

MAGISTRATE RESERVES JUDGMENT IN SELLING CHARGE AGAINST L. K. BOSHEFF

Local Hotel Proprietor Appeared in Court Here This Morning And Judgment Was Reserved Until May 14th—Provincial Officer and Local Police Made Raid

Judgment was reserved in the case of L. K. Bosheff, proprietor of the Ontario hotel who appeared in Port Hope Police Court this morning on a charge of unlawfully keeping liquor for sale contrary to Section 72 (1) of the L.C.A. Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell will deliver judgment on Monday, May 14th. H. A. Ward, K.C., of Port Hope, represented the accused while W. F. Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg acted for the Crown.

The accused pleaded not guilty to the charge and Provincial Constable H. Storey took the stand.

Witness related that he and Chief of Police Thomas Murphy raided the hotel about three o'clock on April 7th. They went in by the front entrance and then into the bar and saw Bosheff behind the counter. Two men were in front of the counter and accused had a bottle in his hand and two small glasses on the counter. When the accused saw the officers come in, he placed the bottle in a sink of wash water and said he was treating his friends. The officers then went to his bedroom and found another bottle containing a small quantity of liquor.

Witness stated that the accused said that he had been selling the liquor for the past two or three months at fifty cents per glass. He said he had to do it as the floods had caused him considerable financial loss. Accused told them that he had lost his permit but purchased the liquor before the document was mislaid.

Constable Storey smelled the partly filled bottle of spirits and stated that it was liquor.

"Are you quite confident that you saw two glasses," asked Mr. Ward in the cross-examination.

"Yes, when I went around behind the counter they were on a ledge under the bar and I saw the accused place them there."

The permit was since discovered and was produced in court. One bottle of brandy was listed but no whiskey was purchased.

"Did you say anything to the men in the bar?"

"I asked them what they were doing and the answer was 'We were not going to drink.'"

"Do you remember asking if they were buying?"

"I presumed that and told them they had better leave."

"Did you know the men?"

"No."

"When you went there did you know that there had been two severe floods?"

"Yes."

"Quite recently before that?"

"Yes."

"You have not on any previous occasions told him of complaints made against him?"

"No."

"You did not warn him of any complaints?"

"No, but we had the place under observation."

"Don't you think you could have given him warning?"

"We are anxious to enforce the law."

"You knew when you went there that he had suffered heavy loss by the flood?"

"Yes."

"Perhaps you thought when there was so much water, that there perhaps might be a little liquor?"

"No, I suspected the accused."

Chief of Police Murphy told of accompanying Constable Storey to the hotel. When the Chief went into the bar, Constable Storey was practically around the counter. Witness did not see the bottle but he heard it drop with other bottles.

"Any conversation?" asked Mr. Kerr.

"Yes. Bosheff said he was treating his friends and afterwards admitted selling it at fifty cents per glass and also admitted that he had been selling it for some time. He said he had lost $4,000 or $5,000 by the flood and had to do something to make it up."

Constable Murphy took a small "shot" of the contents of one of the partly filled bottles.

"What's that?" queried Mr. Kerr.

"Liquor."

"Intoxicating liquor?"

"Yes, sir."

"You have known Bosheff for a number of years?" inquired Mr. Ward, defence counsel in his cross-examination.

"Yes."

"And he has been a good citizen?"

"Yes."

"Never in trouble?"

"No."

"What sort of a place does he keep?"

"The place is quite nice. He has made a number of improvements

UNIQUE EVENT AT NEWCASTLE

Chester Massey's Portrait Gift of His Sons, Is Unveiled at Community Hall

A portrait of the late Chester D. Massey, presented to the people of Newcastle by his sons, Hon. Vincent Massey and Raymond Massey, was unveiled in the Newcastle Community Hall Sunday night.

The occasion of the ceremony was a church service one of the several undenominational gatherings held in this hall yearly, given to Newcastle by the late Mr. Massey. Five hundred people were in attendance to pay tribute to the memory of their friend.

Rev. E. R. James of the Newcastle Anglican church, Rev. E. D. Cook of the Newcastle United church and Rev. Dr. Cleaver of Toronto officiated during the service. Then the portrait was unveiled by Wellington Foster, an old friend of the late Mr. Massey. Walter Seldoon, a former secretary of the Massey family and Dr. Cleaver spoke following the unveiling, recalling Mr. Massey's kindness and philanthropy. Because of his Ministerial duties, Hon. Vincent Massey was unable to attend the service and Raymond is in England.

UNITED CHURCH HOLDS BUILDING

Action by Presbyterians Is Dismissed by Cobourg Court

The large number of churches that went into Church Union in Canada and the Presbyterian Church in Canada as well were all deeply interested in the Grafton church case tried at the Supreme Court sittings at Cobourg. After a hearing of almost a day and a half, Mr. Justice Rose dismissed the action.

The action was brought by John Aird, acting on behalf of himself and the Presbyterian congregation at Grafton, to regain possession of what was known as St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and now used as a place of worship by the United Church; also what was formerly known as St. Andrew's Manse.

The case centered around certain deeds made by the late John Grover of the site upon which the church stands, and by the late Hon. George Strange Boulton of certain property upon which was afterward erected a house known as St. Andrew's Manse. It was contended that the original deed provided that the property was to be used by the followers of the Westminster Confession of Faith. The late John Grover also reserved a pew in the church and a family lot in the burying ground.

The plaintiffs asked also for a declaration that the provisions of the Grover and Boulton trust deeds were still effective.

and it is quite clean."

"You also know we have only two hotels in Port Hope?"

"Yes."

"And you don't think that is any too many for the travelling public?"

"No, I think both are filled up."

"Ever been upstairs?"

"Yes."

"What is the appearance?"

"Nice and clean."

"With the exception of a little trouble, the hotel is a credit to the town?"

"Yes, a credit to the man who runs it and to the town."

SURPRISE PARTY FOR NEWLYWEDS

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Baulch Are Honored by Friends On Thursday Evening

On Thursday evening last about thirty young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Baulch, Lakeshore Road, and presented the young couple with several pieces of silver. The bride and groom were completely taken by surprise but chosen words. The rest of the evening was spent in games and dancing thanked their friends in a few well after which a dainty luncheon was served.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

Miss Edna Simpson, Formerly Of Port Hope, Will Be Married On May 10th

A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Elmo Slater at her home at 168 Monarch Pl. Ave., Toronto, on Friday, May 4th, in honor of Miss Edna Simpson, formerly of Port Hope whose marriage is to take place on Thursday, May 10th, to Mr. George Beckett, Hagersville, formerly of Port Hope.

The living room was tastefully decorated in pink and white and sweet peas and daffodils adorned the rooms.

She was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts including a bridal wreath dinner set given by the girls in her department.

After a dainty lunch was served, the evening was spent in cards and dancing.

Among those present from Port Hope were Miss Hazel Wright, Mrs. Nantell, Mrs. McGlennon, Mrs. Pew and Mrs. L. Thomas.

"THE GUIDE WARS ON."

Under the above heading The Toronto Globe of Saturday last rejects our challenge to test public opinion. "On the whole, it is a rather novel suggestion that another paper should attempt to pull the Port Hope paper's chestnuts out of the fire." Has the Toronto Globe ever been accused of helping another paper.

If positive information had reached The Guide about the murder of a man which took place ten years ago, the murderer hiding, say, in the wilds of Ontario. The Globe would be one of the first of the city papers to send down a staff of reporters and camera men to get inside information from us to enable it to get a "newspaper scoop." In that case would The Globe object to the evidence being produced because it would be "a cruel thrust at those who suffer'd bereavement" on account of the brutal murder? Instead of that The Globe's files would be turned back and all the details resurrected for republication.

Or if a man who had absconded with a large fund from a bank or the Dominion Government, and The Port Hope Guide had accidentally learned of the location of the criminal, would The Globe recommend that because ten long years had elapsed since the offence was committed, the culprit should not be dealt with for fear of hurting the feelings of interested relations, or upset business prospects?

Should a man or a newspaper be penalized for unearthing a gigantic steal, the destruction of public property or the careless or needless loss of a single life? Money or property can be replaced, but the life is gone into eternity.

Those of us who have read the eleventh chapter of Judges have found the story of the fool wager or vow made by Jephthah not pleasant reading for he was compelled to kill his own daughter as a result. The sacrifice of a life by a savage tribe has created horror.

But what about the 14,800 casualties of Canadians who were sacrificed at Passchendaele in order to restore the morale (confidence) of the British army, the English civilian population, the morale of the French army and the population of France as has been testified under oath?

The Globe sent a special correspondent to the formal unveiling of the Vimy memorial to the Canadian dead and in the report of that event The Globe made very distinct suggestions that someone had blundered causing needless loss of life. When The Globe did this its correspondent was not careful in regard to "all who were bereaved in the war;" did not object to open the wounds though in doing so they were reminding the relatives of those who had disappeared by the thousands respecting whom not a finger bone was ever discovered or identified to be given burial.

It was all right and proper for the great Globe to do that but all wrong for the modest Port Hope Guide.

The letters criticizing the Cobourg trial The Globe says were destroyed. The writers would, no doubt, rewrite them. Why publish letters bearing on one side of the case only?

Accused on Stand

L. K. Bosheff testified in his own behalf and was the sole witness for the defence.

"You heard what the Provincial Officer said about the two glasses being on the bar. Was that so?"

"One glass was on the bar and three more dozen beneath it."

"What was your intention?"

"Just before dinner, I decided to have a drink. Two gentlemen came in just before the officers did. I had a bottle in my hand and dropped it into the water. The officer asked what I was doing but I don't remember what I said."

"At the time of the flood what was the state of your health?"

"I had the doctor in attendance."

"Did you drink whiskey while you were ill?"

"While I was sick I used it. Men were cleaning out the cellar of ice and mud. I gave them a drink and was going upstairs."

"How long was the whiskey in your house?"

"Between October and November, 1927."

"Have you bought any for your own use?"

"On April 12th, a bottle of brandy."

"How do you explain what Constable Storey said about the selling admission?"

"I don't remember saying it. I must have been drunk."

Cross Examined

Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr conducted a short examination.

"You have a hostler at the hotel?"

"Yes."

"And he had a large quantity of liquor on his permit?"

"I don't know if he had a permit."

"Now your difficulty is what the police say you told them. Police say you said you had been selling for the past two or three months and had to because you were behind."

"I say it is not true."

"Well, you say you did not tell them?"

"I don't think I told them any

BREMEN FLIERS TO VISIT MONTREAL

Aim of Trip Is To Show Canada Gratitude of Fliers—Will Stop At Quebec

The crew of the German monoplane Bremen, first to fly the Atlantic from east to west, will visit Montreal May 21 and Quebec May 22, according to an official announcement issued by the German Consulate at Montreal Sunday.

The fliers, Baron von Huenefeld, Colonel James Fitzmaurice and Captain Herman Koehl, will arrive in Montreal from Boston on Monday May 21 about 1 p.m. They will leave Montreal for Quebec on the afternoon of Tuesday May 22. On Wednesday, May 23, they will fly from Quebec to New York.

The announcement by the Consul explaining the purpose of their visit stated:

"The German-Irish transatlantic fliers will, after having finished their air tour through the United States, make a flying trip to Canada in order to demonstrate to the Canadian Government and the Canadian people their sincerest gratitude for the invaluable assistance and cordial hospitality they have enjoyed during their stay in the great Dominion. They have chosen for their visit Montreal, the great metropolis of Canada, and Quebec, the picturesque Capital of the hospitable province in which they landed."

In answer to Mr. Ward, accused stated he did not know the men who were in the bar on April 7th although he sees them once in a while.

Mr. Ward stated that his client was under difficulty and the evidence varied as to the number of glasses on the bar. Constable Storey swore there were two, while the accused maintained there was only one. Defence counsel contended there had been no actual proof that the liquor was for sale and the men in the cellar, working amidst mud, ice and water, needed a stimulant.

Magistrate Campbell reserved his judgment until Monday, May 14th, at 2.30 p.m.

OFFICER MAKER BURIED SUNDAY

Norman Maker, Slain At Peterboro, Accorded Military Funeral

Provincial Constable Norman F. Maker, M.C., who met an untimely death in Peterboro when he was shot by David Montgomery, was laid to rest Sunday in St. James' Cemetery, Belleville. The Requiem Mass was sung in Peterboro on Saturday and the body then brought to Belleville for burial. The funeral was a military one, there being present members of the district Ontario Provincial Police as well as members of the force from outside districts as far west as Kitchener and east to Cornwall.

Commissioner Williams was represented by Inspector Kelly. There were also present Knights of Columbus from Peterboro and Belleville. The Agyle Light Infantry under the command of Lieut.-Col. Eric Keeler, paraded. It was the largest funeral held in Belleville in many years, the cortege being nearly two miles long.

A firing party under the command of Regimental Sergeant-Major Jack, D.S.M. and Bar, M.M., led the procession and fired a volley over the grave followed by the Provincial Police and the Knights of Columbus. The Salvation Army band played the funeral march as the procession wended its way through the main street. The bugle band sounded "Last Post" over the grave. The funeral service was in charge of Father Killen assisted by Rev. Fathers MacCauley, O'Brien and Castello of Peterboro and Father Kinlin of Belleville.

Members of the district to which the late constable was attached, Inspector W. H. Lougheed, Sergeant Roy Clarke, Constables Harry Thomson, Percy McCoy, Robert Storey and Price Morris were the pallbearers.

THE GUIDE STORY

"Your companion—where is she?" asked Hal. "Left you to walk back home. I suppose, after a bad fright! I'd like to give her a piece of my mind, that's all, whoever she was. I know it was not Miss Ransome, for I spoke to her in the town just now."

"I said two machines. I did not say the other was a lady's," remarked Firefly, glancing at him.

"I beg your pardon," said Hal, stiffly; then anxiety banishing incipient jealousy, temporarily at any rate, he continued: "But really, are you right Miss Fenton? Would you like a glass of anything? There is a little inn a few steps farther. I am sure you ought to have some thing after being so terribly shaken."

"Do you know Mr. Pett, I think you have altogether missed your vocation in life," said Firefly soberly. "Instead of being a farmer, you really ought to have been a poet or a writer, as your imagination is prodigious. I don't remember saying that I had met with an accident at all. Isn't it strange?"

Hal gave an impatient exclamation and turned to walk back with her to the town.

"I suppose you like teasing a fellow till he's out of his senses," he said. "I can wheel that machine for you, at any rate. Why don't you have a good make? For a reckless rider these trumpy affairs are not safe. Better have none at all than a cheap make."

"You are extremely rude about my machine," replied Firefly, keeping one hand on the saddle. "How do you know it is not a particularly valued present? I am not going home either, Mr. Pett. I want to leave it at The Briars to be patched up."

"Do you mean that new cyclist's affair?" asked Hal. "Why, that is kept by a woman, an oldish woman too. I shouldn't take it there; a woman can't tackle a job like this. She'll merely tinker it up, dab some enamel over the breakages, and you will go down again. I'll send it into Drayton for you. There's a man there that knows his trade—been a mechanic for years."

CHAPTER XIX

A New Secret

"I wish to take this bicycle to The Briars," said Firefly doggedly. "Really, for a young man who fancies he knows how to train horses you are very aggravating. Do you persist in worrying the poor animals as you are worrying me?"

"They are not so unreasoning," Hal replied hotly. "There," he added apologetically, "I am a wretch to bully you when you have had a spill and got your nerves shaken. If you like I'll wheel this object to Land's End, or to The Briars, only you must allow me to make sure that this Mrs. West knows something of her business."

"Have you ever seen her?" asked Firefly, as they left the village and turned up a lane. "From a distance only—a jolly little woman with bright eyes. Dad is rather smitten with her. Discovered her the other day manoeuvring round the bull—Black Diamond, you know. The little woman had got into our field by mistake, and though with an umbrella she was holding her own pluckily it was lucky that he came along, for the animal is fierce. She didn't turn a hair, so he said, but she thanked him, apologized for having intruded on private ground and left the field with dignity."

"She was pluckier than I should have been" said Firefly. "I should have shouted for help."

"Until I'd rescued you. Then you'd have pitched into me like anything."

"You! You wouldn't have been anywhere near! You would have been with that precious colt of yours," she retorted, with the nearest approach to a sneer that her pretty mouth could contrive, but which failed to depress Hal in the least. He had begun at that moment to realize that he was enjoying a wonderful stroke of luck, and that short of being on the scene for the bicycle mishap he was doing the next best thing in wheeling the machine along a lonely lane with the certainty that Firefly was bound to walk beside him.

"I say, Miss Fenton, there's no need to walk so quickly, is there?" he remarked. "I wish too, that you would stop staring at that hedge. We shall be at The Briars soon, worse luck, and I want to tell you something."

"Well?" She turned to look at him with cold eyes and he promptly lost his temper.

"Oh, it doesn't matter. I'm sorry I troubled you."

"You really may tell me if you like."

"I do not like, thank you. It was of no consequence."

"You would not be vexed, Mr. Pett, if you knew how tired I am!"

A week previously Hal would, metaphorically speaking, have been at her feet before she had finished speaking. Now he was growing accustomed to her ways and he looked across the bicycle at her.

"Very well then, you shan't be bothered, and while I interview the widow you shall have a good rest at The Briars."

Leafs Wield Lusty Bats

The Toronto Leafs, now undefeated in nine consecutive starts, have formed a habit which is particularly distasteful to Manager Jack Dunn of the Baltimore Orioles. Whenever they go to that city they are not satisfied with anything short of home runs, and so successfully did they swing their war clubs Sunday afternoon that they swept the field with the Birds in two tilts. The scores were 13 to 5 and 8 to 2, the nightcap being an abbreviated affair of seven innings.

Perhaps the Leafs could have won without their Ruthian clouts, for they received good pitching in both games, but to show they know how to hit them to the wide open spaces the visitors collected just seven in the course of the afternoon.

Catcher Eddie Phillips was the big gun in the first set-to, smacking a pair of homers. Dale Alexander turned in the same feat in the final clash, while Clayton Sheedy annexed one in each contest, and Pitcher Don Songer, aroused by a circuit belt delivered by Pitcher Henderson of the Birds against Don Hankins, also belted a homer.

Alexander, who delivered a pair of homers, was at his best and his first smashes for four bases will long be remembered by the fans. Coming to bat in the third inning with none on, Alexander caught one of Earnshaw's fast ones exactly right and the ball sailed over the top of the right field bleacher. It was figured that Alexander's drive carried clear to 400 feet. Few times in the annals of Oriole Park has the pellet been hit with such violence.

Treasurer—Mr. Mulhall.

Meeting Tonight

An important meeting of the Port Hope Baseball Club is listed for this evening in the Department of Agriculture, Ontario Street, at 7.45 when considerable business will be dealt with. The executive and all players wishing to tryout for the team are asked to attend.

A manager for the 1928 Intermediate team will be appointed at this session and a large attendance is requested.

Sports at Bailieboro

The summer sports are beginning to be talked of in Bailieboro. Baseball, hard and soft, are the principal issues of the conversations. The Tuxis hard ball team are trying to arrange to get into the East Durham Tuxis League. It is expected that the line-up for the team will be similar to that of last year, with the exception of the snappy second baseman "Rosy" Johnson, who is this year in Oshawa. Several recruits have been taken on and the vacancy will no doubt be filled efficiently by one of them. Archie Deyell will most likely be counted on as he always to be depended upon man on the mound, while the veteran Herb Dean will no doubt do his stuff behind the bat. Some promising seconds should this year make a good showing as relief pitchers and catchers.

The league and games will soon be set up now and it is rumored that the East Durham Tuxis League will be made up of teams entered by Millbrook, Bailieboro, Garden Hill, Welton and Plainville. The continuation school boys are also now practicing both soft ball and hard and are looking forward to a great deal of fun this season, by using the neighboring ball teams.

A dozen of the members of the Victor Tuxis Square are training for the field day athletics by getting in their daily run, and practicing high jumping, etc.

The Union Tuxis Square and the United Church young people are preparing for a big sportsday on June 4, both organizations taking part in the field day events and the entertainment in the church in the evening. The young people of the community have held their field day on June 3 during the past number of years.

CANADIAN TABLE MANNERS PUZZLE

English Woman Claims This Is The Case and Asks For Assistance

An English woman, newly arrived in Toronto, is much puzzled by the diversity of table etiquette presented for her consideration. She seeks help of a woman editor of the "Mail" staff.

"For instance," she says, "we would never dream of eating our meals, as I have observed here by chopping up our food and then laying aside the knife and proceeding to pick it over with the fork in the right hand. This, except for fish, if fish knives are absent, would be considered ill bred. Likewise we eat asparagus lifting it by the right fingers and of course eating only the tips, the toast being used only to serve it on. Yet I seem to have electrified the people who appear to regard me as unlearned in my table manners. This is not meant for criticism of anyone here, but having lived all my life among a class of people at home who are undoubtedly correct—as the British people regard correctness—surely I may say without slighting anyone that such an old world must have the recognized proper table refinements."

"Madame Canada" says in reply: "In Canada there is a mixture of English and American customs. The habit of cutting meat in small pieces, laying down the knife and conveying the food to the mouth with the fork held in the right hand, is American, and many of our people adhere to it. Those of British stock or traditions follow the English ways, while other Canadians, especially those who visit the United States, lean to American etiquette. It is quite correct to use the fingers when eating asparagus but it is also correct to use a fork with it. Both methods are observed in Toronto. I advise you to stick to your English ways, but on the other hand do not lay too much stress on small points of difference. In entertaining, the underlying motive is to give pleasure to your guests—to make them happy while under your roof."

THE PEOPLE'S ANTHEM

When wilt Thou save Thy people?
O God of mercy when?
Not thrones and lords, but nations!
Not thrones and crowns, but men!
Flowers of Thy heart, O God, are they!
Let them not pass like weeds, away!
Their heritage a sunless day,
God save the people.

Shall crime bring crime for ever,
Strength aiding still the strong?
Is it Thy will, O Father,
That men shall toil for wrong?
"No!" say Thy mountains: "No!"
Thy skies:
"Man's clouded sun shall brightly rise,
And songs be heard instead of sighs!"
God save the people!

When wilt Thou save the people?
O God of mercy, when?
The people, Lord, the people!
Not thrones and crowns, but men!
God save the people! Thine they are Thy children as Thy angels fair;
Save them from bondage and despair!
God save the people!

TEN POPULAR CANCER CAUSES

Insufficient Salt Not A Cause, Says Dr. Soper Of Cancer Control Society

"Ten popular fallacies" regarding the causes and treatment of cancer, are exposed in a statement issued by Dr. George A. Soper, managing director of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

One of these misbeliefs blames insufficient salt in one's diet, while a second attributes the disease to too much salt. A third creed is termed "vitamin starvation," while a fourth lays the fault at the door of "too much food." One faction of quacks finds the eating of pork leads to cancer but another reports tomatoes are to blame.

Added to these wholly false views is the blame put on coal smoke; glaze from enamel or aluminum cooking utensils; the consumption of too much meat and finally, too sedentary occupation.

"The main reliance of the public today," Dr. Soper asserted, "lies not in any sudden sensational discovery for the treatment or cure or prevention of cancer, but in the consensus of the foremost students of that disease."

The only two known methods for treating cancer today he pointed out, are surgery and irradiation, the latter including X-rays and radium.

"Eboug well established facts and sound working opinion to save many live are available," Dr. Soper continued, "if the public will only learn and heed what they leadn. A good deal of information about cancer is of practical character and it is practical knowledge that is important. We must discriminate between this and what is merely hypothetical and speculative. Whenever a man sets himself up to know more than anybody else about cancer it is wise to take what he says with precautions.

"The public, however, is so eager to get knowledge for protection against cancer equal to that which it possesses for protection against infectious diseases, and it has such inadequate ways of discriminating between the true and the false, that many of them and even the newspapers, sometimes, are led astray.

"Where there is a grain of truth in a theory this should not be magnified into a pound of precaution. The American Society for the Control of Cancer is revising and bringing to date its statistical study. 'The Prevalence of Cancer,' and will publish the volume during the year. However, due to lack of data, the statistics will go only through the year 1926."

Two principal conditions tend to cancer, according to Dr. Soper. One is a certain individual susceptibility, another is chronic irritation. Thus a dental plate that does not fit and keeps rubbing or the steel rims of spectacles that dig into the flesh behind the ear, or the careless habit of smoking a cigarette so that in removing the cigarette hastily, one tears off a tiny bit of skin at the corner of the lip, are potential causes of the ailment, when repeated frequently enough.

As for the ten fallacies he cited and others of similar nature, Dr. Soper declared: "Usually these theories are conceived in advance and then bolstered up by such evidence as may be readily and unscientifically obtainable. Little or none of this evidence would stand in a court of law."

Some persons blame "civilization" for the growth of cancer, but Dr. Soper inquired: "Why pick on civilization? Why not select anything that has grown and put the blame on that?"

"You might find fault with increasing transportation, more knowledge or more wages, of any utterly unrelated item. It is important to remember that one cause for the greater number of cancer cases is found in our improved methods of diagnosis, so that where a generation ago doctors did not know cancer existed, today they make a correct diagnosis."

A symposium of cancer authorities is to be held soon and at that time all recently projected theories, either for prevention or treatment or cure of cancer will receive joint and authoritative review by nationally prominent specialists.

LABOR SCARCE IN PARTS OF WEST

Seeding Almost Done—Increased Acreage Expected In Southern Part

Ten days of excellent weather over the greater part of Western Canada's grain growing territory has enabled farmers to make steady progress with the seeding of the 1928 crop. From every point on the prairies the outlook is reported as distinctly favorable, with soil conditions regarded as the best in many years.

Wheat seeding in Manitoba is now nearing completion and many farmers have started with the coarse grains. Much barley already has been seeded and, according to reliable authorities there will be a considerable increase in the acreage in the southern sections of the province, where farmers got an early start with seeding. Wheat is above the ground in many sections and abundant moisture promises normal germination.

In Saskatchewan land operations are being pushed with energy, but in districts around Regina scarcity of farm labor is said to be causing some concern. Generally the outlook throughout the province is exceedingly bright.

Alberta farmers have experienced varying fortunes with seeding progress. In the southern sections the farmers have been active for about two weeks, and many have their crop in the ground. Northern areas, however, have been somewhat delayed, owing to recent precipitation but the land is reported to be drying rapidly and operations are expected to be general within a few days.

The forecast for the whole of Western Canada is for continued clear weather and higher temperatures.

68.5 degrees and 65.5 degrees. They showed that there was 70 per cent more colds among the pupils in the higher temperature rooms than in those in the rooms maintained at 65.5 degrees.

"The proper way to ventilate a home is to provide an accurate thermometer in each living room. This should always be maintained at 68 to 70 degrees by regulating the supply of heat and by keeping the windows open slightly. The slightly opened window will produce a sufficient air movement in the room so as to be stimulating and refreshing, and the room will feel comfortable and not stuffy. With a little experience it is possible to maintain these conditions without a great deal of effort, and for persons in good health the home will be very comfortable.

"The ventilation of the sleeping or bedroom is different from the living room. Here the body is at complete rest and covered with bedding which serves to keep it warm. Under these conditions it is possible to take advantage of the full outdoor air by having windows wide open, and having the air circulate about the room. This air movement is very beneficial. It stimulates the nerves in the skin and invigorates the body. Keep all the windows in your bedroom open at night and keep covered with sufficient warm bedding so that you do not feel the cold. For a long time it was felt that night air was particularly unhealthy and that it must be shut out of the house by the closing of windows. This is a relic of the days when men closed and barricaded the doors and windows of their houses in order to prevent the intrusion of enemies and thieves. Now we know that all outdoor air is the same—both night and day, and that outdoor air is never dangerous. Keep properly dressed and do not roast your bodies so that later it may be chilled and you may take cold."

Summarized the following is the advice which the United States Service gives to those who wish to rid themselves of annual visitations from the common cold: "Heat your homes until they are comfortably warm. Do not bake yourself so that you take cold when going out doors. Sleep in a room with windows open and keep warm with plenty of bedding. Air, like sunlight, is man's great benefactor. Get all the outdoor air you can and in this way you will be helping yourself to be free of colds."—Brockville Recorder and Times.

SCIENCE GIVES WINGS TO INDUSTRY, and Mining becomes big business

OUT back of beyond, burrowing and tunnelling, boring and blasting earth's riches from her deep hidden storehouses, the miners toil. Directing them is the field staff, managers, inspectors, foremen, time-keepers. At headquarters in the distant city the executive officers of the mining corporation are at their desks, in touch with the banks, with the markets, studying alertly the ever changing conditions of the industry.

Long Distance is the liaison officer between headquarters and the front line, at the mines.

Emergencies arrive, inevitably. Instant contact between mine and office becomes imperative. No time to write. Message and reply must conquer delay. Minutes may mean millions.

Long Distance does it.

Canada possesses the largest partially developed mining area in the world. To complete its development, that the Canadian people may realize to the fullest extent upon the wealth close held in their country's mineral deposits, some medium of constant immediate communication between mine and executive offices, over thousands of miles of barren country, is essential.

Long Distance supplies that medium.

Even in its present embryo state as a producer of minerals, Canada leads the world in annual output of nickel and asbestos, mines more silver, copper and zinc than any country within the Empire, and stands third in the world in gold production.

In 1880 when The Bell Telephone Company of Canada was organized, the country's total mineral production was valued at $15,000,000. In 1926, the value was $241,773,000. The actual coal reserve is officially estimated at 414,193,000,000 tons.

Adequate development of these vast resources depends largely upon speed. The Bell Telephone Company co-operates with industry to annihilate time in communication. Long Distance connections are made now more rapidly than was possible a year ago. Still greater speed is the goal of our constant striving.

In 1928, we expect to connect 135,000 telephones, which will mean a net increase of 40,000 telephones in service.

HOW TO PREVENT COLDS

The common cold continues to form the subject of a great deal of study on the part of scientists. Not long since it was announced that a large foundation had been placed at the disposal of a group of Baltimore investigators for the purpose of endeavoring to evolve a speedy and effective method of curing this almost universal ailment and it is a fact that notwithstanding all of the attempts which have been made to discover a rapid and certain means of relieving the sufferer of a cold, that discovery has yet to be made. But if the world still lacks a suitable remedy, it is not without the knowledge of different methods by which colds may be prevented, and the necessity for furnishing relief thus obviated.

While there may be, and undoubtedly are, other reasons for the onset of colds, the chief responsibility for the coughing, sneezing, wheezing and other unpleasant accompaniments of the common cold must rest, upon this continent at least, with the faulty heating and ventilation of buildings. If it were possible to provide for a constant temperature of suitable standing in living quarters and working quarters and to do away with the overheating and underheating that are too often the rule, scientists believe that fifty per cent or more of the colds that annually beset the residents of North America would never occur.

What is the proper temperature at which a house should be kept? There are different opinions about this matter. The United States Health Service, which has been studying the question for five years, believes, however, that the most comfortable temperature, as well as the most healthful one, is between 68 and 70 degrees. "Scientific studies," this Service says, "have shown that a room temperature over 70 degrees may not be healthful because the overheating produces a slight increase in body temperature as well as the pulse rate and the breathing rate, because the blood pressure falls and there may be a decrease in efficiency of the blood circulation system."

Studies have been made in schools in which the rooms were kept at

What good is a budget unless it works ?

You know how much money you have to spend each month. Food, heat, light, clothing, saving—but your carefully worked out budget is no good unless you make it work as you have planned.

The one who spends the money should know how to buy. To know how requires practice and study. The best text-books in buying are the advertisements in your daily newspaper. They will tell you what you want to buy, where to buy it, the price. This knowledge will assure wise spending.

Advertisements keep you posted on the newest products and improvements of the manufacturers and merchants. They are competing for your business. Each knows that his product must be good and the price right to get the business of the wise buyer.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Storer and daughter, Marguerite, motored down from Toronto and spent the week end with the Misses Ellis, Armour St.

Dr. and Mrs. R. N. Tucker of Niagara Falls, N.Y., are holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Massie, Kidout Street and incidentally trying to find out where the trout bite the best.

The engagement is announced of Kathleen Isabel, only daughter of Rev. and Mrs. D. J. Davidson, India, to Walter Victor Braze, eldest surviving son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Port Hope, Ont., the marriage to take place in Oshawa early in June.

MOTHER RESCUES TWO DAUGHTERS

After Collapsing Twice Finally Opens Door in Gas Filled Home

When the house became filled with gas fumes which escaped from a combination coke heater and cook stove Mrs. John A. Lee and daughters, Rae, 16 and Reta 7, of 487 Albert street, Oshawa, had a narrow escape from death Sunday morning. That they escaped with their lives was due entirely to the heroic efforts of Mrs. Lee who, after collapsing twice, succeeded in getting the door open to let in the fresh air.

Mrs. Lee was aroused by the elder daughter, in the next bedroom with little Reta, the latter already being sick and unable to get up. Mrs. Lee entered the bedroom and collapsed, but, realizing that their lives were at stake, fought off the fainting spell and succeeded in getting downstairs where she again collapsed. After a hard struggle she managed to open the doors and call for help. The mother then returned upstairs and carried the young child to safety. The elder daughter was barely able to get downstairs alone. Mrs. Lee was suffering from the effects of the gas all day yesterday but all three are now practically recovered.

SAND AND GRAVEL PITS IN CANADA

Natural deposits of sands and gravels occur in all provinces of Canada, and as a consequence of this wide distribution, the low value of these materials and the ubiquitous demand chiefly for filling and structural purposes, there are a very large number of pits operated in Canada.
