HOPE TOWNSHIP

Harcourt's Barn With Terrible Results.

PERPETRATOR UP FOR TRIAL

One of the most fiendish acts which has come to our notice for some time was committed in the Township of Hope on Sunday morning. Thomas Kow, a travelling tramp, who shows every evidence of being on a big spree, was the perpetrator. Kow left Toronto some time last week, and was making the journey to Kingston on foot. When near the village of Wesleyville, just a few miles from Port Hope, he sought shelter in a barn, but was quickly ejected by the own-A Great Treat, But The Crowd was er. He continued his tramp until buildings on Queen street. It is a about four o'clock Sunday morning, but still smarting under the disappointment of being denied his night's A Fine Program And Much rest he decided to fire every barn along the line. His first call was at Mr. Wm. Harcourt's, the first farm west of the school house on the Lake Shore Road, and here he started a fire in the hay mow. He dropped which attended the Band Concert in into the school and ignited a bundle of small rags, but fortunately they were wet and the blaze died out before any damage was done. On reaching the road again Kow was Hope shows very little appreciation at loss to know which way he had been travelling and started back towards Toronto.

The large straw stack on the Lyall farm afforded another temptation for the fire fiend and he placed a match to this. The stack was only a short distance from the barn, and it is a miracle that the barn west, called at Elijah Barrowclough's and Frank Little's, but fortunately the dogs at each place frightened him away or otherwise both these gentlemen would have been minus their barns today.

Mr. Harcourt's house being situated quite a distance from the barn he did not receive the slightest alarm, and it was not until 5.30 o'clock when he awoke that he learned of the sad disaster which had befallen him. The large barn was nothing but a mass of charred wood and the contents, including nine horses, twenty-six head of cattle, twenty hogs, a number of fowl, and the entire season's crop, were destroyed. Three thousand dollars, which is a low estimate, wiped out through the work of some mean contemptible character. Mr. Harcourt has only a small insurance of $400. The farm is owned by Mrs. Ketchinson of Belleville.

The news of the affair spread rapidly and the neighbors responded. Reeve Dickinson and Walker Sculthorp went in search of the perpetrator. With the aid of a lantern they tracked him through the light snow and captured him in a ditch about a mile west of Wesleyville. He offered no resistance and admitted the burning of the barn and the straw stack. Through cold and hunger he was about on the verge of collapse, and Mr. Dickinson provided him with a hot breakfast. He was then brought to town and handed over to Chief Bond.

It is thought by many that Kow is not of sound mind, but he talks quite rational. It hardly seems possible that a person in a right frame of mind would be guilty of such an act, but again the fact must not be overlook that there are some bad men in the world. He is a French Canadian and lived for some time at 505 Notre Dame street, Montreal. When speaking to The Guide representative Sunday afternoon he said that he was not sorry for what he had done. He was tired tramping about the country half starved the greater part of the time and he wanted to go to jail. When asked why he did not commit a milder offence he replied that he did not consider the seriousness of it at all. He did not care what became of him, but he would object to being hanged. He didn't think he would take well at all to that operation. He served eight months recently in Montreal for robbing his employer of $50, and four months in Ottawa for assault upon a young lady. He is 39 years of age, and has no relatives living in Canada. His one desire is to go to jail, but he is certainly deserving of more punishment than mere conthat the crowd might mob him, appeared in Court on Monday, and pleaded guilty to firing the barn of Wm. Harcourt's and the straw stack of Hiram Lyall's. Crown Attorney Kerr conducted the prosecution and the accused was sent down

OUEEN STREET SEWER

Correspondent Was a Little Astray In His Account

A correspondent signing himself "Ratepayer for many years" wrote "About Our Sewers" and appeared to be very uneasy regarding the town's position. When the Provincial Health authorities approve of the sewers in the first place and now inspect and again endorse the town sewers, we need not feel uneasy on that score.

However the writer of that article has gone all wrong on one aspect of the case at least : a four inch tile was all the original plans called for to drain the basement of the public fact though, that when the drain was laid it was a 15 inch tile, and the outlet was made through a mass of loose stone on Queen street about opposite Rutter's Marble

For years the water from this drain perculated through the loose stones and left that part of Queen street constantly wet.

Dr. L. B. Powers went to Ottawa and through his personal influence with the late Hon. James Sutherland, who was at that time Minister of Public Works, got the drain extended with a proper outlet into the creek. Mr. Sutherland at once gave instructions to have the work

The sewer composed of proper 15 inch sewer tile now runs from the Post Office to below Peter Street Bridge, where it empties into the was not burned. Kow proceeded creek by a heavy cast iron 15 inch outlet, and the mouth is two feet below the surface at low water-is about four feet under at the present

The distance from Walton street to the sewer is the same as when it was built, and we doubt if it would cost anything like $700 to connect if that should be necessary.

A COSTLY FIRE

Mr. Harcourt a Heavy Loser-List of Contents Destroyed.

Had Insurance of Only Four

Mr. Wm. Harcourt, Lake Shore Road, is a very heavy loser by the fire which destroyed his barn last Saturday. Here his little aff was wrapped up, and to-day nothing remains. The barn is a mass of charred wood, and the contents were totally destroyed. They consisted of the following:

Nine horses, twenty-six head of cattle, twenty hogs, twenty-five Harcourt and the straw stack of acres unthreshed oats, twenty acres Charles H. Lvall, and after the eviof wheat, sixteen acres of barley, five tons of hay and a number of implements. To cover this he has only the small insurance of $400.

No doubt the appeal for help which appears in another part of this issue, will be liberally responded to.

A HEAVY LOSS

Much sympathy is expressed on all sides for Mr. Wm. Harcourt for the severe loss he sustained by the recent incendiary fire. Several subscription lists are being circulated in township and as a number of our townspeople are desirous of helping; the GUIDE will receive subscriptions. All contributions will be acknowledged thru this paper and no doubt the response to such a deserving cause will be a liberal one.

BAD ACCIDENT

On Cobourg Road Two Rigs Collide And One Horse Killed

Both Parties Claim to be in The Right

A serious accident occurred on

Peter street, just west of Mr. N. Gill's rssidence, about 7.30 o'clock Saturday evening. Charles Davis and Harry Hugh were driving a livery rig of C A Hagerman's to Cobourg and they collided with Sidney Macklin, who was driving to the station with a load of milk. The shaft of the rig driven by Davis struck the Macklin horse in the groin and penetrated the flesh about fifteen inches. After much difficulty the shaft was removed but the unfortunate animal died in about ten minutes. The livery horse was uninjured, but the rig was slightly damaged. Both riders claim to have been on the proper side of the road, and the dispute is likely to be settled in court, although Mr. Macklin has offered to settle for $50. Both parties complain that the electric lamp at the corner of King and Peter streets was not burning

"If you found it in the cells why didn't you give it up when the matron asked you to?" inquired His Worship.

"I wasn't going to give it up until I found out to whom it belonged," replied the prisoner.

"Ah, I see," said Magistrate Denison; "well, I think that I'll send you down for six months hard labor in the Mercer Reformatory."

RETURN OF THE CHILD

The thorough character of the search being carried on seems to have alarmed some friends of the woman. Yesterday morning Mr. Marion and the Chief were approached by an Advocate who claimed to be acting for Mrs. Marvis and from the admissions made by him and subsequent negotiations, Chief Vincent feels confident of the return of the child, and perhaps the surrender of the woman to the authorities in the course of a week. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Marion will join in hoping the Chief may prove to be a true prophet in this instance, at least.

To The Editor of THE GUIDE:

dations. It was the wise builder sold everywhere in 50c. boxes. who put his house upon the rock and the foolish one who planted his upon the sand. This illustrates a principle of wide application and one which has a very important place in A the region of morals, as well as in material things. It a foundation is good it will bear inspection, if not, t needs it. For this reason, might it not be well to make at the present time, a thorough and judicious application of the principle to the affairs and conditions of our own town, this beautiful and now growng town in which we live.

Are our foundations good? Or to put the matter in plain terms, are we as a body of citizens sound, are we as earnest as we ought to be, on all those moral questions and issues which so vitally concern us all, and on which a strong and united public opinion ought at all times to make tself known and felt? I suppose that, taken as a whole, Port Hope in the matter of general morality would safely bear comparison with any other Canadian town of its size, doing all we can do, all that we the community. Try it." probable that through want of work, nard times and large accessions to the ranks of idleness, the temptation to crime will be strong this winter. Have we considered and guarded not be difficult for the police to get against this possibility? Are we exercising any false economy in our provisions for protecting life and property? In such matters as the prevention of juveuile vice and lawlessness, the throwing of necessary safeguards around our youth, the strict enforcement of our license laws, the observance of the Lord's Day, and the promotion of social integrity and purity. Is there not much more that from the standpoint of citizenship, and irrespective of creed, could and ought to be done? But true or otherwise, that while here as everywhere else, evil forces and immoral agencies are ever active and alert, our moral forces are largely disorganized, divided and ineffective. It was stated here not long ago that one of the greatest dangers ed with a prescription known to married, 30 could neither read which menace our christian civilization is not hostility to good, but indifference to evil. CHILD ATTACKED AND BITTEN BY RATS

Little Montreal Girl Has Her Hands Badly Mangled

While in bed a few nights ago little Rebecca Yonofsky, whose parents reside at 601 St. Lawrence street, Montreal, had both her hands badly mangled by rats. The child had to be taken to the General Hospital. The mother heard the little tot moaning but thought at first she was only dreaming. When little Rebecca began to cry the mother hurried to her assistance and had to drive the rodents away with a club. For some time the neighborhood has been literally infested with them.

MUSIC FAILED TO SOOTHE

Paderewski's Montreal Recital Caused a Law Suit

Montreal, Nov. 27.-As an outcome of the rush for seats at the Paderewski concert here on Monlay night, an interesting law suit is pending. About fifty platform seats were sold, but when Paderewski saw the chairs around his piano he objected, and insisted on having the platform to himself. People who had platform seats were offered their money back, and given the alternative of going into a few of the more expensive seats that were vacant on paying the difference. Most of them quietly accepted the inevitable; but one man, named Thomas Allard, refused to be consoled. He had paid for his seat, he said, and he intended to have it. He refused either to take his money back or pay the difference for a more expensive seat. When Only Double Track Line to Chicago he was finally persuaded to leave the platform he called up his lawyers, and to-day an action for $200 damages confronts Mr. Veitch, the man who gave the recital.

Toronto, Nov. 27 .- Although coal, references to the weather are usually being made in satisfied

At the observatory, it is stated that the absence of snow so late in the fall is something unusual, but no theories as to the reason are advanced. Those who have followed Rugby football for years will find it no easy matter to recall a previous season when final games were not played off under more or less snowy conditions, but the gridiron struggles of 1907 are over and the padded outfits packed away, and still the ground is clear of any vestige of what the poets call earth's white mantle.

What is true of Ontario, leaving out the northern portion, is true also of the whole of Canada, with the exception of Quebec. There is 5 inches of snow in Montreal, and in different parts of the province sleighing is very fair. In Ontario yesterday there were some slight snow flurries, and at Whitby the ground was white, but a fine drizzling rain, such as visited Toronto, was pretty general. Heart Strength Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Norve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak leart in a hundred is, in facility actually diseased. It is amost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Norve—simply needs, and must have, more gowering strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and hidneys also have here same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and alling Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painted, palphining, suffoculting heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds: it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help. Rose crossed over and sat by him.

But the prince would not take upon himself the responsibility of settling the smallest thing. He trusted himself in her hands like a child, as soon as she had touched his feelings.

"Anywhere, anywhere you like, said he docily, drawing his hand affectionately over hers. "I will go with you wherever you please."

Rose felt again irritated by this lamb-like submission to the will of a stranger. She felt, too, that the heard him mention my name?" situation was rather awkward. When he came to himself, his teeth chattered and the tears ran down his cheeks; so that by the been pampered and spoilt until no time they arrived at the hotel, Siegtried was such a piteous object, with livid cheeks and nose blue from fault? If his brain had been cold, that is was quite unnecessary for Rose to give any explanation to remain inactive till he lost the that he was an invalid. The only proper powers of both, was he not fear of the people about the place, to be pitied rather than blamed? "My head used to ache so at the back," he explained, "so that I lay awake all night and could get no where. Madam, be merciful to me; rest; and Donald got me this that I migdt have some sleep. I could not do without it now, indeed."

"Of course not," assented Rose. 'Let me see what it is you take, please."

It was not without great difficulty slumbers in the breast of every good that she conquered his reluctance to show it to her; but, by dint of life within her, thrilling her voice patient coaxing, she at last induced him to bring her a long-figured with pity. She raised the fair face glass bottle which she had supposed with her hands, and looked into to contain smelling salts. This, he said, would hold enough for three intent earnestness which made him nights. As there was one dose left in the bottle she confiscated it, and decided, from the docility with which he submitted to this arbitrary action, that he had other supplies to draw upon. "I have to excuse it from everybody," said Rose with a laugh, not as if much moved in any way by his words.

"Well, whatever you do, don't rush into matrimony on account of this trust, as you call it, or you will increase tenfold the misfortune this affair is sure to bring upon you."

He had scarcely uttered the words when the door of Siegfried's room opened slowly, and the young prince stood before them. He looked troubled and excited and he glanced from the lawyer to Rose eagerly, as if trying to read their

Even as he spoke, however, the color faded out of his cheeks and left them livid, his breath grew short, his voice weak, while his whole frame trembled. Thinking he was on the point of fainting, Rose hnrried across the room to him, and with a soothing, supporting hand under his arm, led him to the sofa on which she sat down beside him. "You see, prince," she began in the rich, musical voice which had so strong an influence upon him, "unluckily for you, it does not lie with you to make or break my compact with your father. CHAPTER IX

A DANGEROUS TRUST It was a curious situation for two young people of five-and-twenty to find themselves in, though the helplessness of the one and the helpfulness of the other did something to

Siegfried seemed a good deal exhausted by the excitement of the morning, but he was in very good spirits at the result of the lawyer's visit, and suddenly surprised Rose by laying his head on her shoulder like a child.

"Oh, madam," he whispered, "is it selfish to be so glad you are going to stay with me? I will do just what you will, indeed, so that you will not be unhappy."

"Of course you will, prince," said Rose; and gently removing his head from her shoulder, she made him lay down on the sofa; "because I shall wish for nothing but to see you grow well and strong as fast as possible."

"Ah, yes, that you may leave me to marry this gentleman you spoke of !" cried Siegfried, starting up uneasily.

Rose's reply was made in a tone of studied coldness. "I did not bind myself to remain single all my life, prince, when I promised your father to do what I could for his scn." "Of course not madam, of course not," said Siegfried humbly. And must excuse me for giving this for a few moments he lay resting quietly, watching her with furtive eyes as she sat down to the table and directed the envelopes of some already written letters. But presently he broke out again, with great deference, but in a tone of some bitterness :- "This gentleman, madam, who has the happiness of being loved by you, he is no doubt very handsome and clever and accomplished?" "He is good-looking, certainly I don't know that he is specially clever, but he is strong and manly, and can row and ride and drive,' said Rose, assuming an enthusiasm she did not feel, as she thought it might have a good moral effect.

But as a matter of fact her lover's fondness for road and river had began hoarsely, in an apologetic been indulged at some expense to herself.

So I must ask you to excuse me for a little while, prince."

And with very few more words, she left him.

Rose found that there was even more foundation than she had feared for Siegfried's shrewd doubts as to the value of a politician's friendship. Sir Ambrose was courtesy itself, deeply grieved at his late friend's mysterious death, much interested in the welfare of his son. But he was sure he could do no good by inquiries into the mystery, which was no doubt an affair of the arrangements his late majesty private malice, quite unconnected with politics; neither would it be be any advantage to Siegfried for him to see him; he was quite sure the street, against a gentleman the lad was in the best of hands, etc., etc., and the idea of taking one. "Very well. But don't forget, if you should change your mind, that you will be dealing with a desperate man.

Rose calmed him with some kind and re-assuring words, without in the least believing what he said. But Ermyntrude, who was in the room throughout the whole of the pointment at the hospital, and as soon as the young man had taken leave, with more display of tenderness than usual, she seized her sister's arm, and spoke to her very solemnly. "Rose," she said, "you don't understand that man a bit. You have been so used to think too little of yourself that you don't understand when a person thinks too little of you. He looks upon you "The marriages of princes are without a quarter of the real affection you ought to inspire, yet with Promise plenty of real jealousy. me, promise me, Rose, just to put the finishing touch to all you have done for me, not to marry him until I come back, whatever he should

Without much reluctance, but Rose gave the required promise, and they separated, each thinking

But even Ermyntrude, now that give place in Rose's thoughts to anxiety about her singular charge tor an encounter she had on the following day stirred up all her old fears. She had just settled two important matters; one was the tak-ing of a furnished house a few miles out of Scarborough, which the agent had personally inspected, and which seemed to be in every way suitable; the other was the engagement, as nominal housekeeper to the prince, of a most highly respectable middle-aged lady, who promised to make an admirable figurehead to the singular establishment. As Rose left the house where slie had seen Mrs. Willoughby Thomson, the housekeeper-elect, she ran, in turning the corner at the end of who was coming from the opposite direction. He raised his hat in apology, and then, as if with great surprise, ejaculated; Mrs. Revel!

Is it possible? What good fortune!" She turned sick at heart, tor it was Mr. Silchester.

She felt at once that this meeting was not accidental. This was an obscure street, in a shabby-genteel suburb, not one of the big West End thoroughfares where a meeting is no coincidence. She knew now that her movements were watched, spied upon. She stood quite still, answering shortly his inquiries about her health, her movements. When he allowed her to walk on, feeling, on her neck, both girls she did not know what to do, struggling to keep back their tears. what to think; that the meeting Ermyntrude was a lovely girl of boded ill for her charge she knew.

"Oh, I think it is only just to tell you, Mrs. Revel, that if unhappily your care of your young friend should prove unavailingand that he is in an extremely delicate state of health we know-the allowance to you offered by his father during your care of him would still be kept up, perhaps, creased, by - by the young princes friends.

"Thank you," Rose had enough presence of mind to stammer out.

"Good evening."

"Good evening." He did not vanish in a cloud of burning sulphur, as Rose felt that he ought to do, but walked away, looking in his fur-lined overcoat, a very distinguished and well-dressed person.

Rose got back to the hotel in a fever of disquietude. Not until two days later, she was in the train with Siegfried on the way to their new Northern home, did she lose the fanciful belief that Mr. Silchester was a few steps away, ready to confront her. She knew very well that the feeling of security afforded by the railway carriage was fanciful also; Mr. Silchester might be in the next compartment. But she nourished the hope that he would trust in her supposed depravity, and leave her in peace for a little while with her charge, thus giving her time to concoct some scheme for thwarting his designs upon the Siegfried, who had complained of the frequent abscences from him which the preparation for departure entailed, was in a state of high delight at the prospect of having her all to himself for some hours, and he naively told her so. Rose, foreseeing that the young gentleman proposed to fasten himself upon her as he had done his tutor, Donald Keith, deemed it necessary to give a fillip to his self-dependence.

"Yes," she said, "it is as well we should have an opportunity of establishing our acquaintance, for when we are once settled down we shall not be able to see much of each other."

Siegfried's face fell.

"But you are to be my guardian and-and-Are you not going to be guardian?" he suddenly asked, quite plaintively.

"Why, yes," said Rose, laughing a little, and casting at him a glance of high-shy amusement; "but when I promised your father to be a guardian and a mother to his son, and all that, the way in which he spoke of you led me to make the ridicuous mistake of supposing that you were a little boy, a child. Now, you can see for yourself that—that to be a guardian to a-young man, grown-up, as you are, is quite a different thing, is absurd, in fact."

"I don't see that at all," began Siegfried with with an unexpected burst of eager interest. Rose held up her hand to check the interruption. "All that I can do is to help you back to health in my capacity of nurse," she went on, "and that I will do if you will yourself do all you can to help me. But, rememless you submit to my perscriptions which, I perceive, you will find difficult. Exercise, fresh air, cold water," she continued in a very authorative tone.

"I will do whatever you wish," he said humbly. "My father put me into your care. He was much wiser than I shall ever be. Therefore, whatever you tell me to do must be right.

He spoke with the submission of strong religious conviction: and Rose, whom he alternately amused, touched and irritated, felt her heart soften toward him again.

"You are expecting a great deal too much from me, just as your father did," she said.

Siegfried drew nearer to her. "I don't think so," he said with decision. "It seems to me that I begin to understand why my father chose you as my guardian. At first I thought you were hard and cruel and unfeeling, and there was something in your face which frightened me. But now the longer I know you, the more I feel that it will be easier for me to do hard things because you wish it, than for the wish of anyone else. Your voice is so sweet, so deep, like music to listen to; and the touch of your hand so gentle that I feel I could do a great deal just for the pleasure of having it on my arm. Now that is very

But she did not think so. Although the broad lines on which her character was framed precluded and such little feminine graces as a touch of coquetry, she could not be ignorant that the phenomena described by the young prince so ingeniously were merely the results of two facts: that she was a woman, and the first woman with whom he had had any but the most casual acquaintance. She could scarcely help smiling at the almost incredible boyishness of his remarks upon this subject, contrasting as it much talked of submission. did strongly with the shrewdness he had incidentally displayed on other matters. that he should not suppose she laughing at him, especially as he was expanding into complete confidence toward her. So that if you will only stay near me," he went on more earnestly than ever," you will find that I will submit to you in all ways, just as my father wished." "Certainly, I will stay near you, prince, until your health is restored," said Rose. Some inkling of a suspicion broke in upon Siegfried through the formality of her tone. A tinge of pink color came into his cheeks as she went on :-

"The king, your father bough my services at a royal price, so that you have a claim upon me which nothing can alter."

Seigfried looked uneasy and rather disappointed.

"Bought, you say! He bought your service! So you only found me out and were kind to me just as a hired servant would do his duty?" "Exactly. As a hired servant," said Rose dryly.

"I did not mean that, madam. I am clumsy. I have not known many ladies. But I had hopeshe went on, while his eyes filled suddenly with tears, "you were so kind. I thought perhaps you were sorry for me, and believed me to be in danger, and that your heart told you to find me, That is all.

She saw that he was a little wounded, and she spoke very gently in answer to him, using her voice in the persuasive tones which had already proved able to charm him, "My heart had no chance to move difficult as you choose.' Seigfried burst into a passion of tears. Though almost ruined in body and mind by a system of education mistaken on his father's part, wilfully pernicious on that of his tutor, he was naturally devoid neither of intelligence nor feeling; his imagination had been stirred in a wholly unaccustomed manner by the romantic circumstances of his first acquaintance with a woman. He had been kept sedulously out of range of feminine influence of any kind; his father fearing it would interfere with his studies, Donald ber, I am no magician; I am quite Keith having another and equally powerless to do you any good un- strong reason. to you." "But that is not true! What put such an idea into your head?" cried Rose surprised.

"I have seen it in your face," said he. Ah! That face of her! Only the fire of some strong feeling, such as the love she bore her sister, or the pity she had by moments felt for himself, could melt the hardness which her black brows and firmly closed mouth gave to her face. She gave an impatient sigh; she was tired of trying to explain away to everybody the forboding effect of dark eyebrows. Instead she tried an experiment as to that perfect submission he had promised. "I don't pretend," she began cautiously, to be very enthusiastic about people whom I don't know well. But if you are straightforward with me, you will never have to complain of my dislike. The question is are you always straightforward?" "Straightforward!" echoed the prince, as if not quite understand-

ng. "You mean—?"
"Honest, concealing nothing that for your sake I ought to know. "I-I think so, I believe so," said Seigfried in a rather offended tone. Rose smiled rather satirically at the tone, and continued demurely; "That sleeping-draught, for instance, that you have been in the habit of taking, and that I tell you

FLYING THE UNION JACK.

Before the Christmas vacation it is expected that every rural school in the province will be flying its own Union Jack.

The first consignment of these flags, purchased by the Provincial Government on the recommendation of the Minister of Education, has reached the Department and the staff are sending them out in hundreds by every mail. They are being shipped to the various counties in alphabetical order. The flags are 6 feet by 3 feet in size, and are of the finest and strongest material.

The list of rural schools to recieve them has been made out, and totals nearly 6.000. With the flags will be forwarded a brief official letter suggesting plans for their use.

HARTLEY'S AMBITION IS TO BREAK AMERICAN RECORD

Peterboro, Nov. 29.—David Hart ley will not likely take any more lengthy walks this season. It has been stated that he would travel the Port Hope-Toronto route again before the coming of winter, but he stated last night that unless his record for the 132 miles was broken he would not again attempt it. Hartley's ambition for next spring is to break the American record for twelve hours. This was made in the Madison Square Gardens, New York city, some time in the eighties by an American pedestrian, who covered sixty-one miles.

BE ON GUARD

For this Smooth Gentleman-Operated in Cobourg

The Cobourg Star says: - On Monday of last week a young man, claiming to represent the B. M. Burnet Piano Company of Toronto, called on Mrs. George A. Smith, Station street, and endeavored to sell to her a prepossessed piano, which he would let her have at a bargain. The price of the piano was $200, but he would allow what had been paid on it by the first purchaser, who was unable to keep up the payments.

Mrs. Smith agreed to purchase and gave him a note for $95 and $3 cash as the first payment-being allowed $20 on the former purchaser's payment, which part of it no doubt looked good to Mrs. Smith. During the week Mrs. Smith, to satisfy herself of the bargain, wrote to the firm in Toronto, and received a reply that this man who claimed to be their agent, was "a liar and a fraud." In the meantime Sager, as he gave his name, was trying to cash the note, and in one case offered a rebate of $40 on the note.

On Friday Mr. Smith placed the matter in Chief Ruse's hands, who at once got out descriptive cards and sent them around. On Monday he received a letter from the Chief of Police of Kingston, stating that a man arswering Sager's description had worked the same game there, and obtained $3.00 from a Sager is described as a young man about twenty-five years of age, brown hair, round full face and clean shaven, about five feet nine inches tall, weight about 160 pounds; Christie stiff hat, long light check overcoat with brown velvet collar, buttoned boots, and good talker. He claims his home is Sagersville Quarries, Penn.

CHILDREN'S DAY

At St. Paul's Church - Bright Inspiring Service

LARGE CROWD IN ATTENDANCE

Last Sabbath morning was children's day at the above church, the service being especially for the

Sabbath School. Mr. Abraham took for his text he 12th verse of the 7th chapter of Matthew: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do you even so to them." These were the marching orders in life. It was called the golden rule because it was so precious. He wished them to remember three things; first, it was not his rule, nor their rule, nor any particular person's rule, but it was rule which had been given us by Christ himself. Second, it was a very handy rule. It could be carried with us wherever we go. It was like the two inch rule of the carpenter or mason, which they always had with them. If a carpenter wanted to measure only four inches he would do it with this rule, and he would use the same rule to measure the whole side of a building, so it was with this golden rule; whether in the larger or smaller things of the individual life, of the town or of the nation, this rule held good everywhere. Third, it was a comprehensive rule. In everything, no matter how great or how small it | WELL PLEASED WITH SHOWING says to everyone, whatever you would wish others to do to you do the same to them. He said he wish- Directors of the Port Hope Brewing ed to apply the rule in four instances

It had something to do with quarrels, with falsehood, with cruelty, and with kindness. He was charitable enough to believe that most quarrels, either in the home or at school or in our intercourse with others, arise from misunderstanding, and if this rule was applied to our quarrels, how few and how less rancorous these would be. It was the same with falsehood and saying things that were untrue. There was much harm done by not telling the truth exactly. It brought injury not only to the one of whom the falsehood was told, but also to the one telling it. It was said that when the bee stings anyone it did a greater injury to itself, for the sting was left in the wound, and the bee generally died from the resulting injury to itself. If this were true it illustrated the point he wished to impress, that by telling falsehoods about others, we do a greater injury to ourselves than to them.

Since little boys in a class were discussing the action of another who had told falsehoods about the news in the papers he was selling, that he might get two cents by the sale of a paper, the teacher said to one of them 'Johnny, would you tell a lie for two cents?" "No, Miss." "For five cents?" No Miss." "For ten cents?" "No, Miss." "Nor twenty-five cents?" "No, Miss." "For a dollar?" 'No." "For a thousand dollars?"

large sum of money. At last he looked up and said, "No, Miss." she asked "would you not tell a lie for a thousand dollars?" He replied, "Tne thousand dollars would soon be spent, but the lie sticks." The rule also applied to cruelty. There was one form of cruelty he mentioned that was treated very carelessly by many, and that was teasing. He referred to a case which came under his notice recently, where a little boy was teased until he cried as though his heart would break. Apply this rule to a case like that. How would you, boys, who thus teased another, like to be teased yourself until you were forced to cry? But perhaps you will say that this is a hard rule to follow. Sometimes we find it so because we do not look to the proper place for assistance. A little girl wondered how it was her writing was so bad. The first line was fairly well, but as she got lower down on the book it became worse and worse until the last lines were exceedingly bad. The teacher explained to her that instead of lookng each time to the copy line on the top, she continued to look always at the line she had just previously written. There was one who kept that rule perfectly, He who gave it to us. If we looked to Christ for aid, we would always be true to the golden rule. Children from the Sabbath School under Miss Clark's efficient leadership, took the place of the choir and led the service of praise. A very pretty duett, "Rock of Ages," was sung by Misses Jean Clark and Palma Cochrane, and the Hymn and Chorus "There's a Friend for Little Children," by S. S. choir.

MARRIAGE FEE IS VERY SMALL

Local Clergyman Received the Munificent Sum of 50 cents

There are many popular fallacies, one of them being the belief that the clergyman who joins a couple in wedlock, receives from the groom a good fat fee. This idea explodes when the facts are looked into. At a gathering last night conversation turned on the topic mentioned above and it was learned that the average is very much less than supposed. In this connection was related as illustrating a phase of personal meanness, an incident, the truth of which was vouched for. A resident of the county decided to marry, and the lady, being willing, the ceremony was performed at the clergyman's home. The groom, in an excess of gratitude, presented the clergyman with 50 cents as a good and sufficient fee. The good man was surprised at the limit, and feeling somewhat mortified, presented the coin to the bride, and left the room. Hearing an altercation a few minutes afterwards, he found to his astonishment, that the groom was trying to get back from the bride the fifty cents. The lady objected saying, "No, he gave it to me. BASKET BALL

Y.M.C.A. of Peterborough Vs. Port Hope Y.M.CA.

In a fast game of basket ball the Peterboro team won from the Port Hope men by a score of 35 to 22. In the first half the Port Hope men were handicapped by playing on a strange floor and baskets. The score at the end of the first half stood Peterboro 27, Port Hope 3. The second half started with a rush, and the Peterboro men were outclassed in every way, and the Port Hope men started to even things up. The feature of this half was a long shot for goal from the center of Field by Garnett.

 BOARD OF  The Girls Took Revenge - Amusing Incident in Department of Railways and Canals

Persistency is one of the strongest factors in successful business life. The man who is vacillating and unstable accomplishes very little, and much that he succeeds in doing is generally done very poorly.

In order to succeed one must map out a practical course of action and persist in it in spite of discouragebe the fuel to furnish incentive for igorous action.

The man who does something tolating and uncertain temperament undoes it tomorrow or next week; the man who is continually pulling down the structure which he has labored hard to upbuild can make he builds today, he must build for permanency; and if he works along the same lines persistently and determinedly, the result of his life's work will be something worth accomplishing.

The strength of nature is in the continuous force of it; the fundamental principle of motion is ever-

Lack of persistency is one of the gravest problems confronting the Board of Trade; it is the one feature which renders good intention absolutely abortive. The element of persistency in the Board's work must be studiously cultivated. Continuous publicity is persistency's strongest help-mate. In continuity is strength. The Board of Trade is on a well-organized and working basis; but it must keep working it headway is to be made.

THE CAR FERRY

Matter of Supplies Causes Bad Feeling Among Cobourg Merchants-Ferry Struck a Bump

Will Not Carry Passengers or Cobourg Freight This Winter

Cobourg Post

The supplies for the big ferry are already causing bad feeling among ocal grocers and butchers and some of the more spiteful ones are giving vent to their feelings by promising trouble for the more fortunate one who received the first order. One well known butcher, a member of the town council, is reported to have said that it would cost Harbor Master Rooney his job if things did not come his way. It is well known that the Harbor Master's son is conducting a butcher shop and grocery business and if he is fortunate enough to secure the business of the ferry it is due to his business tact. Such contemptible methods of "getting even" are hardly likely to meet with the approval of the citizens of Cobourg who will resent any such movement as contemplated by the member of the council.

A DISSAPPOINTMENT

The fact that the car ferry will not carry passengers or local freight this winter is a disappointment to many in this locality. It appears that there is no accommodation on the other side for landing pas-sengers just at present, but by spring it is expected a station and waiting room will be erected.

REVENUE INCREASED

The revenue at the Cobourg Custom House has been materially increased since the advent of the Grand Trunk Ferry. The duty on the coal brought in every day amounts to between $700 and $800, which the Grand Trunk pays at this port. This large increase of receipts should place Cobourg in a higher class within a very short time and ncrease the staff of officials.

HIT A BUMP

As the car ferry entered the harbor one night last week she scraped against the centre pier with the result that the top portion of the outside crib was gently shoved to one side. The upper portion of the crib was of no particular value, being merely a finishing touch to that part of the harbor.

LIGHTHOUSE SERVICE

The United States Government has ordered the lighthouse at Charlotte to be kept open the year round as well as the Custom House at that port, on account of the establishment of the new winter service on Lake Ontario between Cobourg and that port by the Ontario Car Ferry No. 1. As yet no similar order has been received to have the Cobourg lights burning all winter but no doubt the government will do so within the next few weeks.

* WHEN BRIDEGROOM CAME

There was a little incident in the Department of Railways and Canals at Ottawa a few days ago which goes to prove that the girls in the civil service are much like girls in other walks of life. It so happened that just before Hon. G. P. Graham, the Minister of Railways, went away on his first official tour of the Intercolonial, his private secretary, ments and difficulties which should | Christopher Blackett Robinson, took it into his head to get married quietly, without telling anybody of his intentions save his own immeday, and who by reason of his vacil- diate family. When the news came out next day he had gone and the staff of the department with whom 'Chris" is deservedly popular had no opportunity of extending their congratulations or of wishing him very little headway. However little god-speed on the journey of matri-

But their time for revenge was to come. When it was announced from Moncton that the ministerial party (which included the newly married couple) were on their way Railway Department got busy, in an unofficial sense, and spent much time after office hours in preparing a welcome for the private secretary. They suspended a huge crimsor wedding bell from the centre of the ceiling. They extended from the four corners of the room silk streamers of purest white. They decked his chair in wrappings of white festoons. On his blotting pad was placed a front cover of an old Ladies Home Journal, picturing a bridal couple, and this was flanked by a pair of delapidated felt slippers with white silk rosettes.

On the day of his return the girls lunch hour was a brief one. It so happened that the train was late and it was after 2 before "Chris" got up to his office. He walked in unsuspectingly, only to be bombarded with a shower of confetti from a dozen or so laughing girls who had hidden themselves behind desks and bookcases awaiting his arrival. The revenge was sweet, but the girls had their fun and the secretary took it in good part. He is, by the way, the son of C. Blackett Robinson, the editor of the Dominion Presbyterian, and a brother of Burnside Robinson; of The News. Next time a minister's private secretary wants to get married he will probably announce it ahead of time, and get the charivari over before the honey moun instead of after it .- Toronto

PRIVATE DETECTIVES

Frightened From The Train --What The Owen Sound Sun Says

Of a Recent Interesting Case

The temperance people of Owen Sound recently undertook to stem the tide of law violation which was being carried on by most of the hotel-keepers in Owen Sound as part in a deliberate campaign to discredit Local Option.

They secured two private detectives, with the result that fourteen charges were laid against nine hotel-keepers.

The cases were set down for hearing by Magistrate Rutherford for Tuesday, Nov. 12th. The night before, the two private detectives started from Toronto to attend the trial. They were noticed on the train by an Owen Sound hotelkeeper, who, with a number of friends, became so noisy in their demonstrations against the detectives that the latter deemed it best to leave the train at Orangeville and stay there over night.

The Owen Sound Sun, in its report of the case, says : "Last evening the two secret service men, named Holland and Heyworth, left Toronto by the C P R train for Owen Sound to give evidence in the liquor cases that were to come up this morning. The train had scarcely left the city, when an onslaughte was made on them by a gang headed by a wellknown local hotel-keeper, who had recognized the detectives. The threats of personal violence, and profane and abusive language were such that the conductor removed the disorderly bunch to another car. The threats were such that it was deemed unsafe to travel with them on the train, so the secret service men stayed off at Orangeville for the night. At the station here last night quite a husky-looking bunch were in waiting, who apparently looked to a celebrated lawsuit man for leadership. When the train arrived without the men they wantdemonstrations of lawlessness are foolish in the extreme, and should meet with only the most severe condemnation from every citizen.

PLACE THE TRANSMITTER

NOVEL WAY OF TELEPHONING

Have you talked over the teleshone through your chest yet?

Scores are doing it in Port Hope oday and the discovery that it is possible has aroused considerable nterest. It's easy, as no doubt many have found out. Just place he transmitter to your chest and talk in your natural tone of voice. You will be heard just as plainly as if you had the transmitter in front of your mouth. Try it and see.

In connection with the discovery hat one can telephone with the transmitter placed close against the chest, the Toronto World says:

Telephoning through the chest is not only possible but quite practical, as no doubt scores of Sunday back to Ottawa the girls in the World readers, who have by this time experimented for themselves, already know.

One lady telephoned - through the chest-to the World office, to claim credit for Canada in the available for transmission by the matter. At first the World could not hear, but as Mr. Dunstan shifted the tractor, and also a retired canal transmitter, the words would come over the wire all right.

"I do not think it would be practical." said Mr. Dunstan, "nor any handier than the present one. It is very interesting, however."

Whether it would be feasible to arrange the device on an operator's bodice, thus doing away with the necessity of talking into the transmitter, he could not say.

POWER OFFER MADE

To Lake Front Towns 15 Not a Bona-Fide One

Mr. Culverwell Says The Proposition of Opposition Company is Far From Genuine

The following statement is handed to the Review for publication by Managing Director J. A. Culverwell, of the Northumberland-Durham Power Co. Ltd., leesses and owners of parts of parts of Healey Rapids :-

The Northumberland Paper and Electric Company, of Campbellford, has made an offer to the Hydro-Electric Commission (as published in the Toronto newspapers) to supply Belleville, Deseronto and Kingston with power, the prices, not including local wiring or local distribution charges. Mr. Culverwell states that the bona-fides of the offers are not substantial and cannot be made so, as the company only owns about a quarter of Ranney Rapids at Campbellford, the upper similar portion of the rapids and lands which control the development of the whole, being owned y himself and associates.

It is an absolute fact that only some one thousand horse power is said company, whith is controlled by Cecil B. Smith, engineer, of Toronto, and of recent Winnipeg ber of Hydro-Electric Commission Manager Dunstan, of the Bell J G Kerry, who is a Dominion Telephone Co., had not tried the Government Commissioner of Quebec Bridge disaster, and A A Multhe World reporter that he was holland, recently defeated Liberal himself for a minute, and went for Associated with them in their canal survey and water power manipulations are a Lakefield cement conengineer. Mr. Culverwell states that this so called "power offer" is evidently made for the purpose of further malicious damage to organization of the Northumberland-Durham Power Co., Ltd, a company endorsed officially by eighteen municipal councils, the directors being composed of the leading manufacturers and business men of the south Midland district. Recently the Smith-Kerry Company endeavored, with the help of an assistant canal engineer at Campbellford, to induce the ratepayers there to pass into their control the "Middle Falls" power, (controlled and now being developed by the municipality for specific use there), but Mr. Culverwell exposed the deal and the ratepayers endorsed his efforts. These same people have been blockading the Northumberland-Durham Power Company's efforts for two years to secure a lease from the lower, large portion of which is held by lease from the Ontario Government by the company, which should do all they can to prevent." also owns portions of the upper Said a leading broker to a Wit- rapids and patent for the lands required for development works, the power rates being regulated by the Ontario Government. Mr. A A Mulholland blamed Hon George Graham, Minister of Railutterance at Campbellford before the election, that the canal would be completed whether Mr. Mulholland was elected or not, but the general feeling is that Mr. Mulholland's connection with the Smith Kerry Company's canal water power manipulations caused his heavy defeat at Campbellford and Seymour township polls.

Mr. Culverwell states that he is sorry to find it essential to make these statements, but in view of the fact that his company, which is now developing Healy Rapids, has been municipally advised to stop work uutil they find out whether they can secure the Dominion Government intervening portions; and the canal surveys have delayed his company for over two years, he thinks that the company's enemies are endea-voring to bring it to ruin by delay. In fact one opponent has been heard to say that they will attempt to

Many More Years to Rule.

The St. John Sun says:-So large a place in so long a span of Canadian history Sir Wilfrid Laurier has for the month of November, the filled that, that the reminder his birthday brings of his comparative routhfulness comes as an annual surprise. Today this man, whom his political opponents are telling the people is old, and must soon relinquish his invincible leadership of the Liberal party, is only sixty-six. At that age his former prode-cessor, Sir John A. Macdonald, had not reached the height of his political strength. After he was sixtysix Sir John held the Premiership of Canada for ten years, and led his party successfully through three elections. He was still Premier when he died, full of honor, at the age of seventy-six.

The present Premier of Great Britain is seventy-one years old. Lord Salisbury held the office till he was seventy-two; Gladstone was Premier at eighty-five, D'Israeli at seventy-six. Today Sir Wilfrid is in better health than for many years, and mentally he is as keen and vigorous as at any time in the thirty-six years of public service, during which his patriotism and statesmanship and personal in-tegrity have raised him step by step in the esteem and affection of the people to the unchallenged position of Canada's greatest son.

Gratification was also expressed at the large number of immigrants coming from the British Isles, and reference made to the important results of the recent Colonial Conference. It was announced that Parliament will be asked to give sanction to the new Franco-Canadian trade treaty, and also that Canada will join with Newfoundland in referring the international fisheries disputes on the Atlantic coast to The Hague tribunal. Mention was made of Hon. Mr. Lemieux's mission to Japan, and the satisfactory progress being made toward the settlement of the question of Oriental immigration; of the good progress being made on the construction of the National Transcontinental Railway. and of the rapidly-increasing revenues of the Postoffice Department, the surplus earnings of which will be devoted to bettering the service. The Quebec disaster was also referred to, and the intention of the Government to proceed with the comple-tion of the bridge within a reason-

BRIBERY CASE ENDS

Four London Defendants Were Found Guilty of Conspiracy.

WILL GO TO APPEAL COURT

Sentence Is Deferred-Men Released on Heavy Bail-Vance, Smith and Preston Give Pritchett the Lie-Judge Sums Up Evidence-

The Question of Jurisdiction

Again Argued by Counsel. Toronto, Nov. 30 .- To the astonishment and dismay of the defence in the London election bribery conspiracy case His Honor Judge Winchester late yesterday afternoon found that all four of the defendants were guilty. The decision was given soon after the defence suddenly terminated its case. His honor granted an application for appeal to the higher courts, and sentence was not passed, the defendants, Reid, O'Gorman, Wiley and Mulloy, being allowed their freedom on $5,000 bail each. His honor spoke for twenty min-utes. Just after he had read the indictments, he intimated that, as Mr. Johnston had argued well in the matter of the court's jurisdiction, he would allow the case to go to the Court of Appeal.

The faces of the four accused men

Wiley were plainly agitated. Reid spoke a word or two to O'Gorman, who sat next him.
"Considering all the evidence," said his honor in conclusion, "I think the evidence has established a general conspiracy. I find the four de-fendants guilty of forming a conspiracy to defraud the electors of this province." The defendants looked askance at each other. O'Gorman seemed cool. Reid smiled. Wiley turned pale, and Mulloy appeared as if he did not understand what it all meant. The defendants had expected to go free, though there had been a feeling that O'Gorman might be fined. They left for London on the 7.30 p. m. train, declining to discuss the matter. Mr. Johnston renewed his objections that the case was not within the jurisdiction of his honor and that the crown had not proven conspiracy or any overt act in connection with any conspiracy which may have taken place in Toronto. Mr. Johnston asked his honor to totally disbelieve the evidence of Pritchett and Farr who should be arrested for perjury. The crown had no right to advance them as credible witnesses. The oath of a perjurer, unsupported by any one of the booths. He had been contradicted on every hand.

There was no evidence, he held, that Reid had anything to do with any conspiracy, while Mulloy and Wiley had nothing to do with the alleged conspiracy in Toronto, and were connected with the London bribery only by the statement of Jerry Collins.

Judge's Address. His honor then summed up the case. As to the charges against Reid, Mulloy and Wiley, of a conspiracy in Toronto, no evidence had been brought out. The evidence against O'Gorman must necessarily come from men who had no moral sense of their duty. Against O'Gorman the crown had only the evidence of Pritchett to rely upon, and he had been contradicted in several material points by men judge ha doubt. His honor believed that Vance was telling the truth in reference to Pritchett's arrival at Bancroft. He also believed Alex. Smith.

In the face of such evidence as this, it was difficult to decide, but in many instances Pritchett's evidence had been fully corroborated. It was a fact that he was at Brockville, and he was substantiated by many witnesses, and it has been shown that illegal acts were attempted. He was also in West Huron and West Elgin. and there was ample evidence that O'Gorman was connected with Pritchett, and that Pritchett did act il-

"With reference to London," said his honor, "while voters were bribed right and left in West London, I am glad to say that there was no evidence of general bribery. Money was being expended openly. A most dis-graceful state of affairs was shown to have existed. There were men who were willing to go into any evil doings. We find Collins anxious to turn over a dishonest penny. He got money from O'Gorman and Mulloy and spent it illegally."

His honor reviewed Sifton's evidence regarding Reid, and considered Reid's attitude as showing himself part of a general scheme. He had no faith in Wiley's alibi. He could not depend on Farr's statement, and he believed Thomas Reid in this con-

He then declared his finding of yance and Smith Testify.

The evidence during the day was in no way sensational.

In the morning James Vance took the stand again and denied that he got any more money than his ex-penses. He knew of no improper procedure in North Waterloo. Alex, Smith, formerly Liberal organizer for the province, swore that he never was a party to any improper or corrupt act in any election. He knew rothing of ballot switching or bribery. He knew O'Gorman, but he had never seen Pritchett in his life. He emphatically denied meeting O'Gor-man and Pritchett in the Walker House. Never in his life had he given Pritchett money or paid his botel bills. He knew of no arrangement between O'Gorman and Prit-

The Annuity Bill. The bill in regard to old age annuities is about the same as that Sir Richard Cartwright laid before the Senate last session. The object of the bill is to encourage the opening up of savings accounts by the working classes, so that they may have provision for old age, say at the age of 60. THIRTEEN BURNED TO DEATH

Seven Children Among the Victims-Many Others Injured-Bodies Found Piled Together at Top of House -Mother Perished Trying to Save Her Babe + Thought to Be Work of Black Hand.

New York, Nov. 26 .- Thirteen persons lost their lives and several others were injured early yesterday in a tenement house fire at 109th street and Second avenue. All the dead were Italians. Seven of the thirteen were children. The bodies were found huddled together in rooms on the top floor of the four-storey building where the terror-stricken people had been driven by the flames which rushed up from the lower floors. They had been caught and swept down to death before they succeeded in reaching windows which led to the fire escapes and safety. had been enveloped in the flames and burned alive. Others, overcome by smoke, were spared the agonies of death in the flames.

That the fatal fire was the work of incendiaries who sought revenge is the opinion of the police and firemen who made the first hasty examination. Three weeks ago, three Italians were caught in the act of attempting to rob a safe in the saloon of Guiseppe

Cudano on the ground floor. The safe contained over $3,000, which the saloonkeeper and friends had withdrawn from banks during the money panic. The would-be robbers were arrested and are now awaiting trial. The fire of yesterday started in Cudano's saloon, and the police believe that it may have been the work of friends of the prisoners who took this means of squaring the account with the saloonkeeper.

So quickly did the flames spread that almost before the firemen arrived the whole building was a furnace and it was impossible for anyone to enter. Even the cries of the agonized women and children were drowned by the roar and crackle of the flames, the hissing engines and the frantic crowd which pressed as closely as possible to the fire lines. Not a single person was seen to appear at any of the windows of the blazing building with the exception of those on the second floor, from which several persons reached the fire escape and were rescued. The reason for this was explained when after the flames had been partially checked, firemen fought their way through the smoke to the upper floors.

There they came upon piles of dead where they had fallen victims to the rush of flames and smoke, even before they had a chance to attempt to save themselves. In one of the heaps the fireman found a woman who had made one hast desperate effort to save the life of her baby, even when she knew that she herself was doomed to a horrible death. She had folded her arms tightly around the little one, and then huddled down close to floor, her own body protecting that of her child. The mother's body was badly burned. That of the child bore scarcely a mark, but it was dead from suffocation. On every side of the mother and child lay the bodies

BACK TO THE OLD LAND

Sterrage Accommodation of East Bound Steamers All Taken Up

Unable to Handle The Trafflo

Many of the immigrants who arrived in Canada during the early part of this summer have not been able to "make it go," and are hurrying back to their old homes.

This morning the C. P. R. sent out a special train with over 400 of these people en route to the old land by way of Montreal. Nearly all of them are going back without a dollar in their pocket.

In addition to this number, 515 arrived here from Chicago en route to the old land by way of Montreal. They were taken over the C. P. R. track at North Toronto.

STEAMERS CROWDED

When the C. P. R. steamer leaves Montreal on Saturday there will be nearly 1,500 on board; in fact the C. P. R. is not able to handle all who want to go, and over 500 have been handed over to the Allan line.

The C. P. R. officials furnished each train with a coffee car, which enabled the passengers to line up at counter and get a meal at a reason-

The Grand Trunk officials when asked if they were sending any immigrants back to the old land, replied: "Yes, we are sending about 25 daily by way of New York.

CAN'T GET STEERAGE

According to the local C. P. R. officials they have sold on an averige 500 steerage tickets a week during the months of October and November. So great was the demand for this class of tickets for reservation on the boat sailing from Montreal on Friday, that the local office stopped selling tickets on Monday afternoon.

There will be another steamer sail on December 7th and 800 are already booked, which means that the list is filled. On December 13th another steamer will sail for which they commenced selling steerage tickets to-day and they expect that at least 1,200 steerage passengers will be booked. The average number of steerage tickets sold daily in Toronto for some weeks back has been 200, 100 by the Cunard line and 100 by the C. P. R.

The first and second class list is light just now. The average about second class passengers.

Montreal, Nov. 28 .- George Hannah, the passenger of the Allan Line stated today that the rush for third passenger manager of the C.P.R. steamships, stated that the exodus of third-class passengers since the first of October had been very great and it was estimated that the number by the C. P. R. alone during Allan Line has also carried over four thousand during the same period and the Dominion and Donaldson Lines have also had their share, so the figures in round numbers of third-class passengers who had left the St. Lawrence for European points during the past seven weeks are in the neighborhood of 10,000.

It was remarked, however, yes terday that the majority of the passengers had return tickets and a large number of them were from the other side of the line, chiefly foreigners, who have been crowded out of New York and Boston boats.

Just the other night two young men asked for lodging in the jail, and they told that they were on the way to Montreal where they would take the steamer for their old home. Both of them, however, said they would return in the spring, and the immigration season for 1908 promises to surpass all records in the number of those who are coming to Canada. The great influx of new settlers into this country will commence early in February. The Dominion Line alone has sold all accommodations in three of their big ships, for the first three or four voyages. These vessels each carry 1,600 and 2,000 steerage passengers exclusive of that upwards of 20,000 new settlers for second cabin and

A Problem of National Importance

Dear Friend:-

A bright young lawyer at the Muskoka Sanatorium for Consumptives some weeks ago, speaking of the burden placed upon him by having consumption, said:

"One has to lead a life of concealment. If I go away from this place people are afraid of me.

This is the sad lot of those who suffer from this dread disease. On behalf of the thousands who are sick and will not be received by other hospitals, I make this appeal for the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Nearly 10,000 people from every part of Canada aided in this good work last year, sending us $26,000.

The Trustees have faith that a still larger number will help. The Physician's offices, throat rooms, etc., up to the present have occupied rooms in the hospital that rightly belong to patients.

To make better provision for the work, and furnish more accommodation, a new administration building is now under way. A cottage for the Physician and his young wife had also to be built.

To provide for this outlay, and to care for patients for the coming year, we must secure at least $50,000.

The Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives never refused a patient because of his or her inability to pay. It cares for those whom other hospitals refuse. It cares for those whom other people are

"I was sick and ye visited me," was Christ's commendation. Should not a richer benediction be yours if from a loving heart your dollar makes a golden visit to this hospital, bringing health and joy to those whom other people fear, and whom, in many cases, nobody wants. Will you have the luxury of giving?

Faithfully yours,

Toronto, 1907.

VERY ILL.-It will be sad news to many of our readers to learn of the serious illness of our fellowtownsman, Mr. Thomas Vanhorn, Kingston. Mr. Vanhorn has been very ill for the past two weeks George Vanhorn, who has been in the hospital suffering from tonsilitis, has fully recovered.

THE LATE THOMAS S. WILCOCK---Word has been received here announcing the death of Thomas S. Wilcock in Brooklyn, New York. Mr. Wilcock was an annual visitor to Port Hope and his host of friends will learn with much sorrow of his death. He was seventy-four years of age, and had suffered for some time from paralysis. Four daughters are left to mourn his departure. The late Mr. Wilcock was a brother of Mrs. Hugh Walker, Ward street.

SATURDAY NIGHT FIRE. - On Saturday evening about eight o'clock the alarm of fire was sent in and the fire brigade made a quick run to Mrs. Doughty's residence near T. A. Begg's butcher shop. Their services, however, were not required the neighbors having extinguished the blaze. The fire was due to the explosion of a lamp and it was fortunate that no serious damage was done. Mrs. Doughty was out at the time and her three children were in bed asleep. The neighbors who noticed the blaze quickly broke in the door and thus averted a serious loss. Several articles which were on the table where the lamp exploded were de-

> CHANGES FOR THE FERRY .- On Tuesday several members of the Grand Trunk engineering staff were in town and inspected the station yard with a view to having the yard re-tracked, so as to give more car accommodation. A diamond is to be laid down also. On Monday when the car ferry was being unloaded one of the big chains under the apron broke and caused a delay. A flat car, used in unloading, was put out of business by doubling up on another car. Two engineers from the Marine Department at Ottawa are in town this week in regard to a number of decided improvements to be made about the harbor that will make Cobourg harbor the best on the lake. The east and west piers are to be lengthened, and a small piece cut off the center pier. A large fog siren is to be put in where the present lighthouse is, and a new up to date lighthouse placed at the end of the east pier. In addition, the harbor and a larger channel are to be further dredged I next summer. - Cobourg Star.

A GROWING CITY.-Winnipeg is a swift city in many ways. The city has grown rapidly in every way-in expansion as well as everything else. The rate of taxation has increased at the rate of $300,000 a year, but the expenditure has grown at a much faster rate. The western metropolis will have a fairly respectable mortgage resting upon it if this state of things goes on a few years more. It has, however, a great and rapidly growing country behind it, and if it continues to grow even in the matter of debt it must be prepared to meet the demands made upon it as the commercial center and chief distributing GEOGRAPHY A SECONDARY CON-SIDERATION.—Mrs. Schmitt of Chicago, according to the Inter-Ocean, berased a teacher in the Nixon school for not promoting her daugh ter because the latter was deficient in geography: "Teacher you don't know it all, I guess," said the irate Mrs. Schmitt, "I wish it that my a man.
