SKIFF CAPSIZES AND 3 ESCAPE

Clung To Overturned Craft At Belleville — Child Is Also Saved

Thrown into the Bay of Quinte when their skiff was capsized by a heavy wind, three Belleville men, William Sullivan, Arthur Keller and Robert Blain, were able to reach the shore after a half hour of kicking and pushing the boat. Unable to swim, they were forced to cling to the overturned skiff until blown near the shore of the harbor. After considerable delay spectators on the shore procured a boat and rescued them as they neared the shore.

Falling from the stone wall along the Moira river mouth into six feet of swirling water, Margaret Taylor, aged five, was rescued from drowning by Leo St. Denis of Belleville, who dove into the water after her. Firemen of Hall No. 1, who assisted St. Denis from the water with his burden, said the child would have been swept into the undercurrents of the Bay of Quinte in another minute. The little girl is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor.

EXAM FEES CUT, NOW $1 A PAPER

Save $10,000 By Handing Lower School Papers To H.S. Entrance Boards

With 50,000 pupils about to write lower school examinations, hard-pressed family budgets the Province over will be saved an estimated $10,000 by a curtailment of lower school examination fees from $1.50 for each examination to $1.

The Ontario Department of Education is the authority to effect this one reduction in the "high cost of education," and it is done by handing back the lower school papers to the high school entrance boards. Formerly the work had been done in the Department of Education.

There is no joy in the hearts of a couple of hundred thousand other Ontario adolescents, however, as they—theoretically—burn midnight oil in preparation for summer examinations. The Department of Education which during the past year has been steadily stealing days from the summer vacation period, this year grabs another whole week of the hot weather, and adds it on to the high school term. July 11 is the date set this summer as getaway day from the high schools.

Asked for explanations, as to why children should be asked, and how they could be expected, to write brilliant examination essays for adult perusal in the sweltering days of the most mid-July, the Ontario Department says, "The local boards did it." The local boards, it seems, have been wanting longer and longer school days because of "overhead" and "capital costs" and such things, which youngsters will no doubt remember to appreciate as they write examinations in July.

$2,000 DAMAGES IN COBourg SUIT

Action Is Sequel To Motor Accident Near Colborne Last Year

Damages of $2,000 and costs were awarded by Mr. Justice Charles Garrow in non-jury sittings at Cobourg Monday to Clarence G. Walker of Cramah township. Walker sued Max MacHavne, Brunswick Avenue, Toronto, for $5,000. The suit was the result of an accident near Colborne last year. Walker had pulled up to repair a flat tire and was opening the door to get out, when a truck driven by the defendant struck the car, jarring his left hand.

DRIVER IS FINED $25 AND COSTS

Oshawa Man Told Fanciful Yarn To Traffic Officer Hornick

It was not a bed-time story that Lloyd Palmer, aged 33, of Oshawa, tried to tell Highway Patrol Officer A. E. Hornick at 9 o'clock, but it was a fanciful yarn.

Palmer was endeavoring to explain to the traffic officer why it was that he had to speed through North Monaghan Township on Highway 28 at 70 miles an hour.

"My mother is dying and I'm going to Peterboro to get my sister," he declared. By telephoning Oshawa Officer Hornick learned that Palmer's mother was not ill and was not in Oshawa.

Then Palmer said that it was not his mother but his mother-in-law who was ill. Again Hornick went to the phone and learned that she was not suffering.

The girl, whom Palmer, and the officer later met at the post office corner by appointment, was proved not to be his sister.

These facts all came out when Palmer pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving. He was fined $25 and $4.50 costs and his drivers license suspended for 20 days.

Huge Crowd Present at Canadian National Depot to Welcome Vice-Regal Representative on their First Visit to Port Hope—Address Read by Mayor Crowhurst—Replied to by Earl Bessborough, who Declares Holiday for School Students—Inspected Cadets at Trinity College School Monday Afternoon

The town of Port Hope was honored Monday with an official visit by the Governor-General, the Earl of Bessborough and Lady Bessborough and throngs of citizens welcomed the vice-regal party at the Canadian National depot where an address of welcome was read by His Worship, Mayor W. J. Crowhurst, on behalf of the corporation.

It was the first time that their Excellencies had been in Port Hope, the Governor-General being here for the annual inspection of cadets at Trinity College School which took place Monday afternoon.

Arriving on the platform, their Excellencies were greeted by the Mayor and Council, the Mayor's wife and grandson, Alva Crowhurst, who presented Lady Bessborough with a huge basket of flowers. Press photographers and other individuals "clicked" numerous pictures of the official party.

One was impressed in watching the proceedings with the friendly graciousness of Lord and Lady Bessborough and their warm response to the felicitations that were extended. Lady Bessborough, possessing a charming personality and striking in appearance endeared herself to the large gathering of loyal subjects who were present for the occasion. The entire program was short and informal but decidedly impressive.

Arriving on the platform proper, Mayor Crowhurst presented his illuminated address of welcome and the Governor General made a short reply, both speeches appearing below—

MAYOR'S ADDRESS
To His Excellency, The Right Honourable the Earl of Bessborough, Privy-Councillor, Knight Grand Cross of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George, Governor-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Dominion of Canada.

May it please your Excellency—

We the Mayor, Corporation and citizens of Port Hope, desire to thank you for the signal honour your visit confers on us, and we are happy to offer you a very hearty welcome to our town.

Your coming arouses in us a new feeling and loyalty for His Majesty, the King, whose worthy representative you are, and through you, we tender to him once more our unceasing devotion.

We are glad to welcome you also as the Governor-General of this Dominion and we acknowledge with grateful pride all you have done since your appointment to develop a national consciousness in Canada. We shall not soon forget the great stimulus your interest and co-operation have given to drama and the arts in every section of our far-flung land.

We deeply appreciate the presence with you to-day of Her Excellency, Lady Bessborough, who has given such unflinching encouragement to every good work for the promotion of the best interests of Canadian womanhood.

Brief as your visit is, we will long remember it and it is our sincere wish that your tenure of office may be increasingly happy for you and yours and for the country over whose destinies you have been called to preside.

Signed on behalf of the citizens of Port Hope.

WALTER J. CROWHURST, Mayor.

GOV. GENERAL'S REPLY
Port Hope, Ont.,
May 8, 1933.

Mr. Mayor,

As the representative in Canada of His Majesty the King, I appreciate deeply the message of loyalty expressed in your address—a message that is in every way consistent with the devotion to the Throne which is traditional throughout the Province of Ontario.

Lady Bessborough and I, who are very glad to have this opportunity of visiting Port Hope, are most grateful for the kind personal references you make to ourselves. I can assure you that it is a very real pleasure to us both to find, in the course of our many journeys throughout the Dominion, that we are everywhere met with a kindly welcome

NAME CROSSETT TEAM MANAGER

Elected To Pilot Local Lakeshore League Team — Alex Hills Will Do Coaching

Stan "Dempsey" Crossett, was elected manager of the Port Hope Intermediate entry in the Lakeshore League at a meeting of players and executive of the club held in the Department of Agriculture Thursday night and Alex Hills, one of the town's best informed students of the game was named to the position of coach.

The selection of the two officials was unanimous and no doubt the team will benefit by their experience and knowledge of the game. Hills, who played first base for Port Hope's smartest senior teams in the days of the C.O.B.L., is a fighting spirit from the word "go" and if it is possible to impart this spirit to the team as a whole they'll take a lot of beating, before they throw in the towel.

Crossett is decidedly popular in sporting circles and has taken a keen interest in the game since coming here over ten years ago, both as a player and umpire, and has shown ability in both phases of the game. As a manager he should prove equally good and it remains only for the players to give their earnest support to make the team one of the best in recent years.

The diamond at the Town Park is not in shape for practice yet but steps will be taken at once to have the grounds put in shape.

such as you have given us this morning.

Port Hope is fortunate in being the centre of one of the most beautiful districts in Eastern Canada, and those responsible for the development of your town have certainly made good use of its natural advantages. In addition to its varied industries, both manufacturing and agricultural, it makes an important contribution to the life of the Dominion as the seat of a school which, for generations, has inspired young Canadians with the best traditions of citizenship.

In thanking you, Mr. Mayor, for the good wishes you have conveyed to us, I would in turn express the sincere hope of Lady Bessborough and of myself that Port Hope, and those whose home it is, may continue to enjoy all prosperity in the future.

Signed,
"BESSBOROUGH"

Escorted by Provincial Motorcycle Constables A. E. Reilly and A. E. Hornick, the noted guests were taken on a motor tour of the town with the principal points of interest being drawn to their attention, among them the local radium extraction plant, the only industry of its kind in the British Empire.

The main street of the town was decorated with flags and many citizens along the official route of the motor tour had their houses decorated for the occasion. Their Excellencies left this afternoon shortly after four o'clock on their special private car.

Students Applaud

At the conclusion of his remarks the Governor General announced that the students of the local schools, who paraded to the station for the reception, would be given the remainder of the day as a holiday. The announcement was met by a concerted cheer from his youthful admirers.

OFFENDERS IN TRAFFIC COURT

Motorists Fined In Traffic Court For Breaches Of Highway Traffic Act

With warm weather at hand, motorists have a mania for stepping on the gas and admitting other offenses under the Highway Traffic Act and as a result, district traffic officers, are keeping a rigid check.

To-day, in Port Hope traffic court, the following paid fines to Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell:—

Philip J. Blondin, Trenton, $10.00 and costs for overloading.

William Coates, Port Hope, $10.00 and costs for driving without 1933 markers and $2.00 and costs for no license.

Smith Transport, Toronto, $10.00 and costs for overloading and $9.00 and costs on a second offense.

John G. Wallace, Toronto, $3.00 and costs for failure to produce his operator's license.

Clinton Robinson, Toronto, $15.00 and costs for speeding.

D. Johnston and Son, Toronto, $3.00 and costs for having no muffler.

For failure to produce a chauffeur's license, William MacMinn, Oshawa, was fined $3.00 and costs in traffic court here to-day by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell.

Others who paid fines were: L. W. Dudley, Whitby, $5.00 and costs for speeding.

Leslie E. Nelson, Toronto, $20.00 and costs for speeding.

Superior Transport, London, $19.00 and costs for overloading.

Thos. Williamson, Toronto, $10.00 and costs for speeding.

UNUSUAL CASE UP FOR APPEAL

Oshawa Relief Recipient Who Refused Work Presents Test Case

An unusual case was heard before Mr. Justice Garrow at Osgoode Hall when Joseph Fleury appealed against his conviction by Magistrate Creighton, of Oshawa, on a charge of vagrancy. Fleury refused to work for a wage of 20 cents a day and board and lodging at the new Royal Canadian Air Force flying fields at Trenton. The accused was convicted and remanded for sentence.

Onie Brown, counsel for Fleury, contended that the section of the Criminal Code dealing with vagrancy was never intended to apply to a man, who, while receiving relief, rejected an offer of work. To be convicted of being a vagrant a man should be shown to have a bad character, and the defendant was not a man of bad character, counsel claimed.

Joseph Sedgwick, for the Crown, declared that when a man refused an offer to work and preferred instead to live on public charity, he came within the section of the Act relating to vagrancy.

In reserving judgment, His Lordship said he would have to consider whether or not anyone who was on relief and refused to work, was to be treated as a vagrant.

WEEKLY NEWS SERVICE

Reporting Trail Ranger And Tuxis Activities Issued By The Ontario Boy's Work Board

ELDORADO: The Trail Rangers arranged an outdoor afternoon meeting, the early part of which was given over to a paper chase. They descended into the copper mine near here and explored it thoroughly. Rev. J. R. Trampour is mentor.

PORT HOPE: Wilbur Howard, of Toronto, prominent in the Boys' Parliament and as editor of the "New Citizen" was speaker at a boys' and mentors' banquet in the United Church. He also conducted one of his perpetual motion sing songs. Frank Corbett, local member, and Arthur Crowhurst also spoke.

TORONTO: In January the boys' work of Woodbine, United Church was reorganized. Cecil Smith taking charge. His group of Trail Rangers numbered fifteen. The group has grown to be a department with 125 boys in five groups and four other mentors assisting Mr. Smith. Each boy carries a registration card indicating name, age, address, group and asking the pertinent question "Are you a Sunday School member?" The card admits the bearer to group activities and, one night recently, admitted him to the father and son banquet. "Red" Foster, Gordon Lapp and Rev. Stanley Elliott contributed to the banquet program. Chief Ranger Douglas Halley was toastmaster.

LISTOWELL: Mr. A. R. Kennedy, editor of the Stratford Beacon-Herald, was the guest speaker at the annual banquet for fathers and sons. The Trail Rangers and Tuxis Boys sponsored the event.

HAILEYBURY: The Tuxis hockey team, juvenile champions in South Temiskaming, were banqueted in the United Church. Coach Milton Elliott, Rev. W. A. Beecroft and past president D. E. Sutherland of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association were among those present.

SARNIA: A field day, a church parade and a conclave are among the plans made by Trail Rangers mentors for the spring and summer. May 24th is the date of the field day. A softball league is to be organized and summer camp plans are under way. Glen Finch was elected grand mentor for the district. At present there are 150 Trail Rangers in Sarnia and Point Edward.

BLENHHEIM: East Kent Boys' Work Board met here with Chairman Cameron Nesbitt presiding. George Mickle reported the annual meeting of the Ontario Boys' Work Board and that East Kent had raised more money in the 1933 share selling campaign than in 1932. Plans for the annual field day were made.

INTER GROUP DEBATING remains popular in some churches. Certainly there are some worthwhile subjects for debate. A recent newspaper report tells of a Tuxis Square successfully affirming that "the movies are beneficial to modern youth," while their C.G.I.T. opponents put forward the argument for the negative. To say the least, the subject is debatable.

A PORTABLE CAMP KITCHEN is included in the camp equipment of the East York Boys' Work Board. It is built on an old auto chassis and the windows and doors can be snugly closed when it is travelling to and from camp sites. Members of the camp committee appreciate their creation the more because, as one Trail Ranger told the campers, they just "made it out of their heads."

THE LARGEST BOYS DEPARTMENT in the United Church of Canada is Knox, Winnipeg, where 210 boys and more than 20 mentors and leaders are enrolled. Trail Ranger groups number 11, Tuxis Square 4, and the junior groups, known as Knights of Knox are 6 in number this season. The boys work in Knox began in 1922 and always has enjoyed the sympathetic support and wise guidance of the ministers of the church. The mentors hold monthly meetings as does the Mothers Club, in which are enrolled the mothers of the boys. A number of Knox boys have been members of the Manitoba Boys' Parliament. Frequently the Juvenile court of Winnipeg has sent boys to the department. Mentors report that most of the former delinquents have measured up to the trust placed in them and that many have developed fine qualities of leadership. The stated objective of the work is "to inculcate something of the spirit of Jesus Christ; to develop a sympathetic understanding of men and ideals."

The total output per day of the flour mills of Canada during last year was nearly 112,000 barrels.

CROP REPORT

Below will be found a brief synopsis of telegraphic reports received at the Head Office of the Bank of Montreal from its Branches. The Branch Managers have complete and intimate knowledge of each local situation and are in close touch with crop conditions in all sections of the districts mentioned.

GENERAL

Owing to a backward Spring, agricultural operations throughout the Dominion have been delayed from one to three weeks later than usual but conditions in other respects especially in regard to moisture are generally favourable. In the Prairie Provinces the seed bed generally is in good condition and moisture conditions are better than for the past few years but warm weather is needed to promote growth. Pastures in most parts of the Dominion have wintered well but in Southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba it is reported that growth so far has been negligible. Orchards in Ontario, British Columbia and the Maritime Provinces have also wintered satisfactorily. In Quebec Province seeding will not be general for another two weeks. In Ontario Fall wheat fields are looking exceptionally promising and wheat, alfalfa and clover have come through the winter better than was anticipated. In the Maritime Provinces little work has been done on the land except in the southern part of Nova Scotia where an early Spring is reported. In British Columbia seeding is now general although the season is two to three weeks later than usual. Details follow.

PRAIRIE PROVINCES

ALBERTA NORTHEASTERN AREA—Little seeding has yet been done. If the weather continues favourable seeding should be general within the next few days. Moisture conditions are good. ALBERTA SOUTHERN AREA—Seeding has commenced but has been delayed by snow. With continuance of fair weather seeding should be general this week. Moisture is ample. ALBERTA WESTERN AREA—Seeding has commenced in a few sections on the high lands in the south but in the north considerable snow still remains and seeding will not be general for at least another week. SASKATCHEWAN SOUTHERN AREA—Seed—Seeding which was delayed by cool weather has barely commenced. Moisture conditions are good. SASKATCHEWAN SOUTHERN AREA—Seeding operations are general with little soil drifting to date. Moisture conditions are better than for the past few years although subsoil reserves are not too plentiful in western sections. Over the Province as a whole there will likely be a small reduction in wheat acreage and some increase in that of coarse grains. The acreage sown to Fall rye is substantially less. Pastures are in poor condition. MANITOBA—With continued favorable weather seeding will be general over the Province by the end of the week. Moisture conditions generally are good although there is some lack of subsoil reserves in the South-western area indications point to a slight decrease in wheat acreage. With a corresponding increase in the acreage of coarse grains rapid growth in the pastures is needed to alleviate feed shortage in a number of districts.

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC

Cold weather has retarded Spring operations which are later than usual. Pastures appear to have wintered well. The run of maple syrup was small but of good quality.

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

Seeding operations which were delayed by cold, damp weather have now become fairly general except in the Eastern section of the Province where the season is about ten days late. Orchards have wintered without any apparent damage and early indications are favourable. Tobacco plants in green houses are well advanced and in Norfolk County the planting of a slight increased acreage over that of last year is indicated.

MARITIME PROVINCES

The season generally is about two weeks later than usual and seeding will not be general before the 15th May. Only about half of an average year's acreage of potatoes will be planted. Pastures and apple trees appear to have wintered well.

PROVINCE OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

There is an ample supply of moisture and the soil is in good condition it is expected there will be a slight reduction in the acreage sown to wheat. Tomato acreage will be increased about 30 p.c. the acreage planted to potatoes will be considerably decreased. Fruit trees have wintered well. Small fruits suffered considerably from winter killing and berry crops it is expected will be below average. Pasture is plentiful.

URGES PROBE OF TAXATION SYSTEM

E. M. Thurber And L. T. Sylvester, Port Hope, Chosen On Committees

A. Ross Robertson, Dominion Bridge Co., Toronto, was elected chairman of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in session at London and George Akehurst, Bampton was elected vice-chairman.

A. M. Thurber of the Nicholson File Company, Port Hope, was selected as a representative to the executive council from Ontario Division and L. T. Sylvester, of the Mathews Conveyor Company, Port Hope, was chosen a member of the executive committee.

"There is a danger of discouraging production by using the compelling power of statutes to enforce payment of additional taxes," said C. A. Moore, retiring chairman of the Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Wednesday as he urged immediate investigation of the entire system of taxation by federal, provincial and municipal authorities.

A complete commission probe would have as its object the reduction of expenditure, duplication and overlapping, he declared. Many businesses were at present using reserves to meet taxes and provide employment, and increased taxation burdens met with reserves were really charges upon capital, he said.

During the day, A. Ross Robertson, Toronto, was elected chairman of the division and the report of the executive committee was presented.

Renewed Confidence

"Indications of renewed confidence," were stressed in the report, which declared "notwithstanding the unusual character of the present business situation, there are reports of new industries and new manufacturing arrangements being opened in the province."

In Toronto alone, it said, there were about 100 new industries, providing for an investment of $4,000,000 and the employment of 2,500 people.

Investigation had been made during the year with respect to contracts for power entered into by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. The report continued: "The experience of the commission indicated that a normal increase in demand warranted contracts. All available power had been drawn up at certain seasons during the past two years, although industrial loads remained stationary."

The "Produced in Canada" campaign had brought wide response, it continued. "It is quite clear the made-in-Canada qualification, so extensively used by Canadian manufacturers in marking and advertising goods, opens the way to a much more favorable reception than was the experience of a few years ago. Notwithstanding this, however, because of currencies depreciated in comparison with our own, it is still possible to import at low values, and it is the policy of the association not to relax, in the promotion of preferences for our own goods."

TULIP SHOW COMING SOON

The Horticulture Society Garden Competition Entries To Close May 10

The executive of the Port Hope Horticultural Society met in the Agriculture office Wednesday night to plan some of the spring activities.

It was stressed that all interested in keeping the homes of this town in a lovely setting become members of the society as a large membership gives the society much greater power to do good work. The officers of the society are busy people like yourselves and have not the time to make a personal canvass. Let this public announcement be your personal invitation to go to Ralph Hodgson, M. U. Ferguson or any other member of the society and secure your membership ticket, which by the way, has a coupon that gives you power to purchase things to beautify your garden. Don't put it off until the season is half over, but join now, taking an active interest in your membership will enrich the society and your own experience.

Garden Plots For Unemployed
The twenty garden plots for unemployed to develop was oversubscribed but if more applications are received the society will endeavour to secure more plots.

It was suggested that the Benevolent Society might give unemployed seed and have a committee to supervise distribution and development of gardens to give unemployed occupation and food.

Tulip Show

The Horticultural Society Tulip Show will be held this month and the date will be fixed when it can be seen that the most of the tulips are right for showing. Watch for the date, when rules and conditions of exhibiting will be published.

Best Kept Premises Competition
Members of the Horticultural Society are asked to note that entries for the Best Kept Premises Competition are to be in by May 10th. If you are interested (and you should be) send or phone your name and address to any of the following:

REDUCTIONS IN RAILWAY FARES

Cent A Mile Fares For East-Western Trip On Both Railways

Inaugurating what Canadian railway officials believe will be one of the greatest rail travel movements in the history of the country, C. P. Riddell, chairman, Canadian Passenger Association, announces, that commencing in May and extending into June, Canadian railways will establish a rate of one cent a mile for coach travel between points in Eastern and Western Canada and return. These rates, which initiate an all-time low in Canadian passenger fares, are in reality an extension of the coach excursion idea, which has proved so popular with the Canadian public during the past year.

The announcement of the new rates, which literally provide every facility for trans-Canada excursions, shows that Canadian railways have arranged for two great tides of travel; first from the West to the East and, secondly, from the East to the West.

The cent-a-mile rate will carry the privilege of stop-overs in the East for east-bound excursionists, and in the West for west-bound excursionists, and it is the policy of the association not to relax,

$6 PREMIUM ON GOLD OUNCE

Is Bought On Basis Of What It Will Bring In Sterling Market

Canadian gold mining companies are receiving a premium exceeding $6 per fine ounce of gold since the United States went off the gold standard it was learned at the Department of Finance at Ottawa. In stead of the Mint prices of $20.67 per fine ounce, which they got before the world financial upheaval caused by Brit's departure from the gold standard, they are receiving more than $27 per fine ounce. The Finance Department sold gold in the London market through Canadian banks. The latest transaction yielded $24.16 per fine ounce in New York funds, which, converted into Canadian funds, netted $27.25, the premium being 13 per cent. "We are buying gold on the basis of what it will bring in the sterling market," the department explains. "We have to sell our gold ten or twelve days forward and remit sterling, which we have to convert into New York funds. We figure out what the shipment has cost us, and remit the net proceeds to the producer, less handling charges."

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS EARNINGS

The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways System for the 9 day period ending April 30th, 1933, were $3,550,338 as compared with $4,062,489 for the corresponding period of 1932, a decrease of $512,151.

CONSTRUCTION SHOWS UPWARD TURN IN APRIL

Construction activity for April was almost equal to the combined totals for January, February and March and marks the commencement of the building season. According to MacLean Building Reports, Limited, the value of contracts awarded throughout Canada for the month of April amounted to $8,608,700 as compared with $3,191,600 in March and similar amounts for January and February. This is an increase of almost 200 per cent. over March.

Contemplated or proposed work showed a corresponding increase. The total for April was $23,331,700, compared with $9,141,190 in March and $25,875,100 for the first three months of the year. It is the highest monthly total since February, 1932, which was the high mark for that year with a total of $24,428,600. It is evident from these figures that greater activity can be expected in the immediate future.

Quebec Province led all the others in contracts awarded with a total of $3,365,600, Ontario being next with $2,045,100. The total for Western Canada was $2,910,200 and for the Maritimes $287,700. Engineering work amounted to $3,849,200, business buildings, $2,478,000, industrial $405,500, and residential, $1,881,900.

Clarence "Happy" Day, star defenseman of the champion Toronto League, sailed for England Friday on board the liner Duchess of Bedford. Mr. and Mrs. Day expect to spend some weeks travelling in the British Isles and on the Continent.

SHARP DECREASE IN MARCH SAVING DEPOSITS

A drop of nearly $5,000,000 in savings deposits as compared with the end of February, to practically the same figure as of the same date last year, was shown in the bank statement for March 31, 1933. Demand deposits increased a 1 1/2 per cent as compared with the end of February, but remained nearly half a million below the figures for March 31 last year.

Deposits outside of Canada decreased by more than $9,000,000 while current coin decreased by $1,000,000. Other balances remained practically unchanged.

Acids in Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive Bismarck and instead get from any druggist Bismarck Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Time
A lady in Englishtown was working in her flower garden when little four-year-old Joan walked in and noticed the sun-dial.
"What's that?" inquired Joan.
"My garden clock," was the reply.
After a careful examination and investigation, the little girl came over to where the lady was and said, "You better come over and wind your clock, the darn thing's stopped."

FRIDAY, MAY 5.

Shortly before noon to-day two rainbows encircled the sun similar to those which encircled the moon on a winter night a few short months ago.

SATURDAY, MAY 6.

Getting all washed up for royalty!

It looks as if everything would be fresh and clean with the rain coming ahead of the Governor-General's party.

A good crowd attended the tea at the home of Mrs. Karl Schweickert on Friday afternoon under the auspices of the ladies' section of the local Golf Club. The talent and root table was also well patronized.

The members of the committee in charge of the forthcoming Rotary Club musical comedy production, "The Beauty Shop", are highly pleased with the manner in which the more than sixty members of the big cast and chorus are taking hold of the task given them. Every member of this cast feel they are going to give the public something very much worthwhile and which will prove a real surprise in the way of local theatricals, and believe it will prove to be the most popular and most successful affair of the kind ever presented in Port Hope. The production abounds in catchy songs, nifty dances, exceptional chorus numbers and the unfolding of the story or "plot" is guaranteed to hand hundreds of laughs over the footlights and drive away all troubles of every nature—financial, family or otherwise and make one forget all about the "recent depression." Rehearsals are being conducted both night and day by professional directors of long stage experience and together with the scores of handsome costumes, special stage settings, etc., the public is promised an amateur show which is not "amateurish" but equal to that of the leading travelling companies.

THIRD OF IMMIGRANTS RESIDENT IN ONTARIO

The immigrant population resident in Canada at the date of the census, June 1, 1931, numbered 2,307,520, of which more than 51.15 per cent was found west of the Great Lakes, about three per cent in the Maritimes, while the province of Quebec had 10.9 per cent, and Ontario 34.9 per cent. Out of 42 main classifications of exports to Great Britain, 29 last month showed increase over March of last year and two were the same, while in March, 1932, of the same number of classifications only 14 showed increases and one was similar as compared with exports in March, 1931, the Department of Trade and Commerce reported.

Continued improvements were also shown in a number of Government statistics on production.

Production of automobiles in March totalled 6,632, compared with 3,398 and 3,358 cars in February and January respectively.

Production of copper in January amounted to 22,950,527 lbs., as compared with 19,675,056 lbs. in January, 1932.

66 COUNTRIES ARE INVITED

Fifty-Six Members Of League Included And Ten Outside

The Secretary General of the League of Nations has issued invitations to 66 countries to attend the World Economic Conference in London, on June 12.

Fifty-six of these countries are members of the League and ten are outside.

The invitation also called attention to tariff truce proposals discussed recently in London.

In this connection the invitations say:

"The United States delegation intends to ask the participating governments to join in an agreement or understanding to be carried out in good faith providing that all governments should refrain during the period of this truce from creating or making any material and upward modifications in tariff rates and from imposing any new restrictions or enhancing any existing restrictions against the importation of goods, which would give domestic producers an additional advantage compared with foreign producers."

CONSTABLE IS ACQUITTED ON FALSIFICATION COUNT

County Constable David Gordon of Fenelon Falls, charged in the county court Thursday before Judge Huycke of Peterboro with falsifying records at an auction sale while acting as clerk, was acquitted, the judge stating there was a doubt as to the payment of the money. T. J. Carley of Fenelon Falls represented Gordon, while J. E. Anderson, K.C., prosecuted. The defense was that in adding up the sheets there was an error in bookkeeping, several persons who had been marked as paid, having since handed over the money to the man who was holding the sale.

OTHER EDITORS' OPINIONS

JUST A RACKET

"Rackets," big and little, are so common nowadays as to almost cease to be news, and clever people are inventing and working new "rackets" all the time, while the sophisticated public continues to shell out in response to whatever spiel it happens to be. Napanee was recently visited by a young man who certainly is a slick and quick worker. The Napanee Beaver tells the story of this young man's adventures in that town which he picked for easy picking and found himself picked instead. He hobbled about on crutches, one foot being missing, and offered for sale pencils and shoelaces. The citizens of Napanee are noted for their generosity and he did a good business, many coins and little stock turnover. Chief of Police Watts became curious about the visitor and "tailed" him, ascertaining that a brand new 1933 medium priced automobile parked outside the town limits in a lane belonged to the shoelace vendor, who was arrested and brought before the police magistrate where the whole story came out. The young man traveled fast in his shining sport model runabout, and coming to the outskirts of a town he thought desirable to work, he would park the car in a likely place, remove his artificial foot, take out his crutches and his stock in trade, walk into town and get busy, with a haggard look and a hard-luck story. He had cash in his pocket to the extent of $45 and bank books showing over $400 balance. He was assessed fine and costs amounting to $32.25, with the alternative of thirty days in the hoosegow, but he paid and proceeded on his way in his nobby sports car, charging up the outlay to profit and loss to be made up in some other town where the police have flat feet, fondness for Rummy, and non-fondness for exercise. He said the name Napanee appealed to him as a sleepy little town, well fed and prosperous, but he found that instead of the Nap he got the knee. Very reprehensible, of course, this young man's conduct, but on the other hand, he showed initiative, resource and cleverness worthy of a better outlet. Unemployed, he made a job for himself rather than sit down and live on civic relief, became a street salesman, camouflaged panhandler, if you like, but he organized his job so that he could get out of it the greatest possible return, as well as comfort and well-being. Not all the people holding good positions try to make their work as outstandingly efficient as it is possible—hence there is something to be said in this lad's favor after all. He is an artist of the pavement, efficiency plus, even if punishable.—Belleville Ontario.

EXAMPLE FOR MAN

If man could be persuaded to care for the helpless and needy as easily as other animals are, there would be a great deal less suffering in this world. In the past few days, for instance there have been stories of cats mothering baby rats and baby rabbits.

Now this district has a story to equal them all. Near Janetville seven little silver foxes were born and their mother couldn't take care of them at all. They were divided between two mother cats, whose families had been taken away. Later a motherless duckling was added to the strange brood.

At the last report, one cat was carefully mothering four valuable silver foxes, one kitten and a baby duck. Everything was going harmoniously, except at meal times perhaps, when the duckling had to look elsewhere for its dinner.

Animals draw no line as to color or religion but man, who has been taught to love his neighbor as himself, evidently thinks differently.—Lindsay Post.

STOP AT CROSSINGS

Excellent advice given in the Toronto Telegram is that it is better to cheat death than try and beat the train.

Continuing the Toronto paper says:
Lack of funds makes a continuation of grade separation at railway crossings on main highways impossible.

But accidents and death at grade crossings can be eliminated by a simple precaution.

Motorists will avert danger to themselves by coming to a full stop before proceeding over railway tracks. A reminder of this fact by E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., should be noted by all drivers.

The fact that the suggestion comes from a railway president does not make it any the less meritorious.

A full stop at railway crossings costs nothing in cash and little in time. It is cheap insurance against injury and fatality.

A stop, look and listen policy on the part of all who use the highways is easily practised. It is an act of self-defence which no one can afford to neglect. Legislative compulsion should not be required to bring about avoidance of the risk involved in taking unnecessary chances.

DURHAM ENTITLED TO BETTER DEAL

Recently we brought to the attention of citizens the great disparity existing in the appointments of Counties officials, showing that Durham appointees, numbering only five, receive $3500 in salaries, while Northumberland appointees receive well over $20,000 in salaries.

We also pointed out that the larger proportion of the inmates of the House of Refuge were Northumberland citizens. From the minutes of last June's Counties' Council session we are able to find that of the 66 inmates of the House of Refuge as on June 1st, 1932, 39 came from Northumberland while only 27 came from Durham County. With this in mind one would imagine that the main expenditures at this institution would be charged to Northumberland County. It just goes further to prove our contention that while the majority of the money is going to Northumberland in salaries, the majority is also being spent on Northumberland inmates at the House of Refuge.

As far as the House of Refuge is concerned we find that it costs approximately $8,000 to operate annually, and most of that money finds a resting place in Northumberland County. Somehow the village of Orono is able to horn in on a few of the expense items but Bowmanville merchants who are doing their share, and more than their share in the upkeep of Counties institutions, get

EASTERN CANADA WAS FIRST IN MANY THINGS

As "first" things go the Maritime Provinces have a few honors to claim, according to the Tourist Department of the Canadian National Railways. Here are a few of them:

The first social club in North America. It was founded at Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, in 1606 and was known as the Order of the Good Taste.

The first authenticated record of coal mining in North America. This took place at Minto, N.B., in 1639 and the coal was exported to Boston. The first paper made from wood was produced at Upper Sackville, N.B., in 1839.

The first compound steam engine in the world was invented in New Brunswick by Benjamin Tibb's of Queen's County, N.B., and used in a St. John River steamboat in 1842.

The first steam fog horn in the world was put into operation on Partridge Island, Saint John harbor in 1859, the apparatus being invented by Robert Foulis of Saint John.

The first submarine cable in North America was laid across the Strait of Northumberland between Cape Tormentine, N.B., and Carleton Head P.E.I., on November 22, 1852.

The first wireless message to be sent from North America across the Atlantic was sent from Gace Bay, Nova Scotia, on December 31, 1902.

SENT TO TRIAL FOR CONVERSION

Cobourg Farm Machine Salesman Released On $1,000 Bail

W. A. Mellish, a Cobourg farm machine salesman, was committed for trial Thursday on three charges of conversion of his firm's funds to his own use in connection with collections from his customers. He pleaded not guilty, elected trial by judge and was released on $1,000 bail. He will come up on May 29.

Experiments show that ultraviolet rays and radio vibrations may affect various properties of chemicals and drugs.

no business from this institution at all. The bread is purchased from a Cobourg concern and most of the other supplies are purchased in the county town.

Durham County is certainly entitled to a better deal than it has received in the past. The Counties positions must be more evenly divided and the business created through the Counties institution should be evenly shared between taxpayers in the two counties. Bowmanville contributes over $25,000 to the United Counties each year, and yet there is not a Bowmanville man holding a position in Counties administration or a Bowmanville merchant benefitting by purchases made for any institution.—Bowmanville Statesman.

TWO TIMES

On or about May first yearly there comes along daylight saving in a number of cities while many other centres remain on standard time. The result is a mixup and confusion worse confounded especially in relations between daylight saving time municipalities and the standard time municipalities.

The ideal, of course, would be to have a uniform law throughout the Dominion or throughout the Continent.

But such an ideal seems impossible at present. Whether a general stand some day in favor of one thing or the other will be taken seems unlikely.

MEN'S FORUM FIX COMMITTEES

Children's Ball Training Is Held Up By Lack Of Suitable Grounds

Those of the Port Hope Men's Forum interested in the development of clean, healthy sport among the children met in Giddy's Showroom Wednesday night and picked committees to supervise the carrying out of the project.

Grounds committee—Moss Hewson, chairman; W. Pennington, L. H. Giddy, S. B. Hatheway, Geo. Garnett with power to add.

Games Schedule Committee—E. G. Fleming, chairman; Jas. Reynolds and Wm. Giddy.

CHILDREN'S MUSICAL FESTIVAL AT ORONO

The annual Children's Musical Festival was held in the Town Hall, Orono, on Friday, May 5th.

TO MEMORY

O deeper than the noontide sea
When blue
Concealed as of yet finer wool than air,
Where, as clouds form, folk cherished,
Moments rare,
Fittingly gleam and pass... romance
All true,
Yet never real enough, thou wilt desert,
Drug us till we, no longer what we are,
Love as we loved!... Reluming
Star by star
Night falls and tears with try far
Glances meet.

The dream of dreams, which most we can retrieve
And least forget, for thee dramatic truth
Drapes in fresh silks the tragedy of youth.
Yet as they act, our eyes once blind, perceive
Much those performers are to fond to note
Till phantom sobs catch in a shrivelled throat.

EUROPEAN SCOUTS EXCHANGE HOMES

The latest Scout world friendship idea, developed between England and the Continent, is an exchange of home visits between individual Scouts. A recent example was the receiving of a Spanish Scout into the home of an English Scout for several months. Later the English boy will be received into the Spanish family for a like period.

CANADIAN CLUB MEETING FRIDAY

English Folk Music Recognized As Finest In The World

The Woman's Canadian Club of Port Hope enjoyed one of the finest lectures of the year, Friday evening in St. Paul's Sunday School Hall, when Mr. Campbell McInnes addressed the members on "Folk Song and Traditional Songs of the British Peoples."

Mr. McInnes discussed the nature and history of music, emphasizing especially the evolution of traditional or folk songs. These he explained came from the desire to express an emotion in sound. The first melodies were very simple. As time went on they were added to until they became more or less fixed and have the definite design which we know to-day.

The speaker said that English folk music is recognized as the finest in the world. It is only recently, however, that the British Peoples have shown a serious interest in their wonderful storehouse of traditional music. It was not until 1842 that these beautiful old songs were rescued from oblivion, and the revival of the English Madrigal took place only twenty-five years ago. The collection is now practically complete and is available to all.

Mr. McInnes expressed regret that the children in our schools were not more familiar with the glorious music of their ancestors. For many years, other nations have realized the importance of traditional music in the development of a national consciousness. Young people he explained can not fully appreciate their heritage if they are ignorant of the traditional music of their own race.

Mr. McInnes believes that Canada has an unique place in the musical world of the future. It will be her duty and her privilege to merge what is best in east and west. The true idiom of our national music he said, would undoubtedly be the beautiful folk songs of our past.

SUCCESSFUL TEA HELD LOCAL LADY GOLFERS

If the opening event of the season, the tea held on Friday afternoon by the Ladies section of the Port Hope Golf Club at the home of Mrs. Karl Schweickert, Bedford street, is an augury, the local club is beginning a very successful year. Bright Spring weather attracted a large crowd to enjoy the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Schweickert's beautiful home. The guests were received by the host and hostess and by Mrs. R. F. Forrest, the convener of the tea. Tea was served in the spacious sun-room from a table centred with Spring flowers and presided over by Mrs. R. Hume and Mrs. E. Edgar. C.O.B.L. MAKES NEW PROPOSAL

Failure Of Cobourg To Affiliate Makes New Plans Necessary

The failure of Cobourg to enter the Central Ontario Baseball League and the other three teams in the loop, Belleville, Peterboro and Kingston, believing it unwise to try and operate with the three teams, a proposition has been advanced to the West Toronto loop, which may bear fruit. It has been suggested since the O.B.A.A. will not allow a second team in the motor City that the three Central Loop teams play an inter-locking schedule with the West Toronto League, one game to be played with each team at home and away. The wins and losses to count in each league, but each loop to declare their own winners. Belleville and Peterboro are ready for the grouping, while the O.B.A.A. and the Oshawa Dukes are trying to swing the proposition from the Toronto end. This arrangement would help baseball in the Eastern section of the province.

CANTON

Mrs. A. P. Pollard's Group In Charge Of May Program

On Tuesday afternoon, May 2nd, the W.M.S. held its regular meeting in the church school room, president in the chair and Mrs. A. P. Pollard's group in charge of the program. Despite the succession of thunder showers which marked the day sixteen ladies were in attendance.

The meeting was opened with the Doxology followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The first eighteen verses of the twentieth chapter of St. John's gospel was then read by Mrs. W. Langdon.

Minutes of last meeting were read and adopted and roll called the response word being "Work."

A reading "The Way to World Peace" was given by the Peace Secretary.

The Temperance Secretary read an article from "The White Ribbon Tidings" in which responsibility for government sale of liquor in eight provinces and beer parlours in four was laid upon the women of Canada inasmuch as there are more women voters than men voters. The article contained further an impassioned appeal to women to use their franchise aright in the coming Ontario election when the real issue will be the sale of beer and wine in licensed places, however that issue may be camouflaged by the wets.

Miss Bertha Langdon presented an interesting paper "Notes On a Western Trip" by a missionary. The section of the Study Book dealing with biographical sketches of Dr. Robertson and other prominent missionaries of the Presbyterian Church in Canada during the period from 1881 to 1925 inclusive was ably presented by Mrs. R. V. Wallace. Then followed a spirited discussion on the question "What can our auxiliary do to help in Christian work among the different races in our country" led by Mrs. M. Biekle, Mrs. W. Barrie and Miss A. L. Harris. Hymns sung during the meeting were "Faith of Our Fathers" and "From Greenland's Icy Mountains" which was followed by the dismissal prayer by Mrs. S. Gifford.

On invitation of Mr. A. Finnie, teacher of the Adult Class, Rev. E. A. Chesher, Port Hope, attended the school here last Sunday and addressed the combined A.B., S.W. and C. taking as his topic the lesson for that day. His handling of the subject was pleasing and profitable.

PERSONALS

Miss Helen Gordon returned home from Port Hope Hospital on Wednesday of last week and is convalescing rapidly after an operation for appendicitis.

We are also glad to report Mrs. T. Smith much improved. Mrs. Smith was able to go for a short drive last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Watson, Montreal, are visiting her sister Miss A. L. Harris and brother Mr. Stanley.

A Feline Tragedy

Some children going through a field adjacent to a residence recently, came upon the dead body of a cat with the head enclosed in a salmon can, mute evidence that some one's pet had met with a lingering and painful death. In view of this, it seems well to repeat the suggestion sent out at times by the Humane Society, "Before throwing out a can that has contained fish just put your foot on it and press the edges together thus obviating unintentional cruelty."

LAUGHTER

Laughter has bright, golden hair, Laughter met me on the stair, Smiled, and said, as she passed by, "Come and meet me by-and-bye."

Laughter dances on the green; Laughter has the gayest mein, She's always merry as she goes Through the world on tripping toes.

Would that I might be like thee, Always happy as can be; Laughter, take me by the hand, Teach me, dear, to understand.

—Elizabeth Wittemore Willey.

REV. D. McTAVISH SPEAKS TO B.Y.P.U.

Rev. Duncan McTavish, pastor of the Port Hope United Church, was the speaker Monday evening at the regular weekly meeting of the Baptist Young People. He took as his subject "World Peace and International Good-will." During the program, a vocal duet was rendered, by Misses Marguerite Robinson and Ivy Quembly. The meeting was presided over by Harry Van Everdingen.

HON. V. MASSEY HEARD AT FORUM

Uges Need Of Establishment Of Canadian Consular Service Abroad

Stating that Canada has not a consul in the world and urging the need of the establishment of a consular service, Hon. Vincent Massey, former minister plenipotentiary from Canada to the United States addressed the men's Forum at the Port Hope United Church here Sunday afternoon.

In support of this, he stated, that while Minister in Washington he had handled 1200 letters yearly on consular work directed to him by the British consuls, and all letters on Canadian affairs. He believed that consular service would help to bring a more personal feeling amongst the nations which would serve to foster a greater amount of trust and respect and in turn promote goodwill and to open up various avenues of trade.

S. B. Hatheway, President of the Forum presided and at the conclusion expressed the appreciation of the Forum to the speaker for his address. Sunday's session was an open meeting and for the first time, the members were enabled to bring their wives and friends. Over 400 people filled the auditorium to listen to an hour's address by the eminent Canadian statesman.

In introducing the speaker, Mr. Hatheway termed him as a fellow citizen, Mr. Massey residing at Canton, five miles north of Port Hope. Next Sunday, the activities of the Forum will terminate for the season and the speaker will be Rev. Duncan McTavish, pastor of the Port Hope United Church.

Canada And Foreign Affairs

Mr. Massey took as his topic, "Canada and Foreign Affairs" and elaborated on three themes, governmental machinery, the relationship of Canada to the League of Nations and the relationship of Canada to the sister units of the British Empire.

"I am of the opinion," he said "that Canada should become more world minded and the further opening of diplomatic legations in other countries other than those now existing at Washington, Paris and Tokio should be undertaken. Legations in other countries makes contact and are not decorative accessories as some would imagine."

Supporting his view that Canada must have contact to be better understood, Mr. Massey said that the establishment of a legation with Japan had meant a great deal to Canadian trade relationship with the Orient. In fact, Canada had a closer contact with Japan than it had with South Africa, Australia or New Zealand. Modern science has made Canadians neighbours to all countries of the world and they were no more isolated due to the great air trade routes which will open up the great rich northern fields.

"We can no longer live to ourselves," the speaker declared, "and we must become conscious of our interdependence on the rest of the world. We need more windows to bring in the light of knowledge of what is transpiring in foreign parts of the world and more air as trade and commerce will come with it."

Hon. Mr. Massey touched on the smoldering war in the East but the trouble in Manchuria bettered matters in some sections. The Chinese declared a boycott against Japanese goods and as a result the Manchester cotton mills started operations to fill orders from the Orient.

The League of Nations, he told, had done much to better world conditions although unable to control the Eastern affairs. "It has stood by its principles and asserted itself. It has kept its honor and with all its faults, it is the one thing to keep out a greater catastrophe than the one in 1914."

The speaker claimed that it was up to Canada to take a greater interest in the League of Nations, in which it holds a charter membership, and to aid the League in its work. If Canada does not take her task seriously, it cannot expect the rest of the world to take Canada seriously. "We Canadians have no enemies," no old feuds or quarrels and we have a great deal of prestige with other countries. Canada stands in a position to wield a mighty power on world affairs because it has nothing in its history to make other nations distrustful. That is the reason Canada should become world conscious and study the problems that Canada will and can help to solve.

Prior to the address, Messrs. Alf Pufford and Gillard Darling, rendered a duet, "How Sweet the Name of Jesus Sounds," with T. W. Stanley presiding at the organ.

BOARD HITS AT NEWS PIRATING

Canadian Press' Consent Needed For Broadcasting Of Its Despatches

Piracy of news by Canadian radio stations is to be stopped. In response to representations made by publishers from Halifax to Vancouver, the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission will issue a set of rules governing the broadcasting of news. These rules were framed in co-operation with the Canadian Press, Limited, according to Hector Charlesworth, Chairman of the Broadcasting Commission.

Henceforth radio stations controlled by the Broadcasting Commission may broadcast only such news bulletins as are released to them by the various bureaus of Canadian Press, Limited.

Broadcasting of local news by newspapers will be permitted, but foreign news distributed by the Canadian Press Limited may not be broadcast without their consent, even if supplied by a newspaper member of Canadian Press Limited.

Broadcasting stations are permitted to employ their own reporters, but it is not thought any will avail themselves of this rule.

Broadcasting of false or misleading news is prohibited and offenders will be severely punished, unless extenuating circumstances can be shown. Likewise the broadcasting of editorial opinions of a controversial nature is taboo.

Canadian Press Limited will supply domestic and foreign news bulletins to stations of the Canadian Radio Commission.

There is no restriction on the broadcasting of news not gathered by Canadian Press Limited.

WHEAT EXPORTS FROM CANADA

Run Close To 50 Per Cent. Of World's Total

The exports of wheat and flour, in terms of wheat, from North America, nearly all of which originates in Canada, continue to run close to 50 per cent of the world's total. From August 1 to April 23, the exports, credited to "North America" amount to 223,170,000 bushels, out of a total of world exports for the period of 466,456,000. The North American total was within 10,000,000 bushels of the same period last year of 233,704,000. World exports fell far below those of a year ago, the total being down over 117,000,000 bushels from 583,602,000.

The maintenance of the Canadian figures is being influenced largely, no doubt, by the preference in the British market. This applies also to Australia, which shows an increase over last year of nearly 14,000,000 bushels, 124,237,000, as against 110,408,000. Argentine, on the other hand both on account of the smaller crop and without the British preference, is down nearly 25,000,000 bushels from 104,160,000 to 79,382,000 bushels.

The chief factor in the excellent showings for Canada and Australia is the virtual collapse in Russian shipments this year. The total to date amounts to only 17,408,000 bushels, where one year before there had been exported 70,726,000. During the past four weeks, Russia's export amounted to only 96,000, three weeks being without a single shipment. Exports from "other" countries were down from 64,604,000 to 22,266,000 bushels.

WELCOME

C.G.I.T. And Mission Band Puts On Fine Play

So many good things have been happening at Welcome recently that the scribe has been unable to keep up with them, but that special program must be made of the program put on Friday evening, May 5th, by the C.G.I.T. girls and Mission Band under the capable direction of Mrs. E. H. Martyn.

After the singing of a hymn and prayer by the Pastor, Rev. W. E. Honey, who was chairman on this occasion, the first number on the program, "Easter Joy Brings Gifts," by the Mission Band was announced. This was followed by an Exercise by some of the Mission Band Members, "Is Your Sympathy Wide as Your Hat Brim?" which was well received. Then came the main part of the program.

The "Pill Bottle" is a fine Missionary play of four acts. The first scene shows four College Graduates leaving college and preparing to set out into the world. The subsequent scenes are laid in India and show Barbara Lane, the heroine of the play, giving up her beloved work of "interior decorating" and becoming a doctor in order to minister to the needs of the suffering Indian women. The last scene depicts an Indian woman coming to Barbara and showing her how through the "Pill Bottle," she and many others have been led to Christ.

Then, these patients who have been cured in body and mind enter in groups of four singing "Just As I Am" and gather about Barbara. In the silence that follows, a Bible Woman leads them in a simple prayer of Thanksgiving and faith.

It is a fine play splendidly acted. Cast of Characters.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY HELD AT PETERBORO

St. Andrew's United Church, formerly Presbyterian, is this week celebrating its 100th birthday. The congregation was formed in May, 1833, by Rev. Morrice Roger, a student from Scotland, and John Edmison, one of the four young men who arrived with Adam Scott in 1818 at the site of the City of Peterboro. Great crowds attended services Sunday, and two former ministers, Dr. J. G. Potter, Montreal, and Rev. James Gordon, London, were the special preachers. The centennial celebrations continue this week, with other former ministers giving addresses.

GOV.-GENERAL REVIEWS CADETS

Lord And Lady Bessborough Pay Week End Visit To Kingston

His Excellency Earl Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, and Countess Bessborough had an enjoyable week-end at the Royal Military College, when they paid a visit to the Commandant, Colonel W. H. P. Elkins, and Mrs. Elkins, reviewed the gentlemen cadets on parade and visited the buildings. Sunday morning they attended St. George's Cathedral, to which the R.M.C. Cadets and Royal Canadian Horse Artillery paraded. The sermon was preached by Very Rev. Dr. Craig, Dean of Ontario. They arrived Saturday morning and were favored with beautiful weather on both days.

On addressing the cadets his Excellency referred to the deep impression his visit of a year ago had made upon him and he had determined to return to the college at the first opportunity. He was pleased that her Excellency was able to accompany him on this occasion.

The principle of a sound mind in a sound body was stressed to the cadets by his Excellency. To the younger cadets he charged that they make the best of their time at the college and put everything into store that would be of service to them in later life.

To those who were completing their time at the college his Excellency urged that they hold fast to all they had learned and to carry always with them the spirit of the R.M.C.

ZEPPELIN READY TO TAKE TRIPS

Will Start For South America Saturday — To Run All Summer

Undaunted by the crash of the U.S.S. Akron and other lighter-than-air disasters, the officers of the Graf Zeppelin prepared the veteran airship for the resumption of regular travel to South America Saturday.

The big airship, which has been making regular voyages each year to South America with almost steamship regularity on schedules, was overhauled during the Winter and pronounced ready to continue the service.

Flying experts said the round-trip service linking Friedrichshafen with Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, would be continued all Summer, and that possibly a year-round, 10-day round-trip service to the Latin-American continent would be worked out this year.

The voyage starting Saturday will be another step in the history of Germany's spectacular success with dirigible flying. Zeppelin officials said, marking the beginning of intermediate stops in Spain.

Facilities will be made available at both Seville and Barcelona, it was announced, through the co-operation of the Spanish Government. Another improvement in the service, it was said, will be that all trips this season without exception will be scheduled to proceed all the way to Rio de Janeiro, obviating the necessity, as occasionally in the past, of passengers transferring at Pernambuco, Brazil, to an airplane.

REPLACE COINS OF POOR COLOR

British Silver Pieces Made Of Four-Metal Alloy

Five hundred million British silver coins, struck between 1900 and 1927 are being withdrawn gradually from circulation by order of the Royal Mint.

They are discolored coins which have never been regarded with favor by the public, and were popularly known as "yellow" silver.

The discoloration was caused by the large proportion of copper in the alloy.

This alloy was decided upon in 1920 by the Mint owing to the high price of silver in the years immediately following the war. A shilling at that time was worth nearly 1s 6d as bullion, and contained 92.5 per cent, pure silver.

In the new coins the proportion of silver was reduced to 50 per cent and soon after the new coins were put into circulation they rapidly discolored owing to the appearance of oxide of copper.

Oxidization caused the coins to assume many colors, including yellow, red and russet. Others had the tinge of old gold.

Shopkeepers, as well as the general public, regarded the coins with suspicion and alarmist rumors that coiners had put millions of bad shillings and half-crowns into circulation spread until public fears were allayed by official statements.

A new alloy containing 50 per cent silver, 40 per cent copper, 5 per cent nickel and 5 per cent zinc was introduced four years ago, and found to give satisfactory results. Banks and post offices will co-operate in the task of withdrawing the discolored currency, which is expected to be replaced by the new alloy.

THE MOTHER

We come in pain to her who love us best; We cause her pain and anguish many a day,

Yet, by the tiny words we early learn to say,

The mother thinks herself supremely blest;

Toils dreary hours to keep us neatly dressed

And through the window watches us at play;

Glad hers the task to put our toys away

And see us safely tucked in bed to rest.

Despite our frailties and the wrong we do

Long hours of illness and the care we bring,

Her love remains devoted, constant, true.

Always some joy is she remembering.

Would you be brave in trouble? Then recall

How much our mothers suffer for us all.

—Edgar A. Guest.

KITTENS ARE GIVEN DISTINGUISHED NAMES

Love of animals and a fondness for pets seems to characterize railwaymen all the world over, so it is perhaps not unusual that when the pet cat of the baggage room of the Canadian National Railways at Windsor, Ontario, became the proud mother of kittens, the head porter should want to "christen them." This he did, but not until he had consulted "naming books" in French and English, finally arriving at Etoile, Marguerite and Archibald. Shortened or nicknames are not favoured in this particular baggage room, for the kittens' mother rejoices in the full name "Elizabeth."

SEED BUYERS' PROTECTION

Farmers who buy seed from their neighbours should protect themselves by asking to be shown the grade certificate issued on the seed by the inspector of the Dominion Seed Branch. If the certificate is marked "Rejected" the sale is illegal and the use of the seed full of dangerous possibilities. The Seeds Act of Canada was enacted to check the menace of dirty seed and it applies to everybody without exception who sells seed.

MINING BLDG. BLAZE CHECKED

Edward Quinlan, Port Hope, Makes Discovery And Notifies Police

Early discovery of a blaze in room 59 of the University of Toronto Mining Building, College street, Toronto, at three o'clock Sunday afternoon, resulted in the swift quenching of the flames by downtown fire sections restriction of loss to $1,000 to building and contents, and the saving of examination papers, stored in a room a few feet from the flames.

Edward Quinlan, Bedford street, Port Hope, a demonstrator of the Applied Science faculty, now doing radium research work at Port Hope and also in the building during week-ends, was on his way to a room on the third floor when he smelled smoke.

Tracing it to room 59 he heard the crackling of flames and sent in a hurry call to police headquarters and Detective Sergeant Harold Waterhouse and Detective Fred Storm relayed the call to the fire switchboard.

"I was doing experimental work on the third floor and was on my way up to see how it was progressing when I smelled the smoke," Quinlan declared. "I got in touch with police headquarters because the telephone switchboard wasn't working and they sent in the alarm."

LURID PRESS IS DENOUNCED

Obscene Publications Denounced By Synod — Resolution To Attorney General

A resolution denouncing certain publication of a "lurid sensational and obscene character," will be sent to Attorney General Price by the Toronto and Kingston Synod of the Presbyterian Church, it was decided at its meeting in St. John's Presbyterian Church Toronto.

Publications referred to are "tending to demoralize the youth of the country and to destroy those Christian influences which the church is seeking to propagate," the resolution read. No publications were named. However, it was pointed out the general assembly two years ago condemned obscene literature coming in from the United States, and it was felt it was time to bring attention to publications of this type.

The budget report, presented by Rev. Dr. R. S. Shortt of Barrie, showed a decrease of $23,900 approximately 15 per cent, in contributions during the past year.

KING HAS REIGNED TWENTY-THREE YEARS

Flags were flying throughout Great Britain Saturday as a tribute to the King on the 23rd anniversary of his accession to the throne. He will be 68 years old June 3rd.

A stream of congratulatory messages poured into Buckingham Palace. There was no formal celebration at the palace where the King and Queen spent the day quietly together, but every royal servant drank to the health of the rules in champagne and port supplied by the King.

BOWMANVILLE STOPS GIVING FREE MEALS

Col. Lorne T. McLaughlin, president of the Welfare Board, issued orders through the secretary, Reeve T. H. Lockhart, that no further meals will be provided for transients coming through Bowmanville. The government has suggested the town has been spending a little too much on transients and the move is made as a measure of economy. Notice was given so that citizens who have been in the habit of sending transients to the police station for meals will know not to send any more.

THE ELK COMES BACK TO ONTARIO

Pursuing its policy of conserving and restoring native wild life, the Canadian Government is arranging with the Canadian National Railways to ship to the lands of the Burwash Industrial Farm at Sudbury, Ontario, a group of wild elk from the herd at Buffalo Park, Wainwright, Alberta. Ontario was formerly the elk's natural home but it retreated with the advance of civilization.

PREPARE FOR 1933 SEASON

Tennis Club Plans Active Season—Will Hold Bridge Party

The Tennis Club began its activities for the 1933 season Tuesday evening when the annual Spring meeting was held in the Public Library, with a very representative attendance.

With the re-elected President Miss Doris Hancock, presiding, all business and management items were efficiently and satisfactorily disposed of, and the Club is thus prepared for a most auspicious season with an increase in memberships anticipated.

Chairman of the Grounds Committee, Robert Wickett, submitted a most encouraging report. The process of reconditioning the courts is favourably progressing and the addition of several loads of fresh clay surfacing augur a much faster and truer playing surface than has been the case for some seasons.

Definite provision for the equipping of the new club house with a complete set of China and other requisites of a tea service was made, and this work will be finished in due course.

The Games Captain, E. Wynn, has in formation a season replete with tournaments and other means of effectually maintaining the standard of play. A motion for the tentative entry of the Club in the Kawartha District Schedule was unanimously carried; this provides a season of competition with visiting teams and is regarded as being a highly constructive measure, especially in the development of younger players.

The official opening is scheduled for May 24th, when a tournament of singles and mixed doubles matches will be conducted. This has always been a notable high light of the year.

In short, the Club has embarked upon the new year with an enthusiastic thoroughness which portends well, both for the welfare of the Club itself and for the individual players, who seem assured of a considerably increased measure of personal enjoyment than has been heretofore enjoyed.

The obvious necessity for a rather substantial initial outlay of disbursements has rendered it imperative that sufficient means be acquired to that end. Consequently, an entertainment for bridge enthusiasts has been arranged for the evening of Thursday, May 11th. Complete details are not as yet available. The cover charge is to be the purely nominal amount of thirty-five cents per person.

Although considerably more might quite reasonably be asked for, it is the opinion of the executive that the above stipulation is more in accordance with prevalent conditions, and therefore preferable. This factor alone merits a great success, yet there are many more equally or even more important, too numerous for enumeration. It might be noted, however, that it is at least two years since the Tennis Club sought an appreciative public on its behalf and thus this bridge party deserves the attention of those continually being called upon by organizations less wide spread in membership and which contribute less to the physical and social welfare of the citizens as a whole. Port Hope would be a desolate place during the summer months without its tennis club, always available to even the most casual visitor. Further particulars will be provided in an early issue.

JAIL TERM ON RELIEF CHARGE

Thomas Pugh, Oshawa, Sentenced After Conviction On Charge Of Fraud

Appearing in Oshawa Police Court for sentence on a charge of obtaining relief from the Public Welfare Board under false pretences, Thomas Pugh, was sentenced to a term of sixty days in the County Jail with hard labour by Magistrate Creighton.

Pugh was convicted a week ago when the evidence adduced by Crown Attorney J. A. McGibbon was heard. It was stated at that time that Pugh had received goods valued at $221.36 between April 14, 1932, and March 16, 1933, from the Public Welfare Board, while there had been a steady and substantial income in his home.

ONTARIO HORTICULTURAL ASSOCIATION

Resolutions passed at the Annual Convention of the Association held in Toronto on February 9 and 10, 1933.

1.—"Whereas it is one of the ideals of the Ontario Horticultural Association to make our work a service, not only to ourselves, but to those who come after us by the creation of new beauty and whereas rural and urban communities to-day offer marvellous possibilities for transfiguration into beauty: Be it resolved, therefore, that this Convention ask the incoming officials and Board of Directors to give immediate consideration to a program of Civic and Highway improvement, which will foster greater activity in our campaign of roadside planting, natural beauty conservation and improvements to the approaches of cities, towns and villages. This work of course to be carried out in conjunction with the Highways and Forestry Departments and Civic organizations." Moved by J. Albert Smith, seconded by J. B. Spencer and carried.

2.—"Whereas educational work is of great importance and one of the principal objects of the Ontario Horticultural Association. Therefore be it resolved that the incoming 1933 Officials and Board of Directors immediately have articles prepared on horticultural topics, civic beautification, value of horticulture and activities; these to be effectively distributed to the press of the Province and to Horticultural Societies, to be used by them to make the ideals of our organization better known and to give horticultural activities the publicity it so rightfully deserves." Moved by J. Albert Smith, seconded by Wm. Hartry, and carried.

3.—"Whereas there are many pairs of idle hands in our Province that have nothing to do—hands not needed at the present time in any phase of the production of food, clothing and shelter—the more staid and prosaic life needs and as most of these persons would be willing to contribute work for the relief received from various municipalities; therefore be it resolved that our incoming officials and Board of Directors formulate a constructive Province wide program, which will direct this enormous idle energy in part to new tasks of civic beautification, that will substitute beauty for ugliness in public places, will rouse a high degree of community pride and result in rapid extension of the beautification movement throughout the Province. We believe home owners will find their imagination fired by these projects and will apply the knowledge of their observations to their own home grounds, thus carrying the gospel of beauty into far corners." Moved by J. Albert Smith and seconded by J. B. Spencer and carried.

4.—"Whereas a heavy import tariff increase of 15 per cent has been imposed on bulbs of various kinds, and whereas the interests of Canadian growers were not adversely affected under the previous tariff; the importations serving as a basis for, rather than competition against their industry and as the successful culture of bulbs is not possible in Canada in a commercial way and has not been possible in the United States where bulb growing has been attempted with mediocre results as to quality and volume; whereas this increased tariff only creates an increase in the price with decrease in planting and no benefit to anyone in particular; therefore be it resolved that we record our strong disapproval of this increase in tariff on the items named, and that copies of this resolution be sent to the Prime Minister of Canada; the Minister of Agriculture for Canada; the Minister of National Revenue; the Minister of Trade and Commerce, and others interested, and that we at the same time express our agreement with tariff protection in

FRASERVILLE CAT MOTHERS THREE RABBITS

What are a few baby bunnies to James Coombe's tabby cat? Just some little round furry things to be mothered. Mr. Coombe's cat has a large batch of kittens, which most mothers might consider to be enough of a good thing. But cheerfully she has added to her care three young rabbits. The rabbits were uncovered in a burrow on Mr. Coombe's farm near Fraserville while the farmer was engaged in his spring plowing. At a loss what to do with the bunnies, he took them to the manger in the barn where the cat had her happy family. After a few licks the cat accepted the addition to her family, and new kittens and bunnies share equally at dinner time and roll up together as bed-fellows.

MISPLACED HEART

Lionel Ward, aged 21, of Port of Spain, Trinidad, B.W.I., was ridiculed for years because he complained his heart was on the wrong side (the right) side. But doctors recently discovered his heart is actually misplaced.

The interests of horticulture as far as may be found necessary, when good quality stock can be produced in Canada in sufficient quantity to supply the demand and price to consumers are not advanced." Moved by J. A. Smith and seconded by J. B. Spencer and carried.

5.—"Whereas this association has set up Diplomas and Awards of Merit for outstanding horticultural achievements, be it therefore resolved that this convention empower the incoming officials and Board of Directors to draw up rules and regulations to govern the awarding of these awards and medals, and that they be given power to act." Moved by J. B. Spencer, and seconded by Wm. Hartry, and carried.

6.—"That this Association in convention assembled express our appreciation to the Government of the Province of Ontario, the Minister of Agriculture, and members of his department for financial grants, re-appointments of Mr. John F. Clark as government lecturer in horticulture, and the general whole-hearted assistance given toward the cause of horticulture." Moved by J. A. Smith and seconded by Rev. Geo. W. Tebbis, and carried.

7.—"Whereas the following have contributed toward making this convention a success—The speakers, Toronto Horticultural Society, King Edward Hotel, management, Miss Wallace, Mr. Jackson, Mr. Petch, Miss McArthur, members of the superintendent's staff, and to all others who have assisted in our convention arrangements. Be it therefore resolved that this association express its thanks and appreciation for services so willingly contributed." Moved by Wm. Hartry, seconded by J. B. Spencer, and carried.

8.—"Whereas Mr. John F. Clark has been confined to his home during this convention, owing to the necessity of a major operation, and he has endeared himself to the members of this organization through his energetic and untiring efforts, be it therefore resolved that this convention forward to Mr. Clark its kind wishes for a complete recovery, at an early date." Moved by J. A. Smith, and seconded by J. B. Spencer, and carried.

9.—"Whereas the press of the province has continued its kind support to the cause of horticulture; be it therefore resolved that this convention extend sincere thanks." Moved by J. A. Smith, seconded by Wm. Hartry, and carried.

GLADIOLUS THRIPS

Control of the gladiolus thrips may be brought about by the treatment of all corms prior to planting. Such a practice kills the hibernating insects, which may have increased enormously in storage, and allows the plants to come up in the field free of the pest. However, a word of warning is given by the Dominion Entomological Branch in its new circular on Gladiolus Thrips. In order to obtain maximum results, community action in the treatment of corms is necessary. It has been found that due to the insect ability to migrate from garden to garden, treated stock, although clean in the spring, becomes contaminated from nearby infested gladioli. Therefore every effort should be made to induce as many growers as possible in each district to treat their stock before planting.

There are several methods of treatment which will kill all stages of the thrips without injuring the corms, but three only are selected because they are known to be effective, simple to apply, cheap, and harmless to the corms. They are (1) naphthalene flakes, (2) corrosive sublimate and (3) hot water. Just which method the grower selects will depend largely on his individual tastes and circumstances. Any of these can be used with confidence, as they have been thoroughly tested and have given good results in experimental and commercial work.

Naphthalene flakes are harmless to human beings, and the corms should be sprinkled with them at the rate of 1 ounce to every 100 corms which should be placed in paper bags or in cardboard or wooden boxes. The containers are then closed and the process of fermentation allowed to go on for 3 or 4 weeks at room temperature. Tin or airtight containers should not be used as growth of the corms is likely to take place during the process.

Corrosive sublimate is a deadly poison and the greatest care should be exercised in its use. Against gladiolus thrips it is used in the form of a dip, diluted at the rate of 1 ounce to 6 gallons of water. Spring is the best time for this treatment, and only glass, earthenware or wooden containers should be used. The husks of the corms should be removed before dipping and soaked for 3 hours.

In treating corms with hot water they should be immersed for 10 minutes in a bath at a temperature of 210 degrees F., care being taken not to allow the temperature at any time during the process to rise above that degree of heat.

CLOTHING FOR A CRUISING HOLIDAY

For a cruising holiday, the first and last consideration is to take as little clothing as possible, states the Canadian National Steamships concerning its West Indies tours. In support of this advice, the Company quotes a famous traveller whose rule is to pack his clothes in three trunks or travelling bags. The first contains what he is sure to need every day; the second what he may need two or three times a week; the third what he thinks he may need some time during the trip. Then, leaving behind numbers two and three, he sets off on his tour rejoicing. Nevertheless, the Company recommends an umbrella and a bathing suit as essential. The umbrella, it explains, has uses in any climate.

MONCRIEF GIVEN $7,500 DAMAGES

Launched Action Against Morley Thomas And H. Cassina, Port Hope

Permanently crippled as a result of an automobile-truck collision on Highway 28 on the morning of March 22, 1932, Norman Moncrief, 39-year-old North Monaghan township farmer was awarded $7,500 damages by Mr. Justice Raney at the non-jury sittings of Supreme Court at Peterboro.

Plaintiff, who was represented by V. J. McElderry, K.C., claimed damages in the sum of $15,000 against Morley Thomas, youthful Port Hope truck driver, and against Harry Cassina the youth's employer. The action was undefended.

"Never mind the crutch now," His Lordship remarked wishing to observe the full extent of Moncrief's incapacity as he hobbled painfully from the seat beside his counsel to the witness box.

Moncrief repeated the story he told at the criminal proceedings before Judge Huycke last December when young Thomas upon retrial on a charge of criminal negligence was acquitted by a jury.

He related how he had left home on the morning of the accident to deliver milk in his car to the dairy at Peterboro. It had snowed heavily during the night, plaintiff testified, and the roads were covered with snow to a depth of from four to six inches. It was raining immediately prior to the smash and there was difficulty in keeping the windshield clear of accumulating ice.

When he reached the dairy and before undertaking the return trip home, Moncrief stated, he had cleared his windshield. He was just entering upon Hatton's Curve on the highway, he said, when he first noticed the truck approaching about 100 yards distant. "I kept on the edge of the pavement on the right hand side of the road, and was travelling at a speed of about 20 m.p.h. The windshield was clear at that time. It had stopped raining," witness testified.

The driver of the truck had his head out the side of the cab, and the vehicle appeared to be on its own side of the road when witness first noticed it. The speed of the truck witness estimated, was twice the speed at which witness was driving.

From what Moncrief understood of defendant's evidence at former proceedings he said the front wheels of the truck missed the car. It was the overhanging stake body of the truck that struck the car.

Among some of the expenses that plaintiff had incurred as a result of the accident were the following: Hospital, $88.30; nurse, $45; doctors, $136; dentist, $14; X-ray specialist at Toronto, $17.50; suit of clothes ruined in smash $25; special surgical boot for left foot, $4.

The sedan car in which plaintiff was driving was so badly smashed, he said, that it was handed over to the wrecker. He had to pay $4 to have the wreckage towed from the scene of the smash and $4 for storage. He spent an additional $475 to replace the car that was smashed-up.

Medical testimony was provided by Dr. A. Moir and Dr. G. S. Cameron. The former declared that besides suffering from severe shock, Moncrief had superficial face wounds, fractured jaw, several teeth knocked out, a fracture of the left leg below the knee, and a fracture of the socket on which the head of the femur was located. The latter injury was the most serious of all, and both medical men were agreed, that the effect of that injury had been to cause a permanent shortening of the left leg. They were also of unanimous opinion that Moncrief was practically incapacitated from following the occupation of farming.

Little Incidents In The History Of Canada

By J. H. Mosgrove

The First Mass in Canada

After hearing mass on board the int Etienne, Champlain with his urdy crew and the little band of courageous Recollet missionaries, composed of Fathers Le Caron, Ojibscat, Jamay and du Plessis, the first ambassadors of Christ in Canada, sailed from Montreal on the 24th of April, 1615, arriving at Tadoussac on the 25th of the following month.

Upon reaching Quebec, they resolved the news that a large gathering of Indians were already assembling for a great conclave at the Falls of St. Louis, a rendezvous appointed by Champlain, the previous season, and there awaiting the governor. Over-zealous in anticipation of the bountiful harvest to be reaped for the glory of God, the news of the gathering flamed Le Caron's imagination to such an extent that he made all preparation for immediate departure in the hope that mingling among the natives would foster an understanding of mutual good-will between them before establishing a missionary in their midst.

On the morning following his arrival at Quebec, the valiant priest clad in the coarse gray robe of his order, his bare feet encased in wooden sandals—a pitiful, alien figure in a barbaric land—took his place in a canoe with three stalwart savages. After the usual exchange of farewells with those gathered at the waters edge to see him depart, he drifted gently into the current of the St. Lawrence and set his face along this primitive pathway to the setting sun.

Camped for Night

It was not long before Le Caron and his native crew were alone in the grandeur of the wilderness. All day under a burning sun they toiled unceasingly, without sign or speech, only the constant "dip-dip" of the paddles, and the ever-unfolding of new scenes broke the monotony. Evening had had come some nine leagues from Quebec and finding a convenient grassy slope beached their canoe and camped for the night. They lighted their fires and ate their meal in silence, each gazing with eager eyes at the peculiar custom of the other. In the mind of one rose the grotesque pictures of demons, hideously painted, with faces leering and cynical. In the others, an uncanny apparition hidden in robe and cowl, with eyes deep and devious. The day died gloriously, the rosy tint along the horizon deepened into crimson and faded out, while from the north the black shadows of the forest came in velvety patches blotting out the serenity of the day.

No sign of human life was anywhere visible or audible. The peace that never dells in the abode of man held silent, omnipotent sway.

The stars came out and Le Caron beheld them as the candles of Jehovah to light the pathway to his chosen field. Keeping vigil by the embers of the dying fire he held the crucifix before his drooping eyes and in devotion repeated his breviary and poured forth his blessings to God, as firesides filled before him in the pitchy blackness, and mosquitoes in swarming myriads stung and irritated him.

Met Champlain

Filled with enthusiasm over his reception from the Indians, and despite the precautionary warning of Champlain, Le Caron returned to Quebec for the church ornaments in his eagerness to establish a mission among the Hurons. On his way thither again to these distant lands he met Champlain returning from the conclave, and upon the pious request of the governor pulled into a shady retreat to celebrate the mass.

On the instant the Indians were sent to work clearing the spot of roots and brambles. When the task was finished, Father Jamay, the associate of Le Caron, hung a large crucifix on the trunk of a huge tree that grew upon a knoll overlooking the river, and with the aid of the soldiers fashioned an altar dressing it with flowers arranged by Father Le Caron. A primitive chapel, amphitheatre in form, its canopy the blue of the heavens, its portal the majestic St. Lawrence, the verdant forest, and its aisles the deep green herbage of the god, the altar elevated in the deep shadows and before it the father droning a traditional chant—a chant so often sung in his little monastery in far-off France. The kneeling worshippers in sudden passion, lifting their voices in response muttering their devotions in one accord.

There was no choir to repeat the chant, only the hollowness of the distant hills held it, returning it in the reverence it had been received. The motley hood of savages seated, ring within ring, listened intently, some in awe and meek submission, others sneering with incredulity as the evangelical priest went on. The standard of France drooping above, kept silent watch. The sun pierced the thick foliage, the trees casting its lambent flame upon the figure upon the Cross, weaving a crown of glory upon the iron-gray head of the Superior as he bestowed his final blessing upon his followers. Rising with the sign of the cross, his hands clasped in prayer, and his eyes to heaven, Father Le Caron moved slowly through the kneeling group toward the shore.

A touching scene of angelic purity, in this, the celebration of the first mass in Canada.

DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL MEET AT OSHAWA MAY 24

According to information given out by the Ontario Athletic Commission, Oshawa will on May 24, be the scene of the annual district meet of High School athletes. Due to lack of interest and entries in the Public and Separate School sections, these have been left out of the meet this year. Some of the conditions covering the meet are as follows:—

The high school meet is open to boys 12 years of age and over. Boys must represent the schools they are attending May 1, and each entrant must forward his official birth certificate to the commission secretary unless a certificate is already in the hands of the commission.

Expenses of the winners in the district meets, if they meet the standard marks, will be paid to Toronto for the finals. Pupils failing to get 50 per cent. in school examinations will not be eligible to compete in the district trials.

THE AWAKENING

James Lewis Milligan
I woke at the dawning grey and chill,
With a lingering dream in my head.
I heard the crows on the distant hill—
"Caw, caw, caw, caw," they said.
And I greeted the day with a youth's glad will,
For I knew that winter was dead.
I knew that his funeral knell was toll-
ed,
That the sleek, black-suited crows
Had picked his bones on the windy
wold,
Where he scattered his barren
snows;
I heard the daffodil trumps of gold
Loud herald the Royal Rose!

I called to my love, who long had lain
In dreams of our yester-year;
"Awake!" I said, "from thy visions vain,
The same old spring is here!"
We walked through the woods and fields again,
And the birds sang gay and clear!

Since there are no dogs on the tiny South Sea island of Borabora, most of the children have baby pigs as pets.

Suitably Honored Before Leaving Morrish Community

Friends Make Presentation To Mrs. A. Lewis And Son
A very enjoyable evening was spent recently when a number of friends met in Morrish Sunday School room to bid adieu to Mrs. A. Lewis and son Francis before sailing to England.

Mrs. Lewis has been a great acquisition to the community, the Church and the S.S., being a skillful nurse, a member of the choir and of the Bible Class.

Rev. W. E. Honey acted as chairman and the evening was spent with violin and vocal music, which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Hawthorne read the address which appears below and Mr. Peters presented Mrs. Lewis with a beautiful travelling bag and silk umbrella and Francis with a book of Bible stories.

While taken completely by surprise, Mrs. Lewis replied briefly, thanking all for the beautiful gifts. At the close, refreshments were served and the proceedings were brought to a close with the National Anthem. The following address was read:—

To Mrs. Albert Lewis:—
"It was with regret that we learned of your intention to leave this neighborhood and to go so far away; and we could not let your departure take place without some expression of our high regard for you, and our sincere wishes for your future well-being.

"Your residence among us has been comparatively short, but long enough for us to have found in you a good neighbor and a thoughtful and true friend. In joy and sorrow alike you have shown an unchanging interest in the good of those around you. We will miss your neighborly kindness and your helpful presence in our church.

"As you leave we wish you to accept these gifts from your Morrish friends as a token of esteem, hoping that your stay in the homeland, whether long or short, may be very happy for yourself and your little boy, and assuring you a warm welcome if you return to us."
Signed on behalf of Morrish Church and neighborhood.

The Guide Story

The friendship between the two was strained to breaking-point. Iris quite expected Angela Lyndon to say she had made other arrangements. Instead she stayed on in the old rooms near the Enbankment, which she shared with Iris. When Denis Carlton chanced to call, Angela had always some excuse for leaving them together.

Iris found her work at the Academy of Dancing on the increase as winter set in. Fresh pupils came and since she was Madame Valerie's best assistant, her spare time amounted to very little.

One evening, madame came into the dance-room, accompanied by a tall, stalwart young man, gray-eyed, brown-haired, a trifle abashed by his unaccustomed surroundings.

"My dear, this is a great friend of mine, Mr. —" The noise of the orchestra—it was a special evening—drowned the name that followed. "He wants to be initiated into the latest fox-trot. Miss Raymond"—turning to him as she waved her plump hand at Iris—"will give you her best attention, I'm sure."

The young man was by no means an awkward pupil, when once he warmed to his task. Iris found it pleasant work teaching him.

As a rule, she was as impersonal to her pupils as a doctor to his patients. And the pupils were mostly girls. This big, handsome fellow with his swift smile and gray-blue eyes affected her oddly. She liked the tones of his voice, the somewhat formal courtesy with which he treated her.

"You will soon have the step perfect," she said, when the music ceased. "This is not your first lesson, by any means?"

"I've always been fond of dancing," he replied. His eyes rested on Iris, in a frock of opalescent chiffon. The changing hues blended with her rich yet delicate coloring. "Oh, I know that"—laughingly, as the orchestra began to play the dreamy, haunting melody of "A Love Letter." "Ripping waltz, isn't it?"

"I suppose so." A shadow crossed her face. The wrong done to Bertie by Eric Westcombe, the publisher of "A Love Letter," still rankled in her mind. Had Westcombe paid him more for the song, he could have gone to Egypt at his own expense. And she would not be engaged at this moment to Denis Carlton.

For a second she felt inclined to tell this strong, radiant young man that her brother was the composer of the waltz-song in question. Then she checked the impulse. He might not feel interested.

Iris and the new pupil danced together several times. He had a lot to say. His knowledge of the dances of other lands showed him to have been a wide traveller. Iris enjoyed the talk with him. Then she had to leave him, lest other pupils should feel neglected.

He came up to bid her good night later.

"You will be here, Miss Raymond, to-morrow evening?"—with a straight look at her.

"I am here every evening, Sundays excepted," she replied. Why should his personality affect her to such an extent? She felt oddly thrilled, excited, happy, as if something new and wonderful had come to her. "You will not need many lessons," she went on. "If all my pupils were as apt as you!"

"That speaks volumes for you as a teacher." His deep, mellow tones sounded like music in her ear. "But I shall certainly hope to dance with you again to-morrow, Miss Raymond."

His words seemed to hold a special meaning. Iris flushed faintly. She wished she had caught his name when madame introduced him to her. "By the way," he went on, "are you related to the composer of 'A Love Letter'? It's the same name. It appealed to me as familiar."

"I am Bertram Raymond's sister," she replied quietly.

"Is that so?" His interest evidently deepened. "I'm awfully anxious to get in touch with your brother, Miss Raymond. But a friend, a Mr. Carlton, looks after his business affairs. This gifted young composer keeps in the background."

"Bertie has been very ill," she explained, "as the result of an accident up the river last summer. He is in Egypt now, and he writes home to the effect that he is much better."

"I'm very glad to hear this. I shall try to interview him on his return."

This stranger's interest shown in Bertie did not surprise her at all. He might, for aught she knew, be in the music publishing trade, eager to secure Bertie's next song.

"His friend, Denis Carlton, acts for my brother during his absence," she said, without mentioning the fact that she was engaged to Carlton. It seemed to have no bearing on this talk. And Iris liked to forget her engagement as much as possible.

"Yes, so I understand. May I have one more dance with you before going?"

Their steps blended perfectly. She was strangely happy and moved when he bade her good night. There was a dreamy look in her eyes when, the last pupil gone, madame came up to her.

"What do you think of him?" she said to Iris. "Oh, my child, how the years pass! I knew Eric Westcombe when he was six years old. He and his people lived next door to me at Oxlind, in Sussex. I used to box his ears for coming over the wall and stealing my apples—but he and I became great friends."

Iris started violently. This man who had stirred some hitherto dormant chord in her breast, whom she had liked from the first moment they met, was Eric Westcombe, the publisher reaping a golden harvest from Bertie's song, for which he had paid so poorly.

While still personally unknown to her, how she had hated and scorned him as the meanest creature on earth. How she had longed to tell him precisely what she thought of him! The delusion was complete. It fairly stunned her.

Even now that she knew who he was, the chords he had unwittingly touched in her still vibrated. Yet they trade discordant music.

"I was sure you would like to know him," Madame went on, since Iris was silent. "It was he who published your brother's song. Westcombe's first great success as a music-publisher."

"Yes," Iris' lips curved scornfully. His success, indeed, not poor Bertie's. But she had never brought this private grudge under Madame's notice.

"I've not seen much of Eric lately," Madame stifled a yawn. It was growing late. She wanted to adjourn to her own cosy rooms over the Academy. "He tells me, though, that he is coming again to-morrow. He's not perfect yet in the new step."

Iris going home by bus after a long evening's work mused over the new pupil's identity.

Had he treated Bertie more generously she would not at this moment be engaged to Denis Carlton. That flat courtship of hers, with the love all on one side, often got on the girl's nerves. And Eric Westcombe was indirectly responsible for it.

Yet it was difficult, having met Westcombe, to think of him as a mean man, fond of driving hard bargains with needy composers. He seemed the reverse of all this—kindly and genial.

He had expressed a wish to meet Bertie, to do business with him personally. Did he hope to get another song on the same terms as "A Love Letter"? Iris, uncertain as to her own mood, but vaguely distressed and unhappy, strove to banish Eric Westcombe from her mind. His image would return, though, till she fell asleep and then it moved through her dreams in a troubled fashion.

The next evening, when they met again at the Academy of Dancing, Westcombe was amazed at the changed bearing of Madame Valerie's chief assistant. Iris was polite, formal, remote, the paid teacher instructing a pupil. Apart from the dance she had nothing to say to him.

"Have I, by any chance, said or done anything to offend you, Miss Raymond?" he ventured at length, tired of trying to talk to a girl whose replies were of the shortest.

"Certainly not." The eyes she raised to his face were like frosty stars. Then, as the music stopped, "You don't need any more lessons. You can dance that particular step as well as I can."

He bowed to her with a touch of quiet dignity.

"Of course, if you say so it must be correct. I'm obliged to you for what you have taught me. I—I had hoped we might meet again—your brother's song forming a kind of link between us—but if that is not to be—"

He was looking at Denis Carlton's ring on her finger. It dawned on Iris that it was in her power to hurt him, if she chose, even at the cost of hurting herself still more.

She realized for the first time her own charm and its influence over him.

"I'm afraid it can't be," she said evenly. "I am a very busy person, and I go out very little. Dancing is my profession rather than my pleasure. Denis would tell you this."

"Denis?"

"My brother's friend, who brought his song to you. He and I are engaged."

CHAPTER V

Iris knew this shaft had gone home. She saw the glad light fade from Eric Westcombe's eyes, the curves of his firm chin tighten. The very sweetness of her nature, so reluctant ever to inflict pain, cried out against hurting him while she did it.

If only he had not spoken of Bertie's song as forming a kind of link between them she might have stayed her hand. All the song had led up to made her hard for the moment.

"You are engaged to Mr. Carlton?" Eric (Westcombe said slowly. "I think he is a very fortunate man. But, before we part, Miss Raymond, I should like to know why you were so pleasant and friendly with me yesterday, and so icily remote to-day."

"I can't admit anything of the kind," she said nervously. "I try to treat all my pupils alike."

How could she possibly explain her changed attitude to him there, in the dance-room, with the music starting again, and people all round them? How take him to task for driving a hard bargain with Bertie, and not seeking to atone for this when the song scored a success?

"That is very fair of you"—with a touch of mockery. "I won't take up any more of your valuable time. Good night. I hope your brother's health will continue to improve."

He moved from her as he spoke, took leave of Madame Valerie and vanished. The large, brilliantly-lighted room, though vibrating with music, seemed so empty when he was gone. She had driven him from her, and dull pain at her heart never felt before, was the result.

Smarting tears stood in her eyes as she smiled and danced with another pupil, instructing him the while. He was just a big, awkward lad, and encouraged by her kindly manner he told Iris he hated dancing, but he'd simply got to learn, since the girl he wanted would have nothing to say to him otherwise. And all his heart, not given to her, was bestowed on engineering.

"Do you think I'll ever learn?" he asked wistfully. "I seem such a fool at it."

Iris told him he would come along in time, when he brightened up. Going home that night she told herself wearily she was sick of dancing. At least, when she and Denis Carlton were married she would never have to teach it again. And yet—a shiver ran through her. Even dancing was better than the prospect of a life to be shared with him—the man she failed to love.

Why, oh, why had it grown so hard to keep up her dislike and disapproval cherished for Eric Westcombe?

Nothing had happened to improve her opinion of him, save that, personally, he was attractive, genial, the sort of man to create a good impression. How meanly he had treated Bertie over the song! She clung to this fact that it might help to keep her resentment alive. At present it seemed in a bad state of health, inclined to die out.

The next day brought Denis Carlton with news for her. He had passed his exams and qualified as a solicitor. His firm would soon consider admitting him into partnership. He would be expected to bring some money with him, though.

"My father will advance that—or part of it," he told Iris. "I can repay him later."

"If you had not sent Bertie abroad with your aunt's legacy," Iris said regretfully, "you would have had money of your own in hand, Denis."

"Oh, that was money well invested," he smiled. "Don't worry yourself, dear. I can easily get what I require. The great point is that my improved position brings our marriage nearer. We may as well begin to look out for a house. And the rest will follow."

Iris felt a sudden pang of icy dread as he spoke. Any illusion to the fulfilment of her promise to marry Denis led up to this shivery sensation.

"We must wait till Bertie comes home," she replied, almost wishing that Bertie might stay on in Egypt indefinitely. "He must be at our wedding."

The evasive haste, Denis Carlton had shown in rushing Bertie away for the benefit of his health, which she had set down to his devoted friendship at the time, returned to Iris now. Denis had seemed so relieved when Bertie had gone, as if some great danger had been averted. Even now he had no wish evidently to hasten his return.

"He must stay out there till he's quits well," he said. "Obviously, he sends us his benediction by cable? Surely you've some male relation who could give you away, child?"

"I've an uncle and a cousin or two scattered about the country," she admitted; "but it's Bertie's privilege to—be at my nuptials. We're in no hurry to get married, Denis."

He looked rather hurt at her remark.

"I'm looking forward to the event, anyhow," he said resentfully. "I want a home of my own, with you in it, girlie. The flat is a howling wilderness now Bertie's away."

To change the unwelcome subject, she told him of her introduction to Eric Westcombe at the Dancing Academy. The effect of this bit of news on Denis startled her.

His face went as white as chalk. He gave her a sudden, sharp, suspicious look.

"Did you discuss Bertie's song with Westcombe?" he asked curtly.

"No." She saw the tension of his features relax. "I had no chance to give him a piece of my mind," she resumed. "Otherwise, I might have done so. He deserved it."

"It would have been a foolish thing to do," Denis had himself in hand again. He spoke easily and suavely as usual. "I am looking after Bertie's affairs in his absence. Was the song mentioned at all?"

"Oh, scarcely. Bertie will get better terms the next time. Promise me, Iris, that you won't try to talk business with Westcombe, or give him your views on the subject, should he visit the Academy again. I thought this was already threshed out between us."

"It was," she agreed. "But I hadn't sought him out. He just came to Madame Valerie's."

"What on earth took a man of his type to such a place?"

"He wanted to learn a new fox-trot—or so he said. Madame has known him since he was a boy."

She did not go on to say that Eric Westcombe had bidden her what sounded like a final good-bye on the previous night, that his looks and words still haunted her. Denis Carlton reverted to the subject of their marriage.

"We might begin our house-hunting next week," he said. "It takes some time to get a home together."

"I wish I could bring more grist to the mill," Iris declared, with a forced laugh.

"That isn't necessary," Carlton's voice grew tender. She could hardly refuse to fall in with his wishes so far. Yet surely never did bride-elect set about the task of finding a home and furnishing it with less joyous anticipation. A sense of utter loneliness closed down on Iris at the time.

Angela Lyndon had become little more than a friend in name. Iris guessing at the girl's secret, strove to mention Denis Carlton in Angela's hearing as little as possible, to lay no stress on his wooing of her lest she should turn the knife in the wound. Yet Angela remained cold and remote. She and Iris spent their spare time apart. When they were together in the rooms they shared they spoke only of impersonal things.

It was a dull, scrawled, dreary state of things all round. Iris was heartily tired of it when she came across Eric Westcombe one day gazing at the pictures in a Bond street exhibition.

Iris had paid her shilling to see these works of a well-known artist, because Bertie had often praised him so highly. She would have passed Westcombe with a chilly little bow, giving no complex to the thrill running through her at the sight of him, but he stopped to inquire after Bertie.

"My brother is much better," she said, aware of the change in Westcombe's tone.

It was polite and level, that of one speaking to a mere acquaintance, without a note of personal interest left.

Eric Westcombe had withdrawn to a distance from her as a result of her engagement announced to him. He was the last man living to poach on another's preserves. She had hurt him badly the other night, first by her coldness, then by the pointed reference to her engaged state. Now she was clad in complete armour.

"I'm pleased to hear this," he replied. "Do you think Mr. Raymond will be coming home soon?"

"His return will depend greatly on the progress he makes out there," Iris hoped Westcombe would not notice the trembling of her lips. Why should a chance meeting with this man whom she had made up her mind to hate, because he had treated Bertie so shabbily, make her lose her poise and behave like a schoolgirl?

Iris felt angry with herself and with him.

"Is he writing any more songs?"

"Possibly. But he doesn't refer to them in his letters. He seems to be enjoying himself immensely at Biskra."

The sweet voice had a tired echo in it. It held no aversion or coldness now. Again Westcombe wondered what he could have done to vex her at the Academy. Had he allowed the sudden influx of love and attraction with which she had inspired him to show too plainly in looks or words? This must have been, the case.

She had withdrawn into herself, quite offended, carried nothing for the conquest made. Well, she was an engaged girl, and he had not known that at first. He could not help loving her, but he would never offend again by revealing the hopeless fact, to be crushed down and thrust aside firmly, since she was not for him.

"I'm keeping you from the pictures," he said. "They're very good—especially the seascapes. You can almost feel the wind and the spray. There's one I've decided to buy."

"Yes." A faint return of resentment showed in her manner perplexed him. He held no clue to them.

"Or would you rather I went away and left you in peace?"

"Oh, no"—aghast at her own unwonted rudeness. "I should like to see it," she added.

He led her to the other end of the long gallery. Iris felt it strange and exquisite to be walking beside him. Her anger was dying down so fast. She must be inconsistent to the last degree. And yet, for the moment, she was happy.

"This is the canvas," Westcombe said pointing to it.

A rough sea, flecked with loam-crested waves and flying before the gale a brown-sailed fishing-boat. Action expressed in every stroke of the gifted artist's brush.

"I like your choice," Iris said eagerly. "It's a living thing. I should have chosen that myself."

"Would you?" His eyes rested tenderly on her.

"Yes." She surveyed the picture in question with dreamy enjoyment. "It would be nice to have it hanging on the wall, a thing of beauty and a joy for ever."

"As a rule, I think people cease to look at familiar pictures in their room," Westcombe said.

"But this brings the sea home to you—the flying foam, the whistle of the wind, the hoarse cry of the scagull," Iris insisted. "If you love the sea, you could never grow tired of it."

Westcombe began to talk of pictures. In his travels he had visited very many foreign galleries and churches. Presently they sat down on one of the leather-covered settees in the place and the pleasant, desultory talk flowed on.

To Iris he was like a well of water in the arid dryness of her life. He knew so much and his way of telling it was so easy and informal, coloured by his own strong personality.

Iris forgot that she had ever disliked Eric Westcombe. Mentally she began to compare him with Denis Carlton. The latter had no gift of imagination, no wide views of life and things. He cared for her and for her profession. Outside these his interests, she knew, were very limited. Like his family, art held no lure for him.

With a little start, she glanced at her wrist-watch.

"I'd no idea it was so late," she faltered. "I'm afraid I must go."

(Westcombe rose and stood beside her.)

"Shall we have a cup of tea together?" he said. "Or perhaps you are meeting Mr. Carlton?"

"No. Denis has gone home for a day or two," she replied, aware how rigidly Westcombe kept her engagement in view. "But I must get back to Madame Valerie's within the hour."

"Then we've plenty of time," Westcombe took her to some dainty tea-rooms in Bond street. The dainty served tasted like nectar, the cakes were ambrosia, good and drink of the gods. Iris pouring out tea for herself and the lean, handsome, stalwart man in the well-cut grey lounge suit had a touch of domesticity about it.

She was nervously conscious of this, of her own uneasy joy. She laughed and talked with a new sense of life's values. She could not tell how charming she looked in her fur-trimmed coat, with a bunch of Parma violets nestling in the collar. Westcombe knew, though, and his secret envy of Denis Carlton in having won her increased.

It was hard to keep the personal note out of his voice as he watched her.

"You like your profession?" he said, helping himself to a second chocolate éclair.

"Dancing is the thing I can do best," she answered. "That is why I became a teacher. To some people it may seem frivolous."

"Why? It is one of the arts—the most universal, perhaps. A child dances instinctively to music."

Iris did not tell him that her dancing had helped to keep others, now dead, in comfort to the end. In that sense it had been a very serious matter indeed. After tea, Westcombe saw her into her bus. He stood there on the pavement, watching it move away.

"If anyone had told me I should ever be friendly with him—and after the way in which he has treated Bertie," the thought raced through her mind. "I can't understand myself. He seems to have cast a spell over me. But for my promise, given to Denis, I'd tax him with his mean act over the song. I'd love to know what his answer would be like. He must know he's in the wrong."

Next day a parcel by special messenger was delivered at the Lambeth address. When Iris opened it she saw the seascape so much admired by her yesterday afternoon. A note accompanied the picture.

"Will you accept this little gift from your brother's publisher?" Westcombe wrote. "You will give me great pleasure in so doing. As you know, the exhibition closed yesterday, and I was free to fetch my purchase away."

He had given it to her, the picture he had meant to buy for himself. As Iris gazed at it with troubled eyes, Angela Lyndon just home from her author, came up and inspected the canvas.

"How splendid it is," she exclaimed. "That smack with the wind filling its sails. Have you bought it, Iris?"

"No," Iris turned round. "It's a present from Mr. Westcombe."

"Bertie's publisher?"

"Yes," Iris went on to say how she had got to know Eric. She spoke of their chance meeting at the art gallery the previous day. Angela's lips tightened.

"I thought you disapproved of him so strongly on Bertie's account," was all she said.

"I do," Iris felt her temper rising. Somehow, Angela always contrived to put her in the wrong, to make her conduct seem inconsistent. "I've not changed my opinion of him respecting his treatment of Bertie over the song," she went on. "Otherwise, he's rather nice."

"And you had tea with him in Bond Street? Will Denis like this?"

"Denis can do as he pleases about it," Iris spoke sharply. "You attach too much importance to small things, I fancy, Angela. Of course, I'd no idea he meant to give me this picture when I admired it. I'm not sure whether I shall keep it."

"He can well afford the gift," Angela said carelessly. "His conscience may be pricking him. A picture for a song."

He went away to her own room. Iris took the small canvas from its wrappings, and gazed at it with thoughts far away.

A gift from Eric Westcombe. The seascape held a deeper value for her by reason of the giver. It was no use juggling with the terrible truth any longer. Love, so long a stranger to her, had come knocking at the door of her heart.

He had come in the guise of the man whom she had every reason to condemn and dislike. As if that were not bad enough, she was no longer free to open the door to him. Her promise, given to Denis Carlton, bound her hand and foot.

CHAPTER VI

Iris felt stunned as she realized the truth.

Was it possible that she loved Eric Westcombe, that his least word and look meant more to her than any thing else in the world? And she was engaged to Denis Carlton, pledged to become his wife at no distant date.

Why had this great calamity happened to her? Was she strong enough to face the cheerless future and keep her word to Denis, in view of this discovery?

Life, once so simple, had grown complex. A wish to reward Denis for favours received, crushed her under their weight, had led up to her engagement to him. It had been difficult enough while the meaning of love was hidden from her gaze. But with eyes opened to the mystery and magic and beauty of love could she still endure the prospects of a life to be shared with Denis Carlton?

Iris had principle to ballast her little craft when it tossed on rough waters, though. She told herself this feeling for Eric Westcombe must be overdone, lived down, sternly.

Westcombe had shown a dawning interest in her before he heard that she was engaged. He had suppressed any sign of this since, which spoke well for his sense of honour. She had only to keep to the stony path of duty, and indulge in no more glimpses of glad things over the wall not meant for her.

This attitude, dead against the spirit of the age, which loves to throw its cap over the wall and go for what it most wants regardless of everything, was not an easy one to take up. Iris grew a trifle thin and pale as the busy days passed.

Luckily she had not much time in which to sit and brood. When not taking classes or single pupils at the Academy of Dancing she was going about with Denis Carlton, to look at houses he had marked as likely to suit them.

They had almost decided one on at Golder's Green, and the furnishing of the small artistic dwelling would be the next item on the list, bringing Iris ever nearer to the dreaded date of her marriage, when fate took a hand in the game.

Angela Lyndon came to meet Iris one day on her way home from work. There were traces of agitation on the girl's pale, refined little face.

"I've had news for you," she began. "Denis has met with an accident."

"What has happened to him?" Iris' pulse quickened.

"He was knocked down by a private car while crossing the road near the Law Courts," was the reply. "He is in hospital. A constable brought the news just now."

"I'll go there at once," Iris forgot all except the fact that Denis Carlton loved her and she had promised to be his wife. "Would you care to come with me?"

"If you wish it, I'll come," Angela said quietly. Under her still surface lay a world of pain and sorrow, which Carlton had given her no right to show on his behalf. The two girls hailed a passing taxi with its flag down and got in, giving the driver the address of the hospital.

"Did the constable say if Denis is much hurt?" Iris asked, as they drove along.

U.S. Big Game Hunters Take Canadian Trophies

Canadian trophies carried off the majority of the honors in the big game hunters' annual national championship competition sponsored by the James L. Clark Studios of New York in 1933, a catalogue of awards shows. The first award for bear; second for caribou; first and second prize moose, and first prize Mountain Goat were all taken in areas served exclusively by Canadian National Railways. First prize sheep came from Carcross, Alaska; and the first prize caribou and second prize sheep from Alaska also came from territories most conveniently reached by Canadian National services. The winners of the above awards are United States big game hunters who have sought their trophies in Canada under the guidance of Canadian outfitters.

JESUS ASSERTS HIS KINGSHIP

(International Uniform Sunday School Lesson, May 14)

COLDEN TEXT—"Behold, thy King cometh unto thee; he is just, and having salvation." Zechariah 9:9.

LESSON PASSAGE—Mark 11:1-10, 15-18.

"The roses of joy are red,
The roses of pain are white;
But I think, when the day is sped
And I stand by the gate at night,
I shall know just this, when the day is dead,
That a rose is sweet be it white or red."

—Percy C. Ainsworth.

PREPARATION IN ADVANCE, 1-2

The triumphal entrance into Jerusalem was deliberately planned. Hitherto Jesus had sought to escape publicity, but now he deliberately courted it. The time had come for him to make a dramatic appeal to Jerusalem. He sent two of his disciples to borrow a colt. Probably this arrangement had been made beforehand, as Jesus left nothing to chance. It is no sign of faith to trust to the moment. Great achievements are made possible only by thorough planning. This is especially true in modern church work. To run a successful Sunday School or to stage an effective convention requires attention to the last detail. There are Christians who have no gift of eloquence but who have excellent organizing capacity. Men of high executive ability are usually found to be those who make arrangements far ahead. When Jesus rode into Jerusalem that Palm Sunday it was a deliberate assertion of his Messiahship and a deliberate challenge to the authorities in Jerusalem.

RIDING A COLT, 3-6.

The beast upon which Jesus rode into the Holy City was an ass's colt, or as we should say, a donkey. This fact had symbolic significance. Kings rode upon a charger going forth to war, but upon a donkey when setting forth on errands of peace. The colt was borrowed, an evidence of the lowliness of Jesus. It was a colt upon which man had never sat, because it was the custom of the Jews in their sacred ceremonies to employ only beasts which had never been used. A poet has put words into the mouth of this donkey describing his pitiable appearance, his long ears, his unmusical voice, his lowly place in the animal scale, but proud of the fact that in this unique procession palms and coats had been thrown around his feet. The story is told of a cowboy who heard for the first time the account of the triumphal entrance. "He listened very carefully and then said, 'What wonderful hands! He must have had!' Those who were present said, 'Why do you say that?' 'Well,' he said, 'a man who can sit on a colt on which no one has ever sat before and master it, and guide it, and soothe it when people are shrieking Hosanna in its ears, and waving palms before it, and throwing clothes in front of it; that man must have wonderful hands.'"

A TRIUMPHAL HOUR, 7-10

It was a genuine demonstration of loyalty that his Galilean followers gave to Jesus as he entered Jerusalem. They cast their garments on the ground, they cut down branches to scatter on his path, and they shouted, "Hosanna. Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest." It is frequently said that those who shouted, "Hosanna" to Jesus one day, shouted "Crucify him" the next. This is an error. Those calling out "Hosanna" were his loyal followers from Galilee, "the people" referred to in the sentence, "The scribes and priests sought to lay hands on him, but they feared the people." Those who shouted "Crucify him" were dwellers in Jerusalem angered because of his action in driving the traders and money changers out of the Temple.

FINAL SESSION RELIEF BOARD

Regular Sessions Are Disbanded Until Annual Meeting In Fall

The regular Friday afternoon session of the Port Hope Relief Board, which was held at the Town Hall here Friday afternoon marked the last sitting of the board until the annual meeting next fall. The necessary resolution was submitted and in that was embodied the fact that meetings may be called by the chair when deemed advisable.

Mayor W. J. Crowhurst, Chairman of the Board, presided and others in attendance included, Mrs. J. F. Thompson, Mrs. M. S. Hawkins, A. J. Chesher, secretary, H. Fulford, Rev. T. E. Meldrum, F. W. Galbraith and J. G. Jackson.

The board members discussed individual cases and relief was issued to the usual applicants.

dedicated in this one sentence. He entered Jerusalem, the city over which he had shed tears, and to which he had made his last appeal in vain. He entered the Temple and looked around at everything, probably recalling his visit at the age of twelve, and grieving in spirit at the formality and coldness of the worship. When evening was come he went out to Bethany, the home where dwelt some of his dearest friends. With him were the twelve disciples who had been his companions during his public ministry. The life of Jesus was rich in affection, loyalty and friendship. His feelings were deep, and his emotions were strong.

THE COURAGE OF JESUS, 15-18

Many artists have pictured the scene of Jesus driving the traders from the Temple. This action has appealed to imagination. In his inaugural address President Roosevelt used phrases from this narrative in announcing his intention to inaugurate banking reform. The oftener we read this story, the more we marvel at the sheer courage of Christ. Outnumbered as he was, he was more than a match for the traders because of his moral force. His eyes blazed forth in righteousness indignation. His words burned as he quoted, "My house shall be called of all nations the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves." Let no one say that religion has nothing to do with economics. Jesus would never allow religion and morality to be divorced. Perhaps the truest test of Christianity is not correct worship but everyday business ethics in our land. True religion will not long allow greed and graft to be sheltered under the very shadow of the Temple. Yet when Jesus cleansed the Temple he awakened antagonism which made the Cross inevitable.

QUESTIONS TO DISCUSS

1. Jesus entered Jerusalem as the Prince of Peace, and the next day drove the money changers from the Temple. How do you explain this?
2. How may we consecrate our possessions to the service of Christ to-day?
3. Is the banking system of Canada any concern of the Christian Church?
4. "Hosanna!" "Crucify him!" Why did Jesus awaken such different responses from different people?
5. Christ's kingship may be based upon his triumphal entrance or upon his Cross. Which makes the stronger appeal to you?

Reviewed Guard of Honor And Witnessed Gymnastic Display In Afternoon

The Governor-General of Canada and Lady Bessborough have come and gone. Their visit here on Monday marked their first to Port Hope and they carried away very pleasant and happy memories of a day, replete with many varied activities.

In the morning, on arrival at eleven o'clock, Their Excellencies were accorded a civic reception at the depot and were then taken on a tour of the town, travelling via the principal streets and viewing the churches, schools, etc. A fifteen minute stop was made at the plant of the Eldorado Gold Mines Limited, where His Excellency showed great interest in the process of refining radium from pitchblende—the only refining plant in the British Empire.

Shortly before twelve o'clock, the vice regal party arrived at Trinity College School, where a guard of honor, composed of 108 students headed by Sergeant Major S. J. Batt, was formed in front of the main entrance. On alighting from the official car, the general salute was sounded. Rev. Dr. F. Graham Orchard, Headmaster of the School and Mrs. Orchard received the distinguished guests and a bouquet of flowers was presented by David Morris. The members of the governing body and their wives, the staff and their wives were introduced and Lord Bessborough then reviewed the corps. The cadets, clad in white uniforms and blue forage caps, presented a natty appearance with Company Commander Whitehead, max in charge.

The vice regal party then signed the historic visitor's book and were conducted on a tour of the buildings which were officially opened in May, 1930, by Lord Willingdon. The Governor-General was impressed by the layout of the new buildings and their equipment. Following luncheon at one o'clock, Lord and Lady Bessborough were entertained at "The Lodge," the home of the Headmaster.

At 1.45 a gymnastic display was given by the students in the school gymnasium and the boys were warmly applauded by an audience which taxed the capacity of the auditorium. The various classes were under the command of Sergeant Major S. J. Batt, physical training instructor of the school, and the movements were carried out with exactness and precision. For an hour and a half, the students presented a program, which showed careful training. Every boy in the school took part and the program included horizontal bar, Junior school demonstration class, parallel bar team, physical training, tumbling team, Junior School club swinging, horse team and terminating with an intricate tableaux. Musical accompaniments for the program were provided by the school orchestra under the direction of E. Cohe.

At the conclusion, the Governor-General told that he was glad to visit historic Trinity College School in company with Lady Bessborough and extended his sincere thanks to the Headmaster, the governing body and everyone who assisted to make the visit a pleasant one. He commended the students on their showing and congratulated their instructor Sergeant Major Batt.

He stressed the principle of a sound body and a sound mind and urged the cadets to live up to the historic tradition of Trinity. He urged the students to make the most of their time while attending college so as to be properly equipped with the things which would be of service to them in their business life.

On departing, Their Excellencies were cheered, and the Governor-General asked that a school holiday be granted to commemorate the visit.

Among the members of the Governing Body of Trinity College school who were present were: G. B. Strathy, K.C., Clarence A. Bogart, Percy Henderson, R. C. H. Cassels, K.C., Dudley Dawson, and Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Cassels, Mrs. Dawson and Mrs. Britton Osler, President of T.C.S. Ladies Guild and all were introduced to Their Excellencies.

Her Excellency wore a brick colored dress and hat and mink coat and was presented with deep red roses by the School while Mrs. F. Graham Orchard, wife of the Headmaster wore a beige dress and hat to match with talisman roses and forget-me-not flowers.

GIVES REPORTS AT CONFERENCE

Mrs. Daley And Miss Henwood, Port Hope, Give Reports To Quinte W.M.S.

At the sessions of the Bay of Quinte Conference W.M.S. of the United Church at Cobourg, on Thursday, reports were given by two members of the Port Hope United Church. Mrs. J. T. Daley presented the report of the circulating library while Miss A. Henwood dealt with literature.

Solemn reconsecration service was conducted at the morning session on Thursday by Miss Mary T. Haig, Tokyo, Japan, and by Mrs. J. F. Mears, Port Hope.

Mrs. J. T. Daley, Port Hope, in her report of the circulating library, pointed out that there was an increase in attention paid by the various presbyteries in regard to the library. Its object was to provide information in regard to missionary projects and comprised 287 books. About 52 auxiliaries had used the library and lists of the books had been sent out to the various secretaries.

Literature served the purpose of spreading instructive information among the W.M.S. units, thus inspiring them to greater effort, stated Miss A. Henwood, of Port Hope, in giving her report on literature. Miss Henwood was one of those in the earthquake area in California, and related that her report was in the process of preparation while she was at Long Beach, California, when the earthquake shattered the house in which she was living.

Commenting on the reports which had come in from different presbyteries, Miss Henwood praised the report of Cobourg Presbyterian as being the most complete.

At the conclusion of Miss Henwood's report, Mrs. W. L. Smyth, the president, expressed the gratitude of the W.M.S. that Miss Henwood had escaped injury during the earthquake.

OLD REFUSE DUMP NOW YIELDS PRECIOUS METAL

"There's gold in that thar dump" and there is, consequently, somewhat of a flurry in the discovery of gold taken from the dump of the old Oliver mine at Letete, Charlotte County, New Brunswick, according to the Natural Resources Department of the Canadian National Railways. The mine was abandoned some 55 years ago after being worked for copper which ran up to 20 and 30 per cent. The samples were taken from the refuse dump at random and efforts are now being made to locate the vein which it is supposed the gold came from.
