was not, the certain consequences to the country are so serious as to quite overbeing of the country and its self-respect are at stake, and the shameful thing that is proposed is surely against the wishes of four-fifths of its people, and I doubt if it would, if clearly understood, find a dozen sup-"Aside from the fisheries, of which

I do not know enough to speak, I do not believe that there is any industry anywhere in Canada that cannot find a way to be better off without reciprocity than with it; and with many industries the question is a vital one. And even with our codfish, judging from the prices to consumers in the West Indies and Central America, it may well be that we are, as with potatoes and apples, overlooking what might easily be made our very best

"Let us not run away with the idea that if we make a mistake in this matter of reciprocity we shall be able persevere until the evening of the to correct it at pleasure. We may not be permitted to do it. It should be remembered that there are such things as vested interests with nations, real or alleged, are terribly hinding upon the weaker party. When ight lines of railway into the Canadian Northwest-lines which have for some years been resting their noses on the boundary line waiting for recil" procity, or something of the kind, to warrant them in crossing, and when ther American channels of trade have been established, affecting our territory, and when the American millers have tasted our wheat and the American manufacturers have got hold of our markets, is it probable that we shall be permitted to recode? Not a bit of it. We are making a bed to lie in and die in."

PACT IS VINDICATED

Sir Wilfrid Annihilates Arguments of Opposition.

Premier Announces That the Government Will Go Right Ahead Despite the Opposition and Seek Markets Wherever Possible - Relations With Britain Are Not Disturbed by Proposed Change.

Ottawa, March S .- Sir Wilfrid Laurier's vindication of the international reciprocal trade agreement was comprehensive, lofty and compelling. To its stirring eloquence was added the note of conviction of the righteousness of the Government's policy, of confidence in its enthusiastic acceptance by the people, and of determination to carry through Canada's part in the undertaking. "We shall go on, whether the Opposition follow or not. We will drag them on, even against their will. Our policy has been, is, and will be, so long as the Canadian recole continue to place in us the confirmee they have shown during fif-in years, to seek markets wherever markets can be found."

In this declaration the Prime Minster met at the outpost the projected demand of the Opposition for the indefinite postponement of further will be no waiting for Washington.
At the outset Sir Wilfrid Laurier

reviewed the discussion of the agreement since it was first introduced into the House by Mr. Fielding over a month ago. It had been discussed and canvassed in the press, in public meetings and in Parliament; and unless he had greatly misapprehended the trend of public opinion and could not read the signs of the times he thought he could venture the assertion that the "policy which is therein avolved has met with the appreciation, nay with the enthusiastic appre-ciation, of a majority of the Cana-dian people." (Liberal cheers and Opposition eries of "No, no.") In anfrid said he would not step to discubs the merits of the respective opinions on the point. No word of his would change the views of the Opposition, and in that they would nert pelling day. He was well aware that the policy of the Government had not been universally accepted, and Toronto and Montreal for the purse of fighting the agreement. These ople were acting within their rights ad although he would not understimute the importance of the movement, he did not think there was any ause for alarm. Many of the objecas to the agreement lacked force ind oppositeness; others were worthy insideration, not from inherent reagth but from the circumstance as they were inspired by a strange a isconception as to what would be the result and consequence of the pol-T iffvolved.

He declared that the relations betre in Canada and the United States arra a blot upon our common civilistien, and contended that when Sir ohn A. Maconald introduced the nathat policy in 1878 he did so as a mans of securing reciprocity. In 321 we now had it, and yet men bubted and hesitated. The agreegent was condemned as unfair and stile, and men told us, "Stop, proand no further, let the injustice rerail, let the hostility remain, because down injustice and hostility the Canais: Confederation depends for its

He declined to accept the argument at occause this matter had not been scassed before the people, the Govnto the agreement. What mandate, e asked, had Lord Elgin in 1854, are he went to Washington to enter had the Government of 1864 at through Parliament the resoluion which proposed Confederation? Not a word about it had ever been eard by the people. When Canada seated in 1871 to the Washington reaty of that year, the question was nknown to them

"In the face of the records on these uestions," he added, "it is childish r any man to challenge the right of his Government to follow the course

Sir Wilfrid repeated that the object f the agreement was simply to get ter prices for the products of the anadian farmer. This was a proposion so obvious that he was surprised should receive the treatment it had received on the part of the opponents of the measure. He then outlined the feur principal objections taken to the green ent by the leader of the Opposison, and proceeded to deal with them n detail. They were (1) that the efject would be to deflect the currying rade from Canadian to American channels; (2) that it would destroy our natural resources; (3) that it sould imperil our industries; (4) that

In regard to the first objection, Six Wilfrid said that it might be discussed from two points of view; that of the goods going from Canada into the United States for the purpose of being carried over to Great Britain, and the goods going from Canada to the Unitvi States for consumption there. In regard to the first, the situation would act be affected one iota. At the present time goods go from Canada to be hipped from Anterican ports without aying duty, in the same way Amerian goods come to Canada to be shipo d out by Montreal, Halifax and St.

the Premier agreed with the argunent that interprovincial trade was mportant, but contended that the anadian people could not consume I of their natural products.

"It has been stated in this discuson, and repeated in the press of rest Britain," said the Premier, that by this arrangement we were utting an end to every possibility mutual preferential trade with Creat Britain. The member from Standon made that argument, and I "House I take positive issue with not statement, and I say more: that 'at ment does no bear eriticism; it as only to be analyzed for its laise-"I now pass to a more important

There are no manufactured products lealt with except agricultural implements. In negotiating this agreement we have adhered strictly to the terms of the resolution which was adopted at the Liberal convention of 1893, in which the Liberal party declared for a treaty of reciprocity in natural prof manufactured products. Why did ve put this restriction in our resoluen? Pecause there is a vest difference between reciprocity in natural products and reciprocity in manufacturnd goods. This is the reason we have acted with this prudence. The only industry affected is that of agricultural implements, on some of which the duty has been reduced from 17 1-2 to 15, and on others from to 13 per cent. It would have have goth beyond that, but we sidered that if we did, we would perhaps not do justice to the men who have invested money in these 's Government does not exist for reners along, or the manufaclone, or for any one class, but for the manufacturors and farmers and for Il the cases which compose "." (Hear, hear.) "I not come," said Sir Wilfrid, "to the last if the objections raised against us. Hon, gentlemen opposite find within the four corners of this agreement the latent, the incipient destruction of our industries, but it is still more difficult to find therein the fatal gorm which is to dissolve our autonomy and finally land us in the American republic.

"Was there over, in any land at any time, a reform proposed which was not immediately denounced as revolutienary by the orces of reaction? With this logic ve have been particularly familiar in this country ever since the first days of responsible Government.

There was at one time an annexation movement in this country and it received its first check when Lord Elgin brought back from Washington the reciprocity treaty of 1854. From that day to this the desire of annexation had dwindled until there was not a vestige of it left.

"To the Canadian people I would say," declared Sir Wilfrid, in conclusion, "that if it is possible for us to obtain such relations between these two young and growing nations, Canada will have rendered to old Engand, the mother of nations, nay to the whole British Empire, a service unequalled in its present effect, and still more in its far-reaching consequences."

Major John Currie (North Simose) made a brief but spirited reply. On Wednesday Mr. Borden's motion for delay pending action by the United States-Congress, will be debated.
