NOTED SPEAKERS AT SCHOOL HERE

Liberal Summer School Being Arranged by Hon. Vincent Massey

Prof. Raymond Moley, whose visit to the world economic conference as a special envoy of President Roosevelt was the occasion of world-wide speculation and hope, has consented to take part in the Liberal summer school, commencing here Sept. 4. Prof. Moley will address the school on the evening of Friday, Sept. 8.

News comes from Washington today that Prof. Moley, head of the Roosevelt "brain trust," has resigned as assistant secretary of state. Prof. Moley's mission to London caused considerable embarrassment to Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who was already on the ground, and resulted, it is said, in bad feelings at that time among members of the United States delegation.

Another outstanding figure in world recovery efforts, Averill Harriman, chairman of the New York state emergency committee under the National Recovery Act, will address the conference on the evening of Monday, Sept. 4, on the subject of the National Recovery Act in operation. One of the leading financial and industrial men of the United States, Mr. Harriman is known mainly as a partner of Brown Bros., Harriman Co., and as chairman of the board of directors of the Union Pacific railway.

Arranged by Massey

Hon. Vincent Massey, who is arranging the school, the first ever held by a political party in Canada, previously announced a list of distinguished speakers. The addition of these two names of men intimately associated with the Roosevelt recovery program gives additional importance to the school.

Prof. R. M. MacIver, department of political science, Columbia University, who last year participated in the Canadian Institute on Economics and Politics at Lake Couchiching, Sir Herbert Samuel, distinguished British Liberal, Walter Lippman of the New York World, Prof. C. A. Curtis, Queen's University, an authority on banking, Prof. Hu Shih, president of the Chinese National Institute, are among others who will speak at the summer school.

Hon. Vincent Massey will give the chairman's address at the opening of the school on Monday, Sept. 4. Other well known figures, who will take part either as speakers or as leaders of round-table discussions, include: Floyd Chalmers of the Financial Post; J. W. Dafeo, Manitoba Free Press; Hon. James Malcolm; Hon. W. D. Euler; Hon. T. A. C. Crerar; Dean Corbett, of the McGill Law School; H. C. Grant, professor of agricultural economics, University of Manitoba; Prof. H. M. Cassidy, department of political science, University of Toronto; Mme. Pierre Casgrain, Montreal; Hon. J. L. Ralston, and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. Altogether there will be 28 speakers and leaders at the school.

PROVINCE WAIVES TRUCKERS' BONDS

May Operate After Getting License, Minister Announces

Inability of many fruit truckers to meet the demands of bonding companies has thrown enforcement of the new Ontario Fruit Act into such a state of confusion that Hon. Thomas L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture, was forced to announce, that until further notice truckers, dealers and others to whom the law applies will be able to operate by merely taking out the $5 license issued by the department.

The new act, which was passed last session of the Legislature, has implemented regulations calling for the bonding of every fruit trucker to the extent of $1,000. The trouble that has arisen lies in the fact, it is said, that the bonding companies wanted the security in cash and would not consider real estate or any thing of that nature.

TWO AUDITORS FACE CHARGES

Huron County Auditors Are Arrested Over Alleged Shortages

William Booth, of Wingham, and Robert Higgins of Hensall, auditors for the County of Huron in 1932, surrendered to the Goderich authorities Monday and were promptly put under arrest, charged with bribery and conspiracy in connection with shortage of county funds recently uncovered by special auditors.

Both men were notified on Saturday that unless they immediately gave themselves up, warrants would be issued for their apprehension.

Arraigned before Magistrate Reid, they were remanded for a week for trial and freed on bail of $3,000 each.

Provincial police who preferred the charges claim that Booth and Higgins accepted money from Gordon Young, county treasurer, who is now in jail awaiting trial, to refrain from reporting shortages in Young's accounts.

Last June, in reporting to the council as a whole, the two auditors are alleged to have declared the treasurer's books to be "all present and correct."

The police charge that at that time the auditors knew of Young's alleged shortages, and that Young had paid them $50 apiece to "soft pedal" on their knowledge.

Information said to be in the possession of the Crown at present is that the special auditors, going over the treasury books, have so far discovered shortages approximating between $6,000 and $7,000. These are said to have occurred in 1932. In view of the fact that the auditors intend going back several years in their check-up, no formal statement of their findings has as yet been presented to the Crown Attorney.

Booth runs an insurance business in Wingham, while Higgins is retired. Both men have had their auditors' positions for some time, and are well known throughout the county.

Young, the arrested county treasurer, had occupied his position for six years.

BUSY WEEK AT LOCAL HARBOR

Steamer and Two Barges Unload Cargoes—800 Bushels of Peas Shipped Out

Port Hope Harbor has been a busy spot during the past week and two steamers and two barges have called here.

The S.S. Coteandoc from Port Arthur unloaded 250 tons of flour while the S.S. Samyris loaded 800 bushels of peas consigned by John Hume & Son for Montreal.

Two barges from New York unloaded 1400 tons of raw materials for the Agricultural Chemical Company. Considerable employment has been afforded in the handling of the above cargoes and day and night shifts were employed.

The dredge "Claremont" is continuing its work and the past week has been the busiest shipping period the local harbour has seen in years.

$10.00 FINE FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Even though he had to pay a $10 fine for hitting a train at a level crossing, Frank Forsyth, a motorist from Grand Rapids, Mich., told Magistrate E. J. Pallett, at Cooksville, that he would take back to the United States with him a favorable report on Canadian highway and police courtesy.

Mrs. Forsyth was with him when their car struck a C.P.R. freight train crossing on Sunday. In police court Mr. Forsyth thanked both the magistrate and Provincial Constable A. E. Reilly for their courtesy. The charge was reckless driving.

MRS. H. W. TAYLOR TAKEN BY DEATH

Funeral Of District Resident Held Here Friday Afternoon

The funeral of the late Mrs. Henry W. Taylor, well-known district resident, was held Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock standard time from the residence of her son, Robert Taylor, Bramley Street. Interment was made at the Port Hope Union Cemetery. The services were conducted by Rev. G. D. Campbell of Cambourne, who referred to the fine character of the deceased and in his message brought comfort to the bereaved family. Floral tributes were numerous and testified to the wide esteem in which the deceased was held. The pall bearers were Messrs. William Austin, Harry Brown, Henry Goheen, Bruce Miller, William Walters and R. Bebee.

The late Mrs. Taylor was born in Hamilton Township and was a life-long resident of the district where she was widely and favourably known. She married thirty-seven years ago, and for twenty-nine years was a resident of Quay's Crossing. For the past three years, the family resided at Roseberry Hill. She was a member of the United Church and took a keen interest in the work of the various women's organizations.

The late Mrs. Taylor passed away on Wednesday evening at 5:30 o'clock after an illness, extending over a period of three weeks. Several months ago, deceased suffered a stroke which was followed by a more serious one three weeks ago. During her illness, she was cared for at the home of her son in Port Hope and despite medical care, her condition gradually grew weaker.

Left to mourn her passing are her husband, Henry W. Taylor and three sons, Frank of Morris and Robert and Allan, of Port Hope.

COMMENDS WORK OF LOCAL MAYOR

Official Board Of Port Hope United Church Passes Resolution

The Official Board of the Port Hope United Church upholds Mayor Walter J. Crowhurst regarding his administration of the town's affairs and as a result, the board, at this week's meeting, unanimously passed a resolution commending his decisions.

The resolution, which was forwarded by M. P. Wickett, secretary of the Board, reads as follows:—"The Official Board of the United Church having always evinced a care for Federal, Provincial and Municipal enactments as these affect the moral betterment of the community, take pleasure in commending the activities of the Chief Magistrate of Port Hope, Mayor Walter J. Crowhurst when the observance of law and good order called for prompt action. We trust that he and those associated with him will uphold the dignity and observance of all lawful action as future occasions arise."

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF WOOD

Trio Appeared In Bowmanville Court—Adjourned Until To-Day

James Courtice, of Pontypool, Oswald Branch of Clark Twp., and Jos. Bell of Oshawa, appeared in Magistrate R. M. Cotton's court at Bowmanville, charged with the theft of wood the property of James Trick, of Pontypool. Provincial policeman, W. E. Smith, Bowmanville, who was called to the scene of the alleged theft at Pontypool on the night of August 10th, laid the charge against the three men. From the evidence given Frank Berrill, of Pontypool, had observed the three men with a car and trailer drawing the wood from Trick's property shortly after midnight and reported to Trick, who in turn called Provincial Officer Smith from Bowmanville. The wood, with a trailer, was found on the property of Courtice. Taking the license number of the trailer, the owner was found to be Joseph Bell, Oshawa.

Courtice claimed he had purchased the wood from M. Bernstein at five dollars a load, Bernstein and Trick being partners in the property from which the wood was taken. Trick showed the court a copy of the supposed original agreement between them, which did not permit the cutting of any wood except dead timber. Bernstein showed the court a copy of the original agreement which omitted the word "except". This did not satisfy Col. Boggs, who appeared for the prosecution, and asked for a stay of proceedings until the original was produced. A. C. Hall, appearing for the defendants, objected, stating that the agreement was immaterial, as Courtice had purchased the wood in good faith from Bernstein, believing him to be the sole owner of the wood and the case should be a civil one, rather than a criminal one. However, the Magistrate adjourned the case until Wednesday, August 23rd, when the original agreement will be presented. The value of the wood is estimated to be between $250 and $300.

ROBB RECEIVES CLINIC RADIUM

$16,000 Worth Received From Local Plant Of Eldorado Gold Mines

Sixteen thousand dollars' worth of radium, the first to be commercially produced in Canada, was delivered to Hon. Dr. J. M. Robb, Minister of Health, in his office at the Parliament Buildings Toronto on Tuesday. It was mined at the Eldorado Mine and refined at Port Hope. The delivery was the forerunner of others in the Province's desire to accumulate for medicinal purposes a store of this precious substance.

The radium, obtained in twenty-five platinum needles of one, two and three milligram denominations, will be given to the cancer clinic at the Kingston General Hospital. They are for cancer treatment. In 1,700-odd years, according to expert calculation, "half" of this radium will be gone.

Hon. Dr. Robb has just signed an agreement with the City of London for the cancer clinic to be erected in that city. The clinic will have twenty beds, and the city is constructing a new building, to which the Government contributes $9,000 a year. The Minister explained that it was a duplicate of the Government's agreement with Kingston.

Deputy Reeve Gray gave notice that he would introduce a By-Law to appoint a tax collector at the next regular meeting of Hope Council to be held on Saturday, Sept. 2, 1933.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. G. FRANK

Funeral Will Be Held From Her Late Residence, Cavan St., On Wednesday

After an illness extending over a period of three years, the death took place at the family residence, Cavan Street North, on Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock of Mrs. George Frank, practically a lifelong resident of Port Hope. Although the late Mrs. Frank had been up and about during that lengthy period, her condition became serious about three months ago. Death was attributed to heart disease.

The late Mrs. Frank, whose maiden name was Mary Jane Booth, was in her 82nd year, and was born at Pittsford, N.Y. After living there for six years, she moved to Port Hope where she has been a continuous resident ever since. During her life in Port Hope, she made many friends, who deeply regret her demise. In religion she was an Anglican.

Her husband predeceased her several years ago and surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Frank Boyce, Rochester, one son, William Frank, at home, one sister, Mrs. Elizabeth McLean, Chicago, four grandchildren, Mrs. L. E. Price, Mrs. V. J. Mulvey, Miss G. Boyce and Herbert Boyce, all of Rochester, and two great grandchildren, Mary Mulvey and Millicent Price of Rochester.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, Cavan Street, on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with interment at St. John's Cemetery. Rev. A. G. Emmet will officiate.

INCREASE MADE IN POWER RATES

Cost To Local Commission Jumps 1.70 Per H.P.—No Increase In Rates

Cost of power supplied to the local Hydro Commission has been increased in price by $1.70 per horsepower, V. R. Coleman, local manager, stated in an interview this afternoon. The cost will now be $43.20 per H.P. compared with the former price of $41.50.

While the cost of power supplied has been increased there will be no increase in the rates charged for power and lighting to consumers. Locally the consumption of power this year has been in excess of last year despite the fact that two of the town's principal industries have been working short time and not using their customary quantity of power.

The reason for the increase in the cost per horsepower to the local commission is caused by a general decrease throughout the province in the amount used by the different municipalities. Port Hope uses approximately 1,000 H.P. per year.

Useful in Camp.—Explorers, surveyors, prospectors and hunters will find Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil very useful in camp. When the feet and legs are wet and cold it is well to rub them freely with the Oil and the result will be the prevention of pains in the muscles, and should a cut, or contusion, or sprain be sustained, nothing could be better as a dressing or lotion.

MANY BIRDS ARE RELEASED

Birds From Port Hope Pigeon Club Released At C. N. E.

The sky grew dark and there was the rustling and fluttering of many wings as thousands of pigeons released from their cages, darted towards the blue of heaven at Exhibition Grounds on Saturday. Eight thousand homing pigeons, $266 to be exact, formed a rapidly moving picture of surpassing beauty as they stretched their wings and flew in a dense crowd above the hundreds of upturned faces of the spectators who formed a circle around the cages.

"Magnificent," was the comment of Sir William Mulock who released the first pigeon the signal for the cages to open.

"If we could see good times flying back like that things would be all right," commented Mayor Stewart as he gazed at the rapidly disappearing specks winging their way to their various lofts in 30 cities and towns of Canada and United States.

With their uncanny instinct, squads of pigeons formed and flew south; others found their mates and sped in another direction, all homeward bound. Montreal is the farthest point and all along the way pigeons will alight at their lofts. Prizes will be awarded to the winners. It was the third international homing pigeon race and the most successful to date, officials declared.

The Port Hope Club had 207 birds in the race, but their times have not been computed yet.

HIGHWAY ACCIDENTS OVER THE WEEK-END

A score of people were injured in accidents on Ontario highways over the week-end. One man died of injuries, while others are reported to be in critical condition. A St. Thomas woman received a fractured collarbone when she fell on the concrete steps while leaving a church service. At Strathroy a man suffered a deep gash over the right eye when one of the tools he was using to repair a tire flew back and struck him.

Motor cars and a motorcycle figured in a dozen other accidents.

Car Stolen At Cobourg, Recovered At Gravenhurst

Stolen at Cobourg on Sunday night a Stutz Black Hawk touring, owned by J. M. Schoenmaker, was recovered at Gravenhurst. Police are looking for four strangers, one who wore a blue and white sweater, seen driving away in the car by a Cobourg woman. The car had been left on King street by Mr. Schoenmaker and was stolen at 10:45 Sunday night. Chief J. C. Ruse notified Belleville and Toronto police.

DEVOTES LIFE TO MINISTRY

Rev. A. K. McLeod, Of Brighton, In Same Pulpit For 44 Years

Glengarry school days of Alexander Kenneth McLeod, began when Confederation was some twelve years in the future. Born near Laggan, Glengarry County, Ontario, on September 20th, 1889; the pastor emeritus of Trinity-St. Andrew's United Church, Brighton, Ontario, approaches his eighty-third birthday. Vigorous and active in his part-time pastoral work, Rev. A. K. McLeod takes modest satisfaction in his record of service. For forty-eight years he has been a minister of the Presbyterian and United Churches. For forty-four consecutive years he occupied the pulpit of St. Andrew's Church in Brighton. When that congregation united with Trinity Church in 1930, Mr. McLeod's local pastorate stood as the longest of any minister of the United Church.

Difficulties occasionally attended those preliminary school days in Glengarry. Not the usual difficulties, but punishments meted out to a lad who was absent at school, without permission, too many spring and autumn days to please an overworked farmer-father. The final school days were Queen's. There were two balancing interludes—one orthodox and one strange. The first was at Tiverton, in Bruce County where young McLeod lived with a friend and attended school. The second was at Woodstock College, the fine preparatory school which helped many young Baptists and others. At Queen's it was Arts and then Divinity. ("Faith, Hope and Charity; Long-tail coats and poverty! Amen!"), 1855 was graduation year.

Mr. McLeod had been a student minister at Hillier and Concession. The latter was his first charge after ordination and license. A year of usefulness was completed. The young minister planned a visit to his parents. On the day set for departure he suddenly changed his plan. He had no explanation for himself, much less for the bewildered kirk members with whom he lodged. The next day there was a message urging him to come twenty-five miles to supply Brighton pulpit on the Sunday. He called followed.

Inducted in July 1886 Mr. McLeod succeeded Rev. P. M. Duncan, who had served Colborne and Brighton for twenty-nine years. The Brighton Presbyterian Church was organized in 1834, some years before Brighton was so named. But until Mr. Duncan came to the new building of 1857 the ministerial service had been rendered by visitors and through the single year pastorates of two evangelists from the United States. The first grammar school in Brighton village held its classes in the Presbyterian church.

Of those who signed Mr. McLeod's call in 1886, not one is now alive. In Brighton remains only one citizen who was a man full grown when the young pastor of thirty-six years arrived. There are, of course, a score or more of citizens who were the Sunday School children of that day. Mr. McLeod is the only surviving member of the Queen's Theological class of 1885. All his professors have gone.

June 12th, 1925, (Church Union Sunday) was the thirty-ninth anniversary of A. K. McLeod's call. His congregation gave him thirty-nine roses. The Brighton Ensign said: "St. Andrew's is proud of the pastor. Every one is proud of the citizen. Brighton is a better community because A. K. McLeod has lived here thirty-nine years."

He founded the Brighton Canadian Club. He served twelve years on the Board of Education. He shared actively in the life of a fraternal organization. He has been Queen's examiner for dozens of nervous students who come to him to write supplementary or extra-mural examinations. A student of public and world affairs, Mr. McLeod's hobbies are at his door and millions of miles removed; Astronomy and flowers have given him hours of unalloyed delight. So also have fruit trees and horses and baseball and books and the bagpipes.

A daughter and a son followed him to Queen's. Their honor standings in arts and engineering respectively and their subsequent records reflect credit upon their parents.

Several times moderator of Peterboro Presbytery before 1925, Mr. McLeod was honored by that court with a special meeting at Brighton in June 1925. The colleagues and friends, some of whom had made another choice of Mr. McLeod as a name, an address and their blessings. Five years later the new Cobourg

CARIBOO GOLD UNIQUE TUNNEL

Faith Of One Man Led To Current Gold Boom In Mountains

Yesterday, Cariboo Gold unlisted, was quoted at $3.95 per share). One of the most interesting features of the gold boom in the Barkerville camp in British Columbia is the character of the mining operations being carried on at Cariboo Gold Quartz.

Several score years ago the present managing director, Fred Wells, staked his faith in the presence of rich concentrations of gold in the heart of the mountain. The only surface showing was some indifferent samples in quartz outcropping high up on the dome of the mountain. Some exploration of the vein was done as long as 20 or 30 years ago; but the consensus was that a mine couldn't be made—on the strength of ores in sight.

Wells, however, had a different idea. After many years he managed to organize a company and get its stock distributed. With the funds he commenced to make a tunnel into the side of the hill—without any apparent relation to the incidence of the quartz veins showing at a much higher altitude. Miners from other properties, and the brokerage community in Vancouver, were skeptical. Many of them even refused to look the tunnel over. They just weren't interested.

But after the tunnel had been driven into the mountain several hundred feet a rich vein was uncovered, cut—and samples ran to around $30 of gold to the ton. As tunneling continued, further veins were encountered, and a visitor to the property who recently returned to Toronto states that engineers now expect to encounter a richly concentrated body of ore within a few hundred feet of present digging.

In the meantime, however, the find has revolutionized former ideas about mining in the British Columbia Rockies, and every hill with quartz outcroppings, whether they contain visible gold or not, is being staked. Some of the mountain slopes are staked solidly. Recently an airplane flew in with a party of nurses from the Vancouver hospital. They staked in their own names and those of associates who could not make the trip. Everybody's doing it.

The first gold boom at Barkerville started about 60 years ago, when placer operations were being conducted all over the place, with highly profitable results in many instances. The Cariboo Gold Quartz company has a mill at its property, about four miles out from Barkerville, and has been shipping gold since February.

A group of 80 business men from Vancouver, members of the Vancouver Board of Trade, are expected to go through the Cariboo Gold Quartz mine to-day. The underground workings are being especially flood-lighted for the occasion. It is understood that from the winze 112 feet below the main adit a cross-cut has cut 78 feet of well-mineralized formation carrying good gold values. This is an additional 28 feet beyond previously reported width.

The outspoken word never does harm—Kossuth. Presbytery of the United Church paid him richly merited tribute. Visitors to his study may see the two addresses, framed and side by side, "This one is mostly Presbyterian and this mostly Methodist and I value them both," stated the recipient of the addresses.

The Toronto Mail of December 11, 1886, printed a sketch of Presbyterianism in Brighton. It concluded: "Mr. McLeod has youth, health and strength in his favor. Under his pastorate the cause will prosper." A prophetic utterance has been fulfilled.

BRINGING UP FATHER

CROP REPORT

Extracts from reports submitted by Agriculture Representatives.

WESTERN ONTARIO
DUFFERIN—Potato prices vary from $1.25 to $1.50 per bag. Yields also differ to a great degree, many fields of early Cobblers digging only about 25 bags to the acre, while in one instance, an authentic yield of 125 bags to the acre is known. Dealers appear to feel potato prices will be better. Several have offered to speculate on promising fields of late Dooleys as high as $100 per acre.

GREY—One fruit grower here has drawn 40,000 gallons of water 6 miles to apply to his orchard. He has put on 100 gals per large tree. This water is drawn from Meaford. Rains this past week will obviate the necessity of further drawing of this water.

WATERLOO—Recent rains have been greatly appreciated. They have improved the pastures and have assisted the spring seeding of clover and grasses. Farmers are plowing for fall wheat.

SOUTHERN ONTARIO
LAMBTON—There will be at least a 25 to 30% increase in the acreage of land prepared for fall wheat. Red clover for seed promises good returns.

KENT—Threshing of oats and barley is practically completed. While yields are considerably below the average, they are better than anticipated. The recent showers will facilitate after-harvest cultivation and there is every indication of increased acreage to be planted to fall wheat. Canning tomato deliveries have commenced and in two cases at least the canning company is paying five cents a bushel in advance of contract prices.

MIDDLESEX—Live stock are in fair condition though in some sections pastures have been too dry for cattle to make good gains. Average wheat yields have ranged from 20-30 bus. per acre. Oats in sections favoured by showers have ranged 40 bus. to the acre with some fields going over 60 bus. In dry sections oats have not averaged above 25 bus. per acre. Quality of grain in practically all cases has been good.

BRANT—Production of milk shows quite a decrease. Farmers are being obliged to feed considerably in addition to pastures to try to maintain production.

CENTRAL ONTARIO
ONTARIO—Yields of oats have been reported all the way from 15 to 50 bus. per acre. Average yield are probably 60% of last year's yield. One hears considerable kicking from milk shippers as to treatment being accorded them by dairies. One man's net cheque for over 10,000 lbs. of milk was less than $90.00 and he was feeding a certain amount of concentrates to produce this.

DURHAM—Fall wheat is averaging 30 bus. or more per acre while 40 bushel reports are quite common. Spring grains are not showing high yields per acre but the quality of grain is all that might be desired. There is every indication of a good crop of apples in this County. All growers report much less fungus than in 1932.

HASTINGS—Dairy butter 25c on Belleville market to-day. 1521 white cheese were sold on Belleville board at 9 3-8c, a year ago 1,806 cheese were sold on the Belleville cheese board at 10 3-16c.

EASTERN ONTARIO
PRESCOTT & RUSSELL—A good many farmers have started threshing operations. The yields are slightly below last year's. In the Casselman district where some 2,000 acres have been affected by hail on August 1st, the yield is less than 50% and in some cases farmers are only getting around 10 and 15 bushels per acre of grain.

RENFREW—Peas are yielding less than expected. Prices of soup peas are opening at $1.10. Barley yields little better than expected. Prices dropped this week from 50 to 40 and 42c.

GLENGARRY—Livestock in fair to good condition. Hog population

CHECK MADE IN INFANTILE

No Further Cases Of Dreaded Disease Reported At Bowmanville

No further cases of infantile paralysis have been reported to authorities in Bowmanville, Chief of Police S. Venton stated.

The Wilcox boy on Liberty street, who received the serum on Saturday, is reported recovering and no harmful results are expected from the disease.

Dr. V. H. Storey, coroner, refuted the rumor that he had forbidden his children to swim at Bowmanville beach for fear of the disease. "It is impossible to tell where the disease might be picked up," said Dr. Storey. "Infantile paralysis might be picked up at any time just like measles or mumps."

Members of the board of health do not believe there is any danger of an epidemic.

About 50 children were treated with the serum three years ago. To be effective, the serum must be given within 48 hours after the first symptoms are noted. A doctor here stated that after that time recovery is unlikely without crippling the patient.

BENEATH THE MASK

These are the masks men wear To hide the truth from sight; The dark design of care, Foreboding as the night; The masks of hate and fear, The sullen mask of pride; They don them year by year And shut themselves inside.

But I have learned to read The thoughts beneath the mask; The longing and the need, The courage for the task; And I have found behind Grim looks and visage cold Hearts that are true and kind, Where dreams like flowers unfold.

In masks men often go, In masks of scorn or mirth; But, safe beneath, I know Are honor, valor, worth. Ah, it is good to feel, In spite of masks men wear, Life will at last reveal The virtues hidden there!

is down about 50% in Glengarry. Officers of Alexandria Cheese Board refused to sell the cheese boarded on Monday night when the best offers made were white 9 1/2c per pound.

DUNDAS—Grain is threshing better than anticipated. The yield will probably average around 35, with the occasional crop of oats reported as running 50 and better. The straw is exceedingly short, but the grain is of good quality. Duchess apples are being picked at the present time. The yield is good but color is very poor. Macintosh and Wealthy are a good crop and are sizing up well after a period of very little growth. The crop generally is fairly clean.

NORTHERN ONTARIO
ALGOMA—Pastures are very bare and young cattle are not in very good flesh except in localities where they have long range. Farmers are very busy harvesting. The grain is nearly all ripe but is not more than two thirds cut. Some stook threshing is being done. The best yield of oats returned was forty bushels to the acre. The grain is of good quality, but the yield will be below that of last year.

Persian Balm is the one true family aid for skin health and beauty. Aids the mother in additional loveliness. Protects the tender skin of the child. Delights the father as a hair fixative or cooling shaving lotion. No matter to what extent it is put, it is always beneficial to the skin. Every woman should use it. Persian Balm cools and caresses the skin and creates complexions of surpassing loveliness.

ANOTHER LOAN ABOUT OCT. 1ST

Improvement In Market May Cause Date To Be Moved Ahead

Canada's new conversion loan may possibly be launched around Oct. 1 instead of Oct. 15, the date previously under consideration, according to well-informed circles. The success of the Canadian loan in London and the improvement generally in the money market are given as reasons for moving the date ahead.

Hon. E. N. Rhodes is spending a few holidays in Nova Scotia but will be back early next month. Premier R. B. Bennett will be back next week. It is expected the size of the loan, the rate of interest and the date when it will be offered to the public will be decided finally soon after the arrival of these two members of the government.

The steps to carry out Canada's part in the wheat agreement signed in London, also will doubtless occupy the attention of the Prime Minister, as soon as he gets back to the capital. Any proposal to reduce the wheat acreage of the prairies will require a great deal of study.

The premiers of the western provinces submitted proposals to the government last Spring suggesting reduced acreage, but with a short crop this Summer, it may be more difficult to reach a conclusion as to what reduction would be necessary for Canada to keep within the exportable quota defined in the agreement. Farmers may not be so ready to cut acreage following a poor crop.

DR. T. C. LAPP LAID TO REST

Prominent Cobourg Doctor Buried With Masonic Honors

Dr. T. C. Lapp, prominent Cobourg medical man and coroner, was buried Tuesday afternoon in Cobourg Union Cemetery with Masonic honors. The body lay in state in Trinity Church from 1:30 to 3:30 in the afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. W. P. Woodger, of Trinity United Church, assisted by Rev. W. Demill, Kitchener; Rev. J. Terrill, Grafton, and Rev. Dr. T. S. Boyle, Cobourg. The honorary pallbearers were the members of the county medical association. The active bearers were: M. Harrington, Toronto; Dr. Victor Lapp, Hamilton; Ray Lapp, Toronto; William Thackeray, Peterboro; W. Dudley, Newcastle and R. Bentley, Toronto.

GREASE GUN LUBRICATES MODERN LOCOMOTIVES

Lessons from motor car practice have been applied to the lubrication of Canadian National locomotives which are oiled by the action of their own pistons, or by the cross-head of the engine itself. Every revolution of the driving wheels forces oil into all vital parts, excepting valve-gears and connecting rods. These are lubricated by use of the grease gun, a method also borrowed from motor car practice.

PARKED CAR RUNS AMOK—SMASHES WINDOW

When a sedan, owned by S. Hatheway, was parked on the south side of Walton Street this afternoon at 2 o'clock, it suddenly was set in motion and cruised down the grade. It darted across the Cavan-Walton streets intersection and ended its dash by smashing the west side of the plate glass window in Hutchings' store.

Quick Relief for Women

Women need not endure periodic pains and headaches. They can spare themselves this suffering by taking ZUTOO TABLETS. Mrs. Allen Wright of Fulford, who was relieved in 30 minutes of severe pain and headache, wrote saying: "Every woman in the land should know about ZUTOO TABLETS and what they will do." Just try the tablets and know for yourself how quickly they stop the pain.

10,000 ATTEND OSHAWA FAIR

Surplus Expected By Executive—Sinclair Pleased

With an attendance of almost 10,000, this year's Oshawa Fair was more successful than it has been in the preceding three years. Although held much earlier than hitherto, neither the quality nor quantity of the exhibits suffered.

This year's fair was squeezed into one day instead of two, and as a result the directors are confident that the usual deficit may be turned into a small surplus. "We are much pleased with the way things have turned out," Mayor W. E. N. Sinclair, the president, stated.

The fair was concluded with a midnight vaudeville show.

STREET DANCE PLANNED FOR BANDSTAND FUND

Private subscription and proceeds of a carnival and street dance will be the method used to raise funds for a new bandstand, according to arrangements discussed at a meeting held at Cobourg for that purpose. Every service club and fraternal society will co-operate with the general committee in staging a carnival and street dance which will be held some time in September. The old bandstand has been found too small and a platform recently was found to be unsuitable.

Besides a carnival, funds will be raised through the efforts of the Cobourg Dramatic Club and a subscription list will be started.

Dr. Frank Lloyd, Harold Staples, Vincent Butler, Joe Goldring and Stuart Walden comprise the carnival committee. The publicity committee is composed of Joe Goldring, chairman; Rex Fleming and Alan Field, and the landstand committee has for its members, Major J. McKinnon, chairman; Alan Field, secretary.

LADY INJURED AT SOCCER GAME

Mrs. Hardy, of Solina, suffered severe cuts on the face in a serious accident while watching a soccer game between Courtice and Bowmanville in Courtice.

Mrs. Hardy was sitting in her car when the ball was driven with tremendous force through one of the windows, which were closed owing to the shower of rain. The ball not only broke a window entering the car, but also broke the corresponding glass on the opposite side. The injuries to Mrs. Hardy were caused by flying glass.

THURSDAY, AUG. 24.

Isn't this a ducky day?

It certainly is fine weather for the water fowl and one has to duck to dodge the drogs for many a limb has fallen and not a few trees.

It seems as if we were getting the edge of the storm which caused so much a desolation on the Atlantic coast.

Local telephone service was slightly broken when a number of phones were put out of order by dampness getting into cables and some strands being broken by falling trees.

The members of the Junior and Senior Guilds of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church held a successful joint picnic at the local beach yesterday.

The annual tournament of the Port Hope Bowling Club will be held here on Labor Day as usual and many local and district rinks are expected to enter. Rinks will be here from the district bounded by Toronto, Kingston and Lindsay and play, on the elimination basis, will be made for the Port Hope Sanitary and Nicholson File trophies as well as handsome prizes for the winners and runners-up in the primary and consolation events.

The high winds of early morning cleared out the dead limbs of several trees about town. On Dorset street, a large limb of a willow tree in front of the residence of Dr. R. L. Graham was snapped off, damaging telephone wires, while on Augusta street opposite the Port Hope Dairy, a large elm tree was uprooted. The tree fell across the street and as the tree was growing next to the sidewalk, the roots heaved ten feet of the cement walk.

Gifts were presented to the oldest lady present, Mrs. William Grills of Seymour, aged 79; the oldest man, John Grills of Thamesburg; the youngest member, Baby John Ross Bradshaw of Belleville; and the largest family, William Grills of Wainworth and family. There was a fine program of sports. It was decided to meet at Oak Lake in 1934.

Judge L. V. O'Connor reserved judgment on a motion asking the unseating of two school trustees of Brighton Township, S.S. 28. The two trustees against who motion has been taken are Clarence Scriver and Cecil Samis. The grounds as stated in the application are that the two men were in arrears of taxes when elected. Interest in the action lies in the fact that the motion was filed on behalf of Fred Donnan, the other trustee, and Harry Bedal, who, besides being a ratepayer, is secretary-treasurer of the school section. Clive Thompson appeared for the two complainants in support of the motion, while A. R. Willmott, of Cobourg, appeared for the two defendant trustees.

At a meeting of Colborne Village Council the tax rate was set at 57 mills, which is one mill less than last year.

There was a good attendance at the regular meeting of the Port Hope Lions Club which was held at Paul's Tea Room last night, with the president, W. Giddy, in the chair. The meeting proved a real lively affair and plans have been made for an interesting series of meetings for the fall and winter months. Hector Smith was received into the Club last night. The organization plans the erection of three signs on the outskirts of the town bearing a large Lion's crest and the words, "Welcome—Port Hope."

At God's Lake in Manitoba and at Barkerville, away up the old Cariboo Trail in the Rockies of British Columbia, there is evidence of much gold—and no doubt whatever concerning the character of the booms now in progress. The existence of rich gold quartz formations deep in the interior of Cariboo country mountains is pretty well confirmed. All the big companies are in the territory; and recent reports from visitors to the camp are to the effect that many thousands of acres of mountainside are being staked this Summer. The Cariboo finds have not only brought new romance to the game of gold hunting, but have

STARLINGS HIT PETERBORO AREA

Grain Crops And Rice Beds Menaced By Birds

Starlings in sufficient numbers to offer a serious threat to grain crops of the district and to the rice beds in the Otonabee River and nearby lakes which are the principal attraction for Fall flights of ducks in the Peterboro region, have put in appearance in several sections of the county, according to reports. Although the starling has not been unknown in the district during the past two years, the influx during recent weeks is considered alarming.

Lawrence P. Campbell of Ware street, reports sighting great flocks of voracious starlings during troling trips through the rice beds between Eensford bridge and Rice Lake during the past week. He reports that they have stripped the ricebeds in that section clean and have done serious damage to the grain crops which have not yet been harvested in surrounding fields.

Chris Graham, secretary-treasurer of the Peterboro Fish and Game Protective Association, reports that great flocks of starlings are to be seen on the Trent canal and the Otonabee above the city. Reports of extensive grain damage by the birds have been heard from Smith and Ennismore Townships and the northern section of Dummer.

PEACE

No gift is lovelier than peace, Which, after shout and clamor ceases, From all earth's tumult brings release!

He who has known youth's leaping fires, That driving force of wild desires, That strength which struggle never tires, He who has climbed ambition's heights Through anxious days and sleepless nights Urged on in search of fame's delights, He knows, when all the quest is past, The trials sore, the troubles vast, His prize is barren gain, at last.

And so to peace in time he turns, Its priceless worth one day he learns, For peace his wearied spirit yearns.

No high-walled Troy, no golden fleece, He learns, through wisdom's slow increase, Could ever be more dear than peace!

TWO-DOLLAR BILL BACK AFTER 37 YEARS

Thirty-seven years ago H. Ackerman, Rye, N.Y., visited Canada and when he returned to the States took with him a two dollar bill of the July, 1897 issue. Last Saturday he returned to the Dominion for the second time, purchased a fishing license from the Ontario Travel Bureau and paid for it with the ancient currency. "I knew I would be making another visit to your country, so I determined not to spend the bill until I came back," he told Major G. E. Oxley of the Bureau.

revived an ancient gold boom romance that flourished in the same district over half a century ago when placer workers swarmed over the mountains—some of them to pan large fortunes, others to fail and settle down in the river bed flats to engage in farming. The original members of gold rush parties and their descendants established a flourishing agricultural community as the placer workings gradually were abandoned. To-day these people have again turned prospectors and miners, along with thousands of others who have invaded the district.

MARRIED WEDNESDAY

REV. W. F. BANISTER
The marriage of Rev. W. F. Banister of Canton, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Banister of Campbellcroft, and Miss Dorothea E. Hall, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stewart Hall of Centreville, took place in Centreville Presbyterian Church today.

MISS DOROTHEA E. HALL

WEDDING BELLS

BANISTER — HALL

A mild afternoon with a sky whose drifting clouds failed to fulfill their hint of rain, smiled on a lovely wedding Wednesday, when Dorothea Elizabeth Hall, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Stewart Hall of Millbrook, became the bride of the Rev. William Franklin Banister, Th.B., B.D., of Canton, Ontario, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Banister of Campbellcroft.

The ceremony was performed at twelve o'clock noon (Standard Time), by the Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., in the Presbyterian Church at Centreville, where a pretty setting was afforded by a profusion of summer flowers and ferns. Asters, cosmos and phlox were used in abundance in pastel tints; the white pillars were twined with ivy and myrtle, and white ribbons, tied with blossoms, marked off the guest pews.

The winsome bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long, graceful frock of ivory white satin, draped to the figure. The long sleeves puffed to the elbow, fitted the arm tightly to the wrist, ending in a tiny cuff. The neck was shaped in cowl fashion. The long tulle veil, daintily embroidered, was caught about the head in cap style with a narrow circlet of seed pearls and waxed orange blossoms. White crepe slippers with white silk hose, and short white kid gloves, were worn, the only ornament being the gift of the bridegroom, a diamond lavalliere.

The bride's bouquet was a shower of mauve orchids, lily of the valley and maidenhair fern, tied with mauve tulle.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Louise White, of Hamilton, daughter of Mrs. P. S. White of Peterboro, was in an exquisite gown of forget-me-not blue chiffon, with a ruffled cape caught by two crystal ornaments and a skirt ruffled deeply in silk net. Her hat was a large model of black slipper satin, her sippers were of forget-me-not blue crepe and her long mittens of cream lace. She carried the gift of the bridegroom, a French beaded bag, and a large arm bouquet of crimson Premier roses and fern, tied with pink tulle.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Weston Banister of Campbellcroft, and ushers, with rose boutonnières brightening their dark suits, were the Rev. Ralph Spencer of Smithfield and Mr. Willis Hall, brother of the bride.

The wedding music was played by Miss Grace Johnston, A.T.C.M., of Bailieboro, wearing pink and yellow figured chiffon and a white hat.

During the entrance of the bridal party, at the request of the bridegroom, the wedding hymn, "O Perfect Love" was sung by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham of Gore's Landing, who also sang "Love's Coronation," during the signing of the register. Mrs. Bingham wore a dainty frock of white chiffon, patterned in a blue leaf, with white shoes and smart hat of sky-blue velours.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the bridal party receiving with the parents of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Hall was in Eleanor blue patterned chiffon, with hat of dark blue satin, grey shoes, hose and gloves, and corsage bouquet of crimson roses. Mrs. Banister wore a gown of figured poudre blue and white, a hat of blue satin, blue shoes, gloves and hose of linen shade, and corsage bouquet of white roses and pink sweet peas.

The lovely grounds made a perfect setting for the reception, which was held on the lawn under the large mulberry tree, with its long dark red fruit. Tall standards were filled with rich red, cream and pink gladioli and ferns, and the cedar hedge and balcony were wreathed in pink and white streamers and bells. Quantities of gladioli and asters decorated the rooms, while the staircase and newel post were wreathed with phlox and green trailing vines. In the dining-room, where buffet refreshments were served, catered for by Hooper and Sons, of Peterboro, the table was done with a cloth of Madeira embroidery centered by a mirror and a marble stand holding the three-tier wedding cake, wreathed in white tulle. Silver specimen vases held dark red asters and ivory candles were lighted in silver holders. Assisting in serving were six girl friends of the bride: Miss Edith Deyell, B.A., of Bailieboro, Miss Jean Russell, B.A., of Bailieboro, Miss Kathleen Isbister of Peterboro, Miss Jean Burnham, Miss Lila White and Miss Gwen Hutchinson, all of Millbrook.

After the bride had cut the cake, brief speeches of congratulation were made by the Rev. H. R. Williams of Millbrook, the Rev. D. A. Mackenzie of Centreville, the Rev. J. F. Lane of the United Church at Frankford and the Rev. Ralph Spencer of the United Church at Smithfield. Then, after singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" the guests adjourned to the lawn, where the bride's bouquet, thrown from an overhead balcony, was caught by the sister of the bridegroom, Miss Emmiline Banister of Campbellcroft.

Later, the Rev. Mr. Banister and his bride left by motor for a trip through Western Ontario and to Wasaga Beach. On their return, they will live at the parsonage at Canton, Ontario, the bridegroom having charge of the United Churches at Canton, Garden Hill and Elizabethville.

The bride travelled in an ensemble of maroon brown English flecked tweed, with three-quarter length swagger coat, hat of brown satin and brown accessories.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was an Aeropack (travelling case) of brown leather, to the organist a circular French compact of white and silver, to the soloist a copy of Isabella Valancy Crawford's poems, and to the best man and ushers, leather belts.

Guests were present at the wedding from Toronto, Hamilton, Weston, Peterboro, Port Hope, Frankford, Burnbrae, Centreville, Smithfield, Campbellcroft, Bensfort, Keene, Millbrook, Bailieboro and Gore's Landing.

TOWER-CORSAN SWIM WINNER

Winner Beats Ravior Time— Evelyn Armstrong In Second Place

Ruth Tower-Corsan, of Toronto, tall titian-haired artist's model and possessor of the most consistent record of any marathon swimmer, yesterday crowned her swimming career when she won the 1933 Canadian National Exhibition ten-mile swim and the professional long distance championship of the world, and $3,000 in cash.

It was her fifth attempt to win the title. In each earlier attempt she had finished in the money ranks, twice in second place, once third and once fifth. She has never failed to finish any race she has entered. And her win, just as dusk thrust long fingers across Lake Ontario last night, fulfilled the vow she took to win when she settled in Toronto in 1923, just after she married Captain George Corsan, Canadian war flier. Her time was 5 hours 28 minutes and 10 seconds. The other finishers and their times were:

- Evelyn Armstrong, 5.31.02.
- Dorothy Nalavaiko, Glen Cove, N. Y., 5.34.31.
- Leah Riley, Keansburg, N.J., 5.34.43.
- May Looney, Warren, Ohio, 5.37.36.

Catholic Priest, Convicted Of Driving While Intoxicated — Appeal Made

Rev. Father M. J. Enright of Aurora was sentenced to ten days' imprisonment by Magistrate William Keith in the county Police Court at Toronto Tuesday after he had been convicted on a charge of being intoxicated while driving a car.

Additional charges of failing to return to the scene of an accident and reckless driving were dropped, and it was intimated that the Magistrate's sentence would be appealed. Father Enright was granted bail of $500, pending the hearing of the appeal.

The case arose from an accident near Bond Lake on Aug. 11, when a car driven by W. A. McDermid, Acadia Avenue, Toronto, and that driven by the defendant collided on Yonge Street.

BRIDE OF 2 WEEKS, BORROWS 2 CHILDREN

Since the absence of the Stratford city clerk, the job of issuing marriage licenses was handed over to Tax Collector E. G. Davis. Several days later a young woman with two children came into his office. "I don't think my husband should pay a poll tax when he has me and these two children to support," she told him. He was inclined to believe her until he recognized her as one who had purchased a marriage license only two weeks before. The children had been borrowed for the occasion.

HEARD ON THE STREET

SATURDAY, AUG. 26.

There are many who believe this is a fine day because it's the last of six working days.

Our corner friend asked us to-day if it is true that scarcely anybody in Port Hope is in want because one fellow told him that you'd be surprised how many people haven't enough to eat and wear.

The Government should help us—but who's going to help the government? So let's help ourselves to begin with.

There's many a man who says he should be provided for in these difficult days. Perhaps he should get busy and provide for himself, because if we all took that attitude who'd look after the lot of us.

Did you ever stop to think where we are headed for? Everybody has had ideas—but nobody seems to have enough personality or strength of character to take the helm and steer us to better days. Who should run things, Bennett, King, Aggie, you or me? It would just be a grand thing if we could pick the Best of the group to steer the ship of state; but when you have a chance it's best to take a tried and proven captain.

Mayor and Mrs. W. J. Crowhurst were tendered a special invitation yesterday to be present at the official opening of the Canadian National Exhibition.

John Dundas, Osaca, brought a freak egg into The Evening Guide Office this morning. The egg was laid by a Plymouth Rock hen. Half of the egg is of the usual light brown color while the other half is perfectly white.

On the eve of their departure for their new home at Port Britain, a large number of friends took Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell of Newcastle by surprise and presented them with a beautiful clock and John Mitchell with a set of military brushes.

William Nixfield of Brighton, Ontario, appeared before Magistrate Adams at Prescott charged with issuing a worthless cheque at the Dillon Hotel at Cardinal, and was found guilty and fined $10 and costs.

Burnbrae Presbyterian congregation, Seymour Township presented Rev. Donald Mackenzie, who is retiring from his pastorate there, with a well-filled purse and Mrs. Mackenzie with an electric floor lamp. Mr. Mackenzie concludes his pastorate in Seymour next Sunday.

In a surprise competition held by the Ladies Section of the local golf club, the winners were Miss Constance Fraser and Mrs. D. F. Houston. After the tourney those taking part were entertained to tea and bridge at the home of Mrs. E. M. Thurber.

Fore!

"By jove," the married golfer remarked, turning to his opponent at the 18th tee. "I'm particularly keen to hit a good drive here. That's my wife just turned up over there, see." "Don't be so silly, man," his cynical single opponent replied. "She's at least 300 yards away. You couldn't possibly hit her from here."

MONDAY, AUG. 28.

My, how time flies!

A week from to-morrow the schools re-open and holidays are over.

A. R. Hills, Cavan street, who for the past six weeks has been relieving in the Canadian National Express department at Noranda, Que., is now stationed for two weeks at the Bowmanville office.

One hundred and four years ago on Saturday the hotel at Port Hope was robbed of 5,000 pounds.

Wilfred Cude, well known National hockey league goalie and his bride, were in Port Hope Saturday, following his marriage in Toronto.

As Dr. J. F. Thompson, Principal of Port Hope High School may be out of town some days this week, the examination certificates for candidates who wrote the Departmental examinations may be obtained from Mrs. E. B. Ryan, Walton street.

Chief of Police Thomas Murphy returned to his duties to-day after a two weeks' vacation. For a week, the Chief participated in the annual shooting competition at Cobourg Ranges, Ottawa, and the remainder of the time was spent at Presqu'ile Point. To-day, Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell also returned after a two weeks' cruise down the St. Lawrence to Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Miss Jean Dickinson, A.T.C.M., Port Hope, was the Sunday morning soloist at St. Andrew's Church in Cobourg.

As a result of an invitation extended to His Worship Mayor W. J. Crowhurst and Mrs. Crowhurst by the Canadian National Exhibition authorities, both visited the Fair, On Thursday night, they attended the showing in the Art Gallery and on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, both attended the official opening by the Premier, Hon. George S. Henry.

A serious charge laid against John Sherrin, Port Hope stock salesman, was dismissed when he appeared before Magistrate, J. H. Davidson in Cobourg court, D. H. Chisholm, K.C., Port Hope, was defense counsel.

For operating a still on Thore Island, Lake Simcoe, George Warren was sentenced to a fine of $300 or three months by Magistrate Buck in Cannington on Friday.

Motorists will not likely be troubled with cattle feeding along the side of the highway; as has been the case in recent weeks, since Traffic Officer A. E. Hornick, lately impounded a number of cattle belonging to J. Willis, east of Millbrook, as a menace to safe driving. Ten dollars is the amount it is said to have cost the owner to redeem his property. Apparently it has been the want of pasture that has led farmers to allow their cattle to browse along the roadside, the hot dry weather being responsible for the shortage of feed.

Every effort is being made by police to locate fourteen-year-old John Gordon Strachan, of 270 Carlton St., Toronto, who has been missing from his home since Aug. 16. At the request of his parents, Acting Inspector of Detectives John Chisholm yesterday sent circulars to the provincial police which were despatched last night throughout Ontario.

Mean

The young bride said sadly—"Men are too mean for anything."

"What's the trouble now?" asked her best friend.

"Why, I asked John for a motor-car to-day, and he said that I must be content with the splendid carriage that nature had given me."

TUESDAY, AUG. 29.

"Bill" Bletcher and Harry Ward were among the boys who made Port Hope famous for its cricket.

The Men's Forum are doing a wise thing in training the boys to play a good clean game and should have much stronger support. If you want the boys to improve in their games so they'll be able to clean up honours throughout the province give them every encouragement by your attendance at their games.

Arrangements have been completed to make the Rotary Dance one of the best yet. Some of the special attractions are going to prove mighty popular and even those who don't dance will enjoy these numbers.

Next week-end being the end of the holiday season there'll be a lot of people coming and going and you can help make an interesting "Personal" column in The Guide by telling us of any you know. All "personals" written must have the signature of the sender as well as copy used in the paper. The Guide does not divulge its sources of information but requires the name as an assurance of good faith.

Saturday and Sunday there were collisions at Welcome corner chiefly caused by drivers approaching the intersection at too great a speed. Monday afternoon a big car following another too closely collided with it damaging the fender of the one in front and breaking the headlight of the other. Many of these accidents would be avoided if drivers would obey the instructions placed plainly visible there by the Department of Highways.

When Lou Marsh fires the official gun on the waterfront at the Canadian National Exhibition on Tuesday, September 5th, to start the first dog swimming race in Canada, Bowmanville will be represented in the 40 to 60 pound class by Mike, the big police dog owned by T. Lucius "Ham" Hooper, Scugog street.

Reginald R. Reynolds, B. Com., late of Queen's University has received the appointment of principal of Peterboro Business College and has already taken on his duties there.

A little boy lost a purse with 75c and would be very happy if the finder would leave it at The Guide.

The sittings of the High Court of Ontario, both jury and non-jury will open at Cobourg on Oct. 16th, 1933, before the Hon. Mr. Justice McEvoy. Lrgo Laurilla, the Finlander, will come up at this Court, charged with the murder of Fred McLaren of Cavan Township.

Peace At Last Briggs saw his neighbour, walking up the garden path with a trombone tucked under his arm. "Hallo! Been buying a trombone?" he asked. "No; borrowed it from Robinson next door," said the other. Briggs looked mystified. "But surely you can't play, can you?" he asked. "No," said his neighbour, with a smile of satisfaction; "neither can Robinson while I've got it."

CIVIL SERVANTS RETIRE AUG. 31

1,500 Civil Servants Slated To Leave—Some Are Retained

The end of August will be an eventful occasion in Ottawa, as well as throughout the Dominion, as approximately 1,500 civil servants, who have reached the age of 65 years, retire. Many of them have already left their desks, starting on the leave of absence which precedes the actual retirement.

The Treasury Board, composed of members of the Cabinet, met last week in the office of Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, and it is understood made final decisions as to which civil servants over the maximum age would be continued in active service. The policy followed was to keep those who could not be retired without bringing new men into the service and those who had certain rare qualifications for the work they were doing and could not be replaced without additional expense to the country.

GRIMSBY SCHOOL CLOSES ITS DOORS

Announcement Made by Rev. C. H. Boulden, Formerly of T. C. S., Port Hope

Announcement was made Monday by Rev. C. H. Boulden, headmaster, that Lake Lodge School at Grimsby, has closed its doors and students have been notified not to return. Lake Lodge was opened by the late W. J. Drope thirty-seven years ago, and was one of the finest private schools for boys in Canada. Mr. Boulden took charge of the school following the death of Major Rev. Gore M. Barrow, a year ago. The naval cadet corps of the school, the only one of its kind in Canada, was an outstanding feature. Mr. Boulden would not give any information as to why the school was closing, and he was not in a position to say if it would reopen at any future date.

Rev. C. H. Boulden was for several years connected with Trinity College School, Port Hope.

BENNETT GIVEN GREAT SEND-OFF

Now On Way To Canada Well Satisfied With Wheat Agreement

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett is on the high seas aboard the Empress of Britain, returning to Canada after a visit of three months there which culminated Friday in signing of a wheat agreement by the World Wheat Conference, under his chairmanship.

The Canadian Prime Minister got a great send-off both at London, where he boarded the boat train and at Southampton. Friends and well-wishers crowded to wish him farewell and Premier Bennett, in the best of spirits, said he was sorry to leave after such a wonderful time as he had spent.

Mr. Bennett expressed himself as "eminently satisfied" with the wheat agreement, which called for regulation of exports while the principal importing nations agree to stimulate consumption and, when the international price reaches a certain figure, to revise their customs duties on wheat.

SUGGEST SHARE TO BE ASSUMED

Oshawa Commission Says Eastern Municipalities Urged Power Purchase

Admitting municipalities of eastern Ontario had urged the Hydro Electric Power Commission to purchase more power following grave shortages of power in eastern Ontario during 1918 and again in 1927 the Oshawa Public Utilities Commission at its last meeting decided that the municipalities must bear their share of the present situation, whereby there is a large surplus of power causing increased cost per horsepower.

Recalling that municipalities of eastern Ontario including Peterboro, Belleville, Bowmanville, Brighton, Cobourg, Deseronto, Havelock, Lakefield, Lindsay, Millbrook, Norwood, Napanee, Whitby and others demanding more power and sanctioned purchase of 100,000 horsepower from the Gatineau district, Commissioner Mason suggested the municipalities would now have to assume their share of the responsibility. The power was needed at that time and will probably be needed in a few years when industrial conditions improve.

ORMOND DENIES PEN. CRUELITIES

Regulations Revised In 1932 Says Penitentiaries' Head

Administrators of the Canadian Penitentiary System broke their long silence, answering wide-spread reports of maltreatment of prisoners and general charges of stringent and harsh jail regulations.

In a statement issued by General D. M. Ormond superintendent of penitentiaries, a blanket denial was made that there was unnecessary cruelty in handling convicts.

A recent revision of prison regulations was made in an effort to remove harsh rules and to provide greater freedom and exercise for the men.

The Highlights

Here are some of the highlights of the Ormond statement: 1. No convict is kept in solitary confinement in a Canadian penitentiary. This statement was made in refutation of a published report that a prisoner had been kept in solitary confinement in Portsmouth Penitentiary, Kingston, Ont., for 23 years.

2. No prisoners have been "flogged like dogs," a phrase used by a convict at the recent Kingston trials.

3. There are no "holes" or dark dungeons in Portsmouth Penitentiary.

4. Shackling to cell gates by the hands has been abolished. A body belt for recalcitrant male prisoners is used now which allows considerable freedom.

5. Application of the hose as a punishment has not been used at Portsmouth since April, 1913.

COBOURG CAR FERRY FORCED TO RETURN

High winds and a rolling sea prevented car ferry Ontario No. 2 from making the gap at Genesee docks on Thursday morning, necessitating a return to Cobourg. The ferry left Cobourg at 1.35 Thursday morning, after bringing the excursionists back who had left the day preceding for Rochester. Nearing the American shore it was found impossible to make the gap at the pier entrance and, turning about the ferry buffeted the waves back to Cobourg, arriving at 11.45 a.m. She remained in all day awaiting favorable weather.

Requisite on the Farm. — Every farmer and stock-raiser should keep a supply of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil on hand, not only as a ready remedy for ills in the family, but because it is a horse and cattle medicine of great potency. GRITS SWEEP NOVA SCOTIA

Liberals Take 21 Ridings As Compared With 8 For Conservatives

Liberals 21
Conservatives 8
In Doubt 1

Nova Scotia's new Government will be headed by Angus L. Macdonald, 43-year-old native of Inverness County, who led the Liberal Party to victory over Premier Gordon S. Harrington's Conservative Government at the polls Tuesday.

Final results from Nova Scotia's general election indicated a decisive victory for the Liberals, who won at least twenty-one seats out of the thirty constituting the Legislative Assembly. The Conservatives were successful in retaining eight seats, and Tuesday night it was impossible to say whether F. W. ("Casey") Baldwin, Conservative, or D. B. McLeod, Liberal, had been elected in Victoria.

The sweeping Liberal victory saw five members of the Executive Council go down to defeat. These were: Hon. Obed P. Goucher, Minister of Agriculture, who lost to J. D. McKenzie in Annapolis; Hon. John Doull, Attorney-General, defeated in Pictou; Hon. A. Fred Fraser, Provincial Secretary-Treasurer, who lost to Geoffrey Stevens in Halifax East; Hon. Dr. G. M. Murphy, Minister of Health, whose conqueror in Halifax South was Angus L. Macdonald, Leader of the Liberals; and Hon. Albert Parsons, Minister without portfolio, and Hon. Percy Black, Minister MacMillan, former Liberal House Leader, in Hants.

Premier Gordon S. Harrington had a scant majority in Cape Breton South, and with him Hon. Joseph Macdonald, Minister without portfolio, and Hon. Percy Black, Minister of Highways, were returned to the House. Mr. Macdonald defeated the Liberal candidate in Cape Breton North, and Mr. Black was the successful Conservative in a split vote in the two-member constituency of Cumberland.

Indication of the Government's defeat came in early returns, as the Halifax constituencies piled up impressive totals for the Liberals. In the five city constituencies the Government failed to return a member. In 1928, when the Government won twenty-three seats to twenty for the Opposition, Halifax gave the Conservatives two men.

The last House, however, consisted of but 40 members, for in 1929 a redistribution measure was passed reducing the number of seats to 38. In certain counties an automatic clause operated, cutting down the membership as legislators resigned or died. While the House had a nominal membership of 40, but 36 members sat in the last Assembly, as four vacancies

TO GIVE CANOE AS ESSAY PRIZE

Open To Those Over 16 For Best Essay On Ontario Parks

Announcement was made yesterday from the Department of Lands and Forest, Queen's Park, that the 12-foot birch-bark canoe which is on the roof of the log cabin in the departmental exhibit at the Exhibition is to be given away free to the person over 16 years of age who can write the best article on the three large Ontario provincial parks, Quetico, Algonquin and Rondeau.

The only condition attaching to the contest is that the canoe must be removed by the winner at his or her expense after the Exhibition is over.

Essays must be submitted to the departmental exhibit, sealed and addressed to the Department of Lands and Forests. No information regarding the parks will be given out from Queen's Park and participants will have to consult their own sources of information. As many questions as one likes to ask may be asked, however, at the exhibit.

No Ontario civil servant may contest for the canoe. In fact every essay writer must make a declaration that he is not a member of the civil service.

3,200 CHILDREN "LOST" AT EXHIBITION MONDAY

Establishing a probable record for lost children, more than 3,200 young Canadians were taken to the little white house, the shelter for "lost kids," yesterday at the Canadian National Exhibition. Approximately the same number was stranded a year ago, but officials stated they believed the number would exceed that of 1932.

SEVEN-POUND BASS HOOKED AT CHEMONG

What old time fishermen claim to be the largest bass taken in Chemong Lake was caught by D. J. Perdue, Toronto. Measurements of the fish showed length 23 inches, girth 17 inches and it weighed almost seven and one half pounds.

These revenues show an increase of $492,727 from the figures of July, 1932. Operating expenses in July this year were $12,462,130, a decrease of $119,081 from the expenses of July, 1932, leaving a net revenue for the month of July this year of $820,466, as against net revenue in July, 1932, of $208,708, an increase of $611,758.

For the seven months since Jan. 1 the gross revenues of the system were $80,757,467, a decrease of $12,234,890 as compared with the corresponding period of last year. Operating expenses for the seven months of 1933 were $82,915,982, a decrease of $9,217,298 from the similar period of last year, leaving a net revenue deficit for the first seven months of this year of $2,158,515, as against a net revenue in the 1932 period of $829,076, a decrease of $2,987,591.

In 1881 when Major A. B. Rogers led the first Canadian Pacific exploration party into the Canadian Rockies, he was forced to leave one member, G. E. Tregent, with an injured foot, by the wayside. Tregent, now a resident of Guilford, England, blazed a tree with the words, "July 27, '81. Tregent cut his foot. Major nearly drowned. Both doing well." It was discovered in 1901, and preserved till this year, when it was presented to Mrs. R. A. Chowne of Vancouver, daughter of Tregent. Mrs. Chowne, who is at Banff Springs hotel with her husband, is seen examining her father's "news bulletin."

INCREASE SHOWN IN C.N.R. REVENUE

Total For July Exceeds Same Period Last Year

Gross revenues of $13,282,596 for the Canadian National Railways during the month of July, 1933, are shown in the monthly statement of revenues and expenses issued at headquarters of the railway.

These revenues show an increase of $492,727 from the figures of July, 1932. Operating expenses in July this year were $12,462,130, a decrease of $119,081 from the expenses of July, 1932, leaving a net revenue for the month of July this year of $820,466, as against net revenue in July, 1932, of $208,708, an increase of $611,758.

For the seven months since Jan. 1 the gross revenues of the system were $80,757,467, a decrease of $12,234,890 as compared with the corresponding period of last year. Operating expenses for the seven months of 1933 were $82,915,982, a decrease of $9,217,298 from the similar period of last year, leaving a net revenue deficit for the first seven months of this year of $2,158,515, as against a net revenue in the 1932 period of $829,076, a decrease of $2,987,591.

GIRLS OF THE CHORUS

They dream so much of greatness. Poor, tired girls, Who dance for hours upon their weary toes. They would make famous—those false yellow curls, By pleasing people in the theatre rows.

I watch them struggling for the throng's acclaim, And wish them well, but oh, their path is hard! I pity them because the gate to fame I know against the most of them is barred.

They keep their printed notices in books, Spin dreams of splendor which are mostly vain; Suffer great hardships for the crowd which looks, And seek applause with weariness and pain.

And always as I see them dancing there, Struggling for favor ere they grow too old, I seem to see the failure and despair That wait nearby to crush the dreams they hold.

SAYS TELEVISION STILL FAR AWAY

Accomplishments Are Only In Experimental Stage It Is Claimed

Frankly, television as an industry is not near. Those engineers who have laid their cards boldly upon the table by making public demonstrations of their sets have not succeeded in showing us that television has not passed the experimental stage in their laboratories, writes T. Coulson in the Forum and Century.

Others have contented themselves with the statement that television is not yet ready for the public and have gone on steadily, with the patience of their kind, perfecting their apparatus without inviting the public's plaudits.

TORONTO BASEBALL CLUB LOSES VICE-PRESIDENT

James A. Dunn, vice-president of the Toronto Baseball Club of the International League, died last night in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, from a heart attack with which he was seized two weeks ago.

Mr. Dunn became associated with the Toronto Club in 1926, the year of the Leafs' last pennant-winning achievement. Prior to that time he was closely and actively identified with the mining industry in Northern Ontario where the earlier years of his life were spent.

Baseball men who were with him at the ball park on August 12th, the day he was stricken state that an hour up to the time he was taken ill he was in the best of spirits and appeared also to be in the best of health.

LOCALS BEATEN BY COBOURG 2-1

Teams Tied For Honors—Final Game Here Tuesday At 5 P.M.

A double with two on in the fifth inning by McFadden, Cobourg second baseman, scored two runs and won the replay of the second game of the finals for the championship of the Lakeshore League in Cobourg Saturday afternoon by the score of 2-1. The two teams are now tied with each having won a game. The third and deciding game will be played in Port Hope Tuesday evening starting at five o'clock sharp, Port Hope winning the toss.

Port Hope should have tied the game in the eighth inning but Hudson was called out by Umpire Osborne for running off the line coming into the plate. Local fans protested but Umpire Osborne maintained that Hudson had exceeded the three-foot limit in coming into the plate. It was a tough blow to the locals and it proved the turning point in the game.

Port Hope made an impressive start and collected three hits in the first inning and one run. Hudson singled and stole second. McElroy struck out and Brown followed with a single to right. Hudson rounded third but was thrown out at the plate when he came in standing up. Brown went to third on the throw in and scored on Bill Phillips' single. Wakely struck out to retire the side.

Neither team scored again until Cobourg drove in two runs in the fifth to win the game. Campbell walked, Medhurst struck out and they single advanced Campbell to second. McFadden, who had struck out twice previously, became the hero of the day when he drove a double to right scoring Campbell and they. Gibson struck out and Bun Brown made a sensational catch at Rollings foul fly behind third base to end the inning.

Len Wakely drew a pass to open the eighth inning but was forced out at second. Hudson singled and went to second when McElroy walked. Brown hit a scorching double to right field and Ethier made a fast return to the plate and Hudson was called out for running off the line. Phillips popped out to short and the rally ended without a score.

In the ninth inning "Beamer" Elliott made the best catch of the day. Elliott had just replaced Gibson in left field and Ernie Berry blasted out a long fly that Elliott had to go right back to the fence to retrieve the pill with one hand. It looked like a home run and if it had been six inches higher it would have been nothing else. It was smart fielding by Elliott but a sad blow to the locals. Jack Hosack followed with a double but died at second when Devine, batting for Rowcliffe, was thrown out at first to end the game.

Ticket No. 1792 held by A. Highfield wins 5 gallons gas.

Much has been said regarding gasoline economy of 1933 cars. Port Hope owner of a 1933 Ford V 8 was curious as to what his car was doing and ran his tank dry. Putting in 1 gallon of ordinary (not high test) gasoline he drove 25.4 miles before the motor stopped again. About 20 miles of this was on gravel roads.

Another Port Hope owner told us a few days ago that he drove 244 miles on 10 gallons of gasoline.

This should combat any suggestion that the Ford V 8 gives only 12 to 15 miles per gallon.

THE MEANEST MAN

An Oshawa man who appeared in police court the other day is well in the running for the title of the world's meanest man. He was charged with, and pleaded guilty to, the charge of stealing vegetables from relief gardens in the city. These gardens are the gardens of the unemployed, of men who had decided to help themselves out of their difficulties by endeavoring to grow foodstuffs for their families.

The least that these unemployed could expect was that the produce they had grown for their families would be safe from theft. But apparently it was not. One does not like to criticize those who administered the law unless there is sound cause for it, but we do suggest that this confessed thief was very fortunate in being allowed to go on suspended sentence. The fact that he appeared in court, however, should act as a deterrent to any others who might be tempted to raid the relief gardens, and there should be no further reports of this particularly mean type of theft.—Oshawa Times.

CADET TRAINING

The curtailment of grants for the instruction of school cadets threatens to bring about the elimination of this form of physical training in Chatham.

Cadet training presents many admirable avenues for instilling in the minds of young boys principles which are necessary to their success in life. Such ideals as co-operation, esprit de corps, co-ordination of the mind and body, subordination of the will to reason and authority and the development of discipline are, probably, more easily taught through cadet training than through any other medium of physical drill.

The government of this country is faced with the necessity for reducing expenditures. The great mass of the people are demanding it. There will have to be a curtailment of the least essential services if the saving is to be effected, and it is therefore not surprising that departments of education such as cadet training should be the first to feel the shock. While useful and desirable, this training cannot be classed as the most essential in the educational system.

On the other hand, we would regard the elimination of cadet training as an unfortunate move, and we trust that some arrangement may be made to keep it alive in the schools. The reduction of the pay offered to cadet instructors is the bone of contention; but it would be a splendid thing if these instructors would make a special effort, under present difficult conditions, to give consideration to the beneficial influence which cadet training has upon the youth in attendance at our schools. It may be unreasonable to ask them to continue as formerly without adequate remuneration, but people in all walks of life are called upon to endure unusual hardships in connection with their private and public duties, in the hope that conditions will improve in the near future, and anything that cadet instructors can do to keep intact the splendid institutions connected with our educational institutions would not fail to merit and receive public approval and gratitude.—Chatham Daily News.

IN TWO SHORT YEARS

A youth of twenty-seven appeared in Peterboro police court asking for a year in jail and was given thirty days. Two years ago he received a legacy of two thousand three hundred dollars, and, according to his story told the justices of the peace he "went through" it on cars and having a good time. What he did not spend he was swindled out of.

There are two things certain in life. One has to watch out for the swindler and one has to watch out for one's self. Probably the chief cause of anxiety is self. If the self is rightly set even the swindler cannot break through the defence be his tongue as glib as possible and his offerings rosy.

This is a story of a youth who had a wrong ideal. Money he saw but as means of pleasure, not an agency of self-development. To-day his wrong ideal has made him accept a very low ideal—a place in a cell. He has asked society to protect him from himself as he is no longer able to look after himself.

This is a bad start but it would have been much worse if this were to come at the end of a long life or at the beginning of age. This boy still has a chance to make good for he has many years ahead though the road uphill will be hard but one to challenge the best in him. Age beaten in such a way would scarcely recover from the realization of the defeat of ideals and the shock of body and mind.—Belleville Intelligencer.

A REASONABLE PLAN

It is not surprising to find that the first announcement in regard to Ontario's return to the former system of municipal works as a relief measure has been considerably modified.

Direct relief, we are now told, is not to be abandoned, although in the case of those municipalities who are able to provide a works program there will be assistance forthcoming from the Provincial and Federal treasuries.

This is a more reasonable program, for while nobody will question the moral value of furnishing jobs rather than direct relief, our experience with this plan has been that it is necessarily expensive and that when large numbers of families have to be cared for relief can be provided directly with much less strain upon the public purse.

To attempt again to look after all Ontario's jobless by means of a public works program would be a mistake in the light of earlier experiments along the same line and the plan now announced by which municipalities which desire to embark upon a scheme of public works will be helped by the two governments, while the direct relief plan will still be carried on for the benefit of other unemployed would seem to be a much more workable and desirable method.

Further details as to the new scheme will be awaited with interest by many municipal governments.—Peterboro Examiner.

WORTH WHILE HONORS

Two young farm lads of Durham County, Maurice Baker, of Solina, and Oliver Smith, of Burketon, have returned from the World Grain Fair, at Regina, where they won some of the highest honors obtainable at that great show for their prowess in seed judging. Particularly did Mr. Baker do well at this fair, for he won two first prizes, and collected a considerable sum of prize money.

The chief value of this achievement, however, does not lie in the amount of money received in prizes. In seed-judging competitions, these young men were perfecting themselves in the vocation of agriculture, for good seed is one of the chief essentials of successful farming. What they have learned in preparing for the world-wide contest in which they did so well will stand them in good stead as farmers, should they decide to continue on the farm. And when young men take so keen an interest in agriculture as these boys have done, they usually stay on the farm.—Sentinel Star.

NEW INNOVATION IN PARTY POLITICS

It would seem from recent announcements, that the political parties of this country have at last decided that it was time somebody knew something about what the policies of each party were, and what they actually mean and stand for. With this in mind, both the Liberal and Conservative parties have sponsored summer schools, the former at Trinity College School at Port Hope and the latter at Pickering College, Newmarket.

These schools are for the study and discussion of Canadian economic and social problems. The faculty at each school is composed of men outstanding in the study of the topics on which they will speak. They will discuss such problems, as those of the railways, public ownership, public administration and social services, the French Canadian's contribution to Canadian Unity, the Federal problem, inflation, aspects of unemployment, agricultural problems, principles of public finance, international labor and several other subjects of vital importance at the present time.

The political parties have made a very wise move in having these matters studied, and men of vision and of experience giving the benefit of their research to the parties. The schools should tend to bring about a far better understanding between the parties, and should be the means of doing away with much of the hot headed hearsay talk which has featured political speeches of all parties for many years.

It is to be hoped that the faculties of both schools will remain entirely independent of politics or the value of the schools will be lessened. If only the Liberal or the Conservative aspects of the problems are going to be discussed, the schools will be useless for it would be almost impossible to persuade a Conservative to attend the Liberal Summer School and equally fantastic to expect a Liberal to attend the Conservative Summer School.—Bowmanville Statesman.

THE STARLING PEST

Starling hunts have been launched in several sections of the province in an effort to get rid of those voracious pests which in the last few years have descended upon Ontario in ever-increasing numbers and it begins to look as if similar action will have to be taken in this district.

It is disconcerting to learn that flocks of starlings are not only cleaning out the rice crop which is responsible for bringing myriads of ducks to this part of the province every autumn, but that they also inflict material damage upon grain crops in several townships.

There seems every reason to expect that this destruction will grow worse year by year as the flocks of starlings increase and unless energetic steps are taken to deal with this condition the situation will speedily get out of hand.

The matter is one that should engage the attention of the provincial government.—Peterboro Examiner.

MANY MILLIONS HAVOC CAUSED

Two Lake Craft, One Bound For Toronto, Have Close Call

The toll of death and property damage piled to disastrous heights as the eastern strip of North America cleared away the debris from its most terrific tempest in years. The total of lives lost was 42; the destruction, impossible to approximate calculation in such widespread devastation, amounted into the many millions of dollars.

While the sun peeked through storm-blackened skies sporadically Thursday, many localities were still in distress from the gale and deluge that lattered the Atlantic seaboard, then struck inland to churn Lake Ontario into angry mood.

Two lake craft had close calls. The small, powered vessels Doris K., out of Concession, Ont., with 1,200 pounds of fish, was grounded near Summerville, N.Y., after battling huge waves kicked up by a 50-mile-an-hour nor'easter throughout Wednesday night. Her owner, Wesley Kizer, and his helper, Charles Macdonald, were rescued by coastguardsmen.

The yawl Ontario, out of Rochester for Toronto with a crew of three, drifted on the beach near Oleott, N.Y., after the lake storm had stripped her sails. Those aboard, William Tarr and Alfred Cash of Rochester, and O. K. Baker of Buffalo, found rest in a nearby cottage, where Tarr was treated for exposure.

In up-state New York, the Catskill Mountain village of Fleischmanns breathed a bit freer as the waters of Lake Switzerland slowly receded, lessening in force against the weakened dam above the village. For hours Wednesday there was danger of the dam crumbling, inundating the village of 800 inhabitants.

The coast guard—driven to exhaustion by long hours of heroic rescue work—kept to its vigil of aid for disabled craft.

The Chesapeake steamer City of Norfolk was aground in Pocomoke Sound, near Watt's Island, after she was unheard from many hours. A wireless message said that the ship apparently was in no distress and the passengers were safe on board.

Striking at a time of harvest, much of the storm's irreparable damage was to crops.

OSHAWA MAN IS FINED $200 AND COSTS

Peter Simon, Oshawa, through his counsel Frank S. Ebbs, pleaded guilty to having illegal possession of a quantity of liquor on the 27th day of July, when he appeared in the Oshawa police court and was fined $200, and costs.

Simon admitted having in his possession a large can containing alcohol. The defence counsel asked for leniency and the minimum fine owing to the fact that a plea of guilty had been made. Magistrate Creighton pointed out that the particular nature of Simon's offence was one of the worst type of breaches of the act.

THIEVES ESCAPE ARMED PURSUER

Men, Surprised White Looting Port Perry Store Make Escape

Chief Constable Nesbitt, assisted by dozens of citizens of Port Perry, is still searching in the swamp near William's Woods, north of Port Perry, for two men who were interrupted while breaking into a grocery store owned by T. J. Widden early Wednesday.

The search is the result of one of the most exciting mornings in the history of Port Perry, which included a chase after the men in which a revolver was fired.

About four a.m., Mrs. William Chapman, noticed that two men had apparently broken into the Widden grocery store on Port Perry's main street. A car was parked in front of the building and two men were carrying groceries from the store to the car. Becoming suspicious, she notified Donald Anderson, in the rear apartment, who grabbed a revolver and rushed downstairs without bothering to put on his shoes.

Anderson then went across the street and accosted the men, who were still removing supplies from the store. The men immediately took to their heels, with Anderson in close pursuit, down the main street. When he realized he could not catch them, Anderson fired his revolver in an effort to stop them. The shot, however, had no effect, and Anderson was forced to stop the pursuit when his feet became badly bruised on the rough stones in the street.

NEW SERVICE ON RY. DINERS

Railways Decide To Cater More Largely To Infrequent Patrons

Extension of the combination meal service inaugurated on the dining cars of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways several months ago has been announced by the railways to be effective August 24th. Those combinations afford the traveling public greater convenience in ordering meals and the preliminary experiment met with such popular approval that it was decided to extend this form of service.

The list of combination meals on dining cars has been greatly extended by the respective managements, and it is felt that this service will particularly appeal to patrons who travel infrequently and who therefore are not familiar with ordinary a la carte menus.

Under the extended combination service patrons of the diners have a choice of five combination breakfasts ranging from 35 cents to $1, four luncheons that are priced at from 75 cents to $1, and three dinner selections priced from $1 and $1.50.

SCIENCE FIGHTS DREAD MALADY

Rallies To Help Of Area Stricken By Sleeping Sickness

Scientists rallied to-day to an intensified fight against sleeping sickness, mysterious malady which has killed 8 persons and attacked 182 others in St. Louis and vicinity.

A government expert rushed from Washington went to work in an attempt to determine if insects spread the disease. Meanwhile, as three deaths in the last 24 hours swelled the fatality list there to 18, the disease broke out in five other mid-western communities.

Previously, the federal public health service had regarded the Spokane outbreak of 1919 to 1921 as the country's worst, but the number of patients there did not compare with those already ill in St. Louis.

The United States public health service, recognizing the outbreak as the largest "ever reported in the world in any one given place," has dispatched a third scientific expert here Dr. L. L. Williams, Jr., medical entomologist, joined Dr. J. P. Leake and Dr. Charles Armstrong, public health physicians, who are aiding local authorities in an effort to find a cause, carrier, preventative or cure for the disease.

Reporting to headquarters in Washington that he felt sure the spread of the disease was not due to water, but that he wasn't certain he could exclude insects as a cause, Dr. Leake asked for Dr. Williams, whose speciality is insects as disseminators of disease.

BEAR CUB ENJOYING HIS LAKE CAPTIVITY

So tame that he will eat out of his captors' hands, a bear cub is cheerfully settling down to an enforced stay at a Catchacoma Lake summer home, and is apparently not the least concerned about the possible anxiety that his absence might be causing to his parents—Mr. and Mrs. Bruin.

The trouble all started for the little fellow, when he overcame his timidity, and boldly essayed to forage around Webber Turner's summer cottage at the lake.

Warren Turner and a party of his friends spied the cub and gave chase. The nimble little creature of the woods shinned up a tree and stayed there until he considered it was safe to come down. He was outwitted by his hunters, however, and was repeatedly lassoed as he vainly sought safety on the top of an eight-foot stump. Ingenuously unhooked into a burlap bag, the cub was carried in triumph to the cottage and was held as a prisoner. He is partial to the kindly treatment and attention he is getting, according to latest reports, and eats resignedly from the hands of his captors.

CEREAL CROPS AUGMENTATION

Much interest has been aroused in the agricultural circles of the leading nations of the world in the striking results of recent investigations in regard to the possibility of maturing and augmenting yields of cereal crops through artificial stimulation. In order to appreciate these and co-ordinate what benefits may be derived therefrom to Canada, the Cereal Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture has conducted preliminary experiments at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, and has arrived at results similar to those obtained by the original experimenter, Lyssenko, a Ukrainian plant breeder, who named the process "Varovization." The Imperial Bureau of Plant Genetics anglicized this name to "Vernalization", which consists in the pre-treatment of seed by soaking it in water until the germ swells conspicuously and exposing it to a temperature of 27 to 40 degrees F. from 6 to 30 days in darkness. The periods of cold and darkness varies with the varieties of winter and spring cereals. In this manner it is claimed that the crop yield is greatly augmented.

Later, the Cereal Division contemplates reporting some definite data after summarizing the additional field results.

BOWMANVILLE POLICE INVESTIGATE ROBBERIES

Two robberies are occupying Bowmanville police, following break-ins reported at the Kingsway Tea Room at the east end of the town and at Lavender's service station, two miles west of the town. Robert McCullough, who operates the Kingsway, reported that between $50 and $60 worth of tobacco and other merchandise and a small sum of money was stolen by robbers, who broke two locks and decamped without his knowing anything about it despite the fact that he occupies an apartment but a few feet away from the store they robbed.

At the Lavender service station a small quantity of gas and oil was stolen. Provincial Constable W. E. Smith, of Bowmanville, and Chief of Police Sydney Venton are investigating.

1933 HARVEST IS COMPLETED

Season's Work Is Finished Two Weeks Ahead Of Last Year

The 1933 harvest is now completed and the season is almost two weeks ahead of last year in the Ballieboro district. It is generally thought the cause of the early harvest has been due to the lack of rain and the exceedingly warm weather with the high drying winds.

The quality of the grain throughout the district is considered fair, but the yield is far below last year's crop. Spring grain, such as oats, barley and buckwheat are exceptionally scarce and farmers will be forced to substitute with wheat, which fortunately yielded an average crop. The fine hay crop which the major portion of farmers harvested, is also going to help tide the crop over the winter months.

The root crops are almost a total failure. Corn is short and badly infested with corn-borer. Potatoes in almost every instance are a total failure, and other roots are likewise far below par. A blight has struck the potato crop and already the plants are dying.

Owing to the dry weather farmers are finding it extremely difficult to prepare their soil for fall wheat and without rain falls to a considerable extent within the next fortnight the acreage will be small this fall.

Perhaps the pasture being scarce is one of the greatest problems to the farmers this fall. A scarcity of fall pasture draws heavily upon the winter's supply of hay and fodder. In many instances farmers are absolutely without pasture and have been forced to sell their stock, while unfinished at a sacrifice.

The majority, however, claim their crops have exceeded their expectations as the drought had been so extreme they feared there would be nothing worth while to harvest.

Up to date the winter apple crop is looking promising and hopes are held for apples of a good quality. The fall apples have been injured by the dry weather and those varieties will be scarce in this district.

The Guide Story

"Don't bluster man. It's of no use and so you ought to know by this time. But all this is idle talk. I planned these robberies, as you know, months ago. I plotted and planned for weeks, till at last I had everything cut and dried and I have certainly succeeded to a miracle. That haul of jewels in the train was certainly an unlooked for fluke of luck. But did I keep it to myself, as I had every right to do? No, brought the booty to the general fund, and it will be shared amongst us. Does this look like showing the white feather?"— scornfully.

"Forgive me, old pal," returned the other, "but when I hear of you talking of chucking us over I regularly lose my head, and that's all about it."

For a few seconds Cissie's senses seemed to leave her, and then she heard Dan say—

"There's no danger, but I will go back into my room to see that all is safe. I will then descend to the library and let you in by the window. The Colonel, like an old fool, showed me where the strong room was hidden in the wall, and, as I have duplicates of all his keys, there will be little trouble in the matter. Wait patiently for five minutes and I will give the signal."

He cautiously ascended the flight of steps and stood at the top, ready to enter the room, when he caught sight of Cissie. One step and he was by her side, his hand upon her mouth—the other gripping her by the shoulder.

"You have heard," he began.

"Everything!" she gasped, as his hand now tightened over her mouth. He stood for a second as if paralyzed, but he did not loosen his grasp.

"Listen to me, Cissie, and understand that I am desperate!"—in a hoarse whisper. "Attempt to move or speak and you shall die!"—drawing, as he spoke, a long, thin dagger from his breast-pocket. He was once more in male attire. "Return to your bed and stay there. Swear to me that you are safe. Refuse, and, though you cannot hinder my plan, it will be the worse for you."

"Oh, Dan, hear me!"—flinging herself upon her knees at his feet, her golden hair streaming around her. "Dan, my brother, do not perpetrate this dreadful crime. I entreat you—for the sake of our dear mother, who watched over us both in our innocence and purity. Dan, dear, dear brother!"—clasping his hands passionately in her own. "I heard you say just now that you loathe this life of sin. Leave it—I will go with you. I will work for you, Dan—tend you if you are ill, watch over and be your companion, your friend, your always tender, loving sister. Oh, hear me—dear, dear brother! There is yet time for repentance, for happiness and for—"

Dan hesitated an instant, then was struck from behind with a heavy instrument, and, falling through the window, rolled down the steps. Cissie started to her feet with a wild shriek, which ended in a moan of pain, as she dropped insensible from the shot of a revolver fired by Dan's companion, Bob Wilding, who, getting impatient at the delay, thought he could not do better than follow his friend through the house and might possibly pick up some articles of jewelry as he passed along.

What was his dismay to see the kneeling figure at Dan's feet! Perceiving Dan's hesitation, and anatomizing all women, he knew that the game was up, and struck him on the head with his life-preserver—more as a token of contempt than with any intention to kill. At Cissie's scream there remained no choice but to silence her also, and his pistol being in his hand that was the readiest mode, if he would make good his escape.

Then, running down the steps, he emerged on to the lower terrace, pausing one moment to collect his thoughts. The next saw him rolling on the gravel walk, pinned to the ground by Marmaduke's bloodhound, which always slept in his master's room and at the sound of fire-arms rushed wildly to the door. Duke, too, was quickly on the alert and followed the faithful animal and found the intruder firmly in his dog's grip.

The household was speedily aroused and a scene of confusion ensued. Dan was picked up insensible, and conveyed to a bed-room. A doctor was sent for, and after examining him pronounced his injuries to be mortal.

After hearing the explanation of Bob Wilding, who was only too ready to turn King's evidence, both the Colonel and Duke felt thankful that there was no chance of Dan's recovery, on account of Cissie, who was still lying senseless. The shock had been too much for her sensitive frame so severely strained previously although, fortunately, the bullet had glanced on one side, inflicting only a slight flesh wound—stopped in its course by the thick gold of the locket which she wore under her dress.

"Good gracious!" ejaculated Duke, as he gazed at the locket which the doctor handed to him, observing that it had been the means of saving the young girl's life.

"What's the matter?" demanded his father, turning from the bed where Cissie lay pale and motionless. His son passed the portrait without a word, and, as the Colonel took it, the back, shattered by the bullet, fell away, and several closely-folded papers dropped to the ground. The young man picked them up and glanced at them carelessly, whilst his father examined the portrait.

"There is more mystery here, Duke," remarked the Colonel, "or why should this poor girl be wearing the likeness of her father, Sir Cecil Ferrars?"

"I think these papers will unravel it," replied Duke, holding them towards his father, who perused them.

"A certificate of marriage between Sir Cecil Ferrars, Bart., and Eleanor Nugent, widow, solemnized at St. Andrew's High Holborn, London! This is, indeed strange. The date is eighteen years ago."

"And the other is the certificate of birth of a daughter of the said Cecil and Eleanor Ferrars," said Duke. "Her name is Cecilia—and there she lies!"—pointing to the bed.

"It is a strange affair," commented the Colonel, his face full of bewilderment. "If this girl is Sir Cecil's daughter by his wife, he must have committed bigamy, for his other marriage with Lord Armington's heiress took place sixteen or seventeen years ago."

"But the other wife may have died in the interim," suggested Marmaduke.

"Yes, as you observe, she may have died," assented his father. "But if not, this would account for Sir Cecil's never staying more than a day or two in England."

It was many hours before Cissie recovered consciousness. She recognized Lilith at once and drew her face down and kissed her.

"I don't understand what has happened," she murmured, in a rather faint voice.

"Why, you have been ill, and must be very good and quiet," replied Lilith returning the girl's caress with interest. "You will soon be better."

"You are very good to me, but where am I?"—as her eyes roved restlessly round the unfamiliar chamber.

"Why, at Lytton Hall, to be sure," replied Lil. "Where else should you be?"

"Ah, I remember now!" returned Cissie, sinking back upon her pillows with a heavy sigh. "But where is—Dan—vers?" And she gazed eagerly into Lil's expressive face, which, despite all her efforts, blanched as she met the other's questioning gaze.

"He—I mean she"—confusedly—"will soon be here. She is gone out for a little—"

"Then she is not dead?" questioned Cissie. "You would not deceive me, Lilith?"—looking searchingly at her face. "Ah"—as she shook her head—"it must have been a dream—but, oh, Lilith—"

"There, darling, don't excite yourself!"—in soothing tones. "Danvers shall see you directly she comes in. In the meantime, drink this. Doctor Franmore has sent it to you, and it will do you good."

And a few seconds later Cissie was asleep.

After a long period of unconsciousness, Dan Nugent came to his senses and in a husky voice whispered—

"Cissie, little Cissie!"

"Do you want any one?" asked the doctor.

"Cissie—bring her to me! Cissie—my little Cissie!" he murmured. "I swore to love her better than my life—I die for her sake. Ah, it is better so!" After a pause he asked, "Is Colonel Lytton a magistrate?"

"Yes."

"Let me see him—I have a confession to make."

"And Cissie knew nothing of your plans?" eagerly questioned Duke when the confession was complete.

The dying man turned a look of contempt on the questioner.

"Trust a woman with a secret? Surely! Besides, can you not see that Cissie, my unfortunate sister, is innocent in act and thought—pure as one of the angels?"

"You will be glad to hear that she is proved to be the lawful child of Sir Cecil Ferrars," Colonel Lytton said.

"Is that true?" asked Dan, his face lighting up at the prospect of the young girl's welfare.

"Perfectly true," replied the Colonel.

"Thank Heaven! For her sake I am glad to go. I might have been a disgrace had I lived, although I longed to lead a decent life. There was no chance for me, and I am very weary—very weary." A long pause, and then Dan started up again, a bright light on his face. "Mother, I tried to keep my promise—Cissie—tell her—I loved her—always—"

And then the tired eyes were closed in their everlasting sleep.

CHAPTER X

From the information Dan Nugent gave, Colonel Lytton, by Mr. Edgarson's aid, and the payment of the reward he had offered, received the family jewels intact, and several of the pictures stolen from the gallery at the Priory were also recovered.

Sir Cecil Ferrars arrived, as expected, on the Monday and the whole was unfolded to him. He made no secret of his marriage with Mrs. Nugent. She was the only woman he ever loved, so he asserted. She left her home and husband for his sake, and at Tom Nugent's death he made her his wife, as was proved by the certificate. A little girl was born to them—doubtless Cissie.

After her birth troubles came thick and fast upon them. He was obliged to fly the country on account of creditors, but intended to send for his wife and child as soon as he was settled abroad. Instead of that, however, he met Lord Armington's daughter and heiress, who fell desperately in love with him, and snatched him plainly enough that herself and her thirty thousand pounds were his if he liked to take them.

A weak man always, thinking little of his responsibilities, and reverting not at all the sacred tie of marriage, Sir Cecil was glad to take the lady and her money, as he could not get the latter without the former. It certainly served to free him from his debts, but he had never known an hour's peace or happiness since.

He had no son, and that was a grievance. Their one little daughter was brought up at the school where it chanced that Cissie—Dan Nugent's half-sister—was sent.

By Colonel Lytton's advice, Sir Cecil received Cissie as his daughter, and when she recovered her health, he took her back to Paris with him, and introduced her to his wife—telling the true story of his life to them both.

Cissie herself was so blent in the thought that she now had a home and father that she could afford to forget the long years of misery and neglect.

By Dan's request, search was made at Asphodel Terrace for old Jonas Hardacre, but those who went to seek him learned that he had died two days before—nearly at the same hour as his grandson.

Very tenderly did Duke tell the whole story to Cissie, during her whole and tedious convalescence. Little by little she learned the truth and was at liberty to weep for the loss of a brother who, whatever his crimes, had been a loving protector and a kind affectionate guardian to her.

Cissie Ferrars and Lilith Lytton, surrounded by a goodly crowd of friends and relations stand in the little village church at Long Lytton. It is their wedding-day, and they are about to give themselves to the men of their choice, who stand beside them.

Very beautiful they look, robed in snowy draperies, and as they walk down the aisle the glorious music of the "Wedding March" peals forth, the sun streams down upon them, and the village children strew flowers in their path.

THE END

UNIQUE EXCURSION TO CHURCHILL PORT

Last and most unique of the travel bargains offered by the Canadian National Railways this year was a trip to Churchill, terminus of the Hudson Bay railway and Manitoba's deep sea port.

With fares on the cent-a-mile basis, it made possible for the first time in the long career of the pioneering line a visit by the general public. The usual features on this occasion were "de luxed" by all-inclusive rates which embraced not only tourist sleeping car accommodations but meals on a regular dining car which accompanied the train and in use for excursionists during their stay at the port.

OUR NEW STORY

CHAPTER I

"I wish you would think it over, Sam!"

"I have thought it over, and don't like it."

"But I wish you would consider it."

"Don't I tell you that I have considered it?" testily.

"Yes, but I want you to bring the force of your mind to bear upon it."

"The fact is, you want me to change my mind," says Mr. Samuel Griffin, laying down his pen, placing his elbows with a thump upon his writing-table and regarding his sister severely through his gold-rimmed spectacles.

"Well, I wish you could see it in the same light that I do," urges Miss Griffin nervously.

"I never change my mind, Sarah. Once I have come to a conclusion, I never change," remarks Mr. Griffin, rubbing his thin hands together with a self-laudatory air.

"I know you are very stubborn—I mean persistent and determined," agrees Miss Griffin, with a sigh.

Her brother indulges in a short laugh.

"Shouldn't wonder if it runs in the family!" he observes dryly.

"Runs in the family—'What do you mean?' asks Miss Griffin, opening wide her innocent eyes. "I am sure I scarcely ever express an opinion and, as to sticking to one, it is the last thing I should dream of."

"Yes, but you are not always asleep!" retorted her brother.

"Oh, no! I flatter myself that I am pretty wide-awake as a rule," answers Miss Sarah, with a satisfied laugh at her brother's small joke.

Any one acquainted with Miss Griffin would own that it must be self-flattery indeed, if she succeeded in persuading herself that she is not pretty frequently imposed on. She is one of those fortunate, foolish and happy women who have reached the age of sixty without having arrived at the conclusion that the world is full of wiles and wickedness. Her wealth is great and her charity unbounded. She distributes her bounties alike to the deserving and the unworthy, and if her alms-giving is not always as discriminating as it might be, at any rate it keeps alive her almost childlike faith in mankind.

"I suppose I shall have no peace until you carry your point," observes Mr. Griffin, regarding his sister with a shrewd look. "For the past fortnight we have argued the subject regularly every day, and we shall certainly never agree."

"Of course, if you forbid it, Sam!" begins Miss Griffin, in a tone of resignation. But her brother interrupts with a satirical laugh.

"Forbid it. How could I forbid it? Surely you are old enough to think and act as you choose, and, if you have set your mind on taking Judy away to see the world, I suppose you will do it. I think it is a pity myself to disturb the repose of her mind, but—"

Miss Griffin interrupts in her turn, for she has a wholesome horror of Sam's "buts."

"The poor child has never seen anything. She has grown up like an owl in an ivy-bush," she observes pathetically.

"And, like the owl, it is my opinion that she had better stick to her ivy-bush," says Mr. Griffin, sagely nodding his head. "Who knows what dangers she may encounter?"

"But she will have me to protect her," answers Miss Sarah, drawing up her short and somewhat stout figure to its fullest height.

"Bah—the blind leading the blind!" ejaculates Mr. Griffin impatiently.

"Really, Sam, you talk as if I were going to carry our darling away to the wilds of some savage country, instead of merely taking her up for a month or so to the most civilized city in Europe!"

"I can't see, for my own part, what the girl wants beyond what she has got," murmurs Mr. Griffin, with a sigh.

"Oh, Sam, of course she never openly asked to go. Only I see a wistful look in her eyes sometimes, when she is reading about the gay doings of the world, and I don't think it is fair of us never to give her a chance!"

"It is my belief you want to go to London and see a little gaiety yourself, Sarah!" remarks Mr. Griffin sternly.

Then the old lady began to whimper.

"I am sure if you know me so little as to think that, Sam, after all the years we have lived together—not to speak of the sorrow of my youth—"

"But, that of course, I didn't begin it. Only I am put out—annoyed," explains Mr. Griffin, pushing back his chair and impatiently tapping his blotting-pad with the end of his pen. He has an awful presentiment that his sister is about to air "the sorrow of her youth," which, with the persistency of a romantic woman, she has managed to spin out through middle-life, and it does not seem likely to die even with old age.

"When I think of what I suffered then, and the way my appetite failed and of the faint feeling that tightened my heart-strings," pursues Miss Sarah, in a depressed tone from behind the pocket-handkerchief.

"Yes, yes, my dear, I know. Don't—don't distress yourself by recalling it all," interrupts Mr. Griffin, waving his hand as if to dismiss the subject.

"And if, or rather since, you have determined to take Judy up to London, when do you mean to start?"

"Then you consent—you do consent to my taking her?" ejaculates Miss Griffin covering her pale-blue eyes, in which tears are still standing.

"Well, yes, I suppose I do," assents her brother. "But, though I consent, remember, I disapprove, and if any harm comes of it, on your head may it rest."

"Oh, Sam, don't be so solemn. I wish you wouldn't say that you disapprove. I know that poor Julia's child is as dear to you as to me, only—"

"Stop a minute," interposes Mr. Griffin, holding up his right hand dictatorially. "I have never given in to that romance of yours as to her being Mrs. Earnshaw's child."

"But Sam, she must be," pleads Miss Sarah pitifully. "She has her mother's eyes and her father's nose, Julia's fascinating little ways and dear Jack's short, merry laugh. Besides, who else would ever have thought of coming to this out-of-the-way place to put her on our doorstep?"

"Anybody with a grain of sense who knew you and your soft-hearted ways," replies the more practical Sam.

"No, Sam, don't talk like that. I am sure you spoil Judy every bit as much as I do."

"No, I don't," objects Mr. Griffin bluntly.

"Yes, you do, and it is only because you can't bear to have her out of your sight that you object to my taking her to London."

"Perhaps you are right," he admits doubtfully. "I shall certainly feel lonely enough if you take the child away."

"Then, why don't you come with us?" urges Miss Sarah eagerly. "I am sure the change would do you good. Do you know I really think we have been leading too isolated a life for the past thirty years."

Mr. Griffin stares at his sister for some moments in mild amazement, not unmingled with scorn. Then he says rather curtly—

"You may think so—I don't. You may feel inclined to go frisking out into society again, but I would rather grow blue-mouldy among my present surroundings than rub elbows with the outer world again."

Miss Griffin slowly rubs her plump white hands, and sighs.

"I thought we might start about the first of April," she says, with her head a little on one side.

Mr. Griffin bursts into a hearty but unwilling fit of laughter.

"Better make it the second—the first is too suggestive," he says grimly. "And, if you are going so soon, it is time you made some arrangements. Where do you intend to put up when you get there?"

"I have thought of that Sam," answers Miss Griffin, taking out her purse and withdrawing from it a small printed advertisement. "Listen. Apartments furnished (superior), Brownrig Terrace, Kensington. Drawing-room, dining-room, three bedrooms, bathroom, home comforts, first-rate cooking. There—doesn't it seem providential? And home comforts—it was that that took my fancy."

"Don't you wish you may get them?" says Mr. Sam with a sardonic smile.

"Anyway, I'll write about the rooms," answers his sister, replacing her purse in her pocket and patting it affectionately.

"Look here," cries Mr. Griffin, as Miss Sarah, having gained her point, is about to leave the room. "Since you are bent on going, I suppose you will go, but I insist on your taking Bird to look after you."

the drawing-room, whence quickly issues the sound of a pianoforte.

"It is all settled, Judy. I have triumphed at last, and we are going!" cried the excited little lady, bursting into the room so suddenly that for a few moments she is not aware of the presence of a long-legged youth, seated rather uncomfortably on a low sofa, and dangling a soft felt hat between his knees.

When, however, she does perceive him, she advances with outstretched hand, and says in a tone of surprise—"Tom, you here?"

"Yes, Miss Griffin!" answers the tall young man, springing to his feet, and so showing his full height, which is about six feet two. "Mr. Griffin was kind enough to say, he would help me to decide about the estimates for repairing my place and—and so I took the liberty of—of calling rather early."

"A deep flush suffuses his face while speaking and he is evidently very nervous.

"Yes, Mr. Wilde wanted to see Guardie, but I told him that he must wait patiently till you came back," explains Judy, looking up from the piano, where she is still continuing to play very softly. "I have been entertaining him to the best of my ability, only I don't believe he really cares for music a bit."

"I do—I adore it!" declares Tom Wilde, looking rather blankly into Judy's smiling face.

"Nobody could help liking your music, dear," says Miss Griffin, placing her two hands affectionately upon the girl's shoulders and looking reproachfully at her visitor.

"That—that is just what I wanted to say, only—only, I didn't think of it," explains Tom, his face becoming, if possible more crimson than before.

Judy darts a sly, coquettish glance at him, and then, turning her head so as to look up into Miss Griffin's face, she says half doubtfully—"And we are really going up to London, auntie—you and I?"

"Yes, dear. Guardie has given his consent and now you will have a chance of seeing all the wonderful things we have read about."

"Oh, and, if we don't like it, we needn't stop—need we?" says Judy, with a sigh, and suddenly looking very grave.

"Of course you will like it, my dear!" declares Miss Sarah decidedly. Judy shakes her head doubtfully.

"You see, my only experience of town hitherto has been in the shape of visits to the dentist," she explains naively.

"But I thought you wanted to go," says Miss Griffin, looking disappointed.

"And so I do, auntie dear. It is only the perversity of human nature," and Judy laughs gaily. "I was wild, perfectly wild to go, when I thought Guardie wouldn't let me, but now, somehow, I don't seem to care half so much."

"You'll care when you get there," observes Miss Sarah, smiling. "Think of all the concerts—why, you have never heard a good professional player in four life."

"Miss Earnshaw pays like a professional herself," remarks Tom Wilde, astonishing himself by his laboured compliment.

Judy laughs, and runs one hand quickly along the keys to hide the fact.

"I—I thought it was an under-mood thing in the neighbourhood—that that none of you ever left the Hermitage?" continues the young man, who looks considerably taken aback by the announcement he has just heard.

"No wonder people say so," answers Miss Griffin, with a smile. "It must be fully thirty years since either Sam or I slept out of our own house."

"And—and won't you feel rather lost in London?" hazards Tom anxiously.

"Lost in London!" exclaims Judy. "I am sure I have seen those words somewhere—isn't it the name of a play?"

Then, turning toward Tom, who is still twirling his hat, she continues blandly, "You will find my brother in his study. When you have decided about the estimates, you had better come back to us."

"Thank you, Miss Griffin, but—but I have an engagement at twelve o'clock, and, if it is all the same to you, I won't disturb your brother this morning."

"Just as you like, of course," assents Miss Griffin, looking astonished at this sudden change of plan.

So Mr. Wilde shakes hands with both ladies in a hurried manner, and takes his departure.

"I am not sorry he is gone, Judy," remarks Miss Griffin, with a sigh of relief. "I am very fond of Tom—very. I consider him a most worthy young man, but at the same time there is so much to talk over that I could not help feeling he was rather in the way."

"Yes, and he is so often in the way," rejoins Judy, with a pout. "I really was in despair what to do with him till I thought of the piano. I'm afraid he does not care for music, poor fellow, but at any rate it obviates the necessity of hazarding remarks about the weather."

"But he is a really good young man," Judy remarks Miss Griffin, a little wistfully.

"Oh, I know, auntie," agrees Judy, laughing and shrugging her shoulders—"he is awfully good, but he isn't the least bit sharp!"

"Well, no, my dear—he is not," admits Miss Sarah, with a sympathetic smile. "I always told his mother that it was her duty to send him to a public school, but, poor soul, she couldn't bear to part with him. Being her only son, one can't much wonder. Now that she is dead, I am sure the poor lad feels lonely."

"I suppose that is why we see so much of him."

"He is quite a model youth," adds Miss Griffin.

DAVID

(International Uniform Sunday School Lesson, Sept. 3.)

GOLDEN TEXT:—"Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."—1 Samuel 16: 7.

LEFISON PASSAGE:—1 Samuel 13: 4-13; Psalm 78: 70-72.

THE SON OF DAVID
Very dear the Cross of Shame
Where he took the sinners' blame,
And the tomb wherein He lay
Until the third day came.
But He walked the self-same road,
And he bore the self-same load,
When the Carpenter of Nazareth
Made common things for God.

Walter C. Smith.
SUSPICION, 4, 5.

"Must thou peacefully?" asked the elders of the town of Bethlehem when Samuel arrived unexpectedly. Samuel's purpose was to offer sacrifice before choosing a successor to Saul, but the people of Bethlehem were on guard until they knew definitely what his errand was. It was a rude, rough time, in the days when the judges judged. Tribal animosity was the rule and peace was the exception, but the attitude of suspicion has remained until our day. When two men shake hands up a meeting, it recalls the days when swords were worn and two men could not have confidence until they had demonstrated that they did not intend to draw their swords. It is only a formal social custom now, but the handshake is a hangover of fighting days. When General Balbo of Italy flew with his fleet of airships from Rome to Chicago, it caused much more excitement in France than in the United States. Several European observers interpreted it not as a courtesy to the Century of Progress Exhibition, but as a tacit declaration by Italy that she claims supremacy in the air. When the United States Congress passes a naval estimate, the newspapers in Japan feature it as news and campaign for greater naval expenditures by Japan, claiming that their safety is threatened. These international suspicions will endure until we learn to think peace as naturally as we now think war. In personal relationships we have largely overcome the fear of attack and greet people as friends until they show themselves hostile, but we are far from this attitude of confidence between nations.

MUSIC OF MIND, 6-10
Athletes are finding an increasing place both in education and in life generally. Sports are good as a means to an end, but they are not an end in themselves. When they contribute to health and character they serve their intended purpose, but when they are given more space in a newspaper than politics, education and religion combined, they are receiving more attention than they deserve in themselves. Even health is not an end in itself but merely the basis upon which higher human values may rest. Some renowned athletes have been below the average of human intelligence. There have been candidates for the pugilistic championship of the world who could barely read or write. Mind is more important than muscle in modern life; brain gives power rather than brawn. The development of the biceps muscle of the arm is very secondary to the cultivation of memory, imagination, reason and will in the whole personality. Samuel was attracted by the physical set-up of Eli, but he was told not to look upon the outward appearance as the Lord looks on the heart. A strong body and a fine personal appearance are assets of great value, but the permanent tests of life are decided by mental training and character qualities. Young people need to be warned that athletics are only incidental in education. The bigger goals are in a different direction.

THE YOUNGEST SON, 11, 12

David had a fine physique, but he had more. Though he was the youngest son and was not thought to be of much value yet as a fighter, ing man, he had developed qualities of initiative and independence. He could take care of a flock of sheep as well as older men. When danger appeared in the form of a lion or a bear he could act with courage and efficiency. Hand and eye co-ordinated when he used a sling. He had cultivated skill in music and had a good understanding of human nature. Though David was left with the sheep, he was not sheepish. When he was called before Samuel, the issue was not in doubt for a moment, Samuel knew that before him was the future king of Israel, the successor of Saul, destined to be Israel's greatest king until there should appear the King of kings. David had all that open air life could give him, a fine complexion, an open countenance, a strong body, but it was not for these that he was chosen as prospective king. His mental, social and religious capacities were his real qualification for the position.

THE EFFECT OF RESPONSIBILITY, 13

A position may help to make a man. Having a standard to maintain may draw out latent powers. A man in public office sometimes surprises his supporters by displaying ability that they did not know he possessed. The task brings forth the talent. It is sometimes found that a young preacher called to some famous pulpit measures up, because he feels the challenge of his place. After David had been anointed with oil by Samuel, as a foretoken of his kingship, the Spirit of the Lord came upon David from that day forward. This is the Hebrew way of saying that David took his responsibility seriously, that he used his time for great purposes, that he sought to learn from those who could teach, that he looked to God for daily help. There would always have been something distinctive about David had he remained a shepherd, but the assurance that he was to be king made him put his best foot forward and do his level best. Could youth but know the opportunities of middle age, school books would not be tossed in a corner with disgust. Doing homework is doubtless one of the authentic signs of the presence of the Spirit of the Lord.

A SHEPHERD STILL, Psalm 78:70-72

The Hebrew people gloried in the fact that David was a shepherd king. His later royal prestige did not make them forget his lowly origin. They attributed to him many of their finest poems, the twenty-third psalm included. They felt that, as king, David retained his shepherd heart, caring for the nation as he had cared for the sheep. It is true to this day that the world's greatest leaders come from humble homes and from the common people. In Bethlehem was born a greater than David, often spoken of figuratively as the Son of David, who labored at a carpenter's bench until he should assume the role of the Messiah King.

QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION

1. What is the place of athletics in education?
2. Which is the best age for deciding life's vocation?
3. Is moral character usually better before or after twenty?
4. What may we do to have God's spirit dwell in us?

Inside the door there is a sloping metal chute down which the dime slides to establish contact with the electrical circuit which makes the bell ring. A small switch attached to the device breaks the contact so that the ringing can be stopped instantly. There is one piece of additional equipment that goes with the anti-peddler doorbell. It is a metal cover which slips over the slot and the lettering so that callers, bidden or unbidden, will not be tempted to deposit money when no one is at home.

WILL INSPECT APPLE CROP

Government Announces Thorough Policy Under Regulations

During the last session of the Federal Parliament, the Dominion and the Provincial Departments of Agriculture were referred to as the cogs of one huge machine, the smooth, systematic interlocking of its mechanism being held up as an example to be followed in official co-operation and co-ordination. If further evidence were needed of the harmonious working between the various departments of agriculture, that proof will be submitted on the 23rd of this month.

On that date, the Provincial Fruit Branch of Ontario and the Dominion Fruit Branch will join forces in the inspection of the apple crops of Ontario in connection with Regulation No. 1 (Export) of the Destructive Insect and Pest Act, under the supervision of the Foreign Pests Suppression Division of the Entomological Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. This regulation states—"The export of apples comprising all varieties of fresh fruit, to any country other than the United States of America, is prohibited, unless the shipment intended for export is accompanied by a certificate of inspection issued and signed by an inspector duly appointed under the Destructive Insect and Pest Act. It shall be illegal for any common carrier, steamship company, or other person to accept for export any such shipment unless the required certificate accompanies the shipping order."

On the other hand, while the inspectors do not wish to overlook any grower who may be interested in this inspection for export; on the other hand, in order to save time and expense, it is intended to inspect only those orchards from which apples are liable to be exported. Thus, to facilitate organization for inspection, any grower who proposes to export apples is required to submit application for inspection, with the exception of growers who have been carrying out control operations this season under the Ontario Fruit Branch under the "Orchard Certification Plan." These growers have already been listed.

It is intended to inspect orchards before harvest, commencing on the 23rd of this month, and any varieties of apples found free from infestation may be exported, subject, of course, to further examination by the Dominion Fruit Inspectors at the time of packing, when certificates will be issued.

Already a large number of applications have been received. Applications from those growers who are not under the "Orchard Certification Plan" should be forwarded to the Secretary, Destructive Insect and Pest Act Advisory Board, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. No stamp is required on the envelope. The application should give the name and postal address of the grower, the location of his orchard by county, township, and lot number, and should state the varieties and number of trees in his orchard.

IT COSTS ONE DIME TO RING DOOR-BELL

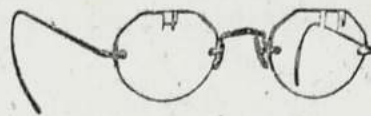

The increasing activity of peddlers, solicitors and beggars inspired Chas. C. Radcliffe, of Toledo, to invent a new kind of doorbell which should be, he feels, prove a boon to housewives. It is a doorbell which just won't ring unless a ten-cent piece is dropped in a slot.

From the outside the device looks like a neat metal plate with the slot in it and these words plainly printed where all who would ring may read: The words say: "This bell will not ring without inserting dime. Coin will not be refunded to canvassers or peddlers."

There are many more fools in the world than there are knaves, otherwise the knaves could not exist. Sept. 13, 1922, the thermometer registered 136.4 in the shade at Azizia in the northern African desert.

Port Hope Man Meets Instant Death at Cobourg

Canadian Pacific Section Hand Killed by Train Shortly Before Noon on Tuesday—Leaves Wife and Five Small Children—Inquest will be Held

(From Tuesday's Daily)

John Comar, Hope street, Port Hope, aged 56, section employee of the Canadian Pacific Railway for several years, was instantly killed at the level crossing on the Provincial Highway, two miles east of Cobourg at 11.40 o'clock this morning. The body was thrown for only a short distance and the victim's life was snuffed out instantaneously.

Provincial Constable W. J. Carey of Cobourg investigated the fatality and Coroner Dr. F. W. Diamond of Port Hope has ordered an inquest. The remains were taken to F. J. McArthur's Undertaking Parlors at Cobourg.

JUMP IN GAS IS PREDICTED

Raise is Predicted As Result of Roosevelt's Recovery Code

Gasoline throughout Canada will, in all probability, take a substantial jump upwards within the near future as a direct result of the oil code signed by President Roosevelt, which goes into effect in the United States September 2," the Montreal Gazette says.

"Just what price the President will set on U.S. gasoline and what increase it will make in retail prices are so far matters of speculation, but any change will be felt in Canada as a matter of course, it is stated by experts," the Express said.

PEAS AND OATMEAL

Steamer, train and hotel chefs of the Canadian National agree that this makes good soup: Two lbs. of mutton, 2 qts. of water, 2 onions, 2 carrots, 2 turnips, 2 apples, parsley, thyme and bay leaf, 1 tablespoonful of curry powder, 2 tablespoonfuls of flour, juice of a lemon. Fry the apples and vegetables in melted suet, and cook gently for 15 minutes. Sprinkle in the flour and curry powder, then add the meat, cut in small pieces, some salt, the herbs and water. Skim this after it begins to boil, then cook slowly for 3 or 4 hours. Strain and force the meat through a sieve, then return to the soup. Serve with hot boiled rice. Add the lemon juice before serving.

SEED POTATOES

Any Potato Can Be Used For Seed But Not Sold Or Advertised

There is nothing in the regulations of the Destructive Insect and Pest Act governing seed potatoes intended to convey the impression that only certified seed can lawfully be used for seed purposes. As a matter of fact, says the Dominion Department of Agriculture, any other kind of potatoes may be used freely by anyone, but only certified seed potatoes may be advertised and sold as seed potatoes. It is an indictable offence under the Act mentioned to advertise or sell in Canada uncertified potatoes as seed potatoes, or to use any kind of seed tag likely to mislead the public. Growers, dealers, and associations, however, are permitted to attach their own tag or brand, or to mark any container of seed potatoes with any special description, but such may be done only when, in addition, the official certification tag is present on the container.

It is to be clearly understood that certified seed does not mean seed potatoes that are entirely free from all diseases, for such a result is scarcely possible under field conditions, but every effort is made to inspecting a field. Seed potatoes must be in good condition before the official tags are attached to shipments, but, on the other hand, the public must realize that potatoes cannot stand rough handling, high temperatures, or wet conditions in storage, because rot is almost sure to set in if such conditions prevail.

spec and pass tubers from fields that are well kept, and show only a very small percentage of disease, and where plants are vigorous and true to variety. The request to use certified seed proceeds from a desire to improve and increase Canada's crop and not for the mere purpose of increasing the farmer's income.

She took whatever I could buy—
She took my kisses, quick and shy,
And then she took the other guy.
