HIRED AND FIRED

All At The Same Meeting—Vote For His Appointment Carried.

After Which He Was Immediately Suspended.

And we are still without a permanent chief of police. At the special session Friday evening acting Chief Royce received the appointment and he was then immediately suspended for thirty days pending an investigation into the charges made against him.

The members were all in their places and every seat in the gallery was taken many of the visitors having to stand during the meeting.

The Council was moved into Committee of the whole to consider the by-law to appoint a chief and
Mr. Smith occupied the chair.

Mr. Strong moved that Mr. A.
Royce be appointed to the position.

Mr. Hayden—The Police Committee have no report ready.

If the council intended to pay a man a fair living salary, the Police Committee would be in a position to recommend a man for the position. The Councilors had looked over all the applications and they should be in just as good a position to recommend as the Police Committee.

The vote on Mr. Royce's name was as follows.

Yeas—Messrs. Rosevear, Patterson, Strong and Hayden.

Nays—Messrs. Chislett, Perry,
Sheriff and Mayor Bush.

Chairman Smith voted in favor of Mr. Royce and declared the resolution carried.

The by-law was read the second time after which the Committee rose and His Worship the Mayor resumed
the chair.

The by-law was read 3rd time and passed.

Mayor Bush—While the majority have voted for Royce, personally as Mayor of this town I am not satisfied with the result. Numerous charges about his conduct have been made to the Police Committee.
Only a few weeks ago a meeting of the Police Committee which I attend Mr. Royce was called and the interview on that occasion was most unsatisfactory. Mr. Hayden at that time stated that he was thoroughly disgusted with the man and was through with him. The Committee had agreed with Mr. Hayden but since then matters have taken on a different complexion. I want to give Royce a fair square deal but I also want to give the ratepayers of this town the same treatment.

Where there is so much smoke there must be some fire. I feel that the whole matter should be thoroughly investigated but I shall reserve my decision on this point until the next regular meeting. However I feel quite sure that I will order an investigation before the County Judge.

Mr. Smith—I stated at the outset that an investigation should be held before the County Judge and I am still in favor of it.

Mayor Bush—I am glad to hear Mr. Smith speak this way. I rather hesitated in going on with an investigation owing to the expense it will involve. Under the present conditions an investigation is warranted and I therefore instruct Mr. Sanders to notify Mr. Royce that he is suspended from office for thirty days.
This will give him ample time to prepare his defence for the investigation. Very serious charges have been given to me and I hope they are not true but I think it is my duty to the town to have them investigated.

A bylaw to cancel certain outstanding debentures aggregating the provision of a by-law 1067 and was passed.

DUTY ON FUSIL OIL

Has Been Removed At The Request of Port Hope Deputation.

The visit of Ex-Mayor Mulholland, Dr. Beavis and Mr. Schwicker, the latter two representing the Cosmos Chemical Co., to the Government, were not without favorable results.
The deputation pointed out to the Government that the duty on Anyl alcohol was altogether too high and the good news was received on Tuesday that the duty had been removed and the oil came under the free list. The duty formerly was $2.40 per gallon.

This duty of course held this new concern back but with its removal operations will commence at once.

ONE HORSE WAS KILLED THE OTHER SHOT

Thos. Harrison's Steeds are Victims of the Port Hope
Train

Two horses, the property of Thos.
E Harrison, of North Monaghan, wandered to the G. T. R. tracks, and were struck by the train leaving here at 7.05 yesterday morning.
One of the horses was knocked into a creek near the track and was killed instantly, while the other had its legs broken and had to be destroyed.

These horses, it is said, had been taken from the premises of Mr.
Harrison Tuesday night, as a result of the bailiff's appearance on the scene.

DIED AT PLAINVILLE

Kenneth Buttar, a Highly Esteemed Young Man

On Monday, Kenneth William
Buttar, son of Mr. Wm. Buttar, Plainville, died at the age of 18 years from inflammatory rheumatism. Deceased had been seriously ill only about a week and apparently was much improved, but had a relapse Sunday night, passing away on Monday. He was born in Plainville and had always taken an active part in Sunday School work. Of a cheerful disposition, he had endeavored himself to many. He is survived by his father and one sister, Miss Anna Buttar of Toronto, his mother having died about fifteen years ago.
The funeral was on Wednesday afternoon from the family residence to the Presbyterian cemetery at Cold Springs.

BURGLARS BAGGED

AT PETERBORO

Operated in Lindsay on a Large Scale

Lindsay Post.

Five burglaries took place shortly after midnight last night, the places entered being Britton's jewelry store, R. L. Morgan's, druggist and optician, Williams' bowling alley, Maunder & Son's mill, and W. M.
Robson's grocery store. In the neighborhood of six or seven hundred dollars in goods and cash were taken. Two of the men were arrested in Peterboro this morning and had most of the goods on them.
They were heavily armed, carrying revolvers, etc. Chief Chilton leaves this evening for Peterboro and will bring them back either to-night or to-morrow.

The biggest haul was made at Britton's jewelry store, where over five hundred dollars worth of rings, and other jewellery was taken.

NEW INDUSTRY

Likely for Port Hope—Deputation Visited Town on Monday

It will be welcome news to our many readers to learn that Port Hope has every prospect of another flourishing industry. On Monday, Mr. J. E. Murphy, President of the International Tool Steel Co. Mr.
W. R. Wadsworth, Solicitor for the above Company and Mr. Maxwell, Steel expert from Detroit, representing a number of capitalists desirous of starting a steel factory in Canada, visited Port Hope and had a conference with the Harbor Board. It is the intention of this Company to manufacture all kinds of high grade steel under a different process to that advanced by the late Mr. Shaw.

The deputation looked over the building erected by the International Tool Steel Co. and discussed the question of labor, housing and the cost of electrical power.

Mr. Maxwell will visit Batiscan, Quebec and make a report to the new Company, of the merits of the magnetite sand at that place and if it proves as satisfactory as set forth in the report of the former expert there is no doubt but what the new industry will commence business immediately. The Company will employ fifty hands.

The money from the sale of the sand at Batiscan, will go to the shareholders of the old Company and promises to be a handsome return.

BOARD OF TRADE NOTES

A meeting of the Executive committee of the Board of Trade was held in the Town Clerk's office last Monday evening, April 6th, at 8 o'clock.

There were present—Mr. T. B.
Chalk in the chair; Messrs. R. A.
Mulholland, C. E. Sherriff, F. L.
Curtis, W. H. Roper, L. E. Hall,
C. H. Wickett, J. L. Thompson,
Mayor Bush, E. Brown, E. M.
Thurber, W. D. Steppens, G. V.
Strong, H. Fullford, J. R. Bunting,
H. Reynolds, W. J. B. Davison,
W. J. Helm, F. H. Brown and A.
H. C. Long, Secretary.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and on motion confirmed.

Communications were read from three prospective industries, and after they had been fully discussed instructions were given to the Secretary to communicate further with them.

An account of $22.50 from D. H.
Chisholm was ordered to be paid.

Various matters appertaining to the work of the Board was discussed.

There was practically a full attendance of the Executive, and the meeting had the right swing to it.
Let there be more of them and Port Hope will be better for it.

POLICE COURT.

The proprietor of the Queen's Hotel appeared in the Police Court Monday on a charge of allowing liquor to be consumed on the premises during prohibited hours, on March 21st. A week ago, the Queens was charged with selling liquor on March 21st, but when the prosecution failed to register a conviction, they amended the charge to the one of allowing liquor to be consumed. The evidence showed that Mr. Bennett had no knowledge of liquor being consumed on the premises, and this case was also dismissed. For permitting games of chance, he was fined $30 and $4.50 costs.

PROVINCE WILL

SUPPLY ANTITOXIN

Dr. John S. McCullough, secretary of the Provincial Board of Health, has sent out a circular to the local Board of Health, stating that arrangements have been made for a supply of anti-diphtheritic serum at greatly reduced rates. The antitoxin will be of standard quality 30 per cent. in excess of the marked label, and will be sold at 25 cents per 1,000 units, 50 cents per 2,000 units, $1.25 per 5,000 units, and $2.50 for 10,000 units. Syringe packages of these units will be 10 cents extra in each case.

NOT TRUE

In a recent issue we gave currency to a report that Cobourg Circle, of the Order of Canadian Home Circles had disbanded and surrendered their charter. We have received the following from the officers of Cobourg Circle, and gladly give it a place in our columns, as we have no desire to do Cobourg Circle, or any other fraternal society an injury. The Supt. of Organization visited Cobourg last week, and he writes that he found the officers quite enthusiastic over the new order of things and are preparing for a campaign for new members.
To the Port Hope Guide.

GENTLEMEN:—Will you kindly correct the article appearing in your paper which states in substance that the Home Circle in Cobourg has decided to disband and surrender its charter, which is not the case.
Respectfully yours,

Last Spike Driven on Grand Trunk Pacific

The following telegram was received from Mr. H. R. Charlton, general advertising agent of the Grand Trunk:—
Eastern and western track Grand Trunk Pacific Railway met at 12:45 p.m., April 7th, mileage 375 east Prince Rupert. Weather perfect and everything satisfactory.

Fort George, B.C., April 7.—The last spike on the Grand Trunk Pacific was driven about noon at the east end of the bridge over the Nechacho at Fort Fraser. Last night the track-laying gangs on the east and west ends of construction left a half-mile gap, and this morning the two teams raced for the middle. President Chamberlain was not present, but five special cars from Edmonton brought railway officials and guests.

WANTS JOB AS CHIEF "COP" IN LINDSAY

Daniel McLachlan, of Colling-wood, has applied for the position of Chief of Police in Lindsay, understanding that the position was vacant. The applicant says he is 38 years of age, 6 ft. 2 inches in height, strong, healthy and married, with 7 of a family. I have 25 years police experience, having acted as police clerk, detective and Chief of Police. I have been trained in the Ju-Jitsu drill, and hold sanitary and
St. Andrew's ambulance certificates.
Mr. McLachlan enclosed his photograph and also the names of men, from whom references could be secured.—Lindsay Warder.
McLachlan was an applicant for the office of chief constable here.

WHAT WILL THE FARMERS SAY?

Companies are being formed in Canada for the purchase of New Zealand butter and general farm produce. Large quantities have already been purchased of the finest farm products in the world. The butter costs about 25 per cent. laid down here less than the Canadian produce, and is driving the latter out of the small hotels and restaurants. It will not be very long before it will completely command the Canadian market. Other products are likely to follow suit. The Canadian farmers' homemarket, like his foreign market, is in grave danger.

CAVAN RESIDENT DEAD.—Saturday morning George Sisson of

LINDSAY BURGLARS

Had Shacks Near Peterboro and Lindsay and Plunder Enough to Start a Store

Peterboro, April 2.—Smith and Wilson, the two burglars who were arrested here on Wednesday by Detectives Newhall and Meagher, on the strength of information given to Chief Thompson by Governor Balfour of Lindsay, were this morning brought before Police Magistrate Dumble on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. The court confiscated the weapons, which consisted of a number of revolvers and a Winchester rifle, the latter being carried in a grip. The cracksman had three grips which they had sent on ahead to this city, and all three were filled with loot.

Smith, who claims he is only seventeen years of age, says he is the son of a blacksmith who formerly lived in Lindsay, but who now lives in Midland. He also stated that he was in the Northwest last year during harvesting operations. He became broke, and while on his way down from Fort William on the boat, fell in with Wilson, who is nineteen years of age. Smith also admits having been convicted in Barrie and sentenced to jail for three months. Wilson, his pal, is a native of Hamilton.

The two crooks had enough goods in their possession to start up shop. They stated that they had a shack filled with loot just north of Lindsay, and they also gave out the information that there was another shack near Peterboro.

Your correspondent has been informed that they have admitted burglarizing stores in Gravenhurst, Barrie, Bracebridge and Orillia and have several headquarters.

It is believed here that they have given Chief Thompson information of a startling nature, which will give the Provincial Police some important work to perform.

After the court had confiscated the firearms, the men were handed over to Chief Chilton, of Lindsay, who arrived here on Wednesday night for the prisoners. All the goods taken from the Lindsay stores were found in their possession.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

A great work lies before the humane societies in Toronto and elsewhere. The people need education on the subject of humanity to animals. The instinct to destroy wild life is very widespread. The other day a squirrel was seen on a street where a sewer is being constructed. A labourer who saw it at once became wildly excited. He was not satisfied to watch the graceful movements of the harmless little creature. His destructive instinct was aroused. He pursued the animal as furiously as if it had been an inveterate enemy of the human race, and only the badness of his aim saved its life.

Now this man was probably no monster, but an ordinary good-natured human being. If anybody had asked him why he wanted to kill the squirrel he would have been puzzled to answer. A live squirrel is a thing of beauty. A dead squirrel of that size is of no use to anybody. The instinct must have come down from some savage ancestor roaming the woods in search of prey, and afraid that he would starve to death unless he devoured whatever came in his way.

But it is the business of education to remove those savage instincts. It is proposed to teach religion in the schools. There is not the least difficulty in teaching at least such elements of universal religion as kindness to animals. Such teaching is never forgotten. The savage instinct is easily eradicated. Many a boy who has been in the habit of destroying animal life has experienced a sudden revulsion of feeling at the mere sight of the lifeless body; has asked himself the question: "Why did I do that?" Tens of thousands of children have been converted to humane ideas by "Beautiful Joe," or "Black Beauty." There is a splendid field for work here. Those who engage in it do not benefit the dumb animals alone. They help to civilize the community. Cruelty to animals is a relic of barbarism. When it disappears other relics of barbarism are likely to go also.—Toronto Star.

THE RIGHT STUFF

To every employee of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific Railways—and there are over 50,000 names on the payrolls of the lines—a message has been sent out from the President's office. This message deals with "Efficiency and Courtesy," and is signed by Mr. E. J. Chamberlain, President of the Grand Trunk Railway and Grand Trunk Pacific. Mr. Chamberlain's message embodies the spirit of the modern railroad, and insistence on the right of the public, passengers and shippers alike, to demand the best possible service from the railway man. In his message to the passenger department employees the President says—

The railroad company desires to sell its transportation. The ticket rates are alike for all, and any person buying a ticket, no matter what the style of his clothes, how much money he displays or what his position in society, is entitled to proper and courteous treatment.

The railroad man has a great opportunity of passing out kindness and good will. He comes in contact with every kind and condition of individual—The old, the young, the rich, the poor, the illiterate, the learned, the happy, the prosperous, and those in defeat, saturated with sorrow and distress; he sees them all and through intuition knows to which class they belong. A smile, a kind word, or a kindness done to any of these cannot fail to leave its impression for good and this cannot help but expand. Try it.

The President's message to the freight men says—

The needs and wishes of shippers and consignees should be anticipated as much as possible. When cars are ordered the matter should receive close attention, and in case it is not possible to furnish as ordered, shipper should be notified so he may arrange his plans accordingly; he should be made to feel you are interested in his welfare, and that his business is worthy of consideration. Do not discommode a shipper because of some omission of his own, but try to help him out. Railroads are the servants of the public and it is their duty to serve well.

RUNNING SLACK.

An Editorial from Toronto World, Conservative.

Signs are not wanting that, altho the Provincial Government continues to do good work, as in the introduction of the compensation bill, there is gradual slackening of the tone, a relaxation of the high tension which kept things moving, as it were, towards the golden year. Whether it be a loosening of discipline, or an accretion of barnacles, or the slipshod methods of over-confidence, or the contempt that comes with familiarity, all governments seem to tread the same path. It was hoped that the Whitney Government would be different, but there are signs which are evident enough. When a government does things which it would not tolerate for a moment if it were in opposition instead of in power, it is time for it to consider its ways.

It only takes a turnover of a few per cent, two or three in a hundred, to upset the strongest government. It may seem very dreadful that two or three per cent. of the voters should hold the government in the hollow of their hands. It seems so incredible that governments pay no attention to them and gradually come to devote all their consideration to their own professed supporters. Then the incredible thing happens.

There are a lot of people in Ontario wondering why Mr. G. Howard Ferguson is so indispensable to the government, that special legislation has to be passed to save his political life. Mr. Ferguson's personal merits are quite aside from the question. Either he should not have been appointed, or he should have resigned his seat when appointed. The other course was to have repealed the law before the appointment, not after the law was violated. The opposition "has it" on the government, and will no doubt make the most of the opportunity. At the best it represents the slackening up of the system. The government would not have acted so in 1905.

CHRIST UNRECOGNIZED

A waif upon the cheerless, wintry street,
Breasted the driving snow, the scathing sleet;
Hungered, with pale, wan face, and shoeless feet;
I heard a whisper: "Help her! Pity her!"
I passed her by!

A little lad treaded the city's ways.
Guileless of heart, with pure and trustful gaze,
Yet heedless of the countless snares that maze
Concealed, "O speak to him!" the whisper said,
I passed him by!

My neighbor lay on a couch of pain;
Through weary days and sleepless nights in vain
She longed for gentle ministry, for strain
Of soothing song, for breath of fragrant bloom,
I passed her by!

And yet, "Oh had I wealth beyond compare,
Or noble talents, Lord, or genius rare,
Some glorious work how gladly would I dare
To prove my ardent love for Thee!"
I cried.
Mistaken I!

That night in dreams my Saviour said to me,
"Thou lovest Me? Alas! how can it be?
Thrice hast thou passed Me by!
Canst thou not see
That, in the humblest little one,
Myself
Thou passes by?"

POPULAR CITIZEN LEAVES TOWN

Oshawa Reformer.

Mr. Alf. Fursey has purchased from Mr. C. Perry, in Port Hope his confectionery business, and ice cream parlor, which are the finest in this line in the eastern town. The deal was just completed on Monday, and Mr. Fursey took possession on Wednesday, April 1st. Alf is without a doubt one of the most genial and popular young business men in our town, and the whole community will regret to learn of his removal from town. Both he and Mrs. Fursey will be greatly missed in a social way as they were active and popular in social and lodge circles. Mr. Fursey being a member of Corinthian I. O. O. F. Encampment, Rebeccas, Orange, K. P. and Masonic orders. While regretting to lose such a fine type of citizen, we congratulate Port Hope on securing Mr. Fursey as a resident and merchant. That he will win the confidence and respect of all in his new abode is sure, also his success in business.

VICTORIA DAY ON MAY 25 THIS YEAR

Ottawa, March 25.—According to an answer given to Mr. T. C. Wallace (Centre York) by the Secretary of State in the Commons this afternoon, Victoria Day will be celebrated this year on May 25. The anniversary of Queen Victoria's birth comes on a Sunday, and according to statute, the following day in such case becomes automatically a public holiday.

She Made Her Hang up

A young lady took down the receiver of the telephone one day and discovered that the line was in use. "I just put on a pan of beans for dinner," she heard one woman complacently informing another. She hung up the receiver and waited for the conversation to end. Upon returning to the telephone she found the women still talking. Three times she waited, and then, at last, becoming exasperated, she broke into the conversation. "Madam, I smell your beans burning," she announced, crisply. A horrified scream greeted the remark and the young lady was able to put in her call.

BAMFORD EXAMINED THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Dr. Bruce Smith Will Examine Prisoner—Thought People in Port Hope Were Watching Him.

On Thursday afternoon the case of the Bamford shooting affair was again heard, before R. M. Boggs, Cobourg. It had been decided to try it in camera, but Dr. Elliot strongly objected.

Police Magistrate Boggs decided that it should be tried in public, but the room should not be overcrowded.

The first witness called was Mrs. Bamford, mother of the accused. According to the evidence, Mr. William Bamford, the accused, went out to Montana some years ago, returning to Cobourg in Dec. 1912, bringing with him a revolver. He worked on the car ferry for some time. About this time his mind appeared to become affected, he got very religious, wanted to have prayers and have mass held in the house. He sometimes talked of strange things in a strange way. He also thought that people were watching him.

"He began to speak about Dr. Elliot just after Xmas," said Mrs. Bamford, "but I know no reason why he should dislike the doctor," she continued. "He has never shown signs of ill-will toward anyone. He had stated that Dr. Elliot was watching him and he also spoke of Dr. Stinson. He was annoyed at this watching. Last Thursday he mentioned that Dr. Elliot was moving the Asylum from Cobourg to Whistler."

Dr. Elliot asked permission to question witness which was granted. Dr. Elliot—"Is there any reason why he should want to shoot me?"

Mrs. Bamford—"None whatever." Mrs. Bamford also went on to say that he had been in Port Hope after Christmas, and had also complained of people watching him up there.

It appears that a brother-in-law in Port Hope had borrowed the accused's revolver. However, Bamford wanted to get the revolver back so came to Port Hope and asked the brother-in-law for it. The brother-in-law telephoned to Mrs. Bamford who came to Port Hope, and mother and son returned to Cobourg with the revolver.

Mrs. Bamford then put the revolver in her trunk. However, on Friday night he asked his mother for it, and Mrs. Bamford let him have it, thinking that he would do nothing rash. On Saturday morning the accused went down town leaving the revolver at home, but returned to the house about 1.30 p. m. in a rather excited frame of mind. He got the revolver, but assured his mother he would not hurt anyone. He then went back down town and the trouble with Dr. Elliott took place.

The case was again adjourned until Monday, at 3 p. m., when it is expected Dr. Bruce Smith of Toronto will examine the prisoner.

G. T. R. ORDERS ANOTHER FERRY

To Run Between Cobourg and Rochester

An important contract, calling for a large expenditure, has just been given out by the Ontario Car Ferry Co., Limited, of which Mr. E. J. Chamberlain is President, and which has its head office in Montreal. This calls for the construction of a new steamship of over 5,000 tons to carry freight and passengers across Lake Ontario from Cobourg to Genesee (port of Rochester). The Polson Iron Works, of Toronto, are to build the steamer, which will be of steel, specially reinforced for ice breaking and three hundred and seventeen feet in length, with a fifty-six feet beam, with its two funnels and triple expansion engines, the new steamer will make fifteen miles an hour. The increase in traffic between these two Lake Ontario points has made construction of this new steamer necessary. It will have accommodation on its passenger decks and in its saloon for over nine hundred people. Below on the main car deck the steamship will carry up to twenty-eight loaded steel coal cars of standard type. These being on three tracks on the steamer's deck.

A large amount of freight, principally coal, coke and steel bars is carried up over the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg to Genesee. The loaded freight cars are there shipped on to the steamships and taken over to Cobourg, where the freight is distributed by the Grand Trunk Railway to various points in Ontario. A steamship "Ontario No. 1" is at present carrying on the service, but a second boat has been found necessary, and the new vessel will be named "Ontario No. 2," and will be in service in the spring of 1915. The run between Cobourg and the Port of Rochester is made every day all the year round. The passenger schedule is, however, only maintained in the summer months. For in the winter with a thick covering of ice on the lake, arrival and departure times cannot be accurately gauged.

Grand Trunk Pacific officials report to headquarters in Montreal from time to time many interesting colonization schemes undertaken by private individuals and companies along the line of route in the rich lands opened out by the new trans-continental line. One of the latest has some novel features. It is to be carried on under the direction of Mr. Albion Hunt and Mr. Hal Carlton, of London, England. They intend to colonize a tract of land of about 14,500 acres lying near Kinsella on the main line of the Grand Trunk Pacific, about 75 miles east of Edmonton.

The novelty of the plan lies in the fact that the promoters will endeavor to attract in particular the man who has not had any previous experience in farming. They will have a model three hundred and twenty acre farm in the centre of the tract. This model farm will be run on a strictly business basis, while at the same time it will be of educational value.

It will show the new settler how to erect the best and cheapest kind of houses and other buildings and the best manner of raising horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, poultry, grain, fodder, crops on a commercial paying basis. The model farm will also teach how to best handle the land itself from the initial breaking to the harvesting of the crops.

Arrangements will be made for the marketing of all kinds of produce, and advice will be given as to the necessary equipment of the farm, including both live stock and machinery. If the newcomer does not wish to buy equipment for use the first year, but is desirous of confining his operation to fencing, building and general initial development work, then the model farm will break his land and put in his crop at moderate prices.

It has been arranged to temporarily house at Kinsella any settler while he is putting up a house and if those who are bachelors desire they may board at a low rate at the model farm.

The project is somewhat of a co-operative one as everything will be bought in large quantities, thereby reducing prices. Marketing will also be done on a co-operative basis to a great extent.

COMMITTS SUICIDE

Cobourg Star.

W. B. Spader, formerly a partner in the late brokerage firm of Marshall, Spader and Co. of New York and Toronto, committed suicide at his residence here on Wednesday evening about 5 o'clock by shooting. Mr. Spader, who had dwelt in Cobourg for a year or more, appeared in excellent spirits during the day, although he had been in ill-health for some time. Late in the afternoon he retired to his bedroom, undressed, lay down, and blew out his brains. A short note was found beside the body, addressed to a local friend. It is said that the note merely wished the friend "good-bye" and gave no reason for the suicide.

Mr. Spader, who was 54 years of age, is survived by a widow and three daughters, all living here. The family is well known and popular in Cobourg's American colony. The remains will be taken to Rochester for interment to-day (Friday).

A despatch from Rochester, dated April 1st, says—

Willard B. Spader was well known in Rochester, where he was at one time prominently connected with business enterprises up until the time of his departure for New York.

After moving to that city he was identified to some extent with one of the brokerage firms doing business here. Mr. Spader came to Rochester in the late '80's, and in 1890 entered into a partnership with C. Henry Amsden, the new firm doing a general brokerage business. In 1891 he moved to New York and became a member of the firm of Marshall, Spader, and Company, with offices in New York and a branch office in Rochester. Four years ago the firm was dissolved, and since that time Mr. Spader has been connected with a number of Canadian enterprises—living most of the time at Cobourg.

Mr. Spader was married to Miss Frances Berthoff, of Rochester.

A LAMB-LIKE DEPARTURE

The old adage about March coming in like a lion and going out like a lamb holds good this year. Tuesday was gentle, with bright sunshine. There was not the faintest semblance of a repetition of the storm of March 1, when the highest wind ever recorded was put down on the books. The last part of the month had been free from storms, although there had been some rain. The month, aside from the wind of the first few days was remarkably free from high winds, shattering the old rule about March gales. However, one of the old adages holding good is about as good a percentage as usual and gives both the believer and the non-believer a chance to set up arguments for the cause he favors.

ON A TOUCHY TOPIC

New York Life.

On a recent Sunday afternoon, at a large sanitarium devoted entirely to treating tuberculosis, a young Methodist minister was preaching to the assembled patients, nurses, and doctors. In a most vivid manner he was describing the great peace, contentment, and happiness to be had in the world to come. Suddenly, one of the patients, a girl of about 20 years of age, burst out crying.

"What is the matter?" was the general chorus, as the rest crowded around her.

"Oh," she sobbed, "I wish he would stop talking about heaven. I am here paying $18 a week just to keep out of that place."

TO MEN WHO LIVE INACTIVE LIVES—Exercise in the open air is the best tonic for the stomach and system generally; but there are those who are compelled to follow sedentary occupation and the inactivity tends to restrict the healthy action of the digestive organs and sickness follows. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills regulate the stomach and liver and restore healthy action. It is wise to have a package of these pills always at hand.

Hermione also wondered, for she had noticed the alteration alluded to by the rector; but, to the best of her recollection, it dated further back than the removal. To her it seemed that Doctor Deane had never been quite his own, gentle, kindly self since the morning of Ray's return to Pinehurst—the morning when he had so astonished her by his refusal of her well-meant offer of help.

"Mother," said Hermione, when the visitors were gone—and there was a tender yearning in her voice which Mrs. Freymuth thought she understood—"do you think it would disturb you much if Pitches came? You see, we couldn't get rid of him here by sending him to the nursery whenever we were tired of him."

"I should like him to come, 'Mione, dear," Mrs. Freymuth answered promptly. "Only I am afraid that he will give you more to do. I know very well how you slave yourself to death to provide my little comforts and put up with my fads, and I know, too, that nothing I can say will check you in the least. Now if you have made up your mind to do all the cooking yourself and help Bertha with the dusting, and all that sort of thing, how can you possibly find time to attend to Pitches as well?"

"I could, mother!" the girl asserted resolutely. "I could find time easily. I want to be busy, dear. I want to be so busy as to leave no time for thought at all. It is that which disturbs me so much when I think about myself. The child would give me something else to think about. It seems rather wretched, doesn't it, mother, for a woman at twenty-seven to say that she has no further interest of her own in life, and to confess that she has no concern for the future but what she feels for others?"

"Mione, my dearest!" "Yes, I don't often trouble you with long-winded accounts of myself and my worries, do I?" Hermione asked. "But to-night I feel that I must talk a little, or I shall do something desperate. Do you know, mother, sometimes I get a weird fancy into my head that my soul, my mind, the key-note of my being, my very self, died on that day that I found my love for Ray was gone, and that there is nothing of me left here but an empty husk, a body without a soul, a mere mass of flesh and blood. I find myself wondering sometimes where that other part of me went when I lost it, and if I shall ever possess it again. And sometimes—and this is the most foolish of all my silly fancies—I imagine that it is travelling through the boundless space in company with Ray's incorporeal entity—not the Ray that we were acquainted with lately, but the cousin that I knew and loved while my heart still had a pulse—that, true to each other, in spite of the faithlessness of our coarser, earthly natures, our two souls are wandering in an eternal union, from world to world, in a bliss that is unspeakable. And when that idea comes to me I feel yearning—to be rid of this grosser nature which keeps me—My own dear mother," she cried, casting off her dreamy manner and choking a sob with a smile as she met her mother's wide stare of horror, "am I scaring you to death with my flimsy metaphysics? It is all over, dear! It was only a sort of night-mare—a morbid, unhealthy state of the nerves. Let us have Pitches if we can get him. His lovable little ways do more than anything to take me out of myself. If my heart ever does wake up again, he'll be the one to waken it."

"My poor darling," cried Mrs. Freymuth, frightened and sorrowful because of this sudden betrayal of passionate despair, which seemed all the more terrible because so subdued, "my darling 'Mione, if I could only help you! Have the child, by all means, dearest; he will do both of us good—dear, winsome little lad!"

The letter—a difficult one to indite in the circumstances—offering to take charge of Pitches during his step-mother's absence was written and despatched. The answer proved the shrewdness of Miss Pentony's judgment.

"Mrs. Freymuth's compliments, and she would be very pleased to grant Miss Freymuth's request," were the words in which the reply was couched.

Hermione smiled as she tore up the note; Pitches was coming—the rest did not matter.

It was definitely settled that the visit was to last six weeks, possibly longer, as Mrs. Freymuth was not willing to be in any way bound or tied in her movements.

A happy time it proved to poor Pitches. The mere fact of passing his days with "auntie" was enough in itself to make him contented.

His loyal little heart still yearned after his father, and in particular, it grieved him not to be allowed to pray "God bless dear farver" any more.

"I'm so 'fraid he'll fink, I don't love him any more, auntie," he once said, fixing his big, wondering eyes earnestly upon Hermione, "and I do—I love him always just as much as ever."

She did not attempt to make him understand—he understood far too much already—and the child grew presently to accept with an unquestioning faith her word upon the matter.

It was an existence of unclouded bliss to him, to be allowed to dig in the garden by "auntie's" side, to follow her round the rooms with a miniature duster, full of self-importance and the thought of "helping," and to make pies by her side at the kitchen table. What a time it was, and what a pity that it should ever come to an end! But the allotted period quickly passed away, and then, when the folks at Mulberry-tree Cottage were beginning to get accustomed to the tiny house, and all the changes that came with the occupation of it, as to wonder sometimes how long it was since things had been different with them, when the builders were busy restoring the library at Pinehurst, when the spring was hastening on with eager glowing haste into the arms of summer—then there came another visitor to Northcliffe.

This one, though, did not take up his residence at Mulberry-tree Cottage. He located himself in Mrs. Perry's first-floor back room—at the Royal George, where he could look out across the intervening strip of down and see the sea glittering and dancing under the morning sunlight, or watch the moon rise, dim and mysterious, from restless waters. Not, however, that he was to spend much time in the solitude of this pleasant little room, for he had appointed himself Miss Freymuth's champion, and the post during the next few days proved to be rather heavy.

CHAPTER XX. TRUTH COMES TO LIGHT.

On the evening of his arrival he came wandering down the village street, in the late spring twilight. He had heard from his landlady, Mrs. Perry, all about the "Pinehurst ladies" change of circumstances, and the story of Mrs. Raymond Freymuth's disgraceful conduct; and Miss Hermione's spirited independence had lost nothing in the telling.

"Mrs. Blantyre is often there at the Cottage," his landlady told him, "and she says that to see Miss Freymuth bustling about in the kitchen, seeing after the little fiddle-faddles for her mother's dinner—because they can't afford to pay the wages of a good cook—you would think she had been used to domestic affairs all her life. It must be a bit of a trial to a young lady who never knew what it was to soil her hands until that woman turned her out of the house that was hers, if every one had their strict rights. And yet you never hear her make a complaint. I think it's wonderful!"

Mr. Lemaistre was thinking over Mrs. Perry's words as he also came to the conclusion that such conduct was "wonderful." Hermione Freymuth had seemed to him the very perfection of all that was dainty in womankind, and he could hardly reconcile his previous estimation of her with this new suggestion of pots and pans and the bustle of cookery.

When he came to Mulberry-tree Cottage, and looked over the high green hedge, he recognized it by his hostess' description. There was the large tree at the side, with the wicker chairs and table under it; there was the deep, rustic porch, almost smothered now in its wealth of greenery; there was the huge blue bowl of blossoms—Hermione's friends saw that she was kept well supplied with flowers—peeping between the lace curtains at the sitting room window; and there, coming into view around the house corner, was the girl herself, with her black skirts well pinned up, and looking as if she really meant business in her big rush hat, her huge serge apron, and her stout, gardening gloves.

Mr. Lemaistre moved on hastily as soon as he saw her. Because of the great change in her worldly position since he saw her last, he was anxious to show her the most marked courtesy. He would not take her unawares in this unceremonious fashion; he would call upon her on the morrow afternoon in all the martyrdom of patent shoes, kid gloves, and high hat—this last badge of civilization being the acme of misery to him after the more careless headgear he had grown accustomed to during his colonial experiences. But from this martyrdom his kind fate intervened to save him.

Miss Freymuth's attention was attracted at once by the unusual sight of a man staring over the hedge, and recognized him before he had time to get away.

Hermione was unfeignedly glad to see this visitor. She had taken a warm liking to the kindly and refined Frenchman from the first moment of the meeting, and had looked forward with pleasure to the renewal of their acquaintance.

"Oh, pray don't go!" she cried, setting down her watering pot and running to him eagerly. "I am so glad to see you! Surely you would not pass us by?"

"Can you think it?" he asked reproachfully. "I was only fearful of intruding at an unseasonable hour, and with the dust of travel still thick upon me. I should have done myself the honor of calling upon you in due form to-morrow."

"Oh, I don't mind my apron and gloves if you don't!" she assured him. "Come in and be introduced to my mother. Oh never mind all that!" she said, smiling as, with an expostulatory sweep of his hands, he drew her notice to his travel-stained appearance. "She will not know in the least what you have on, unless you draw her attention to it. Besides, it is nearly dark. If you are very alarmed about your coat, you shall sit outside in the garden and talk to her through the window; then she will not notice you. You are not surprised to find me here? Ah, you have heard already from somebody else of what has taken place since you were last here! I have much to say to you. Were you badly burned on that terrible night? Why did you go away without giving me the opportunity of thanking you for your efforts? You saved me from being badly burned, too. But for your quickness, I should have fallen into the very heart of the fire."

"Mademoiselle," he exclaimed, "if you say one word more on that subject, I will go away this moment, and you shall never hear anything more of me!" "What a treat! Come, then, and see my mother!" Mrs. Freymuth was sitting just inside the open window, with Pitches busily building from a new box of "bricks" at her feet. Mr. Lemaistre loved children, and at once entered into the spirit of the boy's pastime. In two minutes he was on the floor with him, quite as absorbed as Pitches himself in the rearing of a Tower of Babel, and quite forgetful of his dusty coat.

As for Pitches, he was in the seventh heaven of delight. It was the first time he had had a man playmate since he lost his father. As the flowers open to the sun, so his keen, little mind opened to the instruction of his new friend, until the good-natured Frenchman was astonished at the quickness of his perception.

"I like you very, very much indeed," the boy assured Mr. Lemaistre, with solemn impressiveness when Bertha brought in the lamp and signified that it was his bedtime. "Will you come again, and tell me some more about balance, and vase figs? I must go now, because Bertha always puts me to bed before she gets Aunt Joan's tray ready; but I shall ask Jeanette to let you come again to-morrow."

"A most fascinating little child," was the Frenchman's verdict, when Pitches had retired. "You must love him very dearly. I remember he was with you, mademoiselle, on that sorrowful day when our poor Ray met with his death. He is a relative, I suppose?" Hermione, standing by the table pulling off her gloves, stopped suddenly, and with a very astonished air looked at Mr. Lemaistre.

"Do you not know who he is?" she asked. "That is most extraordinary? He is poor Ray's son?" "Ray's son?" the man echoed, looking from her to her mother and back again with a stare blank bewildered.

"Yes," replied Mrs. Freymuth, as she, too, drew closer to the table, attracted by his breathless wonderment. "Did you not know? I understood from my daughter that you were an intimate friend of my nephew, Ray. Did you not know that he had a son?"

"Ray's son!" Mr. Lemaistre repeated, as if he were trying to find some possible solution to the two simple words. "But, my dear ladies, how can that be? Our poor Ray had no son!"

CHAPTER XXI. WORTHY OF EACH OTHER

In a silence burdened with the most contradictory and most conflicting emotions, the three people round the table stood looking at each other. Hermione broke the stillness at last.

"But, monsieur," she argued, "the fact faces you. You say that Ray had no son, yet the child is here—acknowledged by my cousin, and mentioned in his will by name as his heir."

"Mademoiselle," replied the Frenchman gravely, "you must believe me in this. On my word as an honest man, when I left him less than a year ago, as I believed, at death's door, your Cousin Raymond was an unmarried man. How, then, can this boy of four or five be the heir to his property?"

"I remember now!" cried Hermione, with a flash of recollection. "You said before that during all the years of your friendship Ray had been true to his promise to me! I might have guessed then that you knew nothing of his first marriage. Perhaps it occurred before or after you knew him."

"I was Raymond Freymuth's closest friend from about eight years ago until last July, when I left him—dying, as I believed—to go down to Sidney upon some law business of the greatest importance. That was the first time we had been separated for more than a few hours during seven years. All that time we ate and drank together, lived and slept in the same shanty, working the same claim, and had the same friends and the same enemies—for to affront one was to affront both of us. Put it to yourselves, then—how was it possible that my chum—the dearest, most steadfast friend that man ever had—should be, unknown to me, a married man?"

As the girl listened, a dull, gray pallor, utterly different from her usual clear paleness, crept over her horror-stricken face. Mr. Lemaistre saw the change, and would have gone to her; but she checked him with a quick gesture.

"Answer me carefully," Hermione said—and at the sound of the harsh, strained voice, so unlike her daughter's, Mrs. Freymuth turned and looked at her in startled wonder. "That dying man whom you left up at the gold fields, when you went down to Sidney last July, was my other cousin Leopold—not Raymond Freymuth."

"Ah, no! I was coming to that. It was in my mind, as I made my way here to-day, to ask you about that other cousin, Leopold. I first met him—at the time I am speaking of—in Sidney, at the time you mention. I heard somebody address him by name, and I ventured to ask him if he had any relatives in the country. You see, my mind was so full of my poor Ray, whom I had left behind, and I thought—Mademoiselle!"

"This time the girl did not stop him when he went to her assistance. She allowed him to put her into a chair, where she sat with a strained, dazed look upon her white face, while he procured her mother's smelling salts. But the grip at her heart loosened presently, and then speech and action returned before the power to control them did, and she broke out into hysterical ejaculations, while the tears ran down her still blanched cheeks.

"It was instinct that held me back!" she exclaimed. "My eyes played me false, but my heart kept me true! Oh, Leo, how could you play such a cruel deception on me? Had you not already worked enough harm, that you should try to rob us of the only thing left to us—our truth and constancy to each other? The dreadful infamy of it all! To try to rob the dead! The dead? Yes; better so, my darling, than the other way, for I can at least love your memory now. Before, it was all a torment and a bewilderment and a mystery to me. Now I know and understand all the dreadful, past—the dreadful, dreadful past! It was Ray who died up at the gold fields, and Leo who came home to us in his place! Do you think I am going crazy, mother?" she continued, more quietly, as she grew a little calmer. "Can't you see, dear, what has distracted me like this? Don't you see for yourself that it was not Ray at all who came to us last September? It was Leo! Our poor, misguided, weak-minded Leo! You can scarcely believe it, mother—can you? It seems incredible! So it is! Still, it is the truth. I remember now," she proceeded, turning again toward Mr. Lemaistre, who stood close by watching her with quiet sympathy; "I believe it was I myself who first put the idea into his head to personate Ray. I heard somebody suggest that he was Ray—before I met him at all, you understand—and the mad hope once in my mind, I could think of nothing else. And then, when I did see him, there was something in his smile which took me back at once to the long, long ago, when we were all of us, young together. Can't you understand how easy it was for me to jump to the conclusion that it really was Ray? At any rate, I greeted him by that name, and he did not set me right," she went on, "although I noticed his surprise and confusion. Still there were a thousand ways of accounting for that, I thought. Now I know what it all meant. Mother, how thankful I am I was firm in my refusal to marry him! If I had persuaded myself into it regardless of my own feelings, I think this discovery would have driven me mad. Ray, my darling, now I can at least cherish your memory in my heart without disturbing thoughts of these last few months to weaken it."

No one spoke for a moment, for there was something in the girl's rapt face which filled the other two with a feeling that was almost reverence.

"So said the Frenchman mournfully, "Ray did die after I left him at Skinner's Flat! Poor fellow—died there before being set right in the eyes of the world! My poor old friend!" Hermione smiled up at him in sorrowful gratitude.

"And you were his chosen companion," she sighed softly—"almost his brother! Now that the mystery of your friendship is cleared away, how I shall like to hear you talk of him! Now I understand much that has puzzled me." She stopped herself suddenly, with a look of startled enlightenment. "Monsieur," she proceeded, after a while, "do you remember that afternoon in Darmouth, when you and I stood in the sunshine at the door of the hotel at the time Leo drove up? Though the sun was in our eyes, he had his back to it, and could see us plainly. He must have recognized you before you noticed him, and that was why he flogged the horse and drove off in that wild manner."

"Yes—there is little doubt of it," replied the Frenchman musingly. "And then, if you remember, I was detained by your indisposition; so that I never saw him after all!" "This seems almost too wonderful to be true," said Mrs. Freymuth, finding her voice at last. "But, 'Mione, will you tell me one thing my dear? If this should turn out to be as you believe, surely you are still the owner of Pinehurst, and that odiously, vulgar woman has not a shadow of a claim upon your late uncle's property? You know, Mr. Lemaistre"—turning to him—"my brother-in-law, never mentioned his other nephew, this Leopold, in his will at all. After Ray, the property was bequeathed to Hermione, and at her death to another branch of the family altogether. Surely Leopold's widow has no claim?"

"Claim? Certainly not! Not the most remote!" exclaimed Mr. Lemaistre excitedly.

"Then we shall be able to compel her to give up Pinehurst?" queried the old lady.

"Ah, madame, it is one thing to know that villainy has been perpetrated, but quite another to prove it in a court of law! If I had only seen the body that night, I should have discovered the imposture in a moment. Do you think it is possible, that the wife knew of the wickedness, and took steps to prevent my getting a glimpse of the unfortunate man?"

"No, no!" cried Hermione, shocked at the suggestion. "She is a cruel, unfeeling, hard-hearted woman; but she would not do such a cruel thing as that."

"She was playing for high stakes, you know, mademoiselle," the Frenchman reminded her; "and there is no knowing the lengths to which a desperate woman will go!"

But Miss Freymuth snook her head decisively. She could not accept the theory for a moment.

"You think she was not acquainted with her husband's secret, perhaps?" suggested Mr. Lemaistre.

"That is my idea precisely," the girl declared. "He told her his possession of Pinehurst was threatened in some way—she acknowledged as much to me—but she had no conception of the truth, I feel sure. Why, she was determined upon getting an interview with you, monsieur! Now, had she known the truth, and wanted to conceal it, you would have been the last person in the world she would have wished to see!"

"But, 'Mione, my dear," murmured Mrs. Freymuth plaintively, "you are not going to sit down quietly and leave her in possession are you?"

Hermione smiled a little as she said: "Mother, I believe you are thirsting for revenge on Ada."

"I'm afraid I am, just a tiny bit," the old lady admitted. "It's very unchristianlike, I know, but when she had the power in her hands, she was so unnecessarily cruel to us that I do not feel that I can forgive her just yet. 'Mione, I know who will help us in this matter! Mr. Ballantyne! You know what the rector said, that he believed the squire would like a good stand-up fight with her."

"And that is just why I don't think we should go to him, mother," replied Hermione. "He would be all for browbeating and bullying Ada. I'm not a hypocrite enough to pretend that I'm fond of her; still I'm not anxious to see her harshly treated over this matter. There is no need to humiliate her as she did us—I should not like to do it. I think our first step must be to lay the whole matter before some good, sound lawyer, who is a stranger to us, and take his advice upon it."

"Then I know the man," remarked Mr. Lemaistre. "Almost the last thing our poor Ray said to me when I was bidding him 'Adieu'—and he was so weak that I had to bend close over him to hear—was to be sure to go to Messrs. Foljambé, of Lincoln Inn Fields, if there was any difficulty about proving my claim to my mother's English property. As it happened there was none, so I did not need to use the address, but it will be serviceable now. He said they were one of the best known firms for that kind of work in England. My mother was an Englishwoman, Mrs. Freymuth. Now will it be agreeable to you that I should go to these people to-morrow and lay the whole matter before them?"

"But the trouble, monsieur!" urged Hermione. "You have only just come down from London."

"My dear lady, do you forget our bargain?" he asked respectfully. "You promised to accept me as a friend. Well, then, is friendship a mere word—an empty sound with out meaning? If you knew how proud I am to be of the least service to you, you would not begrudge me this pleasure."

This was uttered with such hearty good will that it was impossible to doubt his sincerity for a moment, and Miss Freymuth held out her hand gratefully to him.

The moon was high in the steely twilight of the June night; rsky before he rose to leave; for there had been numerous details to discuss and many family matters to explain in view of his early start in the morning for Messrs. Foljambé's.

Hermione went with him to the gate to bid him "Good night." "I don't think we have forgotten anything, monsieur," she said. "If we have, you will please telegraph. How quiet and peaceful the night is! Only a quarter past ten, and the little world of Northcliffe is apparently asleep! The silence and the stillness of nighttime strikes one more when one is among the houses. I never noticed the stillness at Pinehurst—I suppose because there were no life and bustle in the daytime to contrast it with."

"You regret Pinehurst?" he asked. "Yes—constantly," Hermione replied—"though, mind you, I would not change our present quiet life to go back and live with my cousin's widow."

They stood by the gate, Miss Freymuth gazing at the fleecy little clouds scudding across the moon, and he watching her.

"Do you know, monsieur," she remarked, a tender softness beaming in her brown eyes, "I feel much more at rest since our discovery to-night. I was always reproaching myself previously for what I imagined was my own faithlessness; now I am at peace on that point at least, and I can console myself with the thought of a meeting—some day—with my faithful Ray."

"You must not dwell on that too much, mademoiselle," he told her gently. "If you encourage that idea, it will lead you in the end to wish for death."

"Yes," she answered, in a dull tone. "But your mother, and the little boy?"

"True!" Hermione cried. "It is selfishness only to think of what I should like best myself. But love is a selfish thing, I believe. It makes us forget that there is any one else in the world but ourselves."

"Mademoiselle, I should like very much to give you a message now from our dear friend," said Mr. Lemaistre.

"A message? From Ray to me?" she queried, with her yearning, pathetic eyes fixed upon his face.

"It was when I was bidding him 'good-by' that time. He knew that my business would ultimately bring me to England, and realized also how poor was his chance of recovery. 'You are sure to know how things are with me one way or the other before you start,' he said. 'If this job finishes me off, I want you to promise me that you will find out my cousin when you get to England, and tell her I was as true to her as I feel that she was to me.' It was strange, mademoiselle, continued the Frenchman, 'that he should never have had one doubtful thought of you. 'Explain to her what an unfortunate wretch I've always been,' he told me—how it has been nothing but cruel grinding poverty that has kept me silent all these years—how I felt that if I wrote to her it might seem as if I considered I had a claim upon her. Tell her that in my heart I always knew she would not think of any other man while I lived—I know her faithful nature too well—but that, while she was constant of her own free will, the responsibility did not seem to rest so much with me as it would have done had I taken steps to keep her to her word. Tell her not to let the memory of a poor wretch who has always had luck dead against him spoil the whole of her life. I should like to know that she felt a bit sorry for me, and it would be some gratification to think that she would always remember me with a touch of pity for my undeserved misfortunes. But beg of her, for my sake, to be happy. Tell her to fight against her sorrow for me, and to marry some good fellow who will make her a considerate, generous husband, even though he will not love her with the love her unfortunate cousin felt for her.'"

Mr. Lemaistre paused, for Hermione was crying softly. By the aid of the moonlight, he saw the tears—which she made no attempt to wipe away— coursing down her cheeks. It seemed to him that she did not know she was weeping. "I always thought that was his reason for not writing," she said, in a voice so full of tenderness that the words were like a farwell to the dead. "He left me free to forget him if I could. But that I should never do! No man will ever be to me what he was. And he was poor, you say—very poor?"

"Sometimes we have lived on credit for the best part of a week at a stretch, mademoiselle," exclaimed the Frenchman, "doing with one meal a day because we were afraid to try the storekeeper's generosity too far, not knowing how long we might have to depend on it. We were put to strange shifts sometimes. Once we had been on the road all day without any food at all. At night we reached a little township, after the places were all closed, and crept into a deserted shanty to sleep. I had a touch of fever that night, and in the morning was a little light-headed. Well Ray boarded up the broken doorway and window so that I should not get away, and went round the place, begging for a job; but nobody had any work to give him. By the time he'd finished he felt a little faint himself, and stopped a minute or two in the shadow of a building to pull himself together. While he stood there wondering what he should do next, two men came out of the door near him, talking eagerly, as if they were in some difficulty. As they passed one offered Ray a little paper leaflet. It was a bill of the play for that night, and the wooden building he had been leaning against was the theater-Quick as thought, he ran after the men and asked them if they wanted any supernumeraries. They looked at him curiously, and told him they didn't want anybody of that class; but they required someone to play the part of Brutus—if he could manage that for them for that night. They were only quizzing him; but he told them that, if they could manage a change of parts, he thought he could stumble through Caesar for them, with a little prompting, as he had played it as an undergraduate not so many years previously. They took my friend at his word," continued Mr. Lemaistre, "went back at once with him, changed the parts of some of the members of the company, and had a rehearsal at once. Half way through it they had to stop and fetch Ray some food, and wait till he ate it, for he began to stagger about from sheer weakness. There is nothing extraordinary about such a thing out in back blocks, and the actors, I expect, saw how things were at once. Well, when the rehearsal was over, the manager offered him a fortnight's engagement for four pounds a week. Ray knew as much about acting as I do; but without wasting time, he asked the 'boss' to make out the engagement in due form and sign his name to it. This paper my chum took to the storekeeper and mortgaged for some food and a bottle of medicine for me, then came home, nursed, dosed, and fed me in the intervals of his study, and brought me round splendidly by the end of the fortnight. The actors would have had him stay with them, for he became quite a favorite, but Ray did not like the life. It was only his anxiety for me that had caused him to accept the engagement at all. As soon as I was about, we were off again, on the everlasting hunt for gold."

"It was like him!" murmured Hermione. "Thank you for telling me! Ah, should I not be a heartless woman if I were not proud of the faithful love of such a man?"

"Mademoiselle"—Mr. Lemaistre raised his hat and stood bareheaded as he took his leave—"I have only one thing to say to you—you were worthy of each other. Good night!"

MUST NOT KILL MORE THAN 100 DUCKS A YEAR

The following amendment to the Ontario Fisheries Act will interest local sportsmen:

1 Section 14 of The Ontario Game and Fisheries Act is amended by adding thereto the following subsection:

(4) No person shall take or kill more than 100 wild ducks in any one year.

2 The Ontario Game and Fisheries Act is amended by adding thereto the following section:

40a No person shall sell or offer for sale, or purchase, or enter into any agreement to sell or purchase any wild duck at any time, and no person shall ship or cause to be shipped by any means of transportation any wild duck to be sold either within or without this province.

Mr. John Leith has sold his farm and whole outfit to his son, Ernest, who takes possession at once. Mr. Leith has been forty years on this farm, which is considered one of the best, if not the best, hundred acres in Cavan. Mr. and Mrs. Leith have well earned their day of "relaxation from their hard labor," and we shall be glad to have them join us in Millbrook as their future home.—Millbrook Reporter.

MOTHERS!

What if this were your son?

An anxious, grief-stricken mother appealed to us recently. She wrote: "I have a son fifteen years of age who has tuberculosis in one lung. I have not the means to give him the care he should have. The doctors say that with proper care and attention there is every hope that he might fully recover. I would be very thankful if he could be admitted to the Muskoka Free Hospital if possible."

Suppose that your son or your daughter were a consumptive. Suppose that he or she were pale and wasted and shaken by a hacking, strength-sapping cough. Suppose that you hadn't the money to provide the badly-needed medicine, nourishment, and skilled medical treatment. Think what a blessed relief it would be to you to know that the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives stands ready to help!

Contributions to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives will be gratefully acknowledged by W. J. Gage, Chairman, Executive Committee, 84 Spadina Avenue, or R. Dunbar, Secretary-Treasurer, 347 King Street West, Toronto.

ONCE UPON A TIME

The cost of living was quite low,
Once upon a time.
We used to have a little dough,
Once upon a time.
We can recall it didn't take
A dollar bill to buy a steak;
We didn't spend all we could make,
Once upon a time.

The women all dressed sensibly,
Once upon a time.
They were as modest as could be,
Once upon a time.
They didn't wear the low-necked gown

When walking on the streets downtown,
And skirts so tight they couldn't sit down,
Once upon a time.

The people danced with ease and grace,
Once upon a time.
They didn't scramble round the place
Once upon a time.

They danced in manner meant to please,
Not on their elbows and their knees
They turned no handsprings in the breeze,
Once upon a time.

Hysteria was not a fad,
Once upon a time.
The folks were not sensation mad,
Once upon a time.

They were quite strong on sanity.
And it is very plain to see Things are not what they used to be
Once upon a time.

SPORTING SKITS

BASEBALL

There was quite a large attendance at the organization meeting of the Ontario Baseball Club, Wednesday evening, April 1st, and the following officers were elected:—

President—J. A. Aisthorpe.
1st Vice President—W. Marvin.
2nd Vice President—George Gamble.
Sec.-Treas.—V. Wakely.
Manager—H. Foote.
Delegates to league meeting—V. Wakely and H. Foote.

On Friday evening a meeting of baseball enthusiasts was held in the Beaver's club room for the purpose of organizing the Club for the coming season. The following officers were elected:—

Hon. President—H. Bailey.
President—Wm. Giddy.
Vice President—C. Rowden.
Sec'y.—Harvey Smith.
Manager—Moss M. Hewson.
Trainer—A. Rouse.
Delegates—C. Rowden and Moss Hewson.

The Beavers, under the careful management and eagle eye of Moss Melville Hewson, will gnaw through the barricade of their opponents. Under the management of Moss, the Beavers won the championship in the town league last season. This year they have been successful in securing the services of Trainer Rouse, who is an all-round athlete, and his genial-taking way will do much to hold the boys together.

Grand Fathers Routley and Foglar whose locks have become gray pondering over this great national game, have kindly consented to furnish all professional advice free for the asking, and with Bill Smith in the pitcher's box, the blinkers of all comers will need to be well up in astronomical affairs.

The Beavers are now rounding into shape and will make baseball this season a game worth while.

DEFINITION OF A GRAFTER

We hear so much of Graft, not only in Canada, but other countries, that we publish a good definition of what it means:—

"A Grafter is an individual who wishes to place in his inside pocket some concrete evidence that the municipal or political administration which he supports is the most progressive and the best that has ever been entrusted with the reins of government."

APPEAL IS WON

Judgment, in favor of the defendant Clayton, was delivered by Judge Huycke at Division Court Friday afternoon in the appeal of Herbert Clayton, manager of the Royal theatre, Peterboro, who appealed the finding of Magistrate Dumble, who imposed a fine of $100, for allowing one or more boys under the age of fifteen unaccompanied by adults to enter his theatre.

The evidence produced by the defense showed that Clayton was not the proprietor, and that his wife, Mrs Clayton, was the one in whose name the license was made out. The Municipal license was made out in Clayton's name, but the Provincial license is in her name.

Capt and Mrs Jos Philp were at Lakeport Sunday, attending the funeral of the late Capt Jas Redfean.

Money Letters

in "Dead Office"

Ottawa, March 31.—Thousands of letters are lying in the dead letter offices in Ottawa, Toronto, and other towns and cities that contain money. That is the reason why they are in the dead office. It is contrary to a regulation recently put in force to send money through the mail, unless by postal order, cheque, or in a registered envelope. The order was issued to stop the sending of money through the mails, and the idea was to remove temptation as far as possible from postal employees.

Many retail houses do a good deal of rural business in this way. Many of their customers enclose coins in envelopes and send them through the post to retail houses. There is no penalty attached to the sending of money through the mails, but the sending of it is contrary to the regulations, and unregistered letters, which are being found to contain money have been sent to the dead letter offices.

It is not expected that the order will remain long in force. Strong representations against it have been made to the postmaster-general.

LINDSAY TO HAVE

POLICE INVESTIGATION

Police investigations are becoming quite fashionable. Since the recent burglaries in Lindsay, the Council of that town has decided upon an investigation in police affairs. The Post says:—

"Many citizens were very outspoken this morning in their criticism of the police in not becoming more active in trying to round up the burglars. It is claimed that no information was sent out to outlying points, warning the police to be on the lookout, and that no word was sent to Peterboro. The only telegraphic communication, it is said, Chief Chilton had with Peterboro was when he answered Governor Balfour's message."

SEVEN HUNDRED

CARS OF GRAIN

Seven hundred cars of grain are stored in the Grand Trunk elevator at Midland yet, and an effort will be made to have it removed and shipped to the east before the opening of the season of navigation.

It is expected that navigation will commence during the last week in April and the Grand Trunk Railway Company is anxious to get the elevators at Midland cleared, to receive the grain that will be brought by water. The wheat at present in store in Midland is all to be taken to Montreal.

SEVERAL HUNDRED

CASES OF MUMPS

Society and other functions have to take second place in the swell affairs and Mumps is leading with a big margin in Peterboro.

The disease is not confined to children, as there are many adults who have contracted this painful affliction. Dr McPherson is not able to give the exact number of cases in the city, but he says that perhaps there are several hundred.

In some instances the victims have caught cold and the results have been very disastrous. There are still many vacant seats at the Normal School. But there is very little other infectious disease in the city.

FEEL YOUNG

It is said that "a woman is as old as she looks, and a man as old as he feels." I know young men of thirty who are soured, peevish old men, cross to every living thing, and of whom all children are shy; and I know old men of eighty, to whom the dogs, horses and children run, and who play tag with the children.

The man who keeps his heart young and tender—in touch with all nature, with a lively, loving interest in all—is perpetually young, though he be 100 years old. As one man told another who criticised him for owning a horse merely for pleasant drives: "When I'm dead I expect to be dead a long time and I'm going to enjoy life decently and within my means while I'm here and able to do so."

Let us all live and laugh and frolic with the children while we may. Troubles are largely diminished and labor made easier if we cheer our way and that of others with joy and song. Some poet has said: "God loves the man who makes us laugh, so let us all be jolly; but let it be the harmless jollity that does not wound another, nor bring discomfort or sorrow to any bird or beast."

THE HOLY CITY

The sacred cantata, "The Holy City," by Alfred R. Gaul, will be given in the Methodist Church on Good Friday evening, April 10th. The large choir of sixty voices will be augmented by Mrs. Allen, of Belleville; Miss H. Martin, of Bowmanville, and Mr. S. Dixon, of Dundas. This concert promises to be a rare musical treat, and should not be missed by lovers of good music.

OBITUARY.

REV. W. A. V. E. PATTYSON.

Rev. W. A. V. E. Pattysen, formerly a member of the Methodist Bay of Quinte conference and a gentleman well-known at Port Hope, was stationed in the Canton Circuit in 1882, died at his late home at Galeston, Pa., on Wednesday, March 25th, 1914. Since leaving Canada, in 1890, Mr Pattysen held important charges in New York and Pennsylvania. The following from "The Orleans American" of Albion, N. Y., will show in what esteem he was held over there.

Mr Pattysen was born in Newboro, Ontario, Canada, September 8, 1859, his parents being Rev William Pattysen and wife, Mrs Sarah Pattysen, formerly Miss Sarah McDowell. He came from a long and honored line of Methodist preachers who helped to build up the cause of religion in Canada and Ireland.

At the age of 16 he experienced a change of heart in respect to religion and at the early age of 18 was licensed to preach. The following year, 1879, he was admitted on trial in the Toronto Conference of the Methodist Church of Canada, and from that time served the following charges in Canada: Omeamee, Lindsay, Markham, Collingwood, Davenport and Penetanguishene. He was at that time earnestly solicited to remove to the United States which he did, coming to the pastorate of the Central Church, North Tonawanda, where he served three years. Afterwards he preached eight years at Seneca street church, Buffalo, establishing a record for a long pastorate at that time. After this he served at Grace Church, Buffalo, the Mother of Buffalo Methodism, Albion, N. Y., Webster, N. Y., going from the last place to Galeston, in 1910, where he had served about three years and a half.

Wherever Mr Pattysen has gone his pastorates have been marked, with great popularity and success, while his power as a pulpit orator and strong evangelistic preacher has been maintained on all his charges.

He was a man of great platform ability. As a speaker to a large mass of people he had few equals while the beauty of his diction—the melodious flow of his language and power of his thought made him a speaker and preacher much in demand.

He had a musical voice. He was a singer of great ability and his fine orotund voice was pleasing to listen to.

His character was peculiarly symmetrical and well rounded. He was even tempered and affable.

There mourns his departure a beloved wife, Mrs Pattysen, two sons, Harry A Pattysen, of Detroit, Ralph Pattysen, and a daughter, Miss Edna M Pattysen.

Mrs (Rev) M R Chapman, of Corning, is a sister of Mrs Pattysen.

Probably his last words, "He leath me beside the still waters," symbolized his great triumph.

The funeral service was in charge of the masons and was held in the Galeston, M E Church on Friday, at 12 o'clock noon. Rev L L Rogers, of Canisteo, District Superintendent, preaching the sermon. Interment was made in Mt Albion cemetery, Albion, N. Y.

His work among men was remarkable as seen in the fact that he held a prominent place in the fraternities of Masons and Odd Fellows, having been at one time Grand Chaplain of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of New York State.

Along side of the order features of his life was his strong sense of wit and humor. The pleasant side of his life was always seen.

PROFANITY AS CRUELTY

The finer feelings of horses must not be hurt by blasphemous and profane words, even if the animals do give their driver great provocation, according to a ruling handed down recently in Huntington, West Virginia, by Magistrate Null in the case of A. J. West, who was charged with swearing at his horse when the animal balked in the middle of the car track. To make his ruling more effective Magistrate Null tacked a fine of $5 and costs on the defendant.

West said that his horse was used to hearing profane language and didn't understand any other method of persuasion. Magistrate Null, however, was adamant and refused to remit the fine or the costs. He declared that he is going to make a special effort hereafter to locate all men who swear at their horses and when he does so he will bring them into court, no matter what their social standing may be. When he gets them into court, the magistrate declares, he will fine them to the limit of the law.

A WOMAN'S WAY

"To begin with, what is your age, madam?" was the lawyer's question. "My own" she answered, promptly.

"I understand that, madam; I mean, how old are you?"

"I am not old, sir," with indignation.

"I beg your pardon madam. I mean, how many years have you passed?"

"None; the years have passed me."

"How many of them have passed you?"

"All. I never heard of them stopping."

"Madam, you must answer my question. I want to know your age."

"I don't know that the acquaintance is desired by the other side."

"I don't see why you insist upon refusing to answer my question," said the lawyer, coaxingly. I am sure I would tell you how old I was if I were asked."

"But nobody would ask you, for everybody knows that you are old enough to know better than to be asking a woman her age."

And the lawyer passed on to the next question.

SOLAR PHENOMENON.

Three different people, in different parts of South Berwick, Me., report that they witnessed a peculiar solar phenomenon lately. At first the sun seemed to be revolving rapidly like a pinwheel, and then it reversed the direction of its motion, at the same time shooting out varied colored beams of light. The whole was visible for about five minutes.

BIG ROADS SCHEME

Highways Board Recommends Establishment of Department.

WOULD SPEND $30,000,000

Expenditure of Sum Would Extend Over Fifteen Years and Money Would Be Administered by Minister and an Honorary Advisory Board Says Report in Legislature.

TORONTO, April 8.—The program of the Highways Commission was laid on the table of the Legislature by Hon. Dr. Reaume yesterday. In it appears the outline of a plan by which the entire road system of old Ontario will be completely reorganized.

The outstanding proposal of the whole is a 30-million-dollar expenditure on Ontario market and trunk roads, the same to take place in the next fifteen years, and contributed to by cities and motorists, with a reorganized department under a Minister and deputy and an unpaid advisory commission of three. The capital sum is to be raised by a bond issue, the interest and sinking fund outlays bringing the annual expenditure on permanent highways at the close of fifteen years to $2,500,000, at the rate of $1 per head of population.

The immediate proposals of the commission are:

1. Counties now, under the Highway Act should be encouraged to continue road work this summer, and the regulations should be made elastic to allow other counties to begin work and thereby take advantage of the aid thereunder.
2. There should be created a sufficient organization to carry on this summer the following investigations:
 - (a) A motor survey of principal roads to determine their physical condition.
 - (b) A traffic census to determine the present road needs of the province.
 - (c) An investigation of main township road conditions.
 - (d) An investigation of the Hamilton-Toronto and Ottawa-St. Lawrence roads, obtaining plans and specifications of same.
 - (e) An investigation designed to outline a plan of market roads for counties not now operating under the Highway Act.
 - (f) A determination of suburban areas about principal centres.

The commissioners divide the provincial highways into two classes, county or market roads subdivided into suburban, interurban and rural and township roads. Suburban roads lie adjacent to the city in an area to be fixed by the province, and are to be maintained by trustee boards, comprising representatives of city and county. The contribution of cities should be 30 per cent. on construction and 30-1-3 per cent. towards maintenance. Remaining construction charges would be divided into 30 per cent. for county and 40 per cent. for province, the last including motor fees. If the cost of construction exceeds $1,000 per mile, the excess would be raised by a local improvement tax.

Interurban roads, or large traveled highways between cities, would have costs apportioned at 33-1-3 per cent. to county and remainder to province, one-half of latter coming from motor fees. In maintenance, 60 per cent. would rest on county and 40 per cent. on province, but such roads as Toronto-Hamilton road would be supported largely by cities.

Rural market roads would remain under control of county councils or of permanent commission appointed by them, construction and maintenance charges alike devolving 60 per cent. on county and 40 per cent. on province. On township roads it is suggested that Ontario spend $250,000 annually for three years, apportioning $50,000 on basis of assessment, $50,000 on basis of population and $150,000 on area on condition that every township spend $4 for every $1 by the Government, that proper drainage be installed, that roads be dragged, that statute labor be abolished or commuted, and that a proper road organization be established. The commission wants to bring the 42,500 miles of township roads to a high standard and to fit 7,500 county road mileage to bear the heavy demands of traffic.

To meet the scheme an expenditure of thirty millions is needed, and the province and counties would advance twelve millions apiece with cities six millions, this occurring over a 15-year period.

The revenue of the province would be supplemented by increased motor taxation fixed according to the ruling of the commission on horse-power for automobiles and per ton in case of trucks.

The selection of an advisory commission of three public-spirited men, to act as an unpaid board, co-operating with the Deputy Minister of Roads, is considered a solution of the provincial organization question.

May Make Armories "Dry."

OTTAWA, April 8.—To further the cause of temperance amongst the rank and file of the militia, the Hon. Col. Hughes said yesterday that he was seriously thinking of issuing an order forbidding the sale or use of intoxicating liquor in the drill halls throughout the Dominion.

"There are several drill halls in which the officers do not allow liquor to be used or sold, but as I have said, we are seriously thinking of closing it out of all the drill halls," said the Minister.

A drill hall order would banish liquor from the officers' and sergeants' mess in a number of places.

BANDITS ROB BANK.

Two Desperadoes at New Hazelton, B.C., Killed; Four Escape.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 8.—A branch of the Union Bank of Canada at New Hazelton was held up yesterday morning.

Two bandits were killed in a battle yesterday morning in a battle between the robbers and a big posse of citizens. Four others have got away, though the desultory firing in the long-distance fight was still to be heard last night. The quartette secured $1,100 in cash. The bank had opened for business only a few minutes when the robbery was pulled off. Two men, armed with rifles, walked up the road, two others appeared in the bush at the rear of the bank, while the last two came from another direction. The first two jumped inside the door of the bank, and with rifles raised, called out "Hands up!"

The other four appeared almost at the same instant, taking up positions outside the bank. The first two robbed a customer of a roll of bills; he was depositing and as they backed out the clerks started firing.

The shooting alarmed the town, and several cowboys who happened to be in a hardware store, got their guns into play at once. They were backed up by citizens, and within a few moments, the fusillade was general.

Shooting from cover, the posse did such effective work that two of the robbers fell dead in their tracks as they raced along the road towards the bush. The posse gave pursuit and chase is still in progress.

There have been several robberies in the province in the last few months.

MURDER IS REVEALED.

Missing Man's Body Found Near Home—Shot For His Money?

MIDLAND, April 8.—Robt. Hayde, a grocer of Tomahawk Point, two miles north of Honey Harbor, was murdered on or about the night of Friday, March 27. His body was found on Monday night, buried in a manure heap near the stable of his home. There was a shot wound in the back of his neck, whether inflicted by a gun or a rifle is not known, but the weapon had been fired close enough to the neck to singe the hair. Three men, who were aiding in the search for Hayde, which had been maintained since his disappearance on March 27, found the body.

Hayde was a bachelor, about fifty years of age, and lived alone. A sister resides here. On the day he disappeared he was for a short time in Midland. For some days search was made for him in the channels among the surrounding islands, as it was feared he might have dropped through a hole in the ice and been drowned. Later some people advanced the idea that he had been murdered for his money, of which he generally carried a considerable sum on his person. This fear has now been realized.

The men who found the body were standing on the manure heap discussing what further steps should be taken in the search when they noticed an unusual conformation in the pile and made their search.

ASQUITH IS SAFE.

There Is Now No Likelihood of a Contest In East Fife.

LONDON, April 8.—Unless some surprise should appear at the eleventh hour, Premier Asquith will today, for the ninth consecutive time, be returned to this time unopposed, to represent East Fife. This follows upon the decision of the Unionist executive at Cupar yesterday, when they announced that, in deference to the wishes of delegates, Col. Sprot agreed not to contest the seat. It would be entirely unfair to blame the Unionist headquarters in London, or, indeed, the local executive, for hesitating to extend the Premier the courtesy of an uncontested election. Col. Sprot seems to have been almost alone among the executive in failing to appreciate the wisdom of the step taken by the Premier in going to the War Office.

LESS THAN HALF VOTED.

First Female Suffrage Contest In Chicago Was Tame.

CHICAGO, April 8.—"Bath House" John Coughlin was re-elected alderman in Chicago's First Ward yesterday by a plurality over Miss Marion Drake of nearly 4,000 votes. He received twice as many women votes as Miss Drake, the Progressive candidate. His plurality alone exceeded the total women registrations of the ward. All nine women candidates for aldermen in Chicago were defeated. Less than 100,000 of the 217,458 registered women went to the polls. That's the story of the first trial of women suffrage in Chicago.

Royal Society Members.

OTTAWA, April 8.—New members of the Royal Society of Canada elected Monday by the council are: Principal Dr. Peterson, of McGill University; Prof. Mavor, of the University of Toronto; Prof. Francis Barclay Allan, University of Toronto; Dr. T. G. Roddick, Montreal; Hon. Dr. Ernest Choquette, M.L.C., Quebec; and Prof. Edouard Montpetit, of Laval University, Montreal. There was a tie vote between Hector Garneau, of Montreal, and Eugene Rouillard, of Quebec.

Dynamite Ship Wrecked.

NEW YORK, April 8.—A cable from Havana says: Loaded with coal and dynamite, the British steamer ship Crocyon is pounding to pieces on the rocks of Baruda Island, in the West Indies, with 27 men on board and several wrecking tugs half a mile away, afraid to venture to her assistance.

BODIES REACH PORT

St. John's, Nfld., Is a City of Mourning After Tragedy.

FATHER AND SON TOGETHER

Woman Comes Upon Bodies of Her Husband and Her Boy Clinging to Each Other — One Sliced Off Hand to Escape Agony of Frost-Bite — Most of the Survivors Are Maimed.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 6. — In every church yesterday the disaster which overtook the Newfoundland's men on the ice was the theme of the sermon. Messages of sympathy from the King and the Canadian Premier were read and were gratefully received.

By noon all but five of the sixty-nine bodies of the Newfoundland's hunters, brought in Saturday by the Bellaventure, had been identified. These were shipped on a special train last night to Bonaville, where most of the victims lived.

Attendees at the Grenfell Institute, which was turned into a morgue, said that the scenes accompanying the identification of the bodies were almost beyond endurance.

One woman found two bodies clasped so tightly in death that they could not be separated. They were her husband and son. The lad was wrapped in his father's arms as if the man had been trying to shield him from the pitiless cold.

The hand of another dead man was missing. One of the survivors, who had lain helpless near the body for nearly forty-eight hours, said that his comrade, unable to stand the agony of frost bite, had sliced off his hand with his seaman's knife.

A gray-haired mother, supported by her two daughters, passed down the long rows looking for her sons. Attention was suddenly drawn to them when the woman fell to the floor in a faint. They had found not only the four sons and brothers, but two cousins, among the dead.

Of the thirty survivors in the hospital none is expected to die, but the majority will never be fit for active service again. Three lost both hands and both feet. Five lost both feet. Eight others lost a foot and 11 will lose a hand or fingers. The others will bear scars for life.

Some of the survivors said they sought shelter from the Arctic gale behind the bodies of dead shipmates, but in all the delirium of the two days and nights of exposure, the bodies of the dead were left inviolate. Each man of the 150 endured his lot with firm patience, and each one, the dead as well as the living, was found with his full equipment of clothes, boots and sealing gear intact.

By Tuesday, when special memorial services will be held, if the Southern Cross fails to appear, the families of her 173 men must be provided for as well as those of the Newfoundland's dead and crippled.

Owing to the absence of Gov. Davidson and Premier Morris, the acting Premier, Mr. Bennett, directed the work of caring for the dead and injured. Every physician and nurse in the city volunteered for service. The new Grenfell Institute was turned into a morgue.

The disaster which overtook the Newfoundland's hunters was unavoidable, according to Capt. Randall of the Bellaventure. Tuesday dawned somewhat overcast, but with no hint of blizzard conditions, he said, so that it was quite permissible to put men on the ice after seals. Four ships were within sight of him, the Newfoundland, Stephano, Florizel and Bonaventure. These had a total of a thousand men on the ice.

The storm broke with typical Arctic suddenness. The hunters from the Bonaventure and the Florizel, were fortunate enough to reach their ships safely. The Stephano's men, being nearer the Florizel than their own vessel, hurried on board her. The Stephano meanwhile steamed towards the spot where her crew had been seen before the snow shut in. This took her away from the Newfoundland's group, who were far from their own ship. As soon as the Stephano was notified by the Florizel's wireless of the safety of her own men, she headed back into the storm to pick up the Newfoundland's hunters.

It was impossible to see a ship's length ahead into the snow curtain, and when the Stephano's captain thought he was within a mile of the stranded hunters he lay too and kept his whistle going in the hope that they might be guided towards him.

As hours passed and not a man reported he concluded all had reached their own ships. But the Newfoundland had no wireless and all that day and all Wednesday the fleet remained in ignorance of the fate of the 150 men marooned on the ice.

On Thursday the weather cleared and the Bellaventure was making ready to start her men after seals again, when a lookout reported men on the ice. Captain Randall immediately ordered every available man from the ship to the rescue. The main party of castaways were four miles away, over a broken field of ice. The Bellaventure was driven toward them with all possible speed, but so bad were the ice conditions that it required nine hours to cover the four miles.

In the meantime his men had reached the castaways. Only a few of the hardest were conscious and able to help themselves. Many were in a stupor. Some were raving, others had been stricken with ice blindness. Many bodies were found frozen so fast in the ice that pickaxes were necessary to chop them out. Two of the survivors were nearly mad from their own sufferings and from grief. Each had watched a brother die in his arms.

VELASCO MAKES STAND.

Federal General Sain To Be Trapped By Hernandez.

TORREON, Mexico, April 6.—Desperate fighting between Federal forces under Gen. Refugio Velasco, which evacuated this city Thursday night, and columns set in pursuit under Gen. Rosalvo Hernandez: is reported by couriers from Parras, five miles east of San Pedro, where Constitutionalists cornered Gen. Velasco's rear guard Friday night killing more than one hundred and taking many prisoners. The messengers left San Pedro early Saturday, and state that after the Eulchery at that place the Federals fell back on Parras, where they were making a determined stand when the messengers left.

Gen. Villa returned to Torreon late Saturday night with news that Gen. Hernandez has Gen. Velasco's army cooped up five miles east of Parras. Another battle is imminent.

Gen. Carranza had nearly an hour's conference with Gen. Villa over the telegraph wire Saturday night. The subject of the conference was that reinforcements shall be sent from here to assist in the campaign against Monterey. Gen. Villa asks that no reinforcements be sent at once, but that 3,000 men be held in readiness to despatch when he sends for them.

Gen. Villa is reported to have said that he will prevent Gen. Velasco's army from making a junction with Gen. Joaquin Maas, at Saltillo, if it takes every soldier in the army to accomplish it.

Villa To Follow Up Victory. JUAREZ, April 6.—The opinion that Gen. Villa intends to take every advantage of the defeat of the Federals at Torreon was expressed here Saturday. It was based on the intelligence officially announced Friday night that Villa had left suddenly for San Pedro to take personal charge of rebel troops reported to have participated in an encounter with the fleeing Federals.

The departure of Villa from Torreon prevented that promised telegraphic conference with Gen. Carranza.

THREE MEN ARRESTED.

C.P.R. Alleges Wholesale Thefts of Freight In Transit.

NORTH BAY, Ont., April 6.—Detectives have been engaged by the Canadian Pacific Railway since the first of the year ferreting out cases of stealing goods in transit in freight cars. Complaints of shippers and claims for lost goods determined officials to make a thorough investigation from coast to coast, and the results thus far are alleged to have been startling, although reticence has so far been followed.

Three men from here were accused, A. T. Sweeney and R. N. Watt, freight conductors, and W. E. Martin, brakeman. They were remanded on bail of $3,000.

It is said that prosecution will bring witnesses from all over Canada to identify goods seized in houses of railroad men under search warrants. Searches have thus far been made of thirty houses of railway employes in North Bay alone, and seizures have been made of over one ton of merchandise, including kodaks, boots, clothing, fur coats. At Chatham a quantity of silverware was seized in the shack of silverware was seized in the shack of a railroad laborer.

MME. CAILLAUX ASSAILED.

Two Women Prisoners Resented Attention Shown to Her.

PARIS, April 6.—Mme. Henriette Caillaux, who recently shot and killed Gaston Calmette, editor of Le Figaro, was attacked in the corridor of St. Lazare Prison Saturday by two women, who objected to the favors being shown to the wife of the ex-Minister of Finance. Mme. Caillaux and the two other women were exercising under the eyes of the guards when the attack occurred. As one of the women passed Mme. Caillaux she leaped upon her and pummeled her viciously. The two guards ran to the aid of their famous prisoner and then the other woman joined in the assault.

The combatants struggled for several minutes, but other guards were summoned and separated them. The two assailant were hustled into dungeons, still screaming protests.

TO LEAD HIS ARMY.

Prince William of Albania Will Drive Out Greek Guerrillas.

DURAZZO, Albania, April 6.—Prince William, the new ruler of Albania, Saturday announced his intention of taking the field and leading the Albanian troops against the Greek insurgents who have taken the town of Koritza, which Friday night was reported captured and partly destroyed. A general mobilization of the Albanian forces was ordered.

ATHENS, Greece, April 6.—The Albanian town of Koritza has fallen into the hands of "insurgents," according to an official announcement here Saturday. It is explained that the "insurgents" are Greeks, who have risen in opposition to the decision of the European powers that Koritza must belong to Albania.

Reports are current that the insurgents are in the pay of the Greek authorities.

Prayed For Carsonites.

LONDON, Ont., April 6.—Orange-men to the number of several thousands, from the city and surrounding districts, gathered at St. Matthew's in this city yesterday, in order to hold a special service of prayer for Sir Edward Carson and his anti-home rulers. The meeting was held by Rev. T. B. Clarke and a number of other prominent Orangemen and home rulers, lay and clerical. The affair partook of something of the nature of a spectacle, as the different lodges paraded and marched to the church.

TROOPS MUST OBEY

Shall Not Become a Political Instrument, Says Asquith.

ALLIANCE WITH LABORITES

Prime Minister Hints at Negotiations to Strengthen Coalition in British Commons—Ann. Has No Voice in Moulding of Laws Declares Prime Minister In His Early-Awaited Speech.

LONDON, April 6.—(Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—"The army in this country is not, I pray, to become a political instrument. It has no place and no voice in framing our policy or moulding our laws," said Premier Asquith at Ladybank, opening his bye-election campaign in East Fife on Saturday.

A brilliant spring day and notable scenes of enthusiasm at Ladybank marked the occasion. The meeting took place in the village assembly room, and was opened by the usual formal business, including the adoption of the Prime Minister as the Liberal candidate. Mr. Asquith, Mrs. Asquith and their daughter, were given a rousing welcome.

Sir James Scott, who presided, welcomed the Premier amid cheers, as the greatest Parliamentarian they had known. Mr. Asquith returned thanks for his adoption as the Liberal candidate. He said it was a novel experience, contesting a bye-election, but they lived in strange times, and in no respect were they more strange than in the way in which credulity dogged the heels of invention, and invention strove, and strove in vain to keep pace with credulity.

The true doctrine of army administration, he said, was laid down by the old William Pitt.

The Prime Minister said it was his duty in the post which he had assumed, by searching personal inquiry, and with the co-operation upon which he could count, to see that the army was fit, in ever shifting conditions, for its primary and elementary duty. The army would hear nothing of politics from him, and he expected in return to hear nothing of politics from the army. (Cheers.)

Responsibility for the preservation of domestic peace, continued the Prime Minister, lay with the magistrates and the police. Under normal conditions, the army's aid could not and ought not to be invoked by the civil power. It was only in emergencies which were happily rare, that any such call could be addressed to the army. When such an occasion arose it was the duty of the soldier as it was the duty of the civilian, to comply with the demands of the civil power. But these present Tory doctrines struck at the very root, not only of army discipline, but of democratic government. (Cheers.)

Where did they lead to? They set a precedent which was capable of an infinite number of applications, and was much more dangerous in its consequences than the one which went before it. (Cheers.) If the Government was to recognize the existence of a dispensing and discriminating power they must recognize it not only in the officers, but in the men, and not only in the army but in every body of public servants.

Two years ago in this hall he had described the Tory doctrines as furnishing a complete grammar of anarchy. (Cheers.) He repeated now that these new dogmas, countersigned by the Tory leaders, would be invoked whenever a spirit of lawlessness undertook to block the ordered machinery of self-government. (Cheers.)

Mr. Asquith recapitulated his temporary exclusion plan, and while admitting its disadvantages said that it had the great merit, at least, that it got rid of any question of coercion. It gave the populations concerned the immediate arbitrament of the ballot. "I am anxious for peace, and I say this for both sides, it must be peace with honor." (Cheers.)

They must see some process applied, with necessary variations, and applied without delay, to other parts of the United Kingdom, in the conviction that such a reconstruction of constitutional organization would lead to greater efficiency in the conduct of both local and imperial interests.

There remained one very serious point to be emphasized. If they studied the bye-elections of the last two years, they would find, with perhaps one exception, that every loss of a seat to the Liberals had been due to a split in the forces of progress. Upon the great issue of Home Rule the bye-elections has pronounced with an overwhelming majority in favor of the Government policy. It was indeed a melancholy thing for those whose hearts were bound up in the future prospects of wise democratic legislation to find the democratic army split asunder in the face of the common enemy.

Such a state of things came to an end. It would surely be childish if, in the great issues before them, which could only be brought to success by unity and loyal co-operation, they should allow comparatively trivial differences upon issues not vital, to divide a force which united was irresistible. (Cheers.)

STEAMER STILL MISSING.

Possible Loss of Southern Cross Will Treble Loss of Life.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 6.—Anxiety deepened last night for the 173 men on the sealing steamer Southern Cross, which has been missing since Tuesday's blizzard. She was not reported either by incoming vessels of the sealing fleet or by the steamer Kyle, sent out by the Government to search for her. By sunset to-day if she is not heard from, she will be officially posted as lost with all on board. Disaster to her, following so closely on the loss of 77 men of the sealer Newfoundland would bring upon the colony the greatest tragedy in its history, depriving whole settlements of their bread-winners and rendering one thousand women and children dependent upon charity.

As the public learned yesterday from the Newfoundland's survivors, who were landed Saturday, the details of the two days' blizzard and the condition in which it caught the Southern Cross, the first hopes, based on the stoutness of the ship faded.

Capt. Martin, of the sealer Erik, says he parted company from her a week ago Thursday, when the Southern Cross turned homeward with 17,000 seals. She was so deeply laden that all her provisions and part of her bunker coal were stored on deck, so that every available space below could be filled with her catch.

Capt. Bartlett, of the Terranova, says the last he saw of the Southern Cross was a week ago Friday, when she was wallowing slowly down the coast. Other ships of the fleet sighted the steamer driving before the gale last Thursday morning. She has not been reported since, and the skippers of the fleet who came through that gale and the storm of equal severity later in the week, say every chance was against a vessel so deep in the water as the Southern Cross.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

John Weir, aged 74, and Wm. J. McE. 46, of Toronto, died of pneumonia within two days of each other. Mrs. Squirrel, an Indian woman, with her husband and little child, walked 96 miles to New Liskeard under an open sky.

Matthew Wayman, of Toronto, will contest the seat for South Timiskaming in the Provincial Legislature in the interests of the Social-Democratic party.

Sheriff H. Endicott, of Orangeville, has received from an unknown person in Toronto $21, the amount of a debt owing to Endicott Bros., 20 years ago.

Miss Ruth Ward, of Rochester, N.Y., was knocked down and robbed in broad daylight at Niagara Falls, Ont., of her purse, containing nearly $40, by a well-dressed young man.

The Chas. W. Grant Maroon, the largest and longest freight steamer on the great lakes, having a capacity of twenty trains of thirty cars each, was launched at Port Arthur Saturday.

Mr. Victor Garnish, who was for twenty years a licensed engineer in Minnesota, yesterday applied to take out a license in Regina to run a husband's traction engine, but was refused.

Allan Turner, of the Brockville customs staff, died suddenly in the same chair in which his father passed away suddenly nearly forty years ago and in the same room in which he was born.

Wm. A. G. Hake, of Brighton, Eng., who is the oldest barrister in Great Britain, and the only barrister, it is said, who ever attained such a great age as 103, celebrated his birthday yesterday.

An explosion in St. Martin's Church, Trafalgar Square, London, last night, which did considerable damage to the pews and a stained window in the south aisle, is blamed on suffragettes.

WOMEN GO TO POLLS.

Fair Sex Will Exercise Franchise In Chicago for First Time.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Two hundred thousand women will have their first real say in city affairs tomorrow. With 470,000 men, they will choose 36 candidates. In the list of those who aspire to municipal laws there are eight women—another Chicago innovation.

The Progressive party presents three women candidates—Miss Marjorie H. Drake in the 21st, Miss Bernice Nader in the 22nd, and Mrs. Julia Agnew in the 31st. The Socialists have four candidates—Josephine C. Kane, in the 6th, Lydia E. McDermut in the 7th, Gertrude R. Dubin in the 20th, and Maude J. Ball in the 31st. Miss Harriet E. Vitrum is running as an Independent in the 17th ward.

Interest in the women candidates centres chiefly on Miss Drake, because she has dared what few men have tried and none successfully—to vanquish Ald. "Bath House John" Coughlin who, with "Hinky Dink" Kenna, has held undisputed sway in the first ward for nearly a quarter of a century.

New Head of Prison.

KINGSTON, April 6.—Announcement is made of the appointment of William J. MacLeod, formerly steward of the Portlock Penitentiary to the wardenship of the penitentiary at Prince Albert, where he has been acting warden for the past six months. Mr. MacLeod has been in the penitentiary service eighteen years. He is a brother-in-law of Penitentiary Inspector W. S. Hughes.

Fire at the Soo.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., April 6.—Shortly after two o'clock yesterday morning fire broke out in the T. T. Barnes drug store and caused the loss of several thousand dollars. The origin of the fire is unknown. The stock of drugs and stationery, which was large, was completely destroyed.

MURDERED BY BOY

Vancouver Woman is Killed by Youthful Chinese Servant.

RACE FEELING IS AROUSED

Slaughter of Mrs. Charles Millard by Jack Kong, a 17-Year-Old Oriental, Has Caused a Ferment and Many Cooks Have Been Discharged — Boy In Confession Tells How He Destroyed Body.

VANCOUVER, B.C., April 6.—The shocking murder of Mrs. Charles Millard, the young wife of the chief ticket agent of the C.P.R. at the terminal depot in this city, has stirred the city profoundly. Aside from the question of the crime itself, the fact that she was killed by her Chinese servant, who for five years had lived in the Millard household, has brought the whole burning Oriental question to the fore here. Saturday night the police took special precautions to prevent the slightest chance of a riot in Chinatown, and the night passed quietly enough there. Uptown, however, when a slightly inebriated citizen began to attack every Oriental he met he soon drew a crowd. The police took no chances, but whisked him off in the patrol.

Scores of Chinese servants have been dismissed from residences, especially in the west end and Shaughnessy Heights. Downtown restaurants and hotels are being warned personally by customers and by personal messages that they must get rid of their Chinese or lose business.

The coroner's jury Saturday night brought in a verdict of murder at the conclusion of a three-hours' enquiry over the pitiful little pile of whitened bones that are all that remain of Mrs. Millard. Mrs. Barnard, a neighbor of the Millards, said that on Wednesday afternoon she smelled burning flesh and remarked at the column of black smoke coming from the Millard's chimney. It was during that afternoon that the unfortunate woman's body was cremated by the 17-year-old Chinese boy, and when her husband arrived at 11 o'clock in the evening of that day all the visible evidences of the crime had been wiped out.

Jack Kong, the Chinese boy, in his confession in writing, given to the police on Saturday, says that on Wednesday morning his mistress complained to him that the porridge was burned and ordered him to prepare another dish. He refused to obey and she told him she would have to cut his ear off to make him be good. In a flash the lad says he swung a chair over his head and knocked her apparently dead. Then he got the family carving knife, he says, and cut off the legs and arms and fed them into the furnace. He then dragged the body downstairs and he used there a cleaver to assist the carving knife in the dissecting. He attempted to clean up the stains, both up and down the stairs, but a close examination since made by the police showed many small specks of blood still about.

He took off Mrs. Millard's rings and watch, and these, together with some other trinkets, he had stolen a fortnight ago, were found Saturday afternoon hidden in a corner of the basement.

When Mr. Millard came in late from Victoria, he thought the house looked slightly upset, but he accepted the Chinese boy's explanation that Mrs. Millard had gone out to spend the day with one of her four sisters, who live in different suburbs. That night the Chinese boy crept downstairs and carried into the corner of the attic Mrs. Millard's hat and street clothing and veil, which she would have used had she gone out, and which would have excited her husband's suspicion, had he seen them in the house. Next morning the boy refused to go to school, because he had washed his trousers; the day before, and they were not dry, for he had gotten them covered with blood while carrying out the murder.

Somewhat dissatisfied by the lad's conduct, but suspecting nothing serious, Millard went down to his office, and from there he began to telephone his sisters-in-law, attempting, to locate his wife. When he failed to find her, he returned to his home and found the Chinese boy still cleaning up.

The lad had a big fire in the furnace, and was much agitated at Millard's unexpected appearance. He was roughly aroused by this time, Millard telephoned to the police.

When the fire finally died down the Chinese boy, in his confession, said he took out the skull and all the bones. He did not get them all, however, and it was this fact that gave the police their first definite clue. A couple of handfuls of whitened bones still remained in the furnace. The skull and large leg bones, the Chinese boy had stuffed into the flue below the drawing-room grate.

The Chinese boy is a rather pleasing looking little fellow, who was waiting along rapidly at the Lord Roberts School, Saturday on his way to attend the inquest he whistled a popular tune. He made his confession to Mr. Millard in the presence of the police.

Had Hard Trip. NEW YORK, April 6.—The Cunard liner Mauretania arrived Saturday from Liverpool and Queenstown twelve hours late. She was delayed by a series of terrific storms, which lasted throughout the passage. Passengers were forced to remain from the outer decks during practically the whole voyage.

Three days out from Liverpool a stateroom on "A" deck caught fire from a short circuited electric wire. The interior was badly damaged, but because of the construction of the Mauretania it was impossible for the fire to spread. But a few of the passengers knew that there had been a fire.

M.P.'S WERE TIRED.

Long Debate on N. T. R. Report Followed — a Calm.

OTTAWA, April 4.—The House of Commons being in session until after three o'clock yesterday morning all contentious matters were avoided at yesterday's sitting. Several Government bills were advanced yesterday afternoon, including Mr. Nante's bill to amend the "Culteration Act," which was given a second reading. The bill is introduced to protect the manufacturers and vendors of maple syrup, and prohibits the use of the word "maple" or any brand or label upon any syrup which is not boiled down syrup of the maple tree. The bill was referred to a select standing committee on agriculture, and all persons desiring to be heard for or against the bill should notify Mr. Sermsith (East Peterboro), the chairman of the committee.

Mr. Pelletier's resolution making some slight advance in the pay of certain postal employees passed through committee and the bill founded thereon was introduced and read the first time.

At four o'clock the House went over to the Senate chamber, where the royal assent was given to a number of bills, including the interim supply bill.

In the public accounts committee yesterday W. M. German of Welland, after securing an order for the production of all papers and vouchers respecting payments of $18,858,000 to J. D. McArthur, railway contractor, had the committee summon Major Leonard, chairman of the Transcontinental commission; Gordon Grant, chief engineer, and Collingwood Schreiber, C.M.G., to give evidence on Tuesday next. The subject of the enquiry will be payments made in the McArthur contract in respect to overclassification.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Five men are now dead as a result of the boiler explosion at the Drummond Colliery, Westville, N.S., Thursday.

John Coulson, governor of Welland County jail for thirty years, died yesterday morning from pneumonia, aged 73 years.

Welland Town Council has decided to accept the offer of a Carnegie Library and has purchased a site at Muir and Young streets for $9,000.

Rev. William Miller, who has been pastor of the U. B. Congregation Church at Listowel, has decided to go to Central Africa as a missionary.

John Sutherland, of Kirkton, for over sixty years a resident of Blanchard Township, passed away early Wednesday morning, in his 87th year.

C. G. Culham, who for the past nine months has been connected with the Petrolia branch of the Department of Agriculture, will join the staff of O. A. C.

The White Star line yesterday ordered another levittan for the passenger service between Liverpool and New York. The new vessel is to displace $3,000,000.

"Le Devoil" of Montreal announces that Henri Bourassa will leave about the end of the month for a five weeks' trip in England, Ireland and Scotland, to write for the paper.

Prince Henry of Prussia, accompanied by Ramon Barros, President of Chile, inspected yesterday corps of the Chilean army in the presence of 50,000 spectators at Santiago yesterday.

Elizabeth Fry, a suffragette, attempted to board the train on which Premier Asquith was en route to East Fife yesterday, and after a terrific struggle with two policemen, was borne away unconscious.

FOUND IN CUPBOARD.

One Suffragette Is Caught and Others Left Cloaks In Flight.

GLASGOW, Scotland, April 4.—The caretaker of a large vacant mansion near Broomfield, three miles south-east of Glasgow, yesterday captured a militant suffragette found hiding in a cupboard in the cellar of the mansion. The woman was locked up by the caretaker, who telephoned the police, who arrested her. The police arrived too late, however, to prevent the escape of several other suffragettes in the building, who in their hurried flight had left their cloaks behind them.

Search of the mansion disclosed bottles containing paraffin and also cotton wool and matches and other inflammable material, which had been placed evidently with the purpose of starting fires.

Submarine Hits Gunboat.

LONDON, April 4.—While rising after having been submerged during a sham attack off Harwich, Essex, yesterday, submarine C 2 struck the propeller of a gunboat. The periscope and part of the conning tower of the submarine were torn away by the impact, and only the coolness of her officers and crew prevented her from sinking.

Cy Warman's Condition Serious.

CHICAGO, April 4.—The condition of Cy Warman, known as the Rocky Mountain poet, who has been ill in a hospital here for several weeks, is serious but not critical, according to his physicians. Mr. Warman was taken ill while at a hotel here March 15. His condition became so serious that he was taken to a hospital two days later.

Missionaries In China Warned.

PEKIN, April 4.—All the missionaries in the vicinity of Sian-Fu Province of Shensi have been ordered to take refuge in Sian-Fu, as the brigands have invaded the nearby plains and now are within twenty miles of the city. A Government force from the affected district is proceeding to the affected district to relieve the situation.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO, April 4.—Bearish influence of the latest acreages and the finest condition of winter crop ever reported at this time of the year, held down today the price of wheat. The market, altho firm at the close, was on the same level as last night, 1-16 lower. In the other leading staples, there was a net decline all around—corn 1-8 to 3-8c, oats a shade to 1-16 and provisions 5 to 7 1-2c.

THIS TRAGIC LETTER—
How would you answer it?

Between the lines of this short letter you can read grim tragedy. If the appeal were made to you, personally, how would you answer it? Suppose you held the power to receive this poor woman or to turn her away, which would you do?
"Will you kindly give me information concerning admission of a very needy woman near me. Her husband is dead, and she is in consumption. She has two small children, at present in an orphan's home, as the mother is not able to care for them, and their only income is what an aged mother earns. They live in one small room."
It is easy to say, "Why, of course, I would offer relief, if it were in my power!" But, think! Are you sincere when you say that? Are you in earnest? Do you really want to help poor, suffering consumptives? Then here is your chance to prove your sincerity.

Contributions to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives will be gratefully acknowledged by W. J. Gage, Chairman Executive Committee, 85 Spadina Avenue, or R. Dunbar, Secretary, Treasurer, 347 King Street West, Toronto.

RELIEVE THE JADED CONDITION.—When memory flags and the cares of business become irksome; when the whole system is out of sorts and there is general depression, try Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. They will regulate the action of a deranged stomach and a disordered liver and make you feel like a new man. No one need suffer a day from debilitated digestion when so simple and effective a pill can be got at any drug store.

MILLIONAIRE HAD TO BREAK STONE

A Portland, Oregon, millionaire was the other day sentenced to five days at hard labor on the municipal stone pile for driving his automobile at a speed of fifty miles an hour within the streets of that city. It does not appear that anyone was injured as a result of his speeding; the penalty was imposed for driving the car at a rate in excess of the limit allowed and with consequent danger to pedestrians and other vehicular traffic. If a millionaire was summoned for a like offence in this country we would expect to see the magistrate and court officials apologizing for the annoyance the offender was put to in being haled to court to pay a fine that would amount to a mere item in the expense of an ordinary run. Our American friends are sometimes credited with having a fairly high regard for the dollar, but at least they do not make a god of the golden calf.—Weekly Sun.

LAURIER SUMS UP

Sir Wilfrid Closes Onslaught on N.T.R. Finding.

NO GRAFT HAS BEEN FOUND

Liberal Leader Declares That He Rejoices In the Attacks Made Upon Him In Connection With Building of National Railway and Regards Them as an Honor—The Vote Is Defeated.

OTTAWA, April 3.—In a remarkable speech of nearly two hours' duration, marked by all his old-time fire, eloquence and vigor of argument and delivery, Sir Wilfrid Laurier last night summed up the Liberal indictment against the "unblinking partisan" Liberal party against the National Transcontinental Railway, and against Canada itself, contained in the report of Messrs. Gutelius and Lynch-Staunton.

Premier Borden replied at length and at a late hour the vote of censure was defeated by the Government forces, 105 to 87.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie (Lib., S. Wellington) resumed the debate yesterday afternoon. He said there could have been no undue haste in building the road, because the Grand Trunk had tendered upon 17 of the 21 contracts for the express purpose of keeping down the cost of construction. He criticized the action of the present commission in introducing momentum grades in spite of the protests of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Evidently this had been done in order to give the Grand Trunk Pacific the opportunity to refuse to lease the Winnipeg-Moncton line for fifty years under its contract with the Government.

W. H. Bennett (Con., E. Simcoe) said the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme had been devised in order to make a lot of Liberal campaign followers rich. The Yukon had played out and the western lands had been explicitly promised to some new get-rich-quick scheme had to be invented. The Government had a complacent Minister of Railways in Mr. Graham, and a commission was quite ready to join hands with the contractors in making party favorites rich. At the head of the commission was placed the "precious Mr. Parent," who was discredited and discarded by the Liberal politicians of the Province of Quebec. It was this same Mr. Parent who, in behalf of the Government, promised a charter to the Banque Internationale upon condition that Sir Rodolphe Forget did not run against Mr. Geo. Parent in Montmorency in 1911.

Hon. H. B. Emerson asked whether the Government believed that $35,000,000 had been wasted in constructing a line between Levis and Moncton. If it did believe that why was it spending $50,000,000 more in terminal facilities at Halifax, and $30,000,000 more in improving the port of St. John, N.B.?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier received an ovation from his followers upon rising. Sir Wilfrid went over the careers of the two investigators to show that they were biased politically, and had not given the accused a fair trial.

"What is this report?" he asked. "It is an unblinking partisan libel, reeking with unfair insinuations and untrue insinuations, but nowhere is there a direct open page of dishonesty or graft."

The charge against the late Government, Sir Wilfrid continued, was that they had built too good a road, that they had too much faith in Canada and to much hope for her future. For himself he was here to say that the National Transcontinental would realize the fondest hopes of the country unless the men now in charge of the road degraded its high standard.

Sir Wilfrid then dealt with the points in the report. The commissioners will know that the $50,000,000 for the Transcona shops had not been illegally expended, and that the present Minister of Justice had so declared. They also knew that the present Government had expended $1,500,000 upon similar shops at Quebec, but that fact was not mentioned in their report. They also knew that the present Government had sent an impartial expert to examine the Transcontinental shops, who had reported that they were not too large.

As for the statement that the Moncton-Levis line was a sheer waste of money, that was only an echo of Lynch-Staunton's speeches in Ontario in 1904 and 1908. At that time Ontario Conservatives had favored breaking off the line at Quebec.

In conclusion, Sir Wilfrid said that it had been repeatedly charged during this debate that he was responsible for the construction of the National Transcontinental. If that was intended as a stigma, he accepted it as an honor. No greater service could be performed for the confederation than to connect Quebec and Winnipeg with a continuous chain of settlements. "It is our responsibility, the construction of this road; it is for the Government to accept the responsibility from degrading and destroying it," he said.

There was a great demonstration from the Government benches when the Prime Minister rose to reply. Sir Wilfrid's speech, he said, was an admirable though edited version of the speech delivered last week by Mr. Graham, with a few decorative flowery statements from the ex-Premier's speech in introducing the Grand Trunk Pacific legislation in 1903.

Referring to the attacks made upon the commissioners, Mr. Borden said that either Mr. Gutelius or Mr. Lynch-Staunton, or both, were equal in integrity, character, record and reputation to any member of the Opposition, from the highest down. It was said that these commissioners had not been sworn, but he challenged Sir Wilfrid Laurier to name one royal commission that had been sworn during his sixteen years of office.

Of Mr. George Lynch-Staunton, Mr. Borden said, that no breath of scandal had ever assailed his personal or professional reputation, and against Mr. Gutelius no more serious charge was brought than that he was born in the United States. Surely the Opposition's case must be a desperate one when such appeals were made to prejudice.

Mr. Borden then discussed the cost of the National Transcontinental, allowing for interest charges, the cost of the Quebec bridge, and the money paid out on account of the construction of the western division between Winnipeg and Prince Rupert. It was not unfair to say that the road would cost Canada $205,000,000. When Sir Wilfrid Laurier had estimated the cost at $13,000,000 he was a trifle inaccurate, to say the least.

Mr. Borden, replying to C. M. Macdonald, said it was preposterous to hold the Borden Government responsible for living up to the contracts made by the former Government. Those contracts could not be repudiated.

It had been charged by Sir Wilfrid Laurier that the Government had printed and distributed 250,000 copies of the report. As a matter of fact, there had only been 14,000 English and 4,000 French. In conclusion, the Prime Minister said: "We have not one, but two transcontinental railways, which must either see through to completion or leave them uncompleted. We are not afraid of the situation, nor are we unable to deal with it, but we will give to that situation which we did not create, our best efforts as trustees for the Canadian people."

The vote was then taken.

ROBBERS GOT $75.

Masked Men at Quebec Entered Woman's Little Grocery.

QUEBEC, April 3.—Masking the lower part of their faces with handkerchiefs and with caps pulled well down over their foreheads, two robbers broke into a house at Lauzon, across the river, about midnight Wednesday by making an entry through the coal shed. The house was the property of Madame Bourget, who keeps a grocery store, and only she and her little daughter were in it. Lighting a lamp the burglars awoke the two and roughly demanded money, holding a revolver to their heads.

She had in the house $75, and while she was getting it the child made an attempt to get away and warn the neighbors, but the men caught her and threatened to blow her brains out if she moved.

As soon as the intruders had gone, Madame Bourget went out and told some of her relatives, but their efforts to find the men were futile.

Greeks From War Reach U. S.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Two thousand Greeks, most of them battle-scarred veterans of the Balkan wars, arrived here yesterday on the steamer Laconia. Many returned to resume in America careers which they had abandoned to fight the Turks and Bulgarians. One of them, Charalabos Stathis, gave up a prosperous real estate business in Winnipeg to serve in the Greek army as a private. He comes back with the rank of sergeant.

To Save Lives at Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., April 3.—A life-saving station is to be established on Goat Island by the Niagara State Reservation Commission. The object will be to rescue persons who are carried down the river past the danger line and to save them from a plunge over the falls.

The station is provided for in the plans adopted for the $10,000 service building which is to be erected on Goat Island.

German Aviator Killed.

MUNICH, Bavaria, April 3.—Lieut. Laupmeyer, a German army aviator, was killed and Lieut. Rucht, whom he carried as a passenger, was seriously injured yesterday in an aeroplane accident. Their aeroplane proper broke into fragments when they were flying at a low altitude over the aerodrome. Pieces of the propeller snapped the rigging and the machine collapsed and fell.

NO PUBLIC 'PHONES

Provincial Government Unwilling to Enter the Field.

PROPOSAL IS VOTED DOWN

J. C. Elliott's Resolution Regretting Hon. I. B. Lucas' Failure to Re-voice After Investigation in Britain an Urging Steps to Establish Public-Owned Service Defeated by Government.

TORONTO, April 4.—After a brief debate yesterday the Ontario Legislature rejected J. C. Elliott's resolution regretting that Hon. I. B. Lucas had not submitted a report to the House on his investigations in Great Britain two years ago into the public ownership and operation of telephones, and urging that immediate steps be taken to establish a public-owned and operated service.

The debate was continued from Thursday night's adjournment. Mr. Elliott maintained that under proper administration the cost of this service would be greatly lessened and the benefit of the telephone extended to almost every home in the province.

Hon. Dr. Lucas, in continuing the debate, referred to the vague nature of the resolution. There was not a single suggestion what the Legislature should do except think about it. The whole matter, said the Minister, was one which came under the jurisdiction of the Federal Government, which had granted the concessions in the first place. As for buying out the company, it would take probably $30,000,000 to buy the Bell Telephone Co. Should they take up the long-distance and fight the thing out with the Bell Telephone Co. It would mean duplication of plant, immense economic waste in this province, and years of bitter fighting.

The amendment of Mr. Pattinson was carried. It was to the effect that the House approve of the report of the Provincial Treasurer, made to the House in 1913, that experience in Great Britain justified the conclusion that it was not desirable for the Government to duplicate existing lines and enter into competition with the telephone system, owned and operated by a corporation over which the province had no jurisdiction.

Further amendments to the motor vehicles act are sought by Mr. Wm. McDonald (Centre Bruce) to reduce the speed of cars to four miles an hour when passing horse-drawn vehicles, and to prohibit the use of streamers and lanterns.

GEMS WORTH £1,000,000.

Huge Store of Glittering Wealth Is Sold in London.

LONDON, April 4.—A great diamond deal has just been completed by Messrs. L. Bretmeyer & Co., London, who bought German Southwest African uncut diamonds to the amount of 900,000 carats for approximately £1,000,000. Other large firms in England and on the continent have been competing for the diamonds, which are of moderate size, and in bulk would almost fill an ordinary travelling trunk. They will be forwarded to England in parcels labelled according to the size of the stones. Transactions of this kind are carried out for the cost of the estimated value of the rough diamonds. One, in German Southwest African, in 1913, involved £12,000,000. The stones, which are sold through the Government, are found by the shore, where they are knocked into shape by heavy winds which cause the sand to rub against them. After a gale they can be found on the surface.

SPY GOES TO PRISON.

Frederick Adolphus Gould Gets Six Years; Wife Gets Off.

LONDON, April 4.—The trial of Frederick Adolphus Gould and his wife, charged with spying on the British navy, supposedly in the interest of Germany, was begun and ended yesterday at the Old Bailey.

Gould was sentenced to six years' penal servitude. He was followed by deportation. Mrs. Gould was discharged, the indictment against her being withdrawn.

The fact that Gould's arrest followed upon an investigation by the secret service police indicates that he obtained possession of important naval documents, and the serious view taken of the case was shown by the sentence, the maximum penalty being seven years.

A Question of Reliability.

LONDON, April 4.—The Spectator, commenting upon the status of the Panama Canal tolls repeal bill in the United States Congress, says in an editorial yesterday: "The honor of the United States is now at stake before the whole world. We do not think we shall be charged with affectation if we say that the question whether British ships are, or are not, to pay more than their share for the up-keep of the canal is as nothing compared with the question whether the United States can or cannot be counted upon to accept the obvious meanings of treaties and scrupulously to observe them."

Two Fell Dead of Fright.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 4.—Patrick Eagleson, 70 years of age, of Duggan street, Spencer, and Mrs. Bennis Arseneault, 60 years old, of 48 Maple street, Spencer, dropped dead from fright in the street yesterday afternoon as they witnessed a three-cornered fight between Martin Niederberger, a chauffeur employed by Welter Watson, of Leicester, and Stanley Orutt and Chas. Barmon, employees of a Niagara cereal company who were distributing samples in the town.

The three fighters are under arrest.

SEALER MAY BE LOST.

Fears For the Safety of the Steamer Southern Cross.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 4.—As the hour went by last night without word from the sealing steamer Southern Cross, fear grew that her crew of 170 men had been added to the toll of Tuesday's blizzard in which men of the sealer Newfoundland lost their lives.

The number of the Newfoundland's dead was placed definitely at 77 late yesterday, with the further possibility that several of the 112 who were rescued would succumb to the effects of the 48 hours' exposure.

Arrangements were made last night for the reception of the rescue ship Bellaventure, which is expected to arrive to-day, bringing most of the dead, and many of the survivors.

In an effort to solve the mystery of the disappearance of the Southern Cross, the Newfoundland Government asked the American revenue cutter Seneca to leave the ice patrol and search for the missing sealer. The coastal steamer Kyle, which has a wireless equipment, was fitted out here for a cruise along the southeastern coast off which the Southern Cross was last seen on Tuesday morning, a few hours before the three days' blizzard set in.

Although the vessels of the seal-wooden walled sealing fleet of which the Southern Cross was one, have bucked ice floes with impunity, and are regarded as very staunch ships, sealers say her cargo of 17,000 seal pelts would be an active danger during a storm on account of instability.

WILL NOT COMPROMISE.

Flat Repeal of Panama Tolls Bill Demanded by Wilsonites.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—In the Panama Canal toll exemption controversy two salient points were emphasized in the under current developments of the day. One was the concerted effort being made by Republican Senators to write against the President's repeal policy the ground of political expediency, and the other was the reinforced determination of administration leaders to yield to no compromise on the House bill providing for flat repeal of toll exemption for American ships.

Among Republican Senators who have been classified as doubtful with regard to their support as concerning the repeal, there is a general tendency to line up against the President. Democratic Senators who are championing the President's cause assert that they welcome this movement, confident that it can have no other effect than to solidify the Democrats and aid in assuring success for the administration. These Democrats, while admitting that five of their number cannot be induced to abandon their opposition to the bill, insist that there is every indication that all other majority Senators eventually will support the bill.

They also are assured of support for the measure by some of the Republican Senators, despite the effort of some of the minority to unite against the President.

DOESN'T OWN A SHARE.

Sir Hugh Graham Denies That He Is In Montreal Tramways.

MONTREAL, April 4.—For months The Montreal Herald before it was merged with The Telegram, printed this query in connection with its campaign against the street railway system: "Who owns ten thousand shares of Tramway stock?"

A "reader" has now written to The Montreal Star asking if it is possible that Sir Hugh Graham, its head, owns the stock, and Sir Hugh has issued a specific denial with the offer to give $800,000 to different hospitals and $200,000 for a fund to provide a decent living for the black-mailers of the Montreal press, if his denial is found incorrect.

Sir Hugh's denial follows: "Not only do I not own ten thousand shares of Tramway stock, but as it happens, I do not own one share and have no option promise, or expectation of shares. I remember some years ago my secretary having bought in the open market for my brother a small lot of street railway shares. That is the nearest I ever got to owning Tramway stock."

Steamer Montreal Disabled.

HALIFAX, N.S., April 4.—The C.P.R. steamer Montreal arrived in port yesterday from Antwerp in a disabled condition, and will probably go into drydock for repairs. The Montreal's rudder post snapped three days ago during a hurricane, and she steered for 350 miles by means of her propellers. The Montreal carried 133 passengers.

May Expropriate Company.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 4.—The president of the Sandwich, Windsor and Amherstburg Railroad Co. has refused an offer of $155,000 made by the civic light committee for the company's lighting plant, and expropriation proceedings probably will be taken. The object is to eliminate competition to the Hydro system.

Leaves Money Where Found.

MONTREAL, April 4.—Fifty dollars in bills having been left on the desk of H. M. Necker, city superintendent of motive power, as he believes, for the purpose of corrupting him in connection with the purchase of automobiles, the board of control yesterday morning decided to leave the money where it was found.

Windsor Wants Member.

WINDSOR, Ont., April 4.—The city council last night adopted a unanimous resolution to present a claim for a separate member of the Provincial Legislature in the next redistribution of seats. The last Government census showed the population to be 19,000, but it has grown, and now has reached the 25,000 mark.

TRACK GAVE WAY.

Two Men Killed When the Engine Plunges Down Bank.

TORONTO, April 3.—George Vincent, 484 Clendun avenue, engineer, and A. Sinclair, St. John's road, Toronto, fireman, are instantly killed, and S. Sheustone, 1,472 Dundas street, Toronto, brakeman, injured, when the engine of a C.T.R. construction train plunged down a 50-foot embankment at Brockville, a mile and a quarter east of Cherrywood, which is 25 miles east from Toronto, at 10.15 a.m. yesterday.

The train had just reached one of its newly-constructed culverts when without warning the track sank beneath the weight of the engine, which broke away from the track and plunged down the embankment to the side of the track.

All three men were in the engine at the time. Sinclair and Sheustone jumped for their lives as the engine started on its downward course. Sheustone was fortunate enough to fall clear of the engine, but Sinclair fell under it and was crushed to death.

Vincent was at the throttle when the engine plunged and did not have time to get where he could jump from the engine.

He was instantly killed. Sheustone was rushed to Toronto, where he was taken to the Western Hospital. He is suffering from scalp wounds, injured left leg and possible internal injuries.

Owing to the fact that the cars of the train stayed on the road bed the rest of the crew escaped injury.

The cause of the wreck was the collapse of a culvert, the earth around which had been loosened by the heavy rain.

An inquest will be opened in Toronto to-day.

METROPOLITAN TO QUIT.

Archbishop Hamilton of Ottawa Gives Advanced Age as Reason.

OTTAWA, April 3.—Most Rev. Charles Hamilton, Anglican Archbishop of Ottawa and metropolitan of Ontario, in a circular letter to the clergy and members of the church yesterday, announced his resignation to take effect on June 22 next. His advanced age is the reason for the step. The announcement is received with general surprise and regret.

Archbishop Hamilton was born in Hawkesbury, Ont., on Jan. 6, 1834. His father was Lt.-Col. Hon. George H. Hamilton, founder of the Hawkesbury Lumber Mills. He was educated at Montreal High School and University College, Oxford, Eng. His ordination as deacon of St. Matthew's Cathedral, Quebec, took place on Sept. 21, 1857. He was subsequently appointed rector. In 1885 he was enthroned Bishop of Niagara and resided at Hamilton until 1896, when he came to Ottawa. In 1909 he was made Archbishop of Ottawa and metropolitan of Ontario.

TRUST IN BATH-TUBS?

Big Dealers Agreed on Advance in Price Declares Paper.

MONTREAL, April 3.—The Star yesterday announced the disclosure of an alleged "bath-tub trust" in Canada, whereby prices on all enamelled ware were to be raised 15 per cent. and kept there.

Thirty large jobbers, it is asserted, joined certain firms in a plan to increase the prices on bath-tubs, lavatory equipment, and similar goods in Canada 15 per cent.

The duty on imported goods of this character is 25 per cent., and it is alleged the jobbers agreed not to sell any imported article at a lower price than that agreed on for the Canadian make.

It is further alleged that the collected sums obtained from the increase in price was to be pooled and divided among those in the agreement.

Not many months ago the American "bath-tub trust" was smashed by the courts.

CAPTURED AT LAST.

Torreon Fell Last Night at 10.30 Says Gen. Carranza.

JUAREZ, April 3.—Gen. Carranza announced that Torreon fell at 10.20 o'clock last night.

Escapes From Villa.

NEW ORLEANS, April 3.—Luis Terrazas, jr., the wealthy Mexican held a prisoner for ransom at Chihuahua by Gen. Francisco Villa for the past three months, has escaped and made his way south toward Mexico City, according to reports received by a newspaper here. Through the assistance of an old family servant and a traitor in Villa's camp, the story says, the political prisoner obtained his liberty and reached Saltillo, beyond the zone of Constitutionalist control.

Lind to Take Vacation.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Joan Lind, former governor of Minnesota, and for the last eight months the personal representative in Mexico of the President of the United States will sail from Vera Cruz to-day for Washington aboard the Presidential yacht Mayflower.

The announcement of Mr. Lind's prospective visit was made by President Wilson, with the explanation that his envoy had requested a vacation and rest from his labors in a tropical climate, and that as soon as that had been obtained he would return to Mexico.

Youths Found Guilty.

PERTH, Ont., April 3.—At the criminal assizes for the County of Lanark, Sir Glenholme Falconbridge presiding, James Sutton, aged 18, formerly of Wexford, Ireland, and William Evans, aged 19, formerly of London, Eng., found guilty of having attempted to wreck a C.P.R. train on March 16 last, were remanded for sentence. They will probably be sent to Guelph prison farm.

Build Concrete Barns and Barnyards

YOU will find that they are best at first and cheapest in the end.

Concrete buildings cannot burn and many dollars are saved in lower insurance rates. They need practically no repairs and never need painting.

Concrete barnyards make the best kind of a feeding-floor and save many dollars in feed bills, as your stock gets every particle that you feed to them.

Send for this free book "What the Farmer Can do With Concrete." It shows just how to build your own concrete barn, feeding-floor or any other building that you may need.

DIFFERENT HERE.—At committee meetings of the Lindsay Council not only the press but the public are admitted.

COUNCIL ASSISTS.—Lindsay Council has made a grant of $200 to the Firemen and Band to assist in their big celebration next July.

FISH! FISH!—All kinds of fresh fish at McMahon's market, Walton street bridge. Leave your order early for Good Friday delivery.

WALL PAPERS.—I have a new and up-to-date stock of this season's wall decorations, also an up-to-date electric perforator and will cut out your borders. Call at my residence over Mr. Curtis grocery store. W. A. McMILLAN, Painter and Decorator.

95TH ANNIVERSARY.—Durham Lodge No. 78, I.O.O.F., will commemorate the 95th anniversary of the establishment of Oddfellowship on the American Continent by attending Divine Service at St. Paul's church on Sunday evening, April 26th.

REMEMBERED.—A pleasant time was spent Tuesday evening, at the home of Mr & Mrs J R Wilson, Pine street, when a few friends gathered to say good-by to Miss Beatrice Robertson, who is leaving for her home in Bobcaygeon. During the evening Miss Robertson was presented with a beautiful pearl ring.

TOMATOES DEAR.—With ripe tomatoes selling at 25c per pound in Port Hope, the price is such that it should tempt some of our local gardeners to go into the raising of this much prized and healthy edible in hot houses. The vegetables are now coming from Florida, and are by no means as pleasing to the taste as the home-grown products.

QUIET WEDDING.—The marriage took place on Wednesday, at the residence of the officiating clergyman, Rev. T. D. McCullough, of Miss Margaret Simpson, daughter of Mr. Robert Simpson, township of Hamilton to Mr. Wm. Lingard, of the Township of Hope. Their many friends join with the Guide in wishing them much happiness.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE.—The pistols and caps which boys are using as toys in the streets are likely, sooner or later, to cause a runaway. The explosive, further, is liable to fly back on the boy and cause injury. The police might see that this dangerous pastime is discontinued.

BURIED AT SUNRISE.—In accordance with her dying wish, Mrs Elizabeth P Gardiner, of Bellport, L I, was buried at sunrise, Thursday morning, in the cemetery there. Funeral services were held at the residence of a son of the deceased, and just as the first beams of the rising sun shone in the east, the remains of the aged woman, who was 94, were laid to rest.

WILL PAY HIGHER.—Estates over $25,000 will have to pay higher for probating wills in future. The new regulations in regard to lawyers' fees for probating estates have gone into effect and after this the legal authorities can claim as high as $100 for the job on good estates. Up to this week the most they could claim was $30. The change in rules was ordered at Osgoode Hall some weeks ago.

EXTRAVAGANCE VS. CUPID.—There are 750,000 men and women in New York, under 35, who are not married, and, as far as appearances go, do not intend to get married. Go into any theatre in any large American city and note the rows of young women sitting together, and the corresponding groups of men. Why are they not coupled off as in the smaller cities? Simply because the modern girl has developed an extravagance that the young man refuses to stand for. She must have a $2 seat; she expects a box of American Beauties with it; if the weather is cold, a taxi is required; and if her escort does not take her to a lobster palace after the show, he is regarded as a "cheap one." And the same thing goes on after marriage, even if the husband's salary is small. He must go on working, of course, but she is to be henceforth a lady. She must have her maid, her laundress, her dressmaker, and she frets because she has no auto.—Leslie's Weekly.

PETERBORO LICENSES.—The license fees on laundries in Peterboro is $1.00 per year and on victualling houses $5.00 a year.

GOOD IDEA.—The Council of Peterboro proposes to lift the lid on the electric sign by-law, to permit and encourage the erection of larger and better signs on the main streets.

STILL CROSSING CHEMONG LAKE.—Chemong Lake is still passable, and from evidences at present will continue so for some time, according to information received from the northern village. The ice still remains fully two feet thick.

WARNING.—Boys are carrying on the dangerous practice of shooting about the wharf and Capt Colwill says bullets are continually flying about. If the practice is not discontinued the guilty parties will find themselves in the Police Court and the offence is a serious one.

FIRE LOSSES.—Boston's fire losses for 1913 totalled $4,254,847, the heaviest in ten years, according to the report of Charles F. Simmons, president of the Protective Fire Department. There were 2136 fires, at which there was a loss, against 2417 in 1912, yet the total losses for 1912 were only $2,539,475.

ARE YOU LISTENING, FRIEND GILLIES?—The school teachers of Chicago are protesting against the proposition of Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of public schools, that the school year last the full twelve months, and that the class day be from 9 a.m. until 5 or 5:30 p.m., with intermission for luncheon.

SUFFICIENT PROOF.—Business Man—Can you write shorthand? Applicant—Yes, sir. How many words a minute? I never counted 'em, but the other day, when my wife found in my overcoat pocket a letter which she gave me to mail last fall, I took down every word she uttered as fast as she said them. You'll do.

DOES NOT SLEEP.—Michael Youhouse, a young iron worker in Duquesne, Penn., is said to have gone without sleep for more than a year, without giving up his work. He has consulted many doctors without success, but while he has been unable to sleep, he has felt perfectly well and has had no difficulty in doing his work.

WHAT A SWAT IN TIME MEANS.—A man who enjoys doing large sums in arithmetic tells us that from June 1 to September 1, one unwatted fly means 4,353,574,672,000,000,000,000 flies. We will accept his statement rather than audit the figures but it is easy to see what a swat in time means.—Belleville Ontario.

LOST HIS VOTES.—J. L. Hart, a Kansas City, Mo., voter, recently put an advertisement in the paper saying that at the three previous elections some one else had voted for him before he arrived at the polls, and that at the coming election he would be lined up, ready to vote, at sunrise.

TIME'S SAD WORK.—How sad the havoc of time! There has been another death in the ranks of the Fenian Raid Veterans this week. Turning to the statistics, Saturday Night now finds that there are only 14,999 veterans left out of the original 8,000 that participated in the memorable event.—Montreal Herald.

IN "TORONTO THE GOOD."—The Canadians are a terribly modest folk. A traveller just back from Toronto tells me he saw on a bill of fare at a restaurant there "Ox limb soup." "Do you mean ox tail soup?" he asked the waiter. "If so, why don't you say so?" "Hush!" said the waiter, looking shocked, "it's so unfined."—London Mirror.

SAD DEATH.—The many friends in this town of Mr and Mrs Len Gamby, Orono, will sympathize with them in the death of their eldest son, Lorenzo, a young man of 18 years, which occurred at Bowmanville Hospital early Thursday morning following an operation for appendicitis. For some time he has been employed in the D. O. & P. Co. factory and by his good disposition and gentlemanly conduct won the respect of all his associates and many other citizens. The body was taken to Orono where interment took place Saturday afternoon.—Bowmanville Statesman.

"For God's Sake, Let Me Stay!"

He pleaded with all the intensity his weakened body and soul could master. His voice trembled. Tears lurked in his strained, anxious eyes. "I have traveled for two days on the train," he said. "I have been turned out of my boarding house. I have been turned out of a hotel in my own town. The local hospital refused me admission. Nobody wants me. For God's sake, doctor, let me stay!"

This man had been a railway conductor. He had money to pay for his needs; so he applied to the Muskoka Cottage Sanatorium for treatment of the disease which held his life in its grip—consumption. But those sufferers without money and without friends, what of them? With their hopeless knowledge that people shun them, they believe it futile to seek relief. If their lives are to be spared they must be sought out and supplied with nourishment, medicine, and treatment. To do this costs money. Will you contribute a trifle to help in this effort to save lives? Please act quickly. Winter has brought keen suffering.

Contributions to the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives will be gratefully acknowledged by W. J. Gage, Chairman Executive Committee, 84 Spadina Avenue, or R. Dunlop, Secretary, Treasurer, 347 King Street West, Toronto.

Come and hear the sacred song and story entitled "Paul, the Little Mediator," under the auspices of the B. Y. P. U. in the Baptist Church, Thursday, April 16th, at 8 o'clock. Admission 15c.

SPLENDID.—The Irish Concert given by the young people of St. Paul's last Monday night, was a splendid success. An excellent program was presented and all participants did themselves credit. Special mention should be made of the humorous and ventriloquistic work of Mr. Harvey Yeo. The feats that he and "Jerry" accomplished are simply amazing.

DIED AT THE HOSPITAL.—The death occurred in the hospital last Friday, of James J. Hurlbut, after a lengthy illness from diabetes and blood-poisoning. Deceased has been a resident of Port Hope for several years and was engaged in the bicycle repairing business. The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was in charge of the Orangemen.

COBOURG'S HARBOR.—It is understood that our member will use his influence with the Government to take over our harbor and make it a National one. This would relieve the town of her present indebtedness and allow us to go ahead with more confidence and deal with industries seeking a location, and other important matters.—Cobourg Star.

RESULTS FATAL.—A woman of foreign birth in Atlantic City, New Jersey, reasoning that two physicians would more speedily restore her year-old child to health than one, summoned the two, but kept each doctor ignorant of the fact that the other had been called. Medicines prescribed by both were administered, with fatal result.

MRS. POWER SECURES DIVORCE.—Mrs. Lenore Powers has been granted a divorce from her husband, Manley Powers, living in Wapelle, Sask., on the ground of adultery. The bill being passed by the Senate last year her request was thrown out by the House of Commons but additional evidence was furnished this year which was considered sufficient to entitle her to a decree.

GOOD ON THE CHARGE.—In New York the other night the police broke up a riot in the "San Juan Hill" district by charging a mob with an automobile. The car mowed its way through the disturbers, who afterwards made themselves scarce. The incident seems to show that the auto as a suppressor of riots is much more effective than the police horseman.—Montreal Gazette.

NEW YORK'S SNOW.—Some estimate of what the snow storms of the winter cost the city of New York was had Monday when the Street Cleaning Commission announced that $2,400,000 had been expended and that another $100,000 would be expended before the streets were in normal condition. There were eight storms in New York during the winter and about 35 inches of snow fell. Its total weight is estimated at 3,000,000 tons.
