TAX COLECTOR IS COMPLIMENTED

97 Per Cent. Of 1932 Taxes Have Been Collected — Report Made To Council

Enthusiastic tribute to A. J. Chesler, local tax collector, was paid at Monday night's meeting of Council when it was announced in a report read by His Worship, Mayor Crowhurst that only seven per cent of 1932 taxes were still outstanding. Deputy-Reeve Edmunds felt that Mr. Chesler's work was worthy of public commendation and expressed his complete satisfaction with the excellent results that had been obtained in collecting taxes in spite of depressed conditions.

The grand total of 1932 taxes was $177,063.45, made up as follows: Taxes, $158,697.10; Street oiling and watering, $3,438.08; local improvements, $14,698.75; Snow shovelling, weed cutting, etc., $229.52.

The total collected on above amounts was $140,105.64; remissions, $26,322.19; Discounts, $4,043.56; Transient traders, $231.20; outstanding, $12,360.86, or less than 7%. In addition $202.67 was collected in penalties.

As a sequel to a charge in police court against a local firm, which was withdrawn on the suggestion of the Town Solicitor, D. H. Crisholm, K.C., Reeve Elliott gave notice that at the next regular meeting of Council he would introduce a by-law to amend by-law 1363, requiring merchants to close at certain hours. The charge against the firm in question was for remaining open after 6.30 p.m.

Chief Record, of the local Fire Department was authorized to attend the district fire chiefs convention in Peterboro in August and a grant of $15 was made for his expenses.

Three members were absent at last night's meeting. Councillors Bennett, Stratton and Jex.

WARN FARMERS WATER HEMLOCK

Poisonous Plant Now In Full Bloom, Department Official Says

In a letter issued by A. H. Martin of the Crops and Markets Branch, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, director in charge of the administration of the Ontario Weed Control Act, to the weed inspectors of Ontario, a warning is thrown out to be on the look-out this year for a dangerous perennial plant known as Water Hemlock, sometimes called Spotted Cowbane, Musquash and Beaver Poison.

This plant, usually found near pools on swampy land and in waterways, is now in full bloom. The plant looks like caraway, elder bush and wild carrot. It grows from three to six feet in height, and has little roots that look like a small Winter radish.

The roots, which seem attractive to stock, contain a poison called cicutoxin. Hay containing this plant should not be fed to livestock.

A whole family was poisoned in the province of Quebec last year. Two children aged 8 and 10 died within 10 minutes of each other in Western Canada last year. They were with their father seeding and wandered away to a pool where they were attracted by the pleasing odor of the roots of Water Hemlock. A boy died in Guelph this year and one Waterloo County farmer lost five valuable cattle from eating the roots early this Spring.

Why suffer needlessly? Douglas' Egyptian Liniment brings back sure relief to scald feet, soft corns and warts. Relieves inflammation. Removes proud flesh.

TWO OSHAWA MEN ENTER C.N.E. SWIM

Motor City To Be Well Represented In Annual Championship Race

Another Oshawa entrant in the annual marathon swim at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto next month has announced himself. He is Russell Naylor, Conant street, who for the past two months has been quietly training himself in preparation for the big event and who believes he has a fair opportunity to finish in the money in the race.

Naylor has been concentrating on long distance swimming for the past three years but not until this summer did he feel sufficiently confident to decide to enter the big splash. Although a self-taught and trained swimmer Naylor has studied the form and swimming style of the best experts on the continent, has watched the leading swimmers training in Lake Ontario and has developed a form which observers declare will match that of the best.

Handicapped by lack of assistance in training and with no person to accompany him in a boat or take his time, Naylor has not a very definite idea of his speed but has been doing a daily practice after work of a three-mile swim with longer distances Saturdays and Sundays. This week he is covering a five-mile course and will continue on the five-mile course during the next few weeks while he is not working.

"I have covered fairly long distances and have never felt that I have reached my limit or been tired out," Naylor stated. "This is my third year and I feel that I can make a good showing and possibly finish in the money. I will do my best."

Another Oshawa entrant in the big swim is Jimmie Everett, big life guard at the Oshawa waterfront, who with a style peculiar to himself and with an undeniable swimming speed, intends to make a real trial this year to finish the race. In two previous entries he was forced out of the water by accidents.

TREASURE HUNT AGAIN AT CAPITOL

Some Of The Boys Get Feathers For Nests That Are Non-Existent

Treasure night at the Capitol Theatre on Monday night attracted the usual large crowd. There was no main prize as all prizes were equally attractive.

The following are the list of prize winners:

Donald Skitch, bookcase; Jack Bethick, end table; Mrs. Hawley Jex, telephone set; Mrs. D. A. Shay, radio bench; A. McManus, upholstered chair; Verna Thomas, coffee table; Leona Wakely, sewing cabinet; Mrs. S. Smith, waste paper basket; H. Franks, Magazine holder; C. M. Oyden, tilt top table.

On the screen James Dunn plays the part of Dr. French, a surgeon in an emergency hospital assisted by Gloria Stuart as Mary Nolan who has been beaten up and left for dead by gangsters and was taken to the emergency hospital where Dr. French takes charge of the case, finally falling in love with her. The gangsters having heard that she is still alive make plans to have her moved before she is able to talk. There follows many exciting and amusing incidents. A technical short subject was an enjoyable added attraction.

MUSKIE FOOLS ANGLERS SPITS BAIT INTO BOAT

Things like this would break the heart of any Isaac Walton.

Albert Curit and Chris Huzhe of Peterboro had just pulled in a 15 pound muskie into their boat and were casting for more. A sudden tightening of the line, a pull and the line was gradually hauled into the boat side. Then, the fishermen relate another muskie stuck his head out of the water, spit-bait and hook into the boat and with a flip of his tail disappeared.

Now Chris and Albert are showing another 15 pound muskie, measuring 39 inches, as the one who defied them the first time but apparently succumbed to temptation of a healthy worm.

FINE IS IMPOSED FOR CAR RAFFLE

4,000 Stubs of Tickets Sold By Bowmanville Rotary Club Seized In Guelph

Appearing in Guelph police court charged with conducting a lottery, Allan Osborne, Bowmanville, pleaded guilty and was fined $25 and costs by Magistrate Hilliard. Similar charges against Aran Garton and Hugh Cameron, Bowmanville, were dropped.

The three men were taken into custody while selling tickets, giving the holder a chance in a draw for a new automobile, which was being raffled off by the Bowmanville Rotary Club, the proceeds to be used to aid crippled children. The arrest was made on the main street by Constable Frank Illingsworth, after the three men had sold about 20 tickets. The car was held overnight, but the men drove it away Tuesday morning. Some 4,000 stubs of tickets already sold were confiscated by Guelph police.

Crown Attorney J. M. Kearns, K. C., declared that the practice was against the law, but was a common thing in other centres. While the car was being raffled for a worthy purpose, it did not bring it inside the law.

"I will be satisfied with a nominal fine in this case and the tickets will remain here. We will also drop the charges against these other two men," he said.

Magistrate Hilliard was of the same opinion as the Crown and was surprised that the practice was allowed to be carried on. It was his opinion that it was demoralizing.

C. F. Cannon, president of the Bowmanville Rotary Club, was present, and it was largely through his actions that the accused were dealt with so lightly.

Mounted on Truck

The car mounted upon a truck clearly labelled as being sold by means of tickets to be drawn at the Rotary Fair in Bowmanville, July 26, was ordered to be taken out of the county immediately. The three drove towards Toronto.

The 4,000 tickets confiscated by the police are all the result of sales during recent weeks, to people in Eastern Ontario," said J. C. Devitt, past president of the Bowmanville Rotary Club. "It was only yesterday morning that the car committee left for Western Ontario."

"I know that for some weeks past they have been selling tickets in our own town, in Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg, Peterboro and Lindsay, in fact all over Eastern Ontario," the Rotarian said. "We will have to make an effort to get the ticket stubs back."

THEATRE MANAGER WEDS IN TORONTO

J. S. Smart Marries Miss Gertrude Roberts At Quiet Ceremony Monday

A quiet wedding was solemnized at eleven o'clock Monday morning in St. Andrew's Church, King Street, Toronto, when Gertrude Tempest, daughter of Mrs. Roberts and the late Mr. A. W. Roberts, was married to Mr. James Stuart Smart, son of Mrs. Smart, of Port Hope, and the late Mr. John E. Smart. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. E. G. Denny and Mr. Alfred Wilson played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. John Roberts, wore a smart ensemble of navy blue georgette, matching hat and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses and lily-of-the-valley. They were unattended.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Smart left by motor for Muskoka and on their return will live in Port Hope.

The Oil for the Farmer.—A bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric oil in the farm house will save many a journey for the doctor. It is not only good for the children when taken with colds and croup, and for the mature who suffer from pains and aches, but there are directions for its use on sick cattle. There should always be a bottle of it in the house.

FARM HOME IS PREY TO FLAMES

House At Phillip's Farm, East Of Here, Destroyed Saturday Afternoon

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the farm house at Phillip's Farm, located on the highway, four miles east of Port Hope on Saturday afternoon. The property is owned by the Orchards of Ontario Company, Limited, S. B. Hatheway, Managing Director.

Men working in the adjoining orchard noticed smoke issuing from the loft of the woodshed adjoining the house, at about five o'clock. Neighbours were notified by phone and the Cobourg Fire Department sent their chemical engine and a staff of men, all of whom did valiant service in saving the contents of the house.

The occupant, Clarence Weatherup, had occupied the house since April last and is employed on the property. Mrs. Weatherup had gone to Cobourg about two o'clock, leaving the two children with her husband who was working nearby in the orchard. The only fire used in the house during the day was a coal oil stove in the pantry, used for preparing the dinner. The loft where the fire broke out was used as a store room and no one had been there for several days.

Adjoining the shed was a small enclosure containing a number of pens and small buildings occupied by breeding mink, owned by Mr. Hatheway. Owing to the splendid service of the Cobourg firemen half of the pens were saved; unfortunately the more valuable animals and buildings were lost as was the ranch equipment. Four half grown puppies, very valuable and highly-prized by Mr. Hatheway, were in a small enclosure adjoining the shed where the fire started and could not be reached in time.

Insurance on the house was $2,500. It is understood that the house will be replaced immediately.

ROBBERY FOILED AT EGG STATION

Campbellford Officer Surprises Thief Carrying Cases From Baker's Store

An attempt to repeat Monday night's theft of eggs from T. Baker's store in Campbellford, was prevented by Constable George Hardy.

While patrolling Rear street on night duty Constable Hardy saw a large touring car, without markers, parked on the roadside. He cut through vacant lots towards Front street. On his way he saw a man carrying egg crates from the rear of Mr. Baker's egg-grading station, and piling them on the ground. The man, seeing Hardy approaching, bolted with two shots fired after him when the constable called on him to halt.

Hardy lost his trail, and ran back to hold his car. Afterwards he called Provincial Constable McBrien of Brighton. Their investigation showed nine crates of eggs piled outside the store and twenty-one ready inside, apparently the intention being to load them all into the car. The markers were found in the car. They were of the Belleville district. There was also a coat with identification papers, and a map with other towns marked apparently for further thefts. An arrest is expected shortly.

PASSED AWAY IN WISCONSIN

Mr. James Hutchinson, Cavan Street, received the sad news on Monday that his brother-in-law, Sam Baglow, died that morning. The late Mr. Baglow was a printer by occupation and learned the "art preservative" at the Times Office in Port Hope. Many years ago he left here for Racine, Wis., and has resided there ever since. Sam was an expert workman, and one of the most sociable men ever in a print shop. A number of our older citizens will remember the deceased and will regret to hear of his death. Besides his wife (who was Miss "Lett" Hutchinson) he leaves one daughter, Sybil (Mrs. Clarence Clausen), to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father.

NAME SHERIFF OF COUNTY SOON

Belief Is That James Blanchard, M.P.P., Will Get Whitby Post

While no official announcement has been made, the appointment of James Blanchard, M.P.P., for North Ontario, as sheriff of Ontario County, is expected to be made very shortly. Those in the know politically believe that the announcement of the appointment will be forthcoming soon.

The office of sheriff of Ontario County has been vacant for two years. Miss Mary Brawley has been carrying on since the retirement of Sheriff J. P. Paxton, but the latter's name is still used as the actual incumbent of the office, and when courts are in session the sheriff comes to Whitby to perform the official duties that were his for over 40 years.

Other names have from time to time been mentioned for this post, but it is generally agreed that it will go to Mr. Blanchard, whose name has been most prominently mentioned for it. But for the fact that the government did not wish to create a vacancy in the legislature and hold a by-election in North Ontario, the appointment would probably have been made some time ago. With a general election likely in the near future, that difficulty is removed, and announcement of Mr. Blanchard's appointment is expected soon.

DISMISS CHARGE THEFT OF TRAPS

Lorne Harris, Gore's Landing, Honourably Discharged By Judge O'Connor

The charge of theft of traps laid against Lorne Harris of Gore's Landing by George Wallace arising out of a dispute over the right to trap on marsh lands in Rice Lake was dismissed by His Honour Judge O'Connor. At the trial on the 26th of June the evidence for the Crown was put in and at the conclusion of the evidence Counsel for the defendant moved for the dismissal of the charge on the ground that no criminal intent was shown. Judge O'Connor reserved judgment on the motion and dismissed the charge without calling on the defense to produce any evidence whatever and in dismissing the charge stated to the accused that he had no hesitation in discharging him from the charge laid and giving him a clean sheet. F. D. Boggs, K.C., county Crown Attorney, conducted the prosecution and A. H. Coghlan, K.C., acted for the defendant.

FORMER REEVE THREATENS SUIT

Mrs. Edith Kerr Macdonald Seeks Damages For Removal Of Hedge

Legal action against the town, for alleged trespass and damages when the council took steps to remove a hedge which she had built on the boulevard, was threatened by former reeve, Mrs. Edith Kerr Macdonald, in a letter through her solicitor, to the Cobourg council. Mrs. Macdonald asks $50 damages. Several weeks ago she planted a hedge on the boulevard in front of her home, obtaining authority to do so from Councillor W. Jennings, according to statements made by her at a later date during a meeting of the council. The council did not favour such a boulevard decoration scheme and ordered her to remove the hedge.

When Mrs. Macdonald's threat of legal action was read at Wednesday night's meeting, Councillor Lapp suggested that her solicitor, who was present, be heard on the matter.

"Let him tell it to the judge," suggested Councillor Maher, and on motion the letter was referred to the acting town solicitor.

CHILD SUCCUMBS LOCAL HOSPITAL

21-Month-Old Son Of Mr. And Mrs. O. Coughlin Dies Of Tubercular Meningitis

The death in the local hospital yesterday of Phillip Alfred Coughlin, of tubercular meningitis, marks the second sad occurrence in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Coughlin, Young Street, in the past week. Only a few days ago Mrs. Coughlin was removed to Gravenhurst Sanitarium suffering with tuberculosis, leaving three small children, the oldest three years, the youngest three months and a small son of 21 months in a critical state in hospital. The little fellow had been ill for some time and waged a losing fight against the dreaded disease. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon with interment in Welcome Cemetery.

25TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. And Mrs. C. Mercer Receive Silverware At Surprise Party

Surprised by a party of about 40 relatives who gathered at their home in Elizabethtown on Saturday night, June 24th, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Mercer, who were 25 years married were presented with a 44-piece set of silverware and a fruit bowl. The recipients of the presentation were completely taken by surprise but warmly thanked their friends for their remembrance.

A short address was read by Mrs. Arthur Mercer, during which flowers were presented to the bride by Joyce Thickson, granddaughter of the groom. A large wedding cake was carried in by Miss Viola Luxon, the silverware by Miss Jean Mercer, and the fruit bowl by Master Jackson Peacock. The address was signed by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thickson, Mrs. Eber Luxon and Mrs. William Mercer.

After a program of speeches, songs, etc., refreshments brought the evening to a close.

DURHAM BOYS TO GO TO REGINA

Will Take Part In World's Seed Fair From July 24 To August 5

The Ontario Junior Farmers' Seed Team will leave by motor on Saturday, July 22nd, for "The World's Seed Fair" which will be held at Regina from July 24th to August 5th. The team consists of the following four boys, Clifford Marshall, Oxford County; John Wallace, Perth County; Maurice Baker and Oliver Smith from Durham County.

On July 31st, three of the Ontario boys will compete with teams from the various Provinces and several teams from the United States. Eleven classes of seed will be judged in the competition.

E. A. Summers, Agricultural Representative for Durham County has been appointed to accompany the boys.

FORBID HUNTERS CARRY REVOLVERS

No Permits Available Under Amendment To Code — Heavy Penalties Provided

Get this, you hunters! Leave your revolvers at home this Fall when you start north on your annual hunt. Because the newly-amended Criminal Code says you cannot tote them any longer. If you're caught with one on you, you're not only liable to arrest, but to five years in the penitentiary as well.

The matter of getting a permit no longer enters into the situation, for the simple reason that no permits are available. And as Provincial Police headquarters, at Queen's Park pointed out: "It's useless for hunters to ask for a permit, and they might as well realize it now."

According to the amended Criminal Code, His Majesty's naval, military or militia forces, or any peace officer or immigration officer, have the right to carry firearms without the necessary permit only when they are on duty. Otherwise, it is specified in the amended section of Code, they are also liable to arrest and imprisonment.

Merchants selling firearms are ordered to keep a record of the sale together with the name and address of the buyer, and the date of the sale. If a revolver, or other weapon is sold the chief of provincial police should be at once notified in order that the case may be investigated. The buyer of the weapon will be closely questioned and will have to give a reason for the purchase of the revolver or other firearm. If his reason is not satisfactory to the head of the provincial police, the weapon will be confiscated.

Permits for revolvers will be issued to all members of authorized shooting clubs for target practice. Before the issuance of such permits, however, the club will have to be approved by the Attorney-General. Every permit issued is good for the calendar year and then is void.

Any peace officer has the right to search any person whom he believes is in possession of a revolver with or without the necessary permit. Upon request to show his permit the bearer of the firearm is obliged to do so.

United States citizens coming to reside in Canada are obliged to procure a permit in order to keep a revolver or other firearm in their homes. Only British subjects have the right to keep weapons in their homes as a means of self-protection without the necessary permit. Motorists who are in the habit of carrying a revolver, with them in their automobiles, are also obliged by the law to carry a license with them.

11-LB. PICKEREL IS BRADLEY BAY CATCH

Another big catch has been registered in Campbellford waters; this time at Bradley Bay, when the Rev. A. W. Shaddock, a yearly visitor to the district from Ohio, landed an 11-lb. pickerel. The fish, a fine specimen measured 13½ inches round and 26½ inches in length Pike-Minnow was used as bait.

OTHER EDITORS' OPINIONS

CANADIAN RADIO BULLETIN

Following lengthy negotiations it has been arranged that the Canadian Broadcasting Commission will supply the Canadian radio stations with news bulletin services every day which are to be broadcasted at fixed hours. These news bulletins will be authentic, having been gathered by the staff of the Canadian Press, or sent to that office by telegraph or cable from all parts of the world. No other news may be broadcast, so that the great advantage the public has is the authenticity of what they hear. They can absolutely depend on it as reliable, and not the outcome of rumor, or the work of some member of the radio staff who rushed breathlessly into the office and said "I've just heard that . . ."

The Canadian Radio Commission offered to pay the Canadian Press $6,000 a year for this service. The Canadian Press decided to supply this service, gathered at a great expense, as a good-will offering to the commission and to the public, for the nominal sum of one dollar a year.

Hitherto, it has been possible for stations, if they had a mind to, to "milk" the local evening papers and tell the public what they presumably knew already. Or they could broadcast any hearsay tales that come into the office. Down in New Orleans recently the newspapers took action against a local broadcasting station that "milked" their columns in this way, and got an injunction which protected them for twenty-four hours against such piracy. Of course, after twenty-four hours, the "news" wasn't worth broadcasting.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

CONCEALED WEAPONS

Severest restrictions upon the carrying of a pistol or any firearms which may be concealed in the clothing have gone into force. Now in Canada no one may carry a concealed weapon unless he has a permit and can show that his life or property is in danger. Penalty ranges from one to five years for infraction of the new regulations of the law.

The new rules which went into force on Saturday will deal more effectively with the possession of concealed weapons. It is approaching the state of abolition of the use of firearms.

Canadians who know what the knife and stiletto have meant to other lands and the revolver to the United States are happy that here no such abuses may be allowed.—Belleville Intelligencer.

CANADA IS KNOWN

Canada is well known in the United States. On any day, though the tourist trade may not quite equal the proportions of some years ago, the license plates of cars from many states are to be found on the streets of Belleville. The cavalcade of cars comes not from one state nor one section of the Union but from practically every part of the Republic.

Events of the past few years have tended to bring Canada more and more before the people across the line. President Roosevelt even in these latter days has set a happy example and through him more people know New Brunswick than New Brunswick could reach with circulars and pamphlets in years of effort.

But it is not only the tourist who spreads the good news of a hospitable Canada but it is the public men of this land, and the achievements of Canadian industry that stimulate the imagination of the people of the United States.—Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer.

IS THE GAS TAX TOO HIGH?

When taxation reaches a certain point the purpose for which it is levied is often defeated. Is this the case with the Ontario gasoline tax? There has been a heavy decrease in provincial revenue from motor traffic.

The figures show that with seven months of the fiscal year gone, there has been a falling off in the purchase of gasoline in Ontario of 10,882,220 gallons as compared with the same period last year, the province losing $652,000 in revenue. In May alone, gasoline consumption decreased by 7,952,754 gallons as against May a year ago.

The report shows also that passenger car licenses have dropped by 5.3 per cent., commercial vehicle licenses by 6.6 per cent., operators licenses by 6.6 per cent. and chauffeurs' licenses by 1.9 per cent.

The Government might consider seriously whether they would not be further ahead with a lower tax rate on gas.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

A DANGEROUS PLAN

A report from Port Hope tells of two bailiff sales held on the farms of neighbors a short distance from that place. The sales, we read, were held by virtue of a landlord's warrant issued by Miss B. Mary Grandy, of Port Hope, through her solicitor, A. Cochrane.

At the first sale on the farm of Fred Brown there were about 600 persons present, and the proceeds totalled $23. Good cows were bid up to 25 cents, while the same amount was offered and accepted for a calf. A binder and a seeder were knocked down for 50 cents each. Thirty acres of oats and wheat went for 20 cents per acre, and so on.

At the George Henderson sale the neighbors were present in full force. Milk cows brought from 25 to 30 cents; horses went for 35 cents, and it is recorded that a touring car brought an even 30 cents. The proceeds of this sale were $15.

Brown and Henderson are well-known farmers and their articles were bid in by friends who returned them later. The whole affair was a joke, and other sales have turned out the same way.

The person who seeks to secure money by forcing such a sale at present is poorly advised. When sufficient people gather to see that the bidding is kept down to next to nothing at all there is little that can be done about it. Any sense of values has been dismissed. The expenses of conducting such a sale would be greater than the amount received, and the person who had sought the

WELCOME

Regular Meeting Of W.M.S. Held At Home Of Mrs. Ben White

The regular meeting of the Welcome W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon July 13th at the home of Mrs. Ben White. The attendance was unusually large, owing to the presence of the Mission Band, who had charge of the program for the day. Several visitors also attended the meeting and listened to the work of the children with much interest.

The meeting opened by the singing of hymn "Thou, Whose Almighty Word," followed by prayer by the President, who then extended kindly words of greetings to the Mission Band.

Mrs. Reynolds, leader of Group A, then took charge and hymn "God Send us Men" was sung. Devotional Leaflet, "Ruth the Woman of Decision" was read by Mrs. Kellogg, followed by a talk to the Juniors on Temperance by Mrs. Reynolds. Mrs. Crossley, the Temperance Secretary, gave a very interesting paper entitled "Soberness." This was followed by a season of prayer led by Mrs. Honey and Mrs. Reynolds.

Hymn 406—"I'll be a Sunbeam", concluded this part of the meeting.

The President of the Mission Band, Master Allan White, took the chair, the Mission Band Secretary Mildred Smith, read the minutes of last meeting and, following the direction of their leader, Miss Marion Martyn, a very interesting program was enjoyed, concluding with a peace pageant, entitled "Bridges".

The meeting was brought to a close by all repeating in unison the Mizpah Benediction.

Personals

Miss Margaret Gray, of Garden Hill, spent the week-end with her friend Miss Marion Martyn.

Master Earl Bickle is spending a few days with his grandmother, Mrs. W. G. Chestnut.

Miss May Dunlop, of Toronto, has been spending a few days with Mrs. E. H. Martyn and with Mrs. Martyn's mother, Mrs. Rourke Port Hope.

The Welcome S.S. picnic is being held in the Town Park, Cobourg, on Thursday, July 20th.

Congratulations to Miss Marion Martyn on successfully passing English A. Queen's University examination which she tried in Port Hope in April under the supervision of Mr. Mears.

BUCK AND OTHERS GIVEN SENTENCES

Terms Are Lengthened For Kingston Penitentiary Disturbance

Convict Tim Buck, former leader of the Communist party in Canada, faces a nine months term in addition to the five year stretch he is at present serving at Kingston Penitentiary for being a member of an unlawful organization. The new sentence was passed by Judge G. E. Deroche after Buck had been found guilty of participating in the prisoners' demonstration at the penitentiary last Oct. 17.

Besides Buck, close to a dozen other inmates of the penitentiary who had been convicted or who had pleaded guilty to taking part in the alleged riot were arraigned and sentenced to terms ranging from nine months to two years.

In passing sentence Judge Deroche told the former little Communist that he had been impressed by the convict's gentle and manly cross-examination of witness while conducting his own defense. He added that there were circumstances which enabled him to pass a light sentence. The maximum applicable in Buck's case is seven years.

collection of a debt by that process would be actually out of pocket.

We are not so sure that the thing is going to end right at the close of the sale. Farmers have always found it necessary to borrow money, just the same as those in any other kind of business. People who lend money do so on the expectation that it is going to be paid back, and there is nothing wrong with that. If it is demonstrated many times that money loaned on farm security can be wiped out at an auction sale by the fiasco method, then there is going to be a shortening of loans extended to farmers. In pointing to that condition we do not wish it understood that we approve of trying to collect from a farmer when he cannot pay. He should have every opportunity, and it is poor policy to ruin a man who might be nursed back to solvency.

As we see it, the policy of seeking to force collection by means of selling out the very things a farmer must have in order to continue farming is wrong. By the same token the idea of smothering bids and buying in property at prices in which there is no value is also wrong, and two wrongs do not make a right. Farmers may rightly enough claim they are being driven to this strange process, and yet they are wise enough, we are certain, to see that by doing so they are destroying their chances of securing credit or loans in the future.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

LOCATE WOMAN LOST IN WOODS

Found In Lumber Shack In Weakened Condition After 24-Hour Search

Mrs. Edward Edwards, aged 47, was found at 10.30 Tuesday night in a weakened condition in an old lumber shack about five miles from her home, on what is known as the Oregon Trail, Burleigh Township, by a search party made up of farmers and Indians and two Provincial Police officers, who had ranged the woods for approximately twenty-four hours to locate.

Left Home Monday

Mrs. Edwards had left her home on Monday morning to pick huckleberries, and when her children reported to neighbours that she had not returned at nightfall, a search party of twenty-five farmers and Indians was immediately organized. Tuesday morning constable Sylvester and Constable Warren joined the party, and when they were about to give up last evening, a farmer discovered Mrs. Edwards lying in a deserted cabin. She was taken to the nearest farm home, where she remained for the night. She stated that she had wandered for hours to find her way home, and came upon the cabin, where she stayed during the night. At daylight she again tried to find her way home, but returned to the cabin again at dark.

On Oregon Trail

When found, she was five miles from her home, which is a tent on the Oregon Trail, where she had lived since the spring with her husband and six children, aged from 4 to 16. Mrs. Edwards, who is a guide, was absent with a party of American tourists. The Edwards tent is about forty miles from Peterboro. It was learned that the family had been on relief all winter when living in Peterboro. The children had not suffered during the absence of their mother, as plenty of food was found in the tent. The father has had employment as a guide since the tourist season opened.

RADIO BOARD LEASES CKNC

Studios Will Be Used For Operation Of Two Toronto Stations

Operation under the lease of radio station CKNC by the Canadian Radio Commission in conjunction with their present station, CRCT, to become effective Sept. 1, with new studios and equipment at 805 Davenport Road, was announced Tuesday night by Charles Shearer, regional director of the commission.

Both stations will be operated from one centralized location, Mr. Shearer announced for purposes of economy, the present studios of CRCT in the King Edward Hotel being closed on that date. With the opening of the dual control centre, complete new studios and "all attending requirements" will be put into operation. Work will start almost immediately on the necessary alterations and equipment for the new location.

The new central broadcasting studios will occupy the site of the present studios of CKNC. Station CRCT will continue as the official outlet in the Toronto territory for programs of the National Broadcasting Company, Mr. Shearer stated, and in addition to these and Canadian Radio Commission programs will carry Canadian commercial features.

"The Eveready Station CKNC, which has built up a reputation as a producer of leading Canadian commercial features, will develop and extend these activities with the new modern studio facilities which will be available to both stations," stated Mr. Shearer. "The commission has followed the present trend toward economy in taking over the direction of two widely known and popular stations and centralizing their activities."

In addition to joint operation of the two stations at the new location, the provincial headquarters of the commission will be situated there, Mr. Shearer stated.

MORRISH INSTITUTE PICNIC AUGUST 2ND

The annual Community Picnic of Morrish Women's Institute will be held at Sylvan Glen on the afternoon of August 2. The program will include softball and baseball games, races and other sports for which prizes will be given. Old and young are invited to attend and bring a basket lunch.

Silver Dollar For Canada? Question To Be Given Study

Discussion Follows Resolution Passed by Sub-Committee of World Economic Conference Regarding Substitution of Silver—Partial Elimination of Bills Possible

Will the resolution passed by the sub-committee of the World Economic Conference in London Wednesday mean the introduction of the silver dollar in Canadian currency? The resolution adopted was designed to restore silver to the position occupied in the world monetary system before the war.

One provision of the resolution was that the nations "shall substitute silver coins for low-value paper currency insofar as the budgetary and local conditions of each country will permit." Another provision was that coins be eight-tenths fine Canadian silver coins already comply with that condition.

The entire situation will probably be studied when Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, returns from London. The opinion expressed in financial circles in Ottawa Wednesday was that the Canadian people would never agree to the general substitute of silver dollars for dollar bills in general circulation, but it might be possible to use them for certain purposes.

Although Canada is the third largest producer of silver in the world and mined over 18,000,000 fine ounces last year, silver has never been used as extensively in the Dominion as in other countries. Silver dollars, known as "cartwheels," have been in circulation in the United States to a very considerable extent. Canada has not coined silver coins higher than 50 cent pieces.

Canada's silver circulation today was roughly $27,989,000. The nickels totalled $1,929,000 and the coppers $2,560,000. The dollar bill circulation ranges from $18,000,000 to $20,000,000 and the 25-cent bills from $12,000,000 to $14,000,000. The total Dominion note circulation ranges over $175,000,000, about two-thirds being large denominations used as legal tender among banks chiefly $50,000 bills.

The 25-cent bills might be withdrawn. Over $1,000,000 in "shinplasters" are shown in the note circulation reports. They are largely used for sending money through the mails.

MORRISH BARNS RAZED BY FIRE

Buildings On Farm Tenanted By Fred Brown, Completely Destroyed

Two large barns on the farm property at Morrish, four miles west of here, tenanted by Fred Brown and his family, were completely destroyed by fire about one o'clock Wednesday morning. In addition a chicken house and twenty-five chickens perished in the flames. The loss is further augmented by the fact that one of the barns consumed was filled with hay and the other partly filled. There was no farm machinery in the buildings at the time.

The cause of the blaze is unknown. Herb Lord and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Marvin, farmers residing close by are said to have discovered the blaze about the same time as the Brown family were awakened. Brown hastily donned his clothing and was successful in releasing the cattle and horses in the second barn which had not as yet been extensively ignited.

Neighbours gathered from far and wide and formed a bucket brigade, being able to save the house from being consumed.

Mr. Brown's farm was one of two at which a bailiff's sale was held Monday by virtue of landlord's warrant for arrears of rent issued by Miss Mary B. Grandy, of Port Hope. The sale was proceeded with and farm machinery and standing grain brought ridiculously low prices when those in attendance refused to bid. Oats sold at 10 and 15c per acre and wheat also sold at 10c per acre. Stock and machinery was also sold with the total proceeds of the sale being $21.33.

WEDDING BELLS

ROE — MORRIS

The marriage of Miss Helen May Morris, daughter of Mrs. Frances Morris, to Norman W. Roe was solemnized at 6.30 o'clock on Thursday evening in the study of the Prospect Avenue Baptist Church, Buffalo, N. Y. The Rev. George Cole officiated.

The bride was gowned in shell pink net over taffeta with matching accessories and carried a corsage of pink roses and baby's breath. Miss Kathryn Carlstrom was maid of honor, gowned in pink organdie with blue accessories. She carried roses and baby's breath. George Goodwill was the best man.

Following the ceremony a reception for eighteen guests took place at the Riviera.

The bride's mother was gowned in flowered chiffon and wore a corsage of assorted roses, and Mrs. William H. Roe, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in brown flowered chiffon and a corsage of roses.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Roe will be at home at 435 Herkimer Street.

The bride is a granddaughter of the late Mr. H. Hales, Ontario Street.

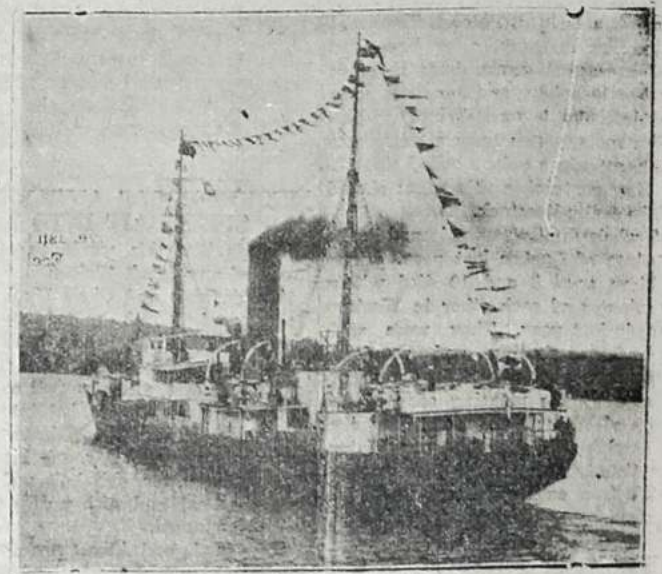

5 1/2 LB. BASS RECORD IS CROW BAY CATCH

The largest bass caught in the Trent Waters this season and for many a long day was landed by Roland Johnston, a Columbus, Ohio visitor, when he bagged a 5 1/2 lbs. beauty. A visitor with Fred Smith at Crow Bay, he is more than proud of his record catch, which he made using ordinary plug bait.

HEARD ON THE STREET

WEDNESDAY, JULY 19. And still no rain is predicted.

The weatherman has been decidedly short on precipitation for some time and crops and lawns, despite watering with the hose, are turning brown and sere.

The lawns in the local municipal parks have been watered consistently but the grass seems to have died out in the terrific heat.

Probabilities for Thursday announce a bill-of-fare of "fair and warm," while district farmers whose crops are seriously endangered by drought are earnestly hoping for rain.

A very successful Garden Party was held yesterday afternoon under Humane Society auspices at the home of Mrs. A. Grant, King's Highway east.

All the United Church Sunday School children are off for a good time. The annual picnic is being held at Willow Beach this year.

Fred Skitch, A.T.C.M., has been supplying as organist and choir director at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Cobourg, for the past three weeks.

Concrete approaches have been made to the foot bridge in Central Park eliminating a stretch at either end of thick dust and mud on occasions when it rains.

The management of Bewdley Pavilion has been fortunate in securing Frank Frost's radio orchestra. This band has made a name for itself on the air and no doubt they will make a similar hit with the local dancing public.

A number of Port Hoppers took in the reduced fare excursion from Cobourg to Rochester to-day, via Ontario No. 2.

Contrary to the general rule, clear skies welcomed the annual Baptist Church Sunday School picnic at Sylvan Glen to-day. In the past the Baptist picnic has been synonymous with rain, but this year the weatherman has been more condescending in his attitude.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Rogers celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of their wedding at Peterboro on Tuesday as guests of a gathering of friends. The Rogers family drove here from Vancouver and are summering at Bewdley. Mrs. Rogers was formerly Olive Pomeroy, of Port Hope.

The Mills Grind Slow A man from Montreal was peering into the depths of the Grand Canyon. "Do you know," asked the guide, "that it took millions of years for this great abyss to be carved out?" The man from Montreal was tremendously impressed. "You don't tell me," he commented. "Why, I didn't know it was a government job."

THURSDAY, JULY 20

What are all the decorations? The Moose Lodge is busy making preparations to welcome visiting brethren and being ahead of time with the decorations will advertise the affair.

Preparations for the Moose Convention here on August 4, 5, 6 and 7, are proceeding rapidly and already streets are taking on a festive atmosphere with flag streamers being stretched from side to side.

A number from here attended the Gore's Landing annual Regatta yesterday afternoon where a large crowd had a glorious time watching and competing in water sports.

The United Church Picnic at Willow Beach Wednesday afternoon was big, numerical, big in provision and a big time was had by all.

Provincial Highway Traffic Officer E. A. Hornick is launching a vigorous campaign against motorists who drive on to the highways from side roads without coming to a dead standstill at stop signs. In fifteen minutes recently the officer said he had issued seventeen warnings to motorists who came off the Dale short cut on to Highway 28 without stopping. Two serious accidents have happened on that corner, he said, this year, just simply because drivers of automobiles have failed to heed the warning signs.

Art Ravensdale, of Cobourg, wearing the colours of the Hamilton Olympic Club, won both the 120-yard high and 220-yard low hurdle events in the meet against the Oxford-Cambridge track team in Hamilton on Wednesday. Skimming over the hurdles in the 220 event in 24.4 seconds, Ravensdale set a new Canadian record.

Frightened by a black cat which crossed its path, a horse driven by Mrs. R. Osborne of Stirling, reared, throwing its driver from the buggy and inflicting serious injuries. Although Mrs. Osborne received no fracture, her condition, following a doctor's examination, was thought to be serious because of her age. The accident occurred on the main street of the village.

Bathing suits are taboo in Kingston for street wear. A young woman, aged 18, startled pedestrians on Princess street, Kingston's main thoroughfare, on Tuesday, by appearing in an abbreviated bathing suit. Constable William Chandler, stopped the girl and calling a taxi took her to the police station. Here the young woman was lectured by Chief Constable R. J. Robinson, who told her she must be properly dressed to appear on the streets. Interviewed regarding the incident, Chief Robinson stated that by "properly dressed" he meant that people must have their bodies "properly covered."

Officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the Northumberland Regiment left Tuesday morning for six days' training at Presqu'le Point. The regiment land will go into camp Saturday and Sunday in order to be present for inspection and church parade. The regiment is ordered for inspection on Saturday morning, July 22.

Theft of $500 charged against Morris Bernstein, 25 years old, arrested by Detective Sergeant George Tuft at Pontypool, Ont., on Tuesday. Bernstein is alleged to have secured the money from Ethel Bird, of 209 Beveridge street, Toronto, on the understanding that he was going to use it in a clothing business which would yield handsome returns.

Driving a heavily laden truck on the Hastings Road, Kenneth H. Smith of Peterboro had a narrow escape Tuesday morning when he took the ditch to avoid being struck by a Canadian National Railway freight at a level crossing, about five miles east of Campbellford. Smith's prompt action probably saved his life, as he had not seen the freight until within a few feet of the tracks. His truck overturned as the train roared by. Smith suffered only minor bruises.

One Way To Even Up "Did you share that package of gum equally with your little brother?" "Yes. But I had to eat one stick first to do it."

FRIDAY, JULY 21

Another blue day! So many blue, blue days are making some people feel blue for their crops won't grow unless it clouds up and rains.

It's not so long ago when it was said there was a tremendous over-production which should be curtailed and now the Almighty is doing this very thing there are people who kick—imagine that!

Dr. K. H. Palmer spoke to Rotarians last night on the doctrine of "Good Cheer," pointing out how much better off we all are now if we only had better memories for the conditions that have existed.

Dr. Palmer's message isn't exactly new for we notice in Ecclesiastes 7:10 that away back some 200 or more years B.C. the preacher said "Say not thou, what is the cause that the former days are better than these? for thou dost not wisely concerning this."

If you study history you'll find that from age to age things have improved. Man has learned and gradually but surely advanced so it is true that there must be better times ahead. Here's hoping we all live to enjoy 'em.

Reminiscent of the chaotic days of 1929 when the stock market crash took place, prices on United States and Canadian Exchanges, dropped heavily on Thursday. Stocks dropped 4 to 24 points and panicky traders dumped their holdings overboard for what they would bring. Commodities took a corresponding decline.

Pheasants in this district have multiplied rapidly this year. Ideal hatching conditions have prevailed and with an absence of rain and cold weather, hundreds of young birds are coming to maturity.

The annual Civic Holiday celebration will be held in Newcastle on August 7. A full program of entertainment is being arranged and includes a baseball tournament for the Newcastle Community club.

Work is to be commenced almost immediately on the addition of a chapel and power house at Mount St. Joseph Orphanage, Peterboro. The contract has been awarded to the Pigott Construction Company, Limited of Hamilton, at an approximate cost of $110,000. They were awarded the work in competition with over twenty contractors.

Work on construction of the subway at Norwood on King's Highway 7 is now nearing completion. The contractors, the E. P. Muntz Construction Company of Dundas and Toronto, have resumed the work and the men and teams are preparing crushed rock and other materials to build a cement sidewalk on the highway from the Mill Hill to a point opposite Norwood Creamery. The old road at the mill pond is being lowered in preparation for the construction of a boulder dam, which is to be built on the site of the old wooden structure washed out last spring.

For several years, Western Canada has been preparing for one of the greatest events in its history, the World Grain Conference at Regina. Now the day which Regina has been awaiting is at hand. The Grain Conference opens on Tuesday, July 25th, and is to continue for two weeks. All the agricultural countries of the world will be represented at this Conference. Present arrangements provide that Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, former Prime Minister of Canada, will preside at the opening ceremonies. Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, will also have a part in the ceremonies and during the course of the Conference, His Excellency, the Governor-General will attend. The opening ceremonies on Tuesday, July 25th, will be broadcast by the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission from coast to coast. The time of the broadcast is from 12.00 to 1.00 o'clock, noon E.S.T.

JUDGE HUYCKE PLANS WELL-EARNED REST

His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke, of Peterboro, upon whom has devolved the double duty of presiding over his own courts in Peterboro County besides occupying the bench in Victoria County since the recent lamented death of Judge Penon, is going to take a well-earned vacation. The judge hopes to be able to leave on Monday next for the vacation lands in the Georgian Bay district. He intends to come back to Peterboro at frequent intervals to deal with business that will inevitably accumulate during his absence.

UNKNOWN KILLER WIPES OUT FAMILY

Mystery Deepens In Murders Near Pembroke — Suspect Flies To Bush

A wave of horror swept the whole Ottawa Valley on Friday as, piece by piece, the tragedy at Demers Centre, on Allumette Island, which exacted a toll of five lives, became known, and it was definitely established that an entire family had been wiped out by some murder still to be identified.

Joseph Bradley, 65; his wife, Mary Bradley, 68, and their two children, Johanna, aged 35, and Tom, 45, are dead. Slain also is John Bradley, brother of Joseph, who lived with the family.

All five are the victims of some unknown killer, and all five met their death by shooting. Terror grips the entire island. The doors of every home are locked, and behind them frightened women and children cower, while their men-folk, armed with rifles, shotguns and pitchforks, are searching the bush and farm land for the presumably armed murderer.

A baffling mystery surrounds the whole gruesome affair, made still more baffling by the confused, and incoherent reports that first issued from the scene of the tragedy.

What is established is that this small farming community on Allumette Island, a sizeable place in the Ottawa River opposite Pembroke, was disturbed around five o'clock Friday morning by noises of a violent quarrel issuing from the Bradley home.

Neighbors declare that the disturbance was so prolonged and so loud that it kept them awake in the early hours of the morning. No one sought to intervene in the matter, regarding it as purely a family affair.

Around seven o'clock, however, the quarrel culminated in some rifle-shots. From that point on, the threads of the story are disconnected, with several versions of what ensued—all given by terrified and excited neighbors.

NO HARVESTERS NEEDED SASKATCHEWAN WARNS

Plenty of men are now available to take care of the crop soon to be harvested in Saskatchewan, according to a government announcement issued Friday.

The announcement was made, it was said because it had come to the attention of the government men were coming into the province from Ontario and other provinces with the hope of securing work in the harvest fields. Hon. M. A. MacPherson, Provincial Treasurer, said Friday they would not be needed.

HORSES TRAIL STRING OF CANS

Boys Arrested At Tyrone After Runaways Startle Village

The village of Tyrone seven miles north of Bowmanville, was aroused at 11 o'clock Thursday night when two horses galloped into the village with a string of tin cans tied to their tails. They were unable to slow down sufficiently to turn the corner toward home and collided with a parked car. One horse slid under the car and the other leaped on the radiator and fenders, doing considerable damage to the auto, the property of Koe McRoberts, of the village.

In the melee one mare broke her leg, while the other tore away again and was not caught until Friday morning, when several miles north of Tyrone it was discovered on the farm of H. W. Sharps, apparently unharmed. The mare was shot last night. Both horses were the property of James Dudley, farmer, who lives in the village of Tyrone.

At two o'clock Friday morning two boys, Lorne Annis, aged 18, son of A. W. Annis, and Stanley Coverley, 21, hired man for Gas Rosevear, were reported to have confessed to the act and Provincial Constable W. E. Smith, stationed at Bowmanville, has charged them with cruelty to dumb animals. Their case will be heard before Magistrate R. M. Cotton on Saturday afternoon.

ITALIAN FLIGHT COST SET AT $3,000,000

The flight of the Italian air armada under General Italo Balbo to Chicago was estimated to have cost about $3,000,000, including $50,000 for each plane.

The expenses along the route, including the bases for trawlers, were about $54,000, which will be met by a special sale of air stamps. This sale already has reached $100,000.

The fuel and lubricants for the planes were supplied by commercial concerns. Other expenses include costly instruments, at about $2,500 each. The training of the crews required two years. It was part of the usual air force training.

HOW BEES ARE POISONED

Rain checks the flight of the honey bee but humidity is generally regarded as having little influence on bee activity. Bees have been noted gathering moisture during a light rain, and, in one case, bees of a very strong colony in front of their apiary were seen working on rhododendron bloom during a drizzling rain at a temperature of 60 degrees F. but no bees were observed on trees under such conditions. The bees detailed to collect water appear to come out on short flights even during a light rain and during intervals between rains when other bees remain in the hives. This has been observed to be a factor in poisoning, the water carriers gathering poisoned water from leaves on sprayed trees or from herbage growing in sprayed orchards.—Dominion Department of Agriculture.

POINTERS ON HOG FEEDING

Pigs should be fed three times daily for at least one or two weeks after weaning. Two feeds daily will then be sufficient. The majority of farmers, especially Western farmers, can easily plan to make oats, barley and wheat available as hog feeds. Several meal mixtures are given in a pamphlet just issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture on feeding home-grown grains in hog raising. It is shown in the pamphlet, which may be had for the asking, how these meal mixtures may be balanced by home-grown grains with an additional protein complement in the form of tankage.

NEW PAID INSURANCE NEARLY TWO BILLIONS

Over $178,000,000 of new paid-for ordinary life insurance was written in Canada and Newfoundland in the first six months of this year, by fourteen companies having 83 per cent. of the total insurance in force. Sales by provinces for the first six months of the year, according to figures given out by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau, were:

Following the match, luncheon was served by the ladies of the club.

MONDAY, JULY 24.

Well, that's a relief!
The rain made living more worth while, but it is too late now to save some of the crops.

Farmers will be glad to have another good rain to fill the wells and cisterns for watering their stock.

Fall wheat cutting is general. Premature ripening has reduced the yield considerably. A fair to average crop is expected.

Recent rains have been beneficial to spring wheat but a short crop is indicated. Barley and oats have suffered greatly from heat and drought and the crop will be light. The straw is short.

In the Prairie Provinces recent showers and cooler weather have been beneficial to the crops but rains and more favourable growing weather are required until the harvest to prevent further deterioration. Drought damage in the Southern and Central areas of all three Provinces is serious and a below-average crop is indicated with a shortage of feed in a number of districts.

In a friendly match on Saturday afternoon, Port Hope defeated the Kawartha Golf Club in Peterboro by the score of 28-23. Eighteen players from the local club took part. The new Kawartha course was greatly admired by the visitors. The putting greens were in perfect condition and the new Club House contains all the latest improvements.

Over three thousand attended the annual Canadian Pacific Railway picnic in Cobourg on Saturday. Sports formed the feature of the day and many interesting races were held. The visitors were welcomed by Mayor Jack Delanty and Council.

Word has been received of the death in New Jersey, on Thursday, July 20, of James Maitland, formerly of Port Hope. Mrs. M. Gatchell of Peterboro is a sister of the deceased.

Cobourg defeated Newcastle, 10-9 in a lakeshore league game in Newcastle Saturday evening. They pitched for Cobourg up to the last inning when he was relieved by Lefty Campbell. The Community Hall outfit hit they hard and frequently and if Campbell hadn't come to the rescue, Newcastle looked like the winners.

Work on the addition to the Nicholson File Company plant on Cavan street is proceeding rapidly and will be ready for occupancy shortly.

The Board of Health held their regular meeting in the clerk's office on Monday afternoon. The main topic of discussion was the providing of sanitary conveniences for the coming Moose Convention. The matter will be arranged with the co-operation of the Town Council.

Hot weather has somewhat affected the fishing at Rice Lake but even yet some good catches of pickerel and muskellonge have been made.

An interesting paragraph from the "15 Years Ago" column of the Lindsay Post is reproduced below: "Port Hope Council has remitted fines to all persons who were prosecuted under the traffic by-law. The council held that the by-law was for the education of the public and not a burden. That town has combined the offices of the day and night constable. The Chief goes on duty in the afternoon and remains until four o'clock next morning at a salary of $1,000.

While guarding a house near Dunbarton Elmer Barrie, Dunbarton, was attacked and brutally beaten by three men. The house, which is owned by Mrs. J. Provincial Officer Jarvis of Oshawa and County Constable Chester of Pickering are investigating.

Members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police stationed at Kingston and Gananoque, under Detective-Sergeant Moore, of Brockville, seized goods to the value of $1,700, smuggled into the district from the United States. The duty was collected, pending the decision of the Minister of National Revenue. The goods seized consisted, among other things, of motors for boats, cigarettes, rifles and fishing tackle.

While death and taxation are still with us there is an improvement reported by the statisticians of a big insurance company who say, "While the year-to-date mortality rate has been higher in the United States than that of the like period of 1932, it has been lower in Canada than ever before." The increase in the United States was 3.7 per cent. In Canada the cumulative mortality rate is 4.9 per cent below that for the corresponding period of 1932." Which all goes to show this is the better country to live in.

Perhaps the lack of gangsters in Canada gives us the edge on the mortality record.

TO CLOSE TRENT CANAL SEPT. 30

Employees Are Notified Canal Will Close Month Earlier This Year

The Trent Canal will be closed to navigation at the end of September, according to notices that have been sent out to employees of the system who are engaged at locks, bridges and wharves.

Some employees have expressed fear that the Department's action may be a forerunner of complete closing of the canal next year.

Customarily the liftlock and bridges have not been closed until the end of October, but in looking around for government expenditures that might be reduced, the Trent Canal was apparently one service which was regarded as practically unnecessary after the end of September.

Weeds in Waterway

Neglect of the Trent waterway has been reported this season in the steady encroachment of weeds in boat channels. Several instances have been mentioned of boats being halted by their propellers being clogged with weeds. In this respect it is no doubt true that navigation has declined to such an extent that boat traffic is no longer the old check on weed growth. The present action of the Department is interpreted by some as official attitude that the Trent is now mainly used by tourists' cruisers, and that local boat traffic has become negligible.

Cobourg Editor Denounces Increased School Expenses

Counties Expenditure on High and Continuation Schools Over $20,000 More Than Year Ago—Claims Future Generations in Bad Plight unless Enemies of Democracy are Hoisted From Office

In spite of the fact that there is a general tendency and desire to reduce expenditure in municipal affairs, there are some items which apparently defy reduction and keep on increasing in the face of the depression.

One of these items is the cost of High and Continuation Schools which in 1932 was $125,434.71 as compared with $105,087.21 in 1931, and $101,450.17 in 1930. That is to say that this expenditure in 1932 was $20,347.50 higher than in 1931 and nearly $24,000 more than in 1930.

The detail of this disbursement in 1932 according to the Auditors' report is as follows:—

High Schools	1931	1932
Cobourg	13,633	17,334
Port Hope	12,520	16,332
Bowmanville	15,249	17,531

Total H. and C.	105,087	125,425

Paid Out of Counties
A lot of money is paid to High Schools and Continuation Schools out side the Counties, which hardly seems right in view of the fact that, so far as we can find, there is none paid to these Counties by other Counties.

Last year over $16,000 was paid toward the upkeep of schools outside the Counties, as follows:—
Trenton $ 8,129.63
Lindsay 2,021.21
Omemece 102.98
Oshawa 2,669.03
Peterboro 1,345.68
Port Perry 164.63
Brooklin 88.10
Frankford 1,728.91
Total $16,250.22

Some Reductions
There were, however, a number of items of expenditure which show a decrease, among which are the following:—
Justice $ 25,997 $ 21,060
Counties Gaol .. 8,990 6,847
House of Refuge 14,571 11,862
County Roads .. 188,956 51,623
Public Schools .. 67,173 52,019

The Deficits
For some years past the Counties Council has been allowing huge deficits to accumulate. At the end of December, 1930, the deficit was $199,057.36; at the end of 1931, $196,069.49 and at the end of 1932, $79,437.94.

The various deficits were caused for the most part by deliberately not providing for the heavy road expenditure of the last few years. The reduction of the deficit to $79,437.94 is not due to economy in any way, but by issuing long term, interest bearing debentures with a high rate of interest—over $300,000 being at 6 per cent—which will fall heavily upon the people for many years to come.

The Enemies of Democracy
This tremendous debenture rate with its heavy interest payment should be sufficient to forever damn the false logic of democracy's worst, most subtle and surprisingly cunning enemies—ignorantly or intentionally, probably the latter, because of the former—those people who are forever, in Council (town or county) or out of it, dunning it into our ears in high-pressure style; that the coming generations should be made to pay for the extravagant expenditures of reckless, self-appraised wisecracks who have as much idea of proper economy as a braying jackass and are as averse to intelligence as a balky mule is to moving. All we can say is that if some of these old time legislators don't soon get hoisted from office God help the coming generations and the present one, too!—Cobourg World.

COBOURG LEASES HARBOUR LANDS

To Store Coal Unloaded From Boats—Reeve And Council Oppose Motion

A resolution adopted by seven members of the council in committee, leasing land on the esplanade to Stanley Pratt for the purpose of storing coal when unloading from coal boats, at a $300 rental per year, for 200 feet, was read to Cobourg Council.

"I move that we ratify this agreement," suggested Councillor Maher. "Three hundred dollars is too small for that valuable land. I doubt if we have the right to lease it, anyway," stated Councillor Lapp. "Why should we turn down $300?" asked Councillor Maher. "For the last 20 years it has brought us no revenue, not even enough to pay the harbor master."

Suggests Ground Rental

A resolution was read by Councillor Maher suggesting that a ground rental of five cents per ton per year be charged to those unloading coal at the docks and storing it at the waterfront.

Councillor Lapp opposed the motion, pointing out that it was not feasible to block the piers, as he had reliable information that some Old Country boats would be unloading cargoes there this summer.

"I am very pleased that these Old Country boats are coming here. By all means let them come. The point is that we do not get any revenue from them. The last Old Country boat that unloaded here did not bring the town one cent of revenue," stated Councillor Maher.

"We have had our harbor deepened and are recognized as having a harbor deep enough to accommodate sea-going vessels. Now why should we tie up our harbor for the sake of some coal dealers?" replied Reeve W. E. Cooper.

Carry Motion
However, the resolution of the Finance and Harbor Committee carried, with Reeve Cooper and Councillor Lapp dissenting.

POLLY MORAN VISITS COBOURG

Famous Screen Star Spotted Only By Alert Post Office Clerk

Unknown to most of the citizens of the town, Polly Moran, of screen comedy fame, paid a visit to Cobourg recently, on her way eastward. Polly Moran, who, with her fun partner, Marie Dressler, has delighted millions on the screen, paused at Cobourg to view Marie's birthplace.

Spotted only by one of the post office clerks, Miss Moran entered the post office and, buying a stamp, walked over to the desk and scribbled a short note to Marie Dressler. Going out she re-entered her limousine and drove past Marie's former birthplace, now the residence of Mr. Fred Field, and then drove on her way eastward.

Her visit was so quiet, and lacked the publicity usually attended with visits of celebrities, that had it not been for the perceptive abilities of the postal clerk, perhaps no one would have known that the famous motion picture star had been in Cobourg.

No man is so busy to listen to the caller who comes to praise.

$100 DEFICIT DOMINION DAY

Meeting Held To Wind Up Business Of Year—Resolutions Of Thanks Passed

The Port Hope Dominion Day Committee held a final winding up meeting in the Queen's Hotel Tuesday night. President E. B. Lingard presided and extended his sincere thanks to the committee for their co-operation and particularly H. Van Everdingen, the energetic secretary, who has worked tirelessly for the past two years without remuneration.

The financial statement which is published herewith shows a deficit of approximately $100, which has been liquidated by a grant from the Town Council. The Committee much appreciate the action of the Council in coming to their assistance and a resolution of thanks was unanimously passed.

Resolutions thanking Gordon Johnston and his staff of ticket sellers, A. W. George & Son for the donation of chairs and tables, G. Caldwell, race starter and the other race officials and F. B. Keeler, proprietor of the Queen's for the use of the hotel for the holding of meetings, were also passed.

The President, E. B. Lingard, through whose efforts and enterprise the celebration was held, was warmly congratulated by the Committee and the hope was expressed that he would remain in office for another term at least.

Plans for next year, at which time the town will celebrate its 100th anniversary of incorporation as a town, were discussed tentatively but action will be deferred until a later date.

OBITUARY

Oliver Luke — Oshawa

In good health until recently, Oliver H. Luke of 236 Colborne Street, Oshawa, died Saturday in his 68th year. Deceased was well-known in this district, having been employed for a number of years by the McLaughlin Carriage Company and later traveling through Eastern Ontario for the Lang Manufacturing Company of Montreal. Born in Oshawa, the son of the late Jesse Luke, deceased was a member of one of Oshawa's earlier and better known families. He was a member of Cedar Masonic Lodge of Oshawa for 50 years, and was also associated with the Canadian Order of Foresters. He was a lifelong member of Simcoe Street United Church. Besides his widow he is survived by a daughter and three sons, Miss Dorothy Luke of Winnipeg, Cyril J. Luke, Oshawa, city assessor, Harold and Wilford of Oshawa. Mrs. H. H. Lang, of Montreal, Mrs. C. E. Dingle, of Winnipeg, and the Misses Mary, Addie and Emily Luke, Colborne Street, Oshawa, are sisters. H. J. R. Luke, Oshawa business man, is a brother.

PORT HOPE RINK IN SECOND PLACE

E. A. Hircock, Cobourg, successfully skipped his rink to win the first open mixed tournament of the season at the Peterboro Lawn Bowling Club. Twenty-four rinks from Tweed, Port Hope, Stirling, Norwood, Kingston, and Peterboro took part in this annual event. The winners:—1, Cobourg; Mrs. H. Sproule, F. Corbett, Mrs. F. Corbett; E. A. GOOD HAY CROP AT BAILIEBORO

Clover Hay Averaged About Three Tons To The Acre

The hay crop for this season is almost harvested and the crop in general has been a splendid one in the Bailieboro district. The clover hay averaged in many instances about three tons per acre, while timothy or mixed hay yielded about two tons per acre. During the past fortnight the weather was ideal for making hay and enabled the farmers to get their crop well under cover.

The dry weather which has prevailed, however, although splendid for making hay, has proven very serious for spring crops as well as pasture and root crops.

During the month of June indications pointed to a very heavy crop but the drought has prevented the crops from stooling out and growing until a very light grain crop is assured in this district, perhaps the lightest in many many years.

The pasture for the stock is burned until the pasture situation is really serious. Herds of milch cows have already dropped their flow of milk owing to the lack of green pasture and cream drawers report a tremendous decrease in the cream supply.

Immediate rainfalls would, however, relieve the situation to the extent that pastures would again commence to grow and the corn and root crops which are burning out of existence would commence growing in time to save the crop.

The majority of the fall wheat and early pea crops will be cut this week. Some farmers have already threshed their alsike as the crop has ripened about two weeks earlier than last season, and the yield of seed is about three to five bushels per acre. There is a very small acreage of alsike in this district, as the price during the past three years has not been sufficient to pay farmers to continue growing alsike for sale.

VOTE AGAINST LIQUOR STORE

Opening Of Bracebridge Government Store Beaten For Third Time

Bracebridge stays dry! In the hardest fought election ever seen in Bracebridge, which piled up what was believed to be the heaviest vote ever polled in Bracebridge, the town on Wednesday lost its chances of having a liquor store until another referendum can be held after three years, and the wet forces are said to have given up hope for good. The town has always been dry.

"Are you in favour of a liquor store in Bracebridge?" read the referendum ballot which brought out a total of 1186 voters between the hours of 8 a.m. and 7 p.m.

The vote was 678 in favor of a liquor store and 508 against, a three-fifths majority or a total of 712 votes, was required to bring a liquor store to Bracebridge, and the store was therefore lost by 34 votes.

The popular vote and the business men almost to a man, showed themselves in favor of having a liquor store. Both Gravenhurst and Huntsville have stores, and the businessmen of Bracebridge say that considerable tourist business in many lines is lost to them through their lack of a liquor store.

This is the town's thirty opportunity to obtain a liquor store by referendum, and according to many citizens it may be the last. The wets have about given up hope, they say, owing to the difficulty of obtaining the required three-fifths majority.

WEDDING BELLS

WAKELIN—JACKSON

The wedding took place in St. Peter's Church, Cobourg, on Saturday, Miss Eveline, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Jackson, to W. Clarence son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newton Wakelin, the Rev. A. J. Jackson officiating. The church was decorated with Summer flowers and the wedding music was played by Miss K. Worner. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of pale blue silk lace over satin. She wore a picture hat of mohair, and carried a bouquet of pink Johanna Hill roses. She was attended by Miss Grace Jackson, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, who wore a frock of pale green silk net over taffeta with a hat of mohair in matching shade. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliff roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Mabel Jackson, frocked in flowered chiffon, with hat of mohair to match and carrying an old-fashioned nosegay. The two little flower girls were the bride's nieces, Miss Margaret Duncan of Pittsburg, Pa., and Miss Norma Jackson, of Cobourg. They wore dainty dresses of blue and pink organdie and carried baskets of summer flowers. The best man was Mr. Ray Wakelin, and the usher was Mr. Harold Duncan of Pittsburg, Pa. After the ceremony a reception was held at the Chateau Hotel, where the bride's mother received, in a sheer navy ensemble with a hat of white crepe, and corsage bouquet. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a peach crepe ensemble with a hat of white crepe and corsage bouquet. Later, the bride and groom left for a short motor trip. For travelling, the bride wore a cream ensemble with matching accessories. On their return they will live in Cobourg.

CROP REPORT

CENTRAL ONTARIO

DURHAM—Cutting of fall wheat has been quite general this week. In spite of the dry weather it has filled very well. From appearances the best fields may run around 35 bushel per acre but it is expected the average yield will be about 25 bushel.

A small amount of timothy is still to be cut but haying is practically finished. Everyone reports an abundance of hay.

Unless rain comes immediately, there will be a short crop of raspberries in this district.

HASTINGS—Fall wheat is being harvested and should average 16 to 20 bushels to the acre. Second cut of alfalfa is being harvested and is an average crop.

1795 white cheese were sold on the Belleville Board at 10 15-16, a decline of 3-16 from the price last week. Growth of corn and pasture is slow due to warm dry weather. Rain is needed. Spring grains are well headed out but straw is very short.

MUSKOKA & PARRY SOUND—Haying is now in full swing throughout the district and the crop appears to be well up to expectations. Spring grains are making fair progress. The yield should be, at least, average if present conditions continue. Indications are for a good crop of blueberries and wild raspberries appear to be a heavy crop.

PETERBORO—A few fields of fall wheat were cut on July 8th and cutting became quite general by the middle of the week. While the straw in some cases is rather short, the stand is considered very good. With the exception of a few fields of timothy, haying is practically completed.

PRINCE EDWARD—Some scattered showers occurred at different parts of the county this week but a real heavy rain is greatly needed. The milk flow is dropping off rapidly, due to the burned condition of the pastures. 489 white cheese were boarded and sold on the Picton Board to-day, 216 at 11 1-8c, the balance at 11 1-16c.

SCHOOL REPORTS

70 HOURS LOST WOMAN IS ALIVE

Berry-Picker Finds Way To Civilization As 500 Comb Carp District

Wandering in the bush in Huntley Township of the County of Carleton, where she was lost, Mrs. David Manchester for 70 hours lived on berries and plodded on. Eventually she came to a roadway, and was met by Michael Murphy, a farmer, early Thursday. He conveyed the aged woman, who is 76, to her friends, and she returned to her home in the village of Carp.

She was thirsty, badly bitten by flies and tired from her long walk, but otherwise she is remarkably well, her physician reports.

On Monday afternoon she set out to pick berries in a dense bush near Carp. She became lost and late that night, searchers returned with no word of her. Next morning the county and provincial police joined in the search, to no avail. A troop of Boy Scouts assisted and the farmers in the district as well as the merchants in the village left work to comb the woods for the woman. No less than 500 persons were joining in the search this morning when Mrs. Manchester found her way out of the bush.

It is doubtful if ever in her 76 years she was so fed up on blueberries. She had eaten them until she was blue in the face, she said. She had slept some, and never lost confidence that "the good Lord would bring her to safety." She could not find any water during the days she was lost.

As the time passed fears grew that Mrs. Manchester was dead, as she was suffering from heart trouble. That she was still able to walk was a happy surprise to her friends. She was found three-quarters of a mile from where she had disappeared.

PULP MILL WILL RUN FULL TIME

As a result of the untiring efforts of Elsie Brunelle, general manager of the Hydro Electric Pulp Mill at Campbellford, that plant has commenced full time operations and it is understood will continue to work at full speed for some time, with the bright prospects to the town of many hands being taken on.

What is bothering Mr. Brunelle at present is to obtain a sufficient supply of pulpwood, for although there is a considerable supply on hand, this naturally has not been bought in large quantities. It is anticipated by the general manager that quite a number of Campbellford men will be able to be employed and it is his intention to employ married men first.

Mr. Brunelle is to be congratulated on this achievement, for which he has been working for some time past. To again set in motion the wheels of the pulp industry in Campbellford will bring to that town an era of prosperity which it has not known for some time past. Prices are also on the upgrade it is understood, which will prove all the better for the employees and the town generally.

Transcontinental Bike Grind Is Routed Through Port Hope

Riders Will Swing North at Port Hope on Highway 28—Leaving Peterboro on Highway No. 7 Enroute to Ottawa—Here Last Week in August

With array of road and six-day riders from Canada, the United States, and Europe already entered, the international transcontinental bicycle race which starts in Montreal on July 30 is rapidly reaching the final preparatory stage.

When the starting gun barks at the Montreal Baseball Stadium a week from Sunday, a field of nearly 70 riders is expected to mount wheels and set off on the long grind which will take it half-way across the continent and back.

Announcement of eight additional entries by Promoter Armand Vincent brought the entrants up to 46 with nearly a score expected before the list closes on Friday. The eight who sent their entries in to-day to Director Willie Spencer were Mario Rossi, Italy; Ovilu Trudeau, Montreal; Otto Ludeke, Germany; Frantiska Bartalsha, Czechoslovakia; Francois Francin, Paris, France; Tom Flynn, Cork, Ireland, and Herman Zalmel, Hamburg, Germany.

Arduous Grind The route of the race will be long and arduous, swinging around in a wide circle from Montreal to Chicago and back. On starting from Montreal the riders will travel through the rural districts of Quebec and then out across Northern Ontario to move into the United States via Sault Ste Marie. The Middle West States will then be traversed with the riders getting into Chicago on August 19. From the Windy City the pedal-pushers will move on to Detroit, travel along the south shore of Lake Erie and re-enter Canada on the Niagara Peninsula. From Hamilton the riders will set off to Toronto, Ottawa and finally return to Montreal on Sept. 3.

Routed Through Here The cities and towns which the race will pass through include. Quebec, Three Rivers, Sherbrooke, Cornwall, Port Hope, Ont., Pembroke, North Bay, Sudbury Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Duluth, Minneapolis, Madison, Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit, Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, N. Y., Batavia, N.Y., Brantford, Hamilton, Toronto, Peterboro, and Ottawa-Hull.

While the riders are pedalling the soles off their shoes, ample provision has been made for their wants. A rolling kitchen will travel along in addition to a repair truck, tire truck, bicycle truck, ambulance and other automobiles. The hard roads are expected to account for a lot of wear and tear, so 50,000 tires have been ordered for the riders. Fred Bulovant, of New York, has been engaged as head trainer, while "Doc" Morton, of Toronto, will be along as head repairman.

The BEST way to stop CONSTIPATION

Nothing like Fruit-a-tives

"I was in a very bad way with constipation. My stomach was off-colour and I kept having headache after headache. Quite frequently I had severe pains in my joints and muscles. The general effect was very depressing. Indeed, I felt so wretched that I was about to give up work. Today my health is excellent and I certainly feel that 'Fruit-a-tives' played a large part in bringing this about. They toned up my entire system."

The Guide Story

Her frank nature hated having to act a part; having to be civil to this man she so dreaded and distrusted; having to pretend to admire the yacht, as he showed her round it.

With a swift reaction of feeling, she reflected that possibly this was how he had come to Tamarisk Island; the boat that had brought them over was the one from which he and Rao had landed in the night. Nothing sinister about that, after all, only he had said they had not had time to travel in the day.

Even while she was trying to think it out, to piece it all together, with parrot words on her lips, words of conventional praise for the pretty cabin the man by her side was showing her, a slight clicking sound arrested both thoughts and words—the click of a lock behind her.

She turned sharply to find herself alone in the cabin and the door closed tight; while from without came the sound of Eustace Bennett's laugh and the mocking words—

"Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever! I am leaving that excellent advice for you and your lively confederate, Doris Morgan, to meditate on till you see or hear of me again. Ta-ta. You are too pretty you don't need to be clever, sweet Margaret. I don't blame Basil Knight's choice—I really don't! But do take my advice and leave the cleverness alone."

Again the mocking laugh as his footsteps retreated and Margaret, beating wildly on the door she tried in vain to open, was left to realize that he had trapped and made her prisoner—prisoner in a watery prison, compared to which her former curtailed liberty with Lillian on Tamarisk Island had been a joyous freedom.

CHAPTER X

For the first few minutes Margaret felt quite stunned.

Bitterly she regretted the way in which she had walked into the trap. Yet, try as she would, it was difficult to see how she could have avoided it.

It was Lillian's brother who had engaged her. Lillian's brother who had bidden her leave his sister to the care of specialist and trained nurse, while he himself called her over the coals for breach of duty.

Oh, it had been cleverly done and the most maddening point of all was the parting taunt which had told her that, somehow, the plotters had got to know all about her engagement to Basil—all about their efforts to frustrate the villainy of himself and Mitra Rao.

It meant, it could only mean, that they had caught Doris—Doris and the blind missionary returning from their midnight errand, and had forced from their hands her own wee note to Basil.

Margaret's heart and cheeks burned with hot pain as she thought of that innocent little love-letter of hers being read by those two mocking schemers.

No wonder Bennett had determined to separate her from Lillian—from poor, helpless Lillian, who had already become as wax under the evil eye of that hypnotic Egyptian!

Vainly she tried to talk common sense to herself, to say that three or four people could not be trapped wholesale or made away with in these days.

The other half of her brain knew well enough that, what with yachts, aeroplanes and motors, clever criminals could, and often did, evade justice for a long, long time, especially in a remote corner like Tamarisk Island and with little-known people for victims.

One comfort she had. Starvation was no immediate part of their plan for her. Enough food and drink had been left in the cabin to keep her going for a day or two if she were "good." What might happen later on if she proved obstinate remained to be seen.

Then Doris, and Mr. Waterford?

If the former was actually on board, as her tormentor had told her, they had taken effectual steps to quieten that sprightly damsel, for there was not a sound on deck or elsewhere while the afternoon and evening dragged their weary hours away.

Though many a cart, large and small, passed up and down the fairway, they were at a considerable distance, so that it was in vain she tried to signal to them by voice and handkerchief-waving through the middle. All passed by unheeding, and as the dark fell new fears came about the lonely girl in her watery prison. The wind rose, to moan in and out of the anchored yacht like a soul in torment, and the rising tide slapped her sides with a threatening sound.

On her narrow couch on the seat of the cabin, Margaret shivered under the rugs provided, wet and wretched, and no chance of that cup of tea which is a woman's solace in the midst of her worst woes.

Again the long and dreary day dragged out its hours, while the wind howled around the rocking yacht, the rain blotted out the heavy awters, and night fell a second time on the unhappy prisoner, stretched on her rack of suspense.

She had prayed for Lillian and herself, for Doris and Mr. Waterford, till she could pray no more; her brain was numb, her body chilled and cramped.

The darkness had fallen long since and she had fallen into a fitful doze, when a sudden sound—a sound as of a scuffle, and dull thud overhead caused her to start up in terror.

The night was of the darkest and she had found no means of lighting the cabin, so that in the thick darkness her fear grew greater as a fresh sound approached—the sound of a man's footsteps—soft and stealthy.

Helpless, crouching, she waited, scarce daring to breathe in her sick dread of she knew not whom or what.

After what seemed an eternity she heard a voice—the voice of a man—calling her name—

"Margaret! Margaret!"

But whose voice was it, calling on her in dead of night like that? Nearer and nearer it came.

"Margaret! Margaret!"

And in that instant a great cry like a sob burst from her.

"Basil, oh, Basil! Is it you? I am here—Margaret is here—locked in!"

And with that there was a clicking sound, the flash of a torch, and Basil, wet and dripping, had her in his arms.

"Margaret—oh, Margaret, my darling. Tell me, are you safe—unharm'd?"

"Safe and unharmed, Basil dear. But oh, how wet you are. And Lillian? What about Lillian?"

"I don't know, sweetheart. We are going to see," came the grim answer. "I have already found that lucky little Doris, gagged and bound, in another cabin, loosed and massaged and left her to recover a bit till we could get back. Don't be surprised if we come upon a stunned sailor on deck. He will be right as rain after, though I had to put him out of action a while. This way, sweetheart—make what haste you can."

Stumbling by the light of the torch she followed to that other cabin, where Doris greeted her hoarsely. Gagged, bound, fed by the sailor at intervals, the plucky girl had had a much worse time than Margaret. But her gallant spirit already was returning to her rescue, and, cramped though she still felt, Margaret and Basil got her safely up the companionway, past the unconscious sailor, and with caution down into a little rocking boat, dimly seen in the darkness, assisted by almost invisible hands that also helped her, while the voice of their own said—

"That Miss Mayne? Right-o. I am Lillian's real brother. I don't exactly know what fiend's work has been tried on yonder, but the police are there already—this is their boat. Basil and I had to swim for it."

"You Lillian's brother?" Margaret gasped helplessly. "And—the police?"

"Yes. Tell you all about it later. Those two beauties are wanted on a lot of counts. But we must pull now—pull for dear life." And with that Margaret felt the little rocking craft take a leap forward towards a light that flashed to and fro in the darkness.

The flash of the light was close at hand now, the boat bumped against the familiar steps and Margaret found herself helping Doris and being helped herself by blessedly strong hands and arms, while a deep voice breathed in her ear—

"It's 'hush-hush' till we give the word, missie, please. Our men are in there all right. They'll have got the lie of the land. But whatever happens, don't call out, or speak till you're spoken to."

The gruff, friendly voice, together with the comforting grasp of Basil's hand on her arm, were blessedly reassuring as she allowed herself to be gently pushed forward to where light and voices reached them from the slightly open doorway.

At the same moment she was aware of uniformed figures dimly visible around her, while the door was pushed softly and widely open, to reveal a sight she would never forget to her dying day.

There stood Mitra, Lillian by his side, with the Taylors beyond, while with his back to them was "Eustace Bennett," pressing a revolver into the blind missionary's neck.

Clearly the priest's voice floated back to them.

"I am in your power, and you and your accomplice may destroy my life as you destroyed, my sight, Mitra Rao. But, special license or no special license, I refuse to go through this mockery of a—"

A swift movement, a flash, a sharp retort, screams, shouts, and then it seemed to Margaret pandemonium in the scuffle that followed.

The next thing she knew was that she and Doris had a fainting Lillian in their arms, while men in and out of uniform struggled and swore around. Then she was aware of Basil coming to their aid and someone who looked like and yet unlike, Eustace Bennett saying—

"My poor little sister—thank Heaven we were in time. It is only a faint, isn't it, doctor?"

"A faint and a bit of a shock," came Basil's reassuring voice. "She will be all right when these two have got her to bed. Margaret, Doris, get off your wet things as soon as you can afterwards, and hot coffee shall be waiting for you downstairs."

An hour later, Lillian being asleep and Doris provided with change of raiment, Margaret had just finished a much-needed toilet on her own account, when a soft call brought her to the door.

"Basil—oh, Basil!" she murmured, as her lover took her into his arms and strained her to his heart.

"Darling—my darling!" he whispered passionately. "How can I make up to you for all you have gone through?"

"It is all over," she whispered back. "Lillian is saved, Doris and Mr. Waterford safe, at least. Was anyone hurt by that shot?"

"Mitra got it in the neck—and it served him right, too—when Lillian's brother knocked out that villainous pistol. But it was only a flesh-wound so the police have put off for the mainland with their prisoners. We are clear of them for the present."

"And the Taylors?"

"The Taylors made what your Yankee friends call a 'clean getaway.' Just—as well, perhaps; we do not know how far they were involved, and they are sure to meet their deserts sooner or later. See, here is Doris. Let us all go downstairs and have supper. Are you feeling better, Doris?"

"Yes, sir, no thanks to them," said the faithful girl. "I'd like to send some ropes along to hang the pair of 'em—and I'd like their jaws to ache like mine do."

"Oh, Doris!" exclaimed shocked Margaret, as they descended the stairs. "But, you poor dear, you must have had a horrible time of it. Did they kidnap you and Mr. Waterford?"

"That they did! Just after we left the house—after I had left you. Pushed a beastly gag in my mouth and bundled me off to the yacht. Did they bring you straight here, padre?" she asked of Mr. Waterford, as they entered the dining-room.

"Yes, and treated me fairly well until I refused to do what they wanted—marry poor Lillian to that rascal of a Rao who had, somehow, wangled a special license, though he had three wives to my knowledge in Egypt; he is a Mahometan, you know."

"And was it really he who—"

"Destroyed my sight? Yes. He was tampering with a Christian girl, one of my flock, and because I interfered to save her he destroyed my sight in revenge. Bribed the cook to put the drug that would do it into my food—the same drug he was giving to Lillian; it destroys the will-power as well. But my cook repented, and confessed before the worst befell. Enough of me. Let us have the story of Lillian's real brother here."

Whereupon, the genuine Eustace began his story with the words—

"I had had a lucky find of gold where no gold was supposed to be, and was just making for home with it, in time for Lillian's wedding with that poor chap who was killed, when a bout of fever laid me low at Assouan and my Copt servant got Mitra in to attend to me. Whether I blabbed of the gold in delirium, or what happened, I don't know, but when I came to myself many weeks later it was to find I had been robbed of every penny and every paper I possessed, and if that Copt chap hadn't stuck to me I should have gone west. He told me he was sure Mitra had given me poison in my medicine, for once or twice he had thought me dead. However, thank Heaven I pulled through, and as soon as I could, with the Consul's help, I got on Rao's track, and to my aniament found some other man had been passing himself off as Eustace Bennett both in Assouan and in England."

"Ah, that explains," put in Margaret. "Lilian always shrank a little from him—said he seemed quite changed since he had been in Egypt. But, of course, after the shock, and with her imperfect sight, she would be more easily deceived."

"Poor little sis—no wonder!" He nodded. "Well, I had to lie low a bit to make my plans and claims good and it was a considerable while before I could pick up the threads and finally get into touch with Lillian's doctor here—just about the time that precious pair were hustling her off to Tamarisk Island. Directly Knight and you mention Rao's name to Waterford we guessed some special devilment was afoot."

"That phial of lotion and the pills confirmed my worst suspicions," put in the missionary, "and I was resolved to save Lillian and her sight, if possible, at all costs."

"The wretches!" exclaimed Margaret. "And they tried to force you to marry her to Rao, so that they could both handle her money!"

"That's evidently the plot," said Basil thoughtfully. "They must have started giving her that vile drug in London, for I could not see why her recovery both of sight and of health should be so slow."

"They were giving it her in sweetmeats, I expect," said Margaret. "After which they separated to try to get a little sleep before 'sorting out' plans on the morrow."

There was a good deal of that to be done, but all went well with the sorting.

"Are you better, mother?"

"No, my boy, and never shall be in this world," replied a weak, faint voice.

"Mother, don't say that!" pleaded the lad. "What should I do without you?" and then he tried to arrange, the heterogeneous mass of coverings, which served as bedclothes.

"I've got some coals—I picked them up as they fell from a wagon," he announced, with triumph. "So now to make a nice, warm fire, and then you shall have some bread and milk. I picked up the bread—taking a lump of dry crust from his pocket, and gazing at it as an inestimable treasure."

"And where did you get the milk, Dan?" questioned his mother, who had watched all these preparations for her comfort with tender, loving, fever-bright eyes.

"I begged it of a little girl whom I saw coming out of a milk-shop in Drury Lane. I told her I had a sick mother, and she was so kind—see what a lot she gave me!"—pouring it from the broken bottle in which he had carried it—oh, so carefully!—into the cracked teacup, which was the only article of crockery they possessed. Then he crumbled the dry, hard bread, till the meal was ready for his mother. Tenderly he carried a spoonful to her lips, and, to please her boy, she tried to eat it, but the effort was beyond her strength.

"Darling, I can't," she murmured. "Give it to Cissie"—moving as she spoke and disclosing a child's form huddled up close beside her for the sake of warmth.

"No, mother—try just once," he urged. But his mother shook her head with a mournful sigh and gently touched the sleeping child with her cold fingers.

kept, yellowish elf-locks which adorned his head, golden locks such as have won the admiration of many a father and mother.

But, alas, poor Dan Nugent had no father, and he was now speeding, with tired, aching, feet, to see his mother. Quickly he went on, up the broken and rickety stairway, past groups of wretched children, huddled together for warmth, who were glad to make this their nightly resting-place, past a door which swung on its hinges and revealed the room within, where were seated four or five fierce-looking, ragged men, quarrelling and squabbling over a greasy-looking pack of cards with which they were amusing themselves, by the light of a spattering candle stuck in the neck of a bottle.

Headless of his name being called by Red Dick, Dan hurried on to the topmost stair, where he softly opened the door of his attic-home. All was in darkness there, but the boy found a match in some place of safety known only to himself, and lighted a piece of candle which he had left on the table.

The light served to reveal nothing but wretchedness and filth. The only articles of furniture the room contained were a table, two broken chairs and a mattress on the floor, whereon was lying a mass of something—to judge by the moans and heavy, stertorous breathing it was a human being. Dan approached the mattress softly and knelt down, holding the candle in his hand and his voice was low, tender and loving as he asked the simple question—

"Are you better, mother?"

"No, my boy, and never shall be in this world," replied a weak, faint voice.

"Mother, don't say that!" pleaded the lad. "What should I do without you?" and then he tried to arrange, the heterogeneous mass of coverings, which served as bedclothes.

"I've got some coals—I picked them up as they fell from a wagon," he announced, with triumph. "So now to make a nice, warm fire, and then you shall have some bread and milk. I picked up the bread—taking a lump of dry crust from his pocket, and gazing at it as an inestimable treasure."

"And where did you get the milk, Dan?" questioned his mother, who had watched all these preparations for her comfort with tender, loving, fever-bright eyes.

"I begged it of a little girl whom I saw coming out of a milk-shop in Drury Lane. I told her I had a sick mother, and she was so kind—see what a lot she gave me!"—pouring it from the broken bottle in which he had carried it—oh, so carefully!—into the cracked teacup, which was the only article of crockery they possessed. Then he crumbled the dry, hard bread, till the meal was ready for his mother. Tenderly he carried a spoonful to her lips, and, to please her boy, she tried to eat it, but the effort was beyond her strength.

"Darling, I can't," she murmured. "Give it to Cissie"—moving as she spoke and disclosing a child's form huddled up close beside her for the sake of warmth.

"No, mother—try just once," he urged. But his mother shook her head with a mournful sigh and gently touched the sleeping child with her cold fingers.

boy, in stifled accents. "But, oh, if you could have stayed—"

She only shook her head mournfully.

"Swear to me, Dan, that you will protect my darling with your life—that she shall be first to you in everything!"

"Mother, I swear it!" responded Dan, in solemn tones, pressing a soft kiss upon Cissie's rosy cheek.

A look of relief brightened the dying woman's features.

"I know you will keep this promise, Dan, for, (wretched as our lives have been, you have never told me a lie."

She closed her eyes and lay back for a few seconds in her son's arms, the dew of death gathering upon her forehead and the gray shadow creeping over the perfect contour of her face. Dan watched her with grief unutterable. Once more his mother opened her eyes, already dimmed with the shadowing wings of the Death Angel.

"Dan, you are there still?"

"Yes, mother. What can I do?"

"This picture"—struggling to unloose a cord which hung around her neck—"Cissie's father—find him!"

And, with the miniature clasped tightly in her fingers, Dan's mother fell back upon her scanty, wretched pallet—dead.

Tenderly he drew his little sister from the encircling arm, and hushed her afflicted sobs against his own ragged coat. Then he took the locket from the dead woman, and gazed long upon the features of "Cissie's father," and wondered if the handsome face pictured there was not also that of his own progenitor. It was almost a perfect face for beauty, but showing unmistakable signs of weakness and indecision of character.

Ragged, hungry Dan Nugent took an unreasoning dislike to the portrait he held, and turned it over in his unwashed hand. "From Cecil to Nellie," was engraved on the back of the locket, and the lad knew that the trinket was valuable, and that, though he and his mother had many a time gone to their wretched pallet, well-nigh starving, through all their misery she must have possessed the means to have relieved their hunger fifty-fold.

The remembrance did not serve to engender kinder thoughts of the handsome "Cecil," and the boy felt as if he must throw away the locket. But the recollection of his promise to his dying mother to think of Cissie's interests before his own withheld him and he only gazed at the sleeping child and back to the pictured face, noticing the marvelous resemblance between the two. He hid the trinket away in a pocket of his ragged coat, and bending down to kiss the cold brow of his dearly-loved mother, he mentally repeated his vow. Then, taking the sleeping child in his arms, he rolled himself up in one corner of the miserable room and fell asleep, forgetting, for a short time at least his grief and misery.

Dan's mother was buried by the parish authorities of Great St. Giles' and returning from following her to the grave, the lad was greatly surprised to find a stranger in the squalid attic.

"You are Dan?" said the man, looking straight at the boy as if he would read his thoughts. The lad's only reply was a short nod.

"This is grandad," announced Cissie, who was perched upon the man's knee, playing contentedly with his massive gold chain.

"Who?" ejaculated Dan, in extreme surprise.

"Your grandfather," replied the stranger. "Your mother's father."

"And she is dead," moaned the boy as he sank down upon the miserable pallet, and covered his face with his two skinny hands, the thought flashing across him that, had this rich relation only turned up sooner, his mother might have been living yet, for the doctor had said that, in very truth, she had died from slow starvation.

"Don't give way, my lad," said his grandfather, in kindly tones. "It is better as it is. From all I hear, your mother's life has been nothing but suffering, most of which poor girl she brought on herself." Then, in lower tones, "if I could only find the villain—"

"Was this the man?" demanded

"Was this the man?" demanded

"Was this the man?" demanded

"Was this the man?" demanded

"Was this the man?" demanded

"Was this the man?" demanded

"Was this the man?" demanded

"Was this the man?" demanded

"Was this the man?" demanded

Dan, startled out of his misery by the vehemence of his companion, and bringing to light the locket which his mother had always worn concealed.

"How did you come by that?" his grandfather cried fiercely, snatching it from the boy's hand and gazing at the pictured face with so demonic a look that Cissie, with an affrighted cry slid from his knees and buried her face in Dan's tattered jacket.

"My mother gave it to me on her death-bed," replied the lad, soothing the child's fears with tender tone and looks, "and told me it was Cissie's father."

"The scoundrel!"—throwing the locket from him with a gesture of loathing. "The milk-faced aristocrat! How I hate him and all his class."

"Who was he?" inquired Dan curiously.

The man who caused me to be sentenced to ten years' penal slavery merely for putting my hand in another man's pocket, whilst he stole the life, the light, the honour from another man's home, by taking away his wife. But—with a sardonic laugh—"the cases were not the same. The man I robbed was an aristocrat—whilst his victim was a working-man. Yes, Dan, your father, your mother's wedded husband, honest Tom Nugent, as good a man, as kind a father and husband as could be found, until this viper—" spurning the portrait with his foot—"crossed his path, and by specious flattery, plausible tongue, and handsome face, brought your mother to ruin and shame. She was a good girl, a true wife, till she met him, and now she's buried in a pauper's grave! Poor girl—poor girl!"—breaking down, his voice choked with sobs. "But we'll be revenged, my lad"—dashing away his tears. "We'll stick together, my boy, and find this fellow and pay him back for her suffering. You'll help me, Dan?"—holding out his horny hand, which the lad took and held firmly in his small, nervous fingers.

"And Cissie?" he questioned. "I promised to shield her from harm."

"And so you shall boy. She, too, is my poor girl's child and cannot help that her father was a villain. She need never know. In the first place, we'll send her to some good school. I've got money, Dan, and a good plan for getting more. You shall help me in this, too, my lad. And, when Cissie is grown up, she can take her share of work also. The better education she gets, the more useful she'll be—"

"But I don't understand," objected Dan.

"There's no needs that you should at present," returned his grandfather. "But to-night I'll take you to the rendezvous, and there you shall see my pals—good fellows. You shall be enrolled a member of our brotherhood. In the meantime, go and get something to eat, for I'm hungry, and you don't look too well fed"—taking a handful of

DETAILS GIVEN NEW RELIEF PACT

Ontario And Quebec Have Same Agreement With Federal Government

Ontario and the Dominion have entered into a further unemployment relief agreement.

"The agreement with Ontario is practically identical with the agreement between the Dominion and the province of Quebec," Hon. W. A. Gordon, minister of labor, stated.

The agreement has been forwarded to Premier George S. Henry of Ontario. It is understood that any further statement will be made when the agreement has actually reached Mr. Henry.

In the agreement with Quebec, it is provided that where construction of any portion of the trans-Canada highway in the province is undertaken, the Dominion will contribute 60 cents for each man-day of work. This provision includes the working days of supervisory personnel, but excludes headquarters and other administrative staffs. In the construction of any other roads in the province, the Dominion will pay to the province 50 cents for each man-day of work, including working days of supervisory personnel, the Dominion will pay a percentage not to exceed 33 1-3 per cent. of the direct labor cost of construction of municipal works and undertakings carried out to provide work for the unemployed. With regard to these "municipal works," the province is to contribute an amount equal to that of the Dominion, and the balance to be contributed by the municipality.

Direct relief—the only provision in the agreement in effect for the past 16 months—will be continued. The Dominion will pay not in excess of one-third of direct relief in municipalities, with the province and the municipality each contributing a like amount. In unorganized districts, the Dominion will contribute 50 per cent. of the cost of direct relief.

The relief settlement agreement entered into between the Dominion and the provinces under the 1932 Relief Act remains in operation.

DEMAND LIENS
 JOBLESS HOMES

Three Oshawa Men Walk To Toronto To Protest To Relief Officials

Told by relief officials of Oshawa public welfare board that they would have to give liens on their homes or be cut off relief, Steven Panko, Sam Kucherick, and T. Totholuk have appealed personally to J. E. Ellis, chairman of provincial relief committee, with the result their cases are being considered.

Panko, who lives in a three-room house on Bloor St. and has transformed a chicken pen at the rear of his lot into a home for his brother and family, was quite indignant when he talked to the press.

"If the public welfare board would pass a by-law requiring all to repay the board for relief when able to do so I wouldn't mind," Panko said.

"We walked most of the way to Toronto to see Mr. Ellis and we were given a good reception. Mr. Ellis and a man from Ottawa, I don't know his name, heard our story. They told us not to give our deeds to the welfare board until they have had time to look into the matter. The man from Ottawa gave us a dollar to buy our dinners."

"Mr. McGill, our relief administrator, told me I would have to hand in my deed and give a lien on by property or be cut off relief. He claims I own two houses. I tried to explain the one used to be a chicken pen and that I fixed it up for my brother who is out of work. The value of both buildings would be under $1,000."

Make Written Demands
 Demanding the welfare board retract information laid with the immigration department at Ottawa asking for deportation of three foreign-born single men as public charges, the Oshawa Unemployed Association has presented the public welfare board with a written resolution.

The association also demands increased allowances of food for children household and medical supplies.
