NARROW ESCAPE

For Father and Son From an Enraged Bull

What might have been a serious accident took place at Kinmount, last week at the home of Mr. Henry Boldt. Master Len was leading a bull to water at the lake, which is just below the barn, when the animal went wild, likely from smell of blood of sheep Mr. Boldt had killed that morning. The bull struck Len in the back, throwing him into the lake; then Mr. Boldt, hearing the noise, rushed to help the boy, when the enraged animal turned on him, and threw him into the lake also. Mr. Boldt held on to the staff attached to ring in the animal's nose. The boy by this time got out of the lake and managed to get away. The bull followed. Mr. Boldt then got out all mud and water, and managed to get to the house where he got his rifle, and so ended Mr. Bull's career. It was a lucky escape for both.

DE LESSEPS ANSWERS HIS COUNTRY'S CALL

Count de Lessens, the famous French aviator, son-in-law of Sir. Wm. Mackenzie, the Canadian railroad magnate, has answered the call of his country. Late on Monday afternoon his private yatch docked in Peterboro, having come from Stoney Lake where the Count has a magnificent summer home His wife accompanied him as far as Peterboro and said good-bye as he swung aboard the midnight C. P. R. flier bound for Montreal where he will embark for the old land, Count de Lesseps is a French army reservist, and a few years ago was one French air fleet. He vowed when he was married, never to fly again, but under the circumstances will probably place duty to his superior officers before his own safety, and will act as instructed.

It was stated that he will sail tcmorrow or the day after on the Virginian, and will cross the Channel on a special steamer. It will be re collected that Count de Lesseps was the second aeroplanist to fly across the English channel from Calais to Dover, which feat he ac-complished in a Bleriot aeroplane

He went to Quebec with the Cobourg Battery and from there was transferred with the Battery to Vancouver, British Columbia.

A large and representative gathering of the ladies of Port Hope was held Monday afternoon in the Assembly Hall of the Carnegie Library for the purpose of organizing a chapter of "The Independent Order of the Daughters of the Emoire" (I. O. D. E.)

Mrs. R. A. Mulholland was called to the chair, Mrs. Edgar appointed treasurer and Mrs. Newman Williamson and Miss Benson secretar ies, these officers being merely provisional. The immediate object of the Chapter was to provide for the contribution of the women of Port Hope towards the Hospital

This is a project that will appeal to every woman, and it is earnestly hoped that none will refrain from giving because they cannot give a large amount; no sum is too small.

Great enthusiasm was displayed at the meeting, and it is assured be worthy of the town.

If any woman be overlooked in the canvas, donations may be left in the Assembly Hall of the Library on Saturday afternoon and evening. As there is need of haste, it is hoped that all contributions will be in by that time.

The result will be made known on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the same place.

Whitney's Liquor Laws

The annual farce of fining the boats on Lake Ontario for the selling of liquor without a license has been perpetrated by Chief Inspector Robert S. Burrow of the Provincial License Department and his assistants, Inspector P. J. Jennings and D. Greer. The Chief License Inspector for the Whitney Government hailed into Court the pursers of saven of the largest Lake boats and the result is that they are fined not be dismembered, and sent her $200, plus approximately $36 in costs, in each case. "I shot Griggs," he said. Demarest realized subtly that his plea had failed, but he made an effort to resist the impression, to take the "Imission at its face value. Why?" he demanded.

Dick's enswer came in the like unmeabing tones, and as wearily. "Because I thought he was a but-

The District Attorney was beginning to fee! his professional pride aroused carainst this young man who so fragrantly repelled his attempts to learn the truth concerning the crime that had been committed. He resorted to familiar artifices for entangling-one questioned.

"Oh, Lese!" he said, in a tone of conviction. "Now, let's go back a little. Burke says you told him last night that you had persuaded your wife to come over to the house, and join you there. Is that right?"

"Yes." : The monosyllable was uttered indifferently.

'And, while the two of you were talking," Demarest continued in a matter-of-fact manner. He did not conclude the sentence, but asked instead: "Nov., tell me, Dick, just wifat this happen, won't you?"

There was no reply; and, after a little interval, the lawyer sesumed his questioning. "Did this bunglar come into the room?" Dick nodded an assent.

"And he attacked you?" There came another nod of affirm-

"And there was a struggle?" "Yes," Dick said, and now there was resolution in his answer.

"And, you shot him?" Demarest sked, smoothly. 'Yes,"the young man said again.

Then," the lawyer encountered the instant, "where did you get revoluer?"

Dick started to answer without hought.

"Why, ! grabbed it-" Then. the significance of this crashed on his conscicusness, and he checked the words trembling on his laps. His eyes, which had been downeast, lifted and glared on the questioner. "So," he said with swift hostility in his voice, "so, you're trying to trap me, too!" He shrug-ged his shoulders in a way he had doarned abroad. "You! And you talk of friendship. I want none of Such friendship."

Demarest, greatly disconcerted, was skilled, nevertheless, in dissembiling, and he bald his chagrin perfectly. These was only reproach in his voice as he enswered, stoutly: "Lam your friend, Dick."

But Burke would be no longer estrained. He had listened with creasing impatience to the diploatic efforts of the Dictrict Attory, which had ended in total rout. ow, he insisted on employing his vn more drastic, and as he believd, more efficacious, methods. He stood, and spoke in his most threatening manner.

Wou don't want to take us for fools, young man," he said, and his big tones, rumbled harshly through the moom. "If you shot Griggs in mistake for a burglar, why did you try to hide the fact? Why did you precend to are that you and your wife were alsne in the room-when you had that there with you, en? Why didn't you call for help? Why didn't you cal! for the police, as any bonest man would naturally under such circumstances?"

The arraignment was severely logical. Dick showed his appreciation of the justice of it in the whitening of his face, nor did he try to some one's get to pay for killing answer the charges thus hursed at Griggs. I don't have to explain him.

The father, too, appreciated the gravity of the situation. His face was working, as if toward tears "We're trying to save you," he pleaded, tremulously.

Burke persisted in his vehement system of attack. Now, he again brought out the weamon that had done Eddie Grigge to death. "Where'd you get this gun?" he shouted. Dick held his tranquil pose.

"I won't talk any more," he answered, samply. "I must see my His voice became more aggressive. "I want to know what you've done to her." Burke seized on this opening.

"Did she kall Griggs?" he questioned, roughly.

For once, Dick was startled out of his calm. "No, no!" he cried, desperately.

Burke followed up his advantage. "Then, who did?" he demanded. sharply. "Who did?"

"Now, however, the young man structions to the stenographer, Burke had regained his self-control. He turned to U. for and Demarest. answered very quietly, but with an air of finality.

"I won't say any more until I've talked with a lawyer whom I can ever you hear me say, don't you be trust." He shot a yindictive glance toward Demarest.

this man, you must speak to protect yourself." Burke's voice came viciously.

"The gun was found on you. Don't forget that."

"You don't seem to realize the position you're in," the father insisted, despairingly. Think of me. Dick, my boy. It won won't do it for your own sake, do it for mine. The face of the young man softened as he met his father's beseeching eyes. "I'm sorry, Dad," he said very gently. "But I-well, I can't!" Again, Burke interposed. His busy brain was working out a new scheme for solving this irritating problem.

"I'm going to give him a little more time to think things over," he said, curtly. He went back to his chair. "Ferhaps he'll get to understand the importance of what we've been saying pretty soon." He scowled at Dick. "Now, young man," he went on briskly, "you want to do a lot of quick thinking, and a lot of honest thinking, and, when you're ready to tell the truth, let me know."

He presced the button on his desk, and, as the doorman appeared, addressed that functionary.

"Dan, have one of the men take him back. "You wait outside." Dick, whowever, did not more. His voice came with a note of determination. "I want to know about my wife. Where is she?"

Eurke distegarded the question as completely as if it had not been uttered, and went on speaking to the doorman with a suggestion in hie words that was effective.

"Me's not to speak to anyone you understand." Then he conde Then he condescended to give his attention to the prisoner. 'You'll know all about your wife, young man, when you make up your mind to tell me the truth. Dick gave no heed to the Enspector's statement. His eyes were fixed on his father, and there was a great tenderness in their depths. And he apoke very softly:

"Dad, I'm sorry!" The father's gare met the son's, and the eyes of the two locked. There was no other word spoken. Dick turned, and followed his custodian out of the office in silence. Even after the shutting of the door behind the prisoner, the pause endured for some moments. Then at last Burke spoke to the magnate. "You see, Mr Gilder, what we're up against. I can't let him go-

The father strode aeross the room a sudden access of rage.

"He's thinking of that woman, he cried out, in a loud voice. "He's trying to shield her."

"He's a loyal kid, at that,"Burke commented, with a grudging admiration. "I'll say that much for him." His expression grew morose, as again he pressed the button on his desk. "And now," he vouchsafed, "I'll show you the difference." Then, as the doorman reappeared, he gave his order: "Dan, have the Turner woman brought up." He regarded the two men with his bristling brows gulled down in a scowl. "I'l have to try a different game with her," he said thoughtfully. "She sure is a clever little dame. But if she didn't do it herself, she knows who did, all aight." Again, Burke's voice took on its savage note. "And why to Mr Demarest, but to you, Mr Gilder. You see, it's this way: The very foundations of the work done by this department rest on the use of crooks, who are willing to betray their pals for coin. I told you a bit about it last night. Now, you understand, if Griggs murder goes unpunished, it'll put the fear of God into the heart of every stool-pigeon we employ. And then, where'd we be? Tell me that!" The Inspector next called his stenographer, and gave explicit directions. At the back of the room, behind the desk, were three large windows, which opened on a corridor, and across this was a tier of outside one of the windows. dealing with crooks, you have to use crooked ways."

There was a brief period of silence. Then the door opened, and Mary Turner entered the office. She walked slowly forward, moving with the smooth strength and grace that were the proof of perfect health and of perfect poise, the correlation of mind and body in exactnesse Her torm, clearly revealed by the clinging evening dress, was a curving group of graces. The beauty of her "Dick, if you know who killed face was enhanced, rather than lessened, by the pallor of it, for the fading of the richer colors gave to the fine features an expression more spiritual, made plainer the underlying qualities that her accustomed brilliance might half-conceal. She paid absolutely no attention to the other two in the room, but went straight to the desk, and there halted, gazing with her softly penetrant eyes of deepest violet into the face of the Inspector. Under the intent scrutiny, Burke felt a challenge, set himself to match craft with craft. He was not likely to undervalue the wits of one who had flouted him, who, even now, had placed him in a preposterous predicament by this entanglement over the death of a spy. But he was resolved to use his best skill to disarm her sophistication. His large voice was modulated to kindliness as he enoke in a casual manner.

Mary regarded the speaker with an impenetrable expression. Her tenes as she spoke were quite as metter-of-fact as his own had been. in them was no wonder, no exultation. "Then, I can go," she said simply. "Sure, you can go," Burke re-

Without any delay, yet withou any haste, Mary glanced toward Gilder and Demarest, who were watching the scene closely. Her eyes were somehow appraising, but altogether indifferent. Then, she went toward the outer door of the office, still with that almost lackadaisical air. Burke ,waited rather impatiently until she had nearly reached the door before he shot his bolt, with a fine assumtion of carelessness in the announcement. "Garbon has confessed."

Mary, who readily enough had already guessed the essential hypoc risy of all-this play, turned and confronted the Inspector, and answered without the least trace of fear, but with the firmness of knowledge:

"Oh, no, he hasn't!" Her attrude exasperated Burke. His voice reared out wrathfully.

"What's the reason he hasn't?" The music in the tones of the anwer was a vocal rebuke.

"Because he didn't do it." She stated the fact as one without & hint of any contradictory possibility. "Well, he says he did it!"

vociferated, still more loudly. Mary, in her turn, resorted to a bit of finesse, in order to learn whether or not Garson had been arrested. She spoke with a trace of indignation. "But how could he have done it when he went-" she began. The Inspector fell a victim to her superior craft. His guestion came

"Where did he go?" Mary smiled for the first time in that smile the Inspector realized his defeat in the first passage of this game of intrigue between them. "You ought to know," she said, sedately, "since you have arrested him, and he has contessed.

Demarest put up a hand to conceal his smile over the police official's chagrin. Gilder, staring always at this woman who had come to be his Nemesis, was marveling over the beauty and nerve of the one so hating him as to plan the ruin of his life and his son's

Burke was frantic over being worsted thus. To gain a diversion, he reverted to his familiar bullying tactics. His question burst raspingly. It was a question that had come to be constant within his brain during the last few hours, one that obsessed him, that fretted him sorely, almost beyond endurance.

"Who shot Griggs?" he shouted. Mary rested supreme in the presence of this violence. Her answer capped the climax of the officer's exasperation.

"My husband skot a burglar," she said languidly. And then her insolence reached its culmination in a query of her own: "Was his name Grigge?" It was done with splencells. The stenographer was to did art, with a splendid mastery of take his seat in this corridor, just her own emotions, for, even as she spoke the words, she was rememthe windows, the shades were drawn, bering those shuddering seconds when she had stood, only a few hours age, gazing down at the inert easily able to hear every word spo- bulk that had been a man.

Burke betaok himself to another form of attack.

"Oh, you know better than that." he declared, truculently. "You see, ne," he said ener- we've traced the Maxim silencer. se the one to do Garson bimself bought it up in Hart-

"What did he tell you?" he questioned eagerly.

Now, Mary had regained her self-command, and she spoke calmly. "He told me," she said, without a particle of hesitation, "That he had never seen one. Surely, if he had had anything of the sort, he would have shown it to me then." "Probably he did, too!" Burke reioined, without the least suspicion that his surly utterance touched the truth exactly. "Now, see here," he went on, trying to make his voice affable, though with small success, for he was excessively irritated by these repeated failures; "I can make it a lot easier for you if you'll talk. Come on, now! Who killed Griggs?" Mary cast off pretense finally, and spoke malignantly. "That's for you to find out," she said, sneering.

Burke pressed the button on the desk, and, when the doorman appeared, ordered that the prisoner e returned to her cell.

But Mary stood rebellious, and spoke with a resumption of her cynical scorn.

"I suppose," she said, with a glance of contempt toward Demarest, "that it's useless for me to claim my constitutional rights, and demand to see a lawyer?"

"Burke, too, had cast off pretense at last.

"Yes," he agreed, with an evil smirk, "You've guessed it right, the first time.'

Mary spoke to the District Attor-

"I believe," she said, with a new dignity of bearing, "that such is my constitutional right, is it not, Mr Demarest?"

The lawyer sought no evasion of the issue. For that matter, he was coming to have an increasing respect, even admiration, for this young woman, who endured insult and ignominy with a spirit so sturdy, and met strategem with other strategem better devised. So, now, he made his answer with frank honesty. "It is your constutional right, Miss Turner.'

Mary turned her clear eyes on the Inspector, and awaited from that official a reply that was not forthcoming. Truth to tell, Burke was far from comfortable under that survey.

"Well, Inspector?" she inquired, at last.

Burke took refuge, as his wont was when too hard pressed, in a mighty bellow,

'The constitution don't go here!' It was the best he could do, and it shamed him, for he knew its weakness. Again, wrath surged in him, and it surged high. He welcomed the advent of Cassidy, who came hurrying in with a grin of satisfaction on his stolid face.

"Say, Chief," the detective said with animation, in response to Burke's glance of inquiry, "we've got Garson.

Mary's face fell, though the change of expression was almost inperceptible. Only Demarest, a student of much experience, observed the fleeting display of repressed emotion. When the Inspector took thought to look at her she was as impassive as before. Yet, he was minded to try another ruse in his desire to defeat the intelligence since she had been in the room, and of this woman. To this end, he oner under suspicion of murder. ked Gilder and the District Attor ney to withdraw, while he should have a private conversation with the prisoner. As she listened to his request, Mary smiled again in sphinx-like fashion, and there was still on her lips an expression that terred, the value of it loomed above caused the official a pang of doubt, when, at last, the two were left alone together, and he darted a surreptitious glance toward her. Nevertheless, he pressed on his device valuantly.

"Now," he said, with a marked softening of manner, "I'm going to be your friend. "Are you?" Mary's tone was none-ommittal. "Yes," Burke declared, heartily. 'And I mean it! Give up the truth about young Gilder. I know, he shot Griggs, of course. But I'm not taking any stock in that burglar story -not a little bit! No court would, either. What was really back of the killing?" Burke's eyes narrowed cumingly. "Was he jealous of Griggs? Well, that's what he might do then. He's always been a worthless young cub. A rotten deal like this would be about his gait, I guess. . . . Tell me, now: Why did he shoot Eddie Griggs?"

There was coarseness a-plenty in the Inspector's pretense, but it possessed a solitary fundamental virtue: it played on the heart of the woman whom he questioned, aroused it to wrath in defense of her mate. In a second, all poise fled from this girl whose soul was blossoming in the blest realization that a man loved her purely, unselfishly. Her words came stumbling in their haste. Her o. ...k with anger. eves w :..

See here," he They're all crooks. See here," went on, with a sudden change to the respectful in his manner, "why don't you start fresh? I'll give you every chance in the world. I'm dead on the level with you, this time.

But he was too late. By now, Mary had herself well in hand again, vastly ashamed of the short period of self-betrayal caused by the official's artifice against her heart. As she listened to the Inspector's assurances, the mocking expression of her face was not encouraging to that astute individual, but he persevered manfully.

"Just you wait,"he went on cheeron the level with you about this, that I'm really your friend. . . a tracer of crime. He pledged him-There was a letter came for you to your apartment. My men brought it down to me. I've read it. Here it is. I'll read it to you!" He picked up an envelope, which had been lying on the desk, and drew out the single sheet of paper it contained. Mary watched him, wondering much more than her expression revealed over this new development. Then, as she listened, quick interest touched her features to a new life. In her eyes leaped emotions to make or mar a life.

This was the letter:

"I can't go without telling you how sorry I am. There won't never be a time that I won't remember it was me got you sent up, that you did time in my place. I ain't going to forgive myself ever, and I swear I'm going straight always.
"Your true friend,

"Helen Morris."

For once Burke showed a certain delicacy. When he had finished the minnte-only, sat with his cunning eyes on the face of the woman who was immobile there before him.

And, as he looked on her in her slender elegance of form and gentlewomanly loveliness of face, a of victory at last. "I give you my loveliness intelligent and refined word!" beyond that of most women, he felt ed. He fought against the impres- dazzling, the smile of a woman trision. Her acquired instint of thinking within the law set the thing before her as something tremendous in its significance. This letter from the conscience-stricken girl, Helen Morris, was sufficient to prove innocence within the law. Mary's eyes were luminous in the joy of the realization that for her, after all, rehabilitation might be in a measure possible, though noth-

"They'd believe this," he said, briskly. "Why, this letter sets you clear. If old Gilder should see this letter, there's nothing he wouldn't do to make amends for you. He's a square guy himself, if it comes to that, even if he was hard on you. Why, this letter wipes out everything.

Then, the insistent question beating at his brain forced him to speak roughly, building hope on the letter's inestimable worth to the woman before him.

"Who killed Griggs?" There was no reply. And presently, he went on, half-ashamed over his own intrigue against her. "Say," he said, and, for once, his voice was curiously suppressed, "you tell me who shot Griggs, and I'll show this letter to old Gilder. fully, "and I'll prove to you that I'm ascendant. busy with his notes. That single involuntary glance was enough for the keen instruct of the woman to make a guess as to the verity.

"Just tip me off to the truth," Burke went on ingratiatingly, "and I'll get the necessary evidence in my own way. Now, there's nobody here but just you and me. Come on, now-put me wise!"

Mary was again the resourceful woman who was glad to pit her brain against the contriving of those who fought her. So, at this moment, she seemed pliant to the will of the man who urged her thus cunningly. Her quick glance around the office was of a sort to delude reading, he said nothing for a long the Inspector into a belief that she was yielding to his lure.

And that industrious writer of shorthand notes, absorbed in his task, answered instantly from his hidden place in the corridor. "No, ma'am, not quite." Mary laughed aloud, while Burke sat dumbfounded. She rose swiftly, and went to the nearest window, and with a pull at the cord sent the shade flying upward. For seconds, there was revealed the busy stenographer, bent over his pad. Then the noise of the ascending shade, which had been hammering on his consciousness, penetrated, and he looked up. Realization came, as he beheld the woman laughing at him through the window. Consternation beset him. He knew that, somehow, he had bungled fatally. A groan of distress burst from him, and he fled the place in ignominious

There was another whose spirit was equally desirous of flight-Burke! Yet once again, he was beaten at his own game, his cunning made of no avail against the clever interpretation of this woman whom he assailed. He had no defense to offer. He did not care to meet her gaze just then, since he was learning to respect her as one wronged where he had garded her hitherto merely as of the flotsam and jetsam of the criminal class. #### "You can't get away from it."

Halifax Recorder Our Tory contemporary announced the other day: Sir Robert Borden, Premier, issued an order to-day to Commander Hose, of the Rainbow now lying in Esquimault Harbor, to cancel his Behring Sea trip for the present, and remain ready for duty in the vicinity of Victoria and Vancouver.

We gasp with amazement. The "Tin Pot Navy," the Navy "too weak to fight and too slow to get away,' placed by Sir Laird Borden as the one defence for Vancouver? And now the talk is that the Niobe is to be re-manned and put into service. The "Tin-Pot," fit only for junketting trips (as our contemporary frequently remarked up to less than a month ago) to be relied on as a part defence for Halifax? It would be funny if it were not so painful and painful if it were not so funny. There is something in a certain book about "the stone which the builders rejected" coming to occupy a very important position.

Would not our coast cities feel safer if there was a few "Bristol" cruisers, torpedo destroyers and topede boats guarding our harbors? They would have been here if the Borden administration had carried out the Laurier policy. Think it

KITCHENER

One of Britain's greatest assets is Lord Kitchener. He needs no introduction, needless to say, to the British people. He is as well' known an institution of the Empire as St. Paul's Cathedral or the C.P.

When Germany fought France in 1870, she had the brilliant and experienced von Moltke with his years. n. to think as he was in the Boer war. then just turned 50, is now a man of 64 winters, every one of them a good one. He is still apparently hale and strong, and riper both as soldier and administrator than in He is not wearing out like Napoleon in his later campaigns.

Perhaps, after all, it is not an idle thing to recount once more in summary form the impressive career of Britain's greatest captain. Born is Ireland, he studied at Woolwin Academy, and in 1871 entered tie engineers. He was on surveyors duty in 1870, later held a cavaly command in Egypt, and was governor of Suakim (1886-1888). After 1890, as Sirdar of the Egyptan army, he built the Empire of Brtain around the Upper Nile, winning back the Sudan for Egypt and avenging Gordon. For this his honors were legion, including a

Then came the South African success. As in the Sudan, so here; he showed himself statesman as well as soldier. Appointed commanderin-chief in India, he re-organized the military forces there without any encroachment upon civil power. One feature of Kitchener's work is that he is a good citizen and constitutionalist as well as a good sol-

After some other high positions and promotions, Lord Kitchener succeeded Sir E Gorst, in 1911, as British agent and Consul-general in There were misgivings in Radical quarters that he might come into bitter conflict with the Nationalist aspirations in the land of his greatest triumphs. But pessimism has been completely confuted. Kitchener's success in the sphere of civil statesmanship has been no less wonderful than his military feats. To-day he stands upon a great eminence and is the one man to manage the whole British machine in a great war. As Governor of Egypt, the conqueror of the Sudan, interesting himself, like a good engineer, in drains and dams, and though a bachelor, in matters of maternity and infant mortality, Kitchener fills the Egyptians with wonder and awe. His endless energy, quiet enthusiasm for all kinds of hard work. manifold knowledge and experience are an inspiration to the nation's best men. His last annual report tells of a substantial extension of the system of representative institutions, and hints a guardedly progressive policy as regards popular government. Improvement is marked in public health, various ingovernment. teresting and ingenious methods being adopted to educate the people on this head. An original method of protecting small cultivators against money lenders is another achievement. Lord Kitchener seems to be a sound democrat at the core in his expressing "every confidence in the the people of Egypt.'

No wonder the British Government holds this man in London for a critical task. Never was hero more fit and seasoned to deal with a swollen Goliath. He is the Iron Earl (the title conferred only the other day), patient, rigorous, resolute and true, and may yet be the second Iron Duke .- Ottawa Free

Mrs. Susan Smith Sends That Body a Sharp Letter

Mrs. Susan Smith of the Arling tion Hotel, Cobourg, was recently summoned to Division Court for Kitchener, of whom we are still apt neglecting to pay her taxes. Mrs. Smith had been confined to her room through illness for some time but the Council or the officer who was acting did not even call at the office of the hotel. Had he done so the Clerk would have paid the same. In a letter to the Cobourg Council Mrs. Smith closes it thus.

Whatever your reasons and motives may have been I hope that they have been fully gratified and that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have done one of the lowest, meanest, most contemptible and inhuman acts that I can conceive of being perpetrated by any public body.

To the Editor of THE GUIDE.

DEAR SIR:-I would like to call the attention of the town authorities to the fact that Ontario street, from the bridge to Barrett's Terrace and Mill street for about the same distance, is continually being converted into a pasture field, horses and cows running at large, destroying gardens and tearing up lawns. Last night the owner took the precaution to tie the cow, but in such a manner that the rope stretched completely across the driveway leading from Ontario to Mill street. This morning the cow is tied to a tree on the property of Mrs Needham and the cow to wander up and down the concrete walk on Mill street. #### Conductor Grapples With Armed Robbers

Trenton, Aug. 7—To-night, while C. N. R. train No. 10 was running between Trenton and Belleville, an armed robber attempted to hold up Conductor Anderson in one of the passengers coaches. Mr. Anderson, not heeding the robber's command to "give over," grappled with him and succeeded after a desperate struggle in getting his revolver. He then held the prisoner down with his feet while he signalled the engineer to stop the train. The robber, however, renewed his fight, and as the train was stopping, threw himself through the window. The train crew was unable to find any trace of him on the track, and continued to Belleville, where the police were notified.

There were no passengers in the coach where the hold-up occurred. The conductor was walking up the aisle when he was confronted by the robber. His conduct in battling with the armed man is winning him

A Prophetic Statement

Truth, the great English publication, in 1891, had the following re-ference to Emperor William, which is quite applicable at the present juncture:-

"I hear from Germany that Lord Salisbury has failed in gaining the good graces of the German Emperor. That crack-brained youth is indignant at our reception of the French fleet, which he regards as an insult Russia, Italy and England should place their forces at his disposal, and that he should be recognized as the England should dare to welcome the German Empire were to give a friendly reception to M. Only a week ago'officers abroad received a lithographed circular, ordering them to be prepared at a moment's notice to join. #### MY SHIPS

Some ships I had in the long ago, And beautiful ships were they; But over the wide and bounding

My ships have sailed away; ever, no, never, will they return-My beautiful ships to me; For all are wrecked on a distant shore.

Or sunk in the bounding sea.

The one called Youth, in its ardent With its flags and pennants gay,

As it sailed along so brave and strong, Has silently sped away; Fast o'er the deep like a bird it flew,

My beautiful ship from me, Till lost from view and forever gone Far over the deep blue sea.

And one called Fame, a guilded barque.

And prized by conquering Kings, As on it sailed like a blissful dream, As light as zephyrs' wings,

It left no wake as it sailed along, Nor lays of the hero for me; saw it fade as it spread its sails Far out on the bounding sea.

And one called Wealth, a gorgeous craft.

With its masts and spars of gold, And decks aglow with glittering Whose value could ne'er be told; And then away o'er the waves it sailed.

More treasures to bring for me. Tis buried now, in the rolling deep, It sank in the bounding sea.

And Pleasure, one; and fairer ship Ne'er sailed on the ocean blue: The shrouds and masts with flowers entwined.

And garlands of brilliant hue; The tables with luscious fruits were spread,

And richest of sweets for me; But it sailed away, it left no trace; It sank in the rolling sea.

Now far away on the Billows' crest A light of the purest ray Shines bright as the Star of Bethle

That shone on the Magi's way; 'Tis Hope, 'tis Hope, my beautiful

Returning once more to me And bringing me balm and peace and joy From over the raging sea.

FOODSTUFFS ARE RISING IN PRICE

The war in Europe has had an effect on the many different articles manufactured in Canada. The latest is that chocolates and other sweet meats will likely soar very high. The confectioners will feel the effects of the raise in prices on those candies, etc., that they purpital, Peterboro, Monday evening chase from out of town establishas a result of injuries received on ments. Fancy biscuits that come from foreign countries will rise to almost exorbitant prices.

Two of the essentials in the making of chocolates are the cocoa bean and cocoa butter. These are imported from the West Indies but owing to the war scare there are very few vessels running from the islands on the freight trade. The price has risen about seventy-five per cent., and only a limited quantity can be procured at a time. In the case of sugar and flour the mills will sell but a carload to the manufacturers. The Christmas stockings that are made in Germany have arrived in Canada, and a large amount is at Montreal in bond, and the supply will be fair. The great scarcity of food supplies brought on by the war has had a very marked effect on the prices and they are steadily going up. Monday rice was to a pound higher in some centres than a week ago; rolled oats two thirds of a cent higher per pound, making an advance of fifty cents on a ninety pound bag. Starch has advanced one quarter of a cent and syrup fifteen cents per large can and the price by the gross is a quarter of a cent up.

The drug market is feeling the effect of the present situation as all the finer drugs are mostly imported from Germany and at the present time it is impossible to replenish the stock. Carbolic acid has risen very high and in some places is up a hundred per cent. Asuerin and veronal have gone up also. Germany holds the monopoly on these drugs. On Saturday the price of mineral waters rose forty per cent.

The Discouraged Philanthropist

Sir Thomas Lipton, who when first starting in business was very poor, was commenting on American charity.

"It requires a vast amount of courage and charity to be a philanthropist such as Andrew Carnegie, John D Rockefeller, and numerous other noted men in America," he said. "When I started in business I was very poor, and making every sacrifice to enlarge my little shop. My only assistant was a youth of some fifteen years, faithful and honest. One Saturday morning I heard him complaining, and with justice, that his clothes were so shabby that he was ashamed to go to church the following morning. 'All chances of my getting a new suit this summer are over, as my Dad is out of work, and it takes all my wages to pay the rent,' he said.

"I felt sorry for the lad, and, after thinking the matter over I took a sovereign from my carefully hoarded savings and bought the boy a comfortable, good suit of blue cloth. All Efforts to Dislodge Joffre Near Muhlhausen Fail.

BATTLES ON FRENCH SOIL

Despatches Show That Germany's Rush Through Luxemburg Has Succeeded and That Engagements Have Occurred at Long. wy, Longuion and Marville -Aid Is Rushed to Joffre.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—(Via London.)

-According to late advices the Germans made a determined attempt to take the positions occupied by the French outside Muhll ausen, but fail-ed. The Germans did not re-enter the town.
The War Office announces that the French and German troops are in con-tact for twenty miles along the frontier, and that engagements are taking place at Longwy, Longuion and Marville, in France, and at Virton, in Belgium. The War Offic. made an official announcement early yesterday to the effect that the French at Muhlhausen have been compelled to fall back be-mans, and had evacuated Muhlhaus-en, but were holding their own against the German advance. Later a supplementary bulletin was issued by the War Office, in which it was stated that the French troops whom Gen. Joffre had placed in occupation of the city of Muhlhausen had been withdrawn to high ground to the south of that place, and that they had there made a stand against the German army, which was attacking in force, and had fore an overwhelmin; force

eGn. Joffre, it was regarded, had selected advantageous ground for this purpose, and the tactics of the French had proved successful.

repulsed every attempt to dislodge

It is understood here that the Kaiser's army, which had been assembling at Strassburg, had begun its march southwards, and that the advance guard came in touch with the French advance guard at Colmar early, and the latter fell back before them. When Neu Breisach was reached, the garrison there joined the Kaiser's troops and the march southward was continued. Meanwhile a German force, probably a detachment from the Austrian army of thirty thousand, which had marched from the Tyrol, made an attack on the French left flank from Muelheim, and were aided in this by a flying wedge from Neu Breisach.

These attacks were repulsed, and when the advance guard of the Ger-man army arrived at Muhlhausen they found the city already evacuated and the French army in strength on the rising ground beyond. They pressed on their attack, but were driven back. Reinforcements are being brought up as rapidly as possible, and it is anticipated that the biggest battle of the war so far will be fought either there or a little farther south. Reinforcements for Joffre are being rushed from Belfort and across the Vosges Mountains, and the army of the Vosges, it is expected, will attack the German right flank. The French line of retreat is covered, and the latter were supported by artillery.

The unloading of troops from trains continues in the region of Gerolstein, but the principal landings occurred earlier in the rear of Metz and Thionville.

French aviators are constantly flying over the zones where the German troops are disposed without paying the slightest attention to the bursting shells of the enemy. The official communication concludes with the statement that the work of fortifying Luxemburg and south of Metz has been completed by the Germans.

WOMEN USE HOT WATER.

Employes In Belgian Factory Drove Invaders From Village.

PARIS, Aug. 12.—(Via London.)
—According to a special newspaper despatch the woman workers in the Belgian national arms factory at Herstal, just outside of Liege, defended their village against the German attack. The men were away serving in the army and the women, according to the correspondent, swore the German troops should not take the factory. They armed them-selves with revolvers and other wea-pons with which they repulsed several charges of the German Uhlans. When their ammunition was exhausted the women barricaded themselves in the houses from which they poured boiling water on the German soldiers in the streets. The correspondent says 2,000 Germans were disabled by wounds or scalds. Children and old men shared in the defence of Herstal, and yesterday the Belgian colors still floated from the factory building.

Germany Tried to Buy Britain Off, Says Mr. Asquith,

HUGE ARMY ASKED FOR

Lord Kitchener Wants Force Increased by Five Hundred Thousand and Premier Asquith Presents Proposals to Parlfament - Members Cheer as Enormous Sum Is Voted for Operations.

LONDON, Aug. 7. — One of the chost sensational features of the day's developments has been Premier Asquith's exposure in the House of Commons last evening, of what he characterized as the "infamous pro-posals" made to the British Government by Germany in its desperate efforts to induce Great Britain to take gard to the war.

It was announced Wednesday that the Premier would make a statement in the House concerning the negotiations which took place between the British and German Governments preceding the declaration of war, and it was anticipated that he would have some startling revelations to make. The most daring predictions concerning the nature of the revela-tions fell short, however, of the actual facts and Mr. Asquith's expo-sure of what is universally denounced as Germany's infamy, caused a tremendous and painful sensation. The Premier stated that the Kaiser's Government went so far as to propose to barter the French colonies and Belgium in return for British neutrality, and his statement that the British Government promptly and in-dignantly declined to entertain the "infamous proposals," was greeted with round after round of cheering. There was another stirring scene when the House of Commons was asked to vote a war credit amounting to £100,000,000 sterling $500,000,- 000). The enormous appropriation was passed almost in the twinkling of an eye, and with complete unanimity, the members rising and cheering vociferously.

The Premier made a brief reference to the appointment of Field Marshal Kitchener as Secretary of War. He said that Earl Kitchener's connection with the Government did not identify him with any political party. In a great public emergency he responded to a great public call and he would have in the discharge of his most arduous task the complete conin behalf of Lord Kitchener, the Premier asked power to increase the army by not less than half a million men. "I am encouraged to ask this," he said, "not only by reason of our own sense of the gravity of the circum-stances, but, the knowledge that India is prepared to send us two divi-sions, and everyone of the self-governing dominions has spontaneously tendered to the utmost limits of its possibility, both in men and money all the help it can afford the Empire. The Mother Country must set an example, while at the same time respond with gratification and affection to the filial overtures of the outlying members of her family."

Feeling here is growing much calmer since Chancellor Lloyd George's reassuring statement on the financial position in the House of Commons yesterday. By Friday the money crisis should be over with the lowering of the bank rate and the issue of pound and ten shilling notes, while postal orders can also be used as currency and the mint coining more silver, of which there has been a great store. The Government is also taking measures to prevent a rise in prices of necessaries of life and big purveyors of food and provisions had a consultation at the Home Secretary's office vesterday.

King George and Queen Mary have set an example of frugality to their subjects by ordering that nothing but the simplest fare shall be supplied at their table while the war lasts. At the House of Commons the members only take shilling dinners, while a majority of the motor owners are lay-ing up their cars so as not to uselessly consume petrol.

Over thirty alleged German spies were arrested in the last twelve hours in various parts of the country; in one case two suspected of planning to blow up an important line between London and Chatham dockvard. The anti-German feeling is running high and Germans are now rarely seen in public places.

The Bank of England yesterday reduced its discount rate to six per way. Business circles are making ready for the reopening of the banks today, when paper currency in small denominations is to be put in circulation.

Japan To Attack Tsing-Ysu.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 7 .- An official at the Japanese consulate here said yesterday that upon receipt of the first official news of the beginning of the clash of arms between England and Germany, Japan would send a fleet with 10,000 men to attack Tsing-Ysu and 10,000 more to relieve the British garrison at Tien-Tsin and Pekin. Preparations for such action were now under way, he said.

BRITISH FORCE LANDS.

Twenty-Two Thousand Are Pushing Forward to Namur.

PARIS, Aug. 10. - Official announcement was made by the War Office Saturday that English troops arc landing on French soil under the direction of French officers.

It is also reported here that a large force of French troops has reached the vicinity of Liege and that the main French army of relief is now on Belgian soil and hurrying forward by extraordinary marches.

The British troops, according to newspaper advices received here, comprise the first British expeditionary force of 22,000 men, and include some of the crack regiments of the British army. They were brought across the Channel by a fleet of transports under the convoy of two battleships and three armored cruisers, and landings were made at Ostend, Calais and Dunkirk.

The froops, it is understood here. will be rushed to Namur to assist in the defence of that town, where it is expected the chief stand against the German invasion of Belgium will be made.

The present force is only a part and is expected to send to the de-fence of Belgium, the War Omce yes-terday admitted. It was said that the British Government already had completed arrangements, including the commandeering of sufficient transports, to send an army of 100,000 men into Belgium.

Although five strong British war essels convoyed the troopships which arrived yesterday, it is reported that Great Britain is not depending entirely on these convoys, but strung a line of British cruisers across the Channel to keep the way clear in preparation for the movement of other troopships.

FRENCH TAKE FORT

Main Force Enters Alsace and Captures Mulhausen.

THE DEATH LIST IS 45,000

Germans Have Lost 30,000 and French 15.000 In Desperate Battle In German Territory and Victorious Gen. Joffre Is Said To Be Marching on Strasburg-All France Is Delighted.

LONDON, Aug. 10 .- A large German force has suffered overwhelming defeat at the hands of what is supposed to be the main French force at-Mulhausen, in Alsace-Lorraine, Despatches from Paris, some of them official, make it clear that the fighting between French and Germans at Alsace-Lorraine has been of the flercest and most desperate character, and that the casualties on both sides have been enormous.

In German losses, in the operations which resulted in their evacuation, first at Altkirch and afterwards at Mulhausen, are said to have been 30,000 men, while the French admit loss of about 15,000.

The Kaiser's reported start for the front, following news of the French wictory in Alsace, is considered to mean that Germany is about to strike at France in full force, and that a general engagement is imminent. Austrian troops, numbering 40,000, are said to be in the vicinity of Basle, near which two battles are impending.

It was reliably reported that in consequence of the reverse suffered by the German arms in Alsace-Lorraine, the Kaiser is hurrying from Berlin to direct the operations of the German army, which is reported to be massing a few miles to the north of Barele.
The French War Office is maintain ing strict secrecy with regard to the numbers and intentions of their army, which is advancing across Alsace-Lorraine, but is believed to number 250,000 men, and to be led by Gen. Joffre in person.

Authentic advices received in Paris declare that the French forces displayed great gallantry in the desperate battle before Muhlhausen, cap turing the fortification at that point. It is believed that the French forces are now pushing on in the direction of Strasburg. It is officially stated by the French War Office that the Germans have retired from Neu Brisuich, and that before doing so they burned the provision and forage in the de-Pots there. - Unofficially, it is declared that many Alsatians sympathizers with France have been ruthlessly shot and others mercilessly beaten by retiring Germans.

An official report of the capture by the French of the village of Altkirch, in Alsace, says that the French advance guard arrived before the place before nightfall Friday. The town was defended by strong earthworks and occupied by a German brigade. The French, in about equal number, carried the breastworks in a fierce bayonet charge. The Germans broke, abandoring the trenches and the town. A regiment of French dragoons pursued the retreating Ger-mans in the direction of Wallheim and Togoschen, inflicting further great losses.

Darkness permitted the Germans to conceal themselves, and the French entered the city amid the cheers of the people. At dawn the advance guard resumed its march. The cavalry failed to find German patrols, and the march of the entire brigade on Mulhausen was begun. On Saturday afternoon the scouts found that numerous and important defences protecting the city had been abandoned, and in less than half an hour the French occupied Mulhausen. Later it was learned that the Germans had retired in the direction of lieu Breisach. Gen. John, who has received the congratulations of the War Department, addressed a proclamation to Alsace, saying that the French soldiers were the first workers in a great task of revenge. It is unofficially reported that Kolmar, a city forty miles southwest of St asburg, in Alsace-Lorraine, has been occupied by the French.

The invasion of lower Alsace by a French army under the command of Gen. Joseph Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, has awakened great enthusiasm throughout France. French military authorities, while recognizing that the occupation of Altkirch and Mulhausen by the French troops is not of high strategical importance, are of the opinion that the successful advance of the French army far across the German frontier will have considerable moral effect. It is also unofficially reported that Kolmar, further to the north, has fallen into the hands of the French. None of these three places was strongly fortified.

Germany Always Intended To Fight. PARIS, Aug. 10 .- An official statement issued Saturday says that German mobilization posters placed on walls in the towns of Vic and Moyenvio, in Alsace-Lorraine, prove the French contention that the war was premeditated on the part of Germany.

The towns were occupied by the French Friday and according to the statement the posters which they found afforded them valuable information concerning Germany's mobilization, besides revealing that Germany had decided upon war at the time that the Triple Entente was redoubling its efforts for peace.

Thirty-Eight Houses Burn After Gasoline Stove Explodes.

GRIMSBY BEACH, Aug. 10 .-Thirty-eight houses were totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon as the result of the exploding of a gaso-line stove in the home of W. Terryberry. A total loss of nearly $60,000 was entailed. The explosion occurred shortly before two o'clock, and in a little more than an hour the thirtyeight homes were burned to the ground, despite the efforts of the cottagers to save them. Men, women and children worked heroically in attempting to stop the raging fire. The residents were successful in getting considerable of the household goods out of the buildings, but owing to the sparks most of this caught fire and was totally ruined.

Luckily no one was seriously injured. Mrs. Terryberry, in whose home the fire started was slightly burned, and a young lad had his arm broken in jumping off a roof. Several men had a narrow escape when they climbed to the roofs of the buildings.

Britain Now Controls the Seas Without a Battle and German Trade Is Paralyzed - Food Supplies Cut Off - Australian Force Sails

For England at Once - Is Austria Seeking Peace? LONDON, Aug. 10 .- The Admiral-

ty has announced that one of the cruiser squadrons of the main beet was attacked yesterday by German submarines. None of the British ships were damaged. One German submarine boat was sunk. No details were given as to the place at which the fight occurred. Sea power, or command of the sea, it is said by naval experts here, may be exercised without the main fleets becoming engaged at all. They may affect their object by what Rear Admiral Mahan calls noiseless or static force, so long as the German fleet is placed in such circumstances that it must either remain in port under the shelter of fortifications, and its screen of destroyers, or risk fighting at manifest disadvantage. These conditions may continue to rule. Meanwhile the theatre of war is closed to German merchant shipping. The long lists of captures of German merchantmen appearing every day are evidence of the exercise of sea pressure.

Nothing in the shape of food can enter Germany by sea. Her seaboard supplies of every kind are stopped. Cessation of her trade and commerce and the consequent scarcity will presently have an effect upon her population generally, also upon the provisioning of her buge military force.

The British War Office announces that the Government has accepted Canada's offer of the cruisers Niobe and Rainbow, and that the vessels will be used to assist in the work of protecting the commerce of the Empire. It is further officially announced that the British Government gratefully accepts Canada's offer to send an expeditionary force of 20,000 men to the United Kingdom, and also Canada's gift of 98,000,000 pounds of flour. A despatch from Sydney, New South Wales, to The Central News, states that an Australian expeditionary force is sailing for England immediately, and it is officially reported from Nairobi, British East Africa, that a British cruiser has destroyed the German wireless station at Dar-essalam. The frenzied outpourings of the Kaiser are taken as a sure indication that he is maddened by the discrediting reverses suffered at the hands of the Belgians, the true facts are still undisclosed in Germany, according to the latest arrivals.

London, but for the presence of large numbers of territorials and the absence of motor cars, is steadily resuming its normal aspect. The money difficulty has been removed and war news is awaited with calm confidence. An extraordinary situation exists between Great Britain and Austria. Austria is said to have declined to assist the German cruiser Goeben in the Mediterranean because she is not at war with Great Britain, while at the same time a despatch is published from Brindisi that an Austrian cruiser was chased into port half sinking after an encounter with three British torpedo boats. Despite a strong demand that the Austrian Ambassador, Count Mensdorff, his passports, he still remains, and it is rumored in diplomatic circles that he has been making further proposals within the past two days with a view to peace. But Germany will get no peace now from the triple entente and Belgium without paying a heavy penalty for her acts of brigandage and being placed in a position to disable her from repeating the perform-

NO OTHER DAMAGE DONE CABINET PASSES ORDERS

Action Is Taken to Impose a Censorship Over Outgoing Messages, to Provide for Successive Mobilizations of Militia and to Fit Out Contingent for Service-Food and Fuel Inquiry.

OTTAWA, Aug. 7 .- The following official statement was issued last night:

"On his return to Ottawa on Saturday, Aug. 1, the Prime Minister sent a cable message to the Imperial Government, informing them that Canada was prepared to send an expeditionary force for service abroad if required. Last evening a reply was received accepting this offer and the force will be organized at once by voluntary enlistment.

"Several important orders-incouncil were passed vesterday. An order-in-council was passed providing for an effective censorship staff at Ottawa and Halifax and the several cable stations on the Atlantic and on the Pacific

"Another order was passed calling out for active service such portions of the militia as may from time to time be desired by the governorin-council.

"A further order was passed providing for raising and organizing a force for service abroad and for making and perfecting all necessary arrangements to call them to enlist and be enrolled in His Majesty's service for such period and under such conditions as may be arranged. enlistment and enrolment will be entirely voluntary. It is understood that the chief difficulty will arise through the enormous number of applications to serve abroad.

"Another order-in-council passed yesterday prohibits the exportation from Canada during the war of arms, munitions, warlike equipment and warious other articles which will probably be required for defensive purposes or which might be useful to the enemy."

"There appears to be an impression that, owing to the war, there may be a scarcity of food and fuel supplies in Canada. There is also a fear that prices may be advanced to an unreasonable extent.

"The Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, and the Hon. J. D. Reid. acting Minister of Trade and Commerce, met yesterday and appointed officials of each Department to investigate the rumors of enhanced prices in order that the Government may take any action necessary to prevent an undue advantage of this kind being taken. As to supplies of food and fuel, the Ministers say there need be no cause for alarm, in respect to either, as there are ample supplies of these commodities available for use in Canada.

"It is hoped that the press of Canada will remember that the secrecy of military and naval preparations to refrain from publishing unfounded and disturbing rumors which

The order to enlist men for the contingent was telegraphed at once to the commanding officer of each divisional area. He in turn will notify the commander of each military unit. This legalizes the recruiting whether it had already begun or not. The commanders of the units will send their lists of recruits direct to headquarters at Ottawa, where the selections will be made of officers, noncommissioned officers and men who will form the army division that is to be formed. The recruiting will take only a couple of days. The rolls are expected to 'e all received at headquarters by the middle of next week. An army division ordinarily includes three brigades of artillery of three batteries each, but it is not known yet whether the artillery of the army division will be of this strength.

Children To Harvest Crops. PARIS, Aug. 7. — Food remains pientiful in Paris and prices have only very slightly increased since the outbreak of war. Meat and vegetables are the principal commodities affected as retailers find difficulty in bringing them from the central depots owing to all delivery wagons having been requisitioned for military purposes.

The problem of getting in the harvest has given much cause for thought to the French Ministry of Agriculture, which is considering a scheme for replacing the men who have joined the army by training all man boats in East Indian waters children from 10 to 16 years of age in field work, under the guidance of old people.

The loca-tion of the troops of the three armies was not revealed, but in any future operations it is understood they will at together.

TRIED TO WRECK TRAIN.

Miscreants Put Explosive on C. N. R.

Track-Lines Will Be Patrolled. TORONTO, Aug. 7 .-- Grave significance is attached to the news which has just reached Toronto that an attempt was made within the last forty-eight hours to wreck a Canadian Northern Railway train by dynamite.

The attempt occurred at Falding station, near Parry Sound, on the road to Winnipeg. Dynamite in a sufficient quantity to blow up a train was placed on the track. Fortunately it was removed in time and the danger averted.

Partly as a result of this attempt. and partly by arrangements already made, the C. N. R. lines are to be guarded by armed men in the company's employ. Application has been made to the military authorities hers for arms and ammunition, which is to be supplied immediately.

Bridges and all the company's more important buildings will be placed under strong guards as soon as equipment is issued. It is understood that similar precautions are being taken on all the other lines in Canada. An oath similar to the oath of allegiance is being administered to the guards and only the most trusted employes of each company are being placed on duty.

voted himself to his daughters.

The end came while Mrs. Wilson was unconscious. Her illness took a turn for the worse shortly before one o'clock in the afternoon, and from then on she grew gradually weaker.

TROOPS TO GO TO FRONT

It Is Stated That the Canadian Force Will Be Sent to Belgium Immediately on Arrival In Britain-German and Austrian Consuls

Are Given Forty-Eight Hours to Leave Country.

OTTAWA, Aug. 8. - The Government has under consideration, it is understood, a proposal that it should take over from the contractors the eastern section of the National Transcontinental from Levis to Moncton and equip and operate it. The reason given for this proposal is that the C.P.R. could not handle any troops or war supplies sent down to the Maritime Provinces since its line runs through the State of Maine, and the United States as a neutral country could not allow it. This would put the whole traffic on the Intercolonial in addition to its regular business and it is represented that the I. C. R. might not be able to stand the strain. The taking over the eastern section of the N. T. R. it is urg-ed would solve the whole difficulty. The contractors of the eastern section, it is said, would be glad to see the suggestion adopted.

When Parliament meets in special session on Aug. 18 one of the questions to be seriously considered will be the provision for the men who go to the front, and who may be incapacitated in any way, as well as for the families of the men who are incapacitated or killed. This is a matter that many men are compell-ed to take into account when they think of enlisting, and there is every reason to believe that Parliament will make full provision so that those who go forth to fight for their country will not need to worry about what will happen to those dependent on them if they do not return.

Recruiting is in full swing to-day all over Canada. In addition to the Canadians who are volunteering, applications have been received from many British army officers who cannot get passages home and would the Canadian contingent.

The arrangements for transportation of troops to Quebec are not completed, but officials of the railways are here now and no difficulty is feared in this. The railways had a splendid practice in June in mobilizing the 13,000 men who came to the Petawawa camp.

The wireless station has been moved from Petawawa and placed on top of the Militia Department building. The Department is now in direct communication with the stations down the gulf and in the Maritime Provinces.

The announcement that it is the intention of the British War Office to send the Canadian contingent to the front has tended not one whit to dampen the ardor of the members of the Ottawa corps. DKUTAL TO KEFUGEES.

German Soldiery Cruelly Ill-Treated Foreigners on Trains.

LONDON, Aug. 8. — The Berlin correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, who has reached Stockholm, sends the following despatch:

"The scene witnessed at Sessnith a famous watering place on the east ccast of the German island of Rugen, in the Baltic Sea, baffled all description. Some 5.000 Russian refugees turned out on the quay, were left to struggle for access to a steamer which was reached by only a single gangway. The vessel was obliged to sail, leaving 3,000 of them in despair, be-lieving that the last chance to return to their country had gone.

The correspondent says that har-rowing stories have been told by refugees who are arriving at Stockholm by the thousands. Many of them were moved about by the train for four or five days, without any idea as to what was being done for them. Foreigners taking the cure at Wiesbaden and Kissingen were glad to crowd the fourth class cars in their desire to get away.

"They were like poultry in crates," the correspondent adds, "without food or drink, and almost without air for fifteen hours at a time. During the nights when they were not in the train they were turned into cow sheds at slaughter houses. Everywhere they were subjected to a continuous fire of insults from the sol-diers, especially the officers. Women delicate breeding were openly threatened with violence, and all before the declaration of war.

'Among the victims was M. Kasso, former Russian Minister of Educa-tion. Twice he was placed under arrest, in spite of the knowledge of his identity, and packed into a fourth class carriage. Councillor of State Schreiber and his wife were assaulted by officers, to whom they ventured to complain. Wives were separated from husbands and parents from their children. No consideration was shown either for age, sex or infirmity. Many persons are now in ignorance of the whereabouts of those dearest to them."

ITALY WILL NOT MOVE.

All Germany's Efforts Cannot Upset Her Neutrality.

ROME, Aug. 8 .- (Via Paris.) .-The German Government is using its itmost efforts to bring a change in Italy's attitude in the present European situation. Direct appeals have even been made to King Victor Emanuel, but all in vain. It is asserted that Italy, having declared her neutrality, intends to maintain it.

Italy's position as a member of the Triple Alliance and therefore an ally of Germany under certain conditions. has been discussed in every phase, and the general consensus of opinion seems to be that the Italian people would never permit an act of hostility against France and Great Britain.

JAR YOU? Which will explain how Skip Hoey and his heavyweights felt after the final for the Reynolds Cup last night. Modesty forbids us giving all the horrible details of the slaughter, but we might observe that for nine straight ends Hoey's tally on the score-board was represented by a big, fat, round "blub" just like this-O. Wouldn't that bump you, Mabel?

Starring for the "Bunting Beauts' were Johnson (substituting lead for Hunt) and Reynolds. "Hank" handed them hot shots all night hanging 'em up around the "kitty" in great style. For the losers Tom Westlick had the time of his young lifé. Skip Hoey and "The Iron Duke" (alias "Scarlet Runner") were distinctly off form. "Dave" says he has a whole lot of sympathy with the Kaiser just now.

And, notwithstanding what has been stated in these columns to the contrary, THIS is the Champion Rink of the Bowling Club for 1914:

1. R. BUNTING, Skip H. REYNOLDS, Vice Skip H. SWALLOW R. P. HUNT.

Here's to 'em, boys.

ANCIENT HISTORY

Skip Hoey defeated Skip Alex Gordon in the play off for the Championship of section B, and then Skip Bunting defeated Skip Hoey. What would the score have been against Skip Gordon? Our office boy has been busy figuring on it all morning and handed us the following answer.

"I find after careful figuring that Skip Gordon would be busy next morning explaining how he nearly scored at one end.

MARKET PRICES TOO HIGH .- The Market bylaw was introduced to give the people of Port Hope cheaper meat. Last Saturday the market butchers were asking 25c a pound for lamb chops and you could buy them in any butcher shop for that price. In Cobourg the butchers on the market after about three weeks raised the prices in keeping with those of the regular butchers and it was not until the Council threatened to repeal the bylaw, that a reduction was made. What will our Council

RARE DELICACY-"Beefsteak is soon to be a rare table delicacy," states a despatch from Chicago, further states that good cattle there are bringing $10 a hundredweight on the hoot. Then it against her leg and purred. She went on to declare that "Cattle on laid her candy down on a box to the hoof will be selling for S11 before August has passed. Before tired of play, she went to get her Christmas $12 will be paid for them, but the real scarcity will not be felt until 1915. That is a prohecy uttered by live stock commission men in Chicago and in other western market centres who had felt a severe shortage in cattle even before the war alarm developed."

MORE READY FOR WAR .- Charles Floody, Fred Milne and Elmer Thomas enlisted with No. 1 Company of the 46th Regiment last Friday evening.

'TIS A MARVELLOUS THING .-When the cures effected by Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil are considered the speedy and permanent relief it has brought to the suffering wherever it has been used it must be regarded as a marvellous thing that so potent a medicine should result from the six ingredients which enter into its composition. A trial will convince the most skeptical of its healing virtues.

NOT FOR ANY PERPOSE. - It was reported that a German was making a careful inspection of our drill shed and the armament last Saturday. Upon investigation it was found that the report was true, but the said German was not at all in sympathy with the Kaiser. And - y' know it is correct for we have often heard him say that he would like to go to the mat (wire preferred) with the Kaiser.

HAD TO CLIMB ROPE LADDER .-Employees engaged in the construction of a single span arch bridge of Oregon Trunk Line over the Crooked river climbed up a rope ladder 300 feet up the side of a solid wall of rock daily in going to their work. Camp was established in the canyon on account of the water supply. An One is just as important as the other. A Boon FOR THE BILIOUS .- The liver is a very sensitive organ and is easily deranged. When this occurs, there is undue secretion of the bile and the acrid liquid flows into the stomach and sours it. It is a most distressing ailment and many are prone to it. In this condition a man finds the best remedy in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills which are waranted to speedily correct the disorder. There is no better medicine in the entire list of pill preparations.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE .- Cyril Gibson, of Oshawa, appeared before Police Magistrate Boggs, Cobourg, on Tuesday morning charged with unlawfully stealing one military coat and some money, postal cards, flags and badges the property of John Erskine of this town. The theft was committed on the return trip from Petawawa, both being members of the Cobourg Heavy Battery. Gibson was found guilty but was allowed to go on suspended sentence, having promised to make

TENDER-HEARTED .- One day I was in a country store when a sweet little four-year-old girl came toddling in and bought a nickel's worth of candy. A little kitten rubbed play with the kitten. When she candy again. But it was gone. Some one had stolen it. Her little face became sad. Something seemed to choke her. Big tears welled up in her eyes and rolled down her cheeks. Poor little thing! I felt so sorry for her that I gave half a stick of it back to her!-August
