NUMBER TWENTY-SEVEN

ORANGE ORDER PLANS BIG DAY

Lodges From Five Counties Expected To Parade At Peterboro On July 12th

Peterboro will be the Mecca for over ten thousand members of the Orange Order, when on July 12, the city is to be the centre of activity for all the lodges in Ontario East. Port Hope lodges will attend.

According to Wor. County Master J. A. Holden there is no means of definitely reckoning the number of lodges likely to come to Peterboro, but he stated, there is a certainty of lodges coming from Durham East and West; Northumberland, Victoria, Ontario and Peterboro East and Peterboro West. The lodge coming from the furthest point will probably be a delegation from Toronto.

Contrary to current rumour, the Orangemen will not assemble at the Exhibition Grounds, but will form up in parade order at the Armouries. The parade is timed to move off from the Armouries at 1.30 p.m. (D.S.T.) and will follow the route, as follows, West on McDonnell to Park; south on Park to Weller; west on Weller to Monaghan; south on Monaghan to Charlotte; east on Charlotte to George; north on George to Park Hill Road; east on Park Hill Road to Water; south on Water to Victoria Park.

Arriving at the park the Orangemen will be addressed by civic officials and others. Included among the speakers will be: Rt. Wor. Provincial Grand Mistress of L.O.B.A. Ontario East, Mrs. C. Wright; Wor. Bro. E. F. Reid, Junior Deputy Provincial Grand Master Ontario East; Mayor Roland Denne; E. A. Peck, K. C., M.P.; J. F. Strickland, K.C., M.P. P.; J. K. Kaiser, M.P.P., Oshawa; Wor. Bro. E. N. Mitchell, Provincial Grand Marshal Ontario East; Rev. W. W. Jones, Past Deputy Grand Preceptor.

His Honor Judge E. C. S. Haycke will present the prizes, for the various lodge competitions.

All arrangements for the monster celebration are in the hands of the officers of Peterboro West, who have planned for special trains from Lindsay and from Whitby. The latter train will pick up passengers at Oshawa and Port Hope, and all intermediate points.

BOYS TO HANG, BRIDE WEEPS

Rope Awaits Lads, Recently Playmates, Who Killed N.S. Woman

Alvah Henwood and Truman Smith, who played cowboys and Indians together little more than a year ago, face their death sentence together at Amherst, N.S.

Confessed slayers of Mrs. Elmer Smith, they were sentenced by Mr. Justice Hugh Ross to be hanged on Sept. 12.

The two 18-year-old boys committed the crime on the night of Feb. 3, when Mrs. Smith, an elderly invalid, answered their knock. After Henwood seized her, Smith struck her on the head with a baseball bat. Henwood then cut her throat and the two ransacked the house. They escaped with $130, only to be arrested two weeks later.

Henwood was taken a few hours after he married a young Amherst girl, who later sat tearfully through the trial that ended on June 26. The boy's statement, dictated to the police, was accepted as evidence at the trial and the Cumberland County jury returned a verdict carrying with it a mandatory death sentence.

His companion was arrested in Sackville, and he too made a statement describing the murder in detail. Smith's trial was concluded on Friday, when the jury convicted but attached a strong recommendation for mercy.

Mrs. D. Winters Wins Dinner Set In Capitol Theatre Treasure Hunt

Monday evening was a hilarious night at the Capitol Theatre with a British comedy, "Letting In The Sunshine" which was a scream and a gay treasure hunt which has some funny incidents along the way.

Mrs. Del. (Sybil) Winters walked home with the lion's share of the spoils having picked the eight-piece dinner set. Fred Ough, the master of ceremonies was just full of life and humour until that embarrassing moment when he discovered he had drawn the ticket of Miss B. Costain which, when announced, proved a popular choice. She found the bread board. Other lucky patrons included Mrs. M. Garrett, bread tray; Fred Miles, Cobourg, vase and bon bon dishes; Lois Robertson, sandwich tray; Mrs. H. Hemmery, comport; W. P. Cassels, T.C.S., pair of bud vases; Hazel Franks, cake basket; Viola Hills, casserole and Constance Burns, bon bon dishes. The Treasure Hunt has proven very popular to citizens of Port Hope who get a great deal of enjoyment on each evening it is held.

Those who weren't at the Capitol missed a night of good amusement for the comedy and English feature picture are both filled with laughs.

PRAIRIES HIT BY HEAT WAVE

Brandon Registers 96 As Blistering Wind Sweeps Two Provinces

The sun got into its stride Monday and unleashed a blast of torrid weather across Manitoba. A scorching hot wind accompanied the heat wave. It was nearly as hot in Saskatchewan, but Alberta enjoyed a comparatively cool spell.

In Winnipeg the mercury struck 87 at noon and kept on climbing. Brandon registered a high of 96. Cloudless skies afforded no relief, while the Weatherman offered similar for to-day.

Estevan, in Southern Saskatchewan was another hot spot, with a reading of 94. Dauphin, Man., and Outlook, Sask., registered 92.

CYCLIST HITS CAR, IS KILLED

Was Ward Of Children's Shelter, Port Hope — Funeral Held Monday

Percy Bayes, 18-year-old farm hand of Roseneath, was instantly killed about 1.15 on Saturday afternoon on the Cobourg Road, just at the edge of the village of Hastings.

The unfortunate victim, who was employed on the farm of Harold George of Roseneath, with his chum, Walter Brown, 17 years old, employed on the farm of Mrs. Geo. Brown at Roseneath, were riding bicycles on their way home when at a curve on the road they met a car in charge of Percy F. Jukes of Orillia. Seeing the car, the Brown boy called to his chum to get over on his right side of the pavement. Mr. Jukes, who was only driving about 18 miles an hour, stated he kept hugging his own side, expecting the youth to turn out, when he saw he was coming straight for him, Mr. Jukes turned for the ditch, but his left front fender caught the boy and threw him against the car, fracturing his skull very badly. He was dead when Mr. Jukes got to him.

Dr. J. T. Daley of the Children's Shelter at Port Hope where the boy was a ward had charge of the funeral arrangements. The funeral took place Monday afternoon from the parlor of Tedford and McEachmie to the United Church at Roseneath where services were conducted at three o'clock.

SUDDEN PASSING OF J. A. WINFIELD

Funeral Held Sunday Afternoon To Union Cemetery—Under Masonic Direction

Widely attended by friends and members of the Masonic body, the funeral of the late John A. Winfield, highly respected resident of Port Hope, was held Sunday afternoon. The service at St. John's Anglican Church was in charge of the Rector, Rev. A. G. Emmet and was short and impressive. As the remains entered the church at 2.20 o'clock, the organist, Edmund Cohn, softly played one of the deceased's favourite selections, "I'm a stranger here, Heaven is my home." During the service, two hymns, "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and "Lead Kindly Light," also favourites, were sung.

The commitment service at the graveside at the Port Hope Union Cemetery was given by Rev. Emmet, which was followed by the beautiful Masonic service under the direction of Wor. Bro. C. S. Hamly. The pallbearers, all members of the Craft, included, V. Wor. Bro. Arthur Mark, Wor. Bro. W. G. Noble, Wer Bro. A. E. Fulford, Wor. Bro. Coleman, Bro. J. S. Smart and Bro. G. V. Strong.

Born in England

The late Mr. Winfield passed away at 1.45 o'clock Friday morning. For the past year or so, he had been subjected to heart attacks and on Friday was seized with one of a more serious nature. Medical aid was summoned, but his condition gradually became weaker.

Deceased, who was in his 63rd year was born in Huddersfield, England, and went to Providence, R.I., thirty-one years ago today. After residing there for thirteen years, the family moved to Port Hope and have lived here for the past eighteen years.

During his entire life, the late Mr. Winfield was identified with the theatre and music. For thirteen years he was pianist at a local theatre and for nine years served as organist of St. John's Church. He was a former member of the Port Hope Rotary Club and capably served as its pianist. He was a member of Hope Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 114 and was the regular organist for Ontario Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 26. In religion, deceased was an Anglican.

When one thought of music, the name of Mr. Winfield was connected with it. He was widely known in musical circles and was a highly efficient accompanist. He was an accomplished piano and organ performer and when a person was singing, no thought was necessary for the accompanist if the latter was the late Mr. Winfield, for he knew music. Quiet and unassuming in manner, the deceased was widely known. He trod the highway of life, doing good where he saw the need, without hope of reward or thought of publicity. He was interested in sporting activities and took keen interest in the local softball league.

Left to mourn his passing are his wife, whose maiden name was Emily Sutcliffe, two sisters, Mrs. A. Carter and Mrs. F. Broadbent, Huddersfield, England, one brother, Fred, Huddersfield, England, and three sons, Jack, of the Royal Bank staff, Chatham, and Herbert and Frederick at home.

Driving his truck along Highway 28, in an intoxicated condition the defendant is stated to have attempted to turn up Western Avenue. Owing to the condition of the driver, and the manner in which the turn was attempted the vehicle upset and was badly wrecked.

BIG TOURIST YEAR PREDICTED

Demand Is Very Heavy For Ontario Playground Booklet

Ontario is to have one of the biggest tourist years in history—if the demand for "Ontario Playground" booklets by prospective visitors is any criterion.

In the six months of 1933 there have been more than twice as many booklets demanded as during the first eight months of 1932. One hundred and fifty thousand booklets printed for the year have been all distributed, together with 40,000 additional left over from last year. And there are 25,000 mailed requests for information which cannot be answered until a new supply reaches the Ontario Publicity Department.

In the opinion of the Publicity Branch of the Government, which keeps in pretty close touch with tourist prospects, the Province is in for another bumper year of tourist revenues.

POLICE COURT

Harry Gibbs Freed On Charge In Police Court Here Friday

Charged with breaking and entering the home of Arthur Oswald, Pine Street, on June 22nd and stealing a clock, Harry Gibbs, Port Hope, was acquitted by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell in police court here Friday afternoon. He entered a plea of not guilty to the count and was defended by T. F. Hall, K.C., of Cobourg. Crown Attorney F. D. Boggs, K.C., of Cobourg, prosecuted.

A. Oswald told that a clock was noticed missing from his hall on June 22nd between ten and ten thirty o'clock and that an outside door was open while an inner door was closed. Cross examined, he added that he saw no one enter his home.

Thomas Irwin, Cavan Street, saw someone carrying a parcel down South Street and hide it in the bushes across from Chalk's Carriage Works. "I went over but could not find anything and later my son-in-law found it. It was between 9.30 and 10.00 o'clock." On Friday, witness was talking to Gibbs, and said "I didn't accuse anyone as I could not swear who it was." Witness added that he could not definitely identify the person he saw.

Gerald Rowden stated that he had found the clock underneath the body of an old car. "I took it over to the house and then put it back. I believe Mr. Irwin said that it looked like Gibbs'."

"There's no doubt the clock was taken," said the Bench, "and a party was seen down South Street at Cavan and was seen to do away with the parcel in the bushes. Mr. Irwin's son-in-law found it and no doubt the clock was taken from Oswald's place. There is no evidence of Gibbs being seen on Pine Street or going in or out of Oswald's home. There is a very doubtful identification by Mr. Irwin but we may believe what we like. You are dismissed."

TRAPPING CASE IS ADJOURNED

Alleged Removal Of Traps At Rice Lake Leads To Court Action

The charge of alleged theft of rat traps brought against Lorne Harris came up for hearing in the County Court at Cobourg before His Honour, Judge L. V. O'Connor. After the Crown had submitted their evidence the case was laid over until July 19th at two o'clock. Archie Cochrane, K.C., appeared for Mr. Harris and Crown Attorney, F. D. Boggs for the prosecution.

Two men, whose grounds are said to adjoin those where the traps are alleged to have been located, were in court but were not called either by the Crown or the defence. It is stated that after Mr. Harris had removed the traps that he handed them over to the police, and that although no defence was offered on Monday the defendant claims to have privileges on at least a part of the lands in question.

The case has aroused a great amount of interest in the Rice Lake district, and especially among trappers.

SILVERING COINS NETS SHORT TERM

Downeyville Man Gets Two Weeks, Youth 2 Year's Suspended Sentence

Two years' suspended sentence was handed out at Lindsay to W. J. Gibbons, aged 17, who had been working near Bobcaygeon, on the charge of silvering one cent coins to make them look like quarters. Andrew Long, aged 27, of Downeyville, was given two weeks in jail on a similar charge. When they came up for trial before Police Magistrate Jordan, Gibbons told the court that he had seen his father use aluminum paint to cover metal objects. The accused tried it on an old watch chain and it resembled a silver one. Then he tried the composition on one cent coins. Gibbons and Long went into the village of Bobcaygeon and passed the "quarters." Long had been on parole at the time he passed the coins. Gibbons' parents, who reside in Toronto, promised to be directly responsible for their son's future action.

SIDEWALK BLOWS UP FROM INTENSE HEAT

A sidewalk exploded at Belleville Wednesday from the effects of the intense heat. Fragments of the concrete were hurled over 10 feet in the air by the explosion. A strip of cement sidewalk nearly 20 feet in length rose about two feet before the explosion, according to a passerby. City Engineer Mott says the cause of the explosion was the expansion of the warm concrete on top over the comparatively cold cement underneath.

DURHAM GROWERS ANNUAL MEETING

Officers Elected And Encouraging Reports Received—Better Prices Predicted

According to reports submitted at the annual meeting of the Durham Fruit Growers Co-Operative Ltd., in the Agricultural Department here, the organization enjoyed a successful season and another good year is looked forward to. Dawson Bebee was re-elected President, W. Morton, vice-president and F. R. Currelley, secretary-treasurer. Other directors include Messrs. H. Brown and Norman Wilson. During the past three years, the deficit has been reduced by over $2,000, leaving a small remainder of $429.00 which should be wiped off next year.

The rate of foreign exchange cost the Durham Co-Operative about $2,500 and this interesting and important item was discussed. At the present rate the loss would have been in the vicinity of $600.00, and the former amount represents a difference of about sixty cents per barrel. This year, sterling rate is improved and will materially affect the organization.

The amount distributed to members was $13,539.95 after all expenses had been paid and the growers received $1.90 per barrel on the average. The total assets are $11,352.39 while liabilities total $5,701.02.

The meeting was addressed by A. Fulton, government representative in the Old Country who gave an interesting talk on marketing methods. He congratulated the local organization on the wonderful success of their packs, particularly the Starks, and told that buyers were coming to him in England asking for Durham Starks. He predicted that better prices would be obtained this year for Spies and Baldwins.

Last year, the total pack of the Durham Co-Operative was 7,000 barrels, 4,000 of which went to the export market and the remaining 3,000 for home markets.

Dr. Seymour Wright, Toronto, also spoke and gave a talk on the comparative position of the farmer and the town wage-earner, arguing that the farmer was not getting a square deal and advocating co-operation to remedy the inequality in earning power.

A PICKING GARDEN OF FLOWERS

Flowers for Picking May Be Grown in the Vegetable Garden

A picking garden is where flowers are grown not for outdoor decoration but to be cut for bouquets. There are many ways in which the picking garden may be laid out, but none is better than the simple method of sowing seeds in straight rows, eighteen inches apart exactly as vegetables are grown.

It is surprising how vigorously annuals grow in such rows. Nor is their appearance unpleasing. A row of tall, riotously colorful salpiglossis, for example, is a beautiful sight, and this is one flower which seems to thrive better in a straight row in the open sunshine than in a garden border.

Annuals are on the whole best suited for the picking garden, though there are some perennials which have value; for example the delphinium belladonna, coreopsis, feverfew, gailardias, shasta daisies, pyrethrums, to name a few. A list of annuals which are excellent cut flowers would number hundreds. Marigolds, particularly the tall African type, the new variety, Guinea Gold, and the tall and dwarf French varieties, especially the tall Josephine, are outstanding cut flowers. Zinnias, stocks, snapdragons, scabiosa, nasturtiums, lupins, larkspurs, dimorphotheas, pinks, cosmos, clarkias, cosmosidiums, chrysanthemums, centaurias, calendulas, cecalias, carnations, calliopis (the annual coreopsis), English daisies, asters, arctotis, and ageratum are among the best known annuals for cut flowers.

The cutting garden may well be made a part of the vegetable garden so that it may be cultivated at the same time with the same tools. Flowers need no more care than vegetables.

Annuals thrive in ordinary garden loam, with no more water than the vegetables require. After the seedlings come up they should be thinned out reasonably, to prevent overcrowding, and thereafter the only care they need is the regular cultivation such as is given the vegetables. The more flowers you cut, the more you will have, since the removal of blossoms before they fall and set seed is necessary to keep annuals blooming.

WILD LIFE IN JASPER NATIONAL PARK

Great Alberta Reserve Is One Of Outstanding Game Sanctuaries—Also A Leading Scenic Resort

Jasper National Park in Alberta, Canada, is to-day one of the greatest wild life sanctuaries in the world. Here, in an area of 4,200 square miles, many species of wild life live free from human molestation. At the time white man first entered this region, a little over a century ago, big game was plentiful. Bighorn sheep and Rocky Mountain goat fed on the hillsides, deer and elk ranged the valleys, and the furs a few miles south of the present Jasper townsite were frequented by buffalo. The whole country was a rich hunting ground for both white men and Indians.

When Jasper National Park was set aside in 1907, by the Government of Canada to meet the recreational requirements of the people and to serve as a refuge for the native fauna, great inroads had been made in the wild life by hunters. As a result of the establishment of sanctuary conditions the preservation of the different species of wild life indigenous to that region has been assured and now hunters may feel confident of having an unfailing supply of game in districts adjacent to the park.

One of the chief attractions to visitors at the present time is the variety of wild life which may be seen along the motor highways and trails in the park. Bear, moose, deer, bighorn sheep, and mountain goat may frequently be seen from a car, while caribou may generally be sighted in the high open passes of some of the nearby mountains.

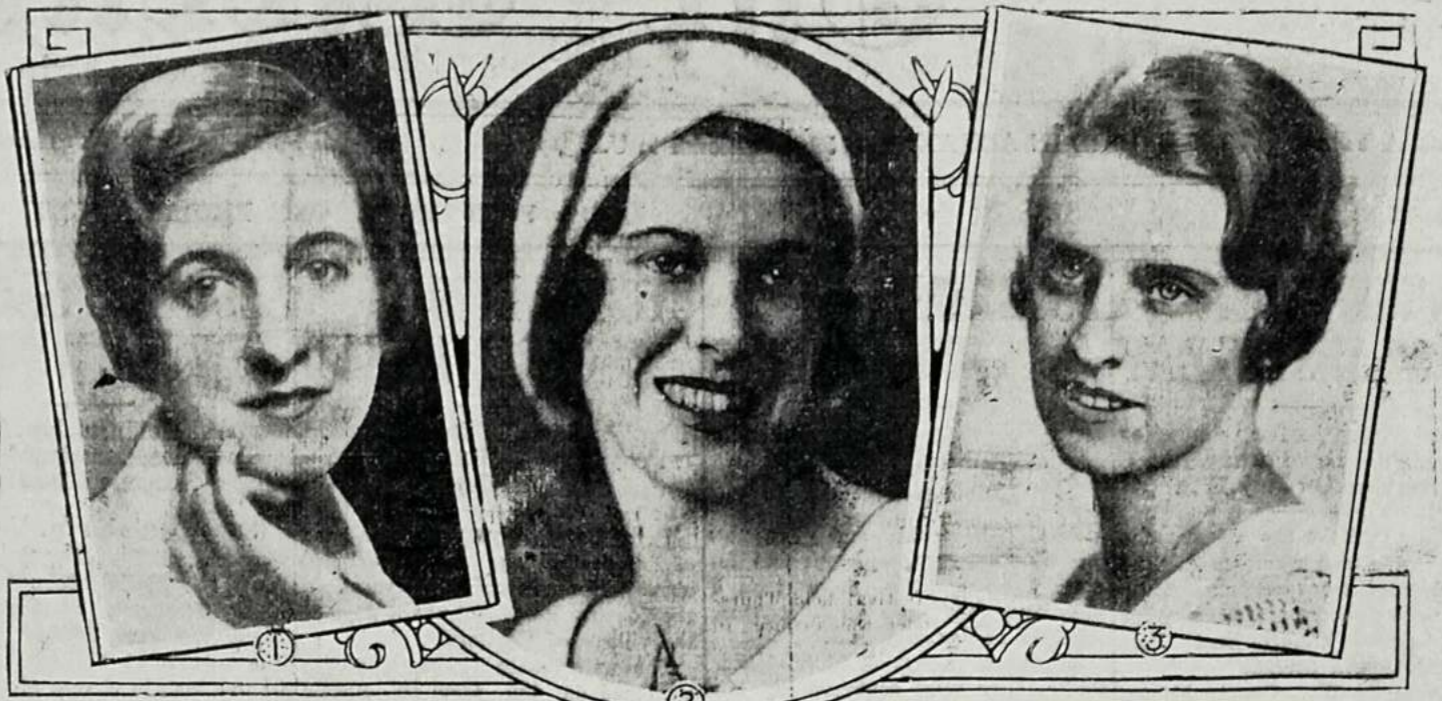

In recent years there has been a remarkable increase in the wild life of the park. It is estimated that the number of bighorn sheep has doubled within the past few years in the Athabaska valley. They are especially numerous at Pochabontas, Interlaken, Brazeau river, Snake Indian valley, Moose Horn creek and Southesk river. Rocky Mountain goat are numerous and are spreading to new ranges in the park. The largest herds of these animals are to be found at Shale Banks, Smoky river, Colin valley, Maligne lake, Whistler mountain and Circus Valley.

Elk, moose, deer and caribou are seen in large numbers throughout the park. The elk, which had so nearly been exterminated a few years ago, have increased to such an extent that they are spreading their range in many directions. Reports state that they have been seen as far west as McBride, British Columbia, on the Canadian National Railways, which is one hundred miles west of the park. Moose are also increasing in numbers, especially in the northern part of the park, which is heavily timbered and well suited to the needs of this animal. Deer in the park are rapidly increasing in numbers. Caribou are spreading throughout the park and overflowing from the Smoky River area into British Columbia, as far south as the Canadian National Railways line. The main herds are about Byng pass, Twin Tree lake, Tonquin and Circus valleys, Smoky river, Brazeau valley, Upper Snaring river, Dominion creek and Miette valley.

There has been a large increase in the number of bears, especially in the immediate vicinity of Jasper. There are many beaver colonies in the park and the animals are increasing rapidly in numbers. The beaver constitute one of the numerous attractions at Lac Beauvert, where visitors in the evening hours catch glimpses of them in their home waters.

Railroads that go through the American southwest are experimenting with air-cooled trains, to eliminate discomfort in crossing the desert.

THE LION ON THE LAWN

The dandelion was cleverly called "the tooth of the Lion" in the original French from whence comes the name. It has long, deep, tapering roots which, if broken off, have the capacity to form new leaves and plants. Once thoroughly established on a lawn, dandelions are most difficult to eradicate. To the distracted home beautifier, they are indeed like lion's teeth chewing up the beloved handiwork.

There are two effective ways of exterminating the weeds and both require considerable time and patience. The first is by trying to poison them off with sprays; the second, and most efficient in the long run, is killing them with kindness, that is, by the use of fertilizer. The grass becomes so strong, crowding in under the rosette of the dandelion leaves, that the weeds are forced to give place to the persistent grass, particularly if in a sunny position.

Spraying the lawn repeatedly with sulphate of iron is recommended where the pest is prevalent, a twenty per cent strength being suggested for the sulphate, that is, about 20 pounds in 10 gallons of water. However, many of the leading horticulturists are definitely in favour of the fertilizer system and recommend the stimulation of the grass by repeated applications of sulphate of ammonia. That would be about four applications at least during the season, the first application being made very early in the spring, using about eight pounds of sulphate of ammonia on 1,000 square feet of lawn. It is well to mix the fertilizer with a certain amount of soil in order to get uniform application, and should be applied when the grass is damp. One eminent horticulturist is of opinion that the use of sulphate of iron to kill out dandelions works better with a plant like mustard that does not possess so strong a root system. It may take two or three seasons to clean the lawn by the fertilizer method.

At least temporary relief from drought was provided over wide areas in the Prairie Province by rains during the past week. This was rendered more beneficial by the moderate temperatures, according to the weekly telegraphic crop report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The serious danger from grasshoppers is emphasized and root-rot is reported over a wide area.

CROP REPORT

Extracts From Reports Submitted by Agricultural Representatives Issued by the Ontario Dept. Of Agriculture

Haying operations are in progress in all parts of Southern Ontario and Agricultural Representatives report good progress being made. In a number of counties it is anticipated that the current week will see the completion of haying operations in so far as the first cut is concerned. Rain is still badly needed in many sections. South-Western Ontario, in particular, has been badly hit by the drought. Strawberry patches are reported as "drying-up" in a number of the important producing sections. A number of counties in the Kingston area report a splendid rain in the middle of last week—this has relieved the situation to some extent but more is required if spring crops are to attain normal yields.

WESTERN ONTARIO

HALTON—During the week the extremely dry weather has shortened the strawberry crop tremendously. Early in the week our market broke very badly, owing to the extremely heavy pick but towards the end of the week it strengthened to anywhere from $1.75 to $2.65 for 27 quart crate. A rather significant feature of the strawberry market this year is that the Glen Mary variety has been selling at a very heavy discount in price, ranking on the above scale of about 75c per crate below Premiers of good even quality. Several mills have been in operation in this district lately producing alfalfa meal. The purchasers have been paying from $7 to $8 per ton for alfalfa hay of good quality for this purpose.

HURON — A few apple growers have started the first apple maggot spray and this spray will be applied on all orchards early next week. A good rainfall is needed, particularly in the southern portion of the County as cash crops are suffering from lack of moisture.

WELLINGTON—The weather has continued dry with some fairly cold weather. Light frosts the latter part of last week and early this week have injured some corn, also some potatoes and in a few cases some garden crops.

SOUTHERN ONTARIO

BRANT—Local areas are very badly in need of rain. Crops are showing effects of drought and unless rain is received very soon much of spring crops will be of little value. Berry crops and pastures are drying up very rapidly.

HALDIMAND — Several reports have reached the office to the effect that Hessian fly is doing considerable damage to fall wheat. Haying is well advanced and will be largely completed by the end of the month.

LAMBTON—Clover hay is 75% harvested. The crop will average a little better than one ton per acre. The clover is a thick stand, but short. Spring grains do not amount to much. Rain at this date will not give an average crop, but a 24 hour good rain would be welcomed. Fall wheat is rusting badly in some sections. Several carloads of export cattle left the county this week. The farmers' cash receipts at this season are derived from butterfat at 20c pound delivered and 18c on the road; eggs, 14, 11 and 8c dozen.

LINCOLN—Strawberries have advanced sharply in price within the last two days, principally on account of the very short crop in other districts such as Essex and Norfolk counties. The late crop in the Niagara District is likely to be very good and growers with late soils will benefit thereby. Several carload shipments have been made to Winnipeg, using the G. G. basket and good returns are expected.

OXFORD—The extreme heat of a few weeks back, followed by extreme cold and then heat again, without moisture, has considerably shortened the hay crop, and unless we get rain soon will affect the grain crops.

CENTRAL ONTARIO

HASTINGS—Hay cutting has been general during the week and 25% of the crop is cut. Indications are that the crop will be greatly reduced owing to dry weather but yields will be better than last year. Pastures are short and in need of rain.

MUSKOKA and PARRY SOUND—Hay crop does not look as promising as earlier in season. In the north end of the district, particularly, rain is needed badly. Much of new seeding, however, promises excellent yields and the hay crop should be about average. Grains also need rain, but have not suffered seriously to date. Apparently there is going to be a good crop of fruits, particularly wild fruits.

ONTARIO—Fall wheat is beginning to color a little and looks very well, although crops of all kinds are suffering from drouth. Haying is in full swing with a good crop but not as heavy as anticipated. Mangel crop in Ontario County will be a short one this year as a great many fields have been plowed up and sowed to turnips or buckwheat.

PRINCE EDWARD — Scattered showers were of considerable benefit this week. However a heavy rain is very badly needed. The crop of canning peas will be very light due to the dry weather. This also applies to the majority of strawberry patches. One factory commenced canning peas on the 22nd. This is the earliest in years.

EASTERN ONTARIO

DUNDAS—Some very heavy fields of Alfalfa and clover have been cut and are being well saved. Seeding was finished and haying started the same week on many farms. Apples are making good growth and the set of McIntosh shows much better since the fruit is getting a little size. Fameuse and Wealthy are being thinned in a few of the better orchards. Live stock in good condition but this cannot be maintained for long if pastures continue to suffer from lack of rain. It is very dry in many sections.

FRONTENAC — Even though hog prices are comparatively low, farmers are taking a greater interest in this class of livestock. A large number of select sows have been placed in the county and we hope for improvement in the percentage of selects marketed in the future. The heavy rain Wednesday evening will mean thousands of dollars to the farmers in the county. It is the first real rain the county has had since the middle of April. Pastures, spring grains and all crops are looking entirely different and should come along and yield a fair crop in spite of the drought.

LANARK—Haying is general over the county. Alfalfa is an average crop. Timothy and clover meadows are short and light owing to lack of rain. Milk production is down from last year due to poor pastures. Cheese factory production is down about 10% from this time last year.

LEEDS—A good shower Wednesday, which was fairly general over the county, somewhat relieved the drought conditions. Spring grains are suffering for lack of sufficient moisture. Alfalfa in most cases is good. Milk production is falling.

LENOX & ADDINGTON — Hay crop is much below normal with alfalfa making the best showing and, provided good weather is obtained, farmers will look for 3 cuttings. It is hoped that Wednesday's rain will be followed by others but at the present time milk production is still falling. Acme Farmers' Dairy on Friday reported a falling-off of 12,000 lbs. since the same day two weeks previous. On Wednesday a good rain was had over the whole county with the exception of one township in the south-east corner. Generally speaking there was very slight damage from this storm. Hail was reported in one small strip near Odessa but, taken altogether, the county had a "million dollar rain."

PRESOTT and RUSSELL—Other cases of rabies broke out in the L'Orignal District. Dairy cattle and hogs are being affected. The quarantine will not be lifted for another three or four months at least.

CROP REPORT

General

Continued heat is causing serious damage to crops in the Southern and Central areas of all three Prairie Provinces and damage from the grasshopper pest is severe in certain districts. In the northern sections, however, conditions generally are favourable. Growth is backward over large areas of the three Provinces and rain and cooler weather are needed. In Quebec lack of moisture except in a few districts, is retarding growth, with the result that crops generally are only in fair condition. In Ontario prolonged dry weather has given a setback in many districts to prospects for favourable crops. In the Maritime Provinces all crops show satisfactory growth, but warm dry weather is needed. In British Columbia unsettled weather has been general and growth has been slow.

Prairie Provinces

ALBERTA NORTH-EASTERN AREA—Summer fallow wheat is in shot blade. Growth is slow. ALBERTA SOUTHEASTERN AREA—Rains have relieved the parched crops in some sections, but more moisture is needed. ALBERTA WESTERN AREA—Heavy rains have fallen in the Lethbridge district, with showers in areas where the need for moisture is urgent. Some wheat is in shot blade, but growth is backward. The Peace River territory has received heavy rains. The sugar beet crop shows a good stand. SASKATCHEWAN NORTH-EASTERN AREA—Wheat is making rapid progress except in the west central section, where burning is apparent. Coarse grains are promising. SASKATCHEWAN SOUTHERN AREA—Heat has damaged crops and their condition is only fair. Wheat in some fields is heading out prematurely. Grasshoppers in some sections are difficult to control. Rains are needed. Coarse grains are deteriorating. MANITOBA—There has been further deterioration in the Central and Southern areas due to continued drought. Grasshoppers are causing damage in certain localities. Wheat is heading out at average height of 12 to 15 inches. Coarse grains are backward. Moisture is needed in most sections.

Province of Quebec

Warmer weather has been beneficial but may be particularly in need of rain and prospects are that the crop will be under average. Apple orchards promise well. A light crop of small fruits is anticipated. Grass pastures are in fair condition.

Province of Ontario

Harvesting of a heavy hay crop will be completed in several counties during the current week. Pasture lands are affected by the lack of moisture and rain is urgently needed to prevent drying up. Fall wheat is commencing to colour but due to the heat and dry weather has not filled properly in some localities. Root crops, tomatoes and strawberries have also been affected by deficient precipitation. Tobacco production will be decreased unless frequent showers are forthcoming shortly. Present indications point to a good grape crop.

Maritime Provinces

A good hay crop is in prospect. Potatoes are making good progress. Fruit trees are setting well and prospects are promising. Grass pastures are in good condition. Province of British Columbia Haying has commenced in some districts, the crop is estimated at 85% of average. Grain crops are developing satisfactorily. Tomatoes, potatoes and onions are doing well and good average crops are expected. Fruit trees are in good condition. Apples and cherries are estimated to yield 85% of average. Small fruits have suffered from lack of sunshine and crops are very light. Pasturage is plentiful.

NEWS BUDGET FROM CANTON

Successful Strawberry Festival Farewell To Rev. Doggett And His Induction

With liberal servings of strawberries, sugar and cream unstinted, limited in number only by capacity of consumer all without extra cost, small wonder Canton festivals are so famous.

An unanticipated attraction in the sports line was the baseball game between Morrish team and Canton with the visitors being victorious.

There were no vacant seats in the auditorium at the evening entertainment and of this program it may be truly said that the pleasures of realization equalled those of anticipation.

Only a captious critic would have aught but praise for those presenting the play "Eyes of Love."

From first to last the interest of the audience never flagged. Where all the actors presented their parts so excellently it would be unfair to make comparisons, yet judging from the ovation she received when she appeared at the commencement of the last act "Carolina" seemed a mile more intriguing to the popular fancy. The between acts program consisted of songs by Mr. W. Bickle, a piano duet by Miss Kathleen Doggett and Miss Mildred Bickle and best of all a vocal solo "A Page's Road Song" (Ivor Novello) by Mrs. A. S. Doggett.

Farewell Sermon

Rev. A. S. Doggett preached his farewell sermon last Sunday morning before an unusually large congregation and more than ordinarily excellent was his discourse, based on Paul's question to certain disciples at Ephesus "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?"

And long will the melodious memory linger in the hearts of those who heard the duet, a portion of the twenty-third psalm sung by Mrs. Doggett and Mr. W. Bickle, as part of the praise service.

Mrs. Doggett's beautiful voice which she has so freely given to enhance the effectiveness of the church services or to increase the enjoyment of social occasions and her gracious personality will be everywhere sadly missed but what Canton has lost Oshawa has gained.

Induction Service

The induction of Rev. A. S. Doggett into the pastorate of Albert Street and Cedarvale Ave. churches, Oshawa, took place on Friday evening, June 30. Rev. George McQuade presided. The other ministers taking part in the service were Rev. Mr. Totten, Myrtle, and Rev. Mr. Richards, Whitby.

Picnic Supper

The Sunshine Weavers Class farewelled one of their members, Miss Kathleen Doggett, by a picnic supper held at Sylvan Glen on Tuesday evening to which the Comarades Class was invited.

The boys played ball or went swimming while the girls were preparing supper. After tea all joined in playing games till twilight fell when they rested and enjoyed the music furnished by the victrola which Mr. J. Bourne had kindly brought with him. But ere the shadows deepened Miss Aline Athey on behalf of the Weavers presented Miss Kathleen Doggett with a beautifully bound birthday book accompanied by the following address read by the Class President, Miss Marjorie Austin.

Dear Kathleen:— "As President of the Sunshine Weavers Class of which you are a member I have been requested by our teacher, Mrs. W. Barrie, to offer you a slight token of our affection and regard before your departure from our midst.

"I cannot tell you how delighted I am to be the means of conveying to you the expression of our united love. "What we offer you is a poor symbol of our feelings, but we know you will receive it kindly as a simple indication of the attachment which each one of us cherishes for you.

"We could not consent to part with you without leaving in your hands some memento however trifling. May we part friends and may you carry with you pleasant memories of our teacher and classmates here.

"Please accept with our little present our earnest good wishes."

Signed, MARJORIE AUSTIN,

On behalf of the class. Miss Doggett made suitable reply.

Personals

Mrs. W. Harris, Toronto, with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Howard Harris and her little daughter, Marjorie Jean, Winnipeg, were recent guests for some days at Maplehurst, the Harris homestead. Miss Jessie Hawkins, Port Hope, was week-end guest of Mrs. M. Bickle.

Mrs. R. V. Wallace was in Toronto over the week-end attending the Toronto District Convention of the Church of Jesus Christ and of the Latter Day Saints.

Mr. J. F. Hawkins returned last week from a trip through the Prairie Provinces and part of British Columbia.

Last week Miss Bertha L. Cooper, accompanied by Mr. Ronald Doggett motored to Lucan on business and on Thursday of this week Miss Cooper left for Prescott where she will remain for some time.

Condemns Cigarettes

At the recent meeting of Presbytery held in Camborne United Church the following resolutions were passed:—

"Whereas the smoking of cigarettes by teen boys and girls is such a recognized evil that we already have in our statutes a law forbidding the sale of same to those under the age of 16 years, we therefore strongly recommend the Social Service Department of our Church to urge the government to exert its full power to prevent the sale of cigarettes to those under the already mentioned age.

"Whereas the smoking of tobacco by many of the ministers and lay members of our church is, we believe a strong influence for evil, we earnestly recommend the Social Service Department of our Church to bring before its members the great need of abstaining from the use of that which is a proven evil to our young people."

LATE BLIGHT AND ROT OF POTATOES

(Experimental Farms Note)

Late blight and tuber rot is the most widely distributed and economically most destructive disease of the potato crop. Partly by destroying the plants before the crop has time to mature and partly by rotting the potatoes, this disease is frequently responsible for a twenty-five per cent reduction in yield.

The name late blight is used for this disease to distinguish it from the leaf disease known as early blight and due to the fungus Alternaria solani. Early blight shows up early in the growing season as dry, brownish spots marked with several rings.

Late blight appears on the leaves and stems later in the season and may be recognized in its early stages as scattered spots, very dark in colour, invariably becoming water soaked in appearance. These spots spread causing the destruction of the affected plants. Upon examination of the under surface of the leaves there will be seen a greyish-white mildew which forms a delicate ring surrounding the blighted area. This is the fruiting stage of the fungus and is composed of countless numbers of spores. These spores fall on the top of the ground and during rainy weather they are washed into the soil where they come into contact with the tubers, setting up the rot so well known at digging time and later in storage. An affected tuber at the point of infection becomes chocolate brown in colour, very soon shrinking and becoming hardened. Upon cutting into such tubers it will be seen that the flesh underlying the diseased areas is marked with rusty brown spots, a condition frequently extending around the margin.

INSURANCE TIME LIMIT AUG. 31ST

Applications Must Be Made By That Date, Legion Advises

The Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion wishes to advise every ex-service man that the time limit for making application under the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act expires Aug. 31 next. No application will be received after this date.

The Act provides for the making of insurance contracts with any returned soldier or widow domiciled and resident in Canada, for the payment of $500 or any multiple thereof up to $5,000 in the event of the death of the insured. Medical examination is not required unless the health of the applicant is seriously impaired. The rates for the insurance are very low and premiums may be paid in small monthly instalments which may be deducted from pension if the applicant is a pensioner. Disability benefit provisions are included to cover total and permanent disability from causes other than war service.

Applications for insurance may be made directly to the commissionaire, Returned Soldiers' Insurance, Ottawa, or to certain district offices of the Department of Pensions and National Health throughout the Dominion.

and later involving the entire potato.

Late blight can be successfully combated by spraying the potatoes with Bordeaux mixture made up of 4 pounds of copper sulphate, 4 pounds of hydrated lime (highest purity) and 40 imperial gallons of water. For full particulars as to making Bordeaux write to the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology, Charlottetown.

In attacking the late blight problem one should bear in mind that thoroughness in spraying is absolutely essential for good results. Additional points of importance are as follows:

1. Spray before blight appears.
2. Spray before it rains, giving the spray a short period for drying. It will not wash off.
3. Spray all parts of the plants above ground and maintain high pressure.

OTHER EDITORS' OPINIONS

A RECORD YEAR

It is not surprising to find that 1932 proved the record year since the war for Red Cross work in Canada.

The Red Cross Society always meets the challenge of an emergency, such as this prolonged period of depression, with a courage and a determination that drive it to greater activity.

Thus for the first time since the war the expenditures of the Canadian Red Cross last year exceeded the million dollar mark, the exact figure being $1,056,307, while the receipts amounted to $965,257, this latter item being an increase of $136,568 over the year previous.

The principal increases reported in expenditures were in connection with soldiers' work and general relief, in health work and in the service to crippled children.

The needs of ex-service men and their dependents and the welfare of disabled soldiers in hospital represented an expenditure of $228,715.

The Red Cross last year spent $235,000 on the maintenance of the 45 outpost hospitals through the Dominion, which institutions gave expert hospital care to 22,781 patients.

The Junior Red Cross work made rapid strides as will be seen from the fact that between September, 1932, and March, 1933, 8,244 branches were organized and 258,409 school children enrolled under the Red Cross banner.

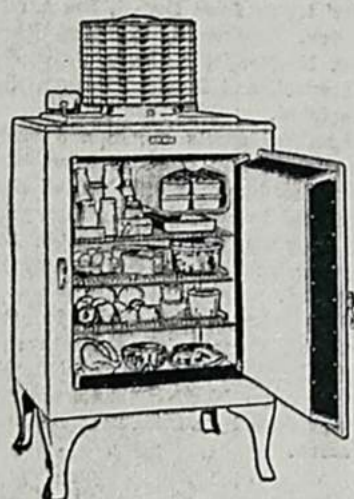

Home nursing classes flourished, 99 classes, comprising, 1,880 students, completing courses. Altogether since these classes were inaugurated in 1924, no fewer than 22,389 Canadian women and girls have profited from the knowledge gained through the Red Cross teaching.

Relief measures naturally occupied a considerable share of the organization's attention, and 150,000 people were given relief assistance, shelter, food, clothing, etc. The society's expenditures for this purpose amounted to $290,403, as compared with $12,292 for the same work in 1929.—Peterboro Examiner.

TRIALS OF A TOWNSHIP TREASURER

Oh! The treasurer has woes which nobody knows except the poor mortal himself; when his township's in debt, he may worry and sweat, till he's ready to climb on the shelf; when the bank manager knocks he must sit on the box where the ratepayer's money should be, and just whistle and laugh and throw off some chaff and tell him some tales of the sea.

When he goes to the phone to call up the zone in which his collector is dwelling, he hears some good dame who is just slightly lame, tell her friend that her tendons are swelling; then the measles and mats and the new-fangled hats come rolling right into the picture; how the chickens are hatching and the young couples are matching—it's sure a conglomerous mixture. Then he gets a big ride from the whole countryside about percentages placed on the taxes; there's talk of big mallets and marking their ballots and grinding and sharpening their axes. They have a big hunch they will fire the whole bunch who are causing the township such losses, while the heart-broken dog who is keeping their log becomes poorer each day in process.—Municipal World.

TELLS OFFICIALS OF EXAM LEAK

G. E. Evans, Former Port Hope Principal, Supplied Information To Queen's Park

A former principal of the Port Hope High School, G. E. Evans, is stated to have been the one to inform Toronto authorities that thefts had occurred regarding middle school examination papers in Toronto, a case which has aroused widespread interest. While Provincial Police and authorities of the Department of Education are reticent in discussing the matter it has been learned that the stealing and selling of examination papers have much wider ramifications than at first believed, and that Upper School as well as Middle School papers are involved. It is reported that these papers have been sold in collegiates both in York County and Toronto. Department of Education and authorities say they have no knowledge that Upper School papers are concerned.

John Rule, and John Pyne, the former a government employee and the latter a student at Vaughan Road Collegiate, Toronto, appeared in Toronto court yesterday on a charge of conspiring to steal Middle School papers. They were remanded until June 30th bail set at $1,000.

According to certain information which has been confirmed, it was Principal George E. Evans of Vaughan Road Collegiate, Toronto, who advised the Queen's Park authorities that papers had been stolen. Mr. Evans is a former Principal of the Port Hope High School, being succeeded by Dr. J. F. Thompson. And the manner in which he became aware of it was when a fifth form girl was approached to buy copies of the papers. She refused and told her teacher, Miss Elsie Tighe, who told Mr. Evans.

Spoken to Wednesday evening Mr. Evans declined to be quoted on the subject. He admitted that the report as to how the matter had come to his attention was a correct one, but declined to say whether or not it was an upper school paper which was involved. As to the price of $7.50 said to have been asked for a set of the papers, he had no knowledge. Once it came to his attention he turned it over to the authorities at Queen's Park and since then the investigation has been in their hands. Pyne, it is reported, and Mr. Evans did not dispute it, has been absent from school for the most part of the last month, it being alleged that he spent a part of this time in disposing of the papers.

CHILDREN ARE ISSUED WARNING

Dangers Are Outlined By Ontario Safety League — Care Is Urged

A special word of warning to the thousands of school children now launched upon their holidays is issued by the Ontario Safety League.

"Take no chances with automobiles or motor vehicles; keep off the travelled portions of the streets and highways as much as possible, so as not to be run down," is the advice given boys and girls. "Cross with signals at intersections, and when walking on highways which are not provided with sidewalks, walk on the left side facing traffic or approaching drivers."

Regarding the danger of drowning, the Ontario Safety League urges young people "not to forget and rush into the water during a hot spell, to bathe and swim in protected areas only and in company with an older person, and under no circumstances to go into the water less than an hour after eating."

The warning of the Ontario Safety League is also directed against children playing with fires and firearms, and the danger of playing or loitering on railway property.

WEDDING BELLS

LOWE—ROWSON

The marriage of Violet May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rowson, Port Hope, to William Henry Lowe, son of Mrs. Margaret Lowe, Ellen Street, Port Hope, took place very quietly at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. C. Minaker, King Street, on Saturday, July 1st. Rev. A. G. Emmet officiated.

The bride was gowned in periwinkle blue crepe with white accessories and wore a corsage bouquet of sweet peas and fern. Later, the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City. On their return, they will reside in Port Hope.

GROOME—SCULLY

The marriage of Lucy Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Scully of Toronto, to Charles J. Groome of Port Hope, was solemnized in St. Theresa's Church, Long Branch. Rev. Father Olaney officiated. The bride, given away by her brother, Mr. William B. Scully, wore a gown of blue lace and large picture hat. She wore a corsage of roses and lily-of-the-valley. Her bridesmaid, Miss Lucy Renton, niece of the bride, was in powder-blue taffeta, with hat to match, and carried a spray of lily-of-the-valley and roses. Mr. Herbert Briggs was the groomsmen, and the ushers were Mr. W. G. Renton and Mr. George Renton. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride. The couple left for an extended motor tour to Muskoka, the bride travelling in a white ensemble. On their return they will reside in Port Hope.

TAYLOR—SEARLES

A very pretty home wedding was solemnized at five o'clock Wednesday afternoon, June 14th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Searles, Albion, N.Y., when their daughter, Freeda Loraine, became the bride of John D. Taylor, of Sycamore, Illinois. The bride wore a simple gown of white triple sheer crepe and a veil of tulle, and carried an arm bouquet of roses. The maid of honor was gowned in rose crepe and carried sweet peas.

Following the ceremony, a two course lunch was served to immediate relatives and near friends of the bride and groom.

The bride graduated with honors from the Lyle High School with the class of 1926, and also from Winona State Teachers College. She has taught successfully the past five years, the last two at Hollandale, Minn. She has countless friends wherever she is known.

The groom is a son of Mrs. David Thompson, of Albion, N.Y., who was formerly Mrs. Marvin Taylor and resided on Walton street, Port Hope, with her family. John Taylor was well known here having attended the local schools. As well, the family lived in Cobourg for a time. Mr. Taylor is the pastor of the Baptist Church at Sycamore, Ill.

The quality and number of exhibits surpassed that of any previous show and it is indeed encouraging to the members of the society who are carrying on this beautifying and worthy work.

The judging was done by Harry Mitchell and the committee in charge of the show included George Mizen, chairman; Miss K. Baines, K. Schweickert, M. U. Ferguson and Ralph Hodgson. First prizes for the various classes were flower cases donated by the Society, while second and third prizes, consisted of ribbons.

The results were as follows:—
6 hybrid tea roses—1st, Miss M. Garnett; 2nd, Miss M. Hume; 3rd, J. LaJoie.

6 hybrid peonials—1st, Mrs. J. Sewell; 2nd, Miss M. Hume.

The Guide Story

With that Morgan took herself off and Margaret went in to see if she could do anything for her charge, and found plenty, for Lillian was standing helplessly in the middle of the room, not attempting to lift a finger towards making her toilet in any way.

Young and inexperienced as she was, it was something of a puzzle to Margaret to know how best to deal with an invalid of this sort, but, bracing herself up for an ordeal, she said, with quite cheerfulness—

"Tired after your journey, are you Miss Bennett? Would you not like to have a wash and tidy-up?"

Being met with neither "Yes" nor "No," she began to remove the other's hat and coat and then—with some anxiety—the shade from the invalid's eyes, and was greatly relieved to find no disfigurement, only Lillian winced visibly, at the strong light.

She did not in the least resemble her handsome half-brother; nevertheless, she must have been pretty enough before her accident, with that dainty nose and chin, and a sweet mouth that now had a too pathetic droop in the corners. But the poor eyes were dull and faded, and her skin a sort of deadly white, at which Margaret wondered, though she was to know the reason of that whiteness till later.

It was a comfort to find Lillian made no resistance to anything she did; even washed her own face and hands at the other girl's suggestion, and let her brush the soft brown hair before trying on the shade again; and as she brushed, Margaret said gently—

"Nice hair you have, Lillian. May I call you Lillian? When you are in quite good health it must be very pretty, with that natural wave in it."

At which words, to her surprise and delight, the other turned and put her arms round her neck, saying—

"Oh, I like you! You are quiet and good—I am sure you are good. And you may call me anything you like. But don't let Eustace know!" she added, dropping her voice to a whisper. "Nurse and Morgan treat me as if I were a baby—but Eustace! I am afraid of Eustace!"—giving a glance over her shoulder that made Margaret feel quite "creepy."

But she shook off the feeling and said brightly—

"I am so glad you like me—I'll do my very best to be good to you. Now, shall we go down and see if tea is ready, and afterwards come upstairs and do our unpacking?"

For if she had no experience Margaret had plenty of common sense, and guessed shrewdly that if anyone was a bit "queer" the best way to treat them was to pretend they were not queer at all, but let them do what they could for themselves, and try to interest them in everyday, simple things.

So hand-in-hand they went downstairs, Margaret's kind heart going out warmly to the poor girl, who already trusted and liked her. If that feeling lasted it would make all the difference to the rather difficult task she had undertaken.

By the time they reached a charming room that looked right over the harbour mouth, there was spread the most delicious and dainty "high-tea" that Margaret had beheld this many a long day.

Ham and eggs, brown bread-and-butter, honey cakes—it seemed too good to be true; and she had just noticed the table was laid for three when Morgan came in and announced, with her characteristic giggle—

"I hope you won't mind my being with you, Miss Mayne, but Stiff-and-Starch said she and her husband prefer to be alone. I suppose she was afraid of my giving him 'the glad eye.' My word, she needn't be! I wouldn't be seen speaking to him out of doors—not if he was the last man alive!"

"If it is agreeable to Miss Bennett, I shall be glad to have you with us, Morgan," returned Margaret pleasantly, taking no notice of the other remarks; "and as I am no hand at carving, perhaps you would cut the ham while I make tea."

It is true she had never had a chance on carving large joints, but as a matter of fact she wanted to give her attention to Lillian, to see how she got on with eating, drinking, and the rest; and she was dismayed to see how little the young invalid did, eat, in comparison with herself, latter that long journey. One cup of tea, one thin slice of bread-and-butter, and part of an egg, was all she could be prevailed on to swallow; and even over than she lingered a long while.

"Nurse said she picked like a sparrow," announced Morgan, as she nodded unconcernedly towards Lillian as if the latter could neither see nor hear. "I say a sparrow would turn up its beak at the bit she puts out of sight."

"The sea air ought to give an appetite," said Margaret, adding, remorsefully, "I could spare her a little—I'm as hungry as a hunter."

"Oh, well, you can do with some feeding up," replied Morgan; adding, with a significant glance at the black frock. "Guess you've had a bit of a rough time, or you'd never have taken on a job like this."

"It was my mother I lost," returned Margaret, in a low tone, and then, to change the conversation, added, "Have you been long with Mr. and Miss Bennett?"

"No, only about two months—soon after the accident. Lucky I shaved Mr. Bennett got back from Egypt just before that happened, wasn't it? They got me in to wait on Madame Nurse, I think she was the sort that makes work, she was, and I guess I'll be leaving now, anyway; don't greatly fancy staying on here—with a more thoughtful expression than Margaret had yet noticed on her face, though at the awkwardness of the remark she hastened to say—

"I'm sorry for that. I was hoping Mr. Bennett might find you down again to see how we are getting on."

"Not much"—shaking her head. "But I tell you what; when I'm fixed somewhere I'll send you along a pic-c to cheer you up in this dull hole, and give you my address. Then, if you're feeling you can't stick it longer, maybe I can give you a leg-up somewhere else."

"Hush," warned Margaret, with a sidelong glance at Lillian, and feeling hugely uncomfortable at the frank speeches made under her very nose. "I am here for as long as Miss Bennett cares to keep me; but it will be kind of you to send the post-card and I shall like to have your address."

"Right. If that gary eye-doctor comes down to see his patient you may alter your mind, for he'll give you the creeps, sure. He's not a scrap like that other bit of all right."

"Hush," again warned Margaret, in a low tone, her colour rising; for, though Morgan had dropped her voice to a whisper it must have been audible to that third girl for all she sat so silent and listless. "You ought not to be saying such things."

"Wouldn't be me if I didn't say what I think right out," returned Morgan, with a shrug of her saucy shoulders. "But this ham's real jam, so I'll stop my mouth with another slice of it"—and to Margaret's relief she really did cease from making any more awkward remarks.

However, for all the girl's pertness and want of tact it was with an uncomfortable qualm of loneliness that Margaret saw her off the following morning by the steam-launch that had brought them over from Harbour Town on the previous day.

It had been in her mind that she and Lillian might cross over with Doris to the station, and after that perhaps explore the old town a little before returning to the island. But when she spoke of this to the man he shook his head.

"You can go over, if you like, missie, but I can't bring you back. I've got to go on to Rivermouth to another party who's bespoke me. Mr. Bennett chartered me special for yesterday and again this morning to fetch this young lady. Nothin' doing after that."

"Oh, well, but you could surely take Miss Bennett and me across now and some other launch, or boat could bring us back," said Margaret, with a touch of dignity.

But the man shook his head.

"Private property, missie, that there island. No one is allowed to put in there or to land anything from a boat, except by the owner's special orders. Of course, if you have a permit—"

"My. Looks as if you're going to be a prisoner, Miss Mayne," interrupted Morgan, with an annoying giggle that brought the hot colour to Margaret's face, but she kept her voice quiet as she said—

"Of course, if we can't go across to-day, we can't, so you must see yourself off, Morgan. There is evidently some little misunderstanding which Mr. Bennett will not want when he comes down later. Please tell him that everything has gone quite right so far."

But for all her brave words her heart misgave her as she waved a final good-bye to Morgan, being rapidly borne away on the neat little launch.

Suppose it was not a mistake? Suppose Eustace Bennett had meant, literally, to keep her and his sister practically prisoners on that tiny island for a full year?

But it couldn't be. It surely couldn't be! What possible reason could he have? Why there, within a few yards of Lillian and herself, where they stood on the wide steps lapped by the rising tide, boats of every sort and description were going to and fro. Rowing boats, hydro-racers, fairy yachts, stately old-fashioned barques and brigs—while on the headland yonder, with less than a quarter of a mile of racing current between, stood an up-to-date hotel, where dozens of people were going in and out, free as air—bathing, boating, lounging; while on this small island of only nine miles round—

Margaret shook herself free from ugly little thoughts starting up within her. She had to think of the silent girl by her side; while her heart might travel, swift as wireless, to the lover who knew where she was, and would certainly find out a way to come and see her, sooner or later. So she roused herself, to say cheerfully—

"Well, Lillian, since we cannot get across to the mainland to-day, suppose we prow about the island, shall we, and see what it is like?"

"Whatever you like, Margaret," came the soft reply. Then, as if she had been a child, Lillian slipped her hand into hers, and Margaret nodded to herself, well pleased, for those were almost the first words the invalid had spoken that morning. Easy to understand how the lively Morgan might jar on such a nervous wreck!

CHAPTER IV.

If it was a prison it was a very charming prison. Never since her childhood had Margaret had a chance to hear the call of the cuckoo and the song of the wild birds; but there were many on Tamarisk Island, and their music sent thrills of delight through every fibre of her being as they wandered along a little lane where rhododendrons, ferns and fuchsias grew down to the water's edge.

"Oh, Lillian, how lovely!" she exclaimed. "I never knew flowers grew anywhere close down to the sea like this. And the birds—did you ever hear anything like the birds?"

"I am happy if you are happy, Margaret," said the other, as slipping her hand within Margaret's arm, she raised her face and the girl's lips met in so warm a kiss that from that hour onward real affection, as well as duty, bound Margaret to her charge.

Afraid to fire the invalid, she was careful not to go far from the house, so, after strolling or sitting about all the morning, without meeting a soul, when Mrs. Taylor brought in their mid-day meal she seized the opportunity to say—

"We did not go far, so did not meet anyone this morning; but I suppose there are other people living on this island?"

"On the far side," came the short reply, with a jerk of the thumb over her shoulder; "four-and-a-half miles away."

"Four-and-a-half miles!" exclaimed Margaret blankly. "Good gracious me. But what about buying stamps and going to church?"

"Boat, I suppose, to the mainland," said Mrs. Taylor curtly.

"But where from?" she asked eagerly. "The man who fetched Morgan wouldn't take us over, because he said he couldn't bring us back."

Mrs. Taylor's eyes, never meeting hers, wandered over the table, as if to make sure nothing more was needed, and she said in the same short tone—

"Best ask Mr. Bennett when he comes down; it's not for me to interfere with his arrangements;" and with that she went out of the room closing the door behind her.

Margaret bit her lip, her colour rising, and she glanced at her companion, for the woman's manner had been none too pleasant. Lillian, however, sat so impassive that it seemed quite useless to say anything.

Eustace Bennett might well say she could not spend much money on Tamarisk Island!

One more question, however, she put to Mrs. Taylor, so when that dour person appeared with the pudding, she asked—

"I suppose there is some sort of post office here, or how do letters come and go?"

"Letters? Oh, Mr. Taylor takes them over to the other side of the island every Saturday morning. The post goes and comes there and I think he would buy you a few stamps if you wanted them."

"Every Saturday?" echoed Margaret in dismay, for Saturday was still four days off. "You mean the post only goes and comes once a week?"

But the housekeeper was already out of the room, having taken no notice whatever of this question, so Margaret did not receive enlightenment.

Four days yet before she could send that first precious love letter of hers! Moreover, she did not at all relish the idea of its passing through the hands of this unpleasant couple, and was very glad indeed that she had had ready a post-card written for her landlady—Mrs. Smith—which she had given Morgan to post when she found herself unable to get to the mainland that morning.

She sat thinking very carefully before she put pen to paper to write to her lover on the following day.

Though she had no wish to be uncharitable, she did not feel she could trust that dour Mrs. Taylor, or that seedy husband of hers, who had a sly, shifty way of looking at one out of the corner of his eye. They might not trouble to post her letter, or they might be curious, and open it.

Margaret's lips tightened at the disquieting thought.

Into the hands of-whomsoever it might fall, whatever happened to it, there should be nothing to give her away. So she wrote with the utmost care and caution—

"Dear Doctor Knight—You will have learned from Morgan that we travelled down in safety and comfort and find Tamarisk Island a quite delightful spot."

"Miss Bennett, I am glad to say, already seems a little brighter and better. She has had good sleep and I think her appetite begins to improve."

"The perfect quiet ought to work a cure. The housekeeper tells me our nearest neighbours are about four-and-a-half miles away on the other side of the island, and that her husband fetches and carries the letters once a week."

"It seems there is some sort of regulation that no boat must put in or not except by special permission—but we shall learn more about that when Mr. Bennett pays his promised visit."

"Miss Bennett wishes to be kindly remembered to you; and will you once again, please accept my warmest thanks for having helped me to this post. I am hoping that she and I will soon become the best of best of friends."

"Believe me,

"Sincerely and gratefully yours,

"Margaret Mayne."

Again and again she read over that carefully-written letter. Not a word there, surely, that would give her secret away to prying eyes; and Basil—yes, surely Basil would understand why she had written in so guarded a fashion.

She was not going to hand the letter over to the tender mercies of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor until the time came for posting, so she locked it carefully away.

During the next two days she was rejoiced to see a continued improvement in Lillian in every way; she became brighter and better, ate and talked more, and on Friday morning actually gave a little laugh at something Margaret said.

She, herself, felt and looked like a different being and, had she not feared tiring Lillian, would have tried that four-miles walk to the other side of the island.

As it was, they reached a charming little wood farther than they had ventured before, and, after a rest, were returning from it, hand-in-hand when all at once through the trees Margaret's quick eyes caught sight of a masculine figure strolling towards them; bare-headed, hands in the pockets of his well-cut lounge suit; and for sheer surprise and pleasure at seeing someone from the outside world her heart gave a leap that sent the blood flying to her face.

"Why, look, Lillian, here comes your brother!" she exclaimed. "He will be pleased to find you so much better."

"My brother!" echoed Lillian, faintly. "Eustace here?" and had no time for more before his voice reached them, with a cordial—

"Greeting, sweet babies in the wood! Thought I'd give you a surprise visit, and with that Margaret's hand was shaken warmly and a brotherly kiss was bestowed on the face under the shade. "Well, how goes it with both of you? I need scarcely ask you, Miss Mayne—his eyes resting in open admiration on Margaret's improved appearance.

"And you, Lillian? Is Tamarisk Island doing all we desire for you?"

"I wonder," came the slow answer, as if the invalid were shrinking back into the shell from which she had begun to come out while along with the other girl. "Margaret, will you tell me how you are getting on?"

It seemed to Margaret that ever so many hands, as the letters have to go four-and-a-half miles to at this reply, but he laughed it off with the words—

"Why, that's a queer answer, old girl! But, since I'm nothing if not obedient, I will ask Miss Mayne, and should be glad to have her report"—with a studied bow in her direction.

Margaret hastened to reply.

"It can be quite satisfactory, I think, Mr. Bennett. Your sister has been having good nights; she certainly eats better than when we came down and seems to me altogether brighter and better in herself."

"Excellent—very excellent!" he commented in a hearty voice, drawing Lillian's hand within his arm, and patting it affectionately. "Best news I've heard in a long time. And you Miss Mayne? Also eating and sleeping well, I hope? Any complaints?"

"My appetite is tremendous, and I am sleeping much better than you," said Margaret. "Complaints? Well, no, certainly not complaints; Mr. Bennett. The island is lovely, and everything very nice, only—"

"Well—only?" he repeated, his blue eyes half shut. "What about 'only'?"

"Why, perhaps Morgan told you that we could not go over to the station the morning she returned, because the man in the launch said he could not bring us back, and Mrs. Taylor said we must ask you about arranging for a boat now and again because of church and shops, letters and things. She says it is over four miles to the other side of the island, and—"

She broke off sharply, for he had put his hands in his pockets and was looking down at her quizzically.

"What ho! Whom have we here! Do I still see before me the quiet, delicate little girl who was so ready to put up with anything and everything—according to her doctor-friend—for the sake of the air, rest, food, and honestly-earned money? And now she has blossomed out so soon into one of your dashing, fly-about young ladies, who cannot live a week without cinemas, best-boys jazz-teas, and—"

"Is that quite fair, Mr. Bennett?" interrupted Margaret, with a dignified lift of her pretty head. "I am not a bit tired, but in the very hurried interview you gave me, I certainly did not understand that your sister and I were to be entirely cut off from the land, without any intercourse with anyone except Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, and no chance of posting or receiving letters except once a week. Supposing anything happened—say, for instance, your sister were taken ill—"

"In that, or any other emergency, the Taylors have orders to signal for a boat," he interrupted, "while it really had not occurred to me that your correspondence would be so pressing. Of course, if it's a case of love-letters—" He broke off with a meaning smile, which called back the colour into Margaret's cheeks—a most becoming colour—so that under his very eyes the pale, worn girl he had engaged so hurriedly seemed developing into something of a beauty. But though his words embarrassed her, she contrived to answer with some spirit, beginning to feel she disliked her employer very much—

"There are other letters besides love-letters, Mr. Bennett."

"Just so; they do come first in the eyes of charming young ladies, so we must endeavour to make some better arrangement about the letters, Miss Mayne. Also, you will remember—will you not?—how I insisted on peace and quiet being so essential for poor Lillian. That was the reason I fixed on this remote spot for her, and chose you because you seemed the ideal girl who would put up with these quiet and peaceful conditions."

Eustace Bennett was very clever, there was no mistake about that! He had contrived to make her feel entirely in the wrong. No doubt he had supposed that, half-starved and penniless as she had been, she would be ready to put up with anything for the sake of the sea-air, good food and money he offered; and the next minute he went on, in an entirely different tone—

"But, having had my little joke, let me tell you that I was just about to suggest that you and Lillian come over with me to Rivermouth, to put in an afternoon with shop-gazing, a concert and tea, so that we might see how it agreed with her and repeat the experiment another time if it does her no harm. What say you?"

"Very nice, indeed," Margaret made herself say quietly, in spite of her natural annoyance as she thought of a postscript she could add to that letter upstairs; and leaving the sister and brother together while dinner was brought in, she found time to scribble hastily—

"Oh, Basil, dear Basil! I thought this letter would be going through ever so many hands, as the letters have to go four-and-a-half miles to

ASK $100,000 FOR LOBSTER BITE

When George de Costa ordered a live lobster in a Chicago cafe he contends he not only got the lobster, but a tweak of the nose. That is why he is suing Nick Cretan, manager of a lobster cafe for $100,000 damages. Here is De Costa with the lobster and the tangled nose.

be posted, and that once only a week! But Mr. Bennett has come down to take his sister and me over to Rivermouth, so I can slip this into a pillar-box myself. Basil, is it really true, or all a dream? It seems such a very long, long time since you told me. What you did tell me! And, Basil, if our letters go astray what shall we do? Whatever I write about another time, I send you all my love now, and sign this one with a kiss,

"Your very own,

"Margaret."

The missive was scarcely finished and sealed before the dinner-bell rang her down, cheeks still flushed with that postscript she had written, so that Eustace Bennett gave her another queer look as she came into the room.

Pretty girls had a great attraction for him, but when he had engaged the pale, wan, half-starved specimen Basil Knight had introduced to her as a suitable companion for Lillian he had never given a thought to her possibly blossoming out into a beauty who might provide some amusement for his leisure hours. However, he was clever enough to see the girl had her reserves; he must not frighten her off by taking undue liberties. So he just made himself extremely pleasant that afternoon, giving her and Lillian a delightful tea and a concert in the famous Winter Gardens, also plenty of locking into the fine shops in which Rivermouth abounded; buying books, papers, stamps, stationery, with the laughing announcement—

BETHEL GROVE

The Sunday School Anniversary services held on Sunday were very successful. At the morning service Mr. Campbell gave a fine address on "the test of endurance." Six primary girls sang very sweetly. The Leaders Class sang, also three Intermediate girls. At the evening service, a large audience listened with great interest to Rev. D. McTavish from Port Hope. Mr. McTavish spoke on "the home." The choir led in the praise. The offerings for the day are to be used for supplies, etc. for the school. Beautiful roses and peonies were nicely arranged around the pulpit.

The Y.P.S. meeting will be withdrawn this week owing to the many festivals, etc. on that date.

OF YOU

Although I sing of hill and plain
Or changeful ways I journey through
However varied is my strain,
My song is still of you!

For you are part of dusk and dawn,
A part of sunshine and star,
And down each clipped and flower-strewn lawn
Where beauty strays, you are.

I find you in the tranquil wood,
And every phase of shore and sea
Is but a new and lovely mood,
Revealing you to me!

My songs may be of many things
That touch my fancy's painted whim;
Of padded feet and painted wings
In forest pathways dim.

Or of the dauntless ships that go
To lands exotic, far and new;
But through my measures you will flow,
My song is still of you!

CALEB

(International Uniform Sunday School Lesson, July 9th)

GOLDEN TEXT: "Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust."—Psalm 40, 4.

LESSON PASSAGE: Joshua 14: 6-14.

He said not, "Thou shalt not be tempted, Thou shalt not be travailed, Thou shalt not be afflicted." But He said, "Thou shalt not be overcome."

—Mother Julian of Norwich. ONE GRAND OLD HERO, 6-8.

A lesson about an old man! Caleb's admirable old age was due to the way he had spent his youth. From youth to age he was a hero. He did not look for the easy places. He sought out the hard places. He took his life in his hand when he went as a spy into the land of Canaan. He was willing to bring in a minority report when the other spies took counsel of their fears. Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown says of Caleb: "This brave, modest, cheerful man, simple and rugged like Adam Bede, holds the centre of the stage through a large part of the book of Joshua. He was a man who had the courage to speak out in direct child-like fashion exactly what he thought. 'Forty years old I was when Moses sent me to spy out the land and I brought him word again as it was in my heart.' He was the real thing, with no taint of pretence or make-believe." He had never ceased to regret that his advice had not been taken, yet he had not allowed his nature to become soured. He is an outstanding example of a man who knows how to grow old gracefully.

CHERISHING A PROMISE, 9

As a reward for his courage as a spy, Moses had promised Caleb that the land he had marked out would be given to him. Through the long years of delay, he had held to this promise of his trusted leader, Moses. He felt that to doubt the promise would be to be disloyal to his leader. It is this same kind of faith that a Christian needs to have in Christ. To his followers Christ made certain promises. He promised to be with them. He promised that his kingdom would not fail. There are, oftentimes, dark days of individual experience and periods of stress in world affairs when it is hard for a Christian, not to feel misgivings. Yet we have every reason to trust the word of Christ. He did not make these promises lightly, nor without full knowledge of the evils amid which his followers would have to live. He made them to cheer his followers on and in order that they might be saved by hope, but never to mislead those who have put their trust in him. Amidst the welter of industrial and international "disquiet," Christians have need of patience and faith, but they have no ground for despair. It may appear to be a daring thing to believe in the final victory of this spiritual kingdom, but it is a faith that is justified by the character of Christ.

A YOUNG OLD MAN, 10, 11

Young people should never miss a chance to make friends with the aged, especially with those who though old in years are still young in spirit. Caleb was such a one. He was eighty-five years old, but he still was planning to do new things. His eyes faced the future. The spirit of a pioneer lived within him. What a ring of confidence there is in his words: "As yet I am as strong this day as I was the day that Moses sent me: as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, and to go and to come in." That was not the boasting of an athlete: it was the confidence of a hardy saint whose faith was that the Lord kept him alive. Shakespeare has portrayed the character of a sturdy old man who attributed his strength in age to his clean living in youth. It may be difficult for young people to look fifty years ahead, but there is no question of the fact that the standards of youth determine the lot in old age. Young people who trifle with the laws of health in their twenties will

RAIN NEEDED TO AID CROPS

Two Days' Downfall Required—Pasturage Standing Up Well

Crops in this district are burning up due to lack of rain, farmers throughout the district say. Despite the rain that fell in this district last Wednesday, it was learned, farmers are beginning to take a very dubious attitude as to the success of their crops due to the terrific heat.

It is years, gardeners say, since the drought has been so serious. The early potato crop will amount to little, although the tomato plants are standing up well under the absence of moisture. "We need two days' rain to repair the damage and give our stuff a chance to recover," said one resident.

Although the crops have been hard hit, especially the late grains, the pasturage up to the present has remained good and creameries in the city reported no lessening in the supply of milk.

"GAVE ME THIS MOUNTAIN," 12

Other men might choose the plain, but Caleb asked for the hill. To cultivate the sloping land might be difficult, the warrior of Hebron might attack him, their fenced cities might be difficult to overthrow, but Caleb, old as he was, did not fear to undertake the task. A young man heard a sermon from this text, and it became a proverb in his home. Whenever there was anything hard to do, he would say, "Give me this mountain." When the War came he felt that there was only one course of action. He had no desire to play safe, but he had a consuming desire to play the man. One night in France, a dangerous piece of work was to be done. Volunteers were called for. He stepped out and said, "I'll go, Sir." That was what he said to his company commander. What he said to himself was, "Give me this mountain," and the spirit of his father and mother, his brothers and sisters, seemed to be with him as he said it, because it had been a family proverb. Upon his return from overseas two positions were offered him, one safe and lucrative, the other that of a daring pioneer. Again he turned from the tempting plains to the hills and said, "Give me this mountain." His unselfish youth is fitting him for an old age like that of Caleb. The hard places make the heroes. "Mountains to be mastered by men with hearts like that of Caleb! The strong man of old was found on the mountain-side where the giants of difficulty confronted him, and all strong men march in the same brigade."

A HERO'S REWARD, 13, 14.

In the end Caleb was granted the land he desired. Joshua knew that his claim was just and assigned to him the land of Hebron. Joshua honored the man who had "wholly followed the Lord, the God of Israel." There is something fitting about war veterans being rewarded with gifts of land. They feel that they have a share in the land for which they have suffered, and ownership of land is an incentive to intelligent citizenship.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. Which is the harder test of courage, peace or wartime?
2. Is it reasonable to expect to be as strong at eighty-five as at forty?
3. Caleb thought that God would help him evict the giants. Had God, then, no concern for the welfare of the giants?
4. Should the time of retirement be decided by age or fitness?
5. Was Caleb's motive the desire for "private property?"

Large Crowd in Attendance Dominion Day Celebration

Net Proceeds not yet ascertained but Deficit, if any, will be small—Excellent card of Horse Races with events well filled—One horse died on the track Port Hope Loses to Cobourg in Ball game 12-11.

A large crowd attended the annual Dominion Day Celebration here on Saturday afternoon and an interesting program of sports including horse racing in three classes, baseball and girls' softball was presented. As the various accounts in connection with the day are not as yet in the hands of the treasurer, the financial standing is not yet available but the deficit, if any, will no doubt be small. Many visitors from out of town were present for the occasion and enjoyed the day's events and renewing old acquaintances. The ball games and horse races were the centre of attraction while the vaudeville acts also had a wide following.

The horse races were the best seen here in years and every class was well filled with the finest horses in the district. An unfortunate accident marred an otherwise perfect afternoon of racing when Lou Grattan, owned by C. Schooley, Peterboro, collapsed and died at the end of the second heat as the result of a heart attack. In the first heat the horse threw its driver and toppled off the track into the ditch. The horse returned to its stabling quarters and seemed none the worse for the mishap but after finishing the next heat slumped down and died immediately. The animal is said to have been a valuable one.

The card was featured by a dead heat in the 2:30 class between June Peters, owned by L. Hess, Peterboro and Guesswork, owned by P. A. Morgan, of Campbellford while in the 2:22 class an extra heat was necessary to give Kathleen Grattan a win over Todd Grattan. The complete race results were as follows:—

Baseball

Port Hope was defeated 12-11 in eleven innings by Cobourg in a Lakeshore League game that required three hours and a half to complete. The locals lost the game on several occasions, Cobourg overcoming a three run lead in the ninth to tie the score and win out by the odd run in the eleventh on a wild pitch by Bill Deer who relieved Wakely in the box with two out. Gibson started for Cobourg, and was hit hard until the last of the fifth when he was hoisted in favour of Lefty Campbell who finished the game.

Port Hope had the game in the bag in the ninth inning but Mickey Devine missed an easy fly in left field for the third out with the score 11-8 in Port Hope's favour and Cobourg went on to tie the count and eventually sneak out a win.

The game was marked by heavy hitting, Hudson for Port Hope and Medhurst for Cobourg getting home runs. The latter had five hits in seven times at bat including a homer, two doubles and two singles. Frank Wakely for Port Hope had five singles in six times at bat.

The contest was hot and furious and arguments galore punctuated the proceedings. McFadden, second baseman was put out of the game in the second inning by Umpire Henderson for talking back. Every decision in the first two innings was practically disputed by one team or the other and it just took an even 53 minutes to complete the first two innings. Mitchell, Cobourg catcher, was forced to retire in the last of the fourth owing to a finger injury and Wilf Campbell, veteran receiver, finished the game effectively.

The lineups and score were as follows:—
Port Hope—Brown, 3b; Rowcliffe, c; Ough, 1b; Hudson, ss; L. Wakely, 2b; W. Wakely, rf; Berry, cf; Hosack, p; Devine, lf; Deer, p.
Cobourg—Medhurst, cf; Ivey, 1b; McFadden, 2b; Elliott, lf; Rollings, ss; Hutton, 3b; G. Campbell, rf; Mitchell, c; Gibson, p; A. Campbell, cf & p; Ethier, rf; W. Campbell, c.
Port Hope . . . 432 101 050 09—11 20 5
Cobourg . . . 205 070 013 01—12 7 5
Umpires—Gordon, Cobourg, at plate, Henderson, Port Hope, on bases.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION
It is the habit in this country of calling a doctor only when we are sick. Our eyes are treated in much the same way. Instead of wearing glasses to afford rest and comfort and prevent eye strain and headache we usually wait until they have suffered severely before affording them relief.

You may or may not need glasses, a thorough examination will disclose this condition. But such an examination will be eye insurance that would enable you to properly conserve your vision for years to come. In keeping with the times, the cost of glasses is considerably less, with the same high standard of examination and service.

PERMISSION IS FINALLY GIVEN

Cobourg Council Allows Woman To Put Banner Across Street

Request of a Cobourg citizen for permission to stretch a banner across the main street, advertising her hotel, drew approval and protest from members of the Cobourg council at their regular meeting.

In her request for permission to suspend the banner, the hotel proprietress pointed out that as business was bad, it was difficult for her to pay her taxes. To help out, she wanted the council to permit her to hang a banner across the main street at the Four Corners. Councillors Leslie Wilson and Frank Lapp moved and seconded that permission be granted, carried.

Deputy-Reeve Maurice Booth, however, while expressing his sympathy in connection with her plight, felt that if the council granted her that privilege, that the same attitude would have to be held in regard to any other similar requests.

Councillor Lapp's stand on the matter drew the fire of Councillor W. J. Maher. The former declared he realized the fact that present times were hardly favorable to hotel owners. If the council by granting permission for her to erect the banner, could help her out financially, then he was heartily in accord with her request. He felt that permission should be granted to anybody in that regard.

"It is very amusing what pathetic stories these new councillors can reel off. Two or three years ago in council we passed a resolution prohibiting signs like these. Why discriminate now?" stated Councillor Maher.

"This council is not a charitable organization," added Councillor Maher. "These new councillors spend their first six months learning what council is all about and then proceed, with an eye on the next town election, to popularize themselves with the voters."

Reeve W. E. Cooper was very much in favor of granting the request. Hotels paid heavy taxes, he pointed out, and in circumstances as they are to-day, should be given every assistance by the council.

PACK EGGS BROAD END UP

Considerable time has been devoted to an effort to solve the problem of "watery whites" in eggs—a problem which has given rise to much difficulty in the trade and considerable loss to producers, says the report of the Empire Marketing Board. Over a period of two years a number of factors, including the liability of various breeds to produce "watery whites," the system of management, for example, free ranges versus semi-intensive, low versus high feeding, etc., have been examined. None of these factors appear to be responsible to any appreciable extent for the condition known as "watery white."

In the course of the investigation, eggs twenty-four hours old and packed broad end (air cell) down had to be sent eighteen miles by road, and they showed on testing a remarkably high proportion of watery white. On following up this clue, consignments of eggs, one half packed broad end up, the other half broad end down, were despatched on journeys by motor and train. The results confirmed previous indications, and a report is to be issued. A further interesting fact has emerged from the investigations, namely, that if the vibration and jolting received in transit has not been excessive the "watery white" condition will disappear in a few hours if, after receipt at the packing house the eggs are stored broad end up.
