RATS PLENTIFUL CATCH IS LARGE

One Trapper Caught 600 Rice Lake Muskrats During Season

Depression lifted from the swampy shores of Rice Lake and the lower reaches of the Otonabee River during the past month as trappers garnered large catches of muskrats. Bank accounts grew and debts were wiped off when the trappers marketed their skins.

Prices for the skins were 10 to 20 per cent. in advance of last year, with prime rats bringing 70 to 75 cents. All Peterboro dealers reported the catch as large and the quality of the skins good.

One man brought in his catch of 600 skins which reaped him about $400 in cash for six weeks of trapping. Other large catches ran around 500 skins.

Ten years ago Rice Lake rat skins were sold by the trappers at $2.35 and $2.50, but that year the catch was small, it being reported as not running over 1,000 skins in all.

This year the rats were plentiful and the catch large, so the trappers said they had little to complain about. However, fur dealers declared ladies cannot expect a reduction in the cost of sealskin coats next year.

Some of the big catches were brought in by the following: Jack Coward, over 600; J. A. Clark and his two sons, over 500; Norman Breckenridge, over 500; Tom Paudash, 400; the Taylor boys, over 300; Alan McNab, about 300; M. Garneau, of Trent Bridge, over 300.

MINING CAMP SPRINGING UP

August

On the shores of Cameron Bay in Canada's sub-Arctic is a mining village which is probably the fastest-growing community in the Dominion. Last August the Village of Cameron Bay consisted of two log buildings with three more in the process of erection, and 120 souls make up the population.

Last summer there was one white woman in the area, now there are three with two white children. All reached the town by plane.

Major Bernard Day, chief engineer of the Bear Exploration and Radium Company, who paid a recent visit to Toronto, brought news of the mining development.

"At Eldorado they were mining all winter," said Major Day. "Our machinery has been flown in. Our tunnel is 97 feet in with silver along the floor. We will concentrate on silver only for the time being—not the pitchblende."

SEEKS BAN ON ROADSIDE SALES

Violations Of Lord's Day Act Are Attacked In Presbytery

That the practice of selling fruit and vegetables beside the highways of Ontario on Sunday is a flagrant violation of the Lord's Day Act was the declaration of a motion presented before Tuesday's meeting of the Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church of Canada, held in Westminster-Central Church, Toronto. Rev. Dr. W. H. Hinks urged that the matter be brought to the attention of the Attorney-General. In submitting the resolution Dr. Hinks contended: "It is manifestly unfair to require the shops of our towns and cities to cease operation on the Sabbath Day while this sale of goods is allowed to continue on the highways without restriction."

It bids pain Begone.—When neuralgia racks the nerves or lumbago cripples the back is the time to test the virtues of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Well rubbed in it will still the pain and produce a sensation of ease and rest. A trial will establish faith in it.

REFUSED WORK, CONVICTION MADE

Not Entitled To Sympathy, Oshawa Man Is Told

Relief does not fall from Heaven as some people seem to think, declared Magistrate Creighton in Oshawa police court as he convicted Joseph Fleury is one of seven unemployed single men arrested two weeks ago who refused to accept work at the government airport at Trenton.

"This work was offered you to help yourselves and relieve the burden on this municipality," Magistrate Creighton told Fleury. "It was only right you should have taken up your share of the burden, and when you refused such a simple task you are not entitled to the least sympathy from this court."

Relief officials testified Fleury had been on relief since February 3 and twice refused the work when offered. He also appeared on a deputation which protested the terms offered.

Onie Brown, of Toronto, defence counsel, asked for non suit when evidence of the Crown was completed. He declared his client could not come under the vagrancy section as he was maintained on relief by the city. When Magistrate Creighton convicted the accused, Brown asked for a stated case and the Magistrate reserved sentence one week. Brown agreed the same evidence would apply to the six others arrested, and they were remanded on bail two weeks.

TRAMPS SPLIT TRAIN TO VISIT BELLEVILLE

Three Alleged Perpetrators Of Act Arrested After Chase

Three transients, Leonard McMillan, Hamilton; Harold Goodell, Trenton; and James M. ...

Trenton, were arrested by Trenton police after a long chase, and charged with "interfering without authority with railway appliances, which might have caused injury and damage." The men, it is alleged, drew the pin from the drawbar, cutting in two a freight train travelling at sixty miles an hour in order that they might alight without injury at Trenton, where Moutenay, it is understood, wanted to visit his home. The drawing of the pin applied the air brake to the back half of the train, while the other part proceeded some distance before learning of the act committed. Two of the men were caught near the Trenton dam, while Moutenay headed west, and was caught near Smithfield. The police proceeded to that point on a gas jigger, and later trailing the man through the fields. It is alleged Moutenay pulled the pin to cut the train in two. William Jordan of Belleville was the conductor in charge of the train. The accused men were remanded for one week in custody.

The postmasters are being notified to charge this three cents on money orders from one cent to $100, inclusive.

EX-PORT HOPER TAKEN BY DEATH

Mrs. William Farquharson Buried Tuesday—Born At Norham

Word was received here of the death in Toronto of Mrs. William Farquharson, wife of a former Port Hope business man. Mrs. Farquharson had been ill for some months, but her death was unexpected.

Born in the village of Norham, north of Brighton, Mrs. Farquharson was a daughter of S. N. Church, former well-known railroad man of that district. She was married to William Farquharson while he was a member of the Farquharson granite firm in Port Hope. Shortly after the couple moved to the United States and returned to Canada some years ago. Her husband and one daughter, Miss Gertrude, survive at the family home, 47 Douglas Ave., North Toronto. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon to Toronto Necropolis.

BANK AT BRONTE ROBBED OF $1,600

Three Bandits Herd Staff Into Vault, Vanish In Car

Police in all parts of Central and Western Ontario last night searched for three daring robbers who Friday robbed the Bank of Montreal branch at Bronte and escaped with $1,600 in what is believed to have been a stolen motor car.

John Patterson and Miss Grace Inglehart, bank employees, were placed in the vault by two of the thugs, while a third man waited outside in the car.

The hold-up was a fast one, the robbers simply walking in and ordering the employees to "throw up or make no noise."

After Patterson and Miss Inglehart entered the vault the robbers attempted to lock the door but were unable to do so.

Immediately after the thugs left Patterson gave the alarm and police and citizens rushed to the scene.

The car swerved around the corner of the highway and disappeared eastward, travelling fast.

Belle Bray, 16, entered the bank just as the bandits were leaving but the men never stopped, brushing past her and hurried away. They were armed with saved-off shot-guns.

PETERBORO MAN INJURED IN FALL

William McIntyre Missed Train At Port Hope, Also At Cobourg

William McIntyre of Peterboro is in hospital at Cobourg suffering from injuries received when he fell in an attempt to board a Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train. He received severe head and shoulder injuries but no broken bones.

McIntyre had missed the train at Port Hope and had motored to Cobourg, arrived just as the train was pulling out. He slipped as he clutched the last coach, falling between the train and platform.

DARLINGTON TOWNSHIP TO STOP RELIEF MAY 1

Darlington Township Council at its monthly meeting decided to stop the issue of direct relief after May 1.

In addition, the council passed a resolution sponsored by Councillors Blanchard and A. L. Pascoe, which reads: "In view of the fact that the municipality of the Township of Darlington is borrowing money from the bank, and paying a high rate of interest because taxes are unpaid, it is the opinion of the council that it must curtail in some way. Be it therefore resolved that the money earned by ratepayers doing road work be not paid, but the money applied to their taxes, provided that sanction of the Provincial Government is obtained."

Providing policemen to do duty at Piccadilly Circus costs $50,000 a year.

ANNUAL PARADE DIVINE WORSHIP

Rev. Dr. K. H. Palmer Delivered Powerful Sermon At St. Paul's Sunday Night

Commemorating the 114th anniversary of the Order in America, upwards of seventy-five Oddfellows, members of Durham Lodge No. 78, I.O.O.F., Port Hope, paraded to divine worship at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church Sunday night. A number of the brethren from out of town attended and a powerful sermon was preached by the minister of the church, Rev. (Bro.) K. H. Palmer, D.D.

Dr. Palmer took as his topic, "A Royal Oddfellow," basing his remarks on 1 Samuel Chapter 23, verse 16—"And Jonathan, Saul's son, arose, and went to David in the wood and strengthened his hand in God." The choir, under the direction of the organist, A. H. N. Snelgrove, rendered the anthem, "O Lord, How Manifold Are Thy Works"—Burnby, and the male quartette, Messrs Charles Doney, Walter Roberts, A. H. Snelgrove and Sherman Gifford was heard to advantage.

The Oddfellows entered the church in two lines and occupied seats in the centre of the auditorium. Following the service, the brethren returned to the lodge room where a vote of thanks was passed to Rev. Palmer for his inspiring sermon and to the choir, organist and Board of Managers.

The minister characterized Jonathan as the Royal Oddfellow. The scene was in Palestine and the incident, centuries ago, but the story with its lessons will always live. His visit to David was the second most wonderful visit, the first being the visit of the Babe of Bethlehem. His visit was beautiful, depicting courage and loyalty on Jonathan's part. The graceful, swift and strong, the heir to the throne of Israel went to see David, the hunted and despised. Jonathan's action was different under the circumstances from the standard the world has set up and was truly a "Royal Oddfellow."

Jonathan's friendship showed a splendid loyalty, strong in adversity and prosperity. His friendship was not a cheap affair. He did not send a messenger but went personally to pledge his friendship. "Nothing," he said, "takes the place of a friend in the time of need."

David, sorely tired and disappointed, passed through great sorrow, and was actually losing faith in God and his friends. Jonathan succeeded in his mission of friendship, leaving a stronger and better man.

One hundred and twenty years ago, Oddfellowship was formed in Manchester, and six years later, said Dr. Palmer, came across the Atlantic to give its form and ritual to all who kneel at its altar and great inspirational uplift by the golden chain whose binding links are Friendship, Brotherly Love and Truth.

"There never was a time," concluded the speaker, "that the world needed Oddfellowship more than now. A friend in need, is a friend indeed. To stoop lower than ever before and lift the fallen along life's highway. We realize the only light to chase the gloom is the light of God's sacred truth. May you and I ever prove worthy to the name, 'Oddfellow'."

COBOURG BOY IS RESCUED

Eight-Year-Old Boy Saved From Drowning By Hockey Player

Tumbling into the reservoir at the Cobourg dyeing plant, eight-year-old Harry Holland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holland, had a narrow escape from drowning. He was going down for the second time when rescued by Jack Parker, well-known junior hockey player.

Young Holland, with George Rusk, were fishing in the plant's reservoir, which is about ten feet deep, when in some manner he lost his balance and fell in. His companion shouted for help, and his cries attracted the attention of Robert Vout, who is employed in the plant. Vout drew the attention of Jack Parker, and looking out of the window saw the little fellow feebly splashing below. Vout raced for the stairs, but Parker chose the shorter route, and climbed over on the fire escape and made his way to the ground. He dived into the reservoir and clutched the drowning boy as the latter was about to sink for the second time. Swimming over to the side of the reservoir he hoisted the unconscious boy up on the bank, where he was revived.

Holland, though none the worse for his adventure, received a bad fright, and is determined to give the reservoir a wide berth in the future. The boy said little to his parents about the incident, beyond the fact that he had fallen in while fishing and had been pulled out. It was not until his father returned home for lunch that he unfolded the full particulars and gave his startled parents the entire details of the affair.

SUMMER TIME IS NOT CONSIDERED

Special Meeting Of Council Fails To Deal With Daylight Saving Monday Night

No action was taken in regard to Daylight Saving at the special meeting of Council Monday night. The time was entirely devoted to the consideration of tax arrears and Mayor Walter J. Cowhurst presided. The Council is making a definite check-up of each individual case where taxes are outstanding and the task is a laborious one.

Questioned this morning regarding Daylight Saving Reeve Elliott stated that he did not expect that the date for fast time would be changed from the period that existed last year.

STILL OWNER FINED IN COURT

Jacob Kratz, Hope Township Fined $400.00—Also Given One Month

Jacob Kratz of Hope Township, charged under the Excise Act with having a still, came before Magistrate Davidson at Cobourg Monday and was fined $400 and given one month in jail. The defendant was arrested and brought to trial by Lewis A. Denton of the R.C.M.P.

RETIRING AND NEW HEAD MASTERS

Rev. Dr. F. Graham Orchard (left), who is retiring after twenty years as Head Master of Trinity College School, Port Hope, and who will be succeeded by P. A. C. Ketchum, B.A. (right), a former pupil and Master of the school. Dr. Orchard has been forced to retire by ill health. Mr. Ketchum, a graduate of Cambridge University, possesses a distinguished record as a scholar, athlete, and educationist.

P. A. C. KETCHUM IS NAMED HEAD OF T.C. SCHOOL

Ex-Pupil Succeeds Rev. Dr. Orchard As Headmaster Of Trinity College School

Announcement has been made that P. A. C. Ketchum, B.A., of Cambridge, has been appointed Headmaster of Trinity College School, Port Hope, the appointment becoming effective next September.

Mr. Ketchum, who is a former pupil of the school, will succeed Rev. Dr. F. Graham Orchard, who has occupied the position of Head Master for the past twenty years, and who is retiring because of ill health.

Mr. Ketchum possesses a distinguished record both as a scholar and an educationist. He was educated at the Mode School, Toronto, and Trinity College School, Port Hope. He served as a pilot with the Royal Air Force during the war, returning to Toronto where he studied at Trinity College. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Toronto in 1923. While an undergraduate he was President of the University of Toronto Rugby Club, President of the Trinity College Athletic Association and Vice-President of the Library Institute of that college. After a brilliant record as a scholar and an athlete, he received the degree of Bachelor of Pedagogy in 1927. Mr. Ketchum then studied for two years at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, from which university he received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. While at Cambridge he was a member of the Midway Essay Club, Pagan's Cricket Club and the College Rugby Team.

Mr. Ketchum began his career as a teacher at Lakefield Preparatory School in 1916, as a Junior Master, which position he held for one year. In 1923 he again took up teaching at Upper Canada College. He was a Master at Trinity College School from 1924 to 1927. At present he occupies the position of Assistant Master of St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass.

Albert Harden died at his home in Haldimand Township, in his fortieth year, after two weeks' illness. He was a well-known farmer, and married Nettie Robinson, who, with two sons, survive him; also his mother, Mrs. James Harden, Carmel; a sister, and brother, Frank, of Carmel.

ELECT OFFICERS OF LOCAL ASS'N HERE THURSDAY

G. A. Smith Chosen President Of Liberal-Conservative Ass'n—Confidence In Tory Leaders

George A. Smith was elected President of the Port Hope Liberal-Conservative Association at the annual meeting held in the Town Hall here Thursday night, succeeding W. F. McMahon. The meeting was well attended and the feature of the evening was the unanimous passing of a resolution of confidence in Hon. R. B. Bennett, as federal leader and Hon. George S. Henry as Ontario leader. "We have never had a more honest leader in Ontario since the days of Whitaker," said Mr. McMahon, the retiring president in referring to Mr. Henry. "He is a sound, substantial and capable business man and while in the press he has been criticized strongly regarding the Ontario Power Corporation question, in my mind his original thought in buying these bonds was to help develop one of Ontario's greatest assets, the waterpower."

Milton J. Elliott, candidate for election in Durham in 1929, was present for the occasion and complimented the Association on the fine turnout of members. In replying to a question, he stated that in so far as he was aware it was not the intention of the Government to hold an election this year, despite rumours to the contrary. Replying to the rumour that he was in the field for the office of sheriff for the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland, he stated that as a candidate in Durham for the next election, he is in the hands of the Association. "If I have my health and the County Association wish me as a candidate I will be glad to consider it. If some other man, better qualified for the position, is brought out, you can be assured that I will be right behind him," said Mr. Elliott.

Officers elected were as follows: Hon. Presidents—F. W. Bowen, M. R.; Milton J. Elliott, D. H. Chisholm, K.C.

President—George A. Smith. 1st Vice-President—R. U. Hayden. 2nd Vice-President—Robert Chalk. Secretary-Treasurer—E. P. Sanders. Executive—E. Brown, W. H. Butler.

Great Clarity Of Reasoning To Determine Value Of Currencies Of Countries Not On Standard

The Guide does not hold itself responsible for the opinions expressed by our correspondents and invites its readers to use this column to discuss public questions and matters of general interest.

No unsigned letters or correspondence of libelous or personal nature will be considered.

April 21st, 1933

To the Editor of The Guide,—

Since America has abandoned the gold standard great clarity of reasoning is necessary to determine the actual value of the currencies of those countries which are not on the gold standard. Quotations have hitherto been in terms of the American dollar and the American dollar was at par with gold. Now the question of relativity must be considered. For the American dollar is no longer on a par with gold but was quoted yesterday in Paris at 87—i.e. a decrease in value of 13%. The following tabulation will show how the currency units of the United States, Canada and Britain have been affected by the great change brought about in American finances by recent presidential action:

Three Days Ago

$100 of American money could purchase $100 worth of gold; $100 of Canadian money could purchase $84 worth of gold; $100 of Sterling money could purchase $69 worth of gold.

To-day

$100 of American money can purchase $87 worth of gold; $100 of Canadian money can purchase $77 worth of gold; $100 of Sterling money can purchase $69 worth of gold.

The position of sterling remains on the absolute standard, unimpaired. Its recent spectacular advance in terms of American money was not a real advance, but a relative one. The real movement was that of the American dollar downwards. The British pound remained stationary. On the other hand the Canadian dollar lost seven points. The relative increase from 84 to 88 in terms of the American dollar represented a substantial drop in value for Canadian money, but an increase. To maintain its parity on the absolute standard with its former value, it should be quoted in New York at 96 instead of 88, because 96 means its relative position with respect to the depreciated American dollar. This means that the close association with Wall Street which we have so fatuously maintained has enabled the American dollar to drag the Canadian dollar down with it. A further inflation of American currency—and this seems to be in the air just now—will further depreciate the American, and with it, the Canadian dollar.

Now as to the logical effects of depreciated currency—a $100 United States government bond drew last year four gold dollars as interest. This year it still draws four dollars—but these are depreciated dollars; equal to 87 cents each. In other words draws this year $3.48 of good money. On the other hand commodities should increase in price—$100 of to-day is only as strong as $87 of three days ago. So commodity prices must be marked up to meet the waning strength or value of the dollar.

Stocks and shares (especially common) have reference to commodities and are in the same position. Logically, all stocks should have increased to 100-87 of their previous quoted price to maintain their former value. The recent stock activity has been nothing but an effort to adjust in terms of the depreciated dollar so as to the actual market value of such stocks, unimpaired. Any stock whose present price is less than 100-87 of its former price has actually gone down. Only those stocks whose appreciation has brought them above the 100-87 figure have gone up. How many such are there?

On the other hand, bonds should have decreased to 87-100 of their late value. If the face decrease is less than that they have actually gained. The same applies to the value of insurance policies, mortgages, and cash in hand or on deposit and to salaries and wages as well. In Canada of course the fraction of appreciation (for commodities, stocks etc.) is 84-77; and the fraction of depreciation—(bond, mortgages, insurance, cash, salaries and wages) is 77-84.

More Facts About Moose Lodge

In difficult times such as we are passing through, when the activities of organizations, no less than individuals are necessarily being reduced to meet actual income it is but natural that murmuring arises from those whose interests have been directly or indirectly affected by present depressing times. Such are all too apt to criticize the action of executives authorized to make the necessary economic adjustment. Of course, it is to be expected that criticism of this character will always find expression.

Charity never yet raised any man to his self-fixed standard of living and it is but natural that expression of dissatisfaction should increase as the depression continues. The present economic state somewhat retarded the work of the Loyal Order of Moose as it has similarly retarded all other humanitarian organizations, due to an increase in delinquent membership with the inevitable reduction in income. This was to be expected since our order depends for its resources upon those members, who seventy-five per cent at least are in the wage earning class. Due to these facts the Governors of our Order exercise the most rigid economies with impartial justice and yet with these facts and depressing years, our order goes on.

During the past 10 years the number of dependents from our lodges receiving direct benefits has increased from less than 500 hundred annually to more than four thousand two hundred. In the last twenty years more than $15,000,000 has been spent at Mooseheart, and of those dependents, who for good and sufficient reasons have been denied entry either to Mooseheart or Moosehaven the Loyal Order of Moose through Moose charity service has taken care of over four thousand at a cost of over $1,500,000.

The good that the Loyal Order of Moose does radiates from many sources, and like the rays of the sun brings life, happiness and contentment to those it affects.

Through Mooseheart our Order helps dependent children, cares for them until they reach an age where they can step out into the world with qualifications and background that make for good and respected citizens. At Moosehaven the town for the dependent aged Moose, our Order brings opportunity and contentment to those who had come to believe that for their life had little to offer. Is there a form of human service that provides more than the Loyal Order of Moose? Therefore membership in our Order gives to a Moose opportunity and service equal in number and importance to membership in practically all other welfare organizations combined.

Simple Remedy For Bad Stomach Gives Swift Relief

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet. Safe and Simple Home Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice. Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or pull down your system with starvation diets. For within reason most folks may eat what they like if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion. And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless, inexpensive, form of Magnesia that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean. A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia, which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that 99 per cent of ordinary stomach distress is absolutely unnecessary.

Many dog mummies have been found, this fact showing that the ancient Egyptians held the dog in veneration.

BASEBALL LOOP RE-ORGANIZED

Possibility That Five Teams May Operate In Lakeshore League This Season

The Lakeshore Intermediate Baseball League got away to a start on Wednesday evening with an organizing meeting held in the Community Hall at Newcastle. According to the indications at the moment the league may be somewhat changed from last year but it is anticipated that five teams may operate, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Newcastle, Oshawa and Cobourg.

In the case of Oshawa N. J. McDougall reported that it was doubtful that Oshawa would operate a team in the Lakeshore League but told the meeting that a definite decision is made in a few days. It was also reported that Cobourg were practically certain to drop out of the C.O.B.L. and enter an intermediate team. The Ferrytown are holding a meeting tonight to decide the question.

President Orme Gamsby occupied the chair and announced that in view of the entry from Bowmanville he would be unable to field a team from Orono this year.

The election of officers was deferred until such time as entries are received with the exception of the secretary-treasurer, Dr. S. Stacey, of Newcastle being elected to that office.

The meeting was well attended and the delegation from Port Hope included R. W. Goodman, R. Devine, A. B. McDonald, A. L. Brown, W. Phillips and J. T. O'Neill. The date for the reception of entries was extended to the next meeting which will be held in Newcastle, Wednesday, April 26.

RUSH TO BEDSIDE OF STRICKEN BROTHER

John Derry Ill At Kingston—Widely Known Here

When Thomas Derry and James Derry of Norfolk, Virginia, received a wire stating that their brother, John Derry of Kingston, was critically ill, they speeded up their trip to Kingston by making the journey to Newark, N.J., by airplane. By train they travelled to New York and then to Cape Vincent, N.Y., here they got a boat for Wolfe Island, crossing the island by auto and making the remainder of the trip to Kingston by boat.

John Derry is well-known in Port Hope, being prominent in bowling circles. His many friends here hope for his recovery.

ORANGE LODGE HEARS DEBATE

Interesting Discussion Heard Wednesday Night On Canada's Radio Commission

At the regular meeting of L.O.L. 309 Wednesday evening an interesting subject was debated, "Resolved that the Radio Commission is Necessary in Canada."

The affirmative side, upheld by Bro. Clifford McCullough and Bro. E. P. Sanders were the winners. The negative side of the question was ably presented by Bro. S. J. Pearce and Bro. J. McLeod.

The subject to be debated at the next regular meeting will be, "Resolved that Canada is over-governed." Bro. Percy Zealand and Bro. J. H. Wilson will uphold the affirmative and Bro. Findlay and Bro. James McCullough will have the negative.

APRIL NUMBER OF CANADIAN GEOGRAPHIC

"Of all that gallant company of adventurers who helped each in his time and degree, to unroll the map of Canada, one only was native born—La Verendrye." This rather surprising statement opens the April number of the Canadian Geographic Journal. One had not realized that the pathfinder of the Canadian West, the discoverer of the Prairie Provinces, was our only native-born explorer. Jacques Cartier, Champlain, La Salle, Marquette, and all the other explorers of New France were born in Europe. Alexander Mackenzie was a native of Scotland, David Thompson of England, Simon Fraser came from Vermont, George Vancouver and Sir John Franklin were Englishmen, and so goes the tale. Mr. Lawrence Burpee, with the aid of old maps and pictures, brings home very vividly the fine character of La Verendrye's achievement and emphasizes the extraordinary difficulties under which he carried out his plans for western discovery—his search for the Western Sea. It is a stirring and romantic story and one that should live in the minds of all patriotic Canadians.

Mabel Crews Ringland, a Toronto journalist and lecturer with a flair for the unusual and picturesque, writes very entertainingly about the Indian Handicrafts of Algoma, a subject which she has made peculiarly her own. She describes and illustrates with photographs, the fine work of the Ojibways in weaving, beadwork, porcupine quillwork, woodcarving, etc., and makes a plea for the encouragement of native designs and handicrafts that are in danger of being lost.

The South African journalist Hedley A. Chivers, who already has several books to his credit, contributes to the April number a very informative and readable article on Johannesburg the Golden. It is a stirring and romantic story of pioneering on the veld of the frantic search for gold, of rains and warfare and rivalry between Dutch and British trekking souht in the seventies, camping on the Witwatersrand, firing at a buck and splintering the rock behind it. Hans noticed stains of yellow in the rock and as the lions roared about his camp-fire he studied a fragment and said to himself "I shouldn't be surprised if this contained gold, and if this Witwatersrand was a gold-field." But the next morning he dismissed the matter from his mind. The field he abandoned has since added over $5,000,000,000 to the gold stocks of the world! And over his camp-site has grown a big modern city.

Sidney Ellis, of the Geological Survey of Canada, writes with enthusiasm and authority of the bituminous sands of Alberta, and their economic importance as material for paving the streets of Western Canadian cities. His experimental roadway in Jasper Park has proved a conspicuous success.

NEW HEATERS IN TOWN NOW

Water Heaters May Be Installed In Port Hope Homes—Installation Free

According to V. B. Coleman, manager of the Port Hope Hydro Commission, a small number of water heaters have already been installed in Port Hope and numerous inquiries have been dealt with at the local office. The cost of installation is paid by the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario and this installation is absolutely without cost to the consumer.

On a yearly contract basis, the flat rate per month in Port Hope is as follows,—

Wattage	Gross Amt.	Discount	Net Amt.
400	$2.19	.22	$1.97
500	$2.71	.27	$2.44
600	$3.23	.32	$2.91
750	$4.01	.40	$3.61
1000	$5.31	.53	$4.78

The decision of the Ontario Hydro Commission to install free electric water heaters in every Ontario home is an opportunity, the Commissioners believe, for every citizen. The convenience and comfort of electric water heating is generally recognized and the fact that installation entails no charge and that Ontario rates for electric power are among the lowest in the world is a further advantage. The new low flat water heater rates will cost the user less than any other means of water heating. The heaters are absolutely trouble-free—are automatically controlled, requiring no attention from the householder. The entire plan has been widely endorsed by many private citizens and the increased standard of comfort it makes possible as well as its undoubted effect on employment makes it perhaps the most revolutionary and far-reaching progress plan ever solved by a publicly owned enterprise.

Procedure is Simple

The plan, as outlined by the Ontario Hydro Commission, has no elaboration of detail for the home owner landlord or tenant who receives free installation of the water heater. When either of these indicates desire to have a heater installed free, no matter where he is located in Ontario, a preliminary survey of his premises will be made by his local Hydro system. This survey will determine the conditions of the wiring in the house, the existing system of hot water supply and the requirements of the user as far as the hot water supply is concerned. On this survey the service of the Commission will be based and installation of a flat rate heater or both a flat rate and "booster" heater made, according to the size of the house and family.

Hill the Mover, Hamilton, was charged with overloading in traffic court here to-day and a $50.00 fine with costs was imposed by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell. The Transport was 5,300 pounds in excess. On two counts of overloading, D. Johnston and Son, Toronto paid $7.00 and costs on each.

Masonic Lodges To Dissolve And Be Reformed in Germany

Will be Known as National Christian Order of Friedrich the Great—In Deference to the Times' Grand Lodges Take this Step says Statement—Ban Placed on Jews

Dissolution of all Free Masonic Lodges in Germany and their reformation on a "purely Christian basis" was announced Wednesday night by the National Grand Lodges.

The word "Free Mason" will be held temporarily, as will the ritual based on the Old Testament, after which they are likely to disappear, it was decided.

The lodges will be reorganized under the name "National Christian Order of Friedrich the Great." Jews will not be permitted to join the new order.

A statement said that "in deference to the times" the Grand Lodges had decided upon the step.

This sweeps away Masonic tradition almost 200 years old in Germany. The first lodge was established in Hamburg in 1737, and a second in Berlin the following year. Berlin's "Grandmother Lodge of Three Worlds" was founded by Friedrich the Great.

"For 200 years the lodge has protected its Christian groundwork and denied Jews entrance to lodges (affiliated with it)," the statement said. "In order to avoid all misunderstanding the grandmother lodge has dropped the name Free Masons."

Local Hydro Commission in Strong Financial Position

Net Profits on Year's Operation are $5,517.12 and Accumulated Surpluses are Recorded for Waterworks Service and Street Lighting—Profits for First Three Months Show Increase

The net profit from the year's operation of the Port Hope Hydro Commission was $5,517.12, according to a report which was submitted at a special meeting of the local Commission here Thursday afternoon. The sinking fund recently acquired by the municipality in the lines, etc., of this Commission now amounts to $13,778.49.

George A. Smith, chairman of the Commission presided and others present included James Sinnott, Mayor Walter J. Crowhurst and V. B. Coleman, secretary and local manager.

In the analysis of operation of the local system each year, the Commission determines and records the surplus or deficit on power supplied for municipal services in this municipality. The records show an accumulated surplus of $280.56 on waterworks service and a surplus of $1,180.28 on Street Lighting service and refunds will accordingly be made.

For the first three months of 1933, the profits on operation of the local Commission totalled $8,230.60 made up of the following—January $741.89, February, $1,229.69 and March $1,259.02. This is an increase of $802.75 over the profits on operation as compared with comparative figures for a corresponding period last year. In 1932, the total profits on operation were $2,427.85 composed of January, $903.46, February, $992.96 and March, $531.43.

Three years ago, Port Hope took over the Hydro Utility at a purchase price of $79,000, issued in twenty year debentures. Of the debenture amount, $48,229.91 has been paid with $30,770.09 still remaining. The regular yearly debentures have been liquidated by the Commission and as well, eight of the long term debentures have been wiped out, saving in interest charges alone, $1,924.49 per year.

From the statement, ratepayers will be enabled to learn that the Commission is in a strong financial position.

BRINGING UP FATHER

HEARD ON THE STREET

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19.

Good morning! How did it taste?

The first fruits somehow seem the most delicious and that was the way with that dish of rhubarb fresh from the garden.

There's an epidemic of sore backs about town caused no doubt by people stooping to conquer the soil.

Already green fields stretch out on all sides making a country drive attractive.

Provincial Motorcycle Constable A. E. Reilly to-day issued a warning to motorists who fail to report accidents. He asserts that of late several cars have been ditched with no report being made.

A government inspector is now in town checking over the business of the Port Hope Relief Board and a report will be given at a later date.

The finals of the Ontario Checker Association are now in progress at Toronto. Ed. Morton, well known district player, took part in the tournament and finished fourth in his section, winning a cash prize.

In a Toronto newspaper's contest, two candidates in this section are getting free trips to the World's Fair at Chicago. Miss Dorothy Batt is in third position with 733,000 votes according to the standing announced to-day.

Ruby Walker, Hope Township, and Lillian Peck, Cobourg, convicted of theft, were placed on suspended sentence and bound over to keep out of department stores for two years, on appearing in Women's Court at Toronto yesterday.

Jack Mowat, of Cobourg, was taken into custody by Provincial Constable Purvis late Saturday night and charged with having liquor in his possession illegally. Mowat later paid a fine of $100 and costs.

The Bay of Quinte Branch W.M.S. of the United Church of Canada will hold their annual convention at Cobourg the last week in April.

THURSDAY, APRIL 20.

Does your gold glitter to-day?

The U.S.A. is off the Gold Standard so we may see something doing both there and here.

Our corner friend wonders if we will fall in line by going off the Gold Standard to keep the Canadian dollar low, which is an encouragement for visitors to come here to spend their holiday money because it goes farther.

Here's hoping Port Hope won't be out of step with Daylight Saving which goes into effect April 30 in most of our cities.

Inspector Fred Marshall of Peterboro has stated that the Department is determined to stamp out the offense of spearing lunge, and in view of the fact that the spawning season has commenced, he said, the Department was sending every available inspector into the Kawartha District.

Yesterday's winners of the two free baskets of groceries at the A. & P. Store were J. Muir, John Street, and Joseph Hawkins, Queen street.

Commencing May 29th and ending September 4th, daylight saving will be in effect in Cobourg while in Whitby, it will be observed from April 30th to October 1st.

Four boys, Harry Coon, Donald White, Arthur Bruyca and Russel Baker of Trenton narrowly escaped drowning in the Bay of Quinte, when their sailboat was upset as they were bringing it about in a heavy sea.

an exhausted condition, while the other three clung to the boat until help arrived.

The annual installation of officers for the Belleville Lodge, No. 1004, Loyal Order of Moose, was held Monday night in the Moose auditorium, with visitors present from lodges in Port Hope, Kingston and Trenton.

Hot Stuff! Ly George! After a visit to Port Hope, Hiram Hornegggle, from the back of the county, told his friend.

"Some of them bank fellers are pretty slick with their fingers. I seen a feller in one of them banks, and blow me if he didn't have to keep a wet sponge alongside to keep his fingers from getting red hot. He told me so hisself."

FRIDAY, APRIL 21.

Have we reached the corner?

There seems to be much afoot in the financial world which should give us faith and courage in our world and nation.

There are many signs which should give us faith and courage in our world and nation.

Now be alert so as not to miss the opportunities that present themselves.

The Ladies Guild of St. Paul's conducted a pot-luck supper last night.

Dr. G. C. Bonnycastle, P.D.D.G.M. of Bowmanville addressed a large number of Masons from this district at the local lodge room last night under a plan sponsored by Grand Lodge A.F. & A.M. Masons were present from Newcastle, Bowmanville, Whitby, Port Perry, Cobourg and Port Hope.

The regular luncheon of the Port Hope Lions Club was held at Paul's Tea Room last night and the Rotarians also held their dinner at the Queen's Hotel, with Rev. A. G. Emmet being the speaker.

The local Relekahs staged a euchre in the I.O.O.F. Hall here last night and a number of tables were played.

Congratulations Florence! Little Miss Florence Maybee had a very happy birthday party yesterday when a number of friends joined her in celebrating her tenth.

The fifty-first wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William McNutt, 25 Elgin street, Lindsay, was quietly observed Thursday. They were married in Bobcaygeon, where they lived for twenty years before taking up residence in Lindsay.

Walter Walker of Minden suffered heavy loss when his farm house and its contents were destroyed by fire. The farm was recently purchased by Mr. Walker from Mrs. Ellen Bone.

Arthur Malley, Trenton real estate agent, pleaded guilty to theft of $1,146 of his clients' moneys and was sentenced by Magistrate O'Rourke to six months in reformatory.

Borrowed Wisdom Mr. Giles once lent a volume of Plato to one of his neighboring farmers and when the book was returned asked: "Well, how did you like Plato?"

DEATH CLAIMS CLERK OF PETERBORO COUNTY

Edward M. Elliott, 63, County Clerk and Treasurer for the past 23 years, died suddenly at his home at Peterboro. Before becoming a county official he took a leading part in the municipal life of the county.

The custom of using funeral wreaths of flowers is at least as old as Egypt of 1,500 B.C.

The village hotels are opening for their summer guests.

GUEST SPEAKER AT LOCAL LODGE

Following the lodge-room work at Ontario Lodge A.F. & A.M., No. 26, at the Masonic Hall, here Friday night, the guest speaker was William McGladdery, secretary of the government's relief land settlement committee.

TOWNSHIP HIGHWAYS ARE BAD THIS SPRING

Residents of the district state that it is many years since the township roads have been in such a bad condition in the Spring of the year.

The frost seems to be almost out of the road beds, but the road is soft and has broken through in numerous places, making it impossible for motor traffic and in some instances unsafe for horse traffic.

On some roads where pathmasters have looked after their roads and kept them properly dragged and drained, the road beds have begun to settle and become firm.

COMMONS KILLS SWEEPSTAKE BILL

Vote Of 76 To 15 Against Legalization Of Lotteries

Canadians must continue to buy their sweepstake tickets if at all, in dark alley fashion, the House of Commons Tuesday night defeated a bill to legalize lotteries conducted for the benefit of hospitals.

While at least one member drew a sweepstake ticket from his pocketbook, nine Conservatives, five Liberals and one Laborite supported the bill.

The bill passed the Senate after a rough passage but found few supporters in the elected chamber. The common ground for opposition was that it fostered gambling and would not assist hospitals.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS

The Executors of the Estate of Robert William Benson, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the County of Northumberland, Farmer, who died on or about the 2nd day of December, 1931, will distribute the assets after the 3rd day of May, 1932, having regard only to claims of creditors filed before that date.

HEARD ON THE STREET

SATURDAY, APRIL 22.

Did you have 'em off?

Some who are still old-fashioned enough to love "winter Woolies" had discarded them with the rise of the thermometer and when north wind blew they shivered about wishing Spring would stay when it comes.

Ted Reeve, sporting columnist for the Toronto Telegram in a preview of week-end sports heralds to-day as the official getaway of the golf season for many devotees to the game and the annual opening of the late sapper controversy. Ted humorously says that he intends to save time by going direct to the "nineteenth" hole.

The local course while not in shape for tournament play, has already had numerous members on the links every day practicing their driving and no doubt in a short time the greens will be in shape for regular playing.

That the two-day pheasant hunt in Durham County last year had little effect in depleting this type of game is clearly indicated by a walk along the creek north of Port Hope in the vicinity of Corbett's Pond. The birds are plentiful and comparatively tame and with the mating season recurring, the flock will be considerably increased.

Hon. Vincent Massey, former Canadian Minister at Washington, will deliver the address at the 1933 convocation of McGill University on May 26, it was announced. Mr. Massey will also be recipient of an honorary degree. About 500 students are expected to receive degrees.

A Jonsport Jones. A stranger brought to the police station for speeding, when asked his name replied that it was Smith.

"Give me your real name," he was ordered.

"Well," said the stranger, "put me down as William Shakespeare."

"That's better," the officer told him. "You can't bluff me with that Smith stuff."

MONDAY, APRIL 24.

Good morning! How about Daylight Saving?

If we're going to do it at all let's do it right and go into it when Toronto, Oshawa and the bus time tables change.

It is very annoying to travellers to find so many varying times and when people are annoyed it isn't good for business.

Let's be up and ready to take advantage of anything that comes our way and it looks mighty like better days just ahead.

Don't be greedy and kill "the goose of prosperity."

The boys and girls are back to school and going down the home stretch toward the midsummer promotion examinations. Here's hoping they all get through so there won't be the grief and tears of other years.

In most of the churches Sunday morning the congregations were in the middle of a hymn when the power went off and the organ ceased but the people carried the songs without a break.

The Rotary Club is offering something outstanding when the Cabaret is put on Friday evening, especially with Clair Rouse being present to assist with the entertainment.

Miles of snow fences that had been laboriously erected by employees of the Provincial Department late last fall all through this section are now being taken down by the same men and rolled into neat little bundles, which will be stored until colder weather rolls around again. In a few sections, where the plowed fields on which they stand have become so muddy, that to approach them was impossible, numbers of fences have been left standing until called for later.

Engaged in sawing wood on the John Henry farm, 6th concession, Clarke, Geo. Morton had the misfortune to trip and fall against the circular saw, inflicting a deep gash in his left leg just below the knee.

Youth heeding the call of the great outdoors is in its glory. The rival mites are getting the kinks out of their arms and although but in the early stages of spring training are lustily "socking the old pill". The young lads have exchanged their marbles for sister's roller skates, and as yet, are not outdone by the odd spill. Bicycles and tricycles, carts, and hikes to the lake and last year's leaves being raked are all signs, it is needless to say, of that grand and glorious holiday time.

A Bit Tough!

A man walked reluctantly into a hat store.

"I just lost a bet," he said, "and I want to get a soft hat."

The salesman, selecting a hat from the shelf behind him, handed it to the prospective purchaser with the remark:

"This is the softest hat we have."

The customer gazed at it speculatively. "What I want," he said reluctantly, "is something a little more tender. I've got to eat it."

TUESDAY, APRIL 25.

Good morning. What was the decision?

The matter of Daylight Saving hasn't been definitely decided for Port Hope as yet.

An Oxford Group Team from Toronto plan to visit Port Hope Church on Sunday, April 30. Public meeting in St. Mark's Parish Hall, on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, to which all are invited. Watch for further particulars in Sunday services.

Miss Carrie Bennett presided at the regular weekly meeting of the Baptist Young People last night when the topic "What our Meeting Should Accomplish" was taken by W. R. Brown and Haddon Meldrum. A vocal solo was rendered by Miss Muriel Tickell while the Scripture lesson was taken by Miss Alice Hood.

A large number of members of St. John's A.N.P.A. visited Bowmanville last night, being the guests of the A. Y.P.A. of that town.

An interesting baptism service was conducted by Rev. C. R. Spencer in St. John's Anglican Church at Bowmanville on Sunday afternoon, when the infant child of Provincial Traffic Officer Ed. Purves and Mrs. Purves was christened in water brought from the River Jordan. The water was brought to Canada by Mrs. Purves' mother when on a visit to Palestine. The child was baptized with the name Mary Louise.

Mike Karp, Cobourg, whose release from jail on April 16th, resulted in the recent flurry between the mayor and acting Night Constable Leslie Baker, appeared before Magistrate J. H. Davidson and was fined $10 and costs on a drunk charge.

Many have learned with keen regret that Rev. H. R. Deering of St. George's Parish, Grafton, expects to leave Grafton at the end of this month to take up missionary work in Saskatchewan. Mr. Deering has made many friends in Port Hope as well as in his own parish, since coming to this locality, and all regret his intended removal, while wishing him unbounded success in his new field of work.

"HENNIE" HAMLY A GREAT RUNNER

Sportswriter Tells Of Race Of Former Port Hoper In 1885

Henry "Hennie" Hamly, a former Port Hoper, who died in Toronto and was buried in Port Hope last Monday was a great runner in his day and the following article, written by Ed Baker, sports Editor of the 'Ottawa Citizen, says as follows:—

"A famous Canadian athlete of the early 80's passed on the other day at Toronto in the person of Henry Hamly, a native of the town of Port Hope.

"Hennie" was one of Canada's outstanding middle distance runners and, on one occasion, defeated the famous Ed. Neikirk of Pittsburg, perhaps the best half miler in the United States at the time.

"Old timers will recall that race which took place in the summer of 1885 at Port Hope. In those days match races were in vogue. There were of course the Caledonian Games where the athletes were all amateurs but the big events were where the professionals were matched.

"Hamly was an amateur but had been showing so much speed in local races that the sportsmen of Port Hope and vicinity were prepared to back him against any runner in Canada.

"At that time there lived in Oshawa, then a town of about four thousand population and located thirty miles west of Port Hope, a man named Jake Brooks, who was proprietor of the Brook House, a small brick hotel on the base line, which was the southern limit of the town.

"Brooks, who was a close friend of George H. Smith of Pittsburg, one of the world's best sprinters, and a Sheffield Handicap winner, conceived the idea of bringing up Neikirk from the Smoky City for the purpose of cleaning up on the unsuspecting Port Hope sportsmen.

"The people of Port Hope knew little or nothing about Neikirk as reputations of great athletes didn't travel as fast or as far in those days as they do now, so when Brooks went down to their town with a proposition to match Neikirk against Hamly for a half mile race, they had no hesitation in accepting the proposition.

"The match was made, $200 a side, but that was only a small part of the amount that was wagered on the outcome of the contest between the two runners. Several Pennsylvania sportsmen accompanied the Pittsburg runner up to Oshawa, where the party remained for several days, Neikirk working out on the old half mile track which was located on the west side of the town.

"In the meantime, the Pittsburgers had a representative in Port Hope making bets with the natives and this representative was able to get up about all the money he wanted to bet, so strong were Port Hope people for their favourite.

"There was more betting on the day of the race. The old half-mile track at Port Hope had been harrowed and rolled from the pole position, or inside rail, about ten feet out, and it was in as good condition as any race track of those times could be put in.

"A Toronto man was the starter and referee and, incidentally, quite a number of sportsmen from the big city had made the trip to Port Hope. Some of them knew that Neikirk was one of the outstanding half-milers from across the border and they too, wagered on the Pittsburger.

"At the start Hamly took the lead, Neikirk dropping in behind with the intention of outstriking the Port Hope boy in the final stages, but Hamly was a good judge of pace and, when Neikirk took out of his trailing position about two hundred yards from the finish, Hamly had enough left to match his spurt and win the greatest race of his life by about three yards.

"It was a case of the 'slickers' being outdone and it was estimated that the Burgers of the Durham County Town were richer by several thousand dollars after the race was run.

"It was not until some time after the memorable race that Brooks told the inside story. He said that the change of water had affected Neikirk but, regardless of that, the backers of the Pittsburger were of the opinion that he could beat Hamly. Brooks also said that the Port Hope boy demonstrated a great deal more class than they had given him credit for possessing.

"Jake Brooks kept an hotel in Oshawa for a number of years. He also was proprietor of an hotel at Port Perry for several years and later was a boniface at Peterboro, where he passed on a couple of years

PARSONS WILL CASE DECIDED

Legatees In Codicil Entitled To Claims—High School Board Is Beneficiary

The codicil to the will of the late S. R. Parsons under which a bequest of $2000 is made to the trustees of the Port Hope High School Board for the perpetuation of the Parsons Scholarship and which came up for interpretation in Weekly Court at Osgoode Hall in Toronto on Thursday before Justice Rose was decided to be unrevoked. The codicil under question contains a number of bequests, across which the late Mr. Parsons had written the words, "Cancelled" and attaching his signature thereto. This in law is not sufficient to revoke the provisions of the codicil and Justice Rose decided that the parties named were entitled to claim the legacies set forth in said codicil.

JOHN CHINAMAN IS CANNY MAN

Your honest farmer, or farmerette is not always honest, and it takes John Chinaman to find it out. Last week a farmer woman entered the Star Cafe, Trenton, and sought to dispose of her chickens. The Chinaman offered fifty cents but this she refused to do holding out that the fowl was exceptionally fine and large and should be bought by the pound. The oriental thought the hen was out of proportion and sensed something was the matter. After an excitable interchange of compliments he stuck his knife in the bird and found that the empty insides had been filled with water in order to get the extra poundage. You can imagine the outcome. The woman left in high dudgeon speeded out by Chinese epithets of unknown quality but profuse quantity.

NEWTONVILLE

Ladies Association Elects Officers—Young Peoples Meeting

The ladies association of Wesleyville met at the home of Mrs. V. Thorndyke for general business and the election of officers. This association is not affiliated with a society but acts as a free lance, helping where needed both in money and material. It is undenominational and it "lives in a house by the side of the road to be a friend to man." To carry on this noble work the officers elected are:—President, Mrs. H. Reeves; Vice-President, Mrs. Arnold Austin; Treasurer, Mrs. Earl Inch; Secretary, Mrs. Edgar Barrowclough.

The association accepted unwillingly the resignation of Mrs. W. Nichols from the presidential chair which she has filled so well and acceptably during the past few years. The ladies are hopefully looking forward to a season of great activity their motto being that of the busiest man in the Empire "Ich Djen."

Young Peoples League

The Y.P.L. of the Union Church held a somewhat controversial meeting on Tuesday. The attendance was good, the interest keen, and the subject matter "What Does Easter Mean" was presented through the medium of a carefully prepared paper by the leader, Miss Vera Tufford.

In a very quiet, though compelling way Miss Tufford by well directed questions raised a keen discussion about the Resurrection and life after death. Wilfred Bee read with great expression an Easter Poem and the lesson was read by Arnold Thorndyke who also in the absence of the Secretary assumed her duties. The hymn "Golden Harps are Sounding", led by Mrs. Reg. Bee at the organ brought to happy ending the Easter meeting which was ably conducted by the president, Mrs. Arnold Austin.

On Sunday evening the regular song service preceding the evening service was of a special nature featuring the anniversary of the Battle of Ypres, Shakespeare's birthday and St. George's Day. As a preface to the hymns sung quotations from Shakespeare including the advice of Polonius to his son, the story of the adoption of St. George as the Patron Saint of England and reference to that gallant feat of arms at Ypres were made by F. W. Hayden, who with Reg. Bee, the organist, is responsible for the conduct of the song service.

The regular evensong with sermon was conducted by the Pastor, Rev. W. E. Honey. At the Sunday School session the story of St. George and the Dragon was graphically told by Mrs. Edgar Barrowclough.

SIX DAY CAMP FOR REGIMENT

Northumberland Regiment Will Train At Presqu'ile Next July

The Northumberland Regiment will hold a six-day camp this year which will be staged at Presqu'ile instead of Barriefield. This was the decision reached at a regimental meeting of the officers held at Campbellford and at which Staff Major Whitelaw of Military District No. 3, Kingston, was present. Although details of this period of training have not yet been worked out, the date set for the opening of camp is July 18. Further details regarding the training will be worked out by the senior officers and company commanders. Col. H. Sauva, officer commanding the regiment, presided over the discussions.

ANNOUNCE TAX ON WAR PENSIONS

Alternative To Cancellation Of Allowance Affects Better-Paid Men

Abandoning its previous effort to deprive returned soldier civil servants of either their government salaries or their war pensions, the Bennett administration announced on Monday that as an alternative it would subject all war allowances to the income tax and that after May 1, returned men could add no further dependents to their pension claims.

Inasmuch as the income tax applies only to married men earning $2,000 or more with $400 additional exemption for each child, decision to include pensions in total income is regarded as affecting only the relatively small percentage of veterans making good salaries. The other provisions regarding the addition of dependents after May 1, will, however, affect many married veterans, as it debars them from claiming extra pensions payments for children born after that date.

It is estimated here that the nation will be saved $35,000,000 over the next 15 years by reason of the policy announced to-day.

That a general cut in pensions payments remains a possibility for the future was believed to be indicated by the statement that, "Any consideration of a general readjustment of the rate of pensions should be postponed until the next session of Parliament."

The announcement which was made at the opening of the House of Commons by Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, marked the end of the budget policy which veterans so loudly condemned. Under the budget proposal, veterans in the government service would be obliged to choose between their pensions and their civil service salary.

Relief Board Investigation By Gov't Inspector Completed

John B. Teeves, Government Inspector Submits Report to Mayor and Town Council—Commends Officials for Efficient Way in which All Items of Relief are Being Administered

Completing his investigation of the affairs of the Port Hope Relief Board, John B. Teeves, Relief Inspector of District No. 6 has submitted his report to the Mayor and Town Council. A clean bill of health has been given and in the report, he highly commends the work of A. J. Chesher, relief officer and commends Mayor W. J. Crowhurst, the chairman of the Board and Arthur Mark, Town Clerk and Treasurer.

The government investigation came as a result of a few stormy meetings of the board. Inspector Teeves was in town on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in connection with the work.

The Report
The report, which has been submitted to the council by Mr. Teeves is as follows:—

"I have carefully inspected all books, vouchers and accounts con-ected with the administration of direct relief for the town of Port Hope and can highly recommend the work of A. J. Chesher, relief officer, for the able and efficient manner in which all items of relief are being administered.

"I wish to extend my sincere thanks to Mayor Crowhurst and Arthur Mark, Clerk and Treasurer and the members of the Benevolent Board for their excellent co-operation in this work and feel that every effort is being put forth to assist the relief officer and his committee in keeping down expenses as low as possible.

"I would strongly advise where possible that all men on relief be given some kind of work in order that they should do equivalent in labour to the amount of relief they receive.

"Thanking you, gentlemen, and assuring you of my constant assistance at all times."

Transients State Export Trade Will Be Heavier This Year

A noticeable migration eastward during the past week or so of those who tramp the long and weary roads through this district has not been without a particular meaning, according to one transient.

"It's Springtime," he explained, "and the boats are getting ready to pull out for the summer work. All these guys you see heading east are on their way to Montreal or coast ports for a berth on a boat. This year will see more sailors being hired than ever. Some of them will stop at Kingston and perhaps get a job there. Me, I've got a job for me on a tanker out of Montreal, the same boat I've been on for the past three years." Pick up in export trade this year will mean the use of more boats, it was explained.

BOYS' BANQUET UNITED CHURCH

Feature Of Program Was An Address By Wilbur Howard, Toronto

Seventy-five boys, interested in boys' work and leaders from the various churches in town assembled at a banquet in the Sunday School hall of the Port Hope United Church Wednesday evening.

The chairman of the evening was Frank Corbett, local member of the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament. After a very lively sing-song led by Wilbur Howard, the toast to the King was proposed by Edgar Nicholls and a vote of thanks to the Ladies Aid, who looked after the serving, was moved by George Lewis.

A feature of the evening's program was an interesting address by Wilbur Howard, of Toronto, premiership candidate of the Twelfth Older Boys' Parliament on the 'Challenge of Christian Living.' The banquet was closed with a short address and prayer by Arthur Crowhurst.

JESUS SETS NEW STANDARD OF LIVING

(International Uniform Sunday School Lesson, April 30)

GOLDEN TEXT: "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."—John 6: 31.
LESSON PASSAGE: Mark 10: 13-27.

"To every man there openeth
A way, and ways, and a way,
And the high soul climbs the high way.

And the low soul gropes the low;
And in between, on the misty flats,
The rest drift to and fro,
But to every man there openeth
A high way and a low,
And every man decideth
The way his soul shall go."
—John Oxenham.

THE MONEY TEST, 17-20

In a discussion as to the distinguishing marks of a Christian, a man remarked: "My test of a Christian is his attitude to money." He meant that if a person has conquered the love of money, it is proof that he is thoroughly Christian. The rich young man who came to Jesus had many good qualities. He was respectable. His outward conduct conformed to the law. He could say, without fear of contradiction, that he had kept the commandments. More important still, he had genuine spiritual yearnings and aspirations. He went running to Jesus, kneeling before him and said: "Good Master, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" Such a question, revealing such a spiritual desire, was a recommendation of this young man. The majority of people knowing this man's reputation and hearing his question would have given him an unreserved certificate of character. But Jesus saw deeper. He knew that there was something holding the young man back. Jesus discerned the young man's dissatisfaction with himself. Respectable as he was, he could not stand the money test.

A HARD DEMAND, 21

Jesus had no dislike of the wealthy as a class. He was occasionally the guest of the rich. Several of his parables indicate that he fully recognized the virtues of the rich. His heart immediately went forth in sympathy to this rich young man who came running to him. We are told that Jesus beholding him, loved him. Therefore, we may be sure that there was no class spitefulness back of the demand which Jesus made of him. How then are we to explain this strange demand? "One thing thou lackest: go thy way, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, take up the cross, and follow me." Jesus did not make this demand of all others. Apparently there was something individual to this young man's case. He was thinking too much of his possession. As yet, the love of wealth had not completely quenched the spirit's flame. He could still seek to discover the secret of eternal life. But Jesus saw that in a few years all such spiritual interest would be forgotten. The young man must at once make a clear and final choice between two ideals of life, if he were to live for the highest.

THE GREAT REFUSAL

Jesus invited this young man to follow him. He saw spiritual possibilities in him. It was a fateful choice for the young man and he decided wrong. He wanted to follow Jesus, but he wanted to retain his wealth more than he wanted to follow Jesus. "He went away grieved; for he had great possessions." His dominant desire decided his choice. If he could have his wealth and follow Jesus. He would gladly have done so, but when the sharp alternative was presented to him, he chose his money bags and title-deeds. Had he chosen differently, he might have ranked among the immortals. As it is, we do not even know his name. That the demand of Jesus was not unreasonable is seen from the experience of the disciples. They left all and followed Jesus. They were not as wealthy as the young man was, but they gave up all they had. In the end they were not disappointed. Their reward was not in the fame of being apostles, but in their fellowship with Jesus and understanding of his teachings. A similar choice is demanded of us. Shall we try to make the best of both worlds? Shall we attempt to serve both God and mammon?—a sheer impossibility according to Jesus. Or shall we place first things first and, above all else, seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness?

THE RICH MAN'S PERIL, 23-25

From this particular incident, Jesus drew a general principle. He said that it was hard for the rich to enter into the kingdom of God. The disciples expressed such astonish-

BOSTON RACE IS WON BY PAWSON

Canadian Runners Make Fine Showing in Boston Marathon

Paced and pressed by Canadian entrants, Leslie Pawson, 28-year-old millhand of Pawtucket, R.I., won the Boston marathon in record time Wednesday, with three of the Dominion's topnotch runners taking the next three places. Davie Komonen, Toronto; Dick Wilding, Toronto, and Harold Webster, Hamilton veteran, finished in that order behind the record-smashing victor.

Helping to swell the large share of marathon glory that went north of the border was the fact that of the total of 29 Canadians who bucked a brisk and biting wind over an up-and-down course of 26 miles 385 yards, no less than 13 of them finished among the leading 44. A field of 221 started in the thirty-seventh renewal of the historic grind.

Running like a machine, Pawson pulled away from the big pack in the last stamina-sapping part of the race and won by a mile over the nearest of his rivals. His time of 2 hours 31 minutes 1 3-5 seconds clipped 2 minutes 7 1-5 seconds off the record set in 1929 by Johnny Miles of Hamilton, formerly of Sydney Mines, N.S. It was also 34 2-5 seconds faster than the Olympic marathon record made by Juan Zabala of Argentina at Los Angeles last summer.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

The Niagara Falls City Council decided to start daylight saving on this side of the river on April 30 instead of May 21, as originally planned. The change was brought about by announcement that Niagara Falls, N.Y., would go on summer time at the earlier date.

WELLAND

Mayor Frank Springer, of Welland, Monday issued a proclamation to the effect that daylight saving will go into effect in Welland 12.01 a.m., Monday, May 1, and continue until Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 4.

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAY EARNINGS

Gross revenues of the Canadian National Railways for the week ending April 14, 1933, were $2,501,210, as compared with $3,194,452 for the corresponding period of 1932, a decrease of $692,242. These figures are system gross revenues and include the eastern lines, which earnings have hitherto been separately dealt with, it was announced.

ment at these words that Jesus restated the principle, modifying it somewhat: "How hard it is for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God." The fault does not lie alone in having wealth, but in trusting in wealth. This does not make Christ's word very much less exacting, as those who have wealth are constantly exposed to the temptation to put their trust in their riches. Jesus proceeded to make his statement stronger than ever, phrasing it in picturesque Oriental fashion: "It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God."

Why did Jesus speak so decisively about the perils of riches? He regarded all material blessings as good gifts from the fatherly God, but he knew how easy it was for riches to come between the soul and God. He knew that riches have a tendency to engross both thought and affection. Not wrong in itself, wealth has a fatal proneness to crowd spiritual values out of a life. Riches lead to self-satisfaction, to avarice, not infrequently to injustice and unbrotherliness. That Jesus was not dealing with imaginary fears is quite evident in our own land in modern years. New-found wealth has all too frequently shown its power to destroy family religion, undermine moral character, and replace social friendship and snobbishness.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. What was it that the rich young ruler lacked?
2. It is wrong for Christian people to seek to be prosperous?
3. Has post-war prosperity been a real blessing to the world?
4. Have people become more generous during the depression?
5. Would you be as religious as you are if you were very rich?
6. Is there any relation between the poverty of Jesus and his lasting spiritual influence?

Martial law reigns almost uninterruptedly in Cuba since Nov. 13, 1930.

JUDGE DISPUTES VERDICT OF JURY

Considers Death Of Harwood Man Caused By Negligence

"I cannot agree with the verdict for one moment," Mr. Justice Garrow said to Noble Thornhill in discharging him when the jury in Toronto Assize Court on Friday found him not guilty of manslaughter or criminal negligence in connection with the death of Gordon O'Connell, Harwood truck driver, crushed by Thornhill's truck on Fleet street, last February 24. The jury deliberated but a short time to arrive at the verdict.

"I do think your conduct was such as to merit a conviction of criminal negligence," his Lordship went on. "I do not mean that I think you are a criminal. I have every sympathy for men who are out of work, but I consider that your act was one of negligence. I think you are very fortunate that the jury took a different view."

In summing up for the jury, the judge told them in his opinion there was evidence of criminal negligence.

BRIDE OF THIS WEEK

WELL KNOWN HERE

Mrs. Arthur Doney of Toronto, was hostess of a very enjoyable trossseau tea on Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Miss Adele Doney, a bride-elect of this week. Spring flowers of many colors were used in the attractive rooms and the pretty tea table, at which Miss Cora Stewart, Mrs. W. Squires, Mrs. F. Stewart and Miss Lillian Hawkins presided. Assisting in looking after the numerous guests were Miss Dorothea Doney, Mrs. B. J. Hobden, Miss Lslay Squires, Mrs. Gordon Giles, Mrs. D. Philpott, Mrs. A. Smith, Miss Sadie Squires, Miss Mina Kyle, Mrs. E. Maloney, Miss Audrey Wright and Miss Margaret King.

Miss Doney, who is to be married on April 29, is well known in Port Hope, having visited here a number of times at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Massie.

The United States is the largest consumer of asbestos in the world. Canada headed the world's list of exporters of asbestos in 1932 and for the same year almost quadrupled her export of rye, namely, 68,376 metric tons as against 17,744 tons in 1931, displacing the Argentine as headliner.

COBOURG GOLF DATES ARRANGED

Play In Port Hope June 14th With The Return Game Aug. 9th

Cobourg Golf Club has set May 24 as the date of the official opening of its season. This will be a ball sweepstake in the morning, and in the afternoon, a two-ball mixed foursome. Nine team matches have been arranged for during the season as follows:

- June 14—Cobourg at Port Hope.
- July 5—Cobourg at Peterboro.
- " 12—Trenton at Cobourg.
- " 19—Cobourg at Oshawa.
- " 26—Belleville at Cobourg.
- Aug. 2—Peterboro at Cobourg.
- " 9—Port Hope at Cobourg.
- " 16—Oshawa at Cobourg.
- " 23—Cobourg at Belleville.

It was decided that a prize would be given the member making greatest number of points during the season's playing of these matches.

WEDDING BELLS

RUTTER—WILLOUGHBY

The home of the bride's parents, 126 Elm Avenue, Toronto, was the scene of an Easter wedding, when Anna Mae, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Willoughby was united in marriage to Mr. Vernon Rutter, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rutter of Port Hope. Rev. W. M. Lee, of Alliston, cousin of the bride, performed the ceremony before a background of Easter lilies and ferns. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of grey triple crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of sunset roses and lily of the valley. Miss Godfrey, bridesmaid, chose a gown of tea rose triple crepe with matching accessories and wore a corsage of blue sweet peas. Miss Irma Godfrey played the wedding music and during the signing of the register, Miss Muriel Godfrey sang "O Promise Me." Following the ceremony Mrs. Willoughby, mother of the bride, received wearing a gown of hyacinth blue crepe and lace and a corsage of roses and violets. Mrs. Rutter assisted in receiving and she chose a gown of green georgette with a corsage of roses and violets. After a motor trip to Eastern Ontario Mr. and Mrs. Rutter will live in Port Hope.

PETERBORO DECEASED BORN NEAR PORT HOPE

The death occurred Monday morning of Thirza Jane Hawkey, the beloved wife of Richard G. Ivey of Wolseley street west, Peterboro, following an illness of three weeks' duration. She was in her 81st year. Born near Port Hope, Mrs. Ivey was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hawkey, and prior to taking up residence in Peterboro some 35 years ago, she had lived at Campbellford. Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Frank and Stephen of Peterboro and Ira E. of Oshawa, and three daughters, Miss May at home, Mrs. M. G. Carveth of Shillington, New Ontario, and Mrs. G. N. Galley of Toronto, also two brothers, Luther Hawkey of Calgary, Alberta and Frank Hawkey of Vancouver, B.C.

Class "A" Status Granted To Peterboro Exhibition

Highest recognition by the Federal Government has been conferred upon the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition with the announcement that Class A rating for agricultural exhibitions has been granted the Peterboro show. E. A. Peck, M.P., stated that the Federal Government has acknowledged the great strides made by the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, and had placed it in Class A. This will result in the Federal grant to the exhibition being increased this year from $1,500 to $2,500, which it is admitted will aid in increasing its scope and usefulness to the Central Ontario district. "We have reached the pinnacle that we have been aiming at for years with this recognition by the Federal Government," said Mayor Denne, President of the Exhibition Board. "We move up with Toronto, London and Ottawa as the fourth Class A show in Ontario."

OTHER EDITORS' OPINIONS

ACCIDENTS ON FARMS

"A year or two ago, statistics of the Labor Department were cited to show the large number of fatal accidents which occur upon farms in Canada," says Woodstock Sentinel Review. "Figures for the calendar year 1932, published in March number of the Labor Gazette, indicate that farming may still be classed among the hazardous occupations. Of 961 fatal industrial accidents reported throughout the Dominion in the year, 154 occurred in agriculture. The total is by far the largest among all the occupational groups, next in order being mining and quarrying, with 123 fatalities. Construction accounted for 122.

"Among those employed in water transportation there were 49 fatal accidents. The Great Lakes did not take half the toll imposed by farming. Railway transportation accounted for 98 fatalities. Among the manufacturing industries, factories turning out rubber products had no fatal accidents.

"Of the 154 farm fatalities, injuries inflicted by horses and other animals accounted for 37, while automobiles and other power vehicles and implements caused only 11. The next largest classification was falls resulting in 23 deaths. Nine persons on farms died of lightning, frost, storms or sunstroke.

"Grouping transportation and public utilities together, the report shows 191 fatalities under the classification, or 19.8 per cent. of total employed. The percentage in the case of agriculture was 16.02; for mining and quarrying 12.80 per cent., and construction, 12.70 per cent. For a major group, 'Finance' appears to have the fewest hazards. Fatalities numbered 2, or 0.21 per cent., due respectively to explosion and shooting."—Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer.

PASSENGER TRAFFIC

One passenger only on United States railroads lost his life in the year 1932, though the total number of passengers carried was 480,000,000. This single victim was a railway employee off duty travelling in a motor passenger car which collided with a train.

This is almost an unbelievable attainment so near the perfect ideal of a railroad.

It is the ideal which should govern all traffic, even the traffic on highways. On railways the personal equation counts and yet only one passenger was killed. Yet the highways exact an appalling toll. Of course highway travel is much more risky owing to the freedom which the drivers take and the possibility of accident.

Much remains to be done and much will be done in cutting down the toll of life and limb in motor traffic.

There is the model of the railways which the motor driver must study. The railways have but to save one more passenger life a year and perfection in passenger travel will have been achieved.—Belleville Ontario Intelligencer.

THE ACCIDENT RECORD

It is gratifying to find from the official statistics of the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Ontario Department of Highways that there was a substantial decrease in the number of motor fatalities in February as compared with the same month last year, there being 20 deaths as against 27 in February, 1932.

Incidentally this was the seventh consecutive month showing a decrease in automobile killings, an improvement that should cause general satisfaction.

If it were not for one fact this decrease in the death rate might be accepted as evidence that the driving technique of Ontario's motorists is steadily improving.

Unfortunately for this theory, the February record shows that there were exactly the same number of automobile accidents in that month this year as there were in February last year, and that while there were fewer deaths, there were 20 more persons injured than a year ago; in other words, while motorists were more fortunate in respect to deaths, the accident record remained at the same high level.

This particular bulletin carries its warning to pedestrians.

Of the twenty persons killed by cars the reports show that nine were pedestrians and seven of them contributed to fatal accidents by their own unsafe actions, among the causes, namely, being "crossing between street intersections," "playing on street," "hitching on vehicle," and "coming from behind a parked vehicle or some other object."—Peterboro Examiner.

DROP IN 1932 TOURIST TRADE

Total Of Four Million Is 800,000 Less Than In 1931

A Dominion-wide summary covering foreign tourist traffic in 1932, compiled by the Department of National Revenue, shows that over 4,000,000 foreign automobiles were entered for touring purposes last year through Canada's frontier ports. Compared with the previous year a decline of over 800,000 is shown. While totals from every province show decreases, several of the ports show substantial increases. The summary shows, also, a shrinkage of about 160,000 in the number of Canadian cars reported outwards for touring purposes. The bulk of automobiles reported outwards each year by Canadian tourists is from Ontario, British Columbia and Quebec. Ontario again led the other provinces in the number of foreign cars entered, with a total nearly three times greater than the combined total of all the other provinces. Over 500,000 cars entered the province of Quebec and about half that number entered

New Brunswick. The port of Windsor, Ontario, continues to hold the lead by a good margin over all other ports in the Dominion, with Fort Erie and Niagara Falls taking second and third places.

The total number of foreign automobiles reported inwards by provinces in 1932, together with decreases compared with the previous year, were: Ontario, 3,049,586, decrease 642,134; Quebec, 536,146, decrease, 109,789; New Brunswick, 287,090, decrease, 12,978; British Columbia, 143,879, decrease, 25,596; Manitoba, 43,604, decrease, 1,004; Alberta, 21,575, decrease, 3,751; Nova Scotia, 1,161, decrease, 589; Prince Edward Island, nil, decrease, one.

Canadian automobiles exported for touring purposes in 1932 numbered 376,857, as against 526,855 for the previous year.

CROP REPORT

WESTERN ONTARIO

DUFFERIN—Fall wheat and new seedings are felt to have wintered very well but spring conditions have not progressed sufficiently to foretell general conditions. Hogs and steers are moving when finished but considerable numbers of rougher cattle in but fair flesh are being bought to put on grass.

HALTON—Fall wheat, alfalfa and clovers while in some places heaved rather badly are apparently in good average condition. Alsike particularly is well in the ground.

HURON—Some early potatoes planted in Goderich township during the week. Fairly marked increase in cream production during week, prices for delivered cream, 29c special, 27c first grade and 24c for second.

PEEL—Majority of winter wheat and clover fields have wintered in first class condition. Recent rains have been welcomed.

NORTH SIMCOE—Fall wheat and clovers, while possibly not entirely out of danger, show very little injury by winter killing, in fact less than in many years. Strawberries and raspberries have also come through the winter well. Fairly brisk demand for seed grain this spring but supply in most cases is equal to demand. Stock has mostly wintered well, feed grain has not been in very great demand with the result that most stock got a more plentiful feed of grain than usual. Maple syrup season is practically over for another year. The run has been very poor, not much more than 50% of the normal, as reported in most cases, and prices are higher than were expected, owing to short supply.

SOUTHERN ONTARIO

BRANT—In some cases stock will not go to grass in as good condition as was expected. Low price of milk and demand for seed grain has interfered with feeding to usual standard.

ELGIN—Orchard men are finishing up their pruning or orchards, securing their supplies and spray material. More spray material has been purchased in our county this year than in any recent year. One noticeable feature is that farmers who have from one to five acres of orchard are pruning trees and renovating neglected barrel spray outfits and beginning to look after their fruit. Several carloads of beef cattle have been exported recently and in talking with one drover he advised me that he expected to ship eight carloads of steers in the near future.

HALDIMAND—Absence of the usual cold dry winds have very materially assisted fall wheat fields and new meadows. Growth is commencing and very encouraging reports are received.

LAMBTON—First seeding of spring grain started on Thursday, April 13th, and has continued this week. First seeding was done on well tilled-drained clay soil. In the Sarnia and Blackwell district a big acreage of the early potato crop has been planted.

LINCOLN—Mild weather of the past week is helping along wheat, clover and alfalfa, which is, in many cases, and on clay soils particularly, badly heaved. Warm rains and no frost during past week doing much to revive these crops.

MIDDLESEX—Fall wheat wintered exceptionally well on light soil. Winter killed quite badly on heavier soils, low spots on better fields also drowned out. Alfalfa heaved worse than usual and some fields, both old and new seeding will be plowed up. Two cars of potatoes shipped to Windsor during week at 60c per bag; 55 cars having gone out of Caradoc district to date. Strathroy Pruti Growers' Storage sold two cars of Ben Davis and quantity of truck apples this week, now practically cleaned out after a very successful season.

WELLAND—Some sections fall wheat badly damaged by winter killing, other fields appearing good. About 50% alfalfa and clover killed during winter.

WENTWORTH—Good seed grain is scarce in county this spring and a large number of our farmers are securing their seed supplies outside the county. Paying around 60c bushel for oats and barley. Few farmers were working on the land a week ago but wet weather of last week has delayed spring operations for some time.

CENTRAL ONTARIO

HASTINGS—Milk production is increasing and the creameries are getting the cream. Skim milk being fed to calves and hogs.

PETERBORO—Fall wheat and clovers generally recovering very well and there will not be as much damage as expected.

PRINCE EDWARD—Some spring work has been done on higher land. Market seed grain is active at present. Considerable demand for young work horses. Some exceptionally fine easter lambs marketed. One farmer sold four that averaged 76 pounds each.

EASTERN ONTARIO

CARLETON—Little work has been done on land in a couple of the very early sections. Fields seem to be drying up very quickly.

RENFREW—We still have some supply of first class seed available. More first class seed will be sown by Renfrew county farmers this year than ever before.

INJURED BY CAR TRAILER

Trailer Breaks From Brighton Car, Seriously Injuring Mrs. A. Lapp

Pinned against her home by a trailer that had broken loose from a motor car, Mrs. Addie Lapp, of Brighton, suffered serious injuries Monday, and was rushed to Belleville General Hospital, where she was attended by Dr. Clarke of Brighton and Dr. J. J. Robertson of Belleville. Examination showed that she had suffered a broken right thigh and right arm. Because of her age, her recovery will be slow. Mrs. Lapp also suffered head injuries of a minor nature. Mrs. Lapp has been in ill health. She was either just leaving her home or entering it, when a car owned by Mr. Whitney of Brighton, hauling a trailer, was proceeding in an easterly direction. The trailer broke loose from the car opposite the home of Mrs. Lapp, and careened across the sidewalk, striking her.

TRUCK DITCHED ON COBOURG RD.

Steering Gear Breaks And Driver Jumps To Safety—Merchandise Scattered

An eastbound transport of the tractor-trailer type, owned by the Hoar Transport Company of Toronto, crashed into the ditch a short distance west of the House of Refuge near Cobourg at 7:15 Wednesday morning, when the steering gear broke. The driver, H. Hinds, sensed the trouble when the big van refused to respond to the wheel and just before going into the ditch, he jumped clear. The load of merchandise was strewn over the ditch and embankment and the frame of the tractor was badly buckled. The only part of the load damaged to any extent was a chiffonier. Provincial Constable Ivan Spencer was first on the scene and Constable A. E. Reilly, of Port Hope was called. The latter investigated and decided that no charge would be laid.

MAYOR WALKS OUT OF HYDRO MEETING

Sticking to his avowed made at Monday night's meeting of Council, Mayor Crowhurst walked out of the meeting of the Hydro Commission called for Tuesday afternoon when the other two members of the board failed to put in an appearance. His Worship stated that he waited until 4:20 p.m. and when at that time he was still the sole representative, he decided to leave instructing the secretary V. B. Coleman, that he would attend when the Commission decided to meet on time. It was the Mayor's intention to bring up the question of salary reductions and the meeting was called for four o'clock. V. B. Coleman stated today that the meeting would be held on Thursday afternoon at the usual hour.

NEW INNKEEPER'S ACT BEGINS TO OPERATE

Having sponsored the amendment to the Innkeepers' Act which prevents a landlord holding personal property of a guest who owes a lodging debt, Magistrate J. E. Jones, of Toronto, was called upon to sit in judgment in the first case to appear before a magistrate on Friday. He settled it amicably in chambers.

Under the old act, an innkeeper could hold all property of a guest who failed to pay his lodging. The amendment provides that a landlord must obtain a court order to hold the goods, and if the guest can pay one week's board, then he must return all chattels even though the guest may owe more than one week. The magistrate, while allowing the landlord to hold chattels, will not allow him to hold personal property, or foods, or shaving cut fits and the like.

Magistrate Jones allowed the claimant to hold a trunk and grip.

"POT HUNTERS" ARE ASSAILED

Two-Day Pheasant Hunts Roundly Scored By Progressive Leader Nixon

The Ontario Legislature heard two-day pheasant hunts roundly scored by Progressive leader Harry Nixon Wednesday afternoon when clauses of the bill to amend the Game and Fisheries Act was being considered in Committee of the Whole. Mr. Nixon termed those who went out on the hunts "pot-hunters—so-called sports." He declared that hunters "had walked over his land as if they had a perfect right to do so," and had shot thirteen pheasants which had been reared on the farm and had become very tame. "The birds are gone now," said Mr. Nixon, "but I was very sorry to see them go, and I certainly will never propagate them again. I condemn this open season in the most emphatic terms. I have never posted 'No trespassing' signs on my farm, and do not intend to."

Hon. G. H. Challies, Minister of Game and Fisheries, observed that the gun license did not give hunters the right to trespass, even if the signs were not up. He held, however, that hunters' licenses had helped the Province in the propagation of pheasants and they had a right to expect an open season. The department had received advice that it would be well to allow the killing of some cock birds, he said.

The Minister also explained that the trespass clause in the Game and Fisheries Act put more teeth in legislation that the Common Trespass Act has. Stiffer penalties were provided.

DENIES ORDERING DRUNK'S RELEASE

Mayor Of Cobourg Brands Report Of Acting Night Constable As False

Branding as false a report given by Leslie Barker, who acted as night constable during the absence of the regular constable last week, Mayor Jack Delanty, of Cobourg, vigorously denied that he ever ordered the release of a man who had been locked up on a charge of being drunk. The mayor's denial was made in council after a question raised by Councillor Archie Russell, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, in regard to the release of the drunk.

Councillor Russell stated that he understood that on April 15th, Chief J. C. Ruse had arrested a Cobourg citizen on a charge of being drunk and had locked him up. According to the report typed out by Leslie Barker, who was acting as night constable during the absence of Constable Hamilton Brown, Mayor Delanty had phoned Barker, instructing him to release the prisoner. Barker had informed him that he was being held under the instructions of Chief Ruse, and then got in touch with the chief, after which he was released.

"I'd like to know on what authority who asked him to be released," demanded Councillor Russell.

Mayor Delanty replied that at 2:30 a.m. on the occasion in question he had been phoned by some men, who asked him to release the prisoner, as his children were alone and crying. He phoned Barker, and was informed that a man had been locked up for being drunk. "I did not order him to let the man go. I asked if the man were now sober could he be released, and was told to get in touch with the chief. I did so, and the chief said it would be all right," explained Mayor Delanty.

"But," he continued, "Barker lies when he says that I ordered the release of the man, and in my opinion he is not a fit man to be on the job." Councillor Frank Lapp expressed his view that the report given by Councillor Russell should not have been brought into council.

"This settles the matter, and I am glad that Mayor Delanty has explained the matter," stated Councillor Maher.

NURSING SOW RATIONS

The following mixtures for nursing sows have proven suitable for conditions such as prevail in Eastern and Western Canada, says the Dominion Department of Agriculture: Eastern Canada, bran, 100 pounds; shorts, 200 pounds; ground oats, 200 pounds; ground barley, 100 pounds; linseed oil meal, 20 pounds; tankage, 20 pounds; mineral mixture, 12 pounds. Skim-milk hand-fed. If sufficient skim-milk, omit linseed oil meal and tankage. Western Canada, bran, 50 pounds; shorts, 50 pounds; ground oats, 300

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

PORT HOPE BRANCH - C. P. FREEMAN, Manager

Interest Rates On Deposits Reduced By Canadian Banks

Will Drop to Two and a Half Per Cent on May 1st—Loan Cost Also to be Reduced by Same Amounts to Deserving Debtors—Substantial Saving to Government and Municipal Financing Seen—Expected to Help Business Reduction of interest rates paid by chartered banks in Canada to two and one-half per cent., to become effective May 1, was announced Thursday night by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Simultaneously, Hon. Edgar Rhodes, Minister of Finance, announced at Ottawa that a similar reduction to two and one-half per cent. would be effected by the Postal Savings offices and that a reduction from four to three and one-half per cent. would be instituted by trust organizations accepting deposits.

Ontario Savings Bank offices will follow the reduction taken by the chartered banks with a drop to two and one-half per cent. on May 1, following Cabinet discussion and approval of the action.

The reduction, it was indicated by bank officials and Mr. Rhodes Thursday night, is the first step towards a general reduction of interest rates which will result in a lowered cost of Government and municipal financing, both for new requirements and for conversion operations. To this end, J. A. McLeod, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said:—

Reduction on Loans

"It is made clear in the statement that there will be a reduction in rates on loans to municipalities and Governments."

That private borrowers will also benefit was intimated in Mr. Rhodes' statement, in which he said:—

"There is justification for expectation that the action now being taken will tend to bring about results greatly to be desired, namely, a reduction in cost of Government and municipal financing, a lower rate to deserving borrowers and a stimulation of activity in all lines of business."

The announcement of the reduction followed conferences and an agreement between governmental and banking officials. It also followed along lines indicated by Mr. Rhodes weeks ago when, in his budget speech, he stressed the necessity of "establishing lower interest rates" before the Government would offer its conversion loan.

That the action will tend to bring about a stimulation of commercial, industrial and agricultural activity by lowering loans and repayment cost and that this is expected by bankers is seen in the brief official statement which their association issued.

pounds; ground barley, 100 pounds; ground wheat, 100 pounds; tankage or skim-milk, 30 pounds. Mineral mixture, self-fed. Another Western mixture is: bran, 50 pounds; ground oats, 300 pounds; ground wheat, 200 pounds; tankage or skim-milk, 30 pounds. Mineral mixture, self-fed.

EARLY OPENING OF SEASON EXPECTED

Early opening of the tourist season this year was forecast with the appearance of a California car, in Greece.

town, carrying a number of passengers, who were well equipped to travel. The party halted for a short period during lunch hour in a downtown cafe, during which time they informed the proprietor of their intention to proceed to New Brunswick. On their return they will camp for some time in northern Hastings. They carried folders describing the camp of a northern resort owner.

The whole theory of evolution had been worked out by the ancient Greeks.

The Guide Story

CHAPTER I

"Your birthday to-morrow, Iris." "Yes—my twentieth birthday," replied a laughing voice. "Really I'm growing quite old. I must look out for gray hairs."

Angela Lyndon, curled up in the cushioned window-seat, regarded her friend thoughtfully. She was but eighteen herself, a slender, daintily-formed girl with a pale, refined face, large blue-gray eyes with dark brows and lashes and soft brown hair, shingled in the prevailing style. "We ought to celebrate the occasion," she told Iris Raymond. "The boys will expect us to do something to mark the event. And we've left it so late. The date had almost escaped my notice, in fact."

"I should not have reminded you of it," Iris declared. She sat at the table, strewn with sewing materials, evolving a new dance-frock of pale green chiffon, with a touch of silver about it. "This happens to be one of our hard-up times," she went on. "I expect he presents this year, Angie. I shall be frightfully angry if you give me anything."

"We're nearly always hard-up," Angela's well-cut lips took a downward curve. "You work like a slave your dancing and I tap the keys of a typewriter for my employer, when I'm not burrowing in dusty volumes at the British Museum in search of extracts he needs for his great 'History of the Human Race,' which no sane person will want to read when it's published. We never get any 'forerider,' though. We're always slightly affluent at the beginning of the week, and without a bean towards the end. Is it always to be so?"

"Oh, we get a little fun now and then," Iris expostulated, as she shook out the shimmering folds of the dance frock and held it up for critical inspection. "Don't be pessimistic, my child. I admit that our respective salaries might be larger. Madame Valerie has promised to raise mine soon. Her clientele is increasing. We run our little home without getting into debt—that's the main point."

Iris Raymond differed widely from her friend and house-mate. She was a mercurial, vivid-tinted little creature, with a warm heart and sunny temper, prone to look on the best side of things. Everyone liked Iris. Angela Lyndon, with a still, reserved nature, under which lay deep hidden springs of feeling, attracted less notice and interest as a rule, but the few attachments she formed were very lasting.

The two girls, who had been pupils at the same High School, had, on coming to London to earn a living, arranged to live together. They rented two rooms in an old house at Lambeth with a view of the trees and the river.

Iris, whose talent lay in the direction of dancing, had become a paid instructress in the Academy of Dancing kept by Madame Valerie, in a road off Kensington High street. Angela Lyndon, whose father, now dead, had been an Army coach, got a job as secretary to an elderly scholar and author, whose magnanimous opus seemed likely to drag on indefinitely before it reached the publishing stage.

The home to which they returned each evening had its charm for both. It meant freedom and rest. That they differed so widely from each other in character was, perhaps, the reason why they got on so well, except for occasional skirmishes.

Iris did the housekeeping, since money with her went much further than Angela could induce it to go. Angela with her weakness for a little, but that of the very best, whatever it might be, was not allowed to hold the purse strings. Even with the best management, the end of the week often found them reduced to a shilling or so, till their salaries were paid.

Iris rather enjoyed contriving and making shift. Angela resented the necessity. She loved beautiful things, and life's sordid side depressed her unduly.

"That frock is a dream," Angela began, then paused as the door opened and a young man came into the room. He was tall and well-dressed, with dark eyes and hair, and a pleasant, sophisticated manner. The faint, wild-roose gloom came into Angela's face as he bowed to her, then turned, less formally, to Iris Raymond.

"It's a terrible coil," she mused. "Poor Bertie cares a lot for Angela and she—with the perversity of all things feminine—has no feeling for him, apart from mere friendliness."

"He has not turned up," Bertie's sister told him. "I suppose you want some tea, Denis? Angela, darling, put the kettle over the gas-ring. We'll have tea on the side-table, not to interfere with my work."

Denis Carlton sank into the big easy-chair in the corner nearest Iris. His eyes rested on her eloquently. Angela left the window seat and began to prepare tea.

Her people lived down in the country, but Iris had a brother in town, Bertie Raymond, musician and song-composer. Bertie had followed the example set by the two girls in joining a friend in diggings. Denis Carlton, articled clerk to a solicitor, and young Raymond had an attic-flat in a street off the Strand. Their acquaintance was comparatively recent, though it ran very smoothly.

Bertie was so easy-going, so easily led and Denis Carlton had a hard streak in him which came to the surface at times. It seemed to hint at want of fine standard of conduct. Denis was an opportunist.

One thing was obvious, and Iris wished it was not. Denis Carlton had centered his attentions on her. Each time they met he seemed to grow more loverlike, more personal in his attitude.

Far from feeling pleased or flattered at this conquest, Iris had good reasons to regret it. Matters, she felt were working up gradually to a climax. When it came it must needs bring sorrow with it—and to more than one of the few people whom she care so much for.

Another step on the stairs and Bertie Raymond joined the trio in the sitting-room. He glanced at Angela Lyndon, cutting bread-and-butter at the side-table. She smiled across at him in welcome, but Bertie's advent failed to bring that delicate tell-tale colour to her face.

"So you've blown in, and annexed the most comfy chair?" Bertie Raymond remarked to his friend, throwing himself into the next-best seat. "Iris, old girl!"—to his sister—"to-morrow's your birthday. Wish I could have given you something better worth having. Meanwhile, please accept this token of brotherly love."

He tossed a little case into her lap as he spoke. She opened it to find a pretty, star-shaped garnet pendant.

"Oh, Bertie, how dear of you to buy this for me!" she cried, while Denis Carlton watched her keenly. "But you ought not to have spent your money on a present just now."

"Why not? Do you like it?"

"It's perfectly sweet. Garnets have such a rich colour—they are almost like rubies."

"They're the least valuable of all the precious stones," said Bertie calmly. "Otherwise I couldn't have bought the glittering bauble. Some day, when I've arrived as a composer, you shall have something better, dear old thing!"

Iris ran off with the finished dance frock, coming back almost directly to join the tea-party. Plans were discussed for the morrow.

"Suppose we go up the river?" suggested Bertie. "It's a cheap way of enjoying one's self, especially if the weather is fine."

"I second the motion," Denis Carlton struck in. "Of course," bowing to Iris, "I take for granted that I'm to join the party?"

"Can you get away from the office?" she asked.

"If I can't kill a relative and stage her funeral, for such an occasion, I'm not worth my salt," was the reply.

"There will be four of us, then."

Iris glanced across at Angela. "Can you fix things, dear, with your author?"

"Mr. Rudge must let me off the 'History of the Human Race' for one day. You may count me in, Iris."

"That's all right. We'll meet at Waterloo. My birthday's going to be a great success. And now I must tear myself away from you, dear people. It's nearly time for our evening-class at the Academy."

Denis Carlton rose.

"If I may escort you there?" he said. "Oh, don't trouble!" Iris spoke swiftly. "You and Bertie stay and talk to Angela."

"I'm going out directly," Angela answered. Denis Carlton looked relieved at this announcement and Bertie disappointed. Very soon all four had gone their several ways. Iris, outside her motor-bus, was thinking deeply.

"It's a terrible coil," she mused. "Poor Bertie cares a lot for Angela and she—with the perversity of all things feminine—has no feeling for him, apart from mere friendliness."

"He has not turned up," Bertie's sister told him. "I suppose you that Angela has lost her heart to Denis Carlton. And he offers incense at my shrine for which I've no earthly use. Angela is so reserved, even with me, but I can read between the lines. I hope I shall never fall in love. It seems to cause nothing but trouble."

Iris was soon engaged with her pupils in the large, brilliantly-lighted dance-salon at the Academy. Madame Valerie, a vivacious little Frenchwoman, was at the piano. On special occasions they had an orchestra. Madame prided herself on the selectness of her clientele.

She knew she had a treasure in Iris Raymond, and valued her accordingly. Iris had a wonderful way with dull or nervous pupils in bringing them along, imparting something of her own grace and charm to the awkward. She had patience and tact as well as skill.

To-night her thoughts wandered somewhat from her work, though. She went through it mechanically.

There would be changes soon in her little circle. They were in the air. Angela Lyndon was secretly unhappy, while Bertie suffered as the result of the girl's gentle coldness and aloofness. Should Denis Carlton propose to her, Iris, in the near future, he, too, must know pain and disappointment. She had not the least intention of accepting her brother's friend.

Iris changed into outdoor attire when the hour came for the Academy of Dancing to close, with a sense of relief. Madame Valerie eyed her assistant keenly as Iris bade her good night.

"You have danced only with your feet this evening, ma chere," she said quaintly. "Your heart was not in it. Is anything wrong?"

Iris started at the question. "Oh, no, madame!" she replied, confusedly, "at least, I—I hope not. Surely I didn't neglect my pupils?"

But no. You never do that. Only you seemed distracted for once. If you have lost your heart, petite, there is no harm done."

Outside the Academy, Iris found her brother waiting for her. She slipped her arm lovingly in his and they walked away together. It was a fine moonlight night.

"You wanted to speak to me alone?" she said. "And you hadn't a chance this afternoon?"

"Precisely. Carlton's gone to a show with some other fellows. I'm glad to see you home, Iris."

She glanced anxiously at his face. Bertie Raymond was singularly good-looking. His handsome, brown eyes held a look of unconscious paths to-night. His sensitive, well-cut lips were compressed.

"Is the trouble connected with your work?" she asked.

"Precisely. I'm tired of living from hand to mouth—getting my things turned down by music-publishers, or having to sell them outright for a mere trifle."

"Some day you will make your mark," Iris assured him. "You mustn't get discouraged, Bertie. Everyone must have a start."

"That's all very well," he declared irritably. "Bertie Raymond had the artistic temperament. He was either up in the clouds, or down in the depths of acute depression. To-night it was a case of the dismal depths. Iris knew his every mood. "Some of us never get a fair start," he went on. "I'm not a musical genius. I know my own limitations. I shall never compose a grand opera or an oratorio, but I can write songs and set them to haunting melodies. It's my gift."

"Of course it is," Iris answered proudly.

"Well," Bertie quickened his pace, "I'd be content to write a song that caught on—that was whistled and sung everywhere—a song that would go round the world. Not a great ambition, still, it's mine. A song that would bring me fame and fortune. And I'd value the fame even more than the money. Any fool can make money. But you must have a spark of the divine fire to write a song that appeals to everyone."

"You'll do this sooner or later," she told him. "I'm sure of it, Bertie. Music-publishers will run after you."

He laughed bitterly.

"They're more inclined to run away from me now," he replied, "when I turn up with a fresh song. I've got a motif running through my mind, and a melody to fit it. It's going to be a waltz-song. I'll play it over to you, Iris, soon. If 'A Love Letter' doesn't catch on nothing of mine ever will."

"I'm longing to hear it, Bertie, if you want a little money, dear, till you reach the turning in your long road, I can raise it on granny's gold watch."

"You'll do nothing of the kind," he interrupted hotly. "I can't let my head bobbe water with the things I sell, and I owe Carlton only good will. My share of the expense of the flat are duly met. I—I don't wish to feel under any obligation to him."

"Oh, I'm glad of that." Her hold of his arm tightened. "Bertie, you won't let Denis Carlton get you into careless or extravagant ways? He's better off than you, and—"

"My dear child," Bertie's laugh rang out again, but this time in pure amusement, "it would puzzle Carlton to make me spend lavishly just at present."

"But you might drift into debt. Father used to tell us debt was only another form of dishonesty."

"I'm not in debt, or likely to be," Bertie said, the shadow crossing his mobile face again. "If only I could see my way to make a decent income within the next year or so—and this mostly for the sake of—of some one else."

His sister's eyes rested on him wistfully.

"You mean Angela?" she breathed.

"Yes, Iris, tell me the honest truth. Do I stand a chance in that direction?"

She paused before answering him. "Angela likes you," she said at length.

"Oh, that goes for nothing," impatiently. "Does she care for her?"

"Why not ask her?"

"Am I in a position to ask any girl to be my wife at the moment? What prospects have I to share with her?" Bertie demanded. "Let me score one success, and I'll put my fate to the test. Till then I must wait and hope for the best. There are times," his voice sank, "when I fancy she prefers Carlton to me. It may be only fancy, but it's sheer torture."

"Angela is very reserved. She has never given me her confidence, or spoken of love and lovers," Iris replied, in a cautious manner.

"Anyhow, Carlton takes no secret of the fact that you're his particular star," Bertie continued. "He's terribly gone on you, Iris. Have you any confidence to bestow on me, old girl?"

"No." She could speak frankly now, without fear of paining her brother. "I never shall have any feeling of that kind for Denis Carlton," emphatically. "If you could convey this to him you would render me a service. I'm not in love with anyone. I don't wish to be."

"About Angela? If she should care for Carlton?"

"It's not fair to discuss her in this connection. These things are on the knees of the gods, and there we must leave them. Will you come in, Bertie?" as they reached the quiet old house on the Embankment.

"I think not. It's getting late. Meet you and Angela to-morrow at Waterloo for the birthday festivities. By the way, has Carlton ever proposed to you?"

"No—and I don't wish him to. Do you want me to marry him, to remove a rival from your path?"—in half-veiled, half-amused accents.

"Oh, hardly that! He's a good chap. Though I'm awfully sorry you don't respond to his advances, sister mine. Good-night."

Iris watched him walk away before going indoors, a little frown wrinkling her white forehead. She and Angela, who had waited up for her, were soon in bed and asleep.

They awoke to a perfect day of golden sunshine. Angela's gift of a silk handbag, embroidered by her own clever fingers, was on the breakfast-table when Iris carried in the coffee-pot.

"How dear of you to make this for me!" she began, then broke off as the landlady came in with a lovely basket of roses and carnations.

"Just left at the door for you, miss." She beamed with a knowing look at Iris.

Denis Carlton's card was attached to the basket. Iris was not enthusiastic over this gift.

"I wish he hadn't sent them," was all she said, when the landlady was gone.

"Why?" Angela, white-faced, her lips quivering, bent over the flowers to hide a stricken look.

"I don't value them—coming from him. My dear, it's time we were starting. Do hurry up, Angela."

The girls reached Waterloo, little dreaming what that day held in store for them.

CHAPTER II

Denis Carlton was with Bertie, both young men in correct, riverside attire, flannel trousers, white sweaters, wonderful blazers. Bertie had brought his guitar in its rather worn slung case.

Iris thanked Carlton for the gift of flowers, but without the personal note in look and voice that he longed for. When they left the train at Staines they made their way to a posthouse. A punt was hired for the day. Some cushions Angela had brought were arranged in it. Carlton, hesson and erect, pushed off, dexterously balancing the punt pole. Iris gave a sigh of sheer bliss as she nestled down beside her quiet friend.

This day of early summer was perfect. Glory of lilac and laburnum—the latter with its golden chains drooping over the water—of pink hawthorn and white, of chestnut bloom in tall spikes, like candles on a giant Christmas tree. Meadows dusted with the silver and gold of buttercups and daisies. Cool splash and ripple of the river, and over all this fresh miracle of renewed beauty floods of radiant sunshine.

Carlton punted them slowly upstream, Bertie Raymond was in no hurry to relieve him of the pole.

"I sat up till two this morning," he told Iris and Angela, leaning back against his own particular cushion. "I'm entitled to a soft time now."

"Two o'clock!" Iris exclaimed. "Why, what on earth were you doing?"

"I had a fit of inspiration." Bertie closed his eyes. "I finished the song I told you about. The lyric is mine and also the melody. The dance-orchestration should carry it through, I modestly believe. You see before you, ladies, the gifted author and composer of 'A Love Letter.'"

"Have you brought it with you?" Iris asked eagerly.

"I have. Thought I would submit it to friendly critics before the world gets to hear of it."

"He's dying to sing it to you," Carlton interposed, his handsome, dark head and clear-cut features turned towards the occupants of the punt. "Do gratify his vanity to the extent of requesting him to do so. Bertie sat at the piano for three solid hours last night, evolving 'A Love Letter.' Our landlady nearly gave us notice to quit this morning. I had to placate her. She wasn't at all composed herself—said she thought composers most disturbing people."

"She and you are more Philistines," Bertie took his guitar from its case as the punt floated between green banks and overhanging trees. "You know nothing of the divins afflatus. I'm going to sing to you whether you wish it or not."

Angela and Iris settled themselves to listen. Bertie's clear tenor voice rang out in his latest effort to achieve success.

"I'm writing to you, my darling, Little sweetheart over the sea. And I envy this letter that's going Where your true love fain would be."

Iris straight as the lines on the paper.

My words bear the stamp of truth, While my pen glides swift as an arrow, With its message of love and youth.

"I'm writing to ask you, my darling, And I ask for a fond reply, If you only knew how I long for you, As the lonely days go by!"

"I'm working for you, my darling, For sweet home and love and bride I'll never rest till I've won through, And you're standing by my side."

"I must stop for the post is going. He's shouting now at the gate. Please blare the lots of kisses, dear, If my letter is over-weight"

Angela was the first to speak as Bertie ceased singing.

"I like the melody," she said. "It's haunting—wistful—insistent. I hope the song will be a great success."

The young fellow's sensitive face flushed. He was grateful to her for this little show of interest in him and his work. If only she cared for him he might yet do far better things.

"Not so bad," drawled Carlton, a gleam of mirth in his eyes. "Our gifted friend can produce melodies, impressions, concert-pieces and so on, if somewhat incapable of serious effort."

Iris felt annoyed at this esting belittlement of her brother, coming from one who had not a note of music in his soul.

"The best critics are supposed to be men who have failed themselves, aren't they?" she inquired demurely. Carlton smiled suavely across at her.

"I'm not a musical failure," he said. "I've never tried to do anything in that line. Still, my remark may have sounded presumptuous. I should be content to listen and admire."

He made Iris feel rather foolish. She wished she had not spoken so quickly.

"Let me write the songs of a nation, and anybody may do the big low-wow business," Bertie said, restoring his guitar to its case. Aren't we going to land soon, good people? I'm frightfully hungry."

They had reached a bend in the river, with meadows on one side and the towing-path on the other.

"It's not much farther to the riverside hotel where we propose lunching," Iris told him. "After lunch—"

She did not finish her sentence. An electric launch, driven at a furious pace, came suddenly round the bend. It collided with the punt, and sank it, throwing the four occupants into the water.

A scene of wild confusion ensued where all had been so peaceful a moment before. The somewhat rowdy party on the launch, sobered by the accident, threw lifebelts over the side. Small boats and skiffs not far off raced to the spot, bent on life-saving.

Denis Carlton, a good swimmer, saw Iris and Angela to the surface almost together. He swam to Iris, caught her in a firm grasp and made for the towing-path.

"I can swim a little," she gasped, "Save Angela, please. I can manage."

"Have a little patience and you'll both be saved," was the innocent reply. The accident had not flustered Carlton at all. Iris once landed safely on the towing-path, he turned and struck out for Angela Lyndon.

She had sunk for the second time. Carlton dived and brought her to the surface, well-nigh unconscious. He was panting for breath when Iris took the girl from him. By this time a crowd had gathered on the path and the river was dotted with boats.

"Where is Bertie?" Irish asked wildly. "He can't swim. Oh, Denis, don't let my brother drown!"

Carlton plunged in again. Nothing had been seen of Bertie Raymond. He had not come to the surface after the accident, like the others. Hearing that a man who had been in the punt was still missing, several dived from skiffs in search of him.

Iris, shivering in her wet, flimsy summer frock on the towing-path, seemed to live through an eternity of suspense and awful, wordless pain as the search proceeded. Bertie! To lose him—

Angela had been taken to the nearest house. Iris refused to move till her brother was found.

He was all she had in the world to love and live for. They had meant so much to each other. To be snatched from her in a moment of happiness and laughter—

A shout rang out. It thrilled her with renewed hope. One of the diving men had come up, bringing Bertie with him. Other swimmers helped to bring the insensible man ashore.

Iris bent over him as first-aid to the partly-drowned was given. But Bertie Raymond had sustained injuries from the electric launch that swamped the punt. There was a wound on his head.

The crowd assembled fell back as a doctor elbowed his way through. He examined the unconscious figure swiftly. Iris waited in tense misery for him to speak.

"Concussion," he said at length. "Also some injury to the back. The launch must have struck him. His lungs are beginning to work again, but he may not regain consciousness for some days."

All that followed seemed like a dreary nightmare to Iris. The police arrived. An ambulance was phoned for. When it came, Bertie was tenderly lifted into it and driven away to the nearest hospital.

"You must think a little of yourself now. You'll catch a cold in these wet clothes."

Denis Carlton's voice roused her from her stupor. She would fain have gone with Bertie in the ambulance, but the nurse had been against it. When she had changed into dry clothes she could follow if she pleased.

Would Bertie die as the result of his injuries, and this was the end of her birthday festival!

Mechanically she let Carlton, himself a dripping figure, take her to the house where Angela had found refuge. Warm baths and borrowed clothing till their own dried, and a most kindly reception from the theatrical family staying there, put them in better plight.

Angela Lyndon was little the worse for her accident, but more silent than usual. Her deep concern respecting Bertie seemed to make her ignore her own narrow escape from drowning.

"You and I owe our lives, I expect, to Denis Carlton," Iris reminded her, as they got into their own clothes again in the room to which they had been shown. "We mustn't forget that, Angela."

Angela turned and gave her a strange remote look.

"I'm in no danger of forgetting," she answered slowly. "And he saved you first."

"Oh, what does that matter?" Iris turned away to hide her confusion. "The point is, he saved us both. If only Bertie recovers, we shall have much to be grateful for. The people in the boats might have reached us in time. I don't know."

Carlton and the two girls went straight from the house of their kind entertainers to the hospital to which Bertie Raymond had been taken.

They were not allowed to see him. His case, the matron said, was regarded as serious. The police had taken the notes and addresses of the launch party. There was nothing to be done but come away and wait for further news of the patient. The matron promised to phone should he take a turn for the worse.

"I—I can't dance to-night," Iris said, on their way home in the train. "Madame must let me off. The other assistant can manage for once. Oh, why did I have a birthday—"

"Bertie's guitar and music-sheet went down in the punt," said Carlton suddenly. "I fancy he made a second copy of his new song. If not he may be able to rewrite it from memory when he recovers."

The subject seemed to matter but little just then to Iris. Would Bertie get better? Nothing else was of any consequence.

She got leave of absence the next day from her sympathetic employer and went up the river to the hospital to which Bertie had been taken. The nurse whom she saw this time said her brother was only conscious for a few moments, now and then. She might see him, if she wished.

Iris looked his face on the white pillow thought death-like. Bertie's eyes were closed. Even as she gazed at him through a mist of tears they opened. He smiled feebly up at her.

"Bertie, darling, you know me?" she whispered, bending down.

"Of course I do. Iris, is Angela Lyndon with you?"

"No." The light fled from his features. "But she sent a message, hoping you were better. She had to go to her secretarial work as usual."

"I suppose so, Iris, tell Carlton." Bertie's voice trailed off. He had gone back to that Valley of the Shadow from which he might never emerge.

GIVES ADDRESS AT MEN'S FORUM

At Sunday Afternoon Meeting, Dr. J. B. Reynolds Discussed 'Liberalism And Conservatism'

At the regular Sunday afternoon meeting of the Men's Forum at the Port Hope United Church, the speaker was Dr. J. B. Reynolds of Port Hope, who discussed "Liberalism and Conservatism."

Dr. Reynolds' address was as follows:—
"In discussing this topic, I wish it clearly understood at the outset that the topic is not intended to refer to party division or party politics in Canada, Great Britain or else where. Let us try to get back to the foundation meaning of the two terms, liberal and conservative, and to define the mental attitudes and points of view in government, society, morals and religion that they represent and to apply our conclusions to the problems of the present."

Before formally defining the terms, the speaker illustrated their use by quoting at length from an editorial credited to a leading Italian paper, with Mussolini as the alleged author.

Mr Reynolds continued, "Here, it is important to note, you have the terms Fascism, Conservatism, dictatorial powers, authority, order, leadership, ranged on one side as belonging to one system of political thought and practice; and on the other, Liberalism, Democracy, parliamentarism, as belonging to an opposite system. According to the views here quoted democracy and parliamentary governments are doomed, and dictatorships with absolute and irresponsible authority will be substituted in the governments of the world."

About the middle of the last century, John Henry Newman wrote an Apologia or a justification of his conversion from Protestantism to Roman Catholicism. In this book (p. 288 it seq.) he defines Liberalism and its opposite, Conservatism, in religion.

"Whenever men are able to act at all, there is the chance of extreme and intemperate action; and therefore, when there is exercise of mind, there is the chance of wayward or mistaken exercise. Liberty of thought is in itself a good; but it gives an opening to false liberty. Now by Liberalism I mean false liberty of thought, or the exercise of thought upon matters, in which, from the constitution of the human mind, thought cannot be brought to any successful issue, and therefore is out of place. Among such matters are first principles of whatever kind; and of these the most sacred and momentous are especially to be reckoned are the truths of Revelation."

Liberalism then is the mistake of subjecting to human judgment those revealed doctrines which are in their nature beyond and independent of it, and of claiming to determine on intrinsic grounds the truth and value of propositions which rest for their reception simply on the external authority of the Divine Word.

"Here I may venture to ask what are the first principles included in Revelation and what is the Divine Word, whose authority is not to be questioned by the individual believer? But in asking such questions I am aware that I am laying myself open to be stigmatised under Mr. Newman's definition, as a Liberal."

"Liberalism, then, is the exercise of private judgment on all matters of opinion and of conduct. Conservatism is the recognition of external authority. Mr. Newman gives examples of authorities external to and superior over private judgment. 'Conscience is an authority; the Bible is an authority; such is the Church; such is Antiquity; such are the words of the wise; such are hereditary lessons; such are ethical truths; such are historical memories, such are legal laws and state maxims; such are proverbs; such are sentiments, precepts and prepossessions."

"May I again venture to remark, with respect to each and all of these authorities, that all reform, all progress in human society, whether in government, social order, morals or religion, has resulted from men presuming to question the sacredness of these authorities as understood and interpreted at the time of the questioning."

The two opposing systems of thoughts, Liberalism and Conservatism, cut across one another under any classification. You cannot tag a man and his opinions as simply as you can number a part of a machine. According to our definition, all Catholics are Conservatives, and all Protestants are Liberals. Yet in religion there are Catholics who are liberal-minded and Protestants who are Conservative. And in politics, Quebec is Catholic province; it prevalently Liberal while Ontario the champion of Protestantism is prevalently Conservative.

"A too zealous conservatism leads to intolerance or a denying of the right to any citizen to hold and to express opinions contrary to that of the majority. Of such is the alleged action of the Toronto police warning the manager of the Classic theatre that if he allowed a meeting of the C.C.F. announced to be addressed by a Federal member of Parliament it would be at his own risk. The result was that the meeting was cancelled. Of such also, it is alleged, is the dismissal of Professor Gordon from the staff of Union Theological Seminary, after he had delivered some lectures commenting favorably on Communistic Russia. A faith confidently believed in should not be afraid of the truth, and cannot long suffer from false doctrine."

A too zealous liberalism scorns authority and undervalues the past. The greatness of Britain rests upon her storied past, upon the memory of the great men who helped to make her history, upon her poets and warriors and statesmen whose names must endure as long as Britain endures, and longer, if Greece and Rome and Israel are to be taken as examples. It is a weakness of Communistic Russia that she has cut loose from her past and in her fury for reform has destroyed the good with the bad of her former national life.

"I have heard that during the Revolution in Russia in 1917 great numbers of the prescribed classes—merchants, professionals and other so-called intelligentsia, were shut up in a large school building and there slaughtered, and the blood of the slain stood eighteen inches deep on the floors. It is a characteristic of the Communist State that, while it denies and destroys the authority, of the past, it sets up a new and more sinister authority, that of public opinion. The liberty of the individual is everywhere and always threatened by the spy and the informer."

"The whole question at issue is the principle of the utmost freedom of thought and action for the individual consistent with his not doing injury to others; against the principle of the authority or tyranny of public opinion over private judgment, and the interference of government in private business. In this connection, I cannot do better than to quote the opinions of John Stuart Mill as constituting a clear statement of the case of Liberalism or the rights of the individual."

Whatever theory we may adopt respecting the foundation of the social union, and under whatever political institutions we live, there is a circle around every individual human being which no government, be it that of one, of the few, or of the many, ought to be permitted to overstep; there is a part of the life of every person who has come to years of discretion, within which the individuality of that person ought to reign uncontrolled either by any other individual or by the public collectively. That there is, or ought to be, some space in human existence thus entrenched around and sacred from authoritative intrusion, no one who professes the smallest regard to human freedom or dignity, will call in question. The point to be determined is, where the limit should be placed; how large a province of human life this reserved territory should include."

CYCLISTS' DEATH PROBED BY JURY

No Blame Attached In Death Of Toronto Lawyer On Highway East Of Here

An open verdict with no blame attached to anyone was the verdict of the inquest at Colborne Friday night on Arthur McFarlane, of St. Germain-street, Toronto, who was killed on Easter Sunday, near Wicklow, when the motorcycle sidecar in which he was riding sideswiped a truck.

The driver of the motorcycle was Alan Hill, Craighurst Avenue, Toronto. A car driven by Blake Samins, of Wicklow, proceeding in the opposite direction, struck Hill when he fell from the motorcycle. Hill claimed that he was blinded by the lights of Samins' car and prevented from noticing the parked truck on his right, in time to avoid it. McFarlane sustained a fractured skull, from which he died almost instantly.

Ronald Innes, Toronto, who was following behind Hill and McFarlane on another motorcycle, gave a graphic description of the accident, revealing the fact that because of injuries received in a spill en route to the motorcycle races at Belleville, McFarlane had given his machine to Innes to ride, taking Innes' place in the sidecar of Hill's cycle.

"I was travelling along the highway in a driving rain when I suddenly saw the outlines of a truck thrown in sharp relief by the lights of an oncoming car. I could see Hill attempt to clear it; he was close to the truck and then I saw Hill shoot through the air," said Innes.

Hill testified that he didn't see the truck until the headlights of another car showed it up.

CHANGES IN ELECTION ACT

Polling Day Is Seventh Day After The Official Nominations

Several amendments to the Election Act, recently passed by the Legislature, provide that the writ for an election may be issued not less than twenty-five days before the nomination, instead of thirty days and that the polling day shall be the 7th day after nomination and not the eleventh day.

The Government has also decided to assume the entire cost of preparing and printing voters' lists for Provincial elections, thereby saving municipalities a sum estimated at between $250 and $300. One clause shortens the time allowed for posting proclamations prior to nomination day from eight to five, and the period between the date of the issuance of the writ and polling day is reduced from 41 to 32 days.

DIVISION COURT

At the April session of Division Court at the Town Hall here, which was presided over by the County Judge L. V. O'Connor, of Cobourg, only a few actions were on the docket.

W. Boughen, Port Hope, was given judgment for $40.00 in a suit for $100.00 against George Christie, Port Hope. The claim was originally for $50.00 and later was amended. D. H. Chisholm appeared for the plaintiff and W. F. McMahon was defense counsel. The claim arose as a result of an occurrence several months ago when a fire, alleged to have been in progress on the defendant's property, spread to the plaintiff's land and is stated to have destroyed a number of berry bushes.

Thomas Marsh, Port Hope, claimed $27.70 in an action against Charles Moyle, Ontario Street, for services. The trustees of the defendant disputed the claim and the action was set aside to the next court.

Mr. Murray McMahon, of Verona, Ont., who has been spending a few days at his home, has left with his cousin, Captain J. Cavanagh for the S.S. James Stuart.

Printed weather forecasts for the next twenty-four hours will be supplied by automatic machines to be installed in Frankfort, Germany.

A new automatic timer has been devised for sunlamps so that the indoor sunlight can be turned on for any desired time.

OXFORD GROUP TO VISIT HERE

Oxford Group Team To Speak In Various Churches Here Sunday

A group of "Life-changers" from Toronto have arranged to visit Port Hope over the week-end. The party will arrive Saturday afternoon and will conduct a public meeting to which all are invited in St. Mark's Parish Hall on Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

On Sunday morning witnesses will address the congregations in the following churches, St. John's Anglican, St. Paul's Presbyterian, the Baptist and United Church. In the evening short services, at which members of the group will speak, will be held in the Anglican Presbyterian and Baptist churches with men gathering at the United Church, where a large group will witness and an after meeting will be held. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these special services.

TRAFFIC COURT

AGED MAN ROBBED. HURLED TO DITCH

Scarcely three hours after they allegedly had beaten, robbed and thrown Patrick Barry, 70 years old, of Prince Edward County, from their motor car, Jesse Dickerson and George Wickerson, of Mountain View, were in custody in Picton Jail and will be charged with daylight robbery. Barry, who was severely injured, was taken to Belleville Hospital, after reporting the robbery to the police, and later was allowed to return to his home. The Provincial Police, from a good description, spotted the car at the Dickerson home, and surrounding the house arrested the two boys without a struggle. The young men have been working in Oshawa for some time and only lately returned to this district.
