Cobourg Werld.

Mr. J. A. Culverwell, of Port Hope, was in Cobourg Monday morning and attended the Counties Council opening meeting. Mr. Culverwell was invited to take a seat of honor upon the platform with the Warden, Mr. Hume, along with three ex-Wardens who were present. During the meeting the several ex-Wardens and Mr. Culverwell were invited to address the Counties Council, which they all did.

One of the speakers said that Mr. Culverwell was well known and read about throughout Canada and the United States as a successful engineer and financier and throughout this district as the "Power King."

Mr. Culverwell being called upon said he was particularly thankful posed of several dozen municipali ties were satisfied with the way he had carried through the immense water power undertaking three years ago, involving two and a half million dollars, and involving also negotiations with the Canadian and Ontario Parliaments in an honorable way, having satisfied the many shareholders of several Counties connected with the power undertak-ings. He that ked those who had spoken so kindly of him, and particularly the gentlemen who had called him the "Power King," but said he was quite satisfied to be known only s a good and honest citizen of th

United Counties. Mr. Culverwell wished to correct the remarks of one Couucillor who misunderstood his position as having an interest in the Seymour Pow-er Company or the Electric Com-pany, Ltd. He did not wish to cast any reflections against these companies, but wished it to be thoroughly understood that he had no connection with these companies, or interest in them since three years ago when the deal was put through. He thanked the Counties Council from the bottom of his heart for the kindness that he had received from them, as also from the other Counties of the district.

In view of the reception to be held in the afternoon to the Gover-nor-General, Mr. Culverwell asked Warden Hume if he might suggest that the Council sing "God Save the King," which request was complied

Best Program Ever Presented

A meeting of the Dominion Day Committee was held in the Council Chamber Friday evening and the attendance was the largest on record. The committee-men are showing a great interest and they will give Port Hope a celebration this year that has never before been equalled | PROSPECTS FOR GREAT in this town. As the President, Mayor Bush, remarked last evening, "If you young men would only display a little of this enthusiasm in municipal affairs what progress

Port Hope would make." According to the program mapped out it will be a busy time from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. The great parade of Calithumpian Kweer Kusses will open the proceedings at 10 a.m. The committee reported that they expected at least thirty floats and with the addition of Mr Wm Mitchell and Mr Wm Murray to the committee this year you may expect something very fine.

Mr C A Hagerman, chairman of the horse-racing committee stated that the enquiries from the horsemen were so numerous that he thought it would be a difficult matter to take care of the entries. One thing sure the field would be the largest in the history-of Dominion Day celebrations.

Mr. L. E. Hall for the special attraction Committee reported that the Committee had closed the contract with Captain Baldwin of New York for four aeroplane ascensions: two on July 1st and two on July 2nd. Captain Baldwin is one of the greatest aviators in the world and will give exhibitions of the most spectacular flying. Capt Baldwin brings two machines and two aviators and will be pleased to carry a passenger on any or all of his flights. See page 2.
Mr S O Runnalls, chairman of the baseball committee, is arranging for a tournament with four teams, which is likely to continue into the second day.

A feature of the afternoon program will be Japanese daylight fire-works, first time introduced in Port Hope, A representative from Hand's Fireworks Co., of Hamilton, will look after these. In the evening, the program that always pleased will be presentedfireworks. The Committee this year is expending $300 for a display, and the Hand Company have assured them that it will be the finest ever produced. There are fifty pieces in this display, including that splendid number, "Niagara Falls by Moon-light." This is a marvellous torrential flow of silver fire of immense height and breadth, falling in a yast sheet of quivering light and spark-ling throughout with millions of dazzling corruscations. This will be one of the greatest treats Port Hopers have ever enjoyed.

Previous to the fireworks display, there will be a musical program by the 46th Regt. Band, and sensation-al trapese work by the Penel! sisters of New York, including four acts. There will be several other interesting features and we feel satisfied you will say, "The best ever."

The Boston Monitor says: "We nave it on good authority of the statistics and standards committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce that while the fruit crops in certain parts of the States have been injured by unlavorable weather conditions, the general outlook is most satisfactory. To begin with, the peach crep, from which varying reports are always expected, is going to be normal, and this mean a great deal. In other fruits th committee reports the yield in aff likelihood will show an excess. At ready there is proof of the success of the cittus crops of Florida and California. California alone has shipped 45.ccco carleads of fruit this seas on beyond its borders."

SHAM PROFESSIONS

Some of the Conservative temper ance voters in order to find excuses for voting against the Rowell policy of abolition of the bar are referring to the record of the Ross Government in temperance, and more especially in the closing hours of its existence. There is no justification for the desertion of their principles in the present fight. It is admitted on all sides that the attitude of the Ross Government on this great moral question was far from satisfactory to all friends of moral reform, but they suffered for their sins and Liberals and Conservatives alike helped to contribute to their defeat. Great changes have taken place since that period, and to-day we have the Liberal leader making the following announcement:

"The issue is before the people of this Province; it is before them for judgment. From Ottawa to Sarnia, from the Great Lakes to the northwestern boundary of Ontario, that issue, for the first time, in a definite, concrete proposal, is before the people. I have discharged my responsibility. The continuance of the open bar rests upon the conscience of the people of Ontario

This is the pledge of a man who has risked his political future on the great issue, and those professing temperance men who line up in support of the Whitney Government that their professions are a sham-nothing more or less than a sham. Their alliance with the Whitney Government will give the cause of temperance in Ontario a body blow, which will cripple it for a great many years.

DID NOT HAVE CONSENT

For the plaintiff, Mr Hellmuth argued that the consent of the Provincial Registrar of Friendly Socicties had to be obtained before the constitution and by-laws of any order could be changed and in this case it was not obtained. One of the clerks in the registrar's department said that the rule of procedure when the registrar objected to suggested changes, he wrote the secretary of the order in question and suggested alterations. In this case the rule was not followed, and it might be taken that his silence implied consent.

Chief Justice Meredith could not see the matter in that light, and in reply to the attorney for the order, aid that if they could not continue to do business with a membership of 20,000 on a good business basis, the best thing to do was to go into iquidation.

IF SOME WILLS

There are reported instances of will chalked by a man on a cornbin and of one inscribed on a bedpost: both cornbin, and bedpost are said to be filed in Doctors' commons,

Ot whimsical wills of modern times we may note Jeremy Bentham's, which bequeathed his body to a hospital with instructions that it should be embalmed and his head preserved entire and that he should when thus treated, preside at the meeting of the hospital directors and be present at banquets of his old friends. Whether his bones ever presided at directors' meetings is not recorded, but his body was kept in the hospital museum for many years.

Even more extraordinary was that will of Solomon Sanborn of Medford, Mass., who left his body to Prof. Agassiz and Oliver Wendell Holmes, to be by them prepared and placed in the anatomical museum of Harvard after having two drumheads made of his skin. Upon one was to be inscribed Alexander Pope's "Universal Prayer" and on the other the Declaration of Independence. merce Causes a Little Drama to be Enacted on Simcoe Street North

Oshawa Reformer

As an outcome of the relentless march of commerce a little drama, replete with comedy and tragedy, was enacted on Simcoe street north, Monday afternoon, when Mr. N. the row of dwellings owned by him, just north of Richmond street into pality being largely represented. stores, one of which is occupied by verandah on the house occupied by his family. It is reported there was a hot dispute over the matter the Saturday previous, Kohen having offered to rent a house for the family to move into but they refused to move, claiming it is said, though the house belonged to him, it was their home and they proposed to stay there, Whether this is so or not, the events on Monday seemed to bear out the statement. When the men came to tear down and ordered them off. They paid no attention to her but went on tearing off boards, some of which she proceeded to pick up and use on them in no very gentle manner. By this time a crowd had been attracted. Automobiles, delivery wagons, prinkling carts, carriages and pedestrians of all kinds and descriptions soon blocked the street from curb to curb. But the parties to the drama went on with their battle seemingly oblivious to their surroundings, the crowd and everything else. After the first encounter the men employed to remove the verandah looked to Kohen to see if he wished to continue. He showed no signs of wavering, and urged them to proceed with the work. Then the real struggle began. The mot-ley audience that had gathered, looked on with mingled feelings of amusement and sadness. The Chief of Police had communicated with the Town Solicitor, as to what action to take and was instructed to let the man alone, since he had a perfect right to do as he wished with is own property, so long as it did not intringe on anyone else's rights Despite the onslaughts of heated epithets, sticks and battles, etc., hurled at them, the workmen soon had the platform of the verandah ready to remove and Mrs. Kohen and daughter Sophie still dancing on it. They were warned to get off but refused to go, and the structure went down with a crash and they still on it, but apparently not hurt. Then realizing they could not stop the work, they withdrew, The men continued until it was all cleared away, finishing their labors just at six o'clock, and the show over, the crowd dispersed,

In Colorado, remember, the women vote as well as the men. In the fall of 1910 a man named

DEAR SIR.-Through your valuable columns will you kindly throw out a warning to boys who are making a practice of destroying every bird's nest they can find and throwing stones at every bird that flies within reach of them. This habit is becoming a regular menace, particularly in the vicinity of Ridout and Bramley streets. If the parents of those boys have no control over them, or don't care enough for our little feathered songsters to make those boys stop it, I consider it time the law stepped in and made them. If you speak to the boys why you are only jerred at. They have also destroyed a great deal of young trees and trampled several flower beds. I consider it shows lack of nome training and if it isn't stopped shall publish the names of the boys that I have found on my property. I am very faithfully yours

IT IS SAID TO HAVE RESTORED SIGHT

A recent despatch from Paris says that Dr Moreau of St. Etienne, has published notes of the results of an operation to restore the sight of an eight-year-old boy. The boy had double cataracts from bitth and could hardly distinguish day from night. But he got the consciousness of exterior objects by the sharpening of his other senses to such a degree that he could distinguish the different cows in his father's stable merely by hearing them walk in the barnyard.

After the operation the boy spent eight days in a dark room. Then light was admitted, and every one anxiously awaited the boy's first impressions. But he said nothing and only uttered a few inarticulate to be confusing if not actually painful. After a few days more in the dark room he was allowed free sight again; but he showed no emotion, and said that he did not knew what various objects were with Apply to which he was perfectly familiar previously by touch.

He only recognized the hand of the surgeon when he took it into his own, could tell wine only by smelling it, and so forth. It was some time before he acquired the sense of color, but as soon as he did so it seemed of supreme importance and overshadowed everything else. Everything that he saw was "black" or "white," according to whether it was turned toward the light or otherwise, and he decomposed everything he saw into color points, like a silver-point artist.

Fifteen months after he was in the ho-ptal he had not yet learned to read, in spite of the assiduous efforts of the nursing sister to teach him the alphabet. His father then took him home. A year later, when Dr Moreau saw him there, he had lost most of the ideals he had gained in the hospital, without acquiring many new ones. The case is extraordinary at all points, and the patient seems less able to enjoy life than when he was totally blind.

"Swell chance!" he commented.

"Oh, I'm not so worse! Just you watch out." The lively girl sprang up, disparded the cigarette, adjusted an imaginary train, and spoke lispingly in a society manner much more moderate and convincing than that with which she had favored the retiring Cassidy. Voice, pose and gesture proclaimed at least the excellent mimic.

"How do you do, Mrs Jones! So good of you to call! . . . My dear Miss: Smith, this is indeed a pleasure." She seated herself again, quite primly now, and moved her hande over the tabounct appropriately to her words. Due lump or two?... Yes, I just love bridge. No. I don't play," she continued, simpering: "but, just the same, I love it." With this abourd ending. Aggic again arranged her feet according to her liking on the apposite chair. "That's the kind of stuff she's had me doing," -che rattled on in her coarser voice, "and believe me, Joe, it's near killing me. But all the same," she hurried on, with a swift revulsion of mood to the former serious topic, "I'm for Mary strong! You stick to her, Joe, and you'll wear diamons'. . . And that reminds me! I wish she'd let me wear mine, but she won't She says they're vulgar for an innocent country girl like her cousin, Agnec Lynch. Ain't that fierce i . . How can anything be vulgar that's worth a hundred and fifty a carat?"

> CHAPTER IX. A LEGAL DOCUMENT.

Mary spent less than an hour is that mysteriously important engagement with Dick Gilder, of which she had spoken to Aggie. After separating from the young man, she went alone down Broadway, walking the few blocks of distance to Sigismund Harris's office. On a corner, her attention was caught by the forlord tace of a girl crossing anto the side street. A closer glance-showed that the privation of the gaunt features, was emphasized by the scant garments, .almost in tatters. Instantly, Mary's quick sympathies were aroused, the more particularly since the wretched child seemed of about the age she herself had been when her great suffering had befallen. turning aside, the soon caught up with the girl and spoke an inquiry.

It was the familiar story, a father out of work, a sick mother, a brood of hungry children. Some confused words of distress revealed the fact that the wobegone girl was even then fighting the final battle of purity against starvation. That she still fought on in such case proved enough as to her decency of nature, wholesome despite squalid surgoundings. 'Mary's heart was deeply moved, and her words of comfort came with a simple sincerity that was like new lite to the sorely baset waif. She promised to interest herself in securing employment for the father, such care as the mother and children might need, along with a situation for the the girl nerself. In evidence of her purpose, she took her engagement-book from her bag, and get down the street and number of the East Side tenement where the family possessed the one room that exocked the word home, and she gave a banknote to the girl to serve the immediate needs. When she went back to resume her progress down Broadway, Mary felt herself vastly cheered by the warm glow within, which is the reward of a kindly act, gratefully received. And, on this particular morning, she craved such assuagement of her spirit, for the conscience that, in spite of all her miedeeds, still lived, was struggling within her. In her revolt against a world that had wantonly inflicted on her the worst torments, Mary Turner had thought that she might safely disregard those principles in which she had been so carefully reared. She had believed that by the deliberate adoption of a life of guile within the limits allowed by the law, she would find solice for her wants, while feeling that thus she avenged herself in some slight measure for the indignities she had undergone unjustly. Yet, as the days passed, days of success as far as her scheming was concerned, this brilliant woman, who had tried to deem herself unscrupulous, found that lawlessness within the law failed to satisfy something deep within her soul. The righteousness that was her instinct was offended by the triumphs achieved through so devious devices, though she resolutely set her will to suppress any spiritual rebellion.

There was, as well, another grievance of her nature, yet more subtle, her air became distrait, but she infinitely more painful. This lay in her craying for tenderness. She the virility of her intelligence, its audacity, its aggressiveness. She had a heart yearning for the multitudinous affections that are the prerogative of the feminine; she had a heart longing for love, to receive and to give in full measure. . . . And from them yet?" the inquired. her life was barren. Eince the death of her father, there had been none on whom she could lavish the great gifts of her tenderness. Through the days of her working in the store circumstances had shut her out from all resociation with others congenial. No need to rehearse the imposts bilities of companionship in the prison life. Since then, the situation had not vitally improved, in spite of her better worldly condition. For Garson, who had saved her from death, she felt a strong and lasting gratitude - nothing that relieved the longing for nobler affections. There was none other with whom she had any intimacy except that, of a sert, with Aggie Lynch, and by no possibility could the adventuress serve as an object of deep regard. The girl was amusing enough, and, indeed, a most likable person at her best. But she was, after all, a shallow-plated looked up at the lawyer, and there individual, without a shred of principle of any sort whatsoever, save the single merit of unswerving loyalty to her "pals." Mary cherisked a certain warm kindliness for the first woman who had befriended dier in any way, but beyond this there was no finer feeling.

Nevertheless, it is not quito ccurate, to say that Mary Turner had had no intimacyan which her heart might have been seriously engaged. In one instance, of recent happening, she had been much in ascociation with a young man who was of excellent standing in the world, who was of good birth, good education, of delightful menners, and, too, wholesome and agreeable beyond the most of his class. This was Dick Gilder, and since her companionship with him, Mary had undergone a revulsion greater than ever before against the fate thrust on her, which now at last she had chosen to welcome and nourish by acquiescence as best she might.

. Of course, she could not waste tenderness on this man, for she dad deliberately set out to make him the instrument of her wengeance against his father. For that very reason, she suffered much from a conscience newly clamorous. Never for an instant did she hesitate in her lorgcherished plan of acvenge against the one who had brought ruin on her life, yet, through all her satisfaction before the prospect of fine! victory after continued delay, there ran the secret, inescapable sorrow over the fact that she must employ this means to attain her end She had no thought of weakening, but the better spirit within her warred against the lust to repay an eye for an eye. It was the new Gospel against the old Law, and the fierceness of the struggle rest her. Just now doing the act seemed somehow instinct toward service of love, but too, to muffle for a little the rebuk-

ing voice of her inmost soul. So she went her way more at ease more nearly content again with her self and with her system of living Indeed, as she was shown into the private office of the ingenious interpreter of the law, there was not a hint of any trouble beneath the bright mask of her beauty, radiantly smiling

Harris regarded his client with an appreciative eye, as he bowed in greeting, and invited her to a seat. The lawyer was a man of fine physique, with a splandid face of the Semitic type, in which were large, dark, sparkling eyos - eyes a Lom-broso perhaps might have judged rather too closely set. As a matter of fact, Harris had suffered a flagrant injustice in his own life from a suspicion of any wrong-doing which he had not merited by any act. This had caused him a loss of prestige in his profession. He presently adopted the wily suggestion of the adage, that it is well to have the game if you have the name, and he resolutely set himself to the task of making as much money as possible by any means convenient. Mary Turner as a client delighted his heart, both because of the novelty ideas and for the munificence of the fees which she ungrudgingly paid with never a protest. So, as he beamed on her now, and spoke a compliment, it was rather the lawyer than the man that was moved to acmiration.

"Why, Miss Turner, how charming!" he declared, smiling. "Really, my dear young lady, you look positively bridal.'

"Oh, do you think so?" Mary rejoined, with a whimsical pout, as she seated herself. For the moment quickly gained her poise, as the lawyer, who had dropped back into was wholly woman, notwithstanding his chair behind the desk, went on Mary turned to the maid, who no w

"Thank you," Mary said, evidently a little gratified by the frank praise of the learned gentleman for her abilities. "And have you heard

"No," the lawyer replied. "I gave them until to-morrow. If I don't hear then, I shall start suit at once. Then the lawyer's manner 'became unusually bland and self-satisfied as he opened a drawer of the desk and brought forth a rather formidable appearing document, bearing a most impressive seal. "You will be glad to know," he went on unctuously, "that I was entirely successful in carrying out that idea of yours as to the injunction. My dear Miss Turner," he went en with Borid compliment, "Portia was a squawking baby, compared with you"
"Thank you again," Mary answered, as she took the legal paper which he held outstretched toward her. Her soarlet lips-were curved happily, and the clear oval of her cheeks blossemed to a deeper rose. For a moment, her glance ran over the words of the page. Then she were new lusters in the violet eyes. "It's splendid," she declared.

"Did you have much trouble in getting it? Harris parmitted himself the indulgence of a professional chuckle of keenest amusement before he an-

"Why, no!" he declared, with reminiscent enjoyment in his manner. "That is, not really!" There was an enormous completency in his air over the event. That mysterious document with the imposing seal, the request for which had nearly caused a judge to fall off the bench, reposed safely in Mary's bag when she returned to the apartment after the visit to the lawyer's office.

"You ought to know," Mary re-turned, smiling a little. "He's the lawyer retained by General Hastings in the matter of a certain breach-ofpromise suit."

"Oh, you mean yours truly," Aggie exclaimed, not in the least abashed by her forgetfulness in an with which one seeks to cajole a the General's representative affair that concerned herself so terrified infant, "You mustn't be "I think," Mary explained tran-closely, "Hope he's brought the afraid, Agnes. "Leave the room now," Mary ordered, crisply. "When I call to you, come in, but be sure and leave everything to me. Merely follow my dead. And, Agnes-be very ingenue."

"Oh, I'm wise-I'm wise," Aggie nodded; as she hurried out toward her bedroom. "I'll be a squab surest thing you know!"

Next moment, Mary gave a formal greeting to the lawyer, who represented the man she planned to mulct effectively, and invited him to a chair near her, while she berself retained her place at the desk, within a drawer of which she had just locked the formidable-appearing document received from Harris.

Irwin lost no time in coming to the point.
"I called in reference to this suit, which Miss Agnes Lynch threatens to bring against my client, General Hastings. Mary regarded the attorney with a level glance, serenely expressionless as far as could be achieved by eyes so clear and shining, and her voice was cold as she replied with significant brusqueness. "It's not a threat, Mr Irwin. The suit will be brought."

The lawyer frowned, and there was a strident note in his voice when he answered, meeting her glance with an uncompromising stare of hostility.

"You realize, of course," he said finally, "that this is merely plain blackmail."

There was not the change of a feature in the face of the woman who listened to the accusation. Her eyes steadfastly retained their gaze into his; her voice was still coldly formal, as before.

"If it's blackmail, Mr Irwin, why don't you consult the police?" she inquired, with manifest disdain

The reply was uttered with conspicuous exasperation. "You know perfectly well," the lawyer said bitterly, "that General Hastings cannot afford such publicity. His position would be jeopardized.

Of course, you understand, my dear, that under no circumstances must you say anything that isn't strictly true, and that, if he did not promise to marry you, you have no case-none at all. Now, Agnes, tell me: did General Hastings promise to marry you?"

"Oh, yes — oh, yes, indeed!" Ag-gie cried falteringly. "And I wish he would. He's such a delightful old gentleman!" As she spoke, the girl let go Mary's hand and clasped on his part. her own together costatically.

The legal representative of the question. "Was that promise made in writ-

"No," Aggie answered, gushingly. "But all his letters were in writing, you know. Such wonderful letters! She raised her blue eyes toward the ceiling in a naive rapture. "So tender, and so - er - interesting!" Somehow, the inflection on the last word did not altogether suggest the ingenuous.

"Yes, yes, I dare say," Irwin agreed, hastily, with some evidences of chagrin. He had no intention of dwelling on that feature of the letters, concerning which he had no doubt whatever, since he knew the amorous General very well indeed. They would be interesting, beyond this time there was a sting, of the the shadow of questioning, horribly interesting. Such was the confes sed opinion of the swain himself who had written them in his folly horribly interesting to all the reading public of the country, since the

It was the latter volatile person who ended the silence that followed on the lawyer's going.

"You've darn near broke my heart." she cried, bouncing up violently, know it was marked?"

"I didn't," Mary replied, blandly; "but it was a pretty good guess, wasn't it? Couldn't you see that all he wanted was to get the letters, and have us take the marked money? Then, my simple young friend, we would have been arrested very neatly indeed-for blackmail."

Aggie's innocent eyes rounded in an amazed consternation, which was not at all assumed. "Gee!" she cried. "That would have been fierce ! And pow?" she questioned, apprehensively. Mary's answer repudiated any posibility of fear.

"And now," she explained contentedly, "he really will go to our lawyer. There, he will pay over the same marked money. Then he will get the letters he wants so much. And, just because it's a strictly bus iness transaction between two lawyers, with everything done according to legal ethics-

Mary laughed in care-free enjoyment, as well she might after winning the victory in such a battle of nuch attention to these histrionics. "If you had asked him for all this money for the return of his letters, it would have been blackmail, and we'd have gone to jail in all human probability. But we did no such thing-no, indeed ! What we did wasn't anything like that in the eyes of the law. What we did was merely to have your lawyer take steps toward a suit for damages for breach of promise of marriage for the sum of ten thousand dollars. CHAPTER XI.

THE THIEF.

Mary remained in joyous spirits after her victorious matching of brains against a lawyer of high standing in his profession. For the time being, conscience was muted by gratified ambition. Her thoughts just then were far from the miseries consequences in the present. But that past was soon to be recalled to her with a vividness most terrible.

She had entered the telephone booth, which she had caused to be her bed-room for the sake of greater ing her absence from the drawingroom that Garson again came into The lawyer made a hurried bow the apartment, seeking her. On which took in both of the women, being told by Aggie as to Mary's and walked quickly toward the door, whereabouts, he sat down to await her return, listening without much ion that many cures can certainly be interest to the adventuress. It was just then that the maid appeared.

"There's a girl wants to see Miss Turner," she explained. The irrepressible Agge put on her most financially elegant air. "Has she a card?" she inquired appreciation.

"No," was the answer. "But she says its important. I guess the discomfiture. Without a word, poor thing's in hard luck, from the after a long moment in which he look of her." the kindly Fannie adlook of her," the kindly Fannie adthe torger's face as he again nodded "We might just as well pipe off the skirt before Mary gets here,"

Aggie suggested, with eagerness. A minute later, a girl perhaps twenty years of age stepped just within the doorway, and stood there with eyes downcast, after one swift, furtive glance about her. Her whole appearance was that of dejec .. tion. Her soiled black gown, the cringing posture, the pallor of her face, proclaimed the abject misery of her state.

Aggie, who was not exuberant in her sympathies for any one rather than herself, addressed the newcomer with a patronizing inflection, modulated in her best manner. "Won't you come in, please?" she equested. The shrinking girl shot another veiled look in the direction of the

"Are you Miss Turner?" she asked, in a voice broken by nervous dismay.

"Really, I am very sorry," Aggie replied, primly; "but I am only her cousin, Miss Agnes Lynch. But Miss Turner is likely to be back any minute now."

"Can I wait?" came the timid question. "Certainly," Aggie answered hosoitably. "Please sit down." As the girl obediently sank down on the nearest chair, Garson addressed her sharply, so that the visitor started uneasily at the unexpected sound. "You don't know Miss Turner?" "No," came the faint reply.

To have the children sound and healthy is the first care of mothers. They cannot be healthy if troubled with worms. Use Mother Graves'

Worm Exterminator. A teacher trying to impress on her children the rightness of kindness toward all animals took them for a walk to bring the lesson home to them. Hearing a scream from little Johnny she asked, What's the matter Johnny? I've been sitting on a hornet, was the tearful response, and I'm afraid I've hurt the poor thing. Countless have been the cures worked by Holloway's Corn Cure. It has a power of its own not found in other preparations. TO HAVE AN ADDITION .- $25,000 was placed in the supplementary estimates for a 50 foot addition to the Cobourg post office. The addition is to be built on to the rear of the present building, the lobby enlarged and tile floors put down. THE POOR MAN'S FRIEND .- Put up in small bottles that are easily portable and sold for a very small sum Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil possesses more power in concentrated form than one hundred times the quantity of many urgents. Its cheapness and varied uses to which

There, said he straightening up, I've spoiled a guinea pair of shoes and ruined a thirty shilling pair of trousers, but if we have good luck we'll get a boquet for which the florist would have charged about a shilling.

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, fhose that find lodgement in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter the most destructive, are as they cling to the walls of the intestines and if not interfered with work havock there. Miller's Worm Powders dislodge both kinds of worms and while expelling them from the system, serve to repair the damage they have caused. TRIAL IS INEXPENSIVE .- To those who suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion rheumatisim or any ailment arising from derangements of the digestive system, a trial of P rm:lee's Vegetable Pills, are recommended should the sufferer be unacquainted with them The trial will be inexpensive and the result will be another customer for this excellent medicine. There was a goodly attendance of members and adherents, and as the various reports were presented, it was evident to all that the year's work had been carried on with vigor and success. There were 27 additions to the membership, 17 of these by baptism and the remainder by letter and experience. The present membership is 232. The receipts from all sources amounted to over $3,500.00, and $687.00 were given to missions. Each of these sums represents an advance on last year's figures. All obligations are met, and the treasurers begin the new year with comfortable balances in the bank. The splendid staff of office bearers, to whose efficient leadership, and cordial co-operation with the membership of the church, the success of the year's work is largely to be attributed, were nearly all re-elected. JUMPED THROUGH A WINDOW OF THE TRAIN

Finlander Took a Mad Leap From G. T. R. Port Hope Train Going Thirty Miles an Hour

Peterboro Examiner

To jump head first out of the window of a passenger coach, when the train is travelling about thirty miles an hour, and escape practically uninjured, would be an unusual feat even for a circus pertormer who is accustomed to court death. This was the experience of a Findlander who was on his way from Peterboro to Port Hope last night, and who leaped from the window while the train was steaming past Quay's crossing, a couple of miles the other side of Garden Hill.

According to the story the Finn gave the local police, he worked up till a few days ago as deck hand on one of the boats that runs between Kingston and the Thousaud Islands. But in some manner he had a row with the rest of the crew, and left the boat intending togo to his home in New York State. He caught the wrong train, however, and landed in Peterboro on Sunday. Yes-terday he hung around the local police station, saying that he was atraid the members of the crew were following him. Finally he was locked up in the cells and kept there until nine o'clock yesterday evening He was taken to the G. T. R station then and put on board the g o'clock train to Port Hope by two constables. The idea was for the man to work his way from Port Hope across the lake to his native state, where according to his story he had relatives and friends.

Although the prospects for never seeing him again seemed good last night, word was received this morn-ing by The Examiner that the Finn had leaped from the window of the coach as the train was passing the Chemong Indian Village Re- Quay's crossing which is just a little serve, for ninety years a resident of this side of Port Hope. The train the village in which he passed away, was stopped and passengers and died Saturday evening. Johnson, crew hunted for the man whose diswhose parents came from the fork appearance had been so dramatic, of the Credit river, was a Mississ- but the only trace of him that could auga Indian and was about ninety be discovered was a hat, which was years of age. He has lived since recognized as the one he had been birth in the Indian Village and was wearing. It is reported this mornthe oldest living resident of the vil- ing, however, that he took refuge lage at the time of his death.

Mr. T. H. Aiken Had an Unusual Surprise-Thought the Duke Was an Ordinary Citizen

Millbrook, June 9.—Mr T H Aiken, of the Fallis line, had one of those surprises on Monday morning last that come only once in a lifetime, and then only to few men. A man in ordinary togs called at his house and asked to be shown to the C.P.R. tracks at the junction near Mr Aiken's place.

Mr Aiken volunteered to go with him, but the stranger said, "Oh, no, don't bother. I got off the train and all I want is to be directed back."

Mr Aiken; always a courteous gentleman, started on however, and said: "I hear the Duke's train is to be along to-day, and I'd like to see what he looks like." "You wouldn't see much anyway," said the stranger, but Tom kept on talking as they walked, and said: "Did you ever see the Duke, and what sort of a chap is he anyway?" "Oh, yes, I have seen him, and he isn't much to look at." "Do you think I can get a sight of him," said Tom, "if I do go

Tom's hat went off at once, and a courtesy was made, he knew not how, or how he got to the train, he cannot very well explain. But the Duke of Connaught laughed good naturedly at Tom's discomfiture.

that by which gave it a second read-ing, it being then 41 to 7, and probably this is accounted for by the fact that Senator Choquette made a violent speech in condemnation of those Liberals who had voted with the Government.
Thirteen Liberals voted in favor of the bill on third reading. They were Senators Bostock (Liberal leader), Mitchell, David, Ross (Moosejaw) McHugh, Frost, Thibodeau, Edwards Derbyshire, Deveber, Young, Watson and Talbot. All the Conservative Senators voted in favor on the measure except Senator Montplaisir. He is the oldest member of the Upper House, having been appointed to the Senate in 1891 by Sir John Macdonald.

The analysis of the vote, therefore, is that 13 Liberals and 22 Conservatives voted for the bill on the third reading, with 19 Liberals and one Conservative against.

Melvin-Jones is counted as a Conser-vative. He has voted with the Government since his announcement that he had left the Liberal party.

In opening the debate Hon. Mr. Lougheed declared that Senator Bostock's objections were not well found-ed. The security the Government is getting is ample, he declared, and he did not believe it was reasonable that Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann should be required to pledge their personal fortunes for the successful comple-tion and operation of a 10,000 mile railway system such as the C. N. R. tor Choquette (Quebec) offered an amendment providing that the bill should be sent to the rallway committee of the Senate, and that the committee should have the power to summon witnesses and require evi-dence to be given. Senator Choquette said it appeared that Mackenzie and Mann were stronger than all their opponents combined. Never had he seen such a farce as was being enacted in the Senate. He referred to the fact that Senators had voted to prevent farmers who had lost money in a business venture (the Farmers Bank), being recouped, and now when Mackenzie and Mann came happy couple. EFFECTIVE TREATMENT For Gold in the Head and Catarrh

Some internal remedies, such as Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, undoubtedly help a great deal in checking a cold in the head. But you get the quickest action from Fossal Balm.

This little nozzle reaches well up into the nostril, and a gentle squeeze on the tube discharges enough of the Fossal Balm to spread over the membrane lining the nasal passages, kill the germs of the cold or catarrh, soothe the smarting inflammation, make breathing through the nostrils free and easy, and check the cold or relieve the catarrh at once.

FARMERS* BRING IN LILACS

Great Loads of Fowers Are Brought to Improvised Morgue as Tribute to Victims of Disaster-American Firm Is Said to Have Begun Preliminary Work Toward Raising Vessel,

QUEBEC, June 4. - Over eight hundred bodies are entombed in the sunken Empress of Ireland. Interest here now centres in the disposition of the submerged liner. The official announcement of the names of the saved and lost, and the report late Tuesday night from Captain Pouliot of the Government steamer Lady Grey that careful cruising of the waters for miles below the scene of the disaster has failed to find further dead, has been followed by keen public anxiety to learn the plans of the authorities as to the disposition of the ill-fated vessel. Many relatives here, who have failed to identify their lost among the bodies already taken from the waters, said yesterday that they would remain in Quebec until the C. P. R. Company decided what action it would take.

Some excitement was occasioned by a persistent report from the waterfront that during the night the tug Aledo P. of Three Rivers had steamed down the river towing a hay barge. en route to the Government gas buoy which marks the resting place of the Empress. On the barge were reported to be three expert divers, with full apparatus and an air line crew. According to the statements of marine men, these divers were identified with a large American salvage concern. Captain Walsh, marine super-Intendent, and other Canadian Pacific officials here, however, decline to credit the report, and have nothing to add to Captain Walsh's statement last night. On the waterfront marine men were aqually persistent in their assurance that "something is doing," and intimate that the salvage firm is making preliminary investigations prior to tendering for the contract of talsing the Empress.

Tuesday afternoon farmers from the neighborhood of the city drove to the temporary morgue with cartloads of lilacs, which were distributed through the shed in half a hundred vases hastily purchased.

It is feared that most of the bodies now remaining unidentified will never be recognized. As showing the difficulties already, a Norwegian from the "Soo" picked out the body of a girl as that of his sister, and claimed it, but when the name was given it was found the girl was among the saved and had been given a ticket to go home.

The child's body found Tuesday near Little Metis may be that for which F. P. Brooks, of Toronto, was looking.

The woman, who thus abandoned the principle of the sanctity of human life, hitherto held up as one of the chief assets of the militant cause, had already ruined two paintings in the gallery, which is in Bond street, the heart of the fashionable quarter of London. She was proceeding to back a third picture when an attendant named Bour-

Other attendants rushed to the spot and quickly overpowered and disarmed her. She kicked, struggled and screamed for some minutes until she was handed over to the police. The woman evidently was of good education, and she was very stylishly dressed.

A letter was left in the Dore Gallery by the assailant, in which she

FARMHOUSE IS' SHATTERED

Sudden Whirlwind Starts In East Zorra and In a Few Minutes Works Great Havoc - Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bartley Lose Their Lives When Swirl Picks Up Home and Wrecks It,

WOODSTOCK. June 8. - Thomas Bartley, 74 years of age, and his wife, 55 years of age, were killed about 5.30 o'clock last night when his farm house was picked up by a cyclone. Portions of it were scattered through adjoining fields for several hundred yards. .

The disturbance appears to have originated near a bush between the 12th and 13th concession lines, north of Woodstock. The wind took a southerly course, crossing the field in which an asylum stands, taking trees and fences with it along the south side of the cross road.

A slaughter house belonging to J. Milson, Woodstock, between the 11th and 12th concessions, lost its roof but a litter of pigs in the barn were not injured.

When E. Kinsman, who lives on the cross-road, saw the approaching white column of dust, fences and trees, he immediately rushed his family into the cellar of his house. His house is the first one west of the BELFAST, Ireland, June 4 .- Mill- home of Thomas Bartley and did not

Mrs. Bartley a few minutes previous to the accident had been sitting on the east in the employ of the company, was | side of her home, and on account of the suddenness of the onslaught it is probable that she was still there when the house was wrecked.

A graphic description of the cyclone was given by two boys living at the Benfield farm. They saw it from start to finish. The column was within a few minutes after he was perfectly white. Starting in the black clouds of the raging thunderstorm, it looked like a dust storm. They could discern trees, telephone poles, fence rails, all in the whirling mass. While Citizens of Brockville and Cornwall they were standing in front of their mes they saw it cross the 11th concession line, close to the asylum, tra verse the opposite field, taking with passed the residence of Kinsman it took a southerly course, rising from the ground and passing over a field in which about 25 cows were feeding.

Back it came in a wide circle straight to the Bartley house, struck it and in a second nothing was left except whirling masses of broken timber scattering across the road and over the field towards Entwhistle's house. It then crossed several more fields, laying six maple trees across short distance north of the road it vanished as quickly as it had risen.

WATTS-DUNTON PASSES,

He Was a Famous Critic and Author For Many Years In London.

LONDON, June 8 .- Walter Theodore Watts-Dunton, poet, novelist and critic, died yesterday. He was born Oct. 12, 1832. Mr. Watts-Dunton was the close friend of Algernon Charles Swinburne. The two poets lived in the same house for thirty years, and on the death of Swinburne in 1909 he left Watts-Dunton his entire state.

The late novelist was born at St. Ives, Huntingdonshire, Eng., but lived for many years at Putney. He practiced as a solicitor in London for a short period before devoting himself to literature, adding his mother's name-Dunton-to his father's

For many years he was chief critic on a number of important London periodicals, including The Examiner and The Athenaeum, 1875-1898, when his connection with all critical journals ceased. He published in The Athenaeum much poetry during his twenty years' connection. He contributed to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

ANOTHER LARGE CAMP.

Hon. Col. Hughes Says Ontario Is To Have Big Militia Grounds.

OTTAWA, June 8-Appropriations amounting to approximately ten million dollars were voted for the De-partment of Militia, at Saturday evening's sitting of the House.

To the majority of the items there was little opposition. During the discussion of a plan for acquiring a militia training area in New Brunswick, Hon. Sam Hughes announced that it was the intention of his Department to secure a similar area in Toronto division. The Niagara camp, he said, was large enough to drill soldiers on, but not large enough to manoeuvre bodies of troops. He said that 60,000 were expected to attend the summer camps of instruction. The proposed area while primarily a militia camping ground would also be suitable for a picnic and excursion ground for the surrounding district

As to the camp at New Brunswick, to which Mr. George Fowler (Con., Kings and Albert, N.B.) took exception, Col. Hughes denied that it would be as expensive as Mr. Fowler represented. It consisted of 69,000 acres of partly cleared land, contained enough timber to pay for its purchase price, and its value was shown by the fact that right of way for the National Transcontinental through it had cost the Railways Department $13 per acre.

Prorogation of Parliament is about definitely fixed for Thursday next, with a possibility of winding up a day earlier.

The Prime Minister said Saturday that all the Government legislation which may be described as at all contentious is all through the House. In the Upper House there are three dis tinct sittings daily, so that bills can be facilitated much more readily than in the Commons.

New Yorker Arrested With $2,500 In New Westminster Money.

TORONTO, June 8 .- Harry Matthews, aged about 44, who claims New York as his home town, and declares he is in town negotiating for a moving picture site, was ar-rested by Detectives Guthrie, Newton and Montgomery at a down town hotel, early Saturday morning, with over $2,500 of the $273,000 stolen in the celebrated New Westminster Bank robbery in the early part of 1911, in his possession.

The police believe that Matthews can throw a lot of light on the famous robbery, if he can only be made to talk; but first efforts in this line Saturday morning proved a decided

The police were first notified of the passing of the stolen money by the clerk of the hotel, who had taken down the numbers and compared them with the list kept in all the large hotels. The three detectives arrived just as Matthews was dressing and placed him under arrest. The money was found in a small club bag, done up in packages of $500. There were five packages, each containing 100 five-dollar bills and 13 se five-dollar bill of $2,565. Every bil! was identified as one of those stolen from the Bank of Montreal. Matthews was lodged in No. 1 station and will be charged in to-day's police court with receiv-

Two Tyendinaga Boys Are Killed In Explosion.

BELLEVILLE, June 8-Two boys, James Thompson, aged 16, and Jos. O'Connor, aged 13 years, who resided with their parents in Tyendinaca Township, were on Friday night the victims of an accident which caused their death.

The lads, while walking along the newly-constructed C. P. R. track, discovered a keg which contained a quantity of black powder. They filled their pockets with the powder, and after walking a short distance made an effort to blow up a stump by placing a quantity of the powder beneath it. An explosion occurred and the powder in the boys' pockets became ignited.

O'Connor was frightfully injured and died almost immediately. Thompson, who was terribly burned and lacerated, lived until an early hour Saturday morning.

An inquest will be held.

Harry Pike, an Engineer, Is Found Wandering Around the Corridors of the Royal Residence Where He Had Been For Some Time -Only Did It to Show How Ensy It Was, He Declares.

LONDON, June 8 .- A sensational incident of the day, and one that has caused grave anxiety owing to exploits of the militant suffragettes, was the discovery of a young man, who gave his name as Harry Pike, in Buckingham Palace, where the royal family spent Sunday. In the early hours of the morning Pike entered the palace, as he explained afterwards, to prove that entrance could be easily effected. He scaled the wall and wandered through the corridors for some time. Once he was near the Queen's apartment. He was finally discovered, however, and overpowered in the servants' quarters. He will be arraigned to-day in the Bow street police court on a charge of having been found on enclosed premises for unlawful purposes. This is the only offence provable against him, so far as the evidence shows.

There is nothing to show that Pike is connected with the women's suffrage movement. He gave his occupation as an engineer.

Pike was ignorant of the interior of the palace, and had several adventures while wandering about inside. Notwithstanding the heavy guard of soldiers and police, who are supposed to patrol the grounds closely, Pike managed to scale the palace wall, and climb into a basement window on the north sid; of the building, in which Queen Mary has her apartment. He entered several of the vacant rooms, and in one changed his clothing, which was torn and soiled through scaling the wall and crawling along the driveway to reach the palace building. The suit he exchanged for his own belonged to one of the servants.

The discovery of Pike resulted when he opened the door of a room where a servant was sleeping, saying to the servant, who had been awakened by his entry: "Excuse me, I was looking for number twenty." The servant suspected the man was a burglar and aroused other servants, who crowded him into a corner and held him there until the police came and took him away.

Presbyterlan Church Union Committee Suggests Changes.

AMENDMENTS TO BASIS

Assembly Is Asked to Reappoint Committee and Submit Proposed Alterations to Other Bodies, Then If Accepted Send Them Back to the Presbyterian Churches

For Final Ratification.

WOODSTOCK, June 8 .- After soreral days of discussion the Presbyter-During the service official mes- | ian committee on church union preages were read from Gen. and Mrs. | sented a report to the General Assemrepresentatives of the Methodist and Congregational Churches

The report said:-"Your committee recommend to the general assembly that the union committee be reappointed, vacancies which have occurred in its membership being filled; that the assembly evening. The first was a memorial respectfully invite Methodist and Congregational Churches to meet in joint committee with union committee of this church, to consider the amended basis appended to this report, and prepare basis of union that may be submitted to the assembly in 1915.

"If approved by the assembly of 1915 such basis of union, together with a statement presenting views of both minority and majority within the church shall be sent down to presbyteries, and also to sessions and congregations, that the judgment of the whole church may be had, and such issue as may then seem wisest, be given to what has been subject of negotirtions for so many years. And further, that the general assembly earnestly assure the other negotiating churches of their desire to reach that issue without any unnecessary delay.

Some of the most important suggested amendments to the basis of union dealt with the appointment of ministers. It was proposed that there shall be for each conference (synod or union) a settlement committee, consisting of ministers and laymen, and appointed annually by the conference, and upon which each presbytery will be represented ..

That the duty of final inquiry into the personal character, doctrinal beliefs and general fitness of candidates for the ministry representing themselves for ordination or for reception as ministers of this church shall be laid upon the annual conference (synod or union). The original paragraph omits the phrase "or for reception as ministers of this church."

"It shall be the policy of the United Church to foster the spirit of unity everywhere, both in its own midst. and, so far as it can, in other Christian churches, also in the hope that this sentiment of unity may in due time, so far as Canada is concerned, take shape in a church which may fittingly be described as national."

At their final meeting Saturday afternoon, the home mission board and the board of social service and evangelism decided to recommend on Tuesday morning that they be amalgamated. The motion will also recommend that Dr. .A S. Grant and Dr. J. G. Shearer, the present heads of both departments, be appointed as provisional superintendents. If Dr. Grant does not withdraw his resignation it is understood that an endeavor will be made to have Dr. Shearer appointed as head of the

This has been the worst winter I have ever seen, but there hasn't been a single day that my children haven't walked to school, and not a single day have they come home with wet feet, and to think, they walked down the middle of the road. Not one of them has been sick with a cold even, while heretofore my doctor bills have been more than my road tax. Talk to me about paying taxes to build roads. I am willing to pay taxes on my pack of fox hounds, my bird dogs, my chickens, my horses, and, if it in extending roads like this all over the country. I would rather have my house and ten acres of land on this road like it is now than have my whole farm on the old road like it was before improvement."

is the most satisfactory and economical road that can be built. It requires practically no expenditure for upkeep, and enables road taxes to be invested in more good roads instead of being spent in filling mud holes and ruts. It is permanent, safe, clean and passable the year 'round.

MONEY POURING IN.

London Generous Towards Empress Fund-Memorial Service Held. LONDON, June 6 .- (C. A. P. Cable.)-Up to last night the Lord Mayor's fund amounted to $120,000 and the Liverpool fund to nearly $70,000. Sir Herbert Tree, in forwarding a check for $461, proceeds of the People's Theatre matinee, mentions that the author Bernard Shaw, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell, both gave their services, and that he makes himself responsible for other expenses. The National Seamen's and Sailors' Union have given $1,500 for dependents of crew.

General Booth opened a fund yesterday. He said the disaster had not only robbed the army of 144 of the most valuable and experienced men and women, but left them with a large number of their orphans and others depending on what they feel they must make provision for.

One of the most impressive scenes ever witnessed within the walls of London's vast hall took place at the Royal Albert Hall last night when a public memorial service for those who lost their lives on the Empress of Ireland by the Salvation Army.

The immense hall with its capacity of fifteen thousand people was filled to the doors, chiefly with Salva-tionists and friends and also a large number of the general public.

The service opened with a pathetic procession. It consisted of the in-ternational staff songsters, carrying their distinctive flags, followed by those members of the Canadian contingent to the international congress who had happily traveled across by other vessels. The Newfoundland party and Indian officers then followed. Relatives and friends of the lost Salvation Army commissioners and their wives came next.

Ontario's Newest Gas Well Will Supply Wide Area. PETROLEO, June 6.—Without exception the largest gas well ever struck in Canada was discovered on Thursday in Oil Springs, by the local gas company, with which is associat-ed W. J. Aikens of Brantford. The well is about seven hundred feet to the southeast of the famous Fairbanks gas well, struck several months ago. The gas was encountered on Thursday at a depth of about 1,900 feet, and the supply increased as the well was being drilled deeper, until-the pressure was so great that it blew the drill sinker, weighing more than a thousand pounds, through the top of the derrick, forcing the men to run for safety.

The well is flowing at the rate of easily forty million feet per day, and it can be heard over ten miles away. An effort will be made to cap the well to-day by experts, but great difficulty will be experienced. The supply of gas from this one well is great enough to supply all the cities, towns, and villages between Sarnia, Petro-Major-Gen lea, and Hamilton.

The appliances for capping the well are being prepared by a special force of workmen. The roar from the well can be compared only to the roar of Niagara Falls.

DRINK PROVED FATAL

Mystery Surrounds Death of Woman

at Richmond, Que. RICHMOND, Que., June 4.—Rich-mond is in a state of excitement over the mysterious death of Mrs. J. P. Viger of this place, which occurred on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Viger succumbed after taking a drink of gin from a bottle. Drs. Johnson and Tompkins, who made the autopsy, state that the woman died as a result of poisoning from carbolic acid.

Cornore Bachand of Sherbrooke opened an inquest hele and adjourned it until Thursday evening. On Saturday a bottle of gin was brought to the Viger home, and on Sunday morning four or five people who were in the house partook of the gin, but suffered no bad effects. Later in the forenoon Mrs. Viger, her brother-in-law, Ludger Labadie, and her brother, Narcisse Petignat, again partook of the gin from the same bottle. Mrs. Viger became suddenly ill and was carried to a sofa, where she died in half an hour. Labadie threw his gin away as soon as he tasted it. It was brought out in evidence that Narcisse Petignat, a brother, had purchased twenty-five cents worth of carbolic acid at Bedard's drug store on Saturday evening. Vhen questioned on this point, he admitted purchasing the acid, but stated that he used it for medical purposes and threw away what was left. There is a strong feeling that further investigation will bring out some sensational evidence and that it will be proved that Mrs. Viger was not the one for whom the poison was intended, and it is possible that other members of the family may be called upon for further explanation.

Mr. Rowell Addresses Big Meeting in Toronto.

HE REVIEWS HIS PLEDGE

Massey Hall Filled With Liberals, Temperance Workers and Suffragists to Hear First Speech In the Province-Wide Demand For Social Reforms - Bar Must Go to Check "Treating."

TORONTO. June 5 .- Massey Hall was filled last night on the occasion of the inauguration of the election tour of Mr. N. W. Rowell, Libera. leader of Ontario. The audience was made up of Liberals, temperance workers and a large number of supporters of women's suffrage.

Mr. Rowell opened his remarks by declaring that never in recent years had there been such a spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction with conditions as in the Province of Ontario to-day.

"Why has the Government elected to go before the people before their term is up? Because they recognize that their prestige is steadily waning, and their party is rent with internal dissension, and while Sir James Whitney retains his health they would rather face the country to-day than later on. In view of the Premier's recent illness, no reasonable man who knows expects him to be the dominant figure he has been in the past. You have to choose between Sir

THE LIBERAL LEADER.

again without Sir James at its head. With regard to the issues of the day, Mr. Rowell said that the Liberals had forced both good roads and Hydro-electric radials upon the Government.

"The real problems facing you are ones of social and moral reform. "We are face to face with an anomalous situation. Ontario is as well adapted to mixed farming as any province in the country. Yet the ruproducts steadily diminishing. This is a problem which touches the foun-dation of national life.

"If I am put into power I promise you that the head of the Department of Agriculture shall be the ablest man that the province can produce, whe ther he be in the Legislature or not, and agriculture will no longer suffer. Not only are the agricultural districts decreasing in population but the cities are growing faster than we can provide houses for them, resulting in slums, tenements and a general overcrowding in our municipal communities. Our taxation of property on its real value will lower the tax rate to such an extent that the taxes on & workingman's home costing, say, $2,-400, will be cut almost in two, thereby giving the working man an opportunity to own and support his own

In speaking of his "abolish the bar" policy Mr. Rowell said: "One way to abolish the treating system is by wiping out the place where the treating is done. In abolishing the bar we are not, as some of the Conservatives have maintained, simply putting a liquor shop in its place. Shop licenses will not be issued in place of bar licenses abolished. Liquor shops can be wiped out by local option on a majority vote.

"Two and a half years ago I prom-ised to bring the 'abolish the bar issue before the country. I have done so. The issue is before you now. I have discharged my responsibility thus far. It now rests with your conscience. I have gathered about me a party that if you give me a Government will absolutely 'abole ish the bar'.

"My platform will be carried out at the first session. We have not the money of the liquor interests behind us, but we have the women. I put myself in the judgment of the people of this province irrespective of party. I admit differences of opinion in my own party. I was true to you, will you be true to me? If you will work as hard as I, my word is given that the 29th of Jun. will sound the death knell of every licensed bar in Skowhegan, Me, has a prodigy it the form of a 5 year-old youngests.

The evening was pleasantly spent with his open hands, slapped Yager's face until he was glad to say he had enough. Yager, we understand, made no attempt to defend himself but took the thrashing without a word. Some words ensued, and the Chief,

SPLENDID EXAMPLE .- La Presse, of Montreal, the leading French Canadian daily, says: French Canadians should never forget the admirable example given them by the making extraordinary preparations to celebrate the tercentenary of the passage of Champlain over the territory which they now occupy. This displays a spirit of justice and a breadth of view which we will never forget. If ever the opportunity presents it itself to honour heroes of English origin we shall seize it and profit by the occasion to repay the courtesy of the people of Orillia.

Special Music. - Last Sunday or at le evening, Mr C F Allison, choir director of St Paul's church presented a special program of music. In addition to a splendid anthem (un-accompanied) Master Whitehouse, boy soprano of Peterboro, gave two numbers, which were much enjoyed. The young lad has a strong soprano voice, well trained and any future appearance in Port Hope will be welcomed. The old-time favorites. Mr and Mrs James Massie sang most effectively, "My Faith Looks Up To Thee." It was soul-inspiring and the memory of it will linger long. Rev Wm Johnston, of Millbrook, delivered a very practical and interesting sermon.

LUCKY BOY .- By the will of Mrs. WALKER .- In the Township of George D. Farrar, of New York, Timothy Connolly, a former bellboy in a Great Barrington, Mass., hotel, is bequeathed with $30,000, to be held in trust until he becomes of age. Mrs. Farrar left an estate SIMPSON .- At Port Hope, on Friof $250,000. She had been a patron of the Great Barrington Maconochie's and White & Co. Pickles and hotel for twenty years, and became sage.

Sauces are (in our opinion) the very best value interested in Connolly, who was STEVENSON—At Port Hope, on polite and attentive in his service the Canadian market.

CLAIM FOR GIRL'S DEATH.—Two ears ago Helen Marshall, a Woodstock girl, was shot to death in Detroit by her lover, Joseph Ros-asco, because she refused to marry him after he had given her costly presents, including diamonds. Rosasco ended his own life immediately afterwards. The parents of Miss Marshall made a claim against Rosasco's estate, and the matter was dragged through the probate court until to-day, when a settlement was reached. Miss Marshall's parents will receive $1,125 from the heirs of the Rosasco estate in full settlement for damages.

MOTHERS' DAY, ETC.—We have duly celebrated "Mother's Day."
We have worn flowers; we have had numerous special services in the churches. Indeed, we have honored mother as she well deserves to be honored. But how about father? The old man has been passed up without a word. He has been digging along as usual, getting the necessary together for the three meals and the house rent, not to speak of the gas and, the electric light, and he is now in the citizens of Orillia, an entirely Eng- process of figuring out his next lish and Protestant town which is winter's coal account towards Maud's new dress and the old lady's new boots, but never a word about him. Is it not time that we handed father a few bouquets? Between the suffragettes and mothers' day we will soon forget that the old man is part and parcel of the household economy. Even the dog has his day, but poor father gets nothing but the bills, and a chilly reception when he comes home a trifle late tor dinner. Me for a father's day, or at least an afternoon.-Saturday

The 1st and 2nd of July will be Red Letter days in the history of Dominion Day Celebrations. Your friends will HEIGHINGTON, MACKLEM & visit you. Perhaps the steps and the verandah look a little SHAVER shabby. A coat of paint would help. Perhaps the lawn furniture is not locking just as nice as it should and there are many things that could be improved by a coat of paint, stain, or varnish. Those are the conditions, but the vital point is winter's coal account, together with to settle in your mind before you start the work, the kind of material you will use. Of course, when you think of Paint cr Varnish, the first thought that enters your mind is the name MINERVA. Keep that name firmly fixed in your mind. It don't cost anything and it is a mighty good habit.
